Sometimes you eat too much; sometimes you drink too much, and sometimes you do both. In any event, you feel like the very old scratch the next morning. Too much liquor over-heats the blood. Too much food and the liver goes on a strike. The first remedy which should suggest itself should be a purgative that will act on the liver and stomach, and cleanse the system from all the indigestible junk with which it has been overtax-This is positively the foundation of permanent relief. The next thing is to cool the blood. Now, isn't this common horse sense? Think it over. Hutch is the only medicine which acts on the liver. It contains a new ingredient. Hutch is the only medicine that cools the blood. Overheated blood is what causes the pressure on the head. You remember the man who at breakfast said, "Waiter, bring me about ten grains of oatm-al, and put stickers on it so it will stay down; and say, waiter, please look pleasant for I feel like -

That is how a person's stomach gets sometimes. If you are not right, and have constipation, stomach or liver troubles, use Hutch as your stomach dictates. It can't hurt you. Take one after each meal.

THE BUDGET SPEECH. The finance minister, in opening, said that for several years on similar occasions he had had the good fortune to be able to congratulate the house and the country upon periods of growth and steadily increasing prosperity. He rejoiced that he could prosperity. He rejoiced that he could creased under the preferential tariff make a similar statement today with to about 50 per cent for the past year. respect to the affairs of Canada for the past fiscal year. There had been gratifying activity in trade, commerce and manufactures. It was in fact a year of unexampled prosperity, so that at its close he was about to make the most satisfactory financial statement that ever fell to the lot of a Canadian finance minister to make. Notwithstanding liberal expenditures, so generous were the revpenditures, so generous were the revenues that the government was able to provide for all needs without having to resort to first loans or even to an issue of the treasury bills. Ottawa, 27th February, 1901.

Newspapers inserting this advertise ment without authority of the Department of the customs collections last year would have been $3,292,230 more than they actually were. Next the finance minister gave a statistical resume of the progress of Canada as shown by increases in bank note issues, postoffice revenue had for a time followed the reduction of letter post-age from 3 to 2 cents, but he was glad to say that in January last the corner has been turned, for the revenue of $4,376,600, as against expenditure—a net revenue of $4,3600, as against expenditure—enue that month was $398,989 under the 2-cent rate, as compared with $368,-941 of revenue in January, 1898, under the 3-cent rate. Miscellaneous revenue included $4,552,071 from the Intercolonial—an increase of $1,594,441, compared with 1896. With a total revenue of $50,000,000, as stated, and an ordinary expenditure of $43,000,000, there was a surplus of $8,000,000 on consolidated fund account—the largest ever known in history. (Liberal cheers.) A statement of the surpluses since 1896-7 showed a

NET SURPLUS OF $14,095,843 for the four years. The capital stead of taking the sums every year expenditure for the fiscal year under consideration was $9,742,187, so that, while providing for all this large expenditure, which included $1,547,623 for South Africa and the Halifax garrison, he had been able to reduce the debt by $779,639, the net debt standing on the 30th June, 1900, at $265,493,806. There had been only reductions of the public debt twice before in Canada, namely, in 1871 and in 1882, when Sir Francis Hincks and Sir Leonard Tilley respectively were finance ministers. Turning next to the current year ending June 30, 1901, he found that our revenue up to the 10th March was $34,942,177-an increase of $1,227,693 over the corresponding date of last year. He did not expect any further increase in customs revenue, but there would be some in railways, postoffice and excise before the year closes. He therefore estimates that the total revenue for the current year would be $52, 750,000, or an increase of $1,720,000. The expenditure on consolidated fund, he estimated at $46,400,000, so that the 30th June next he would be able to show another surplus amounting to $6,350,000. (Cheers.) The capital expenditure, he estimated, would reach $10,700,000. There would therefore be an addition to the public debt, which he hoped would not exceed $1,800,000. In four years the Liberals had added an average of $1,749,003 to the public debt, as against an average of $6,563,-000 yearly in the 18 years preceding. With regard to the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1901, it was too soon, he said, to attempt a close estimate. Estimates had already been submitted to parliament for a total of $50,398,823, including consolidated fund and capital. There were supplementary estimates yet to come, which would swell that sum considerably, and there were special expenditures likely to come upon us next year of which we must take note. In consequence of have, and who are patiently waiting the development of the for the day to come when there shall

IRON AND STEEL INDUSTRY, we would be called upon to pay a large sum in bounties next year—at least $1,-000,000, and he would not be surprised if the amount were larger. He continued: "As to revenue, I do not expect that we can keep on at the rate of increase which has been so marked during the past three or four years. I think we have probably now reached about the crest of the wave of prosperity. I do not expect that we shall have any serious reverses. I think the business of Can-ada has been developed during the past four or five years upon very safe and sound lines. I think there has been to a very large extent an absence of that inflation which is so apt to mark a period of good times. I am of the opinion that the business of the country, as a whole, has been so carefully conducted, and is on such a sound basis that we are not likely to suffer

Ottawa, March 14.—A feature of the any serious reverses, but I do not udget of 1901, presented in the House think it is reasonable to expect that we can go on increasing our business as rapidly as we have during the past few years. What may happen is that we might suffer a check. Perhaps it might be described as a period of rest, not of going backward, when Canada, like a young giant, will gather new strength and advance again by leaps and bounds as she has during the past four years." (Applause.) Dealing with the commercial aspect of the year 1900, Mr. Fielding said the aggregate foreign trade had

INCREASED BY $79,356,000, as compared with a total increase of $66,000,000 during the eighteen years of the National Policy. The exports had increased in every line. The imports from Great Britain had steadily in-

THE PREFERENTIAL TARIFF. Continuing, Mr. Fielding dealt with the charge that the preferential tariff was so worded as to let in large quantities of German and Belgian goods. He said the government would be glad to have the assistance and information of anybody interested in investigating the facts. Comparing the four years 1892-96 with the period 1896-1900, or if the old rate of duty had been maintained the customs collections last view of this the minister of the interior had advised the government to reduce the gold royalty from 10 per cent to 5 per cent. The expenditure on the contingents to South Africa had been two million dollars, and by the close of the fiscal year there would be expended on the Halifax garrison $387,000. The 21/2 per cent loan placed on the British market in 1897 at 911/2 now stood at 92, while British consols, which in 1897 were quoted at 113%, are today only 97%. As to the iron and steel bounties, which would be large during the next few years, it was proposed to change method of book-keeping, and inout of the customs revenue, as a drawback of customs, treat, these bounties as railway subsidies, in which form they would appear in the public ac#### counts. NO TARIFF CHANGES.

