WAR SUMMARY

THE DAY'S EVENTS REVIEWED

NEWS of Roumania's entry into the war overshadows in importance all other recent developments. Not only among the entente powers, but among neutral nations, Roumania's declaration of war upon Austria is hailed as the beginning of the end, the unmistakable handwriting on the wall for the central powers.

To what extent will Roumania's participation aid the allies? In the first place, it is estimated that she can throw about 900,000 men into the field. More than 600,000 men are already mobilized and their fighting qualities can be accepted without question.

Roumania's geographical position which, after all, is of prime importance to the allies. Not only is the enemy called on to defend another six-hundred mile stretch of border, but Russian troops, instead of having to travel several thousand miles to reach the Saloniki front, will be able to strike at the Bulgarian rear after a journey of barely 24 hours.

Roumania's preparedness to strike has already been shown. Her advance guards were in a clash with Austro-Hungarians in the mountain passes of Transylvania on Sunday night.

It appears that Roumania's first objectives are the two important Transylvania cities of Kronstadt and Hermannstadt, near the southern border of Hungary.

The fact that Roumanians composed a large portion of

ROUMANIA CHARGES BREAKING OF FAITH

Germany and Austria Disregarded Letter and Spirit of Agreement.

WOULD SHORTEN WAR

Roumania Also Believes Her Course Will Help Territorial Aspirations.

PARIS, Aug. 28, 4 p.m.—La Liberté has received from Geneva a summary of the Roumanian declaration of war, as telegraphed from Vienna. It is a long document, in which Roumania sets forth her grievances.

THE HAGUE, via London, Aug. 28.—The Amsterdam bourse, where there is a big market for Roumanian oil stocks and which has long served as a barometer of the Balkan situation, had discounted Roumania's participation in the war and the quotation of all the oil stocks was only slightly lower today.

And when Mr. Asquith spoke about proper punishment for the men who were the creators of the system which justified the murder of Capt. Fryatt, he meant exactly what he said; and since Mr. Asquith spoke, The London Times has come out and said that there must be a great court of the allies established for the trial of those who brought on this war, and we believe that the triumph of the allies means that a great court will be created for the trial of at least the Kaiser, the crown prince, the chief of staff of the German forces, and the Chancellor of Germany.

ROUMANIANS STRIKE AT FOE ON BORDER OF TRANSYLVANIA

GREECE SWINGING TO ALLIES GERMANY FACES BITTER TRUTH

Berlin Paper Warns That Greek Government Will Be Swayed by Action of Roumania.

BERLIN, via London, Aug. 28.—Commenting on the appearance of Roumania in the war, The Lokal-Anzeiger says: "We must expect that the Greek army will also influence the decisions of the Greek Government. Foreign troops are now standing on Greek soil. It is not easy to recall to the colors under threatening guns an army just sent home."

It is the End of Freedom or the End of Kaiserism.

The war goes better for us day after day, and worse and worse for the enemy, and absolutely discouraging for the enemy hind legs of the enemy fighting under the flag of Austria and of Turkey.

Roumania has joined the allies: Serbia is already in the field, and these two countries will be able to attack both Austria and Bulgaria; and nobody has any sympathy for Bulgaria after the selfish war in which she has dated.

Russia and Roumania, with the assistance of Serbia, may be able to force the Turks out of Europe and across the sea and straits into Asia Minor, and may God speed that day. And Austria and Hungary are more and more at the mercy of Russia, Roumania, Serbia, and Italy.

And any day may see a movement on the part of Holland in the west, and certainly more circumspet conduct on the part of the three Scandinavian countries, Denmark, Norway and Sweden, that have been a source of supply for the hard-pressed German states.

The war grows more impressive as it advances. Everyone admits now, as they must admit, that no temporary peace will satisfy the allies. If we are to have victory, and it looks very much like that now, then it must be complete victory.

