The Broken Circle!

CHAPTER LV.

"You have made an impression!" laughed Lord Stanhope to his friend. "I never saw that look in Ada Craythorne's eyes before."

Sir Charles shrugged his shoulders and smiled.

"She must have suffered for years," said Dr. Griffiths, but he did not add that the disease had been aggravated by some terrible shock. He respected the secret that he had kept so well.

The duchess would not allow anything to be touched in the room until the general and Sir Basil came. The unfinished letter lay upon the table, and the broken wedding-ring was in the folded paper.

They had telegraphed at once for Sir Arthur and Sir Basil. Fast as steam could carry them, they went to Mentone, and found the terrible news true that Leah was dead.

All the calm, imperial beauty of her youth came back to her as she lay sleeping after her long fever and pain. There was no path on the beautiful face; the thick, dark eyelashes lay like fringe on the white cheeks; there was a strange beauty on the marble brow; and the proud curves of the perfect lips were set in a smile. The duchess had covered the couch on which she lay with lovely white blossoms; and so Sir Basil, who had parted from her on board the steamer, saw her again. He kissed the pale lips that had murmured so many loving words to him, weeping like a child, and regretting that he had loved her more.

The duchess gave him the letter and the ring. He received them in silence. What had he to say?

But that night, when all was still, he crept back to the room, and laid the two halves of the broken wedding ring on the cold, white breast. No one else should ever wear it; it was buried with her.

Early the next morning he went out and procured some scarlet passion-flowers. Sir Arthur liked him all the better because he cried like a child when he placed them in the dead, white hands. One could have fancied that a smile passed over the dead face. Her secret was safe for ever now, and no one knew why she had died. No suspicion of the truth came to any one of them.

So they mourned her, and no sting of bitter memories increased their pain. Hettie and the general learned to love each other in the midst of their trouble more than they would ever have done in prosperity. They mourned long and sincerely for Leah. The general for a long time was quite unlike himself—he seemed unable to recover from the blow; and there were times when every one thought that Hettie must follow her sister.

There was a great outburst of sorrow in England when the papers told that Leah, the beloved niece of General Sir Arthur Hatton, had died suddenly at Mentone, of heart-disease.

English visitors go now to see her grave; none leave it without tears. They tell each other how soon she was to have been married to some one whom she loved dearly, and how she was writing to her lover when the summons came. Leah's grave is the most beautiful in the cemetery. A tall white marble cross bears her name, and masses of superb scarlet passion-flowers creep up it and overhang the grave.

Lord Cecil's Dilemma —OR— The Picnic

Woodall Forest

CHAPTER III.

"Is that your paragon?" he asked. "She is certainly a very handsome, vivacious girl, but not at all my style."

"My paragon!" ejaculated Lord Cecil. "Not a bit of it. Ah, here she comes!"

The young peer's good-looking face suddenly became aglow with pleasure; then he uttered a sharp exclamation:

"By Jove! Is that the earl? It is!" He ran forward and pushed his way through the throng that had gathered about Lord Howard, and was soon heartily shaking the earl's right hand. It was a surprise to everybody, and while he explained why he had returned home so unexpectedly, Lady Gladys clung lovingly to his arm, blushing and smiling, and looking lovelier than she had ever looked before.

This was how Sir Charles Hastings first beheld her, and he never forgot the entrancing vision, or the strange sensation that tingled through every nerve. Then he heard a resounding cheer for Lord Howard, but did not know until afterward what it meant. The earl was surrounded by old friends and neighbors, and Lady Gladys and Lady Marcia followed the burly form of Lord Cecil Stanhope through the crowd.

"Hi! There you are, Hastings! I want to introduce you to Lady Marcia Howard, and her niece, Lady Gladys. The earl is too busy for a while. This is a glorious surprise."

Sir Charles stood with bared head before the ladies, while Cecil introduced him, and when his gray eyes met the blue ones of Lady Gladys he mumbled words which had no meaning. This man of the world was bewildered by the saintly beauty of the young girl before him.

"I think I know your father," said Lady Marcia, graciously. "He was one of the Hastings of Pembroke?"

"Yes," replied the baronet, a shadow flitting over his face; "I am glad to hear that you met him."

He glanced again at Lady Gladys, and saw that she was regarding him earnestly. Her eyes dropped, and both were a little confused. Lord Cecil came to their relief and chatted away merrily; then he escorted Gladys and her aunt to the ladies' pavilion.

"What do you think of the earl's daughter?" he demanded of Sir Charles a few minutes later, his blue eyes dancing. "Is she not lovely? And yet so simple, and good, and ingenious. I am desperately in love with her, and I think that she likes me, for I am the only fellow she will have about her."

"Have you spoken of love to her?" Sir Charles asked, a dull pain at his heart. "She is very young yet."

"No, but I think that she takes it for granted," the young peer went on. "I have told her aunt, Lady Marcia, and shall speak to Lord Howard by and by. I am jolly glad he has come home again. Nothing could have been settled without his sanction, you know."

He rattled on, but Sir Charles only caught a word now and then. His thoughts were full of Lady Gladys. Her name was written on the tablets of his heart. Her eyes had looked into his soul. Her face was everywhere before him. He had quite forgotten his promise to Miss Ada Craythorne.

Somebody claimed Lord Cecil's attention, and Sir Charles wandered away, glad to be alone. He had heard Lady Marcia say that their stall was Number Four, and he found that Number Four was very tastefully arrayed with the choicest products of both garden and greenhouse. He wandered on a little farther, and passed the Craythornes' stall without even looking at it, much to the mortification of Miss Ada, at least, for the girls were just preparing for business, and dispensing their sweetest smiles, much to the bewilderment of several country swains.

BELFAST, June 11. Eamonn De Valera in a speech at Malloy on Saturday in support of the penal candidates for Parliament emphasized the impossibility of acting as though conditions were normal. Under the abnormal conditions of the past five years, said Mr. De Valera, individuals and groups of individuals, under necessity to assume immediate responsibility, had taken powers upon themselves very often for the good of the nation which could only be tolerated in time of war. Those powers must now be relinquished to a central authority established by the nation and which it was to achieve such a

Domestic Theme in "A Wife's Awakening"

BIG IDEA BACK OF GRIPPING STORY—GASNIER PUTS ACROSS ANOTHER HIT.

