School Examination.

The examination of the school in section No. 4, Guelph township, took place on Thursday last. The occasion was of more than ordinary importance from the fact that the teacher, Mr. Black, who enjoys a popularity more universal than most men in similar positions, was about to resign. The attendance of scholars was small, as might be expected at this season of the year, but there more visitors than generally lend their countenance to than generally lend their countenance to an examination. The knowledge of varian examination. The knowledge of various classes in different subjects was tested thoroughly, and the answers demonstrated the diligence of the children, and the snergy and efficiency of the teacher. At the close a copy of Webster's Dictionary Unabridged, and a copy of Scott's poetical works were presented to Mr. Black by the pupils, together with the following address, which was read by Miss Ella Kirkland. The presentation was made by Miss Isabella Hood.

To Mr. John Black: Dear Sir,-We, your affectionate pupils, beg to assure you of our great sorrow at your departure from amongst us after having for so long a time performed the arduous duties of instructor to us. Be assured you have our most earnest pray-ers for your success in the calling to which you may henceforth devote your energies. We would also beg you to accept these books from us as a small token of affection and appreciation of your uniform kindness to us, and receive, dear teacher, at the same time the assurance of our gratitude and esteem.

Mr. Black replied as follows: DEAR PUPILS :- This is but one of the many ways of expressing that affection and respect which you have ever shown. Your dutiful conduct ever manifested towards myself, and your kindness towards each other have contributed much to make the hours I have spent among you happy, and to give me that pleasure which I have always found in teaching you. It is my earnest hope that my labours amongst you may have been blessed in storing your minds with useful information, and making such impres-sions on your character as shall make you loved and respected in after life by all all God's works, to love and believe in him as the All-Wise and All-Good, and Chicago has given over all respects for the Sabbath, and 10,000 men are at work friendsbips and no priting. and I shall guarantée there will be no foul play used; 'he then said he was going to the station to meet them; he came back by and bye, and said the parties had got into the Wellington hotel to see if the parties had got into the Wellington hotel to see if the parties had arrived; brought back word that they had got out of the 'bus before it arrived at the hotel; that he had met them by chance opposite Oakes' hotel—that her husband was with Stevens; they went into Oakes', her husband treating; defendant took a cigar; here Mr. Stevens paid him $3.00 for bringing her to Mr Murphy's; plaintiff saked him who was attending the bar when her husband treated; he said, Mr Oakes' boy; she then asked Mrs. Murphy to send down to Mr Oakes' and see if they were there; the messenger came back with word that neither Hoover nor her husband had been there that night. Next morning plaintiff went to Oakes' hotel and inquired of the landlord's son if they had been there that night; she then went to defendant and told him what Mr Oakes' boy had said; defendant replied that the parties told him to tell her that if she was so stiff as not to come out to the Western station to oblige them, she might go to h—l; she said ane would see more about it, and then left.

This concluded the evidence, when the magistrate summed up briefly, imposing a fine on the defendant of $10 and $4.65 costs, which he declined paying on the ground that he would appeal, which he according did. So that the case will come up again at the Quarter Sessions. The scene in court baffies desoribetion. The room was crowded to its utmost capacity and occasionally a babble of tongues would bellow forth "Lynch him," others more merciful would say "tar and feather him, and ride him on a "ail" which threats, had it not been for the timely influence of Mr. Strange would most assuredly have been put. In force. The defendant was harrassed in various ways, and at last, finding that things were assuraing a serious aspect, he jumped upon a bench exclaiming that he was in British Dominions and claimed the Queen's protection; then his manly flood-gates of nature gave way, and it was a pitable sight indeed to see him blubberwas in British Dominions and claimed the Queen's protection; then his manly food-gates of nature gave way, and it was a pitable sight indeed to see him blubber-ing out like a little school boy. Parties lay in wait for him during the night but he wisely concluded upon staying in Rockwood till morning, when he left, and as I am told safely arrived in Guelph.

In America, and also abroad, the tendency of literary manifestations, for several years past, has been towards condensation. The New York Commercial Advertiser says that it is notably the case in the newspaper press, daily and weekly, and it is also displaying itself in magazine literature. The average length of articles has been materially reduced. The newspaper, with short, pungent paragraphs, in which the intelligence that is to be given is boiled down into the fewest possible words, is always preferred to one which stretches its articles out into columns of useless adjectives. People who want to find out what is going on, prefer to do it in as short a time as possible, and from a sheet filled with scores of condensed paragraphs they can learn much more than if the space is devoted to a small number of lengthy articles.

