MAN IN HORRORS SUICIDES.

James Murphy Returning From Maine Takes Too Much Liquor and Becomes Temporarily Insane

DROWNS HIMSELF

Identified by a Brother in Nelson—The Evidence at the Enquiry.

Newcastle and vicinity was horrified on Friday to learn that during the early hours of the morning a guest of the Harris House had leaped from an upstairs window, and committed suicide by drowning. The sad affair took place about one o'clock, and the body was found in about a foot of water a little below the Ferry wharf, shortly after two o'clock, the discovery being made by Policeman Hill and Philip Galley. The unfortunate man, who thus, while under the influence of liquor, ended his life, was James Murphy, a native of Newcastle, more recently a resident of Doaktown, and lately returned for a short visit from the woods in Maine. F. J. Desmond, M. D., Coroner, on Saturday forenoon held an enquiry under oath, in order to establish the identity of the deceased and find out how he came by his death. An inquest was not deemed necessary. Wm. F. Harris, proprietor of the Harris House, where deceased was last seen alive, swore that the deceased, James Murphy, came to his hotel on Wednesday evening, slightly under the influence of liquor. He was accompanied by Stephen Campbell of Nelson. This was about ten o'clock. Murphy remained, went to bed and slept till about noon of Thursday. At noon he had dinner. He told witness that he had been vomiting blood. He did not appear in any way deranged. He slept most of the afternoon, and then had tea. After tea he went down town for about half an hour. On his return he complained of being sick and feeling as if he were about to go into the horrors. He retired. Shortly afterwards he came downstairs and began to jump and dance in the hall. Witness called in a policeman, but then Murphy was quiet, and policeman did not think it necessary to take charge of him. Murphy went to bed again. Soon he got up and asked witness to take and count his money. In presence of four men who slept in room between deceased's and the hall, $110.00 was counted out and taken by witness. $7.99 of Murphy's money was afterwards handed him by the other men. Dr. Desmond was sent for, and prescribed for him and advised the getting of a man to attend him. The doctor went out to tell policeman Hill to get a man. Murphy had asked for a knife. When witness was away a moment locking up the knives, he heard a noise upstairs. On opening Murphy's door he found him escaped through the window. He organized a search at once but

PUBLIC BEQUESTS BY MRS. LOUNSBURY.

Left $500 for Temperance Work in Fredericton—$1000 for Newcastle Baptist Church.

The will of the late Mrs. Annie E. Lounsbury, who died recently in Boston, following an operation, has been admitted to probate before Judge Fred St. John Bliss in the York Co. probate court.

The estate was entered at $18,900 of which $12,400 is personal estate and $6,500 real estate. Ex-Ald. W. G. Clark of this city and Mrs. H. B. McDonald, daughter of the deceased, were appointed executors.

Among the public bequests was one of $500 to the executors "to be expended in their discretion for Temperance Reform work in the city of Fredericton."

The other public bequests include the following: $1,000 to the trustees of the United Baptist Church at Newcastle.

$1,000 to the Governors of Acadia College, Wolfville, N. S. $200 to the United Baptist Brunswick street church of Fredericton for the extension fund.

$400 to the Baptist Annuity Association of New Brunswick.

$500 to the Association of United Baptist Churches of New Brunswick for home missions.

The balance of the estate is left to relatives.

AMERICA'S DECREASING BIRTH RATE

So seriously is the decrease in the birth rate of natives of the United States regarded by the Washington authorities that it is probable that an inquiry will be instituted for the purpose of ascertaining the reasons of the pitifully small size of the American families of today. In this respect the example of the French government will be followed, and it is also said, that an effort will be made to enlist the interest and cooperation of those clubs and other bodies that by the nature of their declared policies may be expected to furnish help in solving the problem.—July Physical Culture.

was unsuccessful. The search was continued by Mr. Hill and Philip Galley who had come to wait on the missing man.

John Hagerty, who with three others, was occupying the room between Murphy's and the hall, swore that the deceased had told him he was going to die and wanted a knife to cut his throat. At Mr. Harris's request the witness had gone after a policeman, and afterwards after the doctor. Murphy became perfectly quiet for about fifteen minutes, then he (Murphy) was heard to shut the door. After another fifteen minutes silence, a noise was heard in Murphy's room. They rushed in and found the room deserted. He had no suspicion that Murphy intended to jump out of the window. Mr. Hagerty's room-mates, Alex. Campbell, Wm. Woods, and Charles Thompson corroborated his evidence.

Wm. T. Gould, adopted son of John Gould of Nelson, identified the body of the deceased as that of his brother James Murphy, whom he had last seen at his (the witness's) home in Nelson on Tuesday night. Deceased did not appear deranged. He told him that he had been in the Maine woods whither he would soon return, and that he had considerable money. He had another brother named John Murphy whom he had not heard from or seen for twelve or fourteen years. Deceased was about 30 years of age. His funeral took place Friday evening.

ORANGEMEN WALK IN ST. JOHN

Two Thousand Strong Parade the Streets in the City During a Drizzling Rain

TWELVE BANDS IN LINE

Many Lodges Represented in the Vast Procession About Two Miles Long

All roads in New Brunswick led to St. John on the 12th, where 2000 uniformed Orangemen from lodges all over the province paraded in the afternoon forming a column four deep nearly two miles long. Twelve bands were in the procession, including that of Newcastle.

The lodges from Newcastle, Morehouse, Chatham and Loggieville were present and individuals from other Northumberland lodges.

No Surrender Lodge, No. 47, of Newcastle ran an excursion train of eleven well-filled cars besides a refreshment car, between 600 and 700 people buying tickets upon it. They left Newcastle about 7 a. m., returning about 3 o'clock yesterday morning. The excursion was under the guidance of an efficient committee, whose chairman was William Stymiest, and was a complete success.

About 10,000 visitors were in St. John for the day. A number of the Orangemen in the city were not in the parade.

The brethren after the parade were addressed by Grand Master McRae, who was in favor of modifying accession oath; Past Dist. Master, C. N. Skinner, Grand Chap., Rev. A. A. Rideout; P. G. M. Hon. H. F. McLeod, Rev. H. Purdie and Col. Baxter.

Most Popular Labor Lodge?

Which is the most popular Labor Lodge in the Maritime Provinces? Is it the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway employees of Newcastle; the Larrigan Make's Union of Fredericton, United Mine Workers of Springhill, Glace Bay, Inverness, Stellarton, Westville or Joggins, or some other of the many popular and powerful labor organizations in these provinces by the sea.

The Moncton Daily Times is conducting an election to determine this question—and incidentally to help the big Labor Day celebration at Moncton. Any person may vote for their favorite lodge, as often as they wish. The ballots will be printed in The Daily Times each day, and can be obtained in no other way. A committee consisting of the Labor editor of The Times, the Editor of the Eastern Labor News, and the chairman of the general committee of the Moncton Labor Day celebration will supervise the election, count the ballots, and announce the award.

DEATH NEW YORK CITY.

The past twenty-five or thirty years have seen a most remarkable increase of the death rate and a corresponding improvement in the health of New York. For instance, the year 1881 was marked by a death rate of 31.04 per thousand inhabitants, which rate steadily decreased until in 1907 the official figures showed a mortality of only 18.76 per thousand, while in 1908 it had fallen to only 16.52 per thousand.—June Physical Culture.

IMPORTANT CHURCH BILL.

The following are the chief points in the British Government Bill to disestablish and disendow the church of England in Wales: Disestablishment to take place on June 1, 1911. The four Welsh bishops—Bangor, Llandaff, St. Asaph's, St. David's—will cease to sit in the House of Lords. All Church property to be vested in Commissioners, but existing incumbents to be unaffected. They will get the existing glebes (38,000 acres of an annual rent of £43,500) and open burial grounds for the term of incumbency, after which the land reverts to the localities. Commissioners to transfer to a representative body cathedrals and churches and all benefactions since 1662. Tithe rent charge to be transferred to a Council of Wales representative of local authorities. Parochial property to be applied to hospital, institutes, technical and higher education.

A NOTABLE PLEDGE.

Boston Advertiser, June 28: Standing on Boston Common yesterday afternoon, with heads uncovered and with right hands upraised, more than 8,000 men, women and children of the Holy Family Temperance League solemnly took the pledge to abstain from intoxicating liquors for one year, and thus concluded one of the most impressive and spectacular temperance services ever held in Boston. This feature of the Fr. Mathew memorial exercises was witnessed by fully 15,000 people.

In every way it was repetition of that great temperance meeting of 1849, on the same spot, when the famous Catholic priest Fr. Mathew, administered the pledge to the eager thousands and instituted the great temperance league.

To add to the impressiveness of the scene there were seated on the speakers' stand as guests of honor thirteen of the men who sixty years ago took the total abstinence pledge at the hands of Fr. Mathew.

A STENOGRAPHER'S LIFE STORY.

I used to think only shop-girls and those occupying inferior positions were troubled by unwelcome attentions from men. I know better now. At one time a large department store was in need of an assistant to the advertising manager. I heard of it and applied for the place. I had three interviews by appointment with the manager, a very pleasant, well-educated young man, of seeming refinement. He said I would do and my salary was to be twenty-five dollars a week. But for some reason which I did not understand he kept putting off the final settlement of my employment. He had never asked me for a recommendation. During my third interview with him he asked me to permit him to speak frankly. I assented, although rather surprised at the request, and he proceeded, "I do not quite understand whether you are aware what would be expected of you here. And I do not want to hire you until I am sure you will not mind an invitation now and then...." He may have said a great deal more, but I was on the other side of the door by that time.—From June Physical Culture.