An ultimate domestic theme invariably catches the interest of the average theatregoer. It has been used often on the stage and screen, but in "A Wife's Awakening," produced by Gasnier for R-C Pictures Corporation and scheduled for exhibition at the Majestic Theatre to-day, it is done with such striking originality that it ranks easily among the foremost dramatic subjects of the year.

"A Wife's Awakening" unravels the story of a charming young wife whose devotion to her husband is so intense and so blind that she places her own reputation in a shadow in her efforts to save him from ruin. This briefly is the story although the wife fights valiantly and in the end wins enduring happiness.

Not the least unusual feature of "A Wife's Awakening" is the fact that it was enacted by a cast of just five players, each of whom is an artist of high standing. Fritz Brunette is the wife and she proves herself a consummate artist.

In addition to Miss Brunette there is the handsome William P. Carleton, well-known leading man, who makes a heroic figure in "A Wife's Awakening" and adds a delightful touch of romance.

Sam De Grasse reveals in a heavy part as usual and gives a highly artistic performance. He is the husband and he paints the part with plenty of villainy. One must realize at once upon seeing Mr. De Grasse on the screen, however, that he is an artist despite the unsympathetic nature of his role.

Miss Edythe Chapman and Beverly Travers have roles of lesser importance but they add a note of distinction to the production nevertheless. They are skillful women—both—and Miss Chapman as the mother is striking at all times.

The People Wait.

A pall of silence enshrouded the Railway situation all last week. Not one word could be gleaned from either the Prime Minister or the President of the Company that could be given the public, and matters must stand in que until some pronouncement is made in the House of Assembly this afternoon. Just what that pronouncement will be has not been learned. The only hope is that it will be in the best interests of the country, for no matter what the disagreement between Government and Company, it is after all the country which will suffer if an amicable settlement is not reached. Therefore to those who have the final word we would wish to utter one little sentence of warning. That is, "See to it that Newfoundland is the prime consideration in whatever transactions are concluded." Of course it would scarcely be fair to either party to expect a public announcement ere the negotiations, said to be proceeding, are completed. But that such announcement is anxiously expected and eagerly awaited by the people, this afternoon, it is not going too far to premise. The whole country is in a state of suspense, and its fate may be said to hang in the balance. Whatever arrangements have been made up to the present moment cannot be known until the Prime Minister makes his official report to the House. The Telegram endeavored on Saturday to get a statement from both parties interested, but without success. To-morrow, perhaps, the entire population will be in possession of all the facts, and will know just where they stand in future with regard to the railway policy to be pursued. The temporary agreement expires to-night. Subsequent developments will be determined by whatever new agreement has been made. It was reported generally this morning that the Reid Company would not entertain any proposal for the renewal of the present agreement, even for so short a period as from to-day till June 30. If that is the case, then it is up to the Government to safeguard their own position and that of the people as well. Should rumor for once prove correct, and the Company refuse to consent to a short term agreement, the Government will be compelled to act instantly. At present the only course open seems to be that of settlement by purchase, unless all the people are prepared to enter into arbitration, which eventually might lead to litigation; and all know how expensive, and interminable the latter can prove. If the Colony could do without the railway, things would not look so black, but at the moment many sections are absolutely dependent on the trunk line for the supplying of their every-day wants. To have the whole system again tied up would be disastrous. To have it in slings not knowing how, when or where a suspension of traffic would occur would be equally fatal to trade. All the more reason then why an arrangement, mutually agreeable to all, should be made. The people are waiting in hope that something definite and useful will come from the deliberations of the House this afternoon, and fervently hope that those responsible will be able to give the assurance that they have done their very best for the country at large and its trade in general.

Ordination at Cathedral.

"GO YE INTO ALL THE WORLD."

Yesterday's Ordination Service at the Cathedral of St. John the Baptist was a function of dignity and solemnity. In an age of Modernism in Religion and Bolshevism in Politics, it is refreshing to find the Old Mother Church "lengthening her cords and strengthening her stakes" as she calls and sends men to proclaim the Religion of the Incarnation as the only remedy for the world's miseries. And it is reassuring also, to find that there are still men to answer the call, by embracing what has been called the oldest institution in the world—the Priesthood—at a time when God is everywhere ignored in the councils of men. The candidates for the sacred ministry were three—two to the office of Deacon and one raised to the office of Priest. Of the former, one—Mr. A. Sheppard—was offering his young manhood in what we hope will be a ministry of many years. The other—Mr. Bugden—after long and faithful work as teacher and lay-reader, has heard the call to higher office and has answered the Bishop's appeal for more clergy by offering himself in later life. The young Priest is the Rev. Max B. Way, son of Mr. Mark Way, of Hermitage, a graduate of Queen's, who has performed the office of a Deacon so faithfully, that he has been found worthy of elevation to the Priesthood. The sermon setting forth the duties of the sacred ministry were preached by the Rev. Canon Smart, and the presentation of the candidates was made by the Rev. Dr. Bolt. The Lord Bishop of Newfoundland, (in Cope and Mitre and attended by Mr. Chaplain, Rev. J. Brinton), conferred the sacred orders on the aspirants and duly invested them with the insignia of their offices. The solemnity of the sacramental occasion, the wealth of music and the reverent ceremonial all combined to make a religious impression—both on those ordained and those who were privileged to witness their ordination—which will not soon pass away.

Belvidere Ladies.

GARDEN PARTY DISCUSSED.
The Ladies' Association of Belvidere Orphanage Committee met yesterday to discuss preparations for the garden party to be held on July 5th.

Several gentlemen attended at the request of the Mother Superior, and after the object of the meeting was outlined by the President of the Ladies' Association, Mrs. J. Harris, Mr. W. J. Higgins was appointed chairman pro tem, and a committee was nominated to undertake the direction of arrangements. This committee consists of Mr. Higgins, Chairman, Mr. Merner, Secretary, and Messrs. P. F. Moore, C. J. Ellis, John Larkin, W. B. Comerford. These gentlemen will nominate sub-committees to arrange for and direct field and other sports and amusements. The Ladies' Association will undertake the catering. On the suggestion of Mr. Higgins a public Committee was nominated consisting of Messrs. J. J. Lacey, T. Hickey and J. T. Meaney. The Mother Superior and the good ladies of the orphanage under whose care so many homeless girls and little children are being cared for and educated, look forward with confidence to the usual liberal patronage for which the public of St. John's are noted, and without whose warm-hearted and charitable co-operation the success of their first garden party cannot be achieved.

