Men Holding Responsible Positions Took the Chances.

Went In to Investigate Burning Mine of the Pittsburg and Westmoreland Turned on Two Weeks Ago, Failed to Quench Fire, and There Was Pittsburg, Pa., Oct. 30.—Five officials of the Pittsburg & Westmoreland Coal Co. gave up their lives yesterday when they entered the Hazelkirk mine, No. 1, of the company at Hazelkirk, Pa., eighteen miles east of this city, to ascertain if a portion of the mine was still burning as a result of an available, two weeks ago. entry in which the explosion occurred sed up and water turned on. Inwas closed up and water turned on in-stead of sending miners to investigate and see if the fire had been extin-guished, it was decided that if any risk was to be taken those holding respon-sible positions should take chances.

As the five men approached the por-tion of the mine which is burning they became aware that the water had not extinguished the blaze, and decided to tear down the bulkhead erected to confine the fire to one entry of the mine.

Just as the covering was removed there was a terrific explosion and the five men were blown different ways, all being instantly killed.

Andrew Roder, who was some dis-tance behind the unfortunate men, escaped instant death, but was so badly burned that he died three or four hours later. He reached the bottom of the shaft, gave the alarm, and when the Two Fatally Scalded.

Sydney, N. S., Oct. 30.—The Government cable steamer Tyrian, Capt.

O'Leary, arrived in port Saturday night with the news of a fatal explosion that occurred on board while off Cape North early Saturday morning.

The Tyrian left North Sydney late Triday night to complete repairs to the Magdalen Island cable. About 7 o'clock Saturday morning a plug in the boller tubes blew out. Fireman Patrick Purcell and Trimmer Patrick Patrick Purcell and Trimmer Patrick McGrath were cleaning out the fire and were horribly scalded. O'Leary headed the steamer for Sydney at full speed to secure medical aid, but Purcell succumbed as the steamer was docking, and McGrath died shortly afterwards. Both men belonged to Halifax.

A very interesting and exciting game of football was played on the Tecumseh Park last Saturday evening between Darrell and Chatham, and, in spite of the cold weather, there was a large attendance.

The game started at 4.30, opening with a few scrimmages, in which the Darrell men had the upper hand, but the condition of things soon changed when the Chatham boys got a little warmed up, and in the latter part of the first half a goal was scored by Johnson in the city's favor.

In the opening of the second half the game still continued in favor of the Chatham boys, but near the last a desperate struggle was fought in front of the home goal, and in the melee the ball glanced off Courtney's foot and the score was tied. The last few minutes of the game was closely contested, but no more scorclosely contested, but no more scor-

AYLESWORTH FOR NORTH YORK New Postmaster-General and Not the Man Is Nominated.

New Postmaster-General and Not the Man le Nominated.

Newmarket, Oct. 30.—The new Postmaster-General, rather than A. B. Aylesworth, K. C., was nominated by North York Liberals Saturday afternoon. The attendance was disappointingly small, so much so that several speakers commented on it, and ascribed it to various causes, other than the lack of enthusianm among the rank and file of the party for an outsider.

When the meeting was called to order, there were 40 persons in the hall by actual count, and later on a few more dropped in. H. W. Fleury presided. The usual expression of confidence in Sir Wilfrid Laurier and his Government was given in a resolution, moved by H. S. Cane and seconded by F. Underhill. Regret was expressed regarding the retirement of Sir William Mulock, and given formal effect in a resolution moved by T. J. Robertson and seconded by C. E. Lundy.

The clerk then called for nominations, and the following were proposed: A. B. Aylesworth, H. S. Cane, J.

D. Moorehead, C. E. Lundy, T. J. Robertson, S. W. Underhill, and W. C. Widdifield. All the names were withdrawn except that of Mr. Aylesworth. A GOOD IDEA

In the course of his admirable address at the Thanksgiving service at Holy Trinity church Thursday, Rev. Mr. Hodgins made a valuable suggestion. He urged that a special Sunday be set apart by the Government each year for Thanksgiving Day, the following Monday to be utilized as a public holiday. It is a prevailing feeling that the spirit of the occasion is lost in our present Thanksgiving Day, which has become little more than an ordinary holiday.

Last of all he aspires some day to becoming a sprinter—and here hangs a tale.