Dies of Debanch.

CHATHAM, July 7.—A police court case which will never be finished was the charge of drunkenness laid against Mrs. Mary Lloyd, wife of Lawrence Lloyd, of this town, for Mrs. Lloyd died at the Hotel Dieu yesterday, and the cause of her death was given by a coroner's jury as excessive use of alcoholism and absence of proper nourishment.

Last Saturday week Mrs. Lloyd and her husband were placed under arrest by Chief Lawson and it was reported that blood poisoning had developed from bruises received by Mrs. Lloyd at that time and that this caused her death.

The inquest was held on the information of Chief Lawson, who was represented at the hearing by R. A. Lawlor. Coroner Benson presided and the following were the jury: Chas. A. Cassidy, Henry Broecker, Wm. F. Troy, Chas. Dickens, Walter Stapleton and H. D. Gunning and J. H. Paken.

Dr. Marven was the only witness. He testified that he had attended Mrs. Lloyd continually during the last week and that she was in a state of intoxication all that time, taking no nourishment whatever. She went to the Hotel Dieu Sunday and began to improve but took a bad turn Tuesday morning and collapsed. He attributed her death to the prolonged use of alcoholics and the absence of food. There was a bruise on her knee, but this was only local. Her hands had been cut on a broken bottle the night of her arrest. The jury reached their verdict in a very short time and were discharged.

AWFUL EXPERIENCE WITH HEART DISEASE.—Mr. L. J. Law, Toronto, Ont., writes: "I was so sorely troubled with heart disease that I was unable for 18 months to lie down in bed without moaning. THE VALUE OF A FRUIT DIET

Apples, oranges, pears, peaches, lemons, strawberries, blackberries, raspberries—in fact, all the various acid fruits—are exceedingly wholesome in character, and are capable of furnishing a very large amount of nourishment in one's daily diet. Strange as it may seem to the average individual, almost any one of these fruits, lemons excepted, would fully and completely nourish the body for a prolonged and even an extended period, if one were for any reason compelled to secure nourishment entirely from food of this character, although of course it would require a considerable period for the organs of assimilation to acquire the habit of absorbing all needed nourishment if a radical dietetic change of this nature was made.—From July Physical Culture.

Restigouche County Council.

County Council was called to order on the 6th by Warden Adams. The following councillors were present:

- Warden Adams and Couns. Mowat, McBeath, Dawson, St. Onge, Chaptor, Arseneau, Wm. Goulet, Jamieson, Jos. Goulet, Lawlor and Murchie.

A letter was read from the clerk of the Executive Council of N. B. asking for specific reasons why the council desired a change of chairman of the Board of Health. This letter was laid over until the afternoon session.

Statement from Local Government $88.22, showing amount of Municipalities share of County Licenses. Received and placed on file.

Petitions from ratepayers of Colburn against by-law respecting the running at large of cattle passed at last session. Asked for repeal and allow the cattle to run at large.

Coun. Goulet moved that the by-law be repealed. Carried.

On motion of Coun. Arseneau, John B. Silless was appointed field driver and Simon Goulette pound keeper for parish of Balmoral.

A communication was read from P. C. Belleisle, asking for permission to lay a pipe from spring on Lily Lake road to his brick kiln. On motion of Coun. St. Onge, the permission was granted.

Coun. Chaptor explained that at the last session of the Council a resolution had been passed authorizing the placing of a telephone in the recording office. In looking into this matter he found that it would entail a large amount of expense upon the municipality, over and above the amount of telephone rental. He moved that the resolution be rescinded. Carried.

Several communications from the N. B. Union of Municipalities inviting the Restigouche Municipal Council to join were read.

Couns. Arseneau and Mowat spoke strongly in favor of affiliating with the Union of N. B. Municipalities and on motion of Coun. Arseneau the secretary treasurer was authorized to pay the Union fee of $10.00. Carried. Adjourned to 1.30.

Council reassembled at 1.30 o'clock. Warden Adams in the chair.

The first matter taken up was the letter from the Executive Council, re Board of Health chairman.

Coun. Lawlor said that he thought it was generally understood that the present chairman was too expensive, that his bills were too high.

Couns. Arseneau, Mowat, and St. Onge were of the opinion that the chairman's bills were high, but that this would hardly form a basis for dismissal. He did his duties well.

Coun. Mowat moved that the secretary treasurer be authorized to notify the Executive Council that the only objection to the present chairman was his excessive charges in attending to smallpox patients. Carried.

Warden Adams reported from the Committee to meet Hon. Mr. Fleming in respect to the claim of the Provincial Hospital for keep of pauper lunatics. He stated that the committee went fully into the matter and it was finally decided that the Municipality was indebted to the province to $1858.57 and this is the amount the government claims must be paid.

The account was referred to the legal adviser.

On motion of Coun. Jamieson, Jas. Daley and Alex. Murchie were appointed constables for the parish of Colburn.

The legal adviser recommended that the account of the Provincial Hospital for maintenance of pauper lunatics be paid.

The Council so ordered the amounts to be charged to the different parishes.

On motion of Coun. Murchie a merry go round operating in the lower end of the town was granted a license at $5 per day.

Coun. Mowat moved that a special audit of the Mounty boboks be made previous to the January session. Carried.

Adjourned.

Paul Devereaux

A Campbellton Boy Who Became Mayor of an American Town.

Paul Devereaux was a native of Canada; born April 20, 1856, and came to the States when a boy in his teens. He was an industrious youth, never afraid of work and always eager to make an honest dollar. He came to Greene in 1876 and since that time has made his continuous residence here in Greene and immediate vicinity.

He was united in marriage to Sarah Gorman on December 23, 1879. She departed this life on January 21, 1881 and their infant son Paul, died one week or so later.

Mr. Devereaux has been struggling for many years with that dreaded disease, tuberculosis, and although everything was done to prolong life, the inevitable came Friday evening, April 23, 1909, and the soul departed this earthly life.

A more thoroughly honest man never lived. During the many years we have resided here, we have never heard him accused of a dishonest act. A man who has known him intimately during his long residence here, in speaking of his death said, that in all his dealings with the deceased, he never knew him to do the least thing ever tending toward dishonesty and never heard him make a remark derogatory to anyone. We doubt if he had an enemy in the world and he left none out friends behind. To know the man was to admire and respect him. What better or prouder heritage can a man leave behind him?

During the last few weeks of his life, he seemed to lose control of his limbs, but bore physical pains with the cheerfulness and patience of an inflexible will summoned by a brave man to face the common lot of all.

Greene has lost a distinguished citizen. For many years Mr. Devereaux was mayor of the town and his every deed and action was symbolic of honesty and justice to one and all alike.

During his time in public office his motto was, "public office is a public trust." That a good man has gone to his reward, is too true. In the death of Mr. Devereaux, a friend, a wise counselor, a companion, a man of such integrity and honor, that he has frequently been pointed to as an ideal man of honor in business and social circles, has passed. Death had not been unexpected at the home, but the pang of sorrow are no less keen. It is such men for whom there is sincere and tender sorrow in death—they are too few in the affairs of life today and cannot well be spared.

The frontier life of the deceased was devoted to honest toil on the farm after which he engaged in the grocery business with Mr. E. H. Barth and was a member of the firm of Clarke & Devereaux from 1898 until two years later, when he retired from active business and since which time he has lived the life of a retired business man.

Mr. Devereaux was united in marriage to Melvina Payette-Frasier on May 15, 1900, and to this ever happy union, one son, Angus, was born, who is a bright little fellow, eight years of age, left with his mother to mourn the loss of the departed.

The funeral services were conducted by Rev. Fr. Sheehy at St. Mary's Catholic church, Sunday morning at 10.30 and the spacious seating capacity of this magnificent sacred place of worship was taxed to its capacity with relatives and friends who gathered there to pay their last respects to one who was always dear to their hearts. The remains were laid to rest in the Catholic cemetery, south of town.—Ex.

ASSAULTED ON PATTERSON ST.

Inspector Duncan Noble says that the information given in the local and St. John papers in reference to the Duthie assault and robbery case, was not correct, that the alleged assault and robbery was not committed at or near the I. C. R. station as reported, but on Patterson st., about a half mile distant. Considerable uncalculated for notoriety has been given Campbellton of late in St. John papers and police headquarters seemed to be the source from which it goes to these journals. The police should be careful in giving information to outside papers which are prone to sensationalize such items to the injury of the town.—Graphic.

Military Manoeuvres.

British Army Corps Called 'Out and Made Good Record.

LONDON, July 7.—An army corps was called out for war recently.

Never before in the history of the British army has so unexpected, and yet so complete, a mobilization been carried out. Nearly twenty thousand men of all arms were lined up ready to entrain, and it was only by the absence of a call to the reservists that the feat differed from what the authorities hoped to effect in case of an actual or threatened invasion.

No warning of what was coming was given. At six o'clock in the morning Lieut.-Gen. Smith-Dorrien rode down to the headquarters office and gave the order for every unit in his command to turn out as rapidly as possible, fully mobilized, and ready for active service.

The military telephones linking up the barracks were soon busy with the order, and mounted cavaliers carried the summons to those officers who live out of barracks.

