CHAPTER XXII
DAYS OF ANGUISH.

Presently, however, one of the men-servants told her maid that Mr. Toddy had been sent for, and Rebecca grew alarmed—not so much at the news as at a strange presentiment she had of some coming ill.

She put on her bonnet and ordered the pony carriage.

Then, with a woman's privilege, changed her mind and countermanded it. Her pride kept her back.

At dusk word was brought her that the squire was dangerously ill and not expected to live through another day.

White and terrified, she had the brougham brought round and hurried off to the Dale, her one idea being to get the old man's forgiveness and grasp his hand in friendship once more before he died.

Every hard, fiery word she had poured out upon his gray head burned into her soul.

"Drive quicker, James," she said, lifting the little window.

"Yes, ma'am—up to the hall door?" he asked, thoughtfully.

"Yes—no," said Rebecca. "Drive to the side gate and I will walk through the shrubbery—the carriage will make too much noise on the front path."

"Just what I was a-thin' of, miss," said the man, who understood his mistress as well as she did herself. "I hope you'll find the squire better, miss," he said, respectfully. "Shall I wait?"

"Yes," said Rebecca, tearfully, as she turned to enter the shrubbery. "Wait here, and if I don't come I will send word for you to return."

James touched his hat and remounted his box, casting his eyes up at the dimly-lighted window of the sick-room.

"The squire dying, Master Hugh—Heaven knows where!—and Miss Grace lost! What'll become of the Dale, I wonder?"

While he was pondering he heard footsteps coming toward the carriage from the shrubbery and, peering into the darkness, was surprised to see his young mistress hurry from the opening which but a few minutes since she had so hastily entered and clutch the carriage door.

"What on earth's the matter?" muttered James. "Something skereed her?"

And he jumped down off the box.

Rebecca's face was as white as death and her eyes looked scared and startled—her hand, too, as it grasped the door, trembled like an aspen leaf.

"Heavens, miss!" exclaimed the man; "what be the matter?"

"Nothing—nothing, James," breathed Rebecca, glancing at the shrubbery as she spoke and drawing her shawl more closely round her throat.

"I—I—got a little fright; a cat—or—or—something ran from the trees. It is so dark—and—lonely. I think I'll—I'll go up the front way."

"Yes, miss," said the man, sympathetically. "It be dark and lonesome, too dark and lonesome in the shrubbery for a lady to go alone in and at night. I don't wonder as yer be frightened. Look here, miss, I'll leave 'old horse here and come with you to the door, if you please."

"Very well," said Rebecca, still faintly, and James following her she went up the broad gravel drive to the house.

One of the maid-servants opened the door and a glance at the girl's red eyes and tear-bedewed apron told Rebecca all.

She went whither still when they showed her into the room and she saw the still, motionless figure beneath the sheet.

Mrs. Lucas came forward to receive her, but Rebecca sank upon her knees beside the bed and hid her face in her hands.

What would she have given to recall those passionate words of hers! Alas, they were beyond recall; the ears that had listened to them could hear no softer, no gentler ones now! She remained motionless for nearly ten minutes, then she rose, and with eyes that were red with the tears she had shed, she gazed upon the marble features. They were calm and peaceful now.

Death's hand had smoothed the passionate wrinkles from the forehead and, left the stern mouth soft and smiling.

While she stood looking the doctor came into the room with a lighted taper and a stick of sealing-wax in his hand.

He shook hands with her and wagged his head slowly and sorrowfully, with that sympathetic, professionally sad pursing of the lips that every physician acquires with his first patient.

ent, and then went on with his task, which was that of sealing up the drawers and safe in the bedroom and dressing-room beyond.

Mrs. Lucas tearfully whispered to Rebecca the story of the last moments—breaking down many times in the recital and winding up with a fit of sobbing that threatened to deprive her of what little breath she had.

Rebecca listened, still gazing at the dim outline on the bed and crying quietly; then, after ascertaining that she could do nothing, could be of no service whatever, she stole downstairs.

By the time she had reached the hall the doctor joined her.

"Have you seen Captain Dartmouth, Mrs. Goodman?" he said, in a hushed voice.

Rebecca flushed and turned white again.

"Yes—no," she said, with a strange hesitation.

"He is here—or was here—on the terrace a moment ago, said the little man. "If you will walk into the drawing-room—everything is in such confusion—the death—shem!—was so sudden—or—"

"I—I won't wait," said Rebecca. "If I can be of no use I—I think I will go."

Before Mr. Toddy could reply the drawing-room door opened and Captain Reginald came in.

He was very pale, but calm as usual, and came forward with outstretched hand.

Rebecca put hers into it—but with hesitation. He shook it, wrung it, rather, but said nothing.

The doctor relieved them of their embarrassment.

"So sudden!" he murmured. "Miss Rebecca has heard all. So distressing—ahem! No one here: Mr. Hugh away, and Miss Grace—ahem!—all the responsibility falls upon Captain Dartmouth's shoulders."

The captain shook his head.

"I know nothing; I can do nothing," he said, in a low voice and addressing Rebecca, "until the lawyer comes."

"He has been sent for," said Mr. Toddy.

"Meanwhile Mr. Toddy has been so kind as to seal the safe and everything of that sort," said Reginald Dartmouth. "I would give more than I could say to have my cousin or Miss Grace here. Under the circumstances I am thankful the estate is entailed."

The captain smiled a sad, meaning smile.

Rebecca, for the first time, lifted her eyes and fixed them on his—perhaps too unexpectedly, for he half started at the glance.

"It is not entailed," she said simply and slowly.

"Indeed!" he said, indifferently. "It will not matter in any case. There is sure to be a will. We all know to whom the squire looked."

Rebecca raised her eyes once more.

"Yes," she said. "First Hugh, next to Grace; but—"

Then she stopped.

He looked at her beneath his lowered eyelids with a keen scrutiny.

"Yes," he said, with a sigh. "I would to heaven she were here!"

"Good-night," said Rebecca.

And she turned toward the door.

Before she reached it Mrs. Lucas came down the stairs, holding something in her hand.

"I have found this, Captain Dartmouth, under the pillow," she said, and held out a folded paper.

Mr. Toddy took the paper and, going to the hall table, sealed it; then opened the door for Rebecca.

"Your carriage, madam—"

"Is at the gateway. I can reach—"

"Certainly, not alone," said Reginald Dartmouth, and he offered his arm.

But Rebecca murmured something, walked hurriedly down the steps and reached the brougham.

As she was entering the vehicle the Dale carriage dashed up with the family lawyer inside.

CHAPTER XXIV.
FACING THE FUTURE.

A tale plausible was never spun To tickle lending ears and mask a villainy.—TYLER.

Mr. Reeves, the family solicitor, was a keen, sharp-sighted man—as a lawyer should be—and he took in the circumstances of the case at a glance.

Mr. Toddy had handed him the keys, papers, and seals, and had departed. In the chamber of death Mrs. Lucas sat watching and, at times, weeping. The lawyer and Captain Reginald

OTHER TABLETS NOT ASPIRIN AT ALL

Only Tablets with "Bayer Cross" are Genuine Aspirin

If you don't see the "Bayer Cross" on the tablets, you are not getting Aspirin—Remember this!

Genuine "Bayer Tablets of Aspirin" are now made in America by an American Company. No German interest whatever, all rights being purchased from the United States Government.

During the war, acid limitations were sold as Aspirin in pill boxes and various other containers. The "Bayer Cross" is your only way of knowing that you are getting genuine Aspirin, proved safe by millions for Headache, Neuralgia, Colds, Rheumatism, Lumbago, Neuritis, and for pain generally.

Aspirin is the trade mark (Newfoundland Registration No. 761), of Bayer Manufacture of Monoaceticacidester of Salicylicacid.

Handy tin boxes of 12 tablets—also larger sizes! "Bayer" packages can be had at drug stores.

The Bayer Co., Inc., U.S.A.

were seated in the drawing-room, the first eating breakfast, the latter sipping a cup of coffee tinged with brandy, and looking pale and heavy after a short night's rest.

"It is most extraordinary," said Mr. Reeves, in his sharp, legal voice; "most extraordinary! And this is the only reason you can give for Hugh's absence?"

"That is the only reason I know," said Reginald Dartmouth, languidly.

"He refused to marry the lady and my uncle turned him out."

The lawyer nodded his head curiously and gave vent to an impatient and professional sigh.

"Ah!" he said, regretfully. "The only thing the poor squire wanted—a little patent turn. Poor fellow! Ah, well, we all have our tongues, Captain Dartmouth. But to proceed. And Miss Darrell, you tell me, has also disappeared? It is most remarkable—most strange!"

"It is," said the captain, impassively and breaking his toast.

"Most extraordinary! When did you say she disappeared?"

"Four days since," replied Reginald Dartmouth.

"Four days since," repeated the lawyer. "And all the efforts to discover her have been of no avail?"

"None whatever. I scoured all the most likely places on the road to London and in town itself for three days unsuccessfully."

"Dear me—dear me!" said the lawyer. "Thank you, another cup of coffee. May I ask if any reward has been offered for information?"

Reginald Dartmouth shook his head.

"No," he said. "There was no time. One event followed upon another too quickly to allow of any such steps being taken. Four days ago Grace—Miss Darrell—disappeared. I set off in pursuit within an hour of her disappearance and remained in or about London for three days. Yesterday I returned and found my uncle too ill to speak of anything. It is true he mentioned her name; but only in a slight and half-vacant manner. He was too far gone then to grasp the circumstances of her disappearance."