"I do not propose," Mr. Fielding continued, "to make any changes in the tariff. In saying that I do not for one moment assume that the tariff is I quite realize that imperfections may be shown. I realize that here and there some special interest would be pleased if we were to make some change. I am not prepared to say that there are not some which there are inequalities, which might better be remedied. But there are not many items in the tariff which can stand absolutely alone Of course, a man comes to me and says: 'Mr. Flelding, I entirely agree with your policy in having a stable tariff; we do not want to make changes generally, but we want you to make this particular change and everybody will be satisfied.' But I have not found everybody would be satisfied with the particular change which my particular friend would desire. As a rule the tariff items have some relation to one another, and it is not easy to make any considerable number of changes without opening the door to a wide revision of the tariff. I three hours later. think the business men of the country have appreciated fully the advantage of having a stability of tariff. I have again and again expressed the opinion that it was better we should bear some imperfections and some inequalities than to be constantly engaged in the process which is irreverently described as tariff-tinkering. Therefore, considering that the tariff has only been in force for four years, we think it not unreasonable that should continue for the present without the changes that some desire to be a wider revision than is possible today, and when possibly we may be able to do some of the things that they desire today. I think the ment of the country will be that it is better to have some stability about the tariff." The government had been asked to grant a BOUNTY ON BEET ROOT SUGAR. but the government did not believe they would be justified in granting bounties as yet. Last year the con-cession was made of making free of duty beet sugar machinery of a class not manufactured in Canada. It was proposed to remove the restriction and allow free entry to all classes of machinery used in the production of beet sugar. The Conservatives, he said, were against what they called a onesided preference. (Hear, hear.) So the only thing for them to do was to bring in a resolution to wipe it out.

The prospect of Great Britain impos-ing a preferential duty in favor of Canadian products was most remote. It was not possible in 1897, nor was it possible last year, when Lord Salisbury refused even to receive a deputation from the Congress of Chambers of Commerce, who only asked a royal commission to inquire into the subject of interimperial preferential trade, and Mr. Chamberlain, in reply to the deputation, said the scheme was impossible unless the colonies removed their tariff barriers. To prove this Mr. Fielding quoted from Mr. Mac-Farlane's report to the Ottawa board of trade. "We do not deny," he said, in conclusion, "that if you did get that preference in the English market it would probably be of some advantage to the Dominion of Canada; but we do say that it is a question for the imperial authorities rather than for us. If we could get that preference we are as willing to assist in availing ourselves of any advantage which might come to Canada through it as any of the honorable gentlemen opposite. The only difference between us is as to the possibility of getting it and the means of getting it. I do not believe, sir, that it can be obtained today. I do not believe, notwithstanding all that one reads in the telegrams from the other side, that we are likely to have a change of front immediately on the part of the imperial government on the trade question. Yet I would not speak of the future. (Hear, hear.) We live in a time of GREAT MOVEMENTS AND GREAT

CHANGES

I will not say that at no future time in the history of the empire, and in the early future, possibly, should this prehave stated in this house that this is a question which we are content to leave to the future. We have believed that the true policy of preferential trade was not to make demands on the imperial government, which we well know they could not afford to yield t, us. The true policy was to give to Great Britain this preference freely and openly, leaving the imperial government and parliament to adopt that trade policy which in their judgment was best adapted to the interests the Engilsh people, but this we say, that if this preference will my honorable friends opposite desire to obtain is ever to come, I beg them to accept my opinion, my assurance, which I give them in all sincerity, that they never will obtain it by methods they have employed, that they will never obtain it by demands on the English government which are obnoxious to the creat mass of the English pepole. I venture to say, as I have said before, that if the time ever comes when we are to receive that preference, we shall not receive it as a result of any huckstering or bar-gaining betweet England and her colonies, but as the result of the development of that imperial sentiment which may override questions of political economy, and in the creation and development of that imperial sentiment a large and important factor has been the British preferential tariff of the Canadian government. (Ministerial cheers.) Mr. E. B. Osler, in reply, joined in the finance minister's congratulations upon the prosperity of the country—a prosperity which all delighted in. finance minister had made a short speech and quoted but few figures and he (Mr. Osler) did not propose to challenge these figures.

CANCER,

MALIGNANT DISEASE TO CURE.

The action of B. B. B. on Cancer is first felt by reducing the pain, afterwards the healing commences restoring a healthy condition to the flesh surrounding the parts affected.

TREATMENT :- Bathe freely with B.B.B. and take internally according to directions. Three bottles will prove its efficacy for relieving or curing any kind of cancer. MR. GEO. MEGGISON, of QUINN. ONT., writes under date of Dec. 17th, 1900, of the wonderful benefit he has received from the use of B. B. B. for cancer on the throat, from which he has been suffering for seventeen years:

"Seventeen years ago a cancer formed on my throat just beside the wind-pipe. I doctored with several physicians, but they failed to give me a particle of relief. Some of them advised an operation, others cautioned against it as the cancer was in such a delicate place. But to make a long story short, for seven years I suffered untold agony, until at last the cancer broke and discharged a thick bloody matter, after this it would heal up and a scab would form, but would eventually drop off and leave the opening larger than before. I suffered this terrible agony until a short time ago, when I happened to read of Burdock Blood Bitters being good for cancer, and I decided to procure a bottle, but hardly had faith in anything and did not dare to think of it giving me any relief.

However, I started applying it to the sore with a piece of cotton. I also took the B. B. B. internally according to directions. I had not used the treatment long before I could notice a great change for the better, and believe by continuing its use I will ere long be permanently cured. I cannot too highly recommend B. B. B. to any person who is troubled with cancer.

To Get Strong After Grippe

Build the System Up and Re vitalize the Nerves by Using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

Every reader of this paper can recall many cases in which the after-effects of la grippe have proven fatal. How many people are now complain-ing of special ailments or lingering weaknesses which are clearly the re sult of the debilitating effects of la grippe?

The best plan is to prevent la grippe, if possible, or, once a victim, to apply yourself dilgently to obtaining what relief you can. Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine is wonderfully beneficial, because it allays the in-flammation in the throat and bronchial tubes, loosens the cough, heals the lungs and prevents pneumonia or consumption.