It is idle therefore of Germany to think how she can restore her trade and reorganize her shipping and commerce with the rest of the world. Not for one moment will any such settlement be considered until the allies have been absolutely unshakably subdued, recognized and put on their good behavior thereafter.

It will take some time longer to make even the German people think this, because they have been so far misled by their own military leaders and public men. Their universities, their scholars and thinkers, their manufacturing organizations, their trade organizations, and even their religious organizations have been demoralized and degenerated at the bidding of the Kaiser and his immediate associates; and until the whole German people are brought to say this and made to feel it, there cannot be anything else but war and extermination for them.

There is only one other way in which this great trial of these men can be avoided and that is by the German people, by a far-reaching revolution, destroying their own autocratic and despotic military rule by modern democratic government. Never again will the modern world trifle with men after the havoc they have wrought and the millions of lives they have sacrificed, and the immeasurable suffering they have imposed upon mankind throughout Europe. There can be no forgiveness for such crimes; and it is now ahead of us all.

Germany Declares War Upon Roumania Following Lateral's Break With Austria

Invaders of Transylvania Moving Toward Cities of Kronstadt and Hermannstadt.

LONDON, Aug. 28.—Following immediately upon the heels of the declaration of war against Austria-Hungary on Saturday night, Roumanian forces have begun the invasion of Transylvania. A Vienna despatch received here tonight reports officially that the first clashes between troops of Roumania and the central powers occurred last night, in southeastern and eastern frontier passes of Hungary.

The attacks by the Roumanians are described in the statement as "treacherous." Roumanian prisoners were taken, it is asserted. Advance guards of the two forces came into contact at Kothenthurm Pass, 15 miles south of Hermannstadt, Transylvania, and in the passes south of Kronstadt (Brasao), the statement adds.

Kronstadt and Hermannstadt, toward which the Austrian official communication indicates the Roumanians are making their first efforts at an advance, are two of the most important cities in Transylvania, and are near the southern border of Hungary, the former about six miles from the Roumanian frontier and the latter about 15 miles from the frontier. Kronstadt is 75 miles east-southeast of Hermannstadt.

The City of Kronstadt is the most important commercial and manufacturing centre of Transylvania. It has a population of approximately 41,000. Hermannstadt is a former capital of Transylvania, and lies near the River Zibin, a population of 33,000. Roumanians make up a large part of the population of both cities.

The first announcement of Roumanian's declaration of war, on Austria-Hungary came from Berlin today as follows: "The Roumanian Government yesterday evening declared war on Austria-Hungary."

THE OLD CHAMPIONS WIDELY SCATTERED

Circle the Globe, You'll Find Them Nearly Everywhere.

BROOKLYN, Aug. 28.—Where are the stars of yesterday? What has become of the old champions who made history on the cinder path and the athletic field? Circle the globe, and you'll find them scattered here and there. Many have succeeded in the commercial world, while others have failed. Flokie Fortuna has played many pranks with the old guard, Johnny Owens, the first amateur to run 100 yards in 9.4 seconds, is one of the country's foremost automobile builders, with headquarters in Detroit and New York. Bernie Waters, once king of sprinters, is a coach. Judge Hugh Baxter, famous jumper, sits on a New York beach. Millenia, Hugh Baxter, former pole vault record holder, keeps a close eye on his extensive quarry and railroad interests in Vermont. Bartov S. Weeks, the old Mercury Four sprinter, is a supreme court justice. Wendell Baker and Harry Brooks, sprinters, are officials of one of the big telephone companies in the east. Martin Sheridan, the greatest all-around man of them all, is a detective sergeant in the police department. Charles McIvor, the old 100-yard title-holder, owns the famous Buena Vista vineyards in California. Charley Stage, the former 100 and 200-yard champion, and later an umpire in the National League, is a lawyer in Cleveland. Dan Kelly, the former sprinter, is in business in Portland, Ore. Warren Schutt, famous Cornell distance runner, is a contractor in Chicago. Mel Sheppard holds a job in the customs service, and John Finnan is a farmer in Ireland.

DOG PIES FOR GERMANS.

