Town Council in Special Session

Mayor McGee Announces That Manufacturing Concern That Will Employ One Hundred Men, are Favorably Impressed with St. George as Location for Large Plant. The Council Appoint Committee to Meet Representative of the Company

There was a very interesting meeting of the Town Council Monday evening, when matters of considerable moment to the residents were dealt with.

The mayor stated that he had been in communication with a concern engaged in the manufacture of edge tools, who were favorably impressed with St. George as a location for a large manufacturing plant for the production of their goods.

The members of the council were all anxious to have an industry come here that would add to the prosperity of the town.

Alderman Meeting spoke at some length on the industries of the town, and hoped that the move now on these industries would be to the benefit of the town.

The Execution of Sir Walter Raleigh

No more pathetic ending to a noble career is set forth in historic records than that of Sir Walter Raleigh, the brilliant courtier and accomplished statesman and soldier who was the darling of queen and people during Elizabeth's reign.

In 1616 he was released from prison expressly to make preparation for an expedition to the Orinoco in search of a gold mine which he maintained was situated there.

He arrived at Plymouth on the 21st of June, 1618, in his ship, the Destiny, and alone and utterly cast down, he was brought up to London by order of James to be examined by a commission.

Most solemnly and with convincing eloquence, he set forth the facts of his story, calling God to witness, with his dying breath, that he was a loyal Englishman, and had made no treaties with the French; that he had had no hand in the death of Essex; and that his hand in the Guinea expedition had been through-out honest and sincere, and the ill results due only to disadvantageous circumstances.

Fortunately one was present with police experience in the person of Mr. Pearce, and he took charge of operations for the recovery of the bodies.

While anxious eyes were watching for returning signs of vitality, a C. P. R. work train came along, and the crew who had seen something of searches stopped it, found what was amiss and went on to Port Moody to bring Dr. Robert Robinson, the divisional coroner, and took the body back to the scene where the doctor declared an inquest unnecessary, and permitted the removal of the remains from Port Moody to this city in Murchie's undertaking wagon, which had already been sent for.

GIRLS LOSE LIVES IN EFFORT TO SAVE ANOTHER

Accident in Which Annie and May Murphy Lose Their Lives

(New Westminster News) A sad accident has marred the picnic season in the drowning yesterday of Miss Gertrude Ankers, aged 22, and four other local girls at Aliceville, near Port Moody on Burrard Inlet.

Miss Ankers, a daughter of John Ankers, in charge of the city pipe line in Coquitlam lake, has taught school for some time at the Brownville school, and it was on her way to her young charges which took the party yesterday to the resort. There were fifteen in the merry group which met at the Fraser bridge yesterday, being driven out by L. T. Brown.

It was about half past twelve when the girls entered the water, Alfrid Paulsen, aged 11, going first. She had not gone far when she gave a cry for help, and Miss Ankers, anxious for her charge went to her assistance. Four were now in the water with a pair of swimming wings, but got out of her depth, and May Murphy, aged 14, followed. She too could not do any good, none of them being able to swim, and her sister aged 19 rushed to her assistance. Four were now in the water struggling, and Lyle Buck, aged 15, from the bank, pushed through the weeds to the others. A young sister of the Murphy's came next but she had the good sense to go back.

A cry of horror called the boys to the rescue, but the crying children on the bank could not give the older ones much idea of what had happened. However, Tom Murphy, a brother of the girls, and another, put out in a boat, and saw Miss Ankers' head above water. They dragged her aboard, still breathing, and pulled her to shore.

Two minutes elapsed before the body was on the bank and the time the girl is entered the water.

August time, tells on the nerves. But that spiritless, no ambition feeling can be easily and quickly altered by taking what is known to druggists everywhere as Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Within 48 hours after beginning to use the Restorative, improvement will be noticed. Of course, full health will not immediately return. The gain, however, will surely follow. And best of all, you will realize and feel your strength and ambition as it is returning. Outside influences depress first the "nerves" then the stomach, Heart and Kidneys will usually fail. Strengthen these failing nerves with Dr. Shoop's Restorative and see how quickly health will be yours again. Sold by All Dealers.

"PROGRESS" WRITES ON INCORPORATION

Lack of Interest on Part of Citizens the Sole Trouble

Some Features of the Act That Should be Amended

In your last issue you attack incorporation and give the disadvantages we labor under, you also cite, in a somewhat sarcastic manner, some of the "advantages." Is it fair to blame incorporation for all our evils, real and imaginary? The gravel train for instance, and it is all very fine to make fun of our kerosene lamps. In the summer time, we grant you, they are open to criticism, what of the dark long nights of the late fall winter and early spring? They are mighty beneficial, and the wait that goes up the nights they are not lighted is proof positive of their usefulness. The cost of running a small town, the cost of everything has increased, living is high, probably under the old system the cost would have been greater. It is a progressive age and the sole trouble with incorporation is lack of interest on the part of the citizens of St. George. The opponents of the act are "running things," and it seems their policy to make everything as bad as possible. Do you suppose for a minute, that a town hall would have been located where it is if the progressive people had had a word to say? Do you not think, that a move on the part of the citizens to reduce the qualifications of mayor and aldermen would result in more interest being taken by the voters, in town affairs? Why was the town cut up into wards? The result has been to reduce the small number of available men. You have practically no choice, you must buy some one to act as alderman. Incorporation is not to blame, it is the manner of carrying it out. The schools, for years the cry has been, "let us have better schools." The trustees have made a move in that direction. Grant that last year's teachers were good, next years will be paid more and will no doubt give a good account of themselves; give them a chance; give the trustees a chance. There may perhaps be narrow minded individuals in different positions in our town government that is the fault of the voters, who must be educated to realize that a two cent office in St. George has little or no effect in the transaction of affairs at Ottawa.