It is a great mistake to suppose that Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine is a mere cough remedy It is far more. It thoroughly cures the cough as well, and seems to take the aches and pains out of the bones. No ordinary cough mixture could ever attain the enormous sale which this medicine now has. For old and young alike it can be used with perfect safety and with absolute assurance that the effect will be remarkably beneficial. If weakened and debilitated by the enervating effects of la grippe, there is nothing so suitable for your use as Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, the great nerve restorative and blood purifier. The regular and persistent use of this great food cure is bound to result in the upbuilding of the system, because it contains, in condensed pill form, the most efficient restoratives known to

Though only known in Canada for a few years, this famous discovery of Dr. Chase's, the Receipt Book author, has become generally recognized by physicians and people alike as a great strengthener and blood builder. In no case is it more successful than in restoring and reinvigorating the system wasted by la grippe. Whether weakened by overwork, worry or disease, Dr. Chase's Nerve Food will renew vigor and vitality. Fifty cents a box, all dealers, or Edmanson, Bate

In this day of scientific research, old. ineffectual ways of doing things are being supplanted by new, up-to-date scientific methods. In medicine, progress has been more marked than in any other department of knowledge. But a short time ago cancer was considered by the profession and the public to be an incurable disease. The only treatment in vogue was painful operations, the dreadful drawing of the plaster, or the awful eating of the caustic paste Now all this has been done away with. and persons afflicted with this terrible disease can be cured in the privacy of their own homes, without the need of any suffering. The new constitutional remedy is a pleasant vegetable com-pound, which, when taken into the system, kills the germs of cancer, neutralizes the cancer poison, and cures the disease so perfectly that it never re-turns again. #### Ross and Temperance.

London, Friday, March 15.

The London Free Press has been calling the Hon. George W. Ross a humbug because he has not introduced a prohibitory law in this Province. They assail his record as a temperance man, and claim that by no act of his has he ever assisted prohibition. We do not think the people are apt to be misled by such statements.

The average man will admit that no tongue or pen can more than faintly describe the evils of intemperance, and the average man would, if he could, by one stroke of the pen wipe out the whole trade in intoxicating liquors, if by so doing he could wipe out the evils inseparable from it. Few men in or out of the traffic desire to add one stroke to the sufferings of the drunkard's child, but would gladly bring sunshine into their lives and into the lives of the victims them-

The victims do not belong to any particular race or creed, to any sex, or to any age. They belong to all, and all have an interest in the question. It might be safely said that no man or woman lives in Canada, who has not been directly or indirectly injured by it, and it would be quite safe to say that no young man travels very far on in life without being able to look back and remember some he knew who fell by reason of its influence. There is not much wonder, then, that the lines.

"Ha! see where the flaring red ginshop appears;
'Tis the horrible lighthouse of hell," fairly describe the feelings of many towards the traffic; and if the lives of those who take an active part in temperance crusades are searched, it silent as an oyster, and the public will be found that in nearly every case they have been special suffer-would not say so, but for party purposes. Mr. Ross has been a consistent temperance man all his life. He has assisted in placing act after act upon the statute books which, if they did not wholly abolish the traffic, lessened It. and made such restrictions as forced it into respectable hands. He has been with those who kept up a steady trend in the direction of its abolition, and who after each attempt to curtail its ill effects camped nearer complete victory.

Look at London at the time of confederation, and look at it now. Hotels for travelers' use only remain now, in comparison with the varieties then in existence. All the outside hotels and saloons and grocery stores, selling liquor, have been abclished. On those that remain restrictions have been placed that secure, under inspection, the best service the public require. During that time George W. Ross did his whole duty, whether in or out of taunt the Hon. Mr. Ross with failure to introduce prohibition, It speaks without responsibility. The Premier knows and feels he cannot sreak or act without responsibility. He knows the good already accomplished. Should he place that in jeopardy? Will the ills endured by reason of intemperance the sooner disappear by a steady, persistent advance on the lines so far successful, or can one prohibitory act secure the release from them at once?

Rememberis that Canada is one of the most temperate countries in the world; remembering that Manitoba's law has been declared illegal: remembering the evils, the perjuries, the deflances of the law under the Scott act; seeing Ontario in an enviable position compared with the rest of the worldhe wisely concluded to hold the good he has secured, to move on sure lines, to educate and lift up the people, and especially the young, by having them instructed in the schools on temperance, rather than risk the harm he might do by throwing all into confusion, perhaps similar to that going on in Kansas. Here the people respect the judges and the law. May the day never come when anyone will feel justified in advocating its enforcement with an axe.

The latest proposition is one for the treatment of pauper inebriates by municipalities, benevolent societies and individuals. It is an act drafted at the request of Mr. Ross, and has received the approval of the public health committee of the Ontario Medical Association: also of the Prisoners' Aid Association, the Canadian Medical Association, and most of the medical the week foot up about $100,000. But his members of the Legislature. We may income for the week, according to the refer to it later.

How many are sober who but for him and others like him would not have been so, no one can tell. Anxious, ardent prohibitionists. looking back, may think the progress slow; but they surely can look forward with hope, and feel it is their duty to protect and improve what they have. The Free Press may throw its jeers in some other direction. They cannot hurt Mr. Ross in the estimation of the people, who know the good he has done.

Evidences of Prosperity.

Ten years ago Canada's exports of wheat, flour, oats, oatmeal, peas, cattle, cheese, butter, eggs, apples, sheep, lambs, pork, bacon and hams were valued at $24,000,000. Last year our exports in these same lines were valued at $72,000,000. Here was an increase of 300 per cent. But the limit is not yet reached. The total British imports in the articles named last year amounted to $446,000,000. I do not see any reason why, without any great increase in population, but with an improvement in our transportation facilities, we should not reach the $200,000,000 mark in the export of these same products within ten years; and I hope to be here then to congratulate this committee on the accomplishment.-Prof. Robertson, before the committee of agriculture of the House of Commons, Thursday, March 7, 1901.

H. H. Cook and the Senate.

During the last general Dominion election contest, the Opposition, through Mr. H. H. Cook, ex-M.P., exploded what was adjectived and advertised as a bomb-shell. The gentleman named alleged he could prove that had he been willing to pay $10,000, he could have received a Senatorship. Much was made of the charge in Opposition journals; but the political effeet was not all that was anticipated, as Sir Wilfrid Laurier promptly and absolutely denied there was a vestige of truth in the assertion so far as he knew and believed, and he challenged Mr. Cook to tell in the light camps and barracks. of day everything he pretended to know, and to produce his proofs. Thus challenged, Mr. Cook remained drew their own conclusions.

