It is understood a patent law was under the consideration of the Privy Council on Friday. There is some difference of opinion as to the mode in which the subject should be dealt with, and it is not unlikely it will be left an open question in the House.

Volunteer militia order No. 1 says the officers of the force are hereby notified that Snider-Enfield ball ammunition extra for practice may be obtained from the Militia Department by purchase in the usual way. Price for one thousand rounds is $17.70, and not less than a box, containing five hundred rounds, will be sold.

Mr. Rose has gone to Montreal, it is said, to consult his mercantile friends about entering the Ministry.

Mr. Abbott has given notice of a select committee on the subject of bankruptcy and insolvency. His object is understood to take evidence by correspondence and otherwise as to the actual working of their laws to prepare for their adaptation to the whole Dominion. A careful and impartial enquiry before this is done would be desirable.

The dissatisfaction among members of the Senate, in regard to the appointment of Mr. Cauchon for Speaker, is about to culminate in something. Notice for an address to the Imperial Parliament to change the Union Act and authorize the Senate to elect a Speaker, is, we understand, to be given in that body, on Monday next. The contest on the question will be spirited. It is said that the address will be carried.

LITERARY CELEBRITY.—The Hon Mr. McGee, in his lecture on the mental outfit of the new Dominion, omitted a name which is rapidly becoming one of celebrity—that of James DeMill, Professor of Rhetoric and History in Dalhousie College. The Professor, who is a native of St. John, N. B., has already become popular as the writer of the clever "Dodge Club" papers, which ran through Harper's Magazine lately, and were pronounced by an eminent literary authority to be the best thing of the kind which had appeared since the Pickwick papers. He is now before the public again as the author of a novel entitled "The Cord and the Creese, or the Brandon Mystery," which is commenced in the first number of a new periodical entitled Harper's Bazar, an illustrated weekly of Fashion and Household Literature, just launched in New York by the Harpers. This novel, it is said, has been read in manuscript by several competent critics, who unanimously pronounced it, in point of interest of plot, variety of adventure, and graphic delineation of character, to be fully equal to any of the novels of Wilkie Collins.

NOVA SCOTIA AND NEW BRUNSWICK MEMBERS.—It is asserted here that Dr. Tupper had told abroad in the Lower Provinces that the Reformers of Ontario were all "high protectionists," and the members of the Maritime Provinces were surprised to find, when they arrived in Ottawa, that it was the Conservatives who were protectionists, and the Reformers low-tariff or free-trade advocates.—This discovery made an impression decidedly adverse to the Ministry, upon the minds of the members from the Maritime Provinces, and proportionally favorable to the Reform party. They are also dissatisfied with the way in which the patronage of the Government has been distributed. All these things will have a strong tendency to wean the members of the Maritime Provinces from the Government.—Hamilton Times.

MR. RICHARDS.—It is confidently stated that Mr. Morrison has withdrawn all opposition to Mr. Robertson's resignation for Niagara, and that Mr. Stephen Richards is the

THE SPEAKERS FROM THE LOWER PROVINCES.—Mr. Howe in his speech on Friday night in the House of Commons disappointed none who heard him, as to the graceful and finished style of his oratory. He stepped out in front of his desk on the floor of the House, occasionally turning in opposite directions in order to address all parts of the House. From his own point of view, his speech was skillfully prepared. It was certainly more temperate and less threatening than was expected. Once or twice he was applauded by the whole House, some of the most extreme Tories clapping their hands. His hard hits at the unnecessary offices in the present Cabinet, and the distrust produced by the Government policy on the banking system were applauded by Western Reformers. Altogether, he is a great acquisition to the Dominion Parliament. Dr. Tupper, with none of Mr. Howe's grace of delivery, had very much the better of him in the argument. He is a rapid speaker, with an active intellect, and will take high rank in the Commons.

THE PRESS AT THE CAPITAL.—The Ottawa Times says the "Fourth Estate" is largely represented at Ottawa. Mr. John T. Compton, of the Halifax Express has arrived there to make arrangements for getting through daily press despatches from the capital. Confederation has forced upon our confederates of the Maritime Provinces the necessity of enlarging their connection for the gathering and transmission of news. Mr. Livingstone, of the St. John's, N. B., Telegraph, has also arrived, and several other gentlemen connected with the press of the Maritime Provinces.