The families are well known that the accident has cast a gloom over the city and neighborhood. Miss Ankers had been teaching for the last three or four years, and had passed her pupils with honors. She was engaged to be married and the wedding was to have occurred this vacation. Much sympathy will be felt for Mr. and Mrs. Ankers, who are left with only a son living.

Miss Buck was a daughter of A. Buck, Dominion fire ranger, formerly postmaster of Timberland, and Miss Paulsen was daughter of S. O. Paulsen of the same place.

The funeral of Miss Annie and May Murphy, who were drowned at Aliceville, on Wednesday, took place this morning at 9 o'clock and was largely attended. Solemn requiem mass was celebrated at St. Peter's Cathedral by Rev. Father Maillard assisted by Rev. Father Lambert and Rev. Father Wagner. Beautiful music was rendered by the choir under the direction of M. Filigiano. The pall bearers were I. Hoyle, T. Kear, C. Archeinbault, L. Gregory, L. Reid, L. Colloll, E. Goulet, D. Sullivan, H. Heston and W. Martin.

The double funeral of the other victims of the sad drowning fatality, Miss Lyle Buck and Miss Alfrid Paulsen, took place this afternoon at 2 o'clock. A funeral service was held at Fales' undertaking chapel and interment took place in the Church of England Cemetery. There were many beautiful floral tributes.

We are pleased to state that George Green, the popular N. B. S. Ry. conductor, has been successfully operated on, for cancer, in a Montreal hospital. He expects to return home in a short time. Harry King left on Saturday's train for St. John and other points. Before he returns he will consult some capitalists in reference to amalgamation of the granite business of this town. The Campobello picnic will be held August 12th. A big crowd is expected.

The Wreck of Rosebury.

It is announced that Lord Rosebury has withdrawn from the Liberal Party. Under the caption of "The Wreck of Rosebury," James Douglas contributes a stirring article to London Opinion.

I think it was Mr. Garvin who called Lord Rosebury "the public orator of the Empire." It is a terrible epithet to carve upon the tomb of a living man. There was a time when it has been almost an insult. Now it is a hollow compliment.

Lord Rosebury was once far more than a public orator. He was a Pitt. But some malign finger touched his resplendent career and laid it in the ruins. To-day we look upon the wreck of Rosebury. Lonely, scornful and taciturn, he lives like a shadow in a world of shadows, far withdrawn from the dust and heat of politics.

His unparalleled genius silently pours itself away in waste like a great river that is lost in a sandy desert. His country is robbed of his incomparable talents, and smaller men scorn at the tasks he has relinquished. It is a tragic spectacle. It is one of those perversities of destiny which make all men marvel. It is a mystery which nobody can solve. Perhaps it will never be solved. Perhaps the historian of the future will abandon the attempt to solve it in despair.

A DAZZLING ORATION.

I was one of the happy few who heard Lord Rosebury's dazzling oration at the imperial Press Conference banquet in the White City. There was no doubt that it was its greatest speech. It was the most marvellous feat of oratory that I have ever heard and I have heard all the great orators of our time. It swept even the most hostile critics out of their antagonism. It enthralled that gathering of connoisseurs. It triumphed over the most insuperable obstacles. Probably there is no living man who could have overcome those obstacles. In the first place, the building was the worst that could be devised for public speaking. The other audience were so inaudible that the speaking ignored them and gave themselves up to private conversation. Moreover, nobody expected anything more than a few conventional platitudes from Lord Rosebury. Yet he had hardly opened his mouth before we were all rising from our seats and stealthily stealing nearer and nearer to him. In a few minutes the greater part of the assembly were standing in a clustering crescent round the inner tables. Men crept slowly along the wall behind him until they were packed at ends of the little table at which he stood with the great flashing star of the Garter glittering on his breast. So eager was the jostling and hustling crowd to hear him that two great waiters had left propped up against the table were overturned and fell with a resounding clang on the floor. Strange booming noises at the end of the hall from time to time crashed in upon his silver syllables. But nothing disconcerted the inspired Demosthenes. With his hands clasping the lapels of his coat, he poured out a glittering cascade of eloquence, moving his enchanted listeners to volleys of laughter and thundering applause.

DISCORDANT INTERRUPTIONS.

Never was a speech so assailed by discordant interruptions. The noises in the hall were tortured enough, but worse was to come. The fireworks in the Stadium began, continued, and ended while the orator was in the tide of his oration. It was a ghastly ordeal. I do not suppose any orator has ever before talked against a fusillade of fireworks. The original plan was to get the speeches over before the fireworks began. Indeed, the diners would have left the hall and to have witnessed the pyrotechnical display in the Stadium. But the dinner began half an hour late, with the appalling result that Lord Rosebury had to speak through an artillery obligato. The detonations of the rockets were tremendous. They exploded like shells over the orator's head and over and over again he was forced to let fall the sentence hang in the air until his clear tones could find a gap of silence. Once or twice a cloud of annoyance passed over his features, but he mastered his irritation and ignored the tormenting crashes of sound. He did more—he actually wove the fireworks into his oratorical symphony. He forced them into his service. He compelled them to illustrate his predictions of impending calamity. When he described the hush of an armed Europe in which the fall of a leaf could be heard, there was a strained silence, and then the awed stillness was shattered by a sinister canonade. The effect was supernatural. It seemed as if the guns of the nations had suddenly gone off, and as if we were listening to the artillery of the Armageddon which the orator had foretold. In the imagination we heard the canon of Europe and we blanched before the music of the iron throats of battle. We knew that the rattle and roar was only a mimicry, but the echo of the real thing echoed behind it. We heard war.

Cold Wind of Fear.