Now, Sir Mackenzie Bowell, on behalf of the politically hostile Senate majority, moves for a committee to sponsibility of making the charge, the committee would be at once granted; but not on a mere statement that he had "been informed and credibly believed" something or other.

For 30 years and more, the Conservative Senate majority has never hesitated to show its partisan unfairness, and it was so in this case. The motion for the fishing committee was

One exhibition more or less of the Senate majority's partisanship is neither here nor there, and the fishing committee can be left to take care of itself. The point of interest lies in the figures of the vote-34 to 30. It is but a short time since the total number of Liberal Senators could be almost counted on the fingers of both hands. and seldom did any Liberal measure receive fair play. Today is the 1,945th anniversary of the death of Julius Caesar, the great Roman general and statesman. He was assassinated in the senate house by Brutus. The foreboding warning of the Roman soothsayer, "Beware the Ides of March," has from this historical incident become a stereotyped expression being buried, Arroyo, who was a close in our language for the premonition of friend of Beltran, killed himself in the anything of a mysterious character.

Great Britain's yearly gain in population at present is only 12.3 per 1,000, compared with 14.4 twenty years ago. It is supposed to be due to a falling off in the birth rate. Might not the fact that Canada and the other colonies are holding out brighter inducements for emigration from the mother country also have something to do with the decreased yearly gain?

KITCHENER STUDIOUSLY SILENT. London, March 15 .- A dispatch from Lord Kitchener is so studiously silent upon the subject of the peace negotiations that it leaus to the conclusion that nothing has yet been accomplished of a sufficiently definite character to justify lending official support to the view that the war is over. But I trust we shall take such warnings as if they were real, and give our whole attention to meeting any dangers that might be pressing upon us. ## HUNTED TO HIS DOOM

Negro Murderer Captured and Burned at the Stake-Confessed His Crime.

Corsicana, Texas, March 14.-John Henderson (colored), who brutally asaulted and murdered Mrs. Younger, a farmer's wife, living just outside this city, several days ago, was burned to death in the court house square here at noon yesterday. A written confesion of the crime, attested by Justice Roberts, was secured from the prisoner. Five thousand people witnessed the burning, business practically being suspended for a time. Henderson was captured Tuesday after a long chase. A committee was appointed to see him and pass on his guilt or innocence. Finally he made a written confession that he had murdered an "unknown white lady" three miles north of Corsicana, March 6. When it became public that Henderson had confessed people swarmed around the jail. It was decided to burn the prisoner at the stake at 2 p.m., but news was received that troops had been started from Dallas and the execution was hurried. Just before noon about forty men rushed from the jail across the square to the place where an iron rail had been planted. In their midst was Henderson, handcuffed. The men formed a circle, holding to a chain which surrounded the prisoner to prevent the crowd from tearing him away. The negro was fastened to the rail with wire and chains. Cans of oil were emptied over his clothing and dozens of lighted matches touched the inflammable material. The fire alarms were rung, and the stores of the city were deserted as their oc-cupants rushed to the square to witness the burning. Just as the pile was fired, Conway Younger, husband of the murdered woman, jumped at Henderson and slashed him across the face with a knife. Henderson gave no indication of pain or suffering. In ten minutes Henderson was dead. made no outcry other than an occas-

The illustrated lecture on the South African campaign that was given last night by Mr. Frederic Villiers was far and away the best of its kind ever attempted here, and was deserving of a larger audience than was present at the Opera House. His pictures, sketches and snapshots were sufficient in themselves to tell the story of the war, and were a splendid supplement to his nar-

DOMINION PARLIAMENT

Presented to Amend the Dominion Elections Act.

To Make Victoria Day a Permanent Holiday-Medical Council and Anticosti Island Discussed.

Ottawa, March 13 .- The house did good day's work today, and having disposed of the order paper, adjourned before 9 o'clock. Mr. Fitzpatrick introduced a couple of government bills, and explained the provisions of one which amended the Dominion elections act in several respects where experience of the elections indicated amendment is necessary. It proposes to authorize the acceptance of a marked check as a deposit, to improve the ballot paper, and to remove difficulties experienced in the operation of the manhood franchise act. The debate upon Mr. Taylor's motion respecting Anticosti gave the premier an opportunity to dispel the illusions entertained by some as to the possible menace to Canada in Mr. Menier's occupation of the island, and to remove misunderstanding as to the removal of the Fox Bay settlers. Arguments in fa-vor of the establishment of a divorce court in Canada were submitted by Mr. Britton in a speech which dealt exhaust-ively with the subject. In the evening Dr. Horsey spoke ably and eloquently in moving the second reading of his bill establishing the 24th of May as a national holiday.

A bill to amend the franchise act,

1898, was introduced by Mr. Fitzpat-rick and given a first reading. DOMINION ELECTIONS ACT AM-ENDMENT. Mr. Fitzpatrick, in explaining his bill to amend the Dominion elections act, 1900, said that it provided for the acceptance of a marked check for $200 as the deposit by a candidate required under the act, and also provides for a change in the form of the ballot, with a view to preventing the difficulties that have arisen in certain districts in Ontario owing to electors placing their mark in the space at the top of the ballot, which is reserved for the name of the constituency. Another clause provides for an amendment to the manhood suffrage registration act in Ontario, by which voters who move from one division to another will not lose their vote. Another provision is that if a manhood suffrage list has been prepared within a year of a bye-election it may be available without making a new list. DOMINION MEDICAL COUNCIL.

Dr. Roddick, in introducing his bill to provide for the establishment of a medical council in Canada, said the bill was one the object of which has been misunderstood in some quarters. He recognized the advisability of ordinary education being regarded as a purely provincial matter, but the medical profession being of so cosmopol itan a character, it was felt that it should be regarded as of Dominion importance. He asked to have the bill submitted to a committee, which should include the medical members of the house,

Mr. Taylor moved for copies of all correspondence, telegrams and reports that have passed between the Dominion government and the imperial government respecting the Island of Anticosti. He contended that the government should expropriate the island, and restore the settlers, who had been unjustly expelled by Mr. Menier, to their holdings.