Last Thursday evening there was a crowd around the Garner House, but there always is a crowd around there—at least sow our temperance friends tell us—so the fact that the crowd was still there causes no excitement. The excitement was brought on, however, when the before mentioned barber would not admit that a certain man, Billy Wilson, of Kingsyille, could beat him in a foot race. Wilson weighs over two hundred, while the barber is rather slight, and the onlookers fully expected to see the foreigner badly xpected to see 'the foreigner badly

When Wilson crossed the line the barber had just nicely got the lather on and was rounding the first buoy. The loser, however, says he will make up for his defeat on election day, when Mayor Cowan will get the closest shave ne ever got from a barber.

Mayor Takes Vigorous Action to Banish Brothels in Chatham

Severe Penalties Meted Out at Police Court-Other Sad Cases

Geo. W. Cowan is sustaining the reputation he has won for himself as an "Acting Mayor" and his action last night showed that he is carrying his vigor into every department of civic work. Several complaints have been made of late to Mayor Cowan in his capacity as Police Commissioner about a certain alleged disreputable house on Lacroix street. The complaints were laid before him by residents, who are unfortunate enough to live near this house, and the Mayor deemed them worthy of investigation. He secured the services of Police Officers Groves and Dezelia and Constable Merritt last night and a sudden and unexpected raid was made on the house in ques-

The result of the raid was very satisfactory in, that the complaints of the neighbors were borne out in fact, but it was rather unsortunate for the young men who were found on the premises. LEST WE-IN CHATHAM-FORGET.

The visit of the Minister of Educa tion, his tour of the various local institutions of learning, the Central School Fair, the exhibit at McKeough School on the morrow, the awarding of the prizes in The Planet Junior Essay Competition-all have tended to direct the minds of our citizens to matters educational.

It would appear, therefore ,an opportune time to seriously ask ourselves-the people of the Maple City -just "where we are at" educationally ?

That we have fine schools no one will deny; that the schools are doing, reasonably well, the work they are supposed to do is evidenced by the success of the students at the departmental examinations.

Yet, is it not a lamentable factall too easily established-that the great majority of the tax-paying parents are almost totally ignorant of the condition of the schools, the worth of the teachers and the character of the work done? Surely if we are to obtain the most and the best for the amount of money we spend on our schools, the people generally must evince a very much deeper interest therein.

Here, in the hey-day of apparent, success, of examinations splendidly passed, of peerless and astounding exhibits, of honors galore-let us not forget. Let us give heed with attentive ear to the strong, true note sounded by our distinguished visi-

Are the departmental examinations a fair test of the success or failure of the work done by teachers? Those who have given this question most serious thought have emphatically stood by the negative, The aim and end of education is not to be able to pass an examination by answering a number of specific questions. Examinations doubtless have a material value as a test of the amount of work covered by the teacher with the papil, but they can in no sense determine the effect which the teaching, or the teacher, will produce in the life and character of the pupil. And, after all, the supreme test of the work done must ever be: "Are the pupils equipped to the fullest possible extent for the faithful and capable discharge of the duties and responsibilities of citizenship?" Competitive examinations and the awarding of prizes may act as a stimulus to some, perhaps, already over-ambitious students, but care should be taken to instill into the minds of all students, bright and dull, that "Knowledge is Power," and that this power means moral responsibil-

Too often this power is looked upon only as a means of successful competition in fife's struggles; to put it plainly, as a means to get the better of some man not so richly endowed or ably trained mentally.

The Planet heard with satisfaction the intimation of the Hon. the Minister of Education that, in the proposed changes in the curricula of our schools, less slavish attention to authorized text books would be required and more latitude given to the personality, and spirit, and individuality of the teacher,

This is a change in the right direc-

DIPLOMACY.

A Polite Business Very Much Like the Practice of Law.

Diplomacy is a matter of business, hough a polite business, hedged about by etiquette and forms and adorned with a few frills. Get behind the lin gerie and the lingo and go to the heart of the thing and you will find it very much like the practice of law. The man with the best case ought to win, and when he doesn't and the man with the poorer case does win it is because he is the better man and knows bet ter how to present his case and how to handle it. There is another popular notion that the American diplomatic establishment is weak because our representatives abroad contend with men trained all their lives in the diplomatic school. We have no permanent diplomatic establishment. Our ambassadors and ministers abroad are picked from law offices, editorial rooms and even counting rooms. Usually they have had no previous acquaintance with diplomatic work. Yet nine times out of ten they are more than a match for the men they have to deal with abroad. Breadth and strength of character, knowledge of human nature and experience gained in the rough and tumble of life count for quite as much as the other fellows' dilettante culture. It is the judgment of the best observers throughout the world that our successful American lawyers and editors easily hold their own against their competitors. - Walter Wellman in Success.