I do not say that Lord Rosebury deliberately used the fireworks to lighten the solemn terror of his gloomy prophecies, but with consummate art he blended their dark symbolism with his sombre cadences. Something like a cold wind of fear chilled our souls as we listened. Dim presages of disaster careered through our minds. We wondered after all, whether the peace of generations was on the eve of fracture. We asked ourselves whether before long England would be fighting for her life as she fought in the awful days when Pitt was dying and when he told them to roll up the man of Europe. We speculated feverishly on the secret knowledge that is locked in the breasts of our public men. Did Rosebury know more than we knew? Was the immediate future veiled from our eyes? I confess that I battled hard against the superstitious dread that seemed to gather over our heads, but nevertheless my nerves were shaken, and my optimism for the moment was shattered. We live in an atmosphere of panic, and it is not easy to believe in an atmosphere that is proclaimed every hour from the house tops. But when afterwards I heard Sir Edward Grey saying with solemn emphasis in a great chamber of the Foreign Office that he endorsed "every word" of Lord Rosebury, I felt a renewal of the same icy terror in my blood. Warnings are seldom so menacing, so full of tragic foreboding, as these warnings. What do they mean?

IN STRANGE TIMES.

It may be that Lord Rosebury and Sir Edward Grey know no more than we know. It may be that the peril is vague and formless. But we live in strange times. Strange mutterings and rumors are in the air. A man who has just arrived from India, and who has lived there for many years, brings with him very dismal and despairing news. He affirms that India is on the eve of revolution. He is a civilian with no interest in the creation of panic, but he speaks with absolute assurance. It is inevitable he says. The Indian army is disaffected and the Viceroy is guarded night and day. Other dark and dreadful sayings I repeat that I will not repeat but it seems clear that in India also there is a hush which you can hear the fall of a leaf. It may be all an attack of nerves. It may be only the idle tremor of unreasoning alarm. But the foreboding is there and men are watching and waiting in India as in Europe for the outbreak of storm.

FATEFUL MESSAGE.

Another strange rumor seemed to intensify the curious solemnity of Lord Rosebury's predictions. It was whispered that at the last moment Lord Rosebury decided not to deliver his expected speech and that his presence was finally secured by an angust intervention. This may or may not be true, but the effect of the rumor was to deepen the impression that the retired statesman came charged with the mission of uttering a fateful message to the whole Empire, represented as it was by the editors of England and of her overseas dominions. Be these things as they may, it was impossible to look upon the orator without a sense of wonder and amazement at his isolation and detachment. Why is Lord Rosebury wrecked and wasted? Why is he a splendid nullity? After his speech we all debated these questions, and nobody could answer them. He himself has recorded a conversation that once took place as to the quality most required in a Prime Minister. While one said eloquence, another knowledge, and another toll, Pitt said patience. In twenty years of statesmanship, was never once seen out of temper. Perhaps that is the secret of Rosebury's failure. Perhaps he had not the patience of Pitt.

Duke of Norfolk's Simple Life.

The Duke of Norfolk seems at present to be bent on getting rid of some of his great possessions. Earl Marshal and Premier peer of the realm since he was thirteen years old, the Duke might reasonably be expected to have developed into something of an autocrat, but he is regarded with admiring devotion by his tenants. His carelessness in matters of dress and deportment have given rise to many amusing incidents. On one occasion he was ordered off his own grass by an angry member of an excursion party which was being showed the beauties of Arundel. "Come off that, can't yer?" she shouted at the shabby figure crossing one of the lawns. "It's such like as you get us decent folk into trouble." The Duke married his cousin the Hon. Beatrice Maxwell, and when kneeling at the altar during the wedding ceremony displayed on the soles of his boots the price mark—and the silk that he wore was as his are invariably, brushed the wrong way.

History and Biographe

When Longfellow left college he wrote to his father. "I most eagerly aspire after future eminence in literature. My whole soul burns most ardently for it and every thought centres in it.

His father, a lawyer living in Portland, Maine, urged a profession that would promise a more lucrative subsistence as well as reputation; but gave his consent to his son's passing a year at Cambridge, following literary studies.

Before that time elapsed a new prospect opened for the young scholar, which settled the question of his career. A University chair of modern languages was to be established. To fit himself for the occupancy of this, young Longfellow was sent to Europe.

He lived successively in France, Spain, Italy, and Germany, studying the language and literature of each country.

On his return to America he was appointed professor of modern languages at Bowdoin College, and later at Harvard.

Poetry was for the time given up, but his prose articles on topics connected with his studies, were stamped with the purity and charm of his whole nature.

Longfellow had married, when about twenty-four, Miss Mary Potter, of Portland. With her he went abroad again, to study the Danish, Swedish, and Finnish languages.

During his absence in Europe his wife died. It was a heavy blow, but the poet found relief in constant study.

Returning home he established himself at Cambridge, where his delightful qualities of heart and mind secured for him the warm regard of all who knew him. In a fine old Colonial mansion, to which, clung memories of Washington's residence there, Longfellow made his home for the remainder of his life.

Here he wrote "The Reaper and the Flowers" and "The Psalm of Life." The author became instantly popular. It was a new voice, a musical and moving one, in American poetry. "Hyperion" followed—a work to touch the soul of fervent youth—then his first volume of poems.

From this time Longfellow's fame grew rapidly; success and reputation were to him but stimulants to new exertions. His second volume confirmed the impression made by the first.

Longfellow married about twelve years after his wife's death, Miss Frances Appleton of Boston, to whom he had been attached for some time, and who is said to have been the original of the "Mary Ashburton" in "Hyperion."

Seldom has there been a happier marriage; for years Longfellow had as much peaceful joy as ever falls to man. A shocking tragedy brought this idyllic period of existence to an abrupt end. Mrs. Longfellow met a painful death by fire. It was long after this calamity before the bereaved poet could resume his old occupations.