THE PREMIER SPEAKS.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier said there was certainly no objection to bringing down the papers upon the subject. As far as his memory went, he did not believe there had been any correspondence exchanged with the imperial government as to the expropriation of the island from Mr. Menier. If bat-teries were placed on the island, the wildest stretch of imagination could not conceive of vessels being prevented by them from entering the St. Lawrence, because there were 60 miles of open water on each side of the

Sir Wilfrid said that his remarks would have been enough for the mo-tion of Mr. Taylor, but that gentleman had made some references to Mr. Me-nier, which it was well he should notice, as they were calculated to prejudice public opinion. Mr. Menier is, Sir Wilfrid said, a French citizen, and even if that gentleman were on the best terms with the government he could not see any wrong in it. The government wanted to be on the best terms with all the citizens of Canada. With reference to the statement that Mr. Menier had arbitrarily dispossessed Britmoved by the government, Sir Wilfrid said that Mr. Menier had, when asserting his right of ownership, given the same treatment to the squatters, whether of French or English origin. A DIVORCE COURT PROPOSED.

Mr. Britton moved that the house is of the opinion that the present practice of applying to parliament for a divorce is in many ways objectionable, and virtually gives in certain cases redress to poor. That jurisdiction should be given to some one court of each of the provinces of the Dominion or a court should be established in each of the said prov inces for the trial of cases for divorce, and that such court should have ex clusive jurisdiction to decree absolution of marriage

Sir Wilfrid Laurier pointed out that the many attempts made since confederation to establish a divorce court in Canada had not been pressed very vigorously. Evidently public opinion was not much in sympathy with the attempts to introduce a divorce court in Canada. It might be that the fa-cility with which divorces are granted in the United States had produced in this sountry contrary centiments and our people rather repelled the idea of having divorces made easy. In his own province and his own church divorces were not allowed, but he was glad to know that in the other provinces, where the divorces were allowed, there were very few of them. As to the question of cost, the only thing which made the present system of hearing divorces in the senate more expensive than in any other court was the necessity of bringing witnesses to

VICTORIA DAY.

Dr. Horsey made a good impression in his maiden speech in moving the second reading of a bill to set apart May 24 as Victoria day. He said that this had been regarded as the holiday par excellence in Canada, and it was a fitting honor to the sovereign whom all had learned to love and honor that it should be continued. Objections might be raised that we have enough af holidays in this country. He dissented from this view. As far as he understood the existing conditions, the whole tendency of the day is to keep the mass of humanity going at high pressure, and, if this be so, it is neces-sary that we should have more breathing spells in order that the equilibrium should be maintained this country.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier said that the sense of the house and the country seems to be altogether in favor of such a bill being enacted, and that we should henceforth, as in the past, celebrate the 24th of May. There was a great deal of force in the statement that we have been accustomed to look upon that day as almost sacred to the children, and to grown-up men also. The bill could pass to the second read-ing, but he asked that it be not proceeded with further at this sitting, in order that he might have an opportunity of looking into it and considering the phraseology.

INTERESTED IN COL. LEYS' PROPOSAL

To Refuse Licences for Fish Nets in the Thames.

Local Sportsmen Warmly Approve of His Action.

A large deputation, headed by Con Leys, M.P.P., waited upon Hon. Mr. Latchford at the parliament buildings yesterday and asked that licenses to fish with nets in the River Thames should be cancelled. They stated that the waters were being rapidly depleted. They also suggested that gates be placed in the Springbank dam, so that the fish can ascend more easily. On the deputation were representatives from London, Woodstock, Ingersoil, St. Marys, Chatham, Bothwell, Delaware and Kilworth. Local anglers are awaiting the result of the interview with considerable interest, and are determined to give Col. Leys all the assistance in their power to bring about the desired end. They en-tertain strong opinions upon the subject. believing that immediate action should be taken. Their position is explained in a letter received at this office from a correspondent, who says: "As a London 'Old Boy,' returned for rest and recreation. I desire to interest the sportsmen and anglers of London, as well as all those who have the popularity and attractiveness of the city at heart in the subject of improving the fishing in the Thames. The two great fishing in the Thames. The two great drawbacks which are exterminating the fish and exciting the indignation and anathemas of local fishermen, are the dams and the nets in use lower down the stream. The dams should be either made with some regard to the habits of fish, or else removed entirely (they are in practical use only a very little time in each year), as a personal visit to several of them at high-water mark last spring plainly revealed that it was a physical impossibility for any fish to pass them. I am told that a party has been using nets in the river at Cashmere for several seasons, under license from the government, and that he sold in one year $1,000 worth of fish (mostly to London $1,000 worth of fish (mostly to London people). These fish should have been allowed to pass up the river to furnish sport and recreation to our London anglers—who are legion—and who are mostly of the middle and working class, and are not in a nosition to spend a lot of are not in a position to spend a lot of meney and go a long way for their fishing, and to these people the loss of their Saturday afternoon sport with rod and line is a real misfortune.

"I venture to say that our influential men here could not do a more popular thing than to take some really active and rigorous massives for the improvething than to take some really active and vigorous measures for the improvement of our rod and line fishing. It seems to me that the London Street Railway Company should interest themselves in the matter, as many of their Springbank patrons are lovers of the art, and the river from Byron down is ideal water for bass, pike, pickerel, etc. We need a good, active inspector, the abolition of the dams, the stopping of netting of game fish, and occasional restocking with fry—and these things would bring a vast reward in healthy enjoyment, recreation and sport to our hard-working citizens. Sportsmen! join hands in a hearty movement to this end, and let us have better fishing."

These views coincide with those held by all sportsmen in the city. Last spring

These views coincide with those held by all sportsmen in the city. Last spring they went to much trouble to learn the desires of the people along the river, and the big majority willingly signed a petition to have the nets removed and the dams properly built.

"If this were done," said a well-known sportsman today, "the Thames, immediately near London, would provide splendid fishing."

FEDERATION OF LIBERALS

Large Attendance of Ontario Delegates in Convention at Toronto.

Objects of the Meeting Explained-Pointed Addresses by Premier Ross and Hon. E. J. Davis.

Toronto, March 14.—Delegates from Liberal clubs all over the province to the number of over 300 met in conven-tion at St. George's Hall yesterday, in attendance on the third convention of the Federation of Liberal Clubs. It is six years since the federation assembled here, but the convention at present going on gives promise that the Liberal clubs of Ontario will be active factors in the politics of the province, and that the organization of the party will in a considerable degree be streng-thened. The attendance from the outside clubs exceeding two hundred in number was a satisfactory proof of the interest that is being taken in the proceedings. Yesterday the members were occupied principally in arranging their credentials and electing the various committees, which afterwards met and mapped out the programme of business to be submitted to the meeting today.

