OKU DENIES ALL ATROCITIES

Russian Statements are Untrue—Japs Take the Mao Tien Pass.

Another Torpedo Fight Reported with Heavy Firing Between the Fleets.

Ta Tche Liao, July 2. — Via Liao Yang, July 4.—A fight between Russian torpedo boats and Japs as reported was reported off the coast today. Heavy cannonading was heard here from the seaward. An officer, who came in, declares that from a hill top near the coast he saw vessels engaged in a fight, but they were too far off to distinguish them. General Kuroki has begun a retreat, probably as a result of the rains which have flooded all the rivers and threatened to cut them off from his base of supplies. Nearly all the customary fords now are absolutely impassable.

Ta Tche Kiao, July 3, Sunday. (Delayed in transmission). — All is quiet at the outposts. General Kuropatkin is here engaged in the peaceful task of opening a permanent hospital of two hundred beds, founded by the Manchuria Railway employees.

St. Petersburg, July 4.—The Vladivostok squadron is understood to have returned safe to port.

Tokio, July 4, 11 a. m.—Gen. Oku has forwarded a detailed report to the imperial headquarters regarding the charges performed by the Russian army that the Japanese troops were responsible for atrocities committed on the field during the engagement at Wu Fang Tien preceding the battle of Valangow (July 1).

Unfounded, he says, the contrary they had proofs that the wounded Russian prisoners highly appreciated the humane treatment they and their comrades had received from the Japanese. It is the Russians, he declares, that cruelly mutilated the Japanese who fell into their hands wounded.

General Oku makes the following charges—That on June 15th six Japanese scouts were overpowered by Russian troops, who ran by their hands and their mouths and their heads, and cut their breasts open; that on June 27th the Russians captured a Japanese cavalry man, whom they bayoneted and then cut his abdomen open. On May 15th the Russians bayoneted a Japanese cavalry man whom they had captured. Gen. Oku asserts that acts of cruelty on the part of Russian troops are numerous, and as he attempted to poison himself last week by drinking a bottle of turpentine which he had in the house, his throat was cut by the last persons who would have been expected to commit such an act, but it is said family troubles preyed upon his mind to such an extent as to unbalance it.

No other reason can be assigned for this terrible deed.

CUT THROAT

Farmer Near Leamington Succeeded Yesterday—Family Trouble the Cause.

Leamington, July 4.—John Peter, a respectable farmer living on the sixth concession of Mercer, committed suicide this morning by cutting his throat with a razor. He expired a few minutes later.

The act was no doubt premeditated, as he attempted to poison himself last week by drinking a bottle of turpentine which he had in the house, his throat was cut by the last persons who would have been expected to commit such an act, but it is said family troubles preyed upon his mind to such an extent as to unbalance it.

No other reason can be assigned for this terrible deed.

BRUTAL OUTRAGE

An Octogenarian Beaten by Masked Men and Robbed of $500 and Lot of Jewellery.

Rochester, N. Y., July 4. — Three masked men broke into the home of James L. Blodgett, aged 82 years, a prominent citizen and banker of Hermitage, early this morning, attacked the aged man, beat him severely, and left, after securing nearly $500 in money and jewels. The robbers broke through a door with a lighted torch in their hands, and shouted fire. When Mr. Blodgett rushed out of his room the burglars seized and bound him, and ordered him to tell them where his money was hidden. He replied that it was all in the safe at the bank. The three robbers were not satisfied with this answer and again set upon the aged man and beat him almost into insensibility. They then gagged Mr. Blodgett, and for nearly an hour ransacked the house, securing nearly $500 in money, a gold watch and other jewelry. Some time after the burglars had left the house Mr. Blodgett succeeded in releasing himself and notified the authorities of the facts. There is no doubt that the money was broken, and his condition, while serious, is not considered fatal.

JOSHUA BOBIER WAS KILLED

Was Passing Around Rear End of Street Car When Struck by Another.

Deceased Was Well Known in Chatham and Visited Friends Here a Short Time Ago.

A Jefferson avenue street car conductor's mistake in carrying Joshua Bobier, aged 74, of Ingersoll, Ont., beyond his street may have led to the old man's death yesterday.

Mr. Bobier asked to be let off the car at Avery avenue, but the conductor carried him beyond that point. At fourteenth avenue he boarded a backbound Jefferson street car, which stopped at Avery avenue. Mr. Bobier walked around the rear of the car in front of the westbound one, which struck him. He was picked up which he fell and carried nearly a block before the motorist could stop. He was seriously injured, but internal hurts developed and the old man died at noon at the residence of his cousins, Mrs. Masses Kneeland, 40 Pine street, and six children, who live at Ingersoll, Ont. About May 24 last he left home to visit some of his relatives in Detroit and had been at the Misses Kneeland's home since last Wednesday morning. Yesterday he started for Avery avenue and, not knowing the streets, was carried by Dr. Walter J. Cree attended him. Mr. Bobier was expecting to go home on Wednesday, and his brother was coming to the hospital to take him back. Coroner Topel will hold an inquest.—Detroit Free Press.

Deceased was well known in Chatham and visited here a week or so ago at James Gardiner's and Mrs. J. R. Reid's.

AWFUL SCENE

AS VESSEL SANK

Norge Wreck One of Worst Tragedies of the Sea—Boats Badly Handled.

No Management in Launching Them—Hundreds Leaped from Ship and Were Drowned.

Grimsby, Eng., July 4.—A lone pile of granite rising sheer out of the Atlantic, 290 miles from the Scottish mainland, is now a monument to almost seven hundred dead. Bodies washed against the rocks or lie in the ocean bed at its base. Nearby, completely hidden in the water, is the Scandinavian-American liner Norge, which was carrying eight hundred Danes, Norwegians, Swedes and Finns to join relatives and friends in America. Of these only about 130 were saved.

The Norge had no first-class passengers on board and only nine on her second cabin list. All the others were on the deck, and there were on board 604 steerage passengers. Of these 79 were Danes, 68 Swedes, 296 Norwegians, 15 Finns, and 236 Russians. The Norge carried a crew of 71. She was the oldest Danish transatlantic steamer running.

No tragedy of the sea has had more appalling consequences and none has occurred in a shorter time. The passengers were suddenly aroused from their sleep, terrified by the contact of the bows of the ship with the solid granite, followed by a grinding, scraping sound as if the hull was being shoved over huge rocks. Then silence as the clanging bells brought the engines to a stop. Those of the passengers who were standing at the time the steamer struck the rocks were thrown against the bulkheads or on the decks and had not recovered their feet when a stentorian voice gave the terrifying order: "All hands on deck. Hurry or you may sink."

Immediately there was a rush for the narrow companions, and men, women and children pushed and struggled and made every effort to reach the deck, where the boats swung from the davits. Many persons, retaining their presence of mind, seized life preservers, only to find in some instances that the strings were rotten, and that they could not be put quickly around their bodies. Those who reached the decks saw the nose of the Norge pinned directly against the rock. It remained there for only a few minutes, for Capt. Gundell, commanding, who had immediately gone to the bridge, gave the order to the engine-room to reverse engines. Some men of the engineer force had relatives among the passengers, and after seeing them safely to the boats they heroically returned to their stations below.

A TERRIBLE STRUGGLE.