The Most Beautiful Car in America

A New Development in Light Sixes

Before we began experimental work on our new six-cylinder motor three years ago, we made a very thorough investigation of the light six field.

We found out just what qualities car owners desired in the power plants of their motor cars and then we designed an engine to meet these requirements.

The wisdom of our method is attested by the unanimous approval given our five-passenger "Glenbrook" model. With its first appearance, it immediately won the enthusiastic support of motorists.

And, by its dependable and economical performance, it has so clearly demonstrated its high character as an investment value that our production schedule is already proving unequal to the demand.

The "Glenbrook" is a truly remarkable development in five-passenger cars. Won't you arrange for a demonstration while our dealer is in position to meet your requirements as to delivery?

U. S. GOVERNMENT HELPS RAILROADS.

WASHINGTON, June 7. Immediate appropriation of $125,000,000 of Government funds for use of the railroads to purchase new rolling stock was announced to-day by the Interstate Commerce Commission. The money will be advanced out of the three hundred million dollars revolving fund provided in the Transportation Act.

REPUBLICAN CONVENTION TODAY.

CHICAGO, ILL., June 7. The imminence of the Republican National Convention which begins its sessions at noon to-morrow, apparently worked to-day to further the cause of clarifying the question of who is to be nominee for President. Wood, Lowden and Johnson, supporters, were driving hard for advantage, and all of them were claiming gains as the balance of un-structed delegates rolled into Chicago.

TWO KILLED IN EXPLOSION.

AKRON, O., June 7. Two men were reported killed and dozens others injured to-day when a tank of benzol exploded in the spreader room of the Mason The and Rubber Co., at Kent, twelve miles from here. The fire, which caused the explosion, was confined to the spreader room.

CONFERENCE WITH KRASSIN.

LONDON, June 8. Premier Lloyd George, Earl Curzon, Foreign Minister, and Bonar Law, conferred to-day with Gregory Krassin, Russian Soviet Minister of Trade and Commerce, at the Premier's official residence, Downing Street. The conference was also attended by Winston Churchill, Sir Eric Geddes, Arthur J. Balfour, Walter Hume Long, and Austen Chamberlain. No official report was issued after the meeting which lasted two hours. Another conference has been arranged. The Premier in his speech in the House of Commons gave no information as to the results of to-day's conference. The Premier based his arguments on the absolute need of Russia in the world's reconstruction and the impossibility of fighting and crushing Bolshevism unless prepared to sacrifice hundreds of thousands of lives and to add hundreds of thousands of millions to the national debt. He admitted there were conflicting reports on the amount of exportable commodities in Russia, but said that was not the reason for refusing trade. He concluded by appealing to the House not to seek quarrels in a world full of explosive matter. Lloyd George provoked a hearty round of laughter by remarking "this country has opened up most of the cannibal trade of the world" he went on "it is a new doctrine that you must approve the habits and customs of any government before trading, and to continue to refuse to trade with the Russians, so long as a Bolshevik government is in power, would be an act of gross folly. M. Clemenceau certainly opposed recognizing the Soviets politically, but to urge the impossibility of trading with a government guilty of atrocities is to exclude more governments than I dare think." The Premier who had been subjected to severe strictures in the part he had taken in the Russian negotiations justified his policy. He related the history of the negotiations showing that the Allies had been unanimous in favor of an attempt to re-open trading with Russia, without, however, consenting to a resumption of diplomatic relations unless the Soviet government adopted civilized methods.

PROHIBITION AMENDMENT CONSTITUTIONAL.

NEW YORK, N.Y., June 8. Federal agents will redouble their efforts to make New York bone dry, James Shelvin, supervising prohibition enforcement agent, announced to-day when he learned that the United States Supreme Court had declared both the prohibition amendment and Volstead Act constitutional. To-day's decisions were misinterpreted in some quarters for no particular reason and impromptu celebrations were started at which it was reported liquor stronger than point seventy-five flowed freely. The truth, how-

MURDERER SHOT BY POLICE.

LONDON, June 7. The hue and cry throughout the United Kingdom for a murderer named Topless was brought to a sensational end last night when he was shot dead by the police at Plumpton, five miles north of Penith. Topless, who deserted from the army, murdered a taxi cab driver at Andover on April 25 and made a wild night ride in a stolen Taxi Cab to Swansea where the car was found abandoned.

NORTH SYDNEY LONGSHOREMEN MAKE WAGE DEMANDS.

NORTH SYDNEY, N.S., June 7. In spite of reports to the contrary there is as yet no strike of Longshoremen at North Sydney. The men are not working to-day but officials of the Longshoremen's union advise the "Record" that this is because of the nasty weather and not because a strike has been called. Men working on the steamer Green knocked off work to-day because of the weather and men have also quit at other points. Up to the present time no word has been received as to attitude the Reid Newfoundland people are taking on the men's wage demands and it is not likely that a strike will be called until the Directors of the Company are heard from.

WILL DEAL FIRMLY WITH LAW BREAKERS.

LONDON, June 7. The government intend to take steps to bring to justice all persons associated with crime in Ireland, Premier Lloyd George declared in the House of Commons to-day in arguing the question. The Premier added that with this object in view the government was re-organizing the Irish executive and was strengthening the police, and naval and military forces in Ireland. It would probably also be necessary, he said, to strengthen the law for dealing with crime. It was the intention of the government, Lloyd George asserted, to put down the present "organized campaign of murder and assassination."

GERMAN ELECTION RESULTS.

BERLIN, June 7. Majority Socialists have been elected to thirty-four seats in the first Republican Reichstag, according to latest reports from the canvas of votes cast yesterday. Independent Socialists will hold twenty-four seats. German People's Party twenty-six, Democrats sixteen, Centrists fourteen, Communists two. Of individual candidates it is known that Count Von Bernstorff, former ambassador to the United States, running as a German Nationalist has been defeated.

Houses Without Nails.

In Alberta, Canada, there exists a village where no nails have been used in the construction of the houses. They were built by Ruthenian immigrants, and are of the typical Ruthenian stype--long, pitch-roofed, thatched, and wide in the eaves. Even the door, an affair of slender twigs, woven and laced together, swings on home-made hinges, and is latched with a wooden hasp. The floor is of heavy logs unnailed. The roof is a wonderful fabric of poles and cross-woven wheat straw ten inches thick, packed tightly and solidly, and laid with such care that it will endure any weather for twenty years.

An Extraordinary Defence.

Here is an amusing story of how an extraordinary defence was successful. A man was charged with stealing goods from a railway booking office. There was apparently no defence. In his speech for the defence counsel turned his attention to the directors of the railway. "Would it not be better for them," he asked, "instead of trying to hound, to ruin, a poor, miserable, ill-paid employee, to look after the comfort of their passengers, and provide carriages properly lighted and comfortable?" The inevitable scene that followed was terminated by the foreman of the jury rising and saying that they had agreed upon their verdict. "Of course, it is an undefended case," the judge replied. "We find the prisoner not guilty," the foreman continued. "Not guilty!" The judge fell back in his chair and glared at the jury. "Yes, my lord." "Let him be discharged," was the feeble rejoinder of the astounded judge. The badly-lighted carriages had done it!

NOTES OF TRAVEL: And Reminiscences of a Pleasant Tour.

I. C. MORRIS.
CHAPTER XIII.
AT MONTREAL.

Before beginning our tour we heard many opinions as to the best date to start; so when all the advice had been considered we decided that September should be a nice month for the purpose. Thus we found ourselves crossing the border line from the U. S. A., on the evening of the first day of that month, and reaching the city of Montreal at the hour of 9 p.m. The run from New York occupied twelve hours, and afforded much opportunity for study and observation; both within the train and out side, and to anyone in fairly good health, and of common good temper, there could only be enjoyment. There are some people who fail to get pleasure at any time as there seems to be something wrong somewhere around, or about them, or they imagine there is something wrong; and if they fall in finding it about them, they manage to find it within their own small selves, and foster it within their own little souls. Whether our car contained any of this class of people we do not know, we were not looking for such people. To us the scene was entirely new, and the panoramic order of the journey presented its own special attractions. It was Autumn. Nature was in her glory, and though some of the harvest had been gathered, there was still that garment of beauty and that robe of splendor, for which Canada is renowned. We were beholding the Indian Summer for the first time—hence its attraction.

While we watched, the shadows of evening closed upon us, and the city of Montreal came dimly into view, and soon we found ourselves among its million of people, and comfortably cared for at the Windsor Hotel. The sights along the line from New York were mostly rural; the sights at Montreal were mostly architectural—and yet there was a bounteous touch of the rural throughout all the city, for its streets are lined with tall trees, and its highways are relieved by spacious parks. It seemed that art and nature were vying with each other; but just then art had the victory, for the leaves showed signs of falling, and soon must the trees be bare, and thereby stripped of much of their glory. Montreal is truly a fine city, and has many things in its favor at present, and holds undreamt of importance for the future. It has long been the key of Canadian commerce, and much of the railway traffic of the Dominion has passed its portals; but when Canada awakens to the vastness of her territory, and to the possibilities of her resources, the trade of Montreal—must increase in proportion to this development. This development is coming. To every observer of the future it is plain. The immigration of the people point to it, and the policy of re-construction which must set in, sooner or later, will tend to hasten it. Montreal is a great city at present; but it will be much greater at no distant period.