Some of the battalions were already in the field; the Gloucesters, for instance, having left barracks at four o'clock for a long day's operations. These were summoned back by mounted men and cyclist messengers, and within the hour every barracks was the centre of activity.

Waggons were dragged out and loaded with stores, water carts filled, ammunition drawn from the magazines and distributed, and field dressings and emergency rations issued to the men with their metal identity discs and locker ledgers.

For some time past the chiefs of staff have been working at this mobilization scheme to render it perfect for a sudden call, and the test that was being applied could only be equalled by the actual call of war. Indeed, among many of the troops the belief was accepted that an invasion was an accomplished fact.

The telegraph wires had carried the news to those officers and men away on week-end leave, and the early trains to Aldershot were filled with anxious soldiers, who on reaching the stations raced up to their barracks, to appear in a short space of time accounted and equipped for service.

Six hours was the time given for the units to get on parade, ready to move on, but so perfect was the machinery that in the great majority of cases little more than half that time was needed to report all ready.

From the Army Service Corps barracks parties of butchers and bakers, clerks, saddlers and artificers marched off to join the brigade and divisional headquarters, every man having his allotted place and his special duties.

No confusion marked the preparations, and long before the allotted time was up nearly 20,000 men, artillery, infantry and cavalry, with engineers and supply transport services, were marching out of barracks to go wherever needed.

The brigades and divisions assembled on Luffen's Plain, the Long Valley, Bordon and Blackdown and were in turn inspected in a thorough manner by Lieut. Gen. Smith-Dorrien, who seemed greatly pleased with the smart way in which the order was carried out.

Three days' rations, reserve ammunition, forage, water and even kindling wood for the fires were carried, so complete was the turn-out.

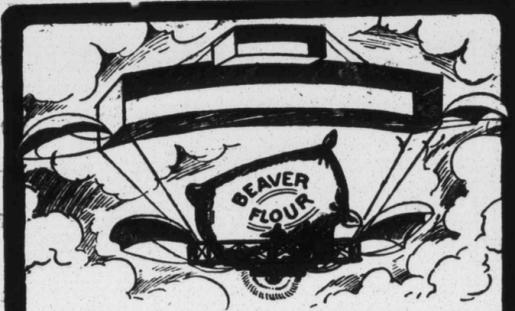

It is computed that the first battalion of infantry could have been got away in little more than one hour from the time of receiving the order and from that moment a constant stream of troops would have proceeded to their places for entraining.

MRS. SAGE'S BENEFACTIONS

Mrs. Russell Sage, the widow of the 'miser of Wall street,' gave away nearly fourteen million dollars last year and has planned to dispose of the fortune of sixty-five millions left by her late husband within the next five years. As Mrs. Sage is now past eighty, she may not live to see the accomplishment of her plans, but doubtless they will be carried out. Mrs. Sage's benefactions last year included ten millions for the 'Russell Sage foundation' and two millions for secret charities. The balance went to churches, colleges, schools and the Y. M. C. A. Her latest scheme is for the insurance of the lives of workmen without profit, which it is estimated, will cost fifty millions. It is calculated that Mrs. Sage is giving away her fortune at the rate of $2.89 a second or $171.67 a minute. What this means may be judged from the fact that Rockefeller is estimated to have made his vast fortune at the rate of not more than 26 cents a second and Carnegie not more than 20 cents a second.

Amatite ROOFING

Most roofings are made of only one layer, but Amatite is made in five layers. The bottom layer is wool felt, the next is real Coal Tar Pitch, the third is wool felt, the fourth is pitch again, into which is embedded the fifth layer, namely, the mineral surface.

It is easy to see why Amatite lasts so long when you realize how it is made. That mineral surface requires no painting or coating whatever, and will take the brunt of the weather without renewal or attention or care. Send for a sample of Amatite. It's free.

If the weather should, in the course of years, wear away the mineral surface and dispose of the layer of Pitch (which is the most waterproof substance on earth), it would still have to penetrate a layer of felt and another layer of composition and another layer of felt before the roof would leak.

Swiftly he made his preparations. A madman was upon him now, and he took no pains to check or analyze the reasons for his decision. The thought of her loveliness in his arms once more far up among the perfumed wooded heights as the silent darkness stole upon them stirred in him such a fret to be gone that it was like a fever. He slipped away to the barracks with instructions for his corporal, but was back again in a moment. Finally he took up his burden of blanket and food, then said to her:

"Well, are you ready, little one?"

"Yes, Meade," she answered simply.

"And you are sure you won't regret it?"

"Not while you love me."

He kissed her again before they stepped out on the river trail that wound along the bank.

Two hours later they paused where the foaming waters of Black Bear creek rioted down across a gravelled bar and into the silent, sweeping river, standing at the entrance to a wooded, grass grown valley, with rolling hills and domes displayed at its head, while back of them lay the town, six miles away, its low, squat buildings tides and toylike, but distinctly silhouetted against the evening sky.

"Is it not time to rest?" said the soldier laughingly, yet with a look of yearning in his misty eyes as he took the girl's figure in his arms. But she only smiled up at him and, releasing his hand, led the way into the forest.

CHAPTER V.
A STORY IS TOLD.

It's funny 't'ing how two brown eyes was changin' every'ing—
De closed she's no more on de sky,
An' winter's just lak spring,
De day's just lak de very night,
De trail she's not so long—
I'd walk it forty mile tonight
For hear her sing me song.
But say, I'm been de trader,
For every one dat get,
An' she's tole me yess, dat's soon,
Burrill's I'm own de wort!

POLSON DORET sang gayly as the trader came toward him through the open grove of birch, for he was happy this afternoon, and, being much of a dreamer, this fresh enterprise awoke in him a boyish pleasure. Had not this discovery of "No Creek" Lee's been providentially arranged for his own especial benefit? A fool could see that this was a mark of celestial approbation, and none but a fool would question the wisdom of the gods. Had he not watched Necia grow from a slip of thirteen and spoken never a word of his love? Had he not served and guarded her with all the gentle chivalry of an olden knight? Of course! And here was his reward, a gift of wealth to crown his service, all for her.

"Well," said Gale, slipping out of his pack straps, "the skeeters is bad!"

"You bet your gum boots," said Polson. "De'ye mos' so 't'ick as de sun-" mer day kill Johnnie Platt on de Porcupine." Both men wore gauntleted gloves of caribou skin and head harnesses of mosquito netting stretched over globe-like frames of thin steel bands, which they slipped on over their hats.

"Let's see. It was you that found him, wasn't it?" said Gale.

"Sure 't'ing! I'm comin' down for grub in my canoe when I see dis feller on de bank walkin' lak he's in beeg goin' so fast he'll meet dese' comin' home! Den he turn 'roun' an' go tearin' back, wavin' hees arms lak he's callin' me, till he fall down. When I piddle close up I don't know 'im no more—dan stranger, an' m' an' Johnnie Platt is trap together wan winter. What you 't'ick of dat?"

"I saw a fellow killed that way at Holy Cross," interpolated the trader.

"Hello! I say. What's de matter? An' den I see some'ing 'bout 'im dat look familiar. Hees face she's all swell' up an' bleedin' lak raw meat." The Frenchman curled his upper lip back from his teeth and shook his head at the remembrance.

"Jesu, dat's 'terrible sight! Den by creek, and there ain't a half dozen men ever been up to the head of that stream, much less over the divide, so I don't allow there's any use to fret ourselves."

They went on their way, traveling leisurely until late evening, when they camped at the mouth of the valley up which the miner's cabin lay. Camp had been made early at Gale's suggestion instead of pushing on a few miles farther, as Lee had intended, and now, when the cool evening fell and the draft quickened, it became possible to lay off gloves and headgear, so they sat about the fire, talking, smoking and rubbing their tired feet.

It is at such hours and in the smoke of such fires that men hark backward and bring forth the sacred, time worn memories they have treasured to turn them over fondly by the glow of dying embers.

"No Creek" Lee, the one eyed miner who had made this lucky strike, told in simple words of his long and solitary quest, when ill luck had risen with him at the dawn and misfortune had stalked beside him as he drifted and drank from camp to camp, while the gloom of a settled pessimism soured him, and men began to shun him because of the evil that seemed to follow in his steps.

"Well, if Lee hasn't brought Runnon along!"

"I've been rainbow chasin' forty years," he said, "and never caught nothin' but cramps and epidemics and inflammations. I'm the only miner in Alaska that never made a discovery of gold and never had a creek named after him."

"Is that how you got your name?" asked Runnon.

"It is. I never was no good to myself nor nobody else. I just occupied space."

Finally Gale arose, remarking sleepily that it was time to turn in. If they wished to get any rest before the mosquitoes got bad again, then sauntered away from the fire and spread his blanket. The rest followed and made down their beds, then, drawing on gloves and hat nets and rolling themselves up in their coverings, fell to snoring—all except the trader, who lay for hours on his back staring up at the stars, as if trying to solve some riddle that baffled him.

They awoke early and in half an hour had eaten, remade their packs and were ready to resume their march.

As they were about to start Gale said: "I reckon we'd better settle right now who has the choice of locations when we get up yonder. I've been on stampedes when it saved a heap of hard feeling."

"I'm agreeable," said Stark. "Then there won't be any misunderstanding." The others, being likewise old at the game, acquiesced. They knew that in such cases grave trouble has often occurred when two men have cast eyes on the same claim and have felt the miner's causeless "hunch" that gold lies here or there or that the ground one of them covets is wanted by the other.