Railway Will Carry on Temporary Agreement Until Autumn—Neither Side Will Make Any Statement—Prime Minister Addresses House.

There will be no railway tie-up when the present agreement for temporary operation expires this mid-summer. The Prime Minister announced in the House this afternoon that arrangements are in negotiation for temporary operation until the autumn. The details will be the subject of adjustment between the Reid Nfld. Co. on the one hand, and T. A. Hall, Government Engineer, R. C. Morgan, special adviser of Government railway matters, and F. C. Berteau, Auditor General, on the other hand.

WANTS ADJOURNMENT.

Sir Richard said he was not aware that there was any legislation other than that on the Order-Paper, or to be announced during the afternoon. He would ask the Finance Minister to pass the one remaining vote in supply and the Supply Bill will provide for the Public Service until the end of the present year. As soon as the necessary legislation is disposed of and assented to by his Excellency, the House will adjourn until some date in the autumn, to be decided upon, said the Prime Minister. Railway matters he concluded, will then be ready for consideration and decision.

MANY CONFERENCES.

Very many conferences between the Company and the Government have been held during the past few days and terminated with that held in the Prime Minister's office this morning. Hon. W. F. Gosker is said to have suddenly become hostile to Reid interests, as a result of a misunderstanding between him and the Company over the Humber Proposition. His views, as they are supposed to have been pronounced at the Executive meetings and echoed in the Advocate, are believed to be unfavorable toward any settlement which would be agreeable to the Company.

UNEXPECTED ARRANGEMENT.

An arrangement for temporary operations until the autumn was entirely unexpected, because of the very definite statement made by the Prime Minister some weeks ago in the House, that Reid would no longer operate. The general impression was that the Government would go so far as to take control of the railway and place R. C. Morgan in charge of operations. This step might have been attended with serious results, and it is probably just as well that no such action was necessary. The terms of the new arrangement, when made public, should prove interesting. No statement can be obtained from the Company officials.

HOPFUL OUTLOOK.

President H. D. Reid told the Telegram, as he was about to leave his office to attend this morning's conference, that things looked very hopeful. He did not say for whom, but the smile on his face as he made the statement was not likely to give rise to the belief that the hopeful outlook was for any other than the company. Seen by a Telegram reporter after this morning's conference Mr. O. O'N. Conroy, the Company's solicitor, refused to say anything beyond the fact that another arrangement for temporary operations had been made.

CLOSING THE HOUSE.

The Prime Minister will probably find it a difficult matter to force an early adjournment if the Opposition maintain the stand they have taken in connection with the vote for the Mounted Police. They stated in supply that they would fight this vote and as the Government is not likely to remove it from the Estimates, a lengthy debate may ensue. It is not known what other legislation will be announced before adjournment this afternoon.

School Rugby.

SECOND GAME A DRAW.

The second game in the Inter-Collegiate Rugby series was played on the Methodist College ground on Saturday afternoon and resulted in a draw. The ball and field were greasy and the three-quarters of both sides found it impossible to make any ground. The Passions forwards played better than they did in their first game, and frequently got the ball out to their three. No scoring was done during the game. Mr. J. Peterson was referee.

Motor Taxes.

TIME LIMIT EXPIRES.

The time limit set by the Municipal Council for the payment of motor taxes and drivers licenses for this year expired on June 9th. Motorists would be well advised to pay their 1922 taxes as early as possible as prosecutions may shortly be instituted. The new numbers for this year start at 3000. Very few motorists have so far paid up and it is in their own interests to do so, as half the tax money goes towards road improvement.

Woman Arrested.

CHARGED WITH LARCENY.
Constable Blundon of Spaniard's Bay arrived in town Saturday with a woman who is under arrest for the larceny of over $100 from a White-bourne shop. Accused is married and has a family. She appeared before the magistrate on Saturday afternoon and was remanded. The investigations which led to the arrest were made by the local police.

A Record Catch.

GOOD FISHERY PROSPECTS.
Recent advices from Burin give hope of a very successful fishery. A message received in town on Saturday stated that the catch of shore fish was a record one, and that the bankers were doing extraordinarily well. It is to be hoped that similar conditions exist elsewhere. This would go far to putting us once more on a sound financial basis, provided the catch is properly handled.

WAGON CONSIDERABLY DAMAGED.
At 1.30 p.m. to-day, a horse harnessed to an express wagon, the driver of which was in a nearby store on New Gower Street, suddenly bolted and dashed along that thoroughfare colliding with a light pole, smashing the shaft and dash board and crumpling up the fore axle and front of the vehicle. Releasing itself from the harness, the straps of which also gave way, the animal galloped down Queen Street, but near the foot was fortunately checked in its career and taken in charge by the man who was courageous enough to stop the equine. No injury other than that already stated, was done, though it was only by a stroke of luck that a baker's van standing near the curb, was not demolished, the startled horse driving between it and the light pole just grazing the van. Many people were on the street at the time and a crowd quickly gathered at the scene.

The Railway.

Cowardice, shiftness and procrastination have been the outstanding marks of the Government's inability to go anything honest in the matter of the Reid's and the Railway up to the present. It is eloquent of the little calibre of our statesmen (?) that they are great in creating trouble, but mighty small when it comes to getting out of the maze they themselves have created. The people did not make this Reid imbroglio—the puny politicians and puff-up statesmen made it,—yet according to rumor the question of dealing with Reid, and the burden of how the question is to be solved is to be placed on the shoulders of the people. A most cowardly act, but considered good politics.—Public Opinion.

The Swimming Pools.

ALL SHOULD NOW BE OPEN.
All public swimming pools should now be opened and in every case the appointment of a qualified instructor ought to be made. This particularly applies to Long Pond and Quidi Vidi. The Bowring Park pool is not so dangerous as the others. It is always opened very late in the season, and it is hoped the management will bestir themselves this season and get the pool ready for use before the end of the present month.