Slowly the ship backed off, and as she gained way it was found that water was pouring into her hold. This announcement, called out in Scandinavian and presaging death, added to the supreme fright and agony. The passengers who were on the boats to escape, while the unfortunates, who saw death near, clustered in seething, struggling masses, some on their knees praying, surroded by children others supplicating aid from anyone who might be willing to enter the boats, elbowing fighting their way to the places from which the boats were being lowered.

The sound of grinding ceased, and the bow of the Norge yawled as the steamer returned to deep water. The sea rushed hungrily into the huge rents made by the rocks in the iron hull. Swiftly the vessel began to sink by the bows. Without waiting for orders, without paying attention to their proper manning, the occupants began to lower the boats. The starboard lifeboat began slowly to fall when the horror of those on board, the stern tackle failed, while the bow lifeboat ran free. Soon the boat was almost perpendicular, and pieces of the crew were seen flung desperately to the sides of the seats until a great wave came towering along and struck the side of the ship, smashing it against the side of the ship. The occupants of the boat who were not killed by the impact were thrown into the water. The crew and passengers on deck had no time to spare to assist the few who had a chance to escape but lost it. Undeterred by the experience of the first boat, a second, loaded principally with women and children, was lowered. This time the tackle ran smoothly, but the hopes of escape of the passengers on board were blasted. The moment it touched the water waves picked up the small craft as if it had been a feather and dashed it against the side of the ship in spite of the frantic efforts of the passengers to fend it off. The crash was heard on deck. Then the sea swallowed more victims, and pieces of wreckage slowly drifted towards the rock.

PEACE RUMOR

Russia to Give Up Port Arthur on Certain Conditions.

Tokio, July 4, 11 a. m.—It is reported that Russia has through France offered to surrender Port Arthur to Japan, together with ships and arms there, providing that the garrison is freed. A confirmation of the report is impossible, as it is generally regarded to be untrue.

DRESDEN FIRE

Dresden was visited by a serious fire early this morning. The brick grocery store, near the bridge, which crosses the Sydenham in the business portion of the city, took fire and it spread to some frame buildings near.

The Dresden Fire Department worked well until their engine played out. They telephoned to Chatham for assistance at 2.25. Chief Pritchard got out his men, got the Mayor's permission, to go and got the engine to the station. By this time the Dresden engine was working again and they got word not to go.

After considerable work the flames were got under control but not before considerable property was destroyed. The loss will be heavy.

WOMAN FORGER

St. Thomas, July 4.—Saturday Mrs. William Smith, a woman 22 years of age, whose husband is employed at the Eric Flour Mills, was arrested on the charge of forgery. On June 23rd she presented at the Dominion Bank a Moisons Bank check for $32, purporting to be signed by J. P. Martyn, broker, and endorsed by Mrs. Mary Fuller, of whom no trace can be found by the police. On the Dominion Bank officials sending the note by a messenger to the Moisons Bank to have the signature identified the woman skipped. Her story now is that she met Mrs. Fuller on the street, and that she asked her to get the note cashed for her the same day. However, Mrs. Smith secured $15 from J. P. Martyn by falsely representing that she was the wife of a Wabash brakeman, and also by fraud secured a gold ring from W. R. Jackson, jeweler. The woman was remanded until Monday for trial.

SEVERE STORM

The storm yesterday has done considerable damage in the city. Trees have been blown down, fences destroyed, telephone wires crossed and the electric fire alarm system has been deranged. A large English thorn tree in front of the residence of Andrew Pike, Joseph St., was blown down, just missing by a side of the house and smashing the fence.

Chief Pritchard, of the Fire Department, has been out all morning testing alarm boxes and many of them will not ring at all. The telephone system is damaged to some extent but men are working on it, and it will soon be working perfectly again.

ABOLISH ENTRANCE EXAMS.

The Department of Education in Toronto, through the Deputy Minister, John Millar, has given the Toronto Board of Education permission to dispense with the entrance examination for the first class, and grant pupils certificates of admission to the Collegiate Institutes on the reports of the principals concerned. This radical departure will be made applicable not only to Toronto, but to other large centres, but just where the line will be drawn the Department has not yet specified. This year's examinations will proceed as usual, the new regulations not taken effect until 1905.

SUMMER SCHOOL

Over forty were in attendance at the Provincial Summer School session, which formally opened at the Central School building this morning.

The class work has been carefully scheduled for the entire session and much interest is being manifested in the work by the visiting teachers. The equipment is complete and a most successful term is looked for.

TOLSTOI SCORES WAR BITTERLY

Czar Encouraging Murder and Fraud—Government Exciting Idlers.

Says Patriotic Feeling in Russia is Simply Aiding the Work of the Devil.

London, July 4.—"Again war. Again sufferings necessary to nobody, utterly uncalled for. Again fraud. Again the universal stupefaction and brutalization of men," are the opening words of the powerful indictment of the Russo-Japanese war by Count Leo Tolstoi, occupying the columns of the Times. He fearlessly impeaches the Czar, saying contemptuously: "This unfortunate, entangled young man, recognized as the leader of 130,000,000 people, is continually deceived and compelled to contradict himself. He confidently thanks and blesses the troops, whom he calls his own, for murdering in defence of lands which with yet less right he also calls his own. All present to each other hideous ikons in which not only one among the educated believes, but which the unlearned peasants are beginning to abandon. All bow down to the ground before these ikons, kiss them, pronounce pompous and deceitful speeches in which no one really believes.

"Wealthy people contribute insignificant portions of their immorally acquired riches for this cause of murder or in the organization of help in connection with the work of murder, while the poor, from whom the government annually collects two milliards, deem it necessary to do likewise, giving their mites also.

"The government incites, encourages crowds of idlers, who walk about the streets with the Czar's portrait, singing and shouting 'Hurrah!' and who, under the pretext of patriotism, are licensed in all kinds of excesses.

"All over Russia, from the palace to the remotest village, the pastors of churches, calling themselves Christians, appeal to that God who has enjoined love to one's enemies, to the God of love himself, to help the work of the devil, to further the slaughter of men.

"The frightful work commenced is continued. Loot, violence, murder, hypocrisy, theft, abuse all the most fearful frauds and distortions of religion, teaching, by Christian and Buddhist, continues. The Czar, chief responsible person, continues to review the troops, to thank and reward and encourage them. He issued an edict for calling out reserves. His faithful subjects again and again lay down their property and their lives at the feet of him they call only with their lips their adored monarch."

TUESDAY, JULY 5.

DUNDONALD AT RENFREW.

Lord Dundonald was the honored guest of the Sons of Scotland at Renfrew on Dominion day. Heavy rain fell at intervals, but that did not cool the enthusiasm of the people of Renfrew, who gave the hero of Ladysmith a grand reception, and made it quite evident that if recent events affected the popularity of the late G. O. C. it was in the direction of making him more popular than ever.

When Prof. Comptroller Professor Dr. Bluntschli in 1880 wrote to Von Moltke making some suggestions of permanent peace, the grim veteran replied, in part: "Permanent peace is a dream, and not even a beautiful one, and war is a law of God's order in the world, by which the noblest virtues of man, courage and self-sacrifice, loyalty and self-sacrifice, even to the point of death, are developed. Without war the world would deteriorate into materialism. I perfectly agree with that sentence of the preface which announces that advancing civilization will also improve warfare, but I go further in believing that ignoble breed of men who regard every rightful impulse of the human heart, not from the higher point of view of sentiment and natural inclination, but from that low and sordid standpoint of how it will affect themselves in the material and fleeting advantage of worldly gain."