As time passed, however, the current of life ran tranquilly enough, and though the old sunshine was lacking, the closing years of the poet's life were unvisited by sorrow or care. The end came peacefully, in 1882. The English nation has honored the memory of the most popular American poet by placing a bust of him in the Poet's Corner, in Westminster Abbey.

A few years before his death Longfellow wrote these inspiring lines: "For age is opportunity no less. Than youth itself, though in another dress, And as the evening twilight fades away, The sky is filled with stars, invisible by day."

Relax the Hands.

If you have not paid especial attention to your hands, do so! Watch them carefully. See if you relax them when they are not in gesture or use. If you keep them tense as though you were holding on to something for dear life, it only means you are keeping your nerves and muscles in an unnecessary strain.

Make a practice of stretching them out and then relaxing them, letting them fall into place with all the muscles loose. It is said that women waste nerve force to a great extent through their hands.

All this means that nervous energy, like Bill Arp's courage, oozes through her finger tips.

KEEP THE HANDS QUIET.

Good form frowns on the woman who keeps her hands still but this is one of the conventions that is more broken than observed. If woman only knew how nervous it makes another person to look upon even the loveliest hands that are never still, they would certainly learn to drop them into repose.

Perpetual motion of the hands is a sign of a thoroughly uncontrolled nature, and it is one of the things of social life a passing voice, that nearly drives bystanders to flight.

Possibly you are not conscious of how much perpetual motion there is in your own hands. Take a day off to watch them. If you find that you twist them, run them through the hair and over the face, rap the chair or desk with them as you talk, do—do—give them a rest. You will save yourself hours of energy and throw back at all force into your system to be used in mere important things.

RULES TO OBSERVE.

Put these rules up on your dressing table and immerse them in your mind before you go out among people.

Keep your hands away from head and face.

Do not slip your rings up and down. Do not pick up articles over the room and put them down again as you talk.

If you carry a fan do not open and shut it all the time or tap your face or the furniture with it.

Learn to drop the hands in the lap, on the arm of the chair, or at your side, and do not move them unless it is necessary.

Constant gesturing is foolish. Don't think it is expressive to talk with the hands, unless you know how to do it.

A few gestures, gracefully done, are elegant. Fidgeting the hands is stupid.

When Preparing Rice.

Instead of washing rice in cold water half a dozen times to remove the starch, rinse twice in very hot water, and the same results are gained.

Few Northerners succeed in getting the separated grains, such as are always seen on Southern tables. To obtain them throw rice slowly into rapidly boiling water, slightly salted, and cook 20 minutes uncovered.

Drain, add a teaspoonful of butter and toss gently with a fork. Dry in a hot oven for about five minutes. Serve uncovered.

GREETINGS PUBLISHING COMPANY, LIMITED

WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 4, 1909

The expressions of friendship and good-will so profusely showered upon us by the distinguished United States orators who addressed the gatherings at the Lake Champlain Tercentenary Celebration, were in exceedingly good taste, as the celebration was really an international affair, and they were also quite proper and well deserved. Why should not the United States be on terms of sincere friendship with Canada? We are kindred peoples, sprung from the same stock, possessing to a considerable extent the same traditions, governing ourselves in much the same way, and laboring side by side to develop the resources of a new world. We sprang from the same Motherland, and although one separated from her, it is no reason why the two children should quarrel. We certainly give our southern brethren no occasion of offence. In a thoughtful and really eloquent address delivered by our Governor-General at the recent Dominion Day banquet in London, England, it was pointed out that the United States are under some obligations to us. In our West—"the last, best West," we proudly and truthfully claim—we are giving home to their migrating people, who are coming here at the rate of eighty thousand a year. And further, Earl Grey pointed out that during the American Civil War fully forty thousand Canadians joined the armies of the North and assisted the Federal Government in maintaining the integrity of the Union—a force, he said, probably exceeding in number the British troops that formed the backbone of Wellington's army at Waterloo. For almost one hundred years peace has prevailed between these two kindred nations, and surely that is time enough in which to forget old quarrels, learn to regard each others rights, establish confidence in each others sincerity, and build up a frank and lasting friendship.—Montreal Standard.

CANADA HAS WHIP HAND IN PULP BUSINESS

Representative Mann, of Illinois, during the tariff debate in congress declared that congress is confronted with the situation where the Canadian government has reached the conclusion that possibly, if not probably, the dominion would be justified in absolutely forbidding the exportation of raw material.

Under the maximum and minimum clause, he said, the charge of $1.67 a ton on wool pulp would be increased to $5.67 a ton.

"That maximum," he exclaimed, "is sure to go into effect between Canada and this country and until Canada removes her restrictions on the exportation of the pulp."

Mr. Mann said that all Canada needed to do was "to stand pat" and say "you have got to have our paper and pulp in some form. You will take it in the form of paper from us."

Canada, said Mr. Mann, is as wise and as keen as the best leaders of the Republican party.

"They well know," he asserted, "that they hold the whip hand."

Should Canada prohibit the exportation of wood pulp, Mr. Mann argued that Maine and New Hampshire would raise the price of pulp wood and that print paper would go up. He declared that instead of the revision of the tariff reducing the price of print paper, the threat of three cents a pound or $60 a ton would soon be past history.

Mr. Mann vehemently denounced the senate for its action in conference committee. "I am tired," he said, amid applause from both sides, "of seeing this body constantly yield to the insistent demands of a few senators. Let them vote as they please. It is our duty to stand by what we believe to be right."

BY THE WAY

Hot.

The taxes are being paid—but oh you assessors!

The conversions from the incorporation ranks still continue.

The assessors refuse to get excited over the sharp criticism levelled at them.

Don't throw broken bottles on the beach, it is very dangerous to the bathers.

The Chinamen put in thus: "Velly much fine day but velly much far from cold."