Mr. Coaker's Diary.

(Public Opinion)
 These very entertaining and disconcerting notes of a journey to the interior of the country through the forest of the Orinoco, and incidentally upon the tragic fate of the "Raleigh" says Mr. Coaker, "Raleigh in 1595 sailed in the El Dorado, or gold boat, to locate the gold mine, and so lost his head, but up the Orinoco River to-day is a station built on the site of an old gold mine, and this is the depot for traffic with the interior." Raleigh camped where the gold mine is to-day working; he did not have ample knowledge of geology, and would have found the object of his quest and lived in honor and wealth. So many people mistake the story of the press for a lie, to the sense, and Mr. Coaker very aptly falls into this error, and never reproaches as when he writes a note on his holiday jaunt abroad. Mr. Coaker is a very keen observer, and has not the corresponding knowledge of drawing correct inferences from what he sees, and so falls into peculiar mistakes. It is not always that they are rather a poor requital for services rendered by Raleigh that he was to find the El Dorado, but that he had his head cut off. But it is the thing it would be to-day to adopt similar methods. His easy heads would have followed the South Branch of the river to find coal. TOM MOORE IN "HOLD YOUR HORSES."

Imagine if you can, the handsome Tom Moore as a street-cleaner, dressed in the regulation "white wings" not too white—unshaven, with a short clay pipe in his mouth and a long handled broom in his fist. That's how he starts out in "Hold Your Horses," a Sidney Franklin production.

But, you're not going to miss Wednesday's big attraction, "Unseen Forces," a Sidney Franklin production. It is one of those dramas that are discussed by patrons after they leave the theatre. "Unseen Forces" comes glowing from the fire furnaces of inspiration and tempered with great originality. It is so exquisite, so fragile, so beautifully and poetically fragrant that it is like a breath of spring. It stands out as one of the most charming things that the silver sheet has mirrored for a long while.

Obituary.

MR. STEPHEN ANDREWS.

The death of Mr. Stephen Andrews, on Friday night last, removes from the community its oldest and a well known resident and from the home a venerated head. Mr. Andrews was born in this town some 93 years ago, in April, 1828. No man of his time was better versed in the doings of the people, and there were few who had a fuller knowledge of local history, events and happenings. His memory was unimpaired, and the occurrences of well-nigh ninety years could be recalled at will and with remarkable correctness and clearness. The burning of St. Paul's Church, in the Market square, was remembered by him, and although he was then not four years of age, it had a more lasting hold on his memory than less prominent events of late years. His memory was such that up to the day of his death he could tell the events of his early boyhood, and distinctly go over the history of the past. He attended school kept by Mr. Lamson and then by Mr. Kingwell in the building known as the C. & C.S.S., in what is now known as Ward's Lane, but which in turn bore that of Kingwell, Gardner, Bell and Ward, the names of the men who taught in that school in succession. When asked, but a short time before his death, about the mercantile premises on the Beach, he gave the information that when he was twelve years of age, he earned his first money with Mr. Soper who at that time conducted business there. The firm (afterwards Soper and Moore) had a store and wharf next inside (West and North) of the Point, and is remembered by men who are with us to-day. Mr. Andrews followed the fisheries for the greater part of his life—up to about 1875. After that time he became supercargo with Messrs. Mann & Co. He was with Captain Richard Pike throughout the eventful career of that seal-killer, and his recounting of the trips to the seal fishery were always an interesting topic with his hearers. The deceased is the last of his family, a brother, George Andrews and two sisters, Mrs. Richard Pike and Mrs. Valentine Webber, having passed away years ago. The wife of the deceased, who was a daughter of Mr. William Davis, passed away some fourteen years ago, and two daughters, Mrs. Reeves and Miss Catherine Andrews, also predeceased him. Two sons are living, W. E. Andrews, Esq., J.P., Sub-Collector at Gaultois, and Mr. Geo. W. Andrews, manager of the Anglo-American Telegraph Co. of this town with whom the deceased resided since the demise of his wife. Mr. Andrews was a worthy workman, a good neighbour and an upright, conscientious man—one who pursued life's way in a peaceable, unostentatious manner, with a conscience free from any intended harm to anyone. Full of years, with the respect of the community, an aged and worthy man has passed away to reap the reward of a life well spent, and at peace with all men.

"The remnant of his day he safely past. Nor found they lagged too slow or few too fast; He made his wish with his estate employ, Joyful to live, yet not afraid to die."—COM. Hr. Grace, June 9th, 1912.

Aged Man Injured.

FELLED BY EXPRESS HORSE. Saturday afternoon an aged man named Henry Carter, a resident of Job's Street, was knocked down by an express horse near the premises of G. M. Barr, Water Street. The old man was crossing the street and was hit by the shaft of the express and fell to the pavement. He was severely injured about the face and head, and had to be conveyed to the Hospital for treatment, after an examination by Dr. T. Anderson. The express was driven by James Earle.

The World of Books.

THE TELEGRAM'S LITERARY SECTION.

THE RED CAVALIER.—Among recent books received by Dick's & Co. is one by a writer new to me, Gladys Edson Locke. Although written by an American, the scene is laid in England, and the author depicts life in that country in a manner which carries conviction. "The Red Cavalier" is a mystery story of exceptional interest and from the first chapter the attention of the reader is gripped, and unlike most tales of similar nature, is held to the very end. For those who are in need of a literary pick-me-up, I cannot do better than recommend this book. AUCTION BRIDGE.—Auction Bridge has made great strides during the past decade and is now the most universal popular card game. Many books have been written about it, most of them for the sake of a novel player and few of any value to the beginner. I have at last however, found the very book that I and other average bridge players require. It is "The 1922 Rules and Laws of Auction Bridge," and in its less than one hundred pages will be found more useful information than in all other bridge books. The author and publisher is Wynne Ferguson of New York. In his opening paragraph, the author says, "Every card player wants to play auction, and it's a waste of time to try to play unless you play well. You want to play Bridge and better Bridge, and the object of this book is to increase the crop of good bridge players. He is as good as his word and the best players can improve their game by a study of this brightly written little book. Moreover, it contains the very latest laws as drawn up by the New York Whist Club, and no player can afford to be without these. I am indebted to Dick's & Co. for a copy of this valuable treatise on Bridge.