"I'll hold the straws," said Lee, "and every feller will have an even break." Turning his back on the others, he cut four splinters of varying lengths, and, arranging them so that the ends peeped evenly from his big hand, he held them out.

"The longest one has the first choice, and so on," he said, presenting them to Gale, who promptly drew the longest of the four. He turned to Doret, but the Frenchman waved him courteously to Stark, and when both he and Runnon had made their choice Lee handed him the remaining one, which was next in length to that of the trader. Stark and Runnon qualified in the order they drew, the latter cursing his evil luck.

"Never min', ole man," laughed Poleon; "de las' shot she's de sure wan."

They took up their burdens again and filed toward the narrow valley.

from its fleeting unreality. They talked and laughed and sang with a rush of spirits as untamed as the waters in the course they followed. They wandered hand in hand into a land of illusions, where there was nothing real but love and nothing tangible but joy.

They held to the bed of the stream, for its volume was low and enabled them to ford it from bar to bar.

They had become so intimate by now as to fall into a whimsical mode of speech, and Necia reverted to a childish habit in her talk that brought many a smile to the youth's face. It had been her fancy as a little girl to speak in adjectives, ignoring many of her nouns, and its quaintness had so amused her father that on rare occasions, when the humor was on him, he also took it up. She now addressed herself to Burrell in the same manner.

"I think we are very smart to come so far," she said.

"You travel like a deer," he declared admiringly. "Why, you have tired me down." Removing his pack, he stretched his arms and shook out the ache in his shoulders.

He built a fire, then fetched a bucket of water from a rill that trickled down among the rocks near by. He made up if to prepare their meal, but she would have none of it.

"Bigs should never cook," she declared. "That work belongs to litters," then forced him to vacate her domain and turn himself to the manlier duties of chopping wood and boughs.

First, however, she showed him how to place two green foot logs upon which the teapot and the frying pan would sit without upsetting and how long she wished the sticks of cooking wood. Then she banished him, as it were, and he built a wickup of spruce tops, under the shelter of which he piled thick, fragrant billows of "Yukon feathers."

He filled his chest deeply and leaned on his ax, for he found himself shaking as if under the spell of some great expectancy.

"Your supper is getting cold," she called to him.

He took a seat beside her on a pile of boughs where the smoke was little troublesome. He had chosen a spot that was sheltered by a lichen covered ledge, and this low wall behind, with the wickup joining it, formed an enclosure that lent them a certain air of privacy. They ate ravenously and drank deep cups of the unadorned tea. By the time they were finished the night had fallen, and the air was just cool enough to make the fire agreeable. Burrell heaped on more wood and stretched out beside her.

"This day has been so wonderful," said the girl, "that I shall never go to sleep. I can't bear to end it."

"But you must be weary, little maid," he said gently. "I am."

"Wait. Let me see." She stretched her limbs and moved slightly to try her muscles. "Yes, I am very tired, but not the kind of tired that makes you want to go to bed. I want to talk, talk, talk, and not about ourselves either, but about sensible. Tell me about your people—your sister."

MR. N. HOWARD MAKES HIS WILL.
Left $10,000 to Girl Who Scorned His Love

PHILADELPHIA, July 1.—Being of sound mind and body, I give and bequeath all my property, real and personal, to Elizabeth Croskey, 3325 Rowletton avenue, Philadelphia, Pa., with a life interest of $3,000 a year to my father—William N. Howard.

Such is the brief will which William Nixon Howard wrote, in a fairly firm hand, before he committed suicide in his home, 1602 Master street, June 4, last.

The chief beneficiary Howard named in his will is a young woman with whom he was deeply infatuated, daughter of Dr. John Welsh Croskey. She denied, when Howard killed himself, that she had engaged herself to marry him and a few days after his death she married. The value of his bequest to her is $10,000.

Howard's father, Daniel W. Howard has begun a contest of the will, filing a caveat against probating it, alleging that his son was of unsound mind.

Howard's friends say that he was erratic, unrequited love for the then Miss Croskey having unbalanced his mind. His relatives insist that excessive smoking of cigarettes was one of the causes of his mental vagary.

The night before he killed himself young Howard called Miss Croskey on the telephone and said:

"I hear you have said I gave you headaches and made you sick. I'm going to do something now that will give you good cause to feel bad."

A GOOD APPOINTMENT.

The appointment of William M. MacLean, principal of the Aberdeen school in St. John and President of the trades union known as the New Brunswick Teachers' Association, as school Inspector for District number 6 in place of W. S. Carter, the new chief superintendent, is a fitting reward for Mr. MacLean's public services as a teacher, and should be a popular appointment. Mr. MacLean is sixty years of age, has taught many years and is well qualified for his new position. As president of the organization that has done so much to improve the condition of teachers throughout the province, he will be particularly acceptable to the teaching profession. We trust that as Inspector he will be able to continue his good work for the Teachers' Union.

GOVERNMENT SHOULD INTERVENE.

From one-half to two-thirds of the Dominion Coal Company's 7000 employees are on strike; the miners employed at Inverness by McKenzie and Mann have also struck, and the trouble may at any moment involve the mines of Pictou and Cumberland Counties. The longer the strike lasts the higher the price of coal and, incidentally, all kinds of fuel next winter. At the request of the mine owners, troops are patrolling Cape Breton County, at the expense of the Municipal authorities. Private ownership having been proven much too costly and disastrous to the general public as well as to the men employed, the government should step in and at once take over the mines and operate them in the interest of the whole public, paying the miners at a just rate and supplying the consumers at a reasonable price. This is the only solution of the vexed question.

Calling Out The Militia.

In regard to the unseemly haste with which the militia were ordered to Glace Bay last week on the requisition of Judge Finleyson at the request of the Dominion Coal Company, and against the vigorous protest of the Mayor and Council of that town, the St. John Globe, than which there is no fairer and more independent newspaper in Canada, has the following editorial in its issue of the 9th instant:

Calling out the militia to interfere in a dispute between workmen and their employers is always a serious matter, and it ought not to be resorted to except in case of absolute necessity when life and property are in such great jeopardy that the interference of the armed forces of the government seems to justify recourse to this extreme proceeding. Formerly, and, indeed, until within a few years, the call for the government troops in a particular locality had to be made by the municipal authorities, the Mayor of the town, the Warden of the county, or other official person exercising civil authority. These officials were often reluctant to exercise their power in this respect. For the call for the troops involves expense upon the municipality or town to which they are called, inasmuch as the expense which the government incurs in sending the troops and maintaining them at the place to which they are called, must be repaid by the locality. Then, again, the call often excites a great deal of bitter feeling among the persons whose interests or affairs are affected by the coming of the troops, and the municipal authorities dislike very much to be the objects of such feeling. It was found, or, at least, it was held, if we remember aright, in the province of Quebec, that delay of the local authorities in calling for the troops, caused a riot to assume much greater importance than it would have assumed if the troops had been called early; and the result was an amendment to the law empowering the authorities to send out the troops on the requisition of a judge or of some other eminent person in the district. In regard to the trouble now existing at Cape Breton, Mayor Douglas, of the town of Glace Bay would not apply to the government for military aid, as he did not appear to think there was need for it when the application was made to him to get the troops. In fact, he said that he could swear in a number of special police to preserve order. Then there was an application by the mine people to the County Judge, and that official appears, by the despatches, to have acted upon the affidavits presented to him without any special inquiry into all conditions. The mine representatives stated the grounds upon which they based their application for the troops. The judge seems to have regarded these as well founded, and the requisition was made for the troops. As a matter of course they were sent upon application; and they got away from Halifax with creditable despatch. Of course their appearance upon the scene gives additional interest to the dispute, and in part justifies the observation of Mr. Douglas "that the calling out of the militia at this time would only aggravate the intensity of the situation."

THE CITIZEN AND THE TRAVELLER

"Look round you," said the citizen, "this is the largest market in the world."
"Oh! surely not," said the traveller.
"Well, perhaps not the largest," said the citizen, "but much the best."
"You are certainly wrong there," said the traveller, "I can tell you."
They buried the stranger at the dusk.

STANDARD OF THE WORLD

HOW WEAK GIRLS MAY GROW INTO STRONG WOMEN.

The Blood Supply Must be Kept Rich, Red and Pure—Good Blood Means Good Health.

Healthy girlhood is the only path to healthy womanhood. The merging of girlhood into womanhood lays a new tax upon the blood. It is the overtaxing of the scanty blood supply that makes growing girls suffer from all those headaches, backaches and side-aches—all that paleness, weakness and weariness—all that languor, despondency and constant ill health. Unhealthy girlhood is bound to lead to unhealthy womanhood and a life of misery. Nothing but the blood-building qualities of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills can save a girl when she undertakes the trials and tasks of womanhood. That is the time when nature makes new demands upon the blood supply. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills actually makes new, rich blood which meets these new demands with ease. In this simple scientific way Dr. Williams' Pink Pills fill a girl with overflowing health and strength. Miss Eva Dennis, Anaherst, N. S., says: "Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have done me a world of good. I was completely run down, was very pale, easily tired and suffered from frequent severe headaches. Though I tried many medicines I got nothing to do me the least good until I began using Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Even the first box of these seemed to help me and after taking a half dozen boxes I was again a healthy girl. I have not had any illness since, but should I again feel run down Dr. Williams' Pink Pills will be my only medicine, and I strongly recommend them to every weak and ailing girl." Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all medicine dealers or sent by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 by The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

OBITUARY.