We may have zinc mines, but our greatest industry will probably continue to be granite.

Canada has emerged into the status of a young nation, blinking at the brilliancy of its own future.

The "town pump" comes in for a large share of patronage these days. The free water dispenser has it on the soda fountains.

"Our train hit a bear on the way down. 'Was the bear on the track?' 'No, the train had to go into the woods after him."

Perhaps sentiment, or officiousness, will close some places at midnight Saturdays, but sickness and death will continue to break in on the Sabbath as on week days.

Some old reports from the west about sweltering heat and shortage of men. The next stage will be rumors of ruined crops, and then finally the usual bumper harvest, breaking all previous records.

Hundreds of Maine farmers are flocking into New Brunswick, and St. Pierre, Miquelon, is contributing settlers in numbers threatening depopulation. To the same source may be traced both streams. A free lands act is a powerful magnet.

Here is a gem of poetry that originated in the fertile brain of a schoolboy and found its way onto his examination papers at the close of the term, in answer to the question "What is Man?"

Man is somewhat like a sausage,
Very smooth upon the skin,
Ye you cannot quite determine
How much pig there is within.

A tramp went to the back door of a Topkape house and knocked. The lady came to the door. "Please, mum," said the tramp, "could you do a little sewing for me?"

"With pleasure," answered the kind-hearted lady. "What sewing would you like to have me do for you?"

"I have a button here," replied the tramp. "If you sew a pair of pants onto it I'll be very much obliged."—Kansas City Journal.

There should be the general interest in and support for the movement, which has the encouragement of both the provincial and federal governments, for the promotion of better trade connections between New Brunswick and the West Indies. There is a large and profitable market in these islands for our agricultural and industrial progress which is presently not available owing chiefly to the lack of adequate transportation facilities.—Sun.

Mollie the Irish domestic in the service of a Wilmington household, was one afternoon doing certain odd bits of work about the place when her mistress found occasion to rebuke her for one piece of carelessness.

"You haven't wound the clock, Mollie said she. 'I watched you closely, and you gave it only a wind or two. Why didn't you complete the job?'"

"Sure, mum, ye haven't forgot that I'm leavin' tomorrow, have ye?" asked Mollie. "I ain't goin' to be doin' anny of the new gyal's work!"

The Av'ridge Man

We men are allus kickin' 'bout the things the women wear.

The way they walk, the way they talk, the way they do their hair.

Complainin' they're extravagant, an' frigidus, an' sich,

An' that some of 'em marry for the sake uv bein' rich;

Say, now look here, my feller men, let's view the matter straight—

The women ain't ter blame becu' we scold at such a rate,

For, goodness knows, they change their ways as often as they can—

We kick becu' there's nothin' ever suits the av'ridge man.

They uster wear their skirts a-trailin' through the muddy streets—

We growled that women cared no more fer bein' clean an' neat;

Their skirts now allus clear the ground about an inch or so—

We shake our heads an' say it's plain they want their feet ter show.

They talked of wearin' hoops ag'in—

We vowed we'd leave 'em first;

The eel skin came—we cry that by immodesty we're curst;

An' I believe that when above we play our harps an' things,

The av'ridge man won't like the way the women wear their wings! Puck.

LOCAL AND SPECIAL

Several camping parties are at Utopia this week.

Two special trains are running on the F. B. S. Ry.

"Miss Petticoats" is a play destined to last for years in the hearts of all.

A large number of the striking miners from Glace Bay, have entered the employ of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway.

United States immigration officers have been exceeding their duty and have received a reproof from the Washington authorities.

It is rumored that a manufacturing concern has been making enquiries in reference to the establishment of a plant in this town. At this writing the parties having the matter in hand are unable to give out any information, but hope to make an announcement, very soon that will be of deep interest to the citizens.

The following persons have been registered to solemnize marriages in New Brunswick: Reverend James Warren McNeill Leonard, of West Isles, in the County of Charlotte, and Reverend Clifford Todd Clark, of Chance Harbor, St. John County.

C. P. R. Agents say that the first harvest excursion for the West would leave somewhere between the 10th and 15th of August. It is stated that there is a great demand for Harvesters in the West this year.

The excursion on Wednesday, under the auspices of Red Granite Division, was largely attended, and the run to St Stephen was made in fast time. The sail was delightful and the music of the band added to the pleasure of the occasion.

Chief Superintendent Carver states that all schools in the province, country as well as city, will re-open on August 30th. According to the new regulation of the Board of Education the country schools will in future have eight weeks' vacation, the same as the cities and towns, and the regulation is now in force.

If the parties exploiting a recent find of black granite in Welsford, as the only black granite in New Brunswick, will write H. McGrattan & Sons of this town, they will be pleased to send a sample of their celebrated Egyptian black from their Bocabo quarries. Beautiful monuments made from the stone can be found in many cemeteries in Canada.

The N. B. Southern Railway Company have about completed the new water tank at Pennfield, and have commenced building one at Musquash. A new station and platform at Spruce Lake is about completed. A large number of Italians have arrived to join the construction crew now working between St. George and Pennfield.

Nearly two hundred excursionists came from St. George yesterday on the steamer Viking and spent the day in town. The excursion was under the auspices of Red Granite Division, Sons of Temperance, and was accompanied by the favorite St. George Cornet band. This organization is somewhat reduced in numbers, but when passing through the harbor rendered selections with the artistic execution of former days. —Courier.