NEW REPRINTS.

The new series of reprints of popular novels which emanates from the publishing house of John Murray enhances the reputation which that firm has maintained during the many years of its existence. At a time when the price of new fiction makes it almost prohibitive to the average reader, this new series of well bound, well printed books, which includes many of the most popular of recent tales, will come as a real boon. At the low price of two shillings, there should be a great demand for these reprints, especially as beside the more recent novels, many of the hard to get works of Conan Doyle and other greatly admired writers are among the titles. It is no wonder that the Daily Graphic describes this series as "of the first vintage, sparkling, rich, and very palatable."

MCGILSKY.—The cheap edition of the works of A. G. Hales, which Dick's & Co. and Company have just received, from Hodder and Stoughton, include the best of the inimitable McGilsky stories, which made their author famous. It was not until last year that I read my first McGilsky story, and after that, nothing would satisfy but that I must read them all. The many amusing stories of the fiery Scots-Australian, who was never happy unless he was arguing religion or fighting, exercise a fascination over the reader which few books are able to do. No one who professes to be a reader of fiction should have to confess that he has never read McGilsky.

THE ROUND TABLE.—The June number of that interesting quarterly "The Round Table," is replete with articles of the most interesting nature. Chief among these is that which reviews the Genoa Conference, upon which Lloyd George based such false hopes. The article deals with the Conference from many aspects and is most informative. The Irish Problem and the Drift of American Opinion are the subjects of careful and authoritative treatment and throw new light upon these so frequently misunderstood matters. Economic conditions throughout the Empire are reviewed in a most interesting manner by writers who are fully conversant with their subjects. The magazine will well repay a close perusal.

BOOKS AND AUTHORS.

"Tolstol as I knew him" is the title of an interesting account of the great Russian novelist's married life by his wife, which has recently appeared in serial form in "John O'London Weekly." "If Winter Comes," the most successful novel of recent years, has just been filmed. This book has now sold 100,000 copies in England and 300,000 in the United States. These figures are phenomenal. The author's sister, Miss Vere Hutchinson, has recently published a very striking novel of the sea.

"Suggestion and Auto-Suggestion," the book written by Dr. Bandouin and based on the theories advanced by M. Coue, is enjoying a good sale in England. This book may be obtained at some local bookellers.

Speaking of auto-suggestion, the following linerick sent to John O'London's Weekly is most amusing. A girl had a hole in her stocking which showed in a manner quite shocking; Said Coue, declare That the hole is not there,

And perfect the stocking, and clocking.

Mr. Sinclair Lewis, the author of "Main Street," is now in London where he will shortly publish a new novel. This will be called "Babbalanza."

The American Secretary of Agriculture was recently sent a copy of Knut Hamsun's "Growth of the Soil." The package was opened by one of the myriad functionaries in Washington, who promptly forwarded it to the Bureau of Soil Survey.

How many know that the first book on war was written by a Chinaman? His name was Sun Tzu. Mr. St. Leo Strachey, writing in the Nineteenth Century says:—

"The book was, until quite recently, the recognized text-book on the Art of War for modern Chinese students of Strategy—yet this stated-pattern military classic of China was written by Sun Tzu a generation before Aristotle!"

Actors are not generally believed to be very literary people. A symposium in a recent number of that well known English literary review "John O'London's Weekly," gives the lie to this belief. George Robey, the great comedian, and himself an author, gives a list of books, the weight of which would turn the head of the average reader dizzy. The most popular novel among famous stage folk appears to be "If Winter Comes," and "Joanna Godden" is a good second. Dickens is very popular, and Arthur Bourchier who is, by the way, an M.A., heads his list with "The Book of Job."

League Football To-Night.

C.L.B. vs. GUARDS.

The opening of the League Football season takes place to-night when the Guards and C.L.B. will be the contending teams. Mr. George Hunt will referee. The line-up is as follows:—

C.L.B.—Goal, R. Knight; backs, H. Burridge, W. Kirby; halves, S. Skiffington (Capt), H. Rendell, W. Cane; forwards, A. Hennebury, B. Rees, R. Chafe, G. Biscock, J. Snow. GUARDS.—Goal, Moore; backs, W. Thistle, E. Rose; halves, W. Halfyard, N. Ellis, G. Parsons; forwards, Ches. Quick, Geo. Quick, Charles Quick, J. Macklin, H. Conitas.

St. George's Field has been considerably improved during the spring, and the grandstand has also received attention. The various teams have had a good deal of practice during the past few weeks and some interesting matches should be seen during the season. The following meets will be held during the week:— Tuesday—Cadets vs. Saints. Wednesday—B.I.S. vs. Felldians. Thursday—Star vs. C.E.I. Friday—Highlanders vs. Guards.

Fatal Motor Accident.

INJURED BOY DIES IN HOSPITAL.

Michael Duff, the ten-year-old son of Arthur Duff, of Topsail Hill, died yesterday morning in hospital from injuries received when he was hit by a motor car the night before. Rev. Fr. Casey, of St. George's, was the driver of the car. The accident occurred at 8.15 p.m. Saturday. The car was coming down Topsail Hill behind a wagon on which Michael Duff and his brother were stealing a ride. As the car was about to pass, the boys dropped to the ground, one falling into a ditch while the other, Michael, ran across the road in front of the oncoming car. It was too late to avoid a collision as the unfortunate youth had jumped almost under the wheels of the car. He was picked up in an unconscious condition and hurried to St. Clair's Home where every thing possible was done for him. A medical examination showed that the injured boy had a fractured skull. He died early yesterday morning. No blame attaches to Fr. Casey, who took every possible precaution.

McMurdo's Store News.

These can be promptly relieved by the use of our Gripe Cordial which contains pleasant caramellines and aromatics, and a dose or two of which usually removes the flatulence and pain. There is absolutely no harmful ingredient in our Gripe Cordial, which is a "known, admitted and approved remedy" for the above trouble. Price 40 cents a bottle. Just arrived, a consignment of Pompano Toilet Goods, Particulars in a day or two.