Germany possessed, before the war 20,000,000 head of oxen. This was reduced to 15,000,000 in 1915, and now the total is only about 8,000,000. Many towns have had to resort to eating dog and horse, especially since the discovery was made that neither Bulgaria nor Turkey has any further food to spare. A favorite dish served at restaurants is horse steak with bean gravy. Dog pie is principally served to farm servants engaged in mending military roads. The shooting of young rooks has been forbidden, probably because of the scarcity of insectivorous birds, and the fears of the farmers of damages from grubs.

A GERMAN SCAPEGOAT.

Herr Clemens Delbrueck, who a few weeks ago was exiled in the reichstag for his mastery organization of the food supplies of Germany, has been invited to resign from his position. The official reason ascribed for the step is the state of his health. As he is one of the most robust ministers of state, the real cause is naturally the indignation of the people at the scarcity and dearness of food throughout the country.

AIR COLDEST OVER EQUATOR.

Winds blow not merely along the surface of the earth, but upward and downward throughout the atmosphere. They whirl about in all directions, says The New York World. So it is impossible to construct a weather chart that will really show the directions of the winds, for such a chart would have to be in three dimensions. Prof. Alexander MacRae of Harvard, in an article in The Geographical Review, describes some of the recent experiments in the upper air performed by sounding balloons. The atmosphere has, roughly, two layers, the lower called the troposphere, and the upper, the stratosphere. The strongest winds are found just below the stratosphere, and it would seem that pressure changes originate in the region.

CORPS OF GUIDES HAS GOOD TIMES

Hold Week-End Bivouacs During the Summer and Enjoy Training.

DUTIES INTERESTING At Last Camp Whole Party Awakened by Scouts Who Tried Sentries.

Following the course of training held at the Toronto Armories during the winter months, the Corps of Guides, officially known as Mounted Company No. 2, Detachment, Corps of Guides, spends the summer in putting into practical use the knowledge so acquired. During the present season, in addition to spending the first two weeks in map-making, field sketching, signalling and reconnaissance work, two week-end bivouacs have been held in the vicinity of York Mills.

The officers, N. C. O.'s and men usually meet at the armories early on Saturday afternoon and march to the camp, preceded by the quartermaster-sergeant, his fatigue and supplies. Arriving at the site of bivouac, the various fatigues are told off and proceed with the work of getting the supper ready, the tents pitched and the camp in readiness for the night. After supper the sentry reliefs are told off, the first guard mounted at sunset and the evening spent in story and song around the camp fire. The first post was sounded by the company's trumpeter at 8.45, followed by the last post at 10 o'clock and "Lights out" at 10.05.

At the last bivouac the camp settled down as usual; everything was still save the muffled tread of the sentries on their beats, and even the owls and night hawks, so quiet in that beautiful district took no heed of the unusual intrusion into their haunts. At 2 a. m. the alarm was broken by the sharp challenge of the sentry on No. 2 beat, quickly followed by the "alarm." In a few seconds the men were all standing to at the alarm post, wondering what thoughtless enemy had so rudely broken their slumbers. On inquiry it was found that a party consisting of two N. C. O.'s and several men had been subjected their training as scouts to a test; had successfully completed the same and were being sent back to the armories. The N. C. O. who had caused the alarm by stepping on a dry twig was quickly captured by sentry No. 2 and marched to the guard tent for punishment. After a short talk by Lieut. Jordan, the acting C. O., on the duties of sentries, the men turned in and slept undisturbed until roused by the reveille at 5.30. Physical exercise was taken part in by everyone for half an hour and a substantial breakfast served by the sergeant cook and his fatigue at 7 o'clock.

Activities of the Day. The day was spent in signalling, distance judging, determining the rate at which streams flow, sketching and plane table surveying, appropriately interspersed with the study of the day and by the midday meal. Although the day was very warm, the discomfort was offset and the energy of the men, who were determined to get the greatest benefit possible in the short time at their disposal. The tents and camp were packed up at 4.30 and supper, preceded by a swim in the nearby creek, served at 4.30. The last parade was dismissed shortly after and the party broke up to return home.