THE PRESIDENT'S ADDRESS. In opening the convention, the president. Mr. Charles Murphy, of Ottawa, extended, on behalf of the executive committee a hearty welcome to the delegates. Pointing out that the federation had not held a convention since 1896, Mr. Murphy explained the reason, which was that between the Dominion the province into districts for the purposes of crganization, and as it was feared that confusion would result from the presence of a number of associa-tions engaged in doing practically the same work, the federation was obliged to so restrict its sphere of action that was no occasion to hold a general meeting. It had now, however, been deemed advisable to resume and extend the work of the association, and it was for that object that the convention had

The federation seeks to secure the participation of all members of the party in the formation and direction of its policy, and in the selection of measures of reform and progress to be pressed upon the attention of parliament and the legislature. This object can be secured only by the organization of the party on the basis of local self-governand by the union of local ganizations in a general federation." Putting larger questions aside for the moment, and dealing only with matters of provincial concern, it would be seen that it was quite proper for the convention to consider what means should be adopted to improve the standing of the Liberal party in Ontario.

As free discussion was a fundamental principle of Liberalism, and as they had met to take counsel with each other upon all matters affecting the party's welfare in this province, this was the appropriate time and place to discuss manner in which the Liberal party in Ontario is governed. In particular they should try to ascertain whether the management of the party was such as to develop its full fighting strength upon occasions of political conflict, and whether, at other times, it was such as to keep the interest of individual Liberals constantly enlisted in the spread of Liberal doctrine and the development of Liberal views.

The federation of Liberal clubs was the only provincial organization that could be said to represent the party as a whole, for the reason that it was the only one constituted upon a popular basis. It did not, however, control the party management, nor did it seek to exercise such control; but as it was founded on the basis of local self-government and endeavors to secure "the participation of all members of the party in the formation and direction of its policy," it ought, in accordance with its constitution, to have a voice in the councils of the party when matters of policy or domestic concern were to b

HELD A SMOKER.

Last evening, after the labors of the day, the delegates relaxed a little, and a smoker in St. George's Hall, where the outside delegates were the guests of the Toronto Liberal clubs, afforded them an opportunity of passing an evening very pleasantly. A majority of the delegates attended, and two members of the Ontario government, the premier and Hon. E. J. Davis, addressed the gathering.

PREMIER ROSS.

Mr. Ross and Mr. Davis entered the hall together and were given a rousing reception, and when the premier rose to speak, which he did early in the evening, the gathering sang "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow." Mr. Ross was in happy vein, and pleasantly re-ferred to those before him as future members of parliament and members of a Liberal government, "Not," re-marked Mr. Ross, "that we are in any The premier paid a compliment to the Liberals of Toronto, saying that they had been loyal and true to their party. The fates had been against them. He was giad to know, however, that they were prepared to fight not only their opponents but the fates, and he believed that Toronto would yet be represented by Liberals in both houses. No true Liberal, said Mr. Ross, knew defeat, and if their prinhurry to lay down the cares of office.' Ross, knew defeat, and if their principles were loyally sustained he had no doubt that Toronto, so long in darkness, would see the error of its ways and become delightfully appreciative of Liberal principles. (Laughter.) Mr. Ross then went into the history of Liberalism, pointing out that its success had depended upon educational work, and it would be successful in proportion as it intelligently dif-fused the knowledge of its motives, principles and purposes. Liberalism, he said, appealed not to the passions or prejudices, but to the conscience and intelligence of the whole people. The Liberal party had sprung from the masses, it had taken the classes under its control, subverted their jurisdiction, and placed in power the whole people as against a part of the people. Commencing in England with the emancipation of the Catholics, the campaign of education had steadily progressed till the House of Commons was now prepared to consider that last remnant of prejudice, the coronation oath. In our own country responsible government had been brought about by a course of education, led by such men as Robert Gourlay, William Lyon Mackenzie and Robert Baldwin, and confederation in Canada had been brought about in the same way. The campaign carried on by the Hon. Geo. Brown in The Globe had prepared the people for the change, and today he knew of no man who represented ideal Canadianism as fully as Sir Wilfrid Laurier. (Cheers.) What were the weapons of Liberalism? First, the press, and he thought Canada had an intelligent and impartial Liberal press, journals conducted with a large degree of intelligence, fairmindedness and national spirit. Again, Liberal-ism depended on the diffusion of instructive literature, and so far that literature had been entitled to the confidence of the people. Thirdly, the platform was a powerful educator. While speech-making was not an easy thing, it was a power that could be acquired. And this advice the premier gave to future speakers, to have a perfect knowledge of their case. Orelection of 1896 and the provincial elec-tion of 1898 the party leaders divided ganization was also necessary, for it was the secret of success in almost every pursuit in life. They should reach every elector and so organize the various constituencles that every man would feel it his duty to vote for a certain candidate, with good reasons for so doing.

COMMISSIONER OF CROWN LANDS.

The address of the Hon. E. J. Davis remarked that this was the first im-portant gathering of Young Liberals in the 20th century, and the results would bear fruit for the Liberal cause. Referring to the past history of the party he said that all that was noblest and best clustered around Liberalism in the last 30 years, both as to men and measures. The leaders had fought, and fought successfully, the battles of the province. They had questions of provincial rights before them and had stood up for the right of the province, and everybody knew what the result of that fight was. In the campaigns of 1886, 1890 and 1894 other conditions were faced. The Conservative policy in those campaigns was a sectional one, but the Liberal party stood for what it considered equal right for all classes and creeds. When Hon, Mr. Ross took hold he laid down a policy of progress and development of the great interests of the province. He rose to the occasion and said he would make Ontario one of the foremost and greatest provinces by developing its resources. Their opponents placed themselves on record as thwarting the development policy of the government, but so clearly had the feeling of the people been shown that they found members of the opposition voting against their own party, in fact the leader of the opposition was not certain where some of his followers were going to be. (Applause.) In view of this proposed development it was important that the leader who instituted this progressive policy should be kept in power to carry it out to its fruition. (Applause.) Mr. Davis concluded by advising thorough organ-ization on the part of the Liberals, and if this was done he believed that Hon. Mr. Ross would have the largest ma-jority a Liberal party had secured in the past 25 years. Mr. Davis' remarks

Love's Fulfilling

rose at last from her chair, shak-

She rose at last from her chair, shaking off her reverie, drew her desk to the light, and began to write the letter which reached Stephen in the morning:

"My Dear Friend.—You left me so quickly this evening that I could not say to you what I wished, and I cannot allow it to remain unsaid. That you surprised me beyond expression I need not tell you, but that you should blame yourself for what you said to me would make me very unhappy.

what you said to me would make me Nery unhappy.