In Louisians it is most likely that the rebets will repudiate the new government and set up another. By one mail this week letters were received giving accounts of over 40 murders, while all over the South the slumbering embers of discord are rapidly being fanned into finne by Seymour and Blair orators, and the conduct of the President in refusing to recognize the new State Governments as valid.

other refineries throughout the Dominion for the same purpose, and after satisfying himself as to the quantity on hand, made a bid for the whole. After assuring refiners that his object was simply to raise the price from its present low figure to one more remunerative to them, and this being the only possible way to bring about such a desideratum, he succeeded in his purpose, and we believe has purchased or leased some fifty-two oil re-fineries throughout the Province, for a term of four months, until the 1st of December next, as well as the entire stock of oil at each. In the meantime, the refiners are bound not to manufacture, unless for export; and the whole available stock of oil. the whole available stock of oil in Canada has thus become the property of one man. The price, in conse quence, will be raised, probably from 9c to 15c to 25c to 30c per gallon, wholesale, and from 20c to 25c to 50c to 75c, or perhaps even higher, retail. Canada Clothing Store Who but a Yankee would have ever thought of such a speculation; how Mr. Higgins must laugh at the gullibility of Canadians. Further, while Mr. Higgins holds all the refined oil, and prevents the refiners from manu facturing until December, he in the meantime is about to purchase up all the crude stuff at the wells, and elsewhere, which, during the next four months, he will store away, and con-sumers will be left entirely at his mercy for their supplies. Dealers should be cautious not to invest too largely in oil: this unique monopoly cannot remain permanent, and by the end of December, unless a similar arrangement is entered into by Mr. Higgins and the proprietors of the refineries, the article will speedily again come down to reasonable rates. We await with interest the next Yankee-Canadian speculation. This monopoly of Mr. Higgins takes effect from the 1st of August.

THE FAKIR.—There was a large house last night to greet the second appearance of the Fakir of Vishnu. The programme as promised, was entirely new, and some clever tricks were performed. Gifts were distributed as on the preceding night, and lucky ones went home congratulating themselves. It was rather amusing to see the anxiety with which the envelopes that were handed to every one at the door were opened in order to ascertain whether they contained blanks or numbers. If the former were bound the countenance of the unlucky individual became as blank as the card, while the rpectation of being put in possession of the leading or some other prize lighted up the features of those who found numers. The principal prize announced for onight is a walnut-cased dressing buto night is a walnut-cased dressing bureau and mirror. A number of gifts and tend.

ert lay a long while waiting and watch the return of his gentle nurse, bu she did not come.

Soon after she had left him he had heard sundry noises without, as if a number of horsemen were surrounding the building.—
Then voices, and a word of command passed for some quick movement. Clatter ensued; he raised himself in the bed excitedly to listen, and a strick, subdued by distance, seemed to rise up to his ears and make his flesh creen.

Greep.

It was the cry of a woman in sore distress, and the big bound of his heart, the wild throbbing of his pulse, told him that it was Mary Douglas who needed help.

From what !—from whom?

He sprang from the couch, but the instant his feet touched the earthen floor his head swam, his eyes became dazed, he reeled and fell.

his feet touched the earthen floor his head swam, his eyes became dazed, he reeled and fell.

There was a sudden stillness, as it seemed to him—a stillness so strange that, as he lay upon the floor, he began to doubt that the peculiar sound which had disturbed him was a mere trick of his fevered brain. He was perfectly conscious of everything in the chamber, even to the flickering of the cruzie. The moment his head rested upon the ground all the dizziness had left him, and he listened calmly for some corroborative after sound of the singular occurrence he had fancied going forward outside. But he heard nothing, and he became half convinced that he had been dreaming.

So he crawled back to his couch and lay a long while watching and waiting for the return of lady Mary.

He could form no idea of the length of time he had waited, he could only perceive that the light was burning dimly and would soon expire; he only knew that the gloomy thoughts and fears that were flitting through his mind were rapidly bringing back the fever of his blood.

The door creaked upon its hinges, and the haggard face, (with downcast eyelids) of Kirsty Hyslop appeared.