The Eastport-St. George excursion on Monday last under the auspices of the Methodist Sunday School, was a complete success, both socially and financially. About 300 tickets were sold. Arriving at Eastport about 12 o'clock, two hours were spent at the bustling city-by-the-sea, after which the "Eaton" proceeded directly for St. George. The sail up the Magaguadavic was greatly enjoyed by all. The scenery is beautiful and picturesque, and is probably not surpassed on the Continent. The river is crooked, at one place forming a right angle, and one would think the steamer was going to take a short cut across the land, when she swings around and continues up river, the banks on either side being sheer walls of granite, worn and beaten smooth by the action of the wind and waves for countless centuries. About three hours were spent in the pretty little town of St. George. The Calais Band discoursed sweet music all day, and especially at St. George was this true, probably realizing that some of the keenest critics in the country were listening. The many points of interest in the granite town were hunted out by the excursionists and thoroughly enjoyed. At seven o'clock all aboard was sounded and the Eaton swung around and started down river amid the good byes and an uproar of the crowd that lined the wharf. —Union Cors. Advertiser.

LOCAL AND SPECIAL

The Harvesters Excursion will be run from the Maritime Provinces on a date between August 12 and August 16th.

Schooner Charles H. Sprague, Cap. E. L. Clayer, is in port taking in pulp for Norwalk, Ct. She discharged a cargo of 213 tons of salt at Eastport previous to coming here.

Edmund Holt has sold the Exchange Hotel to L. G. Chase. The hotel was closed on Tuesday last and Mr. Holt has returned with his family to his farm on the Digbyquash. —Beacon.

The yacht Lolita came up river Thursday with a party of ladies and gentlemen aboard. The yacht has been on a cruise along the coast, and met with heavy weather during the trip. She left here for Calais where her owner Mr. S. George will join her. She will return to St. John Sunday.

The following from the Advertiser in "Events in the history of Calais," will be of interest to St. George people: Probably the richest man who ever came to reside in Calais, taking the date into consideration, was Gen. Rendol Whidden, who came from St. George, N. B., in 1831, bringing with him eighty thousand dollars in cash.

Owing to the many complaints of the smoke from the saw mill caused by burning sawdust, Mayor McGee waited on the officials of the company and urged that measures be taken at once to prevent further annoyance to the residents in the vicinity of the mill. The company assured him that they were anxious to comply with the wishes of the people, and would use every means to stop the smoke, which they realized had become a nuisance.

A. K. Grimmer, B. Sc., city engineer, Fredericton, has received notice of his appointment to the chair of municipal and railway engineering in the engineering school of the Manitoba University. Mr. Grimmer will tender his resignation as city engineer on Tuesday and will sever his connection with the city at the close of September, so as to enter upon his new duties early in October. Mr. Grimmer is a native of St. Andrews.

At the risk of repeating what we said last year, we will remark that it is a manifestly unfair and one sided law that permits the Canadian fishermen to chase the pollock into American dooryards, and prohibits a one legged Yankee fisherman in a leaky dory from taking as much as a fish over the line. The Canadians are not to blame, perhaps, but they ought to have enough of the British love of fair to refrain from blowing a fog horn for the fishery steamer at the sight of a few fishermen trying to get a share of the pollock schools which are always large enough for everybody. —L'Espresso.

Calais was one hundred years old July 31st, and the event was duly honored by the greatest celebration ever held on the river. There were band concerts, sports, fireworks and a grand military, civil, in lastral and fraternal parade reviewed by Governor Fernand and other distinguished persons. Literary and historical exercises were held in the Congregational church. The streets were handsomely decorated along the line of parade, and a beautiful arch was erected at Memorial Park.

Don't blindly suppose it with a soothing poison. It's strange how some things finally come about. The twenty years Dr. Shoop has constantly warned people not to take cough mixtures or preparations containing Opium, Chloroform, or similar poisons. And now—a little late though—Congress says "Put it on the label, if poisons are in your Cough Mixture." Good! Very good! If hereafter you take very reasonable, and others, should insist on having Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. No poison marks on Dr. Shoop's label—and none in the medicine, also it must be sold to be by those that know it best, a truly remarkable cough remedy. Take to children, too, particularly with your children. Insist on having Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. Compare carefully the Dr. Shoop package with others and note the difference. No poison marks there! The Massacre of Naardne
No more striking instance of the barbarity which accompanied the Spanish war in the Netherlands can be furnished than the atrocious massacre perpetrated within the little town of Naardne, in North Holland, in November, 1572. Following the suppression of open rebellion through out the southern districts of Holland, Don Frederic, son of the Duke of Alva, commanding the Spanish forces was sent with an army to operate against the towns which still held out in the Upper Provinces. The little city of Naardne, on the coast of the Zuyder Zee lay in his path, and had not yet formally submitted. A company of one hundred troopers was therefore sent forward to the city gates to demand instant surrender, and though the small garrison were disposed to yield, the stout hearts of the burghers forbade them to submit without a struggle. Unfortunately as the Spanish deputation was returning with their refusal a lunatic mounted one of the ramparts and fired into the soldiery, and though no one was injured the act infuriated the Spanish commander to dire revenge. The order went forth that the town must be taken and destroyed and that no single person should be left alive—a command which was almost literally obeyed.

Dated this 19th Day of July A. D. 1909.
P. McLAUGHLIN
Administrator of the Estate of Daniel Campbell deceased.

Outside in the streets carnage and pillage ran riot, the ferocity of the Spaniards being vented alike on men, women and children. Houses were rifled of their contents, and their inhabitants prodded by rapiers were forced to convey the booty to the camp, a fatal thrust being given them for their refusal. The town was then fired from every side that no fugitive should escape, and none survived except by accident. A body of some hundred burghers sought flight across the open country, but most of them were overtaken, stripped of their outer clothing and hung upon nearby trees to perish by a lingering death in the bitter weather. Twenty of the wealthiest after fearful torture, purchased their lives of their inhuman prosecutors, but the principal burghmaster, after paying ransom, was by order of Don Frederic hanged to his own doorway, and his severed limbs were placed over the city gates.