Mr. Wm. J. Cook, brother of Hon. Tanker Cook, arrived here by Saturday's express on a two weeks' vacation. Mr. Cook is located at Grand Forks, B.C., where he holds a responsible position. He left here some 33 years ago and has been home but once, some 14 years ago. Mr. Cook was sorry to learn of the death of Mr. W. J. Herder, proprietor of this paper, with whom he was in close acquaintance.

Dislocated Arm.

CONFERENCE OF EXPERTS.

PARIS, June 12. The British reply to Premier Poincare's memorandum, setting forth the French attitude, agrees that the Hague conference should be a consultation of experts, and should avoid political and diplomatic questions. The British Government asserts that private property in Russia should be restored to owners, or that they should be fully compensated, but that Russia's sovereignty should be respected. Britain considers it necessary that Russia's war debt should be reduced in part, and that Government aid should be given to assure guarantees to private interests by opening credit for Soviets.

SIDE TALKS.

OUR SMALL BOY'S COMMENTS.

A compliment was given to my sex the other day. "It's nice from that fibrous of all mortals," a small boy between the ages of seven and 11, with one front tooth missing and at least 30 freckles on each side of his nose, supposed a small "boy" without one on his nose and without one of those beguiling blank spaces might look the part so well. "More willing than men," was the compliment. "I do love to give them a lift and to take my payment in getting them to talk.

In the course of a drive which he took with me this one gave me a good deal of interesting information as follows:

He began his career as a ballast supplier on a certain day when his mother and sisters were going on a picnic and he hadn't the money to go with them. Another boy said "Aw, come along of me and I'll show you how to get there without it's costing you nothing." He went and covered the ten miles "without its costing him nothing." Since then he has gone twice a week.

More Rides From Filivers.

It is much wiser when you are acting as assistant ballast to offer your services to the people who ride in filivers. You get a lot more rides out of them.

"Why do you think that is?" I asked at this point in the tale. "Oh, cause they ain't so stuck up," he said. "I guess 'tain't so long since they had to walk or stay at home themselves, and they ain't forgotten how it feels."

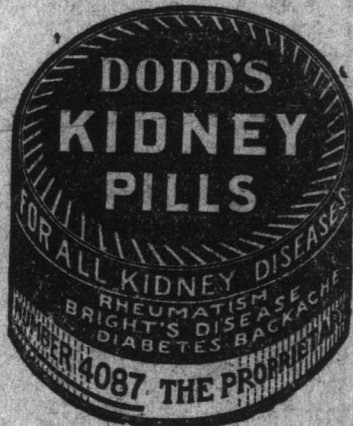

How is that for philosophy? Pretty good, I call it.

So Easy to Forgive.

It doesn't take long to forget how it feels to "walk or stay at home" and all the things that stands as symbol of. I wonder if that little boy's own experience will teach him when he grows up to remember better, than other folks, how it feels to "walk or stay at home." If he does he will have learned one of the hardest and finest of character lessons.

THE DOVE OF PEACE.

Oh, the dove is shot to pieces, and it wobbles as it flies, with its plumage all in creases and red pepper in its eyes; every day it's sorely jolted, and it looks about half moulted, and the olive branch it's bolted, and it sickens and it dies. For the nations lust for slaughter as they used to long ago; ah, poor dove! the captains swat her, hoping that the blood will flow; once again the sabre rattles and the haggard warfare rattles tales of sieges and of battles, armies coming to and fro. There's a crisis every morning, and a threat of fire and sword; all the lessons men are scoring that late bloody days afford; every fifteen cent commander hopes to be an Alexander, and the dove looks like a gander

A decaying tooth is simply a bone decaying in your mouth. It is a present day and night passing out its poisons into your system. How can you expect that you may retain your health with these poisons constantly working into your tissues? Is it any wonder you have rheumatism, neuralgia, affected eyes, ears and heart? Does it seem strange that you should more readily contract contagious diseases than formerly? The teeth are a wonderful adjunct, but unwatched for they become the seat of almost numberless human woes.

WHEN THERE'S COMPANY FOR TEA.

When there's company for tea, Things go mighty hard with me; Got to sit an' wait an' wait Till the last guest's cleaned his plate. An' I mustn't ask Ma what Kind of pie it is she's got. Mustn't crunch my napkin up Or dip cookies in my cup.

When there's company for tea, Home don't seem like home to me; Got to wash my ears and neck Till they do not show a speck; Got to brush my hair an' then Got to change my waist again. Then walk slowly down stairs an' Try to be a gentleman.

When there's company for tea, Ma spends hours instructing me How to set 'em what to say. An' I can't go out to play. When I've finished, but must stay Till Ma whispers: "Now you may! Still" still is not much fun. When you've got your supper done.

When there's company for tea, Then the servant waits on me.

Household Notes.

In making tea allow a teaspoonful for each person.
A little grated rind of lemon is nice with meat loaf.
Vegetables and meats bought out of season are always high.
Tea is sometimes preferred to coffee after a heavy dinner.
A high cutting table is of great service in the sewing room.
Baked potatoes should not be given to a baby under 18 months of age.
Stewed or preserved gooseberries are very nice with fresh mackerel.
Starch will not stick to the iron if a little borax is added when mixing.
A cup of asparagus tips is a delightful addition to a plain omelet.
Finely chopped pimento is an excellent addition to a fish outlet mixture.
Press all clothes before putting them away. This will kill all moth eggs.
Fry meat cakes in bacon fat wrapping each cake in a slice of bacon.
Serve thinly sliced ham with currant jelly mixed with chopped mint leaves.
Raisins are delicious in griddle cakes. They give them a "fruity" flavor.
A novel dessert is individual apple pieces piled high with whipped cream.

About Convicted Criminals and Their Punishment and Reformation.

THE ESCAPE OF MAURICE WHELAN.

of Warden Ebenezer Knight, in Boat House Lane. Here Whelan, evidently soon realized that an opportunity to escape presented itself, and, managing to communicate with some of his friends in the suburbs, who sympathized and co-operated with him, they made the way as easy as possible. So, one morning, while the unsuspecting Warden—good, easy man—was quietly and with a keen appetite, I presume, taking his breakfast inside the house, and Whelan working outside, the latter "silently stole away," and ran down to the foot of Quill Lake, where he found an accomplice waiting for him with a suit of plain clothes.