MRS. JOHN F. KINGSTON.
An unusually sad death was that of Mrs. John F. Kingston, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew McCaig, who departed this life at twelve o'clock Sunday at the early age of 39 years. Her husband, who is a prominent lumberman and son of John Kingston of Chaplin Island Road, is left to mourn her loss, and four small children—Drew, aged six, Michael, Helen, and Joseph, aged 16 days, are orphans. The following brothers and sisters of deceased survive: Clare P., John, James, Michael, Roderick, Kathleen and Agnes, all of Newcastle. The late Mrs. Kingston was an active and honored member of the Roman Catholic church and belonged to the society of St. Mary. Much sympathy is felt for the bereaved relatives. The funeral was held yesterday morning, interment in St. Mary's cemetery. A very arge attendance showed the great respect in which the deceased was held. The pallbearers were John Sargeant, J. M. Falconer, Hugh Quilty, M. McCarron, G. F. McWilliam and P. J. McEvoy.

MRS. FRANK LEFRANC.

Word was received here Tuesday of the death of Mrs. Frank LeFranc which occurred very suddenly on Saturday at Battleboro, Vermont. Mr. and Mrs. LeFranc were former residents of Newcastle, where Mr. LeFranc was employee of the Anderson Furniture Co. A little over a year ago they removed to Vermont. A husband and five children the youngest a month old, are bereft of a loving wife and mother. Many friends here will sympathize with the family in their sad loss. Mrs. LeFranc's remains were taken to her former home in Walkertown, Ont., for burial.

EMMA GOLDMAN AND ANARCHISM.

(From the Halifax Morning Chronicle)
Emma Goldman, the American Anarchist, who has on several occasions suffered imprisonment for her seditious public utterances, has thus summarized her "creed" for one of the New York papers:—

"Law is nothing but the tyranny of a king here, an emperor there, a parliament in another place, a majority everywhere. No man has a right to prescribe for another or to proscribe another. No one has a right to punish another. No one will injure another in the time to be, when laws and institutions, being removed, shall cease to distort the mind and abort the spirit. Parties are a superstition."

Did you ever advocate violence? she was asked.
"No," she said, "but in the same matter-of-fact way—no one can doubt that if Emma Goldman advocated violence she would announce it and accept the responsibility for it. "One of the first lectures I delivered was on "The Psychology of Violence," because I wanted to show that acts of violence had very little to do with any philosophy of life."

"I wanted to show," she went on "that such acts proceed from several conditions. First, of course, is the psychology of the individual himself, as shown, for instance, in abnormal sensitiveness to a great wrong. Secondly there is the great pressure, economic or social and thirdly—which I consider the most important factor—the feeling resulting from the bitter opposition which every new idea meets."

"But is Anarchism, as you teach it, a thing which has to do with violence?" she was asked.
"Violence," Miss Goldman said, "has nothing whatever to do with the philosophy of Anarchism."

And she went on to illustrate, to say that if a man threw a bomb because he believed in prohibition, or civil service reform, or the Emmanuel movement, it would not be charged against the principle that the man believed in; but that every time a man who happened to believe in Anarchism threw a bomb or fired a pistol, that was charged against the thing he happened to believe in.

MILLIONAIRE MUST SUFFER DEATH PENALTY

EL PASO, July 7.—News was received here last night that the Supreme Court of the State of San Luis, Potosi, Mexico, has confirmed the death penalty of Dario Gonzales, the millionaire who was convicted of the murder of his brother-in-law, Manuel Iturec, the wealthy son of an American. In addition to the confirming of the death penalty, the court has issued a decree securing Gonzales to pay to the widow of the man he murdered the sum of $200,000. The prominence popularity and wealth of Gonzales was relied upon to secure for him a lighter sentence.

COLLISION IN HEAVY FOG ALMOST MARINE HORROR

DOVER, Eng. July 7.—The British steamer Whakatane, running to New Zealand, was towed here in a sinking condition and beached. The Whakatane was in collision off Dungeness in a fog with the French steamer Circe. The latter was damaged, but was able to proceed on her voyage to Rotterdam. No lives were lost.

The Whakatane had 300 passengers aboard. She also carried a large number of valuable horses. It was an exceedingly narrow escape from a terrible disaster. Immediately after the vessels struck, the Circe, with the help of another steamer took the Whakatane in tow, but the hawsers broke. The Circe then steamed to Dover for assistance.

Several tugs put out and proceeded at top speed to the sinking steamer. When the liner arrived here she presented an extraordinary appearance with her stern lying deep in the water. All the crew were mustered forward. Six salvage tugs and other vessels were lending assistance in the difficult operation of towing the sinking steamer to the beach. The Circe had crashed into her amidships, making a great rent in her side.

MODEL FARM PROPOSED

H. Duquesne Asks for Grant of 500 Acres to Establish Model Farm For Restigouche

At the semi-annual session of the Restigouche County Council held at Dalhousie on Tuesday, an important proposition was laid before the councillors by a practical French farmer, H. Duquesne, who has done valuable work in Quebec, and has many recommendations from Agricultural officials at Ottawa.

Mr. Duquesne asks for a grant of 500 acres of land upon which to establish a model farm for Restigouche. Upon this he proposes to establish an orchard and a general farm and demonstrate to the farmers of Restigouche that fruits can be successfully raised here.

Mr. Duquesne has been living on Sheriff Stewart's farm at Dalhousie and already has produced remarkable results along certain lines.

Home Course In Modern Agriculture

VIII.—Corn Growing

By C. V. GREGORY,
Agricultural Division, Iowa State College

Copyright, 1908, by American Press Association

Corn is the principal crop grown over so large a section of the United States it is important that we learn as much as possible regarding the best methods of producing it. The average yield of corn in the United States is only 22.7 bushels per acre. The best farmers are able to obtain an average yield of sixty to seventy bushels per acre year after year. There is no secret in their methods. They are simple enough to be applied to every farm in the corn belt. There is no reason why the average yield per acre should not be fifty bushels or more instead of less than half that, as at present.

In preparing to raise a maximum crop of corn there are two main factors to be considered—the soil and the seed. Of these two the first is probably the more important. We have already learned how the plant obtains food and water from the soil. The first step in preparing the soil for a corn-crop, then, is to see that there is a plentiful supply of plant food on hand. This we can do by using barnyard manure liberally and by following a consistent system of rotation that will equalize the demands made on the soil and keep up the supply of nitrogen and humus.

The next point is to see that the soil is in such condition that the roots will have little difficulty in branching out to secure the needed plant food and water. Thorough plowing, disking and harrowing will make the soil fine and mellow, so that the roots will have little trouble in obtaining all the plant food they can use, provided it is there at all.

The water supply can be regulated to a considerable extent by tile drainage and by keeping the surface loose to check evaporation. The temperature of the soil is also an important factor in hastening germination and early growth. Drainage, cultivation and the maintenance of a plentiful supply of humus will aid greatly in securing a warm seed bed by planting time.

With a warm, well prepared soil containing sufficient quantities of plant food and water the next question that comes up is regarding the kind of seed to put into that soil. All most any kind of seed will grow and produce a fair crop under favorable conditions. What we are after, however, is not a fair crop, but an extra good one.

The seed of different strains of corn varies greatly in its ability to produce yields. In the spring of 1905 the Iowa experiment station gathered seed from nearly a hundred different sources and planted it on the station grounds. Under conditions that were as nearly alike as it was possible to make them the yields from the different strains varied from thirty-one to eighty bushels per acre. This variation shows that a large share of the improvement in corn production must come through the breeding of high yielding strains.

It is not safe to ship in seed corn from a distance. Corn is very sensitive to changes in climate and soil. To obtain the best results the work of breeding must be done for each locality and to some extent for each farm.

A method of improving in seed corn that will surely result in some improvement and one that has simplicity to recommend it is that of selecting a number of the best ears each year and planting them in a field by themselves or in one corner of the main field. By selecting the best ears from this breeding plot each year to plant next year's breeding plot and using the rest of the good ears to plant in the main field some improvement can be effected. The weak point in this plan, however, is that the yielding power of an ear cannot be told from its appearance. Neither is it possible to prevent inbreeding by such a method.

To avoid these difficulties the "individual ear" plot has been devised. This should preferably be at least forty rods from the nearest cornfield. Where this is impossible a strip along the south side of a field of the same variety may be used. As the prevailing July and August winds are from the south, very little pollen from the main field will blow over on the breeding plot.

Each row in the individual ear plot is to be planted with the kernels from a single ear. As a fair-sized ear will plant a row forty rods long, this is a convenient length for the plot. Select from 50 to 100 of the best ears you can find among your corn and plant them in as many rows across the plot. The work can be done with a planter if care is taken to clean the seed boxes out thoroughly each time across. The cultivation given to the plot should be the same as that which the main field receives. The time for special treatment comes when the tassels begin to appear. We have already learned that inbreeding is weakening and that cross fertilization develops strength and vitality. In order to prevent inbreeding in the individual ear plot the tassels on every alternate row should be pulled out as soon as they appear. In order that these may be removed before they shed any pollen it will be necessary to go over the field every other day for a week after the first tassels start. At the same time any tassels from weak, barren or spindling stalks in the other rows should be removed. In this way only pollen from healthy, vigorous stalks is allowed to mature. Thus the ears on the detasseled rows, being cross fertilized and having only strong, healthy male parents, have a much better chance of producing large yields when planted than would ears picked from the general field.