He regarded this queer vision with an odd feeling of amazement. He had expected to see the bonny face of Mary Douglas, and the one he saw in its stead appeared to be anything but a happy substitute.

"Would ye like anything?" questioned the woman in a whispering voice.

"No—I—where is—she?"

"How?—she was here only a little while gone?"

"Four hours syne—ay; but she has gone awas and pinch be at Kelso by this time."

Whilst thou was hence, all dead in dole did lie;
The woods were heard to waile full many a sig
And all their brids with silence to complaine.
The fields with faded flowers did seem to meura
And all their flocks from feeding to refraine;
The running waters went for thy return,
And all their fish with langour did lament.
And now, both woods and fields and flowers review.

The hue and cry rang loudly through the land from Berwick to John O'Groat's. Sir Walter Spens, the King's suspected assassin, lived, and had been seen at Setkirk. The punishment of death was proclaimed against all who gave him shelter. For three weeks the wardens of the Border lands, the sheriffs of every shire, the provost and ballies of every town, the people and the soldiers everywhere on the alert. Everybody suspected everybody of being the traitor, and several unfortunate fellows were laid in the tolbooth under the suspicion of being Spens himself, or in aiding him in his evasion of justice.

himself, or in aiding him in his evasion of justice.

But in the end they were released, and as the excitement began gradually to fade under light of other events, it was admitted that the outlaw had cunningly baffled all pursuit. Some doubted the truth of the report that he had been seen alive, only they were puzzled to account for the fact that he had carried off his wife when she had been about to be married to some one in Selkirk Chanel.

ported in Ottawa that the Cabinet intend to throw the whole responsibility of the selection of the North Shore or Robinson route of the Intercolonial Raflway on the Imperial Government. This is a very good dodge. It has not, however, been shown that the Imperial Government has exercised the least control over the surveys made by the Canadian Government during the past year. The Imperial Gov ented to the appointment of Mr. Sandford Fleming to conduct the but there their interference ceased. EXCITEMENT OF THE POPE.—The correspondent of the Pall Mall Gazette writing from Rome says: For some weeks past the Pope has been in a state of great excitement. He adopts the most rigorous measures against all who are suspected of liberal views, and alternating, and even banishing, his friends. He seems to be laboring under a sort of mania, which not only keeps up a panic in his household, but causes uneasiness to his physicians. Among those who have lately fallen under his displeasure is Monsignor Riccardt, Archbishop of Turin. I have already informed you that this prelate on the occasion of the marriage of Prince Humbert, announced at Turin a plenary indulgence was repudiated in the Giornale di Roms. The Pope has followed up this step by summoning the Archbishop to Rome to answer for his conduct, and we shall, perhaps, have another Andrea retraction. The Holy Father is determined to free himself from all association with the marriage of the hereditary Prince of Italy.

The London papers mention as a remarkable fact that Gaut. Turner, of the marriage of the hereditary Prince of Italy.

The London papers mention as a remarkable fact that Capt. Turner, of the 3rd Manchester Volunteers, made twelve consecutive bull's eyes, at 200 yards, a few days since at Wimbledon.

Employment of Teachers.

Employment of Teachers.

We find the following remarks on the above subject in the Bruce Reporter, and commend them to the serious consideration of School Trustees:—There is something radically wrong in the constant change of Teachers that is taking place in almost every school section in the province. Those who have lived in Great Britain or Ireland, know how strikingly it contrests with the permanency of the situations of teachers in those countries. How often this circumstance is deplored by parents as well as teachers; and yet he evil continues. As matters stand, no eacher can connt on holding his situation longer than a year, however efficient he may be. Hence, as a general thing, eachers make their profession a stepping-tone to some other calling, and after a few years abandon it to other youthful spirants, who in turn follow their footteps, just at the time when they begin cally to know how to discharge aright he responsible duties imposed on them. So long as this state of things continues, he cause of education will be retarded; and, instead of schools being wrought up to the bighest state of efficiency by teachers of long-experience and thorough fasiliarity with their work, they will be sit to the management of novitiates purning their calling more from necessity han choice, and longing for the day hen something permanent shall turn up and rid them of the capticious uncertaines of scholastic employment. Instead of engaging a teacher year by year, let im receive his appointment with the uncerstanding that he shall retain it so long as he gives satisfaction and that he shall to be dismisced, nor relinquish his post, ithout at least three months' previous otice.