Few citizens and no soldiers escaped from the massacre and the destruction, and for three weeks none were suffered to approach the scene from without, to give burial to the slain. Shortly afterward the fortifications were dismantled, and the walls were razed to the earth, so that for a long time, Naardne literally ceased to exist.

Are You Using an Oily Liniment

Beware of Any Thick, Greasy Liniment That Contains Acids
and Strong Ammonia

No doctor would think of prescribing
a greasy, thick, ammonia liniment-- they can't penetrate and in consequence are unable to reach the source of pain.
The best liniment for general household use is "Nerviline," which is sold under positive guarantee to cure pain.

Nerviline is sure to cure pain because it is immensely stronger than other liniments, because it is more penetrating
because it relieves the congested condition that excites pain, because it restores circulation of the part. Now you understand why one person in three throughout the Dominion of Canada uses Nerviline.
These people have tested it. They know how good it is, because in the hundred and one minor ailments that afflict us at odd times they found Nerviline always cured. Nerviline is an absolute antiseptic to pain, powerful, soothing, and certain in its action.

Nerviline is inestimably the finest remedy for pain found in the world. Not an ache or pain anywhere that Nerviline
does not cure.

Try Nerviline for neuralgia, headache,
sciatica, lumbago, stiffness, rheumatism,
--wherever there is soreness or pain, rub on Nerviline and you'll be cured. Refuse anything offered you instead of Nerviline, large 25c. bottles, five for $1.00. All dealers, or The Catarthozone Company, Kingston Ont.

The use of Ammonia

Blankets and flannels are greatly improved and softened if a tablespoonful of ammonia is allowed to every painful of water in which the soap has been boiled.

Brushes, combs, sponges, chamois leather are made clean and fresh by adding ammonia to the water.

In washing the leathers the great secret for keeping them soft is to leave the soap in them at the last, not to rinse
it out.

Ammonia in the water with which you wash carpets helps greatly to revive the color and to clean them.

In the wash, if ammonia is used in the soaking water, a tablespoonful to each pail of water, as well as to that in the boil, the work will be halved, and much less soap and soda needed.

When scrubbing floors and tables a little ammonia in the water will whiten
them in a very short time.

It is also efficacious in cleaning sinks.

THE KITCHEN SINK

If common sulphate of iron be dissolved in the proportion of one pound to four gallons of water, and poured over the sink three or four times offensive smells will be completely destroyed.

If it needs re-enamelling, clean it thoroughly, and rub it over with sandpaper, then apply the coat of bath enamel which has been thinned by standing in a bath of hot water.

Two or three coats at least will be required, and each must be quite dry before applying the next.

MARBLE TABLES AND WASHSTANDS
Are easily soiled or stained, and unless treated with care will quickly lose their high polish.

Dirty dusters will soon spoil the appearance of white marble.

After they are washed the high polish
will be restored to marble by rubbing with a soft substance; a piece of felt is one of the best things for this purpose.

To take out stains from marble, make a paste of soap jelly and powdered unslaked lime.

Let it remain for several weeks; then scour with unslaked lime, soft soap, hot water and a brush.

To remove stains of long standing from marble, mix together one gill each of soap and oxgall and half a gill of turpentine; then add as much finely powdered pipe clay of Fuller's earth as will form a stiff paste.

Apply with a brush. Allow the mixture to remain for two or three days, then wipe it off.

Repeat the operation if necessary.

Black marble may be cleaned with a mixture of equal parts of pearl ash and soft soap.

Apply this with a flannel and let it remain on for some minutes.

Then rinse first with warm and then with cold water.

When dry, polish with a paraffin cloth.
To mend marble ornaments, plaster of Paris, finely powdered, is soaked in as much saturated solution of alum as it will absorb.

The mixture is baked in a slow oven,
and when hard it is ground to a powder.

This powder, mixed in water and applied like plaster, sets very hard, will take a good polish and, if properly colored, makes a capital imitation of any kind of marble.

BRASS, COPPER AND TINWARE

Tinware and zinc pails or basins should be cleaned with turpentine.

Wood ashes and soap are sometimes used for brightening zinc articles.

Turpentine gives a fine polish to tinware and is very efficacious in cleaning bath enamel which has been discolored.

Dip a cloth in the turpentine, rub the stained parts and polish with a soft, clean duster.

Brass should be cleaned with a lemon
from which the juice has been squeezed.

Dip the lemon in finely powdered bath-brick, and polish with a clean, soft cloth.

Copper kettles may also be cleaned the same way, only washing them in soapy
water, then polishing them with a duster
and powdered bathbrick.

Sweetfool and powdered bathbrick may also be used for cleaning copper.

Aluminum utensils should be washed in warm, soapy water, then dried and polished with whiting, or an old incandescent gas mantle crumbled down finely and rubbed on with a duster.

When the kitchen range has been blackened, give the final polish with a piece of old velvet.

This makes a brilliant polish with very little labor and is well worth a trial.

Old velvet is also efficacious in cleaning brass articles of any kind.

If washed they are apt to hang very unevenly.

It is a good plan, if the upper parts are not much soiled, to turn them top to bottom.

Kitchen shades may be cleaned with bread crumbs; spread the shades on a table, do not rub them too hard, and change the bread when it shows signs of getting dirty.

Powdered bath brick is sometimes used for cleaning shades, rub it in with a clean cloth, shake the shades, and, if necessary, apply the bath brick a second time.

CLEANING VENETIAN BLINDS

Let down the blinds, secure the pulling up cord, and untie the knots at the bottom of the blind.

Slip out the thin laths one by one, but
be careful to leave the two cords hanging very straight.

In this way remove the whole blind
except the thick lath at the very bottom,
which is kept in its place by the webbing,
and the top framework.