HOW BROKERS WORK,

Four Different Kinds of Operator Who Execute Orders,

Let's see what a broker is exactly. He's the man whose services you must seek if you wish to buy or sell stocks. You can't do a thing in Wall street without that broker. You can't fill your own orders in Wall street any more than you can fill your own teeth. The broker is to you as a speculator what a dentist is to you as a man with a toothache.

Now, operations on the floor of the Stock Exchange are conducted by four groups-first, by individual speculators who trade on their own account, and these of course are members of the ex-change; second, by brokers who lend money for banks; third, by commission ses which buy and sell bonds and stocks for persons not members of the exchange, and, fourth, by specialists who are also called floor brokers, and oftentimes "dollar brokers" or dollar brokers," and who execute orders for commission houses, In turn commission houses are of two kindsthose that conduct one home office and many branch offices connected by private wire, and those that conduct a

To a broker in one of these classes your order is given. In executing your orders and those of others the broker's earnings may be any sum from $10-more usually $100-to thousands a day.

The Spread of Banking.

The Bank of England was estab-lished in 1694, the Bank of Scotland a few years later, and these institutions were not long in finding imitators. As trade in the provinces increased, sub-stantial men began to feel the incon-venience of being their own bankers and retaining all their wealth in their oaken chests. Gradually they began to open accounts with some of the London bankers, which they utilized for their business transactions. Doubtess such men were beset by many friends and customers to accommodate them through their banking account, and thus the well to do trader developed into the country banker with his London agent, who much preferred to do business and incur carriage and postage with some one leading firm in a town to having several small cusin the same place.-London

THOSE HOG PENS

The matter of removing the Grand Trunk hog pens is receiving active attention from Mayor Cowan and the Board of Health. At the last meet-ing of the Board of Health Mayor Cowan assured the members that any action on their part would be thoroughly backed up by the Council. A committee, therefore, consisting of Dr. Charteris, Dr. Hall and the Mayor was appointed to notify the Grand Trunk railway that these pens must be removed at once. This letter has been drafted by the City Solicitor and sent. It warns the company that unless immediate action is taken more vigorous steps will be made by the Board of Health. The Mayor this morning expressed as his opinion that the company have had sufficient leniency in this matter and it is now time that some-thing should be done.

The play is one of those quaintly new Conan Doyle stories, so full of incidents, and bringing out the wonderful character of the fabulous detective, made famous by the novelist. When Margaret Ran Away

By COLIN S. COLLINS Copyright, 1905, by R. B. McClure

"Lower twelve, right hand side," said the Pullman conductor as he pocketed the money and handed Merivale the punched ticket. Vance Merivale picked up his suit case and made his way to his seat. It had been foolish not to have made a reservation in advance, but somehov he had not liked to. He wanted to wait the chances of fate until the last moment-and fate had been unkind.

Instead of the hoped for reconciliation with Margaret Ripley there had been a quarrel even more bitter than those which had gone before, and he had left her tearfully protesting that she would leave town and give up her career rather than suffer from these

Merivale wanted her to give up her career because he had found she could not find time for love and business in her busy life, and he thought he needed her love more than she needed a

He had made his last appeal, and now he was on his way to Chicago to make a fresh start. He would leave the city to her, since he could not live there without her.

He dropped his bag into the seat and himself down. The car was crowded, and for a mement he did not recognize Margaret. Then his glance wandered across the aisle and encountered those blue eyes which had made such havoc with his heart

Now, instead of being melting they were scornful, and something in her expression held him as he half rose to cross to her.

He made a violent pretense of reading, but it was pretense only, for across the pages as he turned them there flitted those angry eyes, and instead of sensing the words his brain rang with the echo of her last words to him: "I will leave town since I am not permitted to have peace here."

The dusk was falling before he had a chance to speak. The dining car had been put on and Margaret was among those who answered the first call. Vance, strolling after her, met her in the vestibule between the two cars.

"Margie," he cried, "won't you let me speak to you?"

"Speak to me? Why should I let you speak to me when you have done this despicable thing?" "What do you mean?" he gasped.

"What have I done that should be haracterized as despicable?" "Following me in this fashion!"
"Following!" he echoed blankly.
"Why, Margie, I made up my mind a week ago to this step. I wrote out to Chicago for a position, and I came to see you last night to say goodby."

"Realty?" she asked wistfully. He drew a letter from his pocket and showed her the postmark four days old. "Here is Grigg's letter," he said simply, "in answer to mine."

She glanced at the opening line, "In reply to yours of last week," and handed it back with shining eyes.
"I thought," she said softly, "that you had found out that I was running away, and had followed me."