The visitor cannot pass through the city of Montreal without being impressed with the predominance of the French element. On every side this is noticeable. Many of the people speak the French language. The names of the business houses are in the same tongue, and the greater number of the streets are named after French saints, or in honour of French statesmen, or military leaders. Nor is this to be wondered at, for the city was founded by the French, and its early history was shaped by the crowned heads of that nation. The customs and manners of Paris were brought across the sea by great and good men of church and state; and the manner in which these good men planned and laid out the city, is proof within itself, that they meant it to be a very large city. This is now so; and although another flag has long claimed Montreal, the impress of those early pioneers is still visible, and will continue so for generations to come. Like all great cities, Montreal has its fine architecture, and beautiful drive-ways. Such buildings as Notre Dame Cathedral, and St. James Cathedral, and St. James Methodist Church tell their own tale, and the splendid hotels, and huge railway stations, and public buildings generally, stand on an equal footing. In religion, education and commerce, there are signs of zeal and enterprise, while the demeanor of the public speaks law and order. In all its thronged streets, and its crowded cars, and its parks and boulevards, we found the people going "the even tenor of their way," and we learned, that great as these crowds may be, and congested as these conditions are, there is room for every person; and those who mind themselves, and keep their proper places, need not fear.

Caulked— Tight as your Boat

THE Reliable Ignition Unit is caulked tight as your boat. Even in a leaky cockpit or rough weather, when others often fail, the Reliable Ignition Unit will feed the engine a continued flow of hot-sparks.

The Reliable Ignition Unit gives longer service. It is made of Reliable dry cells, which have every good feature of other makes, and in addition are fitted with the Big Brass Cap which does away with all wasted power.

Being water-proof and longer lasting, the Reliable Ignition Unit is unexcelled for all engine purposes or for any other ignition use. You can always depend on the Reliable Ignition Unit, no matter how hard the task or how bad the weather.

Take an extra Reliable Ignition Unit, No. 8216, with you on your fishing trip. It will help you guard your business. It fills a dozen needs in your boat or around your home.

You will also find the Reliable Flashlight to be a handy boat-light, especially in hunting engine troubles or giving signals at night.

Legislative Council.

MONDAY, June 7.
The House met at 4 p.m.
The Bill entitled an "Act to Check Profiteering" passed the committee stage with some slight amendment.

There was very little discussion on this bill. Most of the criticism being levelled at it on a previous occasion. Hon. Sir P. T. McGrath, however, wished to correct a statement previously made by Hon. Mr. Mews, viz. that inward freight by the Red Cross steamers was decreasing. Mr. Gosling and Mr. F. Cornick of Harvey's, were interviewed, said Sir Patrick, and I was given to understand that instead of a decrease, outward freight had increased 20% and inward had not declined.

Mr. Mews stated he thought instances were cited where a decrease had taken place.

Hon. Dr. Campbell gave an outline of his agricultural policy, and forewarned the Council not to criticize it. He asked for an increase of the Agricultural grant, in order to build a model farm in St. John's. He said "that if a speeding up of agriculture was attempted this country could produce enough to supply its needs of the produce which the soil and climate can produce." He estimated our total agricultural products to be worth 12½ million dollars.

Hon. Sir P. T. McGrath, while he did not oppose the agricultural policy, thought it was a ridiculous showing for a government which had promised to do so much for that industry. The amount voted was entire inadequate.

Hon. John Anderson also crossed swords with the Minister of Agriculture, and asked was anything being done to reduce the cost of coal. He said "this country is being fleeced by the price we are paying for that commodity, and it should, and could be, sold here at not more than $13.00 per ton, and that with a handsome profit to the sellers."

Hon. R. K. Bishop and Hon. F. McNamara also spoke on the Bill. It passed the committee without amendment.

Backs the Mayor.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir.—All honor to Mayor Gosling, all honor to the members of the Council for the democratic spirit displayed by them in placing that autocrat Mr. Collishaw and his motor friends in their proper places. The motor car owners better "haul her in" a bit and shorten sail or they will fan the flame of bitterness, which is being subdued only by the patience of the people. Who are they that they should be granted the privilege of spending Municipal taxes? What do they take the people for? What do they take the Legislators for? Mr. Collishaw, who represents nobody but himself, tries in his letter to induce the Legislature to comply with his impudent request, by offering them a dose of "soft soap" in styling them "keen gentlemen." So very kind is it not. Take it from me Mr. Collishaw, the public are not a bit too well pleased with the motorists of this town, and are in no frame of mind to be trifled with. We have memories, and remember well the sadness that has been brought into homes by recklessness and mad driving. We want the brakes put on your power, and certain it is, that the people will not tolerate the spending of our money on roads by that Association. If you want first-class roads to speed over, why not subscribe a half million dollars out of your fortunes and build new roads, and keep clear of us, and not be, as now, compelling us to swallow your dust all summer. If the Legislature want to arouse public feeling, they can go about it in no better way than to give Messrs. Collishaw and Co. the privilege of expending our money. But sir, we have some spirit left, and intend to back up Mayor Gosling in his manly attitude, and Mr. Collishaw will have to take a back seat, and be taught the lesson that six hundred motor car owners do not own this city yet. We will watch further developments with interest.

Yours truly,
DEMOCRAT.

New Fire Trucks

HAS FIRST CALL.

The Central and West End Fire Companies were called to the residence of Mr. D. R. Thistle, Long's Hill last night. The new chemical and hose truck had its first tryout on this occasion. It reached the scene in quick time and in a few minutes the fire was quenched without doing much damage to the premises. One hour afterward about 9:40 the companies were again called out, this time to the home of Mrs. Hall, Springdale Street. Soot in a chimney had ignited, but was put out by the occupants of the house without the assistance of the firemen.

In a murder case, after an adjournment, the Irish interpreter was observed to speak to a Crown witness in the box. Counsel at once started up and insisted on his disclosing what he had said to the witness. The interpreter denied that he had spoken to the witness at all. Here the judge interposed, stating that he had observed the interpreter and the witness interchanging words. "Tell us exactly what passed," said his lordship, "or I'll send you to jail and dismiss you from your post." Have mercy on me, my lord," cried the interpreter. "Pether here (the witness) says to me, "who is the ould woman sitting up there with the red bedgown round her?" "Ah, God help ye," says I, "that's the ould boy that's sent down here to hang yet all!"

THE REAL HELP.

A blind man sat on the street corner, where I was waiting for a car, with a box of pencils in his hand, held out towards the passerby.

While I waited I saw two women approach him, ask how much the pencils were, give him the money for one then tell him to take the pencil. They were pleasant faced, kindly looking women, and it was plain that they wanted to help the man. But were they? Weren't they rather hurting him?

If they had bought the pencils, they would have been helping him to make a living. But by buying the pencils and giving them back they were helping him to be a beggar.

It is not good for anyone to get something for nothing.

How One Man Became a Beggar.

Once heard of a man, a foreigner, during one of our hard time years at his job when a factory closed, he tried to get some other work and could not. He had an invalid wife and several children, and when his all savings had disappeared he became desperate. Finally one day when there was nothing in the house eat, he summoned up his courage and went from house to house telling his misfortunes and asking for a little money.

In the course of a day he got more money than he could have earned at his job. The result was that finding he could thus get something for nothing so easily, he went on doing it. He was taken up for vagrancy some months later, and when asked how he happened to become a beggar, told the above tale.

They Should Have Let Him Work.

Of the people who had helped that man had let him do some little thing clean up the cellar, beat some rugs, wash—in exchange for the money, would never have drifted into such wretched existence.

The greatest help you can give a man being is the chance to help himself.

I know a woman who gives generously to charities and yet has given an elderly seamstress because she does not do quite so much in a day as she is able to do. If others are used to be able to do. If others are used to be able to do. If others are used to be able to do.

ing in a self-respecting way, will be denied the chance.

People Are Queer That Way.

People are queer that way. I have heard women say they thought it was an extravagance to buy the toys made by the old men and women in the toy shops established for the sake of giving these old folks a chance to keep from being dependent. Suppose the toys do cost a little more, even at the high price they are a bargain in true philanthropy.

Of course I do not mean that there are not times when, because of sickness or other misfortune, people need out-and-out assistance. It is both a duty and privilege for those of us who have been blessed with reasonable good fortune to help such as these, either personally or through some charitable agency, and I do not see how anyone can feel at peace with himself or get any joy out of his possessions who is not giving some such help.

Challenger Had Fine Trial Spin.

City Island, N.Y., June 1.—Sir Thomas Lipton's yacht Shamrock IV, challenger for the America's Cup, was tried under her own sail to-day for the first time since being brought to the United States in 1914.

In a breeze of about ten knots, the reconstructed green racer was put through her paces on Long Island Sound. In the aggregate, she had about a 20-mile spin, crossing the Sound to Hempstead harbor and then back towards Larchmont.

Captain William Burton, who will sail Shamrock IV in the international series that start off Sandy Hook, July 15th, was at the wheel. At the end of the trip all aboard stated they were pleased with the way the yacht stood up in a breeze that was decidedly stronger than the one that carried away the Resolute's mast off New Haven a week ago Saturday.

MORE HIGH COSTS.

The cost of discontent is great and we're all discontented; and some fine morning, soon or late, our grouch will have repented. We've kicked so much, we've kicked so long, it's got to be a habit, and everything on earth seems wrong—if there's a grief we grab it. It is a costly habit, this, when every ill we treasure; we've grown impervious to bliss, we can't distinguish pleasure. We look ahead to better days, but if they come to greet us, we can't shake off our carping ways, our grouches will defeat us. And when we land at heaven's door, led there by priestly tutor, we'll call St. Peter down and roar, and say the crowns are pewter. We let the trifling ills annoy, in knocks there's satisfaction; and so we've spoiled ourselves for joy, for sane and cheerful action. The workman kicks about his wage, the boss is sore as blazes, and e'en the poet and the sage are framing dismal phrases. It's hard to find a normal gent who smiles and sings and twitters, who breathes no word of discontent, nor talks of taking bitters.