The former can be removed by taking out the nails at the bottom of the ladder-ing, but this is quite unnecessary, for it can easily be wiped and washed, as also the whole of the frame work, without further trouble.

The laddering and cords should be wiped with a damp cloth.

Put the laths on a table and wash them
with a soft brush and soap and water.

Dry them thoroughly, and restore to their places one by one; rethread the cord, and knot firmly.

It is odd how almost impossible it is to successfully dye a switch at home.
Home hair dyeing is about the surest failure there is.

$100 Reward, $100

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarth. Hall's Catarth Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarth being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarth Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for

Bona-Fide Lingerie Hats Must Be of Washable Fabrics.

The word "lingerie" has been so much misused that scarcely a vestige of its original meaning remains. The milliners will show you lingerie hats
with straw rims; and lingerie hats
made of lace, net and even of puffed tulle decorated with roses and aig-rettes.

The bona-fide lingerie hat, however is made of a fabric that can visit the wash tub without shrinking or fading away at contact with honest soap and water, and the best types of these are made, not over stiff wire frames,
but with soft ruffles drooping gracefully from corded shirrings.

These corded brims have to be very cleverly made, and unless the home milliner is an adept, and can manage an unsupported hat brim so that it will droop and not flop dejectedly
over hair and face, it will be better to build the lingerie hat over a frame taking care that the edge is sufficiently softened by frills of lace or embroidery to prevent an appearance of stiffness.

In making a child's lingerie hat
especially, this softness of brims
be accomplished, and the best way
when buying a wide brimmed wire frame, is to remove the two outer circles of wire, leaving an actual brim foundation of but an inch or two.
The flounces of pleated lawn and lace or of embroidery will then rest very softly and prettily on the hair.

The first thing to do is to cover the wire frame with some thin yet not too sheer material. White cotton mull is excellent for this purpose; and to this fabric foundation the outer covering may be easily sewed. Most of the wire frames come with the big crowns attached loosely to the brim by fine wires, and these wires should be snipped away, detaching the crown which may later be fastened on again when trim and crown are covered. This makes the task much easier.

The mortar board hat is a new idea which brings a pleasant change on the familiar bebe hate of lingerie material.

The low crown with its two strips of embroidery set over the brim on which is arranged a square of the embroidery accomplished by mitring the diagonal ends of the embroidery flouncing. These strips are slightly full and lie very gracefully on the brim of the hat, the points of the square coming at front and back on the sides.

The brim on this wire shape has been first covered with allover embroidery; but between this circular brim and the mitered square will go two pleated ruffles of fine lawn edged with lace. These ruffles will extend beyond the stiff circular brim and throw the embroidery square over them into relief. Under the brim will be sewed tiny frills of Val. lace in close rows. A ribbon band and bow will complete a very charming summer hat.

Lingerie hats of sheer white mull
are very soft and dainty in effect.
Such a hat is easy to make, but plenty of material should be shirred over the frame, for the beauty of such a hat will depend on the generous amount of fine, soft mull used.

One lovely lingerie hat made of a huge circle of allover Val. lace, thrown over a mushroom shape of pink straw. The lace circle was edged with a narrow frill of Val.,
which hung below the straw hat
brim.

A band of black velvet ribbon
held the lace drapery over the hat
and at one side was tucked a big pale pink rose. This hat might be copied in lavender straw with purple velvet ribbon and violets; or in pale blue straw with a bunch of forget-me-nots
at the side.

The footprints of Dyspepsia have been directly traced to the Stomach nerves.
When these "inside nerves" fail, indigestion and stomach distress must surely result. For this, druggists everywhere are supplying a prescription known as Dr. Shoop's Restorative. First, these tiny Stomach, Heart, and Kidney nerves fail. Then gas belching, Heart palpitation, or falling Kidneys follow.
Don't drug the Stomach, or stimulate the Heart or Kidneys. That is wrong.
Strengthen these failing nerves with Dr.
Shoop's Restorative. It is the nerves,
not the organs that are calling for help.
Within 48 hours after starting the Restorative treatment, you will realize the gain. A test will tell. Sold by all dealers.

Bores Hole in a Fisherman's Foot.

Boston, July 12.—In a desperate encounter with an infuriated swordfish, Westery Wallace, a fisherman aboard the T wharf schooner Angie B. Watson, had his left foot almost amputated at the ankle on the fishing grounds last Thursday. The fish attacked Wallace's dory from underneath, his sharp sword penetrating the bottom of the boat, catching the fisherman's ankle and tearing away the flesh and bone in agonizing fashion.

It was the most extraordinary accident happened at T wharf in many a day. When the Watson arrived at noon day yesterday, the injured man was lying on his back in the after cabin, with his foot dressed up in big bandages. Late in the day he sought treatment in a hospital. Many of Wallace's friends warmly congratulated him that he got off without losing his life.

The swordfish that done the damage to the fisherman, did not live to take part in another battle. It cost him his life. Wallace wasn't able to wreak vengeance on his adversary, because of his wound. But Capt. Schofield was there harpoon and the warrior of the deep was brought into port in the vessel's hold.

Strange to say, that this swordfish was smallest of the entire catch of 108 that the Watson landed.

It was on the Western edge of George's fishing banks Thursday that the assault took place on Wallace. He was out in his dory alone, half a mile or so from the schooner. With no warning, the fish darted under the frail craft, and before Wallace could prepare for him or get out of the way, the long knife-like sword had torn a piece out of the dory's bottom and had bored a hole through the foot of the unfortunate man an inch or two wide.

Wallace didn't for a minute lose his presence of mind. The dory began to leak like fury, but the fisherman calmly proceeded to bind up his foot as well as he could, and then he hoisted a distress signal. Wallace suffered terribly for many hours afterward. Wallace is 24 years old and lives in Friendship, Me.