THEIR POWERS OF ENDURANCE.

Prince Oukaltomasky, editor of a St. Petersburg paper, who is now in the United States, says in an article written for the Independent that there can be only one end to the war between his country and Japan. That Russia will crush Japan is, he says, absolutely certain. There may be a few more Jap victories; but Japan's resources will soon be exhausted, and Russia's resources in men and money are virtually inexhaustible.

This confidence in Russia's ability to outlast her foe is felt by several shrewd students of international affairs. Henry Norman, M. P., the well-known writer and traveller, among them. Possibly they are right; and yet it would be interesting to know what they base their faith upon. From what is known of the condition of the people of the two countries one would suppose that Japan is better able than Russia to endure the strain of a prolonged war. There is hardly any subject poverty in Japan. The peasantry require but little to live on, they have enough, and are contented. We know that before entering upon the contest the Japanese elder statesmen, who direct the empire's policy, carefully calculated the cost and the ability of the country to pay it. Does it appear reasonable, after what we have seen of the marvelous ability of the Japanese in military and naval strategy, that the wisest heads in the empire would blunder in such an all-important matter as the ability of the country to sustain a prolonged war? We know that their calculations covered the prospect of a war lasting two or three years.

And how about Russia? She has a great war fund—three or four hundred millions in gold—so it has been frequently reported; and her borrowing power is yet unimpaired. But her expenses must of necessity be enormously greater than those of Japan, seeing that she has to maintain fighting forces five thousand miles from their base of supplies, and keep that long line of communication guarded. The drain on the country's resources is terrible. And in what condition are the people to endure it? M. de Witte, late minister of finance, said recently in an official report: "The population is weighed down by direct and indirect taxation to the uttermost that can be borne." And the St. Petersburg Viedomosti, shortly before the beginning of the war, declared that "Russia is chronically starving, pauperism increases in extent and degree, and there are neither ways nor means apparent either to stop or to mitigate this evil. Expenditure is growing on all sides and in all directions without bounds, but the sources of productive labor are exhausted. The people labor with all their force, but all their exortions do not suffice to satisfy the requirements of the state and those who live on the labor of the peasants."

If this is the condition of the Russian people in time of peace, how can they endure the additional burden of a prolonged war? If the war party which at present dominates the czar's councils propose to prolong the war at any cost with the hope of wearing Japan out, it may defeat its purpose. The patience of the Japanese people is united to a most fervent patriotism; but in Russia there is already smoldering a hidden fire of revolution, which is not unlikely to break out with volcanic violence when the patience of the peasantry has become exhausted.

PRaise OF WAR.

When Prof. Comptroller Professor Dr. Bluntschli in 1880 wrote to Von Moltke making some suggestions of permanent peace, the grim veteran replied, in part: "Permanent peace is a dream, and not even a beautiful one, and war is a law of God's order in the world, by which the noblest virtues of man, courage and self-sacrifice, loyalty and self-sacrifice, even to the point of death, are developed. Without war the world would deteriorate into materialism. I perfectly agree with that sentence of the preface which announces that advancing civilization will also improve warfare, but I go further in believing that ignoble breed of men who regard every rightful impulse of the human heart, not from the higher point of view of sentiment and natural inclination, but from that low and sordid standpoint of how it will affect themselves in the material and fleeting advantage of worldly gain."

Sir Wilfrid Laurier has said—"If I had my own way, and in this matter, there would be a corps of volunteers in every town." In towns where "foreigners" predominate we suspect that the hon. gentleman would add an "e" to the corps—Mail and Empire.

Another survivor of the famous Light Brigade, which, at Balaklava, 670 strong, rode "into the jaws of death, into the mouth of hell," is reported living in the city of Denver, Colo. His name is Alexander Sutherland. He is ninety-four years of age, but has expressed a desire to attend the St. Louis Fair, in response to an invitation received from the school children of that city. As the bugler of the brigade, Mr. Sutherland led the charge at the command of Lord Cardigan, and was one of the 198 heroes who returned from the field of carnage.

WILLIAM THE KISSER

Emperor William, wearing the uniform of a British admiral, yesterday welcomed to Germany his grandmother's son, King Edward, kissing him several times on both cheeks. But whether the stout Englishman finally said—"There, there, Bill; that will do," the story doesn't say.

WATCHWORD FOR CANADIANS.

The Dominion day word for Canadians is duty. Canada is not asking any body to die for it. Canada should not have to ask everybody to live for it; to vote for it; to think first of the country's good and last of the party's gain.

FORTUNE'S DARLING.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier's use of the word "foreigner" was a mistake arising out of a small spirit of arrogant impatience. It is the good fortune of Sir Wilfrid Laurier to be able to turn even his mistakes into political capital. Quebec will be roused by word pictures of Lord Dundonald being sent out by Joseph Chamberlain "to drag good Canada" and being sent back again by Sir Wilfrid Laurier with the words "foreigner" and "stranger" ringing in his ears. Ontario will be invited to sympathize in his persecutions at the hands of the Tories who misuse his mere slip of the tongue. Canadians of French origin are to rejoice with these partisans who rejoice because Sir Wilfrid Laurier called Lord Dundonald "a foreigner" and "a stranger," and "kicked him out of the country." Canadians of English origin are to weep with the partisans who weep because the Tories dwell on Sir Wilfrid Laurier's use of the words that will serve as vote catchers in Quebec. The words "foreigner" and "stranger" as a climax to Lord Dundonald's actions against Sir Wilfrid Laurier will stampede Quebec for the Liberals while the great heart of Ontario will be moved by Sir Wilfrid's eloquent and pathetic disclaimer of the meaning which the Tories attach to these words. Wilfrid Laurier must have been born under a lucky star when the words "foreigner" and "stranger" serve as a mistake that gives him votes in Quebec, and his explanation of that mistake gains him votes in Ontario.

NEURALGIC HEADACHE IS USUALLY

Attended with blinding pain, but relief comes quickly when Nerviline is applied, for it is the strongest pain-reliever in the world. "I consider Nerviline a most magical remedy for neuralgia. I am subject to violent attacks," writes Mrs. E. G. Barriss, of Baltimore, but never worry if Nerviline is in the house. The prompt relief that Nerviline brings makes it priceless to me. A few applications never yet failed to kill the pain. I can also recommend Nerviline for stiffness in the joints and rheumatism." Try Nerviline yourself. Price 25c.

Enough and Ready Woe.

The Australian aborigine when weary of a single life looks about for a partner, and, finding one to his liking, stalks her, and, watching his opportunity, stuns her with a heavy blow and carries her off to her new home, where it is to be hoped, on her return to consciousness, his after tenderness makes some atonement for his somewhat rough and ready way of wooing.

A Possibility.

PNEUMONIA IS FILLING THE HOSPITALS.