MR. GALT'S RETIREMENT.—The Ottawa correspondent of the Hamilton Times says the true cause of Mr. Galt's retirement is the disagreement between the late Finance Minister and the other members of the Cabinet on the Montreal and Commercial Bank questions. It is not believed by anybody here that it was any private or merely personal considerations that induced Mr. Galt to retire. The row in the Council is said to have taken place on Sunday last, and the resignation was handed in on Monday.

THE CHURCH OF SCOTLAND AND THE COMMERCIAL BANK.—At a meeting of the Commission of the Synod of the Church of Scotland on Thursday a letter from the Moderator of the Synod was presented, suggesting the desirableness of the Parliament taking into consideration how far the interests of the church may be affected by the stoppage of the Commercial Bank. The Commission adjourned till Wednesday, for the purpose of obtaining further information.

The True System of Advertising.—One of our exchanges discusses a question of interest to business men, as to the method of advertising. The merits of circulars, bills, &c., are conceded, but it is held that the "handbill" to be conveyed about by men, or to be sent into the country, is not the best vehicle for advertising for merchants. Let them use the newspapers. The newspaper is circulated without any expense to the advertiser, which is by no means an unimportant item, as every one will testify who has any experience in distributing advertisements. Not only is the advertisement circulated by the newspapers free of all expense, but it is done more speedily and thoroughly than it can be done by the advertiser. The newspaper is already an established system—a thousand doors are open to welcome it; a thousand messengers are daily and weekly seeking the post-office to receive it; a thousand families look for its coming, and a thousand read it when it does come. Again, those who read the newspapers are the very persons the advertiser wishes to reach; they are the intelligent and well-to-do, therefore, the most likely to buy what is worth buying.

A. M. Camper publishes in the Mode the following statistics as to the average of the life in various professions: Among ecclesiastics it is 42; 40; merchants, manufacturers, soldiers and clerks. 32; barristers 29; artists, 28; schoolmasters 27 doctors 24.

Arrangements were being made at Halifax last week with a view to secure some readings by Mr. Dickens who was expected to arrive there on Monday, by the Cunard steamer.

BANK REFORM.—The Hon. Bill Flint in a letter to the Belleville Intelligencer advocates the establishment of a local bank in that town, and urges the necessity of an act of Parliament placing all our banks on an equal footing, so as to prevent one bank from making a run upon another.

Weston the pedestrian, upon his arrival Friday night at Providence, completed nearly one-third of his one hundred miles in twenty-four hours, and was ahead of his time. He is walking from Portland to Chicago, over 1200 miles, in 30 days, on a wagon of $10,000.

The Beacon says, that as Sheriff Mowbray, President of the Agricultural Society, was driving home in his buggy from the county ploughing match, last week, the horse became restive at the railway crossing, throwing the Sheriff out and breaking two ribs. A late paper says the Belleville Debating Society are to have for their next subject of discussion the following question: "Which of the two is the

In a private letter to a gentleman in Belfast, Lord Russell thus expresses himself in regard to the national system of education in Ireland: "I am happy to hear that the National Schools have been so extensively diffused in Ireland; and I should be much rejoiced if I could see a prospect of establishing the same system in England which you have in Ireland."

NORAH CUSHALEEN
HAUNTED CASTLE.

There was another standing near, and Hargrave took it. The sight of her misery—her hopeless despair—was more than his tender heart could endure, and he hoped that these would also evoke pity in the Captain's breast. He glanced towards him, but could not tell how he was affected, for he stood deep in the shadow with his back towards them, and his arms folded across his breast.

'I thought my own case a hard one,' said Hargrave, speaking in the kindest and tenderest tones, 'but yours is far worse. I am here, not on ransom as you are, but at the instigation of a villain who would force the lady I love to marry him.'

'Ah!' ejaculated his listener, looking up with an expression of painful interest on her face.