The work of the Corps of Guides covers a wide field of military training which consists of surveying, map-making, map-enlarging, sketching, signalling, riding and scout training. In addition the regular drill and camp nights is followed by practical work and lectures. Examinations are held regularly which are based on the practical work, testing the men's ability to read military text books which all members of the corps are required to do.

Although the Guides do not go to the front as such, their work is carried on by the cyclists, who receive the same training and a great number of whom are recruited from the Guides. That the training received in the Corps is of practical value is indicated by the appointment of five officers to various headquarters staffs as intelligence officers: Lt.-Col. C. H. Mitchell, in charge of the First Canadian Contingent in France; Major Fred Howland, acting as general staff officer in charge of training at Calgary; Lieut. C. F. Coville, in charge of training at the camp, and Lieut. F. Hagerman, in a similar capacity at Niagara Training Camp. The Corps has room for a few men who are preparing to go overseas and to whom the work of the Guides appears as well as to those who cannot enlist for active service but prefer to be called upon them to undertake military training during their spare time at home. Those joining the corps sign up for three years and are subject to call for home service only. Attendance is required at the regularly weekly parades; the work of the Corps must be kept pace with; the examinations must be taken regularly and a certain percentage of marks attained. Failure to attend parades or to take the examinations, without leave, renders one liable to discharge. As most of the men and officers are in business in the city in commercial or professional life it is impossible to attend all parades and when this is the case leave may be obtained from the troop sergeant upon application.

In joining the corps five weeks are spent in the recruit class after which an examination must be passed before the recruit is drafted into the Corps. His opportunity, interest and ability are of great importance and he who is drafted into the Royal School of Cavalry for sergeant's trainees. All the officers of the Corps have taken training after having served in the ranks.

COL. GEORGE M. GILES IS DEAD AT PLYMOUTH

Gave Himself, His Son and Home to Empire When War Broke. Special to The Toronto World. KINGSFORD, Aug. 28.—Word was received today of the death, at Plymouth, England, of Lt.-Col. George Michael Giles, who offered his services when war was declared. Lt.-Col. Giles, who was about 60 years of age, retired some years ago from the imperial army, had held important medical posts in South Africa, India and Egypt. It was the intention of the British war office to send him back to India, but when he arrived in England, in April, 1915, he was found physically unfit for service and was made superintendent of one of the military hospitals in England, which position he filled until failing health compelled him to retire. Col. Giles not only gave himself and his son to the service, but offered his beautiful residence as a home for convalescents. So anxious was Col. and Mrs. Giles to have their home accepted that they offered it free of charge, and when the militia department hesitated at building a drain from Calderwood to the city sewer on Pembroke street, at an estimated cost of $800, they signified their willingness to build it at their own expense.

CHARGE AT MONS.

Sunday, Aug. 28, 1916. Not a murmur was heard, not a word of complaint. When the order for charge was given: Not a soldier but knew his life was at stake. And the rank and file would be given. Each thought of his home, of his wife, and of his child. For his safety most fervently prayed: Each feared the dangers confronting them now. And the Reaper's death-toll must be paid. 'Midst the roar of the cannon and flaring of lights they rushed on towards the foe; The bullets whizzed and the shrapnel shrieked, And man after man was laid low.

The ranks were reduced, the object was to hold on. No order to retire was heard; Still onward they pressed—aye close to the foe. "Fix bayonets! Steady, men!" was the word. Then bayonets clashed, the struggle was fierce. And thousands escumbed in the fight; When the carnage ceased and the mist rolled away. We were dazed—then wept at the sight. Thus the foe was checked in its mad career. And it halted as if in a trance; The English and French held the line that day. And "Mons" saved the country for France.