Every day we hear of someone being taken with pneumonia. The only preventive is to get strong and keep your body healthy. Take Ferrozone which makes the rich, red kind of blood that nourishes and stimulates the entire system. "I was all run down and an apt subject for pneumonia," writes A. B. Charters, of Burlington, "when I tried Ferrozone. I didn't believe it was possible for Ferrozone to build me up so quickly. In a few days my appetite improved, color came into my cheeks and I felt stronger. I gained eight pounds and regained my old time vigor through using Ferrozone." Try Ferrozone, it assures health. HE COULD PREACH.

At First He Thought He Couldn't, but Changed His Opinion.

In the early days of Methodism in the west a circuit rider, if he had a large field to cover, was sometimes permitted to have a colleague, who was frequently a young minister, just beginning to preach. The Rev. John Thompson was a circuit rider in a somewhat thinly settled portion of central Illinois more than fifty years ago. The colleague assigned to him was Brother James Smith, an excellent young man, but with very little experience as a preacher.

One Sunday Mr. Thompson had an appointment at a small meeting house in the country, but having a severe cold he asked his young assistant to go along with him and preach the sermon, and the latter, as in duty bound, obeyed orders.

Brother Smith had never undertaken to preach in the presence of his more experienced colleague, and when, after the opening services, he rose and gave out his text he was visibly embarrassed.

He stammered through a few sentences, hesitated, made another attempt and came to a dead stop.

"What's the use, brethren?" he said, sitting down. "I can't preach!"

Brother Thompson saw that the case was one in which heroic measures were necessary.

"Young man," he whispered sternly in his ear, "you get up again and preach that sermon or I'll take you out in the grove after this meeting is over and give you a hard spanking, as sure as your name is Smith!"

An electric shock could not have operated quicker. Brother Smith rose to his feet again, his hesitation all gone, and in a ringing tone he preached a sermon that is still remembered by aged survivors of that old time congregation as the most fervid and eloquent discourse they ever heard so young a man deliver.—Youth's Companion.

THE ORIFLAMB.

A Standard That Has Played a conspicuous Part in History.

The Carolingian standard was really no other than the oriflamb, which has played so conspicuous a part in French history, but was not formally adopted until 1082, in the reign of Philip I. It consisted of a red or crimson flag, mounted on a gilded staff, the flag being cut into three "vandykes," to represent "tongues of fire," with a silken tassel between each.

The old romance writers pretended that the infidel was blinded by merely looking upon it. In the "Roman de Garin" the Saracens are made to exclaim, "if we only see it, we shall be dead men," and Froissart affirms that as soon as it was unfurled at Rosbecque the fog vanished from the French line of battle, leaving their enemies still shrouded in darkness.

Thus red, the color which the church has consecrated to her martyrs, became in its turn the color of the French kings. They wore it on their coats of arms through the whole period of the crusades and as late as the closing decade of the fourteenth century were still faithful to this "glorious" zion.

The famous Du Guesclin, fighting against the English in Poitou, wore the red cross, while his adversaries wore the white. But after the great defeat at Agincourt in 1415 the French kings abandoned the oriflamb, because it had been assumed by Henry V, and his successors, and adopted white as a national color when England had discarded it. This is a curious but little known historical fact.—All the Year Round.

Teeth as Sentinels.

"When thou sittest to eat with a ruler consider diligently him that is before thee," says the Hebrew proverb, warning a king's guest to regulate his appetite by his host's temper. Boswell, Dr. Johnson's biographer, gives in his notebook a modern paraphrase of the old Jewish proverb. "If I had of a rich man who entertained us luxuriously that, although he was exceedingly ridiculous, we restrained ourselves from talking of him as we might do lest we should lose his feasts. 'He makes our teeth sentinels on our tongues,' said I."

An Endless Chain.

"Isn't that the same suit you had last year, Uncle Peter?" the agent for sewing machines inquired.

The postmaster, storekeeper, town clerk and teamster looked at him in silence for a moment. "Yes, sir," he said at last in a chilly tone. "It is the same suit I had last year, and it is the same suit you asked me last year if it wasn't the same suit I had the year before. Now, have you got any more questions to ask, or will they hold over till next season?"

Men and Gossip.

"Why do men never gossip?" asked the woman who regards her husband as a great and good man.

"Because," answered Miss Cayenne, "they are too indolent. They insist on sending their wives out to get the news for them."

Two Men.

"That fellow yonder?"

"What of him?"

"Just rich enough to be miserable. But the fellow standing near him is—"

"What?"

"Just poor enough to be resigned."

Short.

"Why does Mr. Spatt wear such short trousers?"

"Because they fit him. I asked him for a small loan, and he said he was so short his corns made his head ache."—London Tit-Bits.

It Is the Mind That Sows.

How do we see? Did you ever change to think? I have asked quite a number of people lately, and they reply: "With our eyes, of course. How else?"

Or words to that effect. Did you ever realize how much of our vision is mental? We see nothing properly and definitely until the mind lends its perception. We may gaze steadfastly at a picture, yet be unable to see anything but a confused mass of color, because the mind is seeing faces and scenes a thousand miles away perhaps. Call the mental vision back, and the figures on the canvas take their proper places. At once we see the picture. Or shut your eyes. Can you not see the faces of those you love or hate as clearly as you ever saw them with the physical means of sight? How many times one glances at his watch, yet when asked the time as he replaces it in his pocket is unable to tell simply because he looked only with the eyes and not with the mind also.—Exchange.

Music in Japan.
Music in the eyes of the Japanese is a very inferior art, the general belief being that the combination of sounds may possibly please women and children, but that a Japanese gentleman could not possibly tolerate them, no matter under what pretext. In fact, it was not very long ago that the profession of musician was considered by the Japanese as being an insult to human dignity, and, whereas there have existed for centuries popular songs which water carriers and the workers in the rice fields sang in chorus as well as war songs sung by the sailors, the profession of musician has been considered unworthy of any man and has been exclusively left with the women, it being largely for the purpose of clearly characterizing and accentuating her inferiority that she has been allowed to exercise her aptitudes and tastes in musical compositions.

Bird Characteristics.
Among all the birds of this country the hawk and parrot come the nearest to using their feet like hands. Wading birds and scratching birds develop a very large foot. Birds that are in the air most of the time have much more delicate feet than those that are on the ground frequently. The variety of bills is quite as astounding as that of the claws. The hook on the end of the bill almost always denotes a bird of prey. Flat bills denote fly catching birds, kingfishers, herons, etc. The meadow lark that is much on the ground has strong, stout legs, and the oriole, which is more in the air, has slender legs. The stiffened tail is not confined to woodpeckers and chimney swifts, but the bobolink that clings to the long grass has also stiffened tail feathers to help support the bird upright.

Two Superstitions.
"Spilling the salt" and the ill omen that attaches to it are traceable to the last supper of Christ with his apostles, when it is said that Judas accidentally overturned the salt. Because of the after doom of the unfortunate traitor to spill the salt at table is an accepted sign of future ill luck to happen to the person doing it.

"Thirteen at table" and its unlucky significance originated at this event also. Christ and his twelve apostles dining together for the last time composed the number that has since been regarded with superstitious aversion, not only in the matter of dining, but in almost everything else as well.—What to Eat.