'We love each other truly and tenderly, but her father supposing that my station is a mean and poor one, is furious against me, and is in league with the scoundrel, who wishes to marry his daughter that he may secure her wealth. To remove me from their path, they had influence enough with Captain Jack, who engaged to keep me in his cave till such time as Mary—that is her name—shall be induced or forced to marry the unscrupulous scoundrel who aspires to her hand. Forced she, alas, may be, for he is capable of any violence, but induced she never shall be. I have perfect faith in her constancy; but here I am in the power of this Captain Jack, and here I must remain, it seems.'

'Why, oh why,' she murmured, 'is the power given to wicked men to cause others suffering and woe. This is a world of fearful injustice and wrong.'

'Which the next will rectify,' added Hargrave. 'Depend upon it, my dear madam, the righteous God who governs inequity will take righteous account of all wrongs and wrongdoers. They who suffer now in the cause of virtue shall in the day of eternal adjustments enjoy His smile and approbation, while high-handed oppressors and men of violence and blood shall receive the due reward of their deeds.'

'In heaven is now my only hope,' said the lady, lifting her eyes with a supplicating look. 'Every where else I have met with cruelty and desertion.'

'Pardon me, madam,' rejoined the youth, 'but your case strikes me as something singular and extraordinary.—The Captain, who, notwithstanding his outrageous conduct, is frank and communicative to me, has told me the particulars, and I confess it amazes me to find one so young and beautiful as you, the wife of a man—so old—and heartless.'

'Your wonder, sir, is very natural,' she answered in a sad tone. 'When I made that man my husband, I offered at the altar all the hope and happiness of my life. I loved another, sir, as noble, generous, true-hearted a youth as ever gained a maiden's affections. We were all in all to each other; my heart was bound up in his love, and yet I gave my hand to the grey-headed man—the miser who, rather than part with some of his treasure heaps, has left me here to suffer dishonour and death.'

'This seems inexplicable,' remarked Hargrave, who had noticed that while she was speaking the Captain started more than once, and a stifled sigh escaped him.

'It must have been so to all who did not know the latter,' she remarked, 'especially to my betrothed, who never knew the meaning of my desertion, and must have thought me the vilest and basest of beings. This was the hardest part of the terrible sacrifice. I felt that it would have lightened it could he have known the necessity that was laid upon me, or that my love for him was deep and changeless.'

Here the Captain again started violently, and his frame seemed to writhe under deep emotion.

'You loved him, and yet you married an old man,' said Hargrave, who was determined that the whole truth should come from her own lips.

'Alas, yes,' she replied. 'My lover was poor, as most of earth's noble ones are. My father was poor also, and owed a large sum of money to that miserly old man. Strangely enough he had taken a fancy for me, and proposed that if I should marry him he would cancel the debt, adding, that if I refused he would throw my father into prison, and let him rot there till he died. Need I say more. To save my father I sacrificed myself.—If I did wrong; it was in the holiest cause, and my punishment has been frightful beyond expression. My poor forsaken Henry left the place immediately, thinking, no doubt, that I was a perjured, mercenary wretch, who preferred gold to love. I have never seen or heard of him since, and, alas! I know not if he be still alive. If he be dead, we shall meet soon, and then shall he know all, and perchance, our deep, pure, inextinguishable love may be renewed.'

'Amelia' exclaimed a voice in tones of agony, and at the same moment the Captain sprang forward, dashed his cap upon the ground, and stood before her, the light of the lamp shining full upon his face.

She turned her started look upon him for a moment, passed her hand wildly over her eyes, and bent towards him with a gaze of indelible inquiry.

'Henry! she cried. 'Is it?—can it be?'

'Yes; I am Henry,' returned the Captain impulsively opening his arms, and as impulsively she flew towards him, and they were locked in an embrace which only hearts that truly love can enjoy.