We thought of the victory we had won 'Midst the awful toll of life; We thought of our country and our homes. And longed for an end of this strife. The true tale will be told in after years. When the heat of the strife is over: How the deeds of this day and the night will be remembered. Kept Liberty safe on our shores. —J. B. Rittenhouse.

RECIPROcity.

"You don't feel any personal resentment toward the man who defeated you?" "No," replied the statesman. "I'm too broad-minded for that, of course. It's a matter of fact, you are doubtless grateful to him for allowing you to leave behind the cares of public office and devote yourself to more lucrative private business."

OUCH!

It was 3 a.m., and Mrs. Gabb was awakened by her daughter, who stood by the bed whispering in her nightgown. "I heard a funny noise and I can't sleep. I think there is a man in the house."

ARTILLERY CAMPS VERY INTERESTING

Day Spent at Petawawa Entirely Different to One at Camp Borden.

ACTIVITY IS PASSWORD Many Breaks in Routine Make Time Go Quickly for Young Soldiers.

BY HARRY H. JOHNSON. A day spent at Petawawa, Canada's great artillery training camp, is widely different from one spent in an infantry camp. The training ground is at the junction of the Petawawa and Ottawa rivers and is one of the most beautiful spots in the country. It is here that artillery men from the whole Dominion are trained for the work of this most important branch of service at the front.

An ordinary day starts at 5.15 with reveille. After the men are up they are served with beef tea and bread, falling in at half past five for roll call and the reading of the orders of the day. Stables are from six to seven-thirty, during which time the horses are fed, watered and groomed and are given a battery at Petawawa, which is about half the number required by a battery on service at the front. The hour after stables is spent by the men in washing up, breakfasting and preparing for parade at 8.30. Each brigade has its own plan of action and each battery carries out its part of the scheme, making its own reconnaissance, going into action and retiring. Sometimes it is required to fire 75 rounds of live shell and be back in 30 minutes of an hour.

Sometimes conditions approximate too nearly those at the front. One Toronto battery recently passed close to the firing point of another battery already in action and a live shrapnel shell exploded a short distance away. The officer in command, a man who has already served at front, looked backward for a moment, then said: "Pretty warm here! Prepare to retire."

DOCTOR TELLS HOW TO STRENGTHEN EYESIGHT

50 per cent in One Week's Time in Many Instances

A Free Prescription You Can Have Filled and Use at Home. Philadelphia, Pa. Do you wear glasses? Are you a victim of eye strain or other eye weakness? If so, you will be glad to know that according to Dr. Lewis there is real hope for you. Many whose eyes were failing say they have had their eyes restored through the principle of this wonderful free prescription. One man says after trying it: "I was almost blind; I could not see to read at all. Now I can read everything without any glasses and my eyes do not water any more. At night they would pain dreadfully; now they feel like the best. It was like a miracle to me." A lady who used it says: "The atmosphere seemed hazy with or without glasses, but after using this prescription for fifteen days everything seems clear. I can even read the print without glasses. It is believed that thousands who wear glasses can now discard them in a reasonable time and multitudes more will be able to strengthen their eyes so as to be spared the trouble and expense of ever getting glasses. Eye troubles of many descriptions may be wonderfully benefited by following the simple rules. Here is the prescription to an active drug store and get a bottle of Non-Opte tablets. Drop one Non-Opte tablet in a fourth of a glass of water and allow it to dissolve. With this liquid bathe the eyes two to four times daily. You should notice your eyes clear up perceptibly right from the start and inflammation will quickly disappear. If your eyes are bothering you, even a little, take steps to save them now before it is too late. Many hopelessly blind might have been saved if they had cared for their eyes in time.

Notes: Another prominent Physician to whom the above article was submitted, said: "Non-Opte is a very remarkable remedy. The countless testimonies are well known to millions of eye specialists and are well proved by them. The medicine guarantees it to strengthen eyes 50 per cent in one week's time in many instances or refund the money. It can be obtained from any good druggist and is one of the very best preparations for the eyes. It is sold for regular use in almost every family. Dr. Tamblin sells it."