"Dear Dr. Stephen, if reverence and trust and friendship more deep and tender than I can put into words, were love, my whole heart would be yours. But that is not love. Love comes, we do not know how or why, at once and unmistakably; it is something we cannot reason about, and that does not wait to be discovered. But nothing else can be a substitute, and to fancy that it can is a sore mistake.

"I can have no secrets from you, dear

a sore mistake.

"I can have no secrets from you, dear friend; I owe you the fullest and deepest confidence. Such a mistake, you know, I once made, and such a love I think I once knew. That no trace of it now remains does not alter the case. It showed me, at least, of what my heart was capable, and I would never be guilty of offering you less than my uttermost.

"I need not remind you of your promise that this should make no difference in the friendship which is my greatest in the friendship which is my greatest happiness. You are too noble and un-selfish for such a possibility to exist. "Most truly your friend. "GLADYS AMORY." "GLADYS AMORY."

Stephen's reply came at once. The clear, strong handwriting was like him:
"My Dear Friend,—I thank you for your confidence. Love comes to us in all ways, whether late or early in life, whether by storm or by gradual revelation matters little so that it be pure and unselfish. I trust that mine is so, and God forbid that it should be the means of your losing any help or support which it has been my blessing and privilege to afford you.

Your friend,
"STEPHEN FORBES."

CHAPTER XXI.

There was to be a consultation at Dr. Martyn's hospital, in which Dr. Stephen was senior physician. The case was that of a poor girl, whose chance for life depended solely on the success of an opera-tion so difficult and dangerous that to hazard it seemed almost more than the hair-breadth chance would justify. But Dr. Martyn was very sanguine; with her the hope of life seemed to mean everything.

other men followed his movements with intensity of interest varying according to the temperament of each. Clara fixed her eyes, sparkling with eagerness on his face, and while the color mounted to her cheek, she watched him as breathlessly as if her life, not that of her poor patient, depended on his flat. He moved slowly and deliberately, his grave, intent expression losing nothing of its composure under the eager eyes. Finally he gave a long, pitiful look at the waxen face, the eyelids sunken and blue-circled in the ether sleep, and straightened himself with an unconscious sigh: "I say, No."

There was a murmur of voices such as usually follows a breathless pause, but, while Stephen gave his reasons in clear, decided response to the questions or remarks of the others, Clara said not a word. She was bitterly disappointed, the more that she had felt so sure that his counsel would be to try, in spite of the fearful odds. It was not until the group about the bed was dispersing that she found voice to say apart of Stephen:

"May I speak a word with you before the service of the fearful odds."

to Stephen:
"May I speak a word with you before

Certainly; I will wait for you down-

It was some minutes before she was at leisure to follow him into the little room which she called her "den"—the tiny sanctus where the busy brain and hands which she called her "den"—the tiny sanctus where the busy brain and hands and the much-taxed sympathies occasionally found a brief lull of repose. In spite of its smallness it was a pretty little nook; the only spot in the hospital that bore the impress of the woman's individual tastes. Here stood her Davenport desk and her favorite books, and, since Gladys had made the hospital one of her haunts, many little aded touches of luxury had crept into it. Curtains of a shade in harmony with the carpet draped the window, an embroidered fire-screen stood in the corner, several fine engravings had made their appearance on the walls, and, as today, flowers often adorned the table.

As Clara crossed the hall and stood at the door, the doctor, looking out of all proportion with his surroundings, was bending over the vase which Gladys had filed that morning with fresh violets. At the sound of her step he turned quickly and came towards her, holding out his hand.

"I disappointed you." he said at orce hand.

"I disappointed you," he said at once, meeting her eyes with his friendly gaze.
"Yes," said Clara, frankly.
"I am sorry, but, my dear doctor, it was unavoidable. The girl would almost surely not have lived.
"She will surely die now," Dr. Martyn replied. "The operation might have given her a bare chance for life."

"I cannot think we should have been justified in making the trial." said Stephen, firmly.

Clara was silent, but there was a tremulous movement about the corners of her mouth as if something that rose to her lips remained unsaid:

"You are not satisfied, I see," said Stephen, looking earnestly at her. "What is it, Dr. Martyn? You usually have confidence in my judgment."

"I have, indeed," said Clara, averting her eyes her eyes.

"Then why not now?"
"Do you wish me to say frankly why I am dissatisfied?"
"Surely I do."

"Surely I do."
"Surely I do."
"Then I will tell you," said the little woman, liftling her eyes bravely to the face so far above hers; "I feel that that decision was not spoken in your usual tone of mind. You are not quite yourself. If you had been, I think you would have agreed with me in taking the risk, though I grant you it was a fearful one."
"I do not think I quite understand you! In what way am I not myself?"
"I think you are putting more of a strain upon yourself than you are able to bear. You think because your shoulders have always carried easily so much of other people's burdens, that this one added touch will not mater. You do not show it outwardly—you think you do not feel if, but—but under that pressure, you do not look at things so hopefully and brightly as you used. It is inevitable that it should be so."

Dr. Stephen made a turn about the tiny room.
"Can that he true?" he cried. He "Can that be true?" he cried. He stood for a moment looking thoughtful down at her, then said very quietly, "At least I understand you."

"And I have not offended you?" For the first time she failed to meet his eyes with her clear, fearless gaze. He gave her small hand a hearty pressure.

"That, I think, would be impossible. So far from it that I thank you for your friendly warning. Moreover, I believe you are right."

So far from it that I thank you for your friendly warning. Moreover, I believe you are right."

"I am sure that I am," she answered, calmly. "What do you propose to do?"

"That I cannot tell as yet. For the present I shall keep your admonition in in mind. Good-night!"

"Would you be willing to trust a great deal to me?" said Dr. Martyn, too preoccupied with her own thoughts to heed the good-night.

"Assuredly I should! I have no possible reason for thinking that you are not yourself." He said it smilingly.

"Oh! don't jest about it," she cried, as if the tone had given her pain. "Indeed, I was not speaking in that way."