THE WISDOM OF FATHER.

Pa doesn't know a thing about an engine in a motor car. He talks about the different parts, but couldn't tell you where they are. He never fixes it himself when something breaks, but calls a man. An' says he's found that in the end that always is the wisest plan. Yet every time the engine-stops, or isn't acting as it should, He climbs out of his seat an' goes in front an' looks beneath the hood.

"He couldn't tell what's out of gear if it was plain-as-day," says Ma. "An' yet to see him standin' there you'd think he understood the car. In all the times he's stopped an' looked, he's never once found what was wrong. We've always have to sit an' wait till some mechanic comes along; An' yet you haven't any doubt that he would fix it if he could. Because he seems so very wise when he looks underneath the hood."

The other day the care broke down, an' Pa got out his usual way, maybe save a long delay. "I'll have a look," says he to Ma. "An' Ma she smiled an' winked at me while Pa just stood an' stood an' stood. An' looked at everything there is to look at underneath the hood. "When you get through admirin' it," says Ma, as sweetly as could be, "perhaps you'll telephone for help an' maybe we'll get home for tea."

Household Notes.

Excess dressing spoils a salad. Stale rusks are good toasted. Sandpaper will sharpen scissors. Serve wet wafers with fruit salad. Iced drinks tempt the summer appetite. A salad may be a complete course in itself. The daintiness of a salad is its chief appeal. A honey dressing is delicious on a fruit salad. Light rag rugs can be washed like bedspreads.

Sugar Profiteers Parasites.

Ottawa Board of Commerce Says That Price Should Not Be Above 22 Cents Per Pound.

Ottawa, June 2.—That $2.64 unfair profit was made on 560 bags of granulated sugar, and more than 2,000 when the 40 bags of brown sugar are included, was stated by Commissioner Murdock at the conclusion of this morning's hearing into the alleged unfair profits taken by speculators on two cars of sugar purchased by the Ottawa wholesale firm of Provost and Allard from Robert Anderson of Montreal, and through H. B. Marshall, an Ottawa broker.

"Speculators," said Commissioner Murdock, "I go further, I call them parasites, and I think they ought to be removed from the realm of business. It is an outrage to modern civilization to have returned soldiers forced to come here and complain they have been charged unfair prices. This is only one of thousands of cases going on all the time."

The hearing was marked this morning by the exonerated of Mr. Marshall from complicity in the deal on evidence being submitted that he returned his commission cheque of $163.10 to Mr. Anderson before the case was taken up by the Board of Commerce.

The board will open its session in Montreal on Monday at 2:30 p.m. to hear the evidence of Mr. Anderson, Joseph Ward and Vaughan Bros. of Mangag, all of whom, it is alleged, handled the sugar before it reached Provost and Allard.

That there is no justification for white sugar selling for more than 22 cents a pound is the opinion of Commissioners O'Connor and Murdock of the Board of Commerce and made public in a statement issued to-day.

Mr. W. F. O'Connor, acting chairman during the hearing of the sugar investigation, stated that sugar at 30 cents a pound was not justifiable, and that the Board would take every means of preventing this practice. Mr. O'Connor practically predicted a drop in the price of sugar when he said he did not believe it was in the best interests of the consumers to fix the price of sugar, as the consumers would probably benefit more by the Board allowing the price to fluctuate.

The Campaign Opened.

The campaign in the district of Bay-de-Verde has been opened by the forces of the Government, a meeting, so it is alleged, having been held at Western Bay on Saturday night, though from the paucity of detail it is not apparent that the Prime Minister or Mr. Cave had such a grand reception as people are led to believe. The early prediction that Mr. Cave will win by a substantial majority, is not based on substance, therefore it must be taken to mean nothing but a kite, being flown because of a lack of stronger evidence. Be that as it may, there is not much enthusiasm being displayed by the Government organs in the announcement of their potential victory. Perhaps they realise that the electors are too wise to be cajoled into thinking their way, because of the failures they have made of affairs and the disappointments engendered through their incapability. That things are in bad shape it is useless for them to deny, and it will take more than the eloquence of Mr. Squires and the sincerity of Mr. Cave to persuade the voters that they have not been betrayed and deceived.

The Opposition candidate, Mr. Puddester, holds his initial meeting in the district this evening. That it will be a promising and successful one there is no doubt. Having been born in the district, Mr. Puddester carries with him in the coming fight the knowledge that he has arrayed on his side all those who are aligned on the side of good government and not the erratic and changeful quality of administration that has been characteristic of the Liberal-Reform Party. Those who know Mr. Puddester and have followed his career have every confidence in his ability to make an ideal representative. Hard working and capable, he will appeal to the people of his native district as one into whose hands they are willing to commit their political destinies; one who is in a position to fight for their legitimate rights, and who will not permit himself to be browbeaten out of his just dues when solicited for his constituents. Above all the Opposition candidate is a fearless fighter, and his courage will commend him to the hearts of men who ever respect a brave and indomitable personality.

The Government members are fearful of their position. Having put through but piffling legislation since the House opened, but legislation that will leave its mark on the future of the dominion, because of its utter indifference to the best interests of the people, they wish now to get a verdict upon their actions, and are under the impression that Bay-de-Verde is going to render a favorable one. Mr. Cave will appeal to those who elected him last fall on the record of his policy as Minister of Shipping; a record which has little to commend it to a people; a record which has been one of blundering incapacity since his incumbency; a record which has nothing behind it but failure and incompetency; a record which has left Newfoundland without that necessary commodity, Salt, wherewith to carry on the fishery which is the life of the country. Then the honorable the Prime Minister, in behalf of Mr. Cave, will make an appeal on the record of his government. Examine that record and probe it and analyse it and define just what it really is. What is Dry Codfish worth to-day? Is it not because of the amateurish tinkering of the Government with the trade that fish cannot command a price sufficient to recoup planters for their outlay? Ask any of the schooner masters in the port of St. John's, who have brought from various parts quantities of last year's fish, and are unable to dispose of it except at a loss. And whose is the responsibility? THE GOVERNMENT'S! But for their action in bludgeoning the trade into accepting their legislation, under penalties, Newfoundland fish would be worth as much to-day as ever it was. Prices of living go up. Isn't it strange that prices of Codfish go down. Flour, Sugar, Salt, Lines, Twines, Molasses, Pork, Clothing, Boots and all the other necessities of the fishermen advance in price; but their mainstay is not permitted to keep at a figure per quintal sufficient to balance the cost of living. AND THE SQUIRES-COAKER GOVERNMENT ARE TO BLAME. Think these facts over, men of Bay-de-Verde, and render your verdict accordingly.

Under the Mayor's Collar.
His "Explanation" of Dust Nuisance Only Throwing Dust in People's Eyes.
Editor Evening Telegram
Dear Sir,—Allow me to congratulate you on successfully getting under Mayor Gosling's collar. It was fine, splendid. Other writers have tried to do this, but invariably failed. Mayor Gosling always preserved a dignified silence, and some people (among whom I do not place myself) thought that his silence signified a lofty contempt of criticism. Far better for him and far better for his reputation as a "civic expert," a "town planner," a "mayor," a "first citizen" had he maintained his silence. You remember what Shakespeare said:
"I do know of these, That therefore only are reputed wise, For saying nothing."
Mayor Gosling gives us a pretty idea of his progressiveness, push, energy, vim, ginger, go-to-it-iveness, when he tells us that there is an abnormal quantity of dust now "because there has been no rain for so long." Isn't that beautiful! Such naive, simple, unaffected transparency! What gulletless complacency! How refreshingly frank! St. John's is extremely lucky to have such a mayor. His glib, progressive methods are remarkable. "If it rains there'll be no dust... if it doesn't rain... well... Providence, you know."
But listen!—"Experience"—how impressive, how pregnant with meaning!—"has taught me that dust is more troublesome when the roads first dry up than at a later period of the year." Wonderful! And how soothing how satisfying, how palliative it is to the dust-blinded, dust-choked, dust-covered citizen to have his mayor make this "explanation."
Paradisaical! Heavenly! Celestial!
Yours,
DUSTY DAN,
St. John's, June 8, 1920.

Many Forest Fires.

The following message was received by the Deputy Minister of Justice from St. Mary's:—"Forest fires raging here since Saturday. Houses at Point La Hays and St. Mary's were in danger, but none were burned. Fences and meadows destroyed. Now raining."

Reports received by the Reid Newfoundland Co. state the forest fires which had been raging about St. George's and between Clarendville and Arnold's Cove, had been extinguished and that all danger to the settlements had passed.
The fire which started near Brigus Junction yesterday, had, last night, practically burnt itself out. Small and large fires are reported to be burning all along the railway line from Manuels to Port aux Basques.

Opera "Iolanthe."

The comic opera "Iolanthe," which will be produced in the Casino Theatre on June 21st, under the direction of Professor Moncrieff-Mawer, promises to be the finest production of its class ever presented to a St. John's audience. The opera is one of the best of Gilbert and Sullivan's, and musically is considered by competent authorities to be superior to any of the other operas which have now become classics, from the pens of those gifted collaborators. A strong cast has been chosen, supported by a chorus of over fifty specially selected voices, the chorus work being a special feature.

Woman's Suffrage.