The most important point, however, is the selection of high yielding strains that is made possible by having the ears planted in individual rows. When harvesting time comes the produce of each row should be husked separately and weighed. It will be found that there is a great difference in yield. The highest yielding rows, provided the corn is of good quality, should furnish seed for next year's breeding plot. The rest of the good seed ears from the detasseled rows should be planted in a small field, known as the "multiplying plot." The best of the seed from this multiplying plot can be used to plant the general fields and for sale.

By continuing this breeding process from year to year a strain of corn may be built up that will far outyield the ordinary corn of the neighborhood. In addition to the increase in yield which will result on your own farm, a trade in seed corn may be built up that will add materially to the year's profits. There are many variations in the plan of breeding here outlined, but the essential point in all of them is to select the best yielding individual ears and to prevent cross pollination as much as possible.

After the seed corn has been picked it should be stored in such a manner that it will pass through the winter uninjured. The hints in regard to seed storage as given in article No. 6 should be followed.

Some time toward the close of winter the corn should be tested. For a preliminary test a hundred kernels may be taken from as many ears in different parts of the room. If the corn has exceptionally strong vitality the kernels may all germinate. In case some of the kernels fail to grow or any considerable number show weak sprouts each ear should be tested separately in order that the weak ones may be discarded. The method of making this test has been described so many times in agricultural papers and bulletins that it will be unnecessary to give it in detail here. It simply consists in placing several kernels from each ear in a corresponding square in the germinating box. In this way the vitality of each ear may be readily determined.

Shortly before planting time the ears should be shelled and run through a seed corn grader to take out the butt and tip kernels and divide the rest into even grades. The next step is to block up the planter and run through a sample of each grade, changing plates until a set is found that will drop the required number of kernels practically every time. If this is done and well tested seed used a good stand will almost certainly result.

Avoid too deep planting. All that is necessary is to have the seed well covered with moist soil. If this can be done without putting it down more than an inch or two, so much the better. Since the plant cannot begin to digest and use the plant food of the soil and air until it has unfolded its leaves it is plain that the less soil it has to push through before it can spread out its leaves and get to work the sooner it will commence to grow. Deep planted seeds often so nearly exhaust the plant food in the endosperm before they reach the surface that they are never able to develop into strong, healthy plants.

After planting the aim should be to keep the soil in the same fine tilth it was in at planting time in order to provide large feeding ground for the roots and prevent the escape of capillary moisture.

WEDDING BELLS.

MACLEAN-SEWELL.

Friends here were interested to learn of the marriage at Bathurst of Francis F. MacLean, of Bartibogue, to Miss Sadie Sewell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Sewell, of Bathurst, on Tuesday afternoon, July 6th, at 2 o'clock. Rev. R. L. Carson, rector of the Episcopal church, performed the ceremony. The bride looked charming in a white embroidered suit with hat to match. A dainty wedding luncheon was served at the Robinson hotel, after which the happy couple left for their new home at Bartibogue.

DALHOUSIE.

DALHOUSIE, July 8.—The citizens of Dalhousie have had to complain very often about the difficulty of securing a special train to take them to Campbellton to attend any important function.

Why that should be so is very difficult to understand. One would think that with the Superintendent at Campbellton there should be no time lost in arranging for an engine and a couple of cars to go to Campbellton without one person having to guarantee a certain amount.

It was at a very late hour that it became known at the Dalhousie station on the eve of Dominion Day that there would be a special train leaving next morning for Campbellton. Had the weather been fine and notice given ahead nearly 200 persons would have gone to Campbellton to celebrate the day. As it was 88 tickets were sold at our station.

It is to be hoped that Superintendent Price will be able to make a business like arrangement with the I. C. R. commission by which on the receipt of a message from any reliable citizen speaking for a number of people to provide a special train so that our citizens may attend from time to time any function going on in Campbellton.

The meeting of the Auxiliary of the Women's Missionary Society which was held on Tuesday was well attended, and great interest taken in the deliberations.

The temperance hall has been improved lately by receiving a nice coat of paint.

Work is progressing well at the three new residences that are being erected here. The pretty homes built on Adelaide street cor Doctor Disbrow and Principal Jones on William street, for the Messrs. Hilyard will add very much to the appearance of our little town.

Messrs. A. & R. Loggie lost a valuable horse today. While being driven between the station and the wharf, the horse was struck by the engine of the branch train and was so badly injured that he had to be killed.

Everything points to a very successful tourist season for Dalhousie this year. A great many guests have already arrived at Inch Arran House and families are coming by every express train.

Several families from Fredericton will be guests at this famous resort this year.

Among the young men ordained by Archbishop McCarthy, Halifax, on Tuesday was Joseph Turgeon, son of O. Turgeon, M. P. for Gloucester, who received sub-deaconship. Mr. Turgeon has joined the Eudist order.

For the next four weeks there will be no Presbyterian service here, Rev. and Mrs. MacArthur going away on a vacation.

THE JULY HOME JOURNAL

In the July Home Journal "The Dominion of To-Day" tells of the wonderful growth of Canada from 1867 to 1909. The new serial story "The Mystery of Barry Ingram," by Annie S. Swan, starts in this number. The opening chapters give promise of its being one of the best stories ever offered to Canadian readers.

"The Awakening" is an excellent short story of a dream that came true. Many girls have ambitions to become writers. Their troubles and perplexities are told in brief in "The Girl Who Wants to Write."

Women are coming to the front as explorers and a short sketch of the travels of Miss Agnes Deans Cameron in Northern Canada is very entertaining. "Wanted, a Beauty Combine," is a splendid article advocating the retaining of the natural beauty of our towns and villages. It is excellently illustrated with photographs.

The whole issue is profusely illustrated. The cover is an excellent reproduction in colors of "The Violet Lady," by Canada's foremost artist, W. Goode, who also contributed the "Summer Girl" which is printed in colors inside.

This magazine has improved so much recently that many leading Canadian women are reading the Home Journal in preference to foreign publications.

The news that the mid-summer horse races, advertised by the M. A. E. A. of Chatham for July 14 and 15, have been called off will be heard with regret by the horse-men in this vicinity. The Chatham committee occupy the unique position of having the track in such excellent shape that the American horsemen are chary of entering, not wishing to mark their horses with a fast record so early in the season. The proposition was made that the track be ploughed up, but taking all matters in consideration the directors thought it best to call the meet off altogether.

The Fredericton Herald says:—It seems to be the general impression that the sporting public did not get a square deal in at least one of the horse races pulled off here last week. If one can place any credence in the reports heard on every side, it was manipulated for the benefit of a few individuals. The president of the Park Association, who usually takes high ground on moral questions, should not allow reports of this kind to get abroad if they are not founded upon facts.

CRUCIFIXIONS IN PERSIA

Punishment by crucifixion still survives in Persia, but the victim is nailed to a wall instead of to a cross. At the gates of towns may be seen pillars of brick with domed tops about the height of a man, in which victims are walled up. They may be heard calling for water, though generally the pillars are supposed to have their hollows filled up with earth, so that the victims cannot move and die quickly. Another way of punishment is to bury a man up to his neck in wet slime, which when it dries, contracts and gradually crushes him. This is the most terrible of all deaths.

LONGBOAT BEHAVING WELL

DESERONTO, July 7.—Sol Mintz, of Hamilton, Longboat's manager, arrived here last evening, and was met at the station by his Indian charge, who took him to Mr. Maracle's home on the Mohawk reserve. Longboat has been visiting here since July 1st, and has been keeping away from the hotels. "I have my own contract now, and think I will have to clean up all these good runners again," said Longboat today.

Mrs. Gould says it is bad form to wear a gown more than once. And it was for this the late Jay manipulated railways.

No use, kids, thinking of hitting west, to emulate the deeds of Buffalo Bill. The golden age has passed. It's the office or the workshop for you.

OUR BASEBALL COLUMN

BALL PLAYING--IT'S HARD WORK

BY JOHNNY EVERS

Second Base, Chicago Champions

When you hear a person give voice to the expression, "Ball-players have an easy time of it," you are doubtless inclined to side with him and agree that we get our money without an awful lot of trouble. But, permit me to say, you are far from the truth in your belief. A ball-player, I mean of course a big leaguer, for in the bushes they will often hold onto a man who is not what he might be, simply because he's cheap, and good enough to get by,—has a life full of real hard work. In fact it's safe to declare, that of all occupations entailing a remuneration of, say $3,000 per annum, that of the diamond artist is fraught with the most hard work and trouble. Men in business who receive large salaries, and go about at their leisure, with seemingly nothing to do, work, we are told with their brains. But to use the popular phraseology, the ball tosser gets out every day and enjoys himself for a couple of hours playing a good healthy game, and then has the rest of the time to himself. It all sounds very fine, but it comes a long way from hitting the target.