WESTERN FRUIT.—We are always glad to note any fact which indicates the increase of the trade of the Western part of the Dominion with the Eastern. Such indications are exceedingly gratifying, however unimportant the article may be, which one Province requires to buy from another, as they show that trade is steadily increasing between them. We are glad to learn from the West that the considerable quantities of fruit being made there for the supply of the Nova Scotia and New Brunswick markets. One dealer has sent a consignment of apples to Newfoundland, enquiries having been sent from there as to whether Ontario could supply the fruit required. There is no reason why a large fruit trade might not be carried on with our Eastern fellow-subjects. Ontario is now one of the best apple-growing regions on the Continent, and the crop is increasing very rapidly. It is becoming more valuable every year, and if the Maritime Provinces afforded a market for our surplus yield, we might soon expect our annual sales to foot up to something handsome. The fact that local Western dealers find it profitable to ship there this fall, is very gratifying, and affords additional evidence that trade is steadily increasing between the different parts of our country.

RAPID PRINTING.—A gentleman writing from Paris says.—Rapidly of printing has been carried on in France to a degree far exceeding anything which has yet been accomplished in machine work, and outstripping the famous American machines, which were supposed to have realized everything-attainable in the way of speed. M. Maroni has just put up in the new printing offices of the Petit Journal (a half-penny daily paper) a machine of his invention, which prints 600 copies a minute. Four of these powerful machines turn out 144,000 copies an hour, the whole impression being 446,000 daily.

JUAREZ.—Juarez was at one time an exile in the United States. This was between the years 1852 and 1855, when owing to the downfall of Comonfort, through the intrigues of Santa Anna, he voluntarily exiled himself, and took up his residence in the city of New Orleans, where he conducted a small manufactory of cigars. During his sojourn there he employed himself in the diligent study of our laws and our institutions; and he returned to Mexico with his mind well stored with sound republican ideas. Although an Indian, he is free from the vices of the race to which he belongs. He is described as a small man with all the physical characteristics of the aborigines; of mild, gentlemanly, and kind manners, and by no means harsh, cruel, or vindictive.

MARRIED FOR FUN.—The Detroit Free Press narrates that a few evenings since, a gay young mechanic at a party bantered a young damsel upon the marriage ceremony, and asked her to try the effect of it "just for fun." They at once proceeded to a clergyman, who tied the knot in downright earnest, and the parties awoke to a realization of the fact that they were man and wife. Legal advice but confirmed the ceremony. On being appealed to by the girl's friends, he said that he didn't mean to do any harm, and pleaded the school-boy's defence—"the darned thing had whistled itself." An action for divorce has commenced.

DUCK HUNTING.—A small party, for pleasure and sport, were at Shoal Lake for a few days last week, and bagged the comfortable number of two hundred and fifty ducks, besides a goodly number of geese. The printer-boys of this office were also out, and with a printer's skill brought in fifty ducks and a few geese, which unexpected supply of provisions enables us to continue the publication of the Nor-West for the season.

INDIA & CHINA TEA CO'Y.
Home Depot at London and Liverpool.
Canada Dept., 23 Hospital Street, Montreal.

THE India and China Tea Company beg to call the attention of the Canadian community to their directly imported Teas, which for PURITY and EXCELLENCE will be found unequalled.

The Company have made arrangements whereby they have secured the entire produce of some of the best plantations in Assam and on the slopes of the Himalayas, and by a judicious blending of these magnificent Teas with the best varieties of China produce, they are enabled to offer to the public Tea of quality and flavour hitherto unknown to the general consumer. These Teas are in high favour in England and France, and a single trial will prove their superiority.

The Company supply two qualities only, either Black, Green or Mixed. Their Black Teas will be found to possess great briskness and flavour, combined with colour and strength, and to be entirely different to the flat and rapid article usually sold as Black Tea; while their Green Teas are altogether free from the deleterious mineral powder so commonly used for coloring the leaf.

PRICES: Rich, full-flavoured Tea, for family use a real genuine and fine article 70 cents per lb. Finest quality procurable, one dollar per lb.

The above can be had either Black, Green or Mixed.
To be had in packets of Quarter Pound (one lb. and upwards), or in tin canisters of 5 lbs. and upwards. From the Company's Agents in all the chief towns of Canada.—N.B.—The packages are lined with tin foil paper, and the Tea will consequently retain its flavour any length of time.

OSSEIVE.—Any person who has the Company's trade-mark, which will show the genuine, is invited to send for a sample of the Tea.