HE STARTS FOR PLACENTA AND GETS THERE.

Concealed by the trees, Whelan quickly threw off his prison garb, and, putting on an ordinary laborer's "outfit," at once began to work out the plan already arranged to get him clear of the country. Eluding the efforts of the police to locate him, he reached Placenta on time and was at once conveyed to an American banking schooner, the captain of which had "generously offered to take him out of the Colony." However, the search for the elusive convict was kept up for some weeks. Then the authorities abandoned all hope of recapturing him. But it was not until the early part of the following year they learnt that he had reached the United States and was comfortably settled in the city of Gloucester. Of course, he could have been extradited, but the Minister of Justice at that time, who, by the way, was an "uncompromising economist," positively refused to put the country to the expense, and the authorities to the trouble, of bringing the homicide back. This attitude of the Minister was severely criticized at the time, but right-minded people, for the most part, endorsed his action.

PUNISHMENT AND PUBLIC SENTIMENT.

The prosecution succeeded in putting up a strong case against Whelan, but public sentiment here at the time was averse to capital punishment, nor has that feeling changed very much since. As a matter of fact, we are not accustomed to it; only three executions having taken place in Newfoundland during the past half a century. It is a wonder, then, that our people dislike the idea of the death penalty being inflicted, under any circumstances? Most of us regard it as a relic of barbarism. Death is the most ancient of all penalties, and the most common in antiquity, as it still is among savages. It is the most effectual mode of getting rid of troublesome or offensive characters; and the feeling of revenge, when in active operation and unrestrained by the considerations which appeal to the intellect and conscience of civilized men, is an impulse which grows by what it feeds upon, and very easily runs to excess, nor stops short until the extreme limit of possible agony has been inflicted upon the sufferer.

OUR ONE AND ONLY METHOD OF EXECUTION.

Hanging is practically the only method of execution with which British people are acquainted. It is a very ancient method. Hanging, you remember, was hanged on the gallows which he erected for Mordcaai, Constantine the Great, practiced in France the criminal was conveyed to the gibbet seated in a cart, with his back to the horse, his confessor at his side, and his executioner before or behind him. In this order he was taken through the crowded streets. On arrival at the place of execution he was made to ascend a ladder leading up to the gallows; the executioner preceded him, mounting backwards, so as to assist the prisoner. The confessor followed. After he had confessed him upon the scaffold, three ropes were attached to the prisoner's neck, two of them knotted, and the third intended to swing him off the ladder. The confessor then descended to the ground, leaving the culprit standing on the ladder, and the executioner upon the platform above him. The latter pushed away the ladder with his foot and swung the prisoner off. In England the cart was driven off from under, and the man's neck was broken by the fall.

WHAT THE LAW REQUIRES IN ENGLAND.

In England the law now requires attention to be private; and in New- castle prison not even the official witnesses required to certify the death see the contortions of the expiring convict, whose body falls into a sort of well, out of sight of all but the executioner and the attending physician. When the physician announces that death has taken place, the witnesses come forward, identify the corpse, and sign the necessary attestation. Strangulation, as described in Homer's "Odyssey," appears to have been by hanging. In Sparta it was effected by two executioners, who pulled at the opposite ends of a rope which encircled the victim's neck.

THE LAST EXECUTION IN NEWFOUNDLAND.

The last execution in Newfoundland was carried out with as little cruelty as possible. It took place in the Penitentiary yard, the Sheriff, Doctor, officials of the prison and representatives of the city press being present. By the appointed hour all those had assembled in the Superintendent's office amidst a silence that could be felt. At 8 o'clock, sharp, he (the Superintendent) took out his watch, looked at it for a second or two, and, turning to the Sheriff, pronounced the significant words: "Mr. Sheriff, the time is up!" Then they went down stairs, met the prisoner, chaplain and guard, joined in solemn procession, and, "with measured pace and slow" filed out of the prison and proceeded to the place of execution. The enclosure now used as a wood-yard. It is not desirable that I should further recall the gruesome event by describing it here in detail. Suffice it to say that it passed off without a hitch, and, as far as could be observed, with a minimum of physical suffering on the part of the victim.

THE THEORY OF PUNISHMENT.

All students of the history of punishment have noticed (1) the extreme cruelty of punishment among savages, (2) that cruelty and ignorance exist in about the same proportion, and (3) that enlightenment, and particularly the better understanding of the nature of crime and its causes, has tended to modify the barbaric forms and to mitigate the severity of savage punishments. Gibbons truly says (ch. 14): "Whenever the offence inspires less horror than the punishment the rigor of penal laws is obliged to give way to the common feelings of mankind." The controlling idea of the savage was vengeance. Upon this basis was formulated the savage theory of punishment. Punishments were originally administered by the victim or his family. The Abyssinians delivered the murderer to the nearest relations of the victim, to be disposed of as they deemed proper. The ancient German was always allowed the right to kill his adversary. The same was true of the savages of Australia. By the code of the Visigoths it was provided that for any offence for which there was not already prescribed punishment, the poena talionis should prevail. Men were punished "in kind," according to the Hebrew maxim of "an eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth." That one who set fire to a house was himself destroyed by fire. This was also the idea of the primitive Greeks.

Dartmouth Citizen Says He Suffered For Years From Indigestion But Was Finally Restored Completely By Tanlac.

"In talking how Tanlac helped me, I feel I am only doing my public duty," declared Peter Nielsen, highly respected citizen of Dartmouth, N.S. "For nearly fifteen years I was troubled with indigestion. My food would form gas that caused me sharp pains across my chest and almost out of my breath. My kidneys also were out of order. I had a pain in the small of my back and if I stooped over I could hardly straighten up again. "Of late years my chief trouble was rheumatism. Sometimes I could not use my arms and shoulders. Then it seemed to settle in my legs. I got so bad I could not walk to business. "Finally I decided to try Tanlac and to-day I am a well man. My rheumatism is gone and I am able to walk back and forth to work. My indigestion has been overcome and I feel just fine. I think Tanlac is a wonderful medicine." Tanlac is sold by all good druggists.