Baseball is a good healthy game all right, and there's much enjoyment to be had playing it, but when you have to get out, day in and day out, for six or seven months, and play, think you not it is likely to grow rather monotonous and wearisome? No matter whether you feel lively or listless, so long as you can stand up, you have to keep at it, and turn out mighty perfect work, or you'll find yourself looking for a new occupation. It's no joke when you're feeling in the dumps, to trot out on a field, with the sun beating down on you, and the temperature at ninety or thereabouts, and jump around and act as though the greatest pleasure in the world for you consisted in running your legs off, and getting in front of balls that are coming your way at the rate of a mile a minute. A person's brain you all know, is quite likely to become weary when worked too much. In most cases, the brain worker, when obsessed by this tired feeling, takes himself off to the country, and enjoys himself for a couple of weeks, until his mental mechanism has recovered its equilibrium. But the baseball man, who is essentially a brain worker, has to stick right to his job, no matter how worked out he feels. Many hold the opinion that the great qualification for the baseballist is physical strength. But they are wrong. To be successful in the national game, one must be plentifully endowed with gray matter. It's a case of think, think, all the time, and the fellow who trusts to luck and does not see to it that he has his brains under full steam every minute will not last long.

You have to study, both from personal observation and from books and newspapers, the peculiarities of every man who plays on any of the teams in the league with you. You have to know just where this player is likely to hit an inshoot, and where he is likely to send a straight ball or an outshoot. You have to know how much lead a certain player can be given off a base before you can catch him napping. You have to discover what player is likely to lay down a bunt, and what one will always hit out. Then you will have to make long exhaustive study of the pitchers, so that you will be able, once in a while, to outguess them. If a player can be reasonably sure of what pitcher is going to serve up to him, it will improve his batting ability a hundred per cent. Then you have to get into your head a long and complicated series of signals, which cover almost every imaginable twist and turn of a baseball game. You have to have a pretty good set of brains to get a whole lot of signs down to such perfection that you can recognize them on the instant and act immediately, though you may be almost crazy with excitement, and have a mad mob of twenty or thirty thousand people shrieking at you.

Ball players like all other human beings, have nerves, and again, as in the case of these other humans, those nerves are apt to go bad when too much strain is placed on them. And what greater strain can you imagine on the nerves than to know that upon you alone depends the winning of a game which may perhaps mean the capturing of a pennant and the addition of thousands of dollars to your employer's profits, and the salaries of your fellow players and yourself. The great uncertainty of baseball makes every player have the feeling that to him alone is likely to come the chance to make or mar the work of an entire season. A little error at a crucial moment, and everything will be lost. Don't you think that it is quite liable to worry a person, who has to stand there on the diamond a couple of hours a day, for perhaps a week at a time to know that, at any moment, the ball is perhaps coming his way, and that he must make good? They talk about the great strain that the engineer on a fast train works under. He does, but the great strain on him is not any greater than that on the ball player. The engineer knows that if everything holds together, as he is almost practically certain it will, he is running no very great risk. The ball player on the other hand knows that there is no telling what is about to occur. For the engineer there are but two courses of thought, one, if nothing breaks, all is well; the other—if anything happens, jump, and but two situations. For the ball player there are innumerable courses of thought, and, as a necessary complement, innumerable situations likely to confront him. It has been said, and well said, that no two plays on a ball field are ever made in just the same way. There is always something new cropping up, which has to be dealt with in the least possible fraction of a second.

I have mentioned a few of the different things that the man in the big leagues has to overcome before he can say that he has made good. I might mention many more, but I think that I have shown, at sufficient length, just what a nervous tension he is ever working under. It is my opinion that his money is well earned and that his work is not at all easy. I might have touched on the fact that the ball player is the source of enormous profits to the ones who employ him, and consequently should get his fitting share of the profits, but I do not wish to be put down as a knocker, because, in reality, I'm an optimist.

Why keep the boy grubbing at the dead languages when he can read the baseball column and learn a fresh-killed one every day?

A Michigan bank president has seen a free because his speculations did not result profitably. If they had he would never have been arrested. Both ways—he wins.

SEVEREST INDIGESTION CURED BY "No. 11"

Father Morriscy's Stomach Remedy

So many people with Stomach Trouble come or write to Father Morriscy that he gave the matter special attention, and devised his "No. 11" Tablets. Each of these tablets will digest 13½ pounds of food—a good meal—so that when if the stomach can scarcely act at all, the meal will be digested.

Read how the treatment cured Mr. Gosline:—

Salmon Lake, Nov. 30, 1908. "I was troubled with indigestion, so severe that I really thought I had cancer of the stomach. I took much doctor's remedies till I was forced to seek another resource, and this was the Rev. Father Morriscy. I'll Explain Why I Always Drive a GENDRON

"You see the breaking of the springs causes us baby drivers more trouble than any other weakness in carriage cars. But there is no spring weakness in the GENDRON car. Note that double curve. It is exclusive with the GENDRON. It so distributes the strain that the spring never breaks. And then the wheels,—you see they are specially welded, and cannot warp or break. Note also that little rubber cap over the nut of the axle. Sometimes when I have a restless passenger, I want to drive the car around the house without scratching the furniture—it is a little point, but a good one. The materials for all the GENDRON cars are the very best in the bodies, tops and every other part. There is style and service in every GENDRON model—Canadian made, so that any unexpected accident can be easily remedied."

HOW CANADA IS MISREPRESENTED

We often laugh at the ignorant and absurd statements about Canada of the British papers, which should know better, but possibly the strangest and one of the most recent is published in a Parisian paper, whereof the writer says among other things:

"Capital is absolutely unknown in Canada. The people have done nothing so far in building up the country. More than half of it is unexplored. Its mines, its forests, its coal beds are in a great measure unexploited. Its roads and methods of transportation are primitive and utterly inadequate. Its commerce and industry are merely in their infancy."

For a country in which capital is absolutely unknown, it might surprise the writer of the article in question to learn that Canada has more than two billion dollars invested in agriculture and nearly one billion in manufacturing industries. Nearly 25,000 miles of railway represent the "primitive character" of our transportation facilities, with a third transcontinental railway rushing towards completion, to say nothing of a canal system in which $90,000,000 of money has been expended. A total trade of $650,000,000 a year represents Canada's "commerce in its infancy." In our savings banks there reposes a little nest-egg of $650,000,000 in cash. The fact that a large part of the country is unexplored is only evidence of Canada's greatness. Canada is eighteen times the size of France, and has a coast line equal to half the circumference of the earth. There is room to grow, for the three northern districts of the Dominion are larger than China.

There are further facts along these lines which might be digested. Canada in the last quarter of a century has produced over 800 millions worth of mineral wealth. The fisheries of Canada are most extensive in the world, and last year the fishery production was more than $25,000,000. Fishery equipment alone is worth $15,000,000. Since Confederation Canada has produced nearly 700 millions from fisheries. The field crops for last year alone were in the vicinity of 500 millions.

The strangest thing about the article is that the writer concludes by stating that he sought to tell the truth.—Ex.

HORSE RACES OFF

The news that the mid-summer horse races, advertised by the M. A. E. A. for July 14 and 15, have been called off will be heard with regret by the horsemen in this vicinity. The committee here occupy the unique position of having the track in such execrable shape that the American horsemen are chary of entering, not wishing to mark their horses with a fast record so early in the season. The proposition was made that the track be joughed, but taking all matters in consideration the directors thought it best to call the meet off altogether.

A REMARKABLE FEAT

Peter Isaac, a full-blooded Indian, did a remarkable Longboat stunt at the sporting meet held at Woodstock, Ontario, a few days ago. Isaac worked all day digging a ditch for the farmer by whom he is employed. At 6 o'clock he quit work, put his running suit in a parcel, walked over five miles to Woodstock, went in the five-mile race and won it from a field of five competitors in 28 minutes, leading all the way and taking things easily. Then he walked home again with his prize, a gold ring. He said after his performance that he was not in the least tired.

POLITICAL PICNIC

Bonaventure Liberals are making plans for a big political picnic at Bonaventure for Tuesday, July 27th. It is expected Sir Wilfrid Laurier and other noted speakers will be present.

NON-PARTIZAN GOVERNMENT

During the elections and since Premier Hazen has persisted in his statements that his administration is non-partizan, that Conservatives and Liberals are treated alike, that no distinction is made because of Federal party affiliations. These assertions no doubt mislead a few, but any observing elector cannot fail to see just how this non partizan administration conducts its business.

Recently Provincial Secretary Fleming was here and held an investigation into the workings of the Liquor License Act. He reported at a meeting of the government this week and the following is the press report of the findings:—

'CAMPBELLTON LIQUOR CASE REPORTED ON'

FREDERICTON July 8.—At the government meeting yesterday morning Hon. Mr. Fleming submitted a report on the recent investigation into the enforcement of the liquor license law at Campbellton. He decided against Joseph and Isaac Boudreau, who were shown to have violated the law, and he refused a renewal of their licenses. In case of the Belanger Bros. it was decided to continue their licenses.

It can hardly be possible that the above is a correct report of the Provincial secretary's findings as neither Joseph Boudreau or Isaac Boudreau enjoyed a license last year, and consequently did not violate the license law or ask for a renewal of licenses, theirs being new licenses. Isaac Boudreau was recommended for a wholesale and Joseph Boudreau for a tavern license by the commissioners, while Joseph Damboise was refused a renewal on account of violation of the act. It is now asserted that Mr. Damboise will have his license renewed.

The report states that the refusal to renew the license was made because the applicants were shown to have violated the law, but neglects to state why others who really did violate the act secured licenses.

Residents of Restigouche who know the parties interested know that it is a case of "politics" of the interested parties. Joseph and Isaac Boudreau are Liberals, Belanger Bros. and Jos. Damboise are Conservatives, thus the finding.