From the moral point we have evidence in the case of New Zealand and Australia of the beneficial effects of women's exercise of the franchise. It is generally granted that women are possessed of a higher moral sense than men, and this higher moral tone has had an excellent effect on the political atmosphere of those countries. The same writer goes on to state that the women most anxious to vote are the intellectual, well-educated thinking women, and those of sound common sense and practical experience, represented by the successful women of the working classes. In Australia and New Zealand social reform has very considerably advanced since women were enfranchised.—COM.

A Correction.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir,—We beg to draw your attention to an article which appeared in your paper under date of the 6th ult., which runs:—"Capt. George Tibbo, of Grand Bank, who has been in town for the past week, left for home by this morning's train, via Placentia, where he will take passage by the S.S. "Sagana." Capt. Tibbo was master of the schr. "Jean Wakely," of Harbour Buffet, during the past winter. The vessel has lately been sold, and, no doubt, the genial and competent master mariner will soon be on the quarter deck of another ship, as he is well and favorably known by the commercial people of the country."
We beg to advise that this article is entirely wrong as the "Jean Wakely" has not changed hands, and neither was Capt. Tibbo master during the past winter. It is true that Capt. Tibbo was engaged as master, and had entered service, but for private reasons a change was effected, and we would ask you to kindly insert this correction.

PATRICK DUNPHY.
A message was received from Red Island, B.B., last evening to the effect that Mr. Patrick Dunphy, an old and respected planter of that place, had passed away at 11 o'clock a.m., June 7th. Deceased leaves to mourn a widow, one son and three daughters, two residing at Red Island and one in the city. Sister Camelia, of the Mercy Convent.

St. Joseph's Concert.

A very large audience was attracted to St. Joseph's Hall, Holytown, last night by the promise of the concert and play previously advertised, and none came away disappointed, the performance being unanimously voted a splendid success. The first part of the programme consisted of a chorus by St. Joseph's Girls, songs by Mrs. E. J. Ring, Miss A. McGrath, Messrs. C. Trapnell and A. Summers, a dance by Miss V. Wallace, a reel, song and dance by St. Joseph's little girls, a dialogue by Misses Mary Vinicombe, Nellie Byrne, Mollie Doran, Mary Martin, Kattie Walsh and Stella Ryan and a pantomime by St. Joseph's Girls. The various items were thoroughly enjoyed particularly those by the girls which evoked well merited praise. The second part of the programme consisted of Kieley's Election, in which the characters were represented by Miss Frances Ryan, Messrs. Frank Walsh, T. Rolis, Ray Jardine, J. Sullivan, A. Garter, P. Smith, H. Kennedy and Edward Stamp. The scene is laid at Harbor Balne and the candidates are J. Cantwell and Theodore Kieley, the latter winning by a vast majority after a campaign noted for remarkable speeches. As Kieley's agent, the veteran comedian, Mr. Frank Walsh, kept the house in continuous laughter. The farce is most mirth provoking and well worth seeing. The accompanists during the evening were Miss Hogan, Messrs. P. Ryan and T. English. Mr. Carl Trapnell will sing "Irishmen All" to-night when the entertainment will be repeated.

Sensational Fire Stories.

The Following is a Specimen of Telegraphed Articles to the Canadian Press. Who is the Correspondent?
St. John's, Nfld., June 4.—Extensive forest fires have been sweeping several sections of the Peninsula of Avalon, also the West Coast, for the past week. At Bay Bulls Arm, Trinity Bay, six dwellings, an equal number of outhouses, ten stages with fishing tackle, and a considerable quantity of fish were totally destroyed. The whole settlement is practically wiped out. Residents saved nothing, and had to make their escape in some cases by putting to sea in boats. Two girls hemmed in by the fire, were forced to plunge into the sea to escape, but had their clothing, hair and heads singed. They were rescued by a boat from a neighboring section. A fisherman, while endeavouring to save a dwelling, had his clothes burned and was saved from burning to death by rescuers throwing him into the water.
FOUR MEN MISSING.
It is estimated that the loss to one settlement is fifty thousand dollars. The Government is rushing relief, food and clothing to the scene. A special train last night reported four men missing, supposed to have been suffocated, but this was not confirmed up to midnight. Telegraph communication to the settlement has been interrupted, poles having been burnt down, and minor losses are reported from other sections.
The following losses were reported last night: Twenty dwellings, twenty-two outhouses, twelve fishing stages, two lumber mills, all adjacent to the sea coast and along the railway line. The fires originated from sparks from locomotives. Complete and accurate particulars are difficult to obtain yet.

Shamrock Shows Nice Turn of Speed.

NEW YORK, June 2.—Sir Thomas Lipton's Shamrock IV., challenger for America's Cup, to-day upset calculations of critics, who have been predicting that she would be sluggish and would need a stiff breeze to keep her in motion. The yacht gave an impressive display on Long Island Sound of what may be expected should light weather prevail in any of the international contests.
Before a west south west breeze, around seven to ten knots, the green racer was sent for a long leg from Stepping Stone Light to Execution Light and glided the distance in a few seconds under the half hour.

Dominions Now Sister States.

London, June 3.—The Daily Chronicle publishes a special interview with General Smuts at Cape Town in which he reiterates that the war transformed the dominions into sister states.
"Unfortunately the old machinery still remains," added the General, "and it is astonishing that statesmen have not yet realized the anachronism. I have insisted on a constitutional change in the Empire, and I am also astonished that others have not been equally impressed with its inevitability. The British people must realize this great constitutional fact that there must be a complete equality and freedom enjoyed by the sister states and united by the King. Your constitutional problem is to find new formulas to fit new conditions."
General Smuts, in the course of this interview, apparently made no statements concerning the present domestic and political situation in South Africa.

GERMAN CONSUL SUICIDES.

LONDON, June 8. Herr Wustrow, German Consul at Tabriz, Persia, committed suicide, according to a despatch from Teheran, while the Consulate was being besieged by a crowd demanding the surrender of Persian Bolsheviks, who, it was alleged, were being harbored in the building. When the crowd appeared the Consul refused to comply with the request and sharp fighting then ensued, in which machine guns were used and during the disturbance Wustrow committed suicide.

BRITISH AGREE, FRENCH OPPOSE.

LONDON, June 8. The belief that the British Government is about to make, if it has not already made, postal arrangements with Soviet Russia through Gregory Krassin, Bolshevik Minister of Trade and Commerce, is expressed by the London Times. The arrangement, the newspaper understands, will be opposed by the French Government on the ground that it implies recognition of the Soviet administration.

ANTI-JEWISH CAMPAIGN.

VIENNA, June 8. Posters of a violent anti-Semitic character appeared all over the city on Sunday. One series requested Gentiles to join leagues for the elimination of Jews from business and official life and of the expulsion of non-Austrian Jews. Other posters, signed by the German Officers Association, demand that the army be freed of Jews.

BOLSHEVIKS MURDER JAPS.

HONOLULU, June 8. The Japanese War Office has announced that, according to Russian witnesses, several hundred Japanese, including women and children, were murdered at Nicolaevsk, Siberia, by Bolsheviks on March 12, and no Japanese had been left alive in the town, according to Tokyo advices to the Nippon Jiji, Japanese newspaper here. The small Japanese garrison, commanded by Major Miyake, defended their Consulate for five days, but finding themselves greatly outnumbered they burned the buildings with the documents it contained, and committed suicide, the despatch adds.

Not So Simple.

With a bashful smile on his honest, simple face, a countryman walked into a second-hand clothes dealer's shop in the East end of London recently and said: "You remember that coat I bought here yesterday for 10 shillings?" "Yes; but I never take back anything when once sold," said the dealer quickly. "Oh that's all right!" replied the customer. "I only wanted to tell you that I found a £20 note sewn up in the lining. Perhaps the owner will call for it."

"Of course he will!" exclaimed the dealer, capturing the note. You are an honest man. Here is £1 for you as a reward. That will be all right."

And by the time the dealer found out that the note was a bad one, the simple-looking lad from the country had vanished.—Answers.

Unveiling of Placentia's War Memorial.

Impressive Ceremony at Ancient Capital by Archbishop Roche.

Placentia, the ancient capital of Terra Nova, witnessed an impressive ceremony on Thursday, the King's Birthday, when the War Memorial, erected in honor and respect to the memory of her fallen heroes in battle was unveiled by His Grace Archbishop Roche. The event was strictly military, and military etiquette marked the proceedings.

On the arrival of the morning train the Archbishop and Clergy were met by Right Rev. Mons. Reardon, Magistrate O'Reilly, Mr. Ignatius Collins, President of the Star of the Sea Association, Sergt. Mat. Collins, M.M., Sergt. Bird, Head Constable Kent, T. Kemp, and many other prominent citizens.

At almost every home flags of welcome were flown and also on the ferry boat which brought the Archbishop and Priests from the Jersey Side to the Town Side.

Early Thursday morning the C.C.C. Old Comrades' excursion, numbering more than 200, arrived and were met by the Star of the Sea Members, who had so arranged matters that all were conveyed across in less than half an hour. Mrs. Phippard's, Mrs. Capt. Fitzpatrick's, Mrs. O'Reilly's and the other hotels accommodated all, and most satisfactorily.

Thursday morning at 10.30 solemn Military Mass was sung in the beautiful Church of the Sacred Heart. Right Rev. Monsignor McDermott was celebrant, Very Rev. J. J. McGrath, P.P., Bell Island, Deacon, and Very Rev. F. Ryan, P.P., St. Bride's, sub-deacon. His Grace the Archbishop was attended on the Throne by Right Rev. Mons. Reardon.