Japanese Fencing.
The Japanese sword is usually wielded with both hands. The cutting plays a much larger part in their sword play than the thrust and point. They also fence with two swords at once, the long, two handed weapon being held in the right hand, while the left uses the shorter and lighter blade. The fencer stands with his right foot forward and his sword held in both hands directly in front of him, its hilt at about the level of his waist, its point being at nearly the level of his opponent's eyes.

Bamboo in China and Japan.
For centuries the Japanese and Chinese have raised the bamboo as a practical crop. The natives of tropical India and the Malay archipelago would be as much at a loss without it as the American farmer without his white pine, for they depend upon it not only for their chief building material, but for ropes, mats, kitchen utensils, etc.

The Ideal Beauty in Japan.
In the Japanese ideal of beauty these are the desired "points." Her face and figure, hands and feet and her nose must be long and narrow, her arms and limbs slender and her hips small. Broad hips are the one unpardonable sin. Few Japanese women measure five feet, so the length of the figure is relative.

No One Wants Them.
"Why is it," asked the philosopher, "that misfortunes never come singly?" "Can't say," replied the other man, "unless it is that on account of the reception they get they're afraid to travel alone."

Not Acting His Part.
Customer—Gracious! How loud mouthed and domineering that man is! Is he a member of the firm? Salesman—Yes; he's the silent partner.

A Strike.
"Bobby, here's your penny, and you must go right to bed."
"Pa, I want more pay and longer hours."

An inquisitive man is a creature naturally very vacant of thought itself and therefore forced to apply to foreign assistance.—Steels.

LOVE

Often leads to poverty. No real woman ever sold her heart for the luxuries of life.

But many a woman who has gladly faced poverty for the man she loved, may well doubt her wisdom when pain becomes the mate of poverty. If she were rich, she thinks, she could find a way of cure.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is within the reach of every one. It lifts the burden of pain which weighs down those who suffer from womanly diseases. It establishes regularity, dries weakening drains, heals inflammation and ulceration and cures female weakness.

"You have my heartfelt thanks for your kind advice to me," writes Mrs. Geo. Fletcher, of 206 Victoria Avenue, Galt, Ontario. "I was troubled with catarrh of uterus for over a year. The doctors said I would have to go through an operation, but I commenced to use Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and Golden Medical Discovery, also his 'Lotion Tablets' and 'Antiseptic Healing Preparation' and in a few weeks I was completely cured, after using six bottles of Dr. Pierce's medicine. I can't say his medicine has made me a new woman."

Weak and sick women, especially those suffering from diseases of long standing, are invited to consult Dr. Pierce by letter. All correspondence is held as strictly private and sacredly confidential. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are easy and pleasant to take. A most effective laxative.

SORRY SHE SPOKE.

The Mistake That Was Made by a New York Milliner.

One of the richest and most prominent society women in New York caught an unexpected glimpse of the reverse side of a Fifth avenue tradeswoman's manners the other day. The society woman in question is very quiet and unostentatious in her dress, and it is only the appointment of her equipage that betrays the fact that she is wealthy. She stopped her carriage outside the establishment of a fashionable milliner, entered and addressed the proprietress.

"I see you have in your window a sign, 'Apprentice Wanted,'" she began. The milliner eyed her contemptuously, her feeling of annoyance is heightened to the tip of her common sense shoe.

"You would not do at all," she said. "I want a ladylike person who can wait on customers."

"I wished to place one of my maids with some one from whom she could learn millinery while I am abroad," continued the visitor quietly, "but I'm afraid you would not do."

As the woman opened the carriage door for his mistress the horror-stricken milliner recognized too late the livery of one of the "first families" of New York.

As a rule the orator who uses the biggest words has the least to say.

Many women are denied the happiness of children through derangement of the generative organs. Mrs. Beyer advises women to use Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I suffered with stomach complaint for years. I got so bad that I could not carry my children but five months, then would have a miscarriage. The last time I became pregnant, my husband got me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. After taking the first bottle I was relieved of the sickness of stomach, and began to feel better in every way. I continued its use and was enabled to carry my baby to maturity. I now have a nice baby girl, and can work better than I ever could before. I am like a new woman."

FAMILY HISTORY.

Why It Should Be Studied by Those Contemplating Matrimony.

The fact that the offspring may be the heir to the morbid tendencies of the parents makes it imperative that the greatest care should be exercised in the selection of a spouse, but one should not grow too wary and hypercritical. No generation ever existed which did not possess some abnormality, and a rational mode of life will tend to ameliorate certain untoward affections. The rule of the life insurance companies to inquire into the family history of the applicant would be a prudent course for those intending marriage to adopt. Even if the aspirant to marriage evinces no unhealthy symptoms, a minute study of the physical condition of his immediate relatives might disclose the morbid tendency to which he or she is heir.

Whenever anomalies and signs of degeneration repeatedly present themselves in preceding and present generations, thus proving the ascendancy of such morbid affections, we may assume that subsequent generations will not be spared, and marital union with a member of such a family should be emphatically interdicted. Among the lower classes and for that matter also among those of higher standing the fact that there is tuberculosis (or insanity) in the family is perhaps the only deterrent to contemplated conjugal union, and here it is the graphic and obvious manifestation of the diseases which inspire the dread. Of the nature of the numerous other grave and disastrous affections the public in general is woefully ignorant. Unless the dangers that await them are imparted to them in an intelligible manner there can be little hope for the amelioration of present conditions.

MME. TUSSAUD.
The Famous Waxen Model Artist of Paris and London.

Mme. Tussaud was already famous in Paris before she went to England. It was with two of her waxen reproductions, seized by the people for a parade through the streets of Paris, that the French revolution was started. The soldiers attacked the figures. Two days later followed the memorable storming of the Bastille. Modeling wax had been the fashionable craze of the court and the rich. It was caught from a physician of Berne named Curtius, who turned to fine art his remarkable skill in modeling anatomical specimens and was invited to Paris by the Prince de Conti. Mme. Tussaud, nee Marie Gresholtz, the child of a soldier, was his niece and adopted daughter, first his pupil and finally his master. There were few personages whose names are famous now in connection with the revolution who did not "sit" to the young artist in wax. The heads of some she had to model after the guillotines had been employed upon them. She gave lessons in the art to the king's sister, Mme. Elizabeth, among other illustrious persons, and was imprisoned with Josephine de Beauharnais, afterward empress. Even in those early days M. Curtius had a "chamber of horrors."

But after the revolution Mme. Tussaud left France forever. Nor did she at first find times in England much more propitious. After trying the Strand she moved to Blackheath, then a popular resort, but at last had to go on tour from town to town. It was not till 1835 that she was able to settle permanently in London.

Alaska's Glaciers.
Glacier bay is the most accessible region in which to see large tidewater glaciers of Alaska. There are eight glaciers which discharge bergs into its waters. The largest of these is Muir glacier, which drains an area of about 800 square miles. It is moving with a maximum velocity of about seven feet a day and is continually discharging large icebergs from its end. Its fluctuations have been great within recent times. One or two hundred years ago it extended, in common with the other glaciers of the bay, twenty miles below its present ending, and not long before that the glaciers were so small that valleys now barren and bleak were occupied by large forests.

Beauties of Translating.
In New Britain a missionary in translating was seeking some native idiom to convey the idea of a binding oath when a chief suggested that the desired phrase was, "I would rather speak to my wife's mother than do such and such a thing."