CAUSES WHICH OPERATE TO PRODUCE CRIME.

Usually the causes which operate to produce crime are extrinsic and independent of the individual will. As Rondeau says: "Anger is a passing fever, jealousy a momentary delirium, the rapacity of the thief, and the swindler an abhorration of disease, and the depraved passions that drive men to sin against nature are organic imperfections." All moral evil is the result of physical evil. The murderer himself is a sick man like all other criminals. Why, and in the name of what principle, could they be punished, unless it is because they disturb the regular course of the social life and impede the normal and legitimate development of the species. On this ground society, or, better, the government, had the right to place an obstacle in the way of the fatal consequences of their acts, just as a land owner has a right to build a dyke against the flood which threatens to inundate his fields. The social power can, then, without scruple and without hesitancy, deprive malefactors of their liberty; but the moment that all crime is recognized as the natural product and logical consequence of some disease, punishment must become only medical treatment. We shall cure the thief and the vagrant by teaching him the joys of honest work. If by an exception, which is unhappily too frequent, they show themselves insensible to medical cure, they must be separated from their fellow-citizens.

In the Realms of Sport.

For the following resume of the first year—1896—of league football in Newfoundland, our Sporting Editor is indebted to the Dean of Footer enthusiasts—Mr. James A. Carmichael—who under the non-de-plume of "Onlooker," for many years following the inception of the League, was the official booster of the game, and to whose virile and facile pen is due in a great measure the success that has attended it. Many names therein appearing have crossed that bourne whence no traveller returns, while others are still with us actively participating as advisers to their respective clubs. In view of the opening of the Football Season to-night we feel sure that Onlooker's Review will be of especial interest to many of our readers recalling to some the memory of many a hard-fought contest.

FOOTBALL 26 YEARS AGO.

Now that the Season of '96 is over and the handsome Champion Cup so kindly presented to the League by G. Knowling, Esq., has been handed over to St. Andrew's Athletic Club, a brief resume of the game as played during the fixtures may prove of some little interest to the various members of the Club's engaged, as well as the ever increasing admirers of the invigorating game. To go back to the year '78 and '79 or two years before the writer arrived here, our esteemed fellow-townsmen J. C. Strang, as all footballers know, instituted the Association Game in Newfoundland, and is therefore known to-day as the Father of Association Rules in Terra Nova. I can well remember the palmy days of the old "Terra Nova" or "Gemella's" men, when we had Mc-

Farlane, Pender, Power, Gray, Whelan, Maher, Wylie, McKinley and the Giant Strang, all noted players and members of a club that had marked success, being victorious in the majority of games played at that time, principally against teams from the different warships on the station. Out of this a new Club sprang, viz., the "Natives" or "Victoria Bangers" having as a leading light "Jesse White-way." Varying success fell to their lot when—suddenly—for some years Football was non est. It has only been since '92 that it has once more sprung into prominence as one of our popular outdoor games in connection with school, college, factory and warehouse. This has resulted chiefly from the arrival of young men from the mercantile firms, and the return from college of boys belonging to Newfoundland "alikes." The present League was formed this year chiefly through the efforts of Tom McNeil, the popular Captain of the Saints and a very successful all round athlete. The League consists of 7 Clubs—a good beginning—and no doubt next season will add to its ranks, even now there are rumors of new teams in connection with various societies and Water Street stores. During the past season 20 matches were played, the total goals scored being 60—of this total the Saints have 21 to their credit, and it is worthy of note that the 3 leading Clubs on the table have 45 goals between them or 75 per cent. of the total. The highest number of goals scored in any one game was five by the Saints against the K.A.C. Interested parties after this match would take first place, and as all know they have virtually had a walk over, winning every match played. They had to encounter in this match perhaps the best combination that any

Thin Blood Like Skim Milk

JUST as milk is a perfect food, so is blood a perfect nourisher of the cells and tissues of the body. But thin, watery blood is like thin, watery milk with the cream skimmed off, and you do not look for much nourishment in skim milk. Impaired heart's action is one of the first results of a weakened condition of the blood. There is shortness of breath, the circulation of the blood is imperfect, you are easily tired and suffer from indigestion. The heart is a tireless and prodigious worker so long as it is supplied with an abundance of pure, rich blood with which to replace its own waste. To overcome this starved condition of the system it is necessary to supply to the blood in condensed and easily assimilated form the elements of nature which go directly to supply the nutritive factor in the blood. These ingredients are found in happy combination in Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. Gentle though wonderfully potent in action, this restorative treatment feeds the blood, and through the medium of the blood sends new vigor and energy to every cell and tissue of the human body. The heart's action is strengthened and the feelings of fatigue and lassitude disappear. GERALD S. DOYLE, Distributor, St. John's.

CORSETS!

W. B. and P. C.

Corsets for Ladies.

Prices from $1.50 pair.

In Superior Quality Corsets.

Though we mention this Special Value at $1.50 pair, we don't believe that you should economise on your corseting. Some people think they can, as the corset is not seen. But the corset is always apparent as being the foundation of dress. You cannot get the correct hang to your dress if you are not properly corseted.

We therefore urge you to buy

"W. B." CORSETS

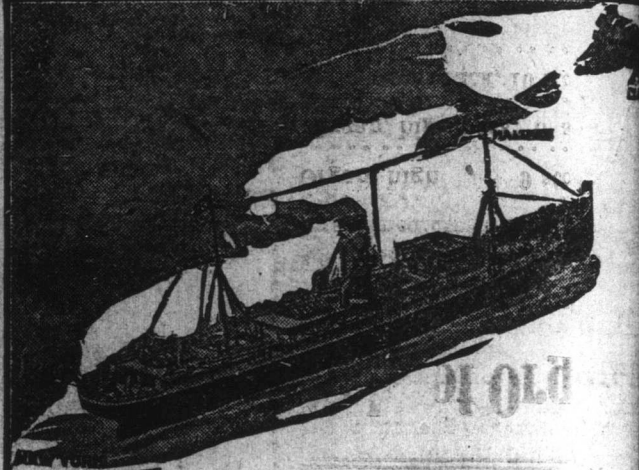

if you wish perfect corseting. These are very moderately priced at

$1.80, $2.50 & $3.25 pair