Previous to Mass procession took place from the Presbytery, Cross Bearer, Thruster and Acolytes preceding the Archbishop and Clergy, the Star of the Sea Society, C.C.C. Old Comrades' Committee, C.C.C. Officers following in order. The Presbytery grounds and the Church square were filled with a devout people, and as the procession passed the reverence due His Grace was acknowledged by bowed heads.

On the Altar while Military Mass was celebrated, a gathering of soldiers from Placentia and St. John's was present. Capt. McGrath served the Mass. At the elevation the drum was "rolled" by Private O'Connell of the C.C.C. The "O Salutaris" was sung by Captain Augustus Summers.

After the celebration of Holy Mass, there was procession from the Church to where the monument was, and to be unveiled. His Grace the Archbishop ascending a platform, which had been erected for the occasion, and attended by his Priests, awaited the moment that the monument would be uncovered. Just before Right Rev. Mons. Reardon read the names of those who had "gone over," and whose names were chiselled on the stone, which was to perpetuate their memory as the men who had fought for the Empire from Placentia.

Important!

There are many good reasons why you should "Clean Up" your house; here are a few:—
Paint preserves wood from decay. A painted house will outlast an unpainted house. Buy "Clean Up" Paint.

People are judged by the appearance of the house they live in; a shabby looking house is a reflection on the people who reside therein.

A house which is painted every 4 or 5 years expresses in a forceful manner the cleanliness and character of its occupants.

Buy enough "Clean Up" Paint now to improve the appearance of your house. Get your neighbors interested in the "Clean-Up" campaign.

All honour give
To those who nobly striving, nobly fell
That we might live.
That we might live, they died,
Hall! and farewell!
Their courage tried
By every mean device of treacherous hate,
Like kings they died.

Eternal honour give,
Hall! and farewell!
To those who died
In the full splendour of heroic pride,
That we might live.

His Grace the Archbishop, before the honors to the dead has been given by a firing squad, of Placentia's own sons, in charge of Sergt. M. Collins, M.M., and the bugle call at each round of firing had been sounded, gave an address, part of which we quote.

"While the question of a National Memorial has engaged public consideration," said His Grace, "the people of Placentia have industriously considered the erection of one which would honor the memory of those of her sons who had died." It was a source of great pride to have to be asked to perform this ceremony, Placentia, which herself had in days past witnessed bloody scenes, very appropriately leads in remembering the dead. It was unnecessary for him to remind his audience—Catholic as it was—that the dead commanded respect. The lapse of years could not sever the ties that bind the living with the dead. The memories of dear ones gone would ever be cherished. The Memorial which all had then assembled to witness unveiled, had been placed there for the reason. It would be a lasting memorial to the gallant and noble men who had died that others might live. In the thousands who left Newfoundland and rallied forth Placentia was well represented. As Placentiaman after Placentiaman fell, others left the ancient town and filled the gap. They knew what they had to face. They laid down their lives in the cause of honor. Their graves were for the most part unmarked. That was still another reason for building this Memorial. As long as the graceful monument stood within the shadow of Placentia's Parish Church it would be an inspiration to the living.

His Grace congratulated Monsignor Reardon, the venerable Pastor of Placentia, who had taken such interest in the work.

At night at the Sacred Heart Church, His Grace Archbishop Roche imparted Benediction and Major O'Grady, O.B.E., sang the "Tantum Ergo," to a violin accompaniment by Right Rev. Mons. Reardon.

An official record of the proceedings in book form, fully illustrated, will be published within a few weeks.

"We Will Praise Tanlac as Long as We Live," He Says

Johnson Says His Wife Was Only a Shadow of Her Former Self.

"My wife and I will praise Tanlac as long as we live, for it is nothing less than wonderful the way it has restored her to good health again," recently declared A. J. Johnson, of 49 Cornwallis St., Halifax, N.S.

"For about a year before she started taking Tanlac she was in such a run-down condition that she could hardly drag around. She had no appetite and often took nothing but a cup of tea at a meal. In fact she was afraid to eat very much because of the hours of misery that she suffered afterwards. Her stomach was in such bad shape that whatever she ate would sour and ferment and blot her up something awful. She was also troubled with terrible headaches and dizzy spells and when these turns came on she just had to lie down and rest. Her nerves were in such a bad state that if anybody slammed a door or made a sudden noise she would nearly jump out of her chair and be all of a tremble afterwards. She lost weight until she was a mere shadow of her former self and became so weak towards the last that she couldn't remain on her feet each day. All her friends were telling her how bad she looked and I was very worried about her, for although she had tried just about everything in the way of medicines, none of them seemed to do her any good.

"We heard of so many people being helped by Tanlac that my wife decided to give it a trial, and I must say that the way it went after her troubles and fixed her up was wonderful. The first bottle did her so much good that she kept on with it until now after taking three bottles she is as well as ever she was in her life. She has a fine appetite all the time, and her digestion is so good that she can eat anything she fancies without having the least trouble afterwards. She has gained at least ten pounds in weight and is stronger in every way. She is never bothered with headaches or dizzy spells now and her nerves are so steady that she can stand any amount of noise. She sleeps soundly all night and gets up in the morning feeling fit and able to do the day's work. She often says that since taking Tanlac she feels like a child again. We both think Tanlac is the best medicine ever put into a bottle, and are glad of the chance to recommend it."

Tanlac is sold in St. John's by M. Connors; by Reg. Sullivan, Pouch Cove; Sound Island Store, Sound Island; Dennis Flynn, Avondale; J. J. O'Brien, Cape Broyle.—adv.

If at First—

The fat man decided to try golf as a weight-reducer. Armed with four sticks, a ball, and a caddy, he marched off to the links.

The caddy placed the ball upon the tee. Then, with a terrific swing, the fat man whirled his club through the air.

Alas! club No. 2 shared the fate of club No. 1, club No. 3 emulated the evolutions of club No. 2, and club No. 4 flew into a hedge.

And still the little white ball smiled on.

"What would you do now?" asked the golfer, wiping his forehead, as he turned in desperation to the caddy.

But the little white ball still stayed on its tee, while the club meeting Mother Earth, broke into splinters.

"Give me another club, boy!" said the fat man.

Holding out the empty bag, the caddy replied:

"Don't give in, guv'nor! Give it a swipe with this!"

At the Yarmouth Y.M.C.A. Boys' Camp, held at Tunket Falls in August, I found MINARD'S LINIMENT most beneficial for sunburn, an immediate relief for colic and toothache.

Glencoe's Report.

The S.S. Glencoe, which arrived at the Straits, sent the following report from Humbermouth yesterday morning from the trip to the Reid Co.:

"Made all ports of call going and returning to West St. Modeste. Fine weather most of the trip. Little drift ice west of Bonne Esperance. Straits clear to East St. Modeste; north of there solid jam of heavy sheet ice. Seals plentiful at Blanc Sablon and Flower's Cove; 300 taken at the latter place last week; good sign of codfish between Point Riche and Trout River."

Not a Patent Food.

(From Tit-Bits.)

"Give me a dozen bananas for children," said the red-faced man to the fruiterer's assistant.

The young man put them in a parcel.

"And give me some of the other stuff as well—the grocer says he doesn't keep it in stock."

"The other stuff?" said the assistant, with a puzzled look.

"Yes, I ain't good at pronouncing big words, an' I suppose I must have made a mistake with it, for the grocer laughed at me. But it's that there stuff as you say can be given to the kiddies with bananas."

"I'm afraid I don't understand,"

Damages Aplenty.

A lawyer tells of a visit he received from a Mrs. Delehanty, accompanied by Mr. Delehanty, the day after Mrs. Delehanty and a Mrs. Cassidy had indulged in a little difference of opinion.

When he had listened to the recital of Mrs. Delehanty's troubles the lawyer said:—

"You want to get damages, I suppose?"

"Damages! Damages!" came in shrill tones from Mrs. Delehanty.

"Damages! No, indeed, I've got damages enough. What I want is satisfaction."

Leigh Hunt and the Love That Endured.

(John o'London's Weekly.)

"Leigh Hunt's manner," wrote Mrs. Cowden Clarke, "fascinating, animated, full of cordial amenity, and winning to a degree of which I have never the parallel, drew me to him at once, and I fell so promptly in love with him as any girl in her teens with her first-love 'Romeo.'"
Few men, indeed, have been better equipped by Nature for the conquest of hearts than this handsome poet and essayist, who was in the prime of his days a century ago, and whom men and women alike found irresistible. "Hunt," says Carlyle, "had a fine, chivalrous, gentlemanly carriage, affectionate, respectful, and yet so free and natural. Dark complexion, copious black hair, beautiful, egg-shaped head, and fine, beaming, serious hazel eyes." He was tall and slight, straight as a dart, and with a cheerful, almost dashing approach. But his chief attraction was "bewitching spell of manner which none could resist."

A Mouth Like a Plum.
It was but natural that a man so generously dowered should have no lack of love-adventures. Indeed, Hunt was but a "Blue-coat" boy of thirteen when he fell head over heels in love with his cousin, Fanny Dayrell, "a lass of fifteen, with laughing eyes and a mouth like a plum." And he was a little older when he was writing impassioned love-verses to an unidentified Eliza—"good as thou art fair." It is this small wonder that we find him embarked on a serious love-affair before he has seen his eighteenth birthday, which he was to carry triumphantly through more than fifty years.
Thus early the boy, fresh from the school-room, had won no small fame by a volume of verses, appropriately dubbed "Juvenilia," of which he confessed himself ashamed in later years. He was introduced to literary and shown about among parties, and generally made such a fuss of that he was in danger, as he confesses, of "a serious attack of swollen head." And it was at this time of precocious triumph that he first met Marianne Kent, at the house of her mother, an ex-Count milliner.