In British Columbia a missionary wanted his catechist to translate "A crown of glory that fadeth not away." This was done to the satisfaction of all concerned, but ultimately the missionary found to his horror that it had been rendered, "A hat that never wears out!"

An Awful Mistake.
"You say the thoughtless act of Mrs. Stingley had caused her husband a serious relapse? What did she do, in heaven's name?"

"Why, she came right into the sick room arrayed in a very expensive hat and dress."

Ticked With a Feather.
"I never knew any one who could be so tickled with a feather as my wife."
"Ticklish, is she?"
"Not usually, but this was an ostrich feather she bought at a bargain sale."

SAT DOWN ON HARD
Everybody Entitled to a Good Seat Says a Prominent Circus Manager

It goes without saying that everybody who pays the advertised price to see any kind of entertainment is entitled to protection from imposition on the part of its management, and any violation of that rule involves both fraud and disappointment. Unfortunately, there are shows which covetly and outrageously swindle their patrons wholesale by adopting a reserve seat system of a 25 or 50-cent ticket as the case may be, of more than the distant ghost of a chance to see and enjoy the performance. The existence of this evil and abuse is recognized by the Great Adm. Forepaugh and Sells Brothers Enormous United Shows, whose manager, Mr. Peter Sells, refers to the matter as follows:

"Inasmuch as our comb and hippodrome and military displays are to exhibit at Chatham, on Saturday, July 9th, for your own protection, as well as justice to us, please note the decent difference in our way of doing business. Seeing is believing, you know, and you will be afforded the opportunity of seeing for yourselves that our reserved seats occupy less than three-tenths of our seating capacity, and are confined to one broad side of our canvas only, every seat in the immense space on the other side being reserved for, and open to every holder of a general admission ticket, without a penny's extra charge. So enormous is the seating capacity of our huge hippodrome tent that it is very seldom necessary to utilize the end seats. With us the occupancy of a reserved seat is purely a matter of personal preference—not of gouging craft and calculations. We tell you frankly that for fifty cents you can see just as much as any one under the canvas, and are just as much entitled to, and as frankly that it is up to you to reserve and greatly rebuke the inconceivably mean and ungrateful abuse referred to."

HEAD ST. SPUR

Meeting of Railroad Representatives and Civic Committee

There were heated discussions and the weather wasn't the only thing that was warm at the meeting of W. W. Woollett, Gen. Supt., and L. E. Tilson, Gen. Agent, of the Pere Marquette with the special committee of the whole city council and the residents of Head Street, in reference to the moving of the spur. Ald. Martin talked fight and conciliation all in one breath. John Northwood and Mr. McArthur sailed into Gen. Agent Tilson and it kept Mayor McKeough busy adroitly stopping quarrels and pouring oil on the troubled waters.

Ald. Piggott explained that he had been chosen chairman of the special committee appointed to see the removal of the Head St. spur. He had sought to interview Vice-President Carpenter, of the Pere Marquette, and had been referred to Mr. Woollett.

Mr. Woollett said that on several occasions he had talked over the removal of the Head St. spur with different citizens. They were all agreed and the railway was, too, that it was not the best place for the spur, but there were a number of business interests to be served, and the question was how could they best be served. The railroad had asked their engineer to survey and give an estimate of possible cost of removing the spur.

Mr. Woollett said that the removal of the spur was merely a question of dollars and cents.

Ald. Edmondson said that there was little doubt but that Head street would be paved. Mr. Woollett said that the railroad would take that into consideration.

Ald. Martin said that he represented the opinion of all the people on Head street and made a long speech on behalf of the residents and spoke of fighting the railroad. Mr. Woollett said that he hoped that he wasn't expected to take Ald. Martin seriously when he talked fight. The meeting adjourned to meet again after the survey is made, the city to ascertain what they can provide the right of way for.

A WONDERFUL ANIMAL.
The Turtle is a Peculiar Creature in Many Respects.

Almost alone among God's creatures, the turtle has not a single enemy. It does not seem to matter to the turtle whether he stays beneath the surface for an hour or a week, nor does it trouble him to spend an equal time on land if he needs a rest. He is neither fish, flesh nor fowl, yet his flesh partakes of the characteristics of all three. Eating seems a mere superfluity with him, since for weeks at a time he may be headed up in a barrel (with the bung out) and emerge after his long fast apparently none the worse for his enforced abstinence from food. From light and almost from air, and, finally, it may be truly said that of all the higher, warm blooded organisms there is none so tenacious of life as the turtle. I can truly say that I have seen the flesh cleared out of a turtle shell and hung up on a tree, where for hours the quivering, convulsive movements of the muscles went on. Not only so, but on one occasion only the head and tail were left attached to the shell. Some time had elapsed since the meat had been cut out of the carapace, and no one could have imagined that any life remained in the extremities. But a young Dane, noticing that the down hanging head had its mouth wide open, very foolishly inserted two fingers between those horny mandibles. They closed, and one of his fingers was two fingers short. The edges of the turtle's jaw had taken them off clean, with only the muscular power remaining in the head. Signor Redi once cut a turtle's head off and noted that it lived for twenty-three days without a head, and another whose brain he removed lived for six months, apparently unconscious that it had suffered any loss.—Leslie's Monthly.

BALLOON SPIDERS.

Their Voyage at Great Heights Over Sea as Well as Land.
Given a steady breeze and a free course, there is practically no limit to the distance which a ballooning spider may traverse. The writer has taken orb weavers from their snuggeries under divers sheltering projections at the highest attainable point on the dome of St. Peter's in Rome, whether they had doubtless been carried by the wind when younglings. One may see flocks of gossamer afloat at far greater heights. Seafaring folk often note spider balloons speeding by them at sea or entangled upon various parts of the vessel. Darwin, in his famous voyage of the Beagle, when sixty miles from land saw great numbers of small spiders with their webs. When they first came in contact with the rigging they were sealed upon threads, and while hanging to these the slightest breath of air would bear them out of sight. Thus, though so far from land, the wee voyagers were still moving on over the main.
A steampship captain told the writer of a like observation made by him. While sailing along the eastern coast of South America during the month of March his ship was covered with innumerable spider webs. He saw these more than 200 miles from land, about 400 miles south of the equator. The wind was blowing from the continent. The spiders seemed like elongated balls," said the captain, "with a sort of umbrella canopy above them. They finally disappeared as they came. You know," he added, "that it is not unusual for birds to be blown out to sea. How much easier for a spider, provided he has the means to keep himself suspended in the air."—H. C. McCook, L.L. D., in Harper's Magazine.

Bees Used in War.
There are at least two recorded instances in which bees have been used as weapons of defense in war. When the Roman general Lucullus was warring against Mithridates, he sent a force against the city of Thamestyn. As they besieged the walls the inhabitants threw down on them myriads of swarms of bees. These at once began an attack, which resulted in the raising of the siege. These doughty little insects were also once used with equal success in England. Chester was besieged by the Danes and Norwegians, but its Saxon defenders threw down on them the beehives of the town, and the siege was soon raised.

Times Have Changed.
Once upon a time a superstition existed that a lady ought to blame herself if a man whom she did not intend to accept proposed to her, but that should such an unpleasant incident occur, it was at least not to be made a subject of gossip among her acquaintances. Parents thought it incumbent upon them to let a man understand in time if he did not wish him as a son-in-law. It is needless to remark that such honorable reticence and kindly prudence are quite out of fashion.—London Standard.