It is too bad that the business of the province cannot be transacted without dragging politics into every act. If the License Commissioners, who are appointed to transact this business recommend certain parties for licenses their recommendations should stand, unless some more serious charge than party can be brought to bear against the tavern keeper.

(3) This golden opportunity closes September 1st. Any little boy or girl who has worked faithfully, and after sending in two or more subscribers, fails to get the remainder within the time limit, may write us of their troubles, and we will be pleased to forward special premium list, or grant liberal commission for money sent in.

Bathurst Board Criticised.

Writer Says That Health Officers In That Town do Not do Their Duty:

(Campbellton Graphic.)

Mr. Editor—Last Sunday morning to the surprise of the people in our little town, the Chairman of the Board of Health had a house quarantined on St. Andrew's Street, for the so called smallpox epidemic...

Can the Chairman of the Board of Health explain how it is that the inmate whose face was covered with the so called smallpox on Sunday, was completely cured so as to escape his attention on Friday of the same week?

But, hark. What is the news that we have heard on Sunday last? The very house which had no contagious disease when our Chairman visited it, is now quarantined by him, and has two cases of smallpox within its walls.

Perhaps one of the members of the Board of Health would give some information in reference to the last person referred to, as he is one of the firms, who hired this person, after coming from the mines, to go to work for said firms.

It is the opinion of a great many of our people at present that such a disease has been within the walls of the said house for quite a while, and the Board of Health should be up and doing, and investigate and find out whether a certain person who has been in close communication with the house now under quarantine, has been really away to the United States or not, and should not depend on (perhaps) bogus post cards, that have been shown them, when the party in question has been seen and his face dotted with red spots.

AFTER SUFFERING YEARS

Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Fox Creek, N.B.—"I have always had pains in the loins and weakness there, and often after my food would distress me and cause soreness all over my body."

The above is only one of the thousands of grateful letters which are constantly being received by the Pinkham Medicine Company of Lynn, Mass., which prove beyond a doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, actually does cure these obstinate diseases of women after all other means have failed, and that every such suffering woman owes it to herself to at least give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial before submitting to an operation, or giving up hope of recovery.

thereby depriving four adults from earning their livelihood for a certain number of days; and remarks, quarantined without symptoms, or any outward appearance of the disease. To the contrary, it is well known that another person who returned from the mines nearly two months ago, had a heavy rash both on his face and body and still his residence was, and is clear of quarantine today, and it is beyond question, that the inmates in the house now quarantined, have taken the disease from there, being relatives and in close communication with one another.

Perhaps one of the members of the Board of Health would give some information in reference to the last person referred to, as he is one of the firms, who hired this person, after coming from the mines, to go to work for said firms.

Garaquet Wharf.

Iron Ship Loads at Wharf.—O. S. Crockett Called no Good.

To the Editor of the Graphic.

Sir—The iron ship, the Caraque, Captain Erickson, sailed from Garaquet on June 24, loaded with 899,000 feet of lumber, bound for Preston. The Caraque has a capacity of 1,000 tons and left Caraque wharf drawing 19 feet 4 inches.

She was loaded at the wharf, made notorious by the unfair criticism of O. S. Crockett, M. P., on the floors of parliament last winter, when he endeavored to show that the large expenditure on this work was money wasted, as it was suitable only for small fishing craft. At the time the Caraque sailed there was about 23 feet of water in the shallowest part of the channel, and actual measurements at the berth where she was loaded gave 22 feet.

Another large vessel, the Tanager, will arrive at Caraque about the 20th inst. for another cargo of lumber. Would it be too much to suggest that Mr. Crockett, M. P., pay a visit to Caraque about the end of July and thus secure evidence of the insincerity of the persons who gave him the false information on which he based his unjust criticism of the expenditure made by the public works department at this important trade centre?

A dredge is now at work in Caraque, and when this work is completed this harbor will be one of the safest and best in the maritime provinces. Vessels drawing from 25 to 30 feet of water will be able to find splendid wharfage and anchorage here. As soon as the railway spur will be built onto the wharf large shipments of lumber will be made from Burnsville, Pokemouche and Tracadie. Caraque is destined to become one of the chief shipping points for lumber along the Bay Chaleur.

Come along, Mr. Crockett, and see for yourself.

ACCIDENT AT MCGIVENY JCT

FREDERICTON, July 6—A young man from Bathurst, named Day, was probably fatally injured at McGiveny Junction, where the G. T. P. and I. C. R. intersect, this morning. He had arrived only shortly before from his home and was just about to start out when he fell between the cars of the Toronto Construction Company's work train and one of the cars passed over him. One arm was almost amputated at the shoulder, and one foot was almost taken off. He was placed aboard a special train and brought to this city and hurried to Victoria Hospital. There he was found to be in such a serious condition from shock that amputation was impossible. It is not expected that he will live the night.

Campbellton News.

J. H. Peavey of St. John, one of the best known of the anglers who frequent the Bangor salmon pool, had an experience at the pool Saturday afternoon that were it not for the fact that Mr. Peavey has a reputation for veracity, and that his feat was witnessed by a number of the other fishermen there, might cause a suspicion of a "fish story" says the Bangor Commercial. A salmon, weighing about 10 pounds, jumped into his boat and Mr. Peavey succeeded in capturing it.

Mr. Peavey was fishing from his boat and had had but little luck when he set a strike. The salmon did not take the fly securely and Mr. Peavey used his boat down with the current to give the salmon a chance for another bite. He was intent on watching his line when he felt a shock as though a dog had struck the boat. He turned about quickly to see what was the trouble and saw flopping about in the bottom of his boat a good sized salmon.

Mr. Peavey dropped everything and jumped on the fish. Then the battle began. The salmon was fresh and strong right from his native element. Mr. Peavey possessed of considerable strength, but with nothing at hand with which to kill the fish he had his hands full. He stuck to the fish and after a struggle succeeded in killing it. The fish weighed 10 pounds and was a beauty.

Salmon have jumped into boats before at the pool, but never have the occupants of the boats been quick enough to get to them before they were out again. Mr. Peavey is now the owner of a record of the pool, which will not be equalled for some time to come.

Among the lucky fishermen at the pool Saturday and Sunday were Fred R. Ayer and John Doane, the latter capturing two.

Saturday and Sunday were big days at Green Lake, and there was hardly a boat out that did not bring back a good string of fish. John P. Webster, a member of the summer colony at the lake, and H. J. Coville, held highest for the week end, having taken six salmon and two fine trout. Mark Crow got two nice ones, and many other boats on the lake got one and two each. Besides the salmon some good sized trout were captured.

In all there were 30 or 35 salmon taken from Green Lake, and the fishermen are beginning to go out there where they are biting well. One of the fishermen who was at the lake said that all the salmon that he examined were empty, and there were no smolts with them, which indicates that food is scarce in the lake and assures some fine fish.

The interior of St. Mary's Academy has recently emerged from the hands of the painters and presents a very pretty appearance. The walls and ceilings are finished in delicate tints and the cornice work on the main flat is a very nice piece of workmanship. The work was done by Mr. McKenzie, of Pietou, N. S., assisted by Alex. Major, of Newcastle. The Rev. Sr. St. Dunstan, superioress, has spared no pains in putting the convent in first class style and in doing so has involved great expense.

Rev. H. C. Rice, who for three years has ministered to the Newcastle and Protectionville Methodist congregations most acceptably and with a large degree of success, preached his farewell addresses on the 4th. In the morning, the Orangemen, of whose order Mr. Rice is a member, attended church in body, about eighty men being in line, of whom some fifteen were from Loggieville and over twenty from Chatham, the rest belonging to the two town lodges. Mr. Rice's sermons were eloquent and heart searching, urging his hearers to do their duty and thus see to it that Canada became and remained a truly righteous nation. Mr. and Mrs. Rice were deservedly popular in this community and their places will be hard to fill. They went to their new home in Hampton on the 5th.

RUTHLESS WARFARE.

Over 100,000 Natives Mercilessly Slaughtered in East Africa.

A terrible picture is drawn by Mr. Douglas Young, the British Vice-Consul, in his annual report on German East Africa, of the manner in which Hottentot tribes were dealt with for rising against their new masters.

The rebellion broke out in July, 1905, and lasted through 1906, and Mr. Young states that the total death roll for the whole campaign cannot have fallen short of 120,000 men, women and children, and may have amounted to considerably more. During the year ended March 3, 1907, alone 75,000 men, women and children fell victims to war, pestilence and famine. On the German side eleven Europeans and eight native soldiers lost their lives.

Dealing with the effects of the war, Mr. Young says: "The war, in itself sufficiently destructive, brought famine and pestilence in its train. The neglected soil yielded no crops; the famished natives fell an easy prey to disease; and in many districts a terrible mortality amongst the children ensued. Several tribes located in Songea, Lindi and Kilwa were reduced to half their former numbers, while more than one was decimated."

It may be recalled that the rising suppressed in such a merciless fashion was brought about by the brutality of the German Colonial administrators. The natives seized the opportunity afforded by the removal of a German garrison from a station to make an attack on white settlers, and the revolt rapidly spread.

The admitted losses on both sides in the Boer war were 25,000 and the comparison with the terrible slaughter noted above is significant when the loud outcry in Germany against British inhumanity in that war is remembered.