They parted like trusted friends and comrades, but, as the door closed upon Stephen, the little doctor rested her arms on her desk, pillowed her head on her arms, and sat so for a long time, with her face hidden. Could it have been for a woman's reason that, when she did raise her head, her eyes looked less clear a woman's reason that, when she did raise her head, her eyes looked less clear and bright than usual? One of the nurses who came to the door stood looking in at her in surprise for a moment, and then stole noiselessly

"The doctor's all struck up about poor Harriet," she confided to one of the other attendants. "I don't think I ever knew her to feel so bad." ITo be Continued.1

At the Shubencadie Murder Inquest-Arrests To Be Made.

Halifax, N. S., March 14 .- Some sensational evidence was given at the inquest in the Shubencadie murder case last night. "I am well pleased with your medicines," writes John A. Calloway, Esq., of No. 218 26th St., Columbus, Ga. "In 1804 I was working at night and I broke out in lumps all over, and when these left the skin peeled off. I took six bottles of 'Golden Medical Discovery,' and two of Doctor Pierce's Pellets, and I do believe that I am sound and well. I have a good appetite, but before I commenced treatment I had no appetite at all. My eyes were sunken and my face was pale. I had pimples and brown spots on my face. Now these are all gone. I have used many kinds of medicines but received no benefit. Last year I weighed one hundred and thirty-four pounds, and now I weigh one hundred and forty-five. Please accept my thanks. I am so glad I found the right kind of medicine."

Committee of Citizens to Look Into Beet Sugar Problem.

WILL INVESTIGATE

Appointed at Public Meeting Where the Project Was Discussed Development of the Movement.

The beet sugar problem was intelligently discussed in the city hall last night by several of the 150 citizens present. The progress that is being made towards the establishment of the industry here is considered satisfactory even by its most ardent promoters. The definite action that was taken was the unanimous passing of a resolution, declaring the judgment of the meeting to be that the Dominion government should grant assistance to the industry, and the desire that Mr. C. S. Hyman, M.P., should lay the matter before the government; and the appointment of the following committee to investigate the whole matter and report at a meeting to be called by the mayor as soon as pos-sible: Messrs. J. R. Minhinnick, John Matinson, Ald. Parnell, Winnett and Cronyn, ex-Ald. Douglass, ex-Mayor Taylor, J. H. McMechan and H. C. Green and Mayor Rumball.

Mr. S. O. Burgendorf, of Bay City, editor of the Sugar Beet Journal, gave many interesting facts that he had gained in practical work across border, emphasizing particularly that the first essential was to secure contracts from the farmers for a sufficient acreage of the beet. This was the chief difficulty. If the farmers were so educated, and a supply of the beets was assured, there would be no trouble in getting all the capital necessary to secure a sugar factory here.

Many questions were asked him, and in reply he said that a factory costing $500,000 would require an acreage of 5,000 in beets. It would give employment to from 250 to 300 men for from three to five months in the working night and day. It would especially enrich the farmer. Michigan had ten refineries at present, three others are in course of erection. The conditions for growing beets and the establishment of a refinery here were very favorable. A refinery would require at the outset 40 acres of ground. The buildings would $100,000; the machinery $400,000. Sixty thousand tons of soft coal would be used every season; 2,000,000 gallons of water every 24 hours; 5,000 tons of lime rock and 600 tons of coke. only failure in Michigan was at Benton Harbor, where the factory was hurriedly erected in a peach district adopted for beets.

Reeve Bidner, of Alvinston, who had investigated the subject in Michigan, said that the farmers were delighted

A healthy appetite and common sense to leave the matter for the Provincial are excellent guides to follow in matters of diet, and a mixed diet of grains, fruits and vegetables is undoubtedly the best.

As compared with grains and vegetables, meat furnishes the most nutriment in a highly concentrated form, and is digested and assimilated more quickly than vegetables and grains. Dr. Julius Remmson on this subject says: Nervous persons, people run down in health and of low vitality should eat meat and plenty of it. If the digestion is too feeble at first it may be easily corrected by the regular use of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets after each meal. Two of these excellent tablets taken after dinner will digest several thousand grains of meat, eggs or other animal food in three hours, and no mat-ter how weak the stomach may be, no trouble will be experienced if a regu-lar practice is made of using Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets because they supply the pepsin and diastase necessary to perfect digestion, and every form of indigestion will be overcome by their

That large class of people who come under the head of nervous dyspeptics should eat plenty of meat, and insure its proper digestion by the daily use of a safe, harmless digestive medicine like Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, composed of the natural digestive principles, pepsin, diastase, fruit acids and salts, which actually perform the work of digestion. Cheap cathartic medicines, masquerading under the name of dyspensia cures are useless for indigestion. as they have absolutely no effect upon the actual digestion of food. Dyspepsia in all its many forms is simply a failure of the stomach to digest food, and the sensible way to solve the riddle and cure the dyspepsia is to make daily use of a preparation like Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, which is with the situation. They declared that the industry had proven a God-send to them. That there was money in the refineries for the capitalists and for the towns in which the factories were situated, he was convinced by reason of the manner in which the refineries had been enlarged and their numbers increased. Mayor Rumball said that no where else in Canada could the advantages for the growing of the sugar beet equal those to be found here. London was in a position to get soft coal at the least possible cost. It was situated in the heart of the garden of the Dominion, and had ample railway facilities for bringing beets here.

The proposal to make a thorouge investigation was warmly supported by Mr. J. R. Minhinnick, Ald. Parnell, Mr. J. R. Moody and Mr. H. C. Green. The latter was introduced by mayor as the man who had done the most of all others to bring a factory here, a statement that was heartily applauded.

The civic deputation that has been in Toronto met some capitalists there who are putting in two factories in Canada. They have only located one and would make a liberal offer to London to establish the other here,

Board of Works Estimates for the Year 1901

As Compared With Those of the Previous Year-A Total of $34,-000 Called For.

The chief feature of No. 2 committee's meeting last night was the adoption of estimates for the coming year. The estimates submitted called for the expenditure of $39,915, as against $34,700 estimated and $34,240 82 expended last year. Over $5,000 was pared off, bringing the figure down to $24,000, which the engineer will apportion to the needs of the various objects as he sees fit. The other business of the meeting consisted mainly of the granting of petitions for and against public improvements. The members present were: Ald. Winnett Parnell, Mayor Rumball, Engineer

Graydon and Secretary Bell. The following tables show the 'estimates and expenditure for last year and the estimates for this year as sub-