Why He Remained Home.
Model Husband (boastfully)—Yes, gentlemen, I've been married ten years and never spent a night away from home yet.
Doubting Thomas—Large and interesting family, eh?
"Only three of us."
"Have one child, eh?"
"No; the other is my wife's mother."

Young Lawyer—Well, the judge has rendered a decision in my favor in that will case. Older Partner—Never mind. The other side will appeal, and we will continue to feel free out of it.—Puck.
Honesty is the best policy, but he who is governed by that maxim is not an honest man.—Whately.

JUST ONE MORE REMARKABLE CURE

Diabetes is Again Vanquished by Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Donat Laflamme, of St. Marguerite, Que., the Man Cured—Further Proof of the Far Reaching Power of the Great Kidney Remedy.
St. Marguerite, Dorchester Co., Que., July 4.—(Special).—The all varieties and stages of Kidney Disease yield readily to Dodd's Kidney Pills has been proved almost daily for years, but when another victory over the "dread" diabetes, I was scored it is always worthy of mention. Such a case has happened here.
Donat Laflamme is the man cured, and the cure was quick as well as complete. Speaking of his cure Dr. Laflamme says:
"For two years I suffered from Diabetes. I was attended by the doctor but all his remedies did me no good. Then I tried Dodd's Kidney Pills and two boxes cured me completely."
What will cure Diabetes will cure any Kidney Disease is an old saying. And no doubt remains that Dodd's Kidney Pills will cure Diabetes.

The Snake and the Eagle.
The American consul at Guayaquil, Ecuador, tells a good story about the difficulties he has had to keep a monkey on the consulate premises because of the depredations of the boa constrictors, and these agile little pets must keep a constant lookout for them. If Jocko drops into a dose he is likely to "wake up dead."

On the occasion with which the story deals a monkey's life was saved by the picture of the American eagle. The eagle sign all over the world is a fine reproduction of the king of birds in full color and with outspread wings. A new sign had just been received and was waiting on a chair inside the room. A big boa constrictor chased the house monkey across the yard and through the open window. Jocko was making a good race, but a losing one. He was in the corner, quaking with fear and very near death's door, when his pursuer confronted the picture of the eagle in its menacing attitude. A snake fears eagles even more than it craves monkeys, and that particular reptile turned tail and went out of the window as quickly as if the devil was after it. That monkey was a smart monkey, and now whenever it wants to take a nap it goes to roost over the picture of the eagle.

Why the House Fell Down.
An English traveler on his way from Morocco tells of a curious experience he had while making a trip by camel inland from Mogador.
"We had built a hut of wattle branches to shelter us from the wind. In the middle of the night I dreamed that I was shooting rabbits in the backen of Essex and suddenly awoke to find myself covered with vegetable matter. Every one has experienced the curious feeling of hopeless bewilderment which comes over a man when he wakes in the dark among strange surroundings. I found that one of our camels had literally eaten us out of house and home, for he had broken his tether in the night, walked over and devoured the wattle branches of our hut to such an extent that the sides and roof collapsed upon our sleeping forms."

Men Restored to Vigor

Are you one of the thousands of men, young and old, who lack virile power? Do you crave to be robust and vigorous? Do you know that thousands know they are weak and impotent, but neglect to take the right steps to regain their full vigor and strength. Are you one of these thousands who suffer in ignorance of their real condition, believing these things to be true, when they are far from it. Perhaps you are one of them. It is worth your time to ascertain your true condition of health, if you have any reason to doubt or suspect that you are not what you once were.
If you belong to either class mentioned above, do not be discouraged. Do not lose hope. Help is within your reach. You can be cured. Vim, vigor and vitality, health, happiness and peace to those who had been reduced to physical wrecks.

Be Honest With Yourself.
If you have been a victim to the follies and indiscretions of youth, committed excesses in married life, if you doubt your strength, if in your duty you are unable to do your best, if you are at once, today, consult an honest, reliable, respectable physician—a specialist who has a record for cured cases. Do not put off seeking relief. Write the doctor. He will send you a booklet, free of charge, which will tell you the truth about your condition. No two cases are precisely alike. Every individual needs a treatment particularly suited to him. Go where you can get the right treatment for your case.

Cure Yourself at Home.
If there is no successful specialist near you, write at once to Dr. Goldberg, the noted specialist. He is the possessor of 14 diplomas and certificates from the best medical schools and he will send you the medicine free, to be used at your own home. It does not interfere with traveling, as it can be taken with you in a small box.
If you have stricture, prostatic trouble, sexual debility, impotency, loss of vitality, loss of blood, nervousness, rheumatism, neuralgia, indigestion, headache, migraines, such as rheumatism, bladder trouble, kidney trouble, heart disease, etc., write the doctor and he will send you a booklet, free of charge, which will tell you the truth about your condition. No two cases are precisely alike. Every individual needs a treatment particularly suited to him. Go where you can get the right treatment for your case.

Pay When You Are Cured.
The doctor realizes that it is one thing to make a name and another thing to keep it. He does not want it to be a mere name. He wants it to be a name that is earned. He wants it to be a name that is respected. He wants it to be a name that is a credit to the profession. He wants it to be a name that is a credit to the community. He wants it to be a name that is a credit to the world. He wants it to be a name that is a credit to the future. He wants it to be a name that is a credit to the past. He wants it to be a name that is a credit to the present. He wants it to be a name that is a credit to the whole of humanity. He wants it to be a name that is a credit to the whole of the world. He wants it to be a name that is a credit to the whole of the universe. He wants it to be a name that is a credit to the whole of existence. He wants it to be a name that is a credit to the whole of creation. He wants it to be a name that is a credit to the whole of the cosmos. He wants it to be a name that is a credit to the whole of the universe. He wants it to be a name that is a credit to the whole of the world. He wants it to be a name that is a credit to the whole of the future. He wants it to be a name that is a credit to the whole of the past. He wants it to be a name that is a credit to the whole of the present. He wants it to be a name that is a credit to the whole of the whole.

STAINED GLASS WORK.

An Art in Which Methods Have Not Changed Much in Centuries.
The twentieth century American stained glass maker follows without important variation the simple methods of the French monk of eight centuries ago. The first requisite is the design. The artist makes a small water color sketch to show the general design and color scheme, accompanying it with detailed studies. From this two large drawings or cartoons are made, the exact size of the desired window. One cartoon shows where the leads will be placed—the thin strips of lead, hollowed on both sides and looking in a transverse section like the letter H, which form the framework to bind the pieces of glass together.

Another drawing gives the size and shape of each piece of glass. This cartoon is cut into its component pieces by a pair of triple or three bladed scissors, which leave between their parallel blades a space sufficient for the leads. These cut out patterns are put together again on a large glass easel, to which they are attached by wax, and the spaces between are blacked in to give the effect of the leads.
The easel is then placed against a window where the light can stream through it. The artist or his substitute replaces each paper pattern on the easel by a piece of glass of exactly the same size, cut from a sheet of glass of the color called for by the color sketch. The sketch is not followed exactly; experiment with the actual glass will suggest improvements. To a greater or less extent this stained glass is supplemented by painted glass, which the colors are fired as in china painting. When all the pieces have been cut they are transferred to the "leading" drawing, the flexible leads are twisted into shape and soldered at the joints and a special cement applied to make the whole water tight. The window is now complete, ready to be put in position, where it is made secure by copper wire fastened to the transverse bars of iron.