The Milliner's Daughter.
What attraction the handsome young poet saw in the milliner's daughter it is difficult to discover; for, in spite of good eyes and hair, and a pretty figure, she is described as "the reverse of handsome." Of gifts and accomplishments, too, she seems to have had none, beyond a slight talent for art and arithmetic.
We know, however, that few weeks had passed before the boy found the "little black-eyed girl" dangerously attractive, and that after she had nursed him through an attack of St. Anthony's Fire, which had seized him while under her mother's roof, his conquest was complete; and he stayed on as Mrs. Kent's lodger and her daughter's accepted suitor.
That he was perfectly satisfied with his choice is clear from his letters, in which his ardour is curiously mingled with sage counsel and grandiloquent moralizing. Thus, after urging her to cultivate her gift of drawing, he reads as much as she could, and to learn to write a fair hand, "unweaved with blots or skulking interjections," he proceeds to wax eloquent on affection, which "like melancholy, magnifies trifles; but the magnifying of the one is like looking through a telescope at heavenly objects; that of the other, like enlarging monsters with a microscope. There, Miss Kent," he concludes, "I need not tell you to keep this letter under your pillow. By the way, my next song will be on the subject of eyes—you know whose. Indeed, all my amatory effusions are upon one person."

A Fickle Fellow.
Thus for seven years, whenever they are apart, he deluges her with poems and moral reflections and with good advice, punctuated with high-down descriptions of his journeys—as when he pictures Oxford with "its swelling lawns, venerable shades in profusion, silver streams winding wherever you turn, and all the charm of rural magnificence."

And yet, in spite of such commendable constancy, he admits, "I never ceased to be ready to fall in love with the first tender-hearted damsel that should encourage me. Now it was a fair charmer, and now a brunette; now one that was merry, or was melancholy, or seemed to care for nothing, or for everything, or a good sister or a good daughter. With the last, who completed her conquest by reading verses better than I ever heard, I ultimately became wedded for life."

Unfortunate But Happy.
When at last Leigh Hunt felt justified in leading his Marianne to the altar, one July day in 1809, he had turned his back on the War Office clerkship which, as he frankly told the Secretary of State, "demands a greater duty to the public than any I can perform." He had won a recognized position as a writer; and, as he told his future wife, he could look forward to an assured eight or ten guineas a week in a year's time.
"I will not," he grandiloquently added, "see a wife who loves me and is the comfort of my existence, afraid to speak to me of money matters. She shall never tremble to hear a knock at the door, or to meet a quarter-day; she will tremble, I hope, with nothing but love and joy in the arms of her husband."

Thus hopefully began the drama of Hunt's ideally-happy wedded life, on which the curtain was finally rung down more than forty-seven years later, when his wife's death left his life empty and made him feel, as he says, "to belong as much to the next world as to this."

Saint Joan.

(From the Manchester Guardian.)

It is curious that a period of 500 years, all but a fraction, should have been permitted to elapse between the martyrdom and the canonization of Joan of Arc. The sentence of the ecclesiastical court upon her was annulled by the Pope in 1456, a quarter of a century after the burning of Rouen; but it was not until the latter part of the nineteenth century that her inclusion in the calendar of saints was made the object of a serious movement. Her beatification took place in 1909, and by the recent ceremony in Rome she became at last Saint Joan. We may search the annals of all people in vain for a parallel to her life and end. The young peasant girl of the Vosges was entirely illiterate. She was in her early teens, and without knowledge of the world beyond her village, when the "voices" which changed the history of France came to her in the woods of Domremy. Never was a mission of service more simply and clearly envisaged; never was a vision more miraculously embodied in effort and attainment. In two wonderful campaigns Joan led the armies of the unworthy prince who, having gained his crown through her intervention, abandoned her to his English enemies and to the Inquisition. As to her military genius there appears to be no controversy. Several times she overrode the advice of her advisers and triumphantly justified her own untutored judgment. The historical critics have not denied her triumphs in the field; it is her personal character and her super-normal claims that have been and will continue to be the subject of widely varying interpretation especially by the scientific students of mind. In all the range of psychic phenomena there is no more enthralling challenge than this. It is not inconceivable that modern methods of analysis may assist us to a fuller understanding of her than was possible to a previous age. But, however, that may be, the wonder of the Maid of Orleans must forever remain. Nor need the English race forbear to pay their tribute of gratitude. She beat them and they burnt her. But at a stroke she put an end to the age-long disastrous attempts of the Kings of England to establish an empire on the Continent, and so made possible the Commonwealth of the Seven Seas.

Another Cunarder Added to Fleet.

The Tyrrenia, the third of the post-war Cunarders to be launched, took the water at Glasgow, Scotland, on Monday May 31st. It was the third monthly launching this year, and the remaining nine ships are all scheduled to leave the ways this year, and will reinforce the present fleet of passenger liners to the extent of nearly 200,000.

The Tyrrenia is a steamer of 16,700 gross tons, and will be equipped to carry 280 first, 364 second and 1,187 third-class passengers. Her dimensions are: Length, 578 feet; beam, 70 feet and depth, 43 feet. She has double reduction geared boilers and burns fuel oil. Her twin screws will give her a speed of 17 knots an hour. Like the Scythia, launched in March, and the Albania, launched in April, the ship has only one funnel. This improvement in ship construction is certain to be appreciated by the traveller, and if the construction of oil burners keeps on, in a decade it will be the one funnel ships that will be modernity.

The steamer is splendidly fitted for the accommodation of her passengers. Her public rooms include lounges, writing and smoking rooms as well as a verandah cafe.

In accordance with the plan observed in a recent building programme of the Cunard Line, the ship will have considerable cargo capacity. She is to be completely outfitted with electro hydraulic equipment, which obviates noise and vibration.

"At Evening Time It Shall Be Light."

(Composed by the late Charlotte Elliott, (author of "Just as I Am," in her eightieth year.)

Is life's evening long and dreary?
Gone the treasures once possessed?
Is thy spirit faint and weary?
Don't thou long to be at rest?
On this sweet promise fix thy sight:
"At evening time it shall be light."

"Light is sown" for thee, and gladness.
Even in this vale of tears;
Soon will pass the nights of sadness,
Grief will fly when morn appears.
Still, to faith's illumined sight,
"At evening time it shall be light."

Look not on the hills around thee,
Earth grows darker every hour,
Let not crime's increase confound thee.
Limited is Satan's power;
Look on to regions pure and bright:
"At evening time it shall be light."

Dwell not on the growing weakness
That precedes thy frame's decay;
Rise above depressing sickness;
Catch the dawn's approaching ray—
Faith can discern the Day Star bright:
"At evening time it shall be light."

See thy Saviour bending o'er thee,
Even to old age the same;
Set life's one chief end before thee,
Still to glorify His name:
Write on Himself is fixed thy sight,
"At evening time it shall be light."

Woman Suffrage.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir.—It was with great interest that I read of the public meeting at Grand Falls on Monday evening,
"When Woman's Suffrage for Newfoundland was explained and discussed." The splendid result of 376 names and the enthusiastic telegrams received from all over the Island show, without a doubt, that Newfoundland means to adopt this measure.

Equal rights obtains in many countries and in all of Britain's colonies.
Why not put Newfoundland on a similar footing this week? Why put off indefinitely this measure which is admitted and proved to be for the moral good of every country that has adopted it. New Zealand, an island isolated like ourselves, has had Woman's Suffrage for thirty years, and each year brings her increased happiness and prosperity.

The old cry that "Woman's place is in the home," would assume that because a woman left her kitchen once every four years or so to vote for the man who stands for the moral advancement of his community, she must neglect her home. And the assertion that the illiterate vote would do more harm than good, can be answered with the statement of our Government leaders, that the women of Newfoundland are better educated as a rule than the men, and go to school longer.

What objection is there that can be raised to giving women the vote?
None whatever. And the sooner this injustice is remedied the better.

Yours truly,
V.F.W.

Thrilling Sea Story.

The four-masted sailing vessel Speedonia, with 1,000,000 gallons of oil on board, was towed into Lorenzo Marquez on Tuesday night, May 18, her arrival marking the termination of one of the most thrilling and dramatic episodes that have occurred in African waters for many years. She is a steel-built vessel of 3283 tons, owned by the Imperial Oil Company,
and was outward bound from Singapore to Cape Town, when on March 19 two explosions occurred in the after part of the ship, followed by a fire which swept the vessel from stem to stern, wrecking the poop and destroying all the stores, spare sails, and nautical instruments. Practically the whole of the inflammable cargo was carried below the steel deck.

In fighting the fire Captain R. W.
Deeks broke a leg and dislocated a thigh, and four other men were badly injured, whilst the wireless operator jumped overboard and was not seen again. Apparently the captain considered the vessel was doomed, as he,
with the second and third officers, a European seaman, and 23 of the Chinese crew, launched three boats and left the ship. They have not been heard of since.

The first officer, J. H. Henderson, a young seaman named Strays, and 26 of the Chinese and Malay crew stuck to the ship and succeeded in extinguishing the fire. The sails that were set had been burned to shreds, and the explosion had smashed the rudder, rendering the ship quite unmanageable.

The crew suffered great hardships, as for nearly a month all they had to live on was a little uncooked tinned food and water impregnated with oil.—Glasgow Weekly Herald.

Modern Pirate Gang.

Reminiscent of the exploits of Captain Kidd, an amazing story of piracy on the high seas comes from Constantinople. The steamer, which belongs to the French Paquet Com-
a full complement of passengers.
There was, it appears, some little excitement on the quay at the moment of departure, to which, however, there seemed no special reason to attach importance.

While the passengers were still seated at dinner a series of revolver shots rang out. A band of twenty-five masked men at once shepherded all the passengers into the saloon, and a regular sack of the ship ensued.
Not once, but again and again, the cabins and persons of everyone on board were ruthlessly searched, and everything worth taking was collected by the pirates, who did not hesitate to strip children to examine their clothing. The gang of marauders of course were unrecognisable, but they spoke Russian, Turkish and Greek.

They assumed control of the ship
for about five hours, directing her course towards the shores close to Atina, and when within a short distance of the coast, ordered the captain to lower boats, in which they escaped in safety, leaving the terrorized passengers little besides such clothing as they did not think it worth while to take away.

Mr. James Wood, a Y.M.C.A. worker from Glasgow, says that the robbers showed great courtesy to the passengers. They returned all the Don doubles, saying that they only wanted real money, and had a committee of experts aboard to pass judgment on jewels suspected of being imitations.—Glasgow Weekly Herald.

House of Assembly.

June 7, 1920.
The House met at 3 p.m.

Petitions were presented by Mr. Macdonald from the Municipal Council protesting against the Motor Association Bill; and by Mr. Abbott from Open Hall for a public wharf.

The leader of the Opposition gave notice of a question relating to the Bedford Affidavit Commission.

A Bill to amend the Protection of Animals Society Act was introduced and read a first time.

The amendments made by the Legislative Council on the Legislative Disabilities, Death duties and Midwives Bills were read a second time and adopted.

The House then went into committee of the whole on resolutions respecting the improvement of roads.

The Attorney General discussed the petition submitted by the Municipal Council, holding that the position taken by that body was not the correct one. The Motor Association were taxing themselves for the purpose of improving the roads and thereby were benefitting the whole public. He contended that the motorists did more damage to roads outside the city than to those within, and the Council had no right to all the taxes.

Sir M. P. Cashin (Leader of the Opposition) wanted to know on whose recommendation the Road Boards in his district were recently appointed. He took occasion to refer to the forest fires which have raged in the District of Ferryland for the past few days. The entire blame could be thrown on the Government, which, said he, had dismissed the old fire-wardens and appointed ones who, in one or two cases, were men who prosecuted the fishery. It was the custom of the old fire-wardens to follow carefully the trains up and down and put out any small blaze that occurred, and how well the work was done may be judged by the very few fires that had occurred since the train ran through the District. This year because of the neglect to appoint wardens, fires were everywhere and the bit of valuable forest in the district is being destroyed. He also wanted to know who was authorizing the expenditure of money on roads there now. Hundreds of men were at work, but as far as he could gather no money had been sent out from the Department of Public Works for them.

Mr. Jennings (Minister of Public Works) stated that the list of new Road Boards came to him from the Colonial Secretary's Office, and he did not know who recommended them. The statement that there were hundreds of men working was incorrect. Sir Michael Cashin reiterated his statement.

Mr. Phil Moore (Ferryland) emphasized the position taken by Sir Michael Cashin. Fires were raging over the district, and it was a disgrace and a scandal that there were not wardens enough to protect public property.

Mr. J. R. Bennett (St. John's West) speaking to the Council's Petition, thought that the Council had missed the point of the Bill.

Mr. N. J. Vinicombe (St. John's East) opposed the section which limited the amount to be granted the Council to $5,000, pointing out that every year would see an increase in the number of motor cars, which would mean greater wear and tear on roads and streets.

This section was amended and the Council was given $5,500 with all taxes collected on motor trucks.

The resolutions were then reported to the House in amended form.

The Pilotage Amendment Bill passed committee stage without comment.

Mr. Fox moved the second reading of the Sealfishery Amendment Bill, explaining its provisions. It provides for inspectors on board ships to see that food and sleeping quarters of the crew are as they should be. The Bill also sets April 20th as the last day on which seals shall be killed, and provides penalties for offences. The Bill passed second reading without discussion.

Mr. Jennings moved the second reading of the Local Affairs Amendment Bill, the object of which is to try and straighten out the present law.

Mr. Fox gave notice of a Bill relating to the election of members of the House of Assembly which it is understood is to give the franchise to women, and Mr. Warren notice of bills regarding Commemoration Day and elections in the present year.

The House then adjourned till the usual hour this afternoon.

Let Women Vote.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir—A short while ago some of the women of our city called upon me desirous to know my views as to Women Suffrage, particularly in their right to vote at the General Elections, and also as to the Civic Elections in our city. I had no hesitancy in giving my approval to their views for such rights to be theirs. We can have no stronger or better evidence than the recent War, of the benefits to be derived by the able assistance rendered by our splendid women, and we should acknowledge the right of women to participate by vote or otherwise in all that pertains to better Government, politically, civically, socially or economically.

At the call from the Mother Country to this Dominion, the women voluntarily, unostentatiously, and without the slightest forcing, gave their time, talents and their brave boys and girls to the Empire, and we questioned not their right, or debarred them in any way from doing their part, and I am sure if occasion had required it, they would not have hesitated to enter the firing line. Then again the morale of our women as compared with our manhood certainly does not hold second place, and I should say also, neither from an educational or intellectual standpoint. As a matter of fact when a man wants to make life worth while, he endeavours to secure the very best help possible, he generally does not hope for the help of another man, but in the fair sex to bear life's burdens with him. There could not be a more appreciable request than to grant to our womanhood her moral right (I take it) to vote and thus help to legislate for the best that is in life.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for the space allotted for these few remarks, and hoping that our progressive Government will see that it is in the best interests of this Dominion to grant the women enfranchisement.

Yours faithfully,
C. R. STEER.

Mainly About People.

Constantine, the deposed King of Greece, takes life gayly. Not so Sophia, his queen and sister of the Ex-Kaiser. Her heart is with her august brother and care is taken to keep from her criticisms of the German high lord. Sophia speaks of President Wilson as 'that American pig,' Lloyd George, 'the English scoundrel,' and Clemenceau 'the ruffian.'

Sadgur Sundas Singh, the famous missionary, is six feet in height, with handsome face, dark eyes and hair, barefooted and dressed in a long, flowing saffron robe, with a scarf of the same color thrown loosely over his shoulders, and turban to match. He is a holy man, who enjoys the freedom of all India, is a Sikh, whose wealthy father has never forgiven him for becoming a Holy Man. He is only 30 years old.

Mme. Lydia Lipkowska, the opera singer, wears a wig of hair made of real gold. It was spun and woven by jewellers in Paris. She managed to get away from Petrograd with her life and money. The gold wig is embellished with leaves and grapes of gold. She also brought out of Russia a husband, St. Pietro Bodin, a poet, a soldier and reputed to be rich.

Don Gelasio Caetan, brother of Prince Caetan, is the American named engineer who blew off the top of a mountain after the Australians had fortified it, and who has just dynamited a canal into existence from Lake Coproplaco to the Mediterranean sea. He used 1200 large bombs for the job, a great deal more than was used to blow up the mountain.

Margot Aequith, wife of England's former prime minister, has lived a brilliant life in a brilliant sphere. She has met most of the great political figures of her generation, including Matthew Arnold, Tennyson and Geo. Meredith. She is a keen observer of men, women and things, and has committed some delightful indiscretions which she delights to talk about.

Prince Henry, who has just reached the age of twenty, is certain to be the tallest of King George's sons. He is a very eager, well-disposed young man, and looks forward to the completion of his stay at Cambridge, so that he can take up his military duties with the King's Royal Rifles, to which he was gazetted last year. When he was at Sandhurst he did very well at polo, and he is a better cricketer than any of his brothers.

Surma d' Mas Shimun of the Kurdistan Mountains has won London by her beauty and her earnestness in the cause of the Assyrians. She is a little over 30, and so highly cultured that the Archbishop of Canterbury spoke of her: "It is extraordinary to find so

The Road—In New Overland 4 Motor Car on Three-Point Cantilever Spring Suspension

YOU expect a bad road to ride as it looks. It did, until the introduction of the Springbase of the Overland 4 Motor Car.

The Overland 4 does not change the road, but it does change the manner in which you can ride on it. It gives you comfort instead of discomfort. It gives you a smooth, sailing sensation instead of bouncing and swaying.

The Diagonal attachment of Three-Point Cantilever Spring Suspension at the ends of a 130-inch (3.3m) Springbase gives long wheelbase road steadiness. Yet the Overland 4 retains all the advantages—lightness, economy, and ease of handling, of 100-inch (2.54 m) wheelbase.

This means an altogether new standard of riding comfort, a noteworthy reduction in the wear and tear which lessens the efficiency of the car. The new springs give longer life to every part and thus minimize upkeep and replacement costs.

Tires wear longer because cushioned against hammering blows. Light weight means marked economy in petrol, oil and running expense.

Overland 4's equipment is complete from Auto-Lite Starting and Lighting to Demountable Rims.

Come in and see this remarkable car!

Stanton Oil, Perfection Tire!

At present prices of the above two stocks, we sincerely believe they are excellent purchases, and much more so for those who already hold them at higher cost than the present market price.

For those who are speculatively inclined we earnestly suggest a "flyer" in either of the above stocks, and we believe the next couple of months will make good profits for those who buy RIGHT NOW while low prices prevail. Small investors may start as low as $20.00 in either stock, while a "flyer" of $20 or $50 in each of the above stocks should soon show a splendid profit with your money back. Ask us about them.