KOREAN PROVERBS.
A man is good when he is old.
A thing is good when it is new.

When the tiger is gone, the fox is master.
If one is not observing, one sees nothing.
Does smoke come out of a fireless chimney?
The higher the mountain the deeper the valley.
One knows the face of a man, but not his interior.
One can paint the fur of the tiger, but not his joints.

Mark Antony's Mistake.
At a performance of "Julius Caesar" at Hurst college, England, some time ago, Mark Antony made a mistake when he found the body of Caesar was brought in. He apostrophized the fallen hero with impassioned eloquence, and the audience felt acutely for the poor citizens, who were all presumably horror struck and overcome with grief, when Antony gently but firmly grasped, as he thought, the face cloth and slowly, very slowly, began to draw it back. Just then an excited whisper came from the other end of the corps, "This end, you fool!" But Antony was inexorably wrapped in grief. He persevered and disclosed to the intently gazing audience Julius Caesar's boots.

Clever Smuggling Trick.
Smuggling from Geneva into France used to be carried on at a great rate. Alexandre Dumas tells how Beate, a famous watchmaker of that city renowned for his skill in smuggling, got the better of the Count de Saint Creq, King Louis Philippe's director of customs, who was traveling as a detective. The count bought 30,000 francs' worth of jewelry on condition that it should be delivered free of duty in Paris. When he went up to his bedroom on arriving at the French capital he found his purchases on the dressing table. Beate had bribed the count's valet to stow them away among his luggage.

Hard on the Doctor.
Well, Tam, are ye gaun hame w' your work?" was the invariable greeting of a doctor to a tailor of his acquaintance when he met him carrying a bundle. Once the tailor saw the doctor walking in a funeral procession, "Weel, doctor, are ye gaun hame w' your work?" he asked.—From Reminiscences," by Sir Archibald Geikie.

Make Yourself Felt.
Let your education be so broad and thorough that, whether you paint pictures, write books, sell merchandises, make contracts or cultivate land, you will make yourself felt in your community as an all round man of broad ideas and general culture.—Success.

Not Hungry at the Moment.
"Did Alkali Ike make that tenderfoot eat his words?"
"No. The tenderfoot turned out to be one of those fellows who would rather fight than eat."

Smoothing His Path.
Gus—You never had spunk enough to make a proposal in your life. Why did you tell Miss Prettie that you were engaged to two girls? George—So she'd want to get me away from them.

Crowning a Pagoda.

A strange festival was held not long ago in Mandalay, the chief town of Burma. A new pagoda, sacred to the Buddhist religion, was to be completed by the placing of a huge crown or thi upon its summit, more than three hundred feet above the ground. To witness the ceremonies came Buddhists from all Indo-China, from the Himalayas, from Laos and Chan and Siam. Warriors from Katschin, sorcerers from Mot, and people from endless other places made a medley of languages like that at Babel.

On a street corner would be seen a barber pulling a customer's tooth with an old nail. On another corner a Mohammedan bird dealer sold caged paroquets to Buddhists who purchased them for free. At very modern booths one could buy ice cream, soda or tea. Mandalay was a gorgeous spectacle, and the new pagoda was the centre of it.
Every pagoda has at its summit a thi, or cap, the placing of which is a herculean task. The one now to be raised weighed several hundred pounds, and consisted of a huge gilded ball and crown and a great spindle above it.
To get it to the top an inclined plane of bamboo scaffolding had been built, and was decorated with silk flags and umbrellas. Up the inclined plane the heavy cap was slowly pulled. Six days were required for the ascent and a seventh to fasten it in place. The Prince of Siam mounted the scaffolding and blessed it, and Dr. Kurt Boeck, a German, climbed with him and photographed the thi and Mandalay.

Comparison of Navies.
The strength of the British navy in battleships is 54 vessels. Their total displacement is 740,350 tons, or an average of 13,710 tons. France comes next with 26 ships, her total displacement being 311,421, which gives 11,977 tons average. Russia's 21 ships give her the third place, and they total up to 255,193 tons, or an average of 12,152 tons. The next place in the list is Germany, with 13 vessels, her displacement being 129,235 tons, or an average of 9,933 tons. In armor of cruisers it appears that the 37 British vessels displace 374,800 tons, or an average of 10,135 tons per vessel. The number of battleships gives Great Britain 32.9 per cent. of the total of 164 vessels, but in displacement her percentage rises to 35.4 per cent., while in armored cruisers her proportion of the total of 97 ships was 38.1 per cent., and of displacement 39.9 per cent., showing that the British vessels are generally heavier than those of the other powers. The United States average displacement in armored cruisers is, however, in excess of the British—12,122 tons, which on 13 vessels gives a total of 157,599 tons. As far as displacement goes, the British battleships are the most powerful, but the United States cruisers are the heavier.

How to Breathe Properly.
Do you ever observe whether you breathe through the mouth or nose? It makes a wonderful difference. When we talk we are forced to breathe through the mouth; when not speaking the lips should be well closed and the breathing should be entirely by the nostrils. But this is not all. The habit of slow, measured deep breathing that covers the entire lung surface is of more value and importance than you will ever believe until you have tried it, and when you have established the habit of breathing in this manner you will say some remarkable things in its favor. It will reach all points of your physical system. All the benefits that occur from a healthy condition of the blood will in a greater or less degree be yours, for the manner and completeness with which the inspired air comes in contact with the blood in the lungs are of the utmost importance to every vital process. The lungs are a kind of furnace in which the oxygen of the air is consumed and combined with other elements, a process necessary to live, the perfection of which depends upon the purity of the air and the manner of inhaling it.

The Earl of Dublin.
It may be recalled to-day, says The Westminster Gazette, that the King has a direct personal connection with Erin's capital city, in view of the fact that one of His Majesty's many titles is that of Earl of Dublin. This title was the direct outcome of His Majesty's first visit to the sister island in August, 1849, as is proved by an entry in the journal of her late Majesty under the date of August 12 of that year to the following effect: "I intend to create Bertie 'Earl of Dublin,' as a compliment to the town and country."
King Edward is the second male sovereign who since the union has crossed the Irish Channel. George IV, was accorded a magnificent reception in the Irish capital in 1821, and afterwards expressed his acknowledgment in quaint terms: "Rank, station, honors are nothing," he declared, "but to feel that I live in the hearts of my Irish subjects is to me the most valued happiness. Go and do by me as I shall do by you; drink all yours in a bumper of good Irish whiskey."

Queer Foods.
Human nature may be the same the world over, but tastes in matters of cuisine vary very good deal. The flesh of the elephant is partaken of with zest in certain parts of India.
Chinese taste, as we all know, runs to cats, dogs, bear's paws, and bird's nests.
In the West Indies there is a certain large caterpillar found on the palm tree which is reckoned a luxury of diet, while in Java the nests of swallows are considered edible.
Inhabits of portions of Sweden, Finland and other countries eat clay with gusto; indeed, it is partaken of in all the countries of the torrid zone.