"And I was merely trying to give you the whole of New York," he laughed. "I think it was fate that brought us together."

"There are good and bad fates," she replied. "One of the latter will cause you to lose your dinner." "What do I care for dinner?" he cried impetuously.

She stopped her ears with her tiny fingers. "I shan't listen to a word untilyou have come back from dinner," she venture?"

"No," she said. "I cannot marry you, Vance. I admit that I love you, but we are always quarreling, and our married life would be short and misons."

"Sweetheart," he pleaded, "cannot you understand that the quarrels have all been on the one topic? Remove the cause and we should be happy, dear."
"Happy," she scoffed—"happy when hand that I shall give up all my dopes of a career to sink to the level of commonplace kitchen drudge!"

"Not that," he corrected. "I simply ask you to give up your work on the paper and in your leisure do better and more ambitious work."

"I must begin at the bottom of the ladder," she defended "In the four years I have known you," he reminded, "you have been sitting on that same bottom rung, which in this case happens to be the woman's desk on the Home Topics. You are grinding your life away at this work and have neither time for better things nor even the time to be nice to the man you admit you love."

"But I must work," she cried. "Certainly," he conceded, "but work to some effect. Don't drudge and grind until all life becomes a matter of copying recipes out of an old cookbook and heading them 'Dainty New Dishes For the Home.' That is what I object to.'

"Vance," she said, "I have been unkind, haven't I?" "Very," he said cheerfully.

"And if I say yes you will let me write?" "Stories and things-at home," he agreed hoperally.
"I'll think about it," she said. "Now go and smoke." Her eyes compelled him, and he went, leaving her to think.

When he returned, her berth had been made down, and a great wave of disappointment swept over Merivale Had she sent him away merely to es cape him-to be rid of him? As he threw himself disconsolately into his seat the porter approached. "Lady in lower 'leben done asked me to call yo' 'tention to dis heah note." h said, pointing to a small white envelope tucked down between the plush "Oh, all right, George," he said. The porter grinned knowingly.

Merivale tore open the envelope and read: "I had to say yes. This is an lopement; not an escape.

"I say, George," called Merivale. "Here." And Merivale thrust the nost substantial tip into the porter's hand that individual had received for English House Gardens. American children learn that Lon don is the center of trade, with a dense population, and they grow up with the idea that it is a mart perpetually over nung with fog and smoke. To have a private residence in New York city is a luxury possible only to the rich, and none but a multimillionaire could live in a house with a garden.

When the American girl therefore went to have tea with some friends in noderate circumstances she was astonished to find them living in a large nouse, with a little garden in front and a spacious one in the rear. Tea was erved in the garden.

Her mind reverted to a suburban souse at home that had about as much land as this English one. The back yard was used as a drying place for clothes. The front yard was a smooth-ly clipped, flower bedded lawn kept for show, so open to the street that it was of no use to the family.

"No; it is not like home," said the American girl, wondering if every one in London had a garden or a terrace or a park.-London Telegraph,

A Patent Lawyer

r who makes a specialty of patent business, no matter just where his office is located, was called to the farther west in a case involving a mortgage on a farm. The preliminary hearing was before an old fashioned justice of the peace, who had no high regard for the ways of men from the city. At some point in the case the magistrate put in a few remarks, and the visiting lawyer collided with him The discussion grew warm, and at last the magistrate, forgetting his dignity and his position, became personal. "Who are you anyway?" he blurted

"Well," replied the lawyer, "I'm an attorney.' "P'raps you are, but I never heard one talk like you do. What kind of a one are you?" "I'm a patent attorney."

The magistrate rubbed his chin for

"Well, all I've got to say is," he said slowly, "that when the patent expires I don't believe you can ever get it renewed again."

They Said "Guilty."

Of the queer notions sometimes en-tertained by the twelve "good men and true" in the jury box the following amusing story, recently told on the authority of the counsel who defended in a case of larceny, is, let us hope, a unique example. Recognizing in one of the jurymen the nephew of the prison-er, counsel thought "the old man" was safe to secure a verdict of acquittal, more particularly as the prosecution were only able to present an extremely

Ready For Haunted Room.

When Lord Gramis comes of age in few days the secret of the haunted room at his ancestral home, Gramis Castle, in Forfarshire, will be communicated to him by his father, the Earl of Strathmere. At least that is locally understood to have been invariably the practice on such occasions from tim memorial.

What the secret of the haunted room onceals is suppose to be passed on o every heir as he attains his majority. Thus its precise nature is in pos session of never more than two persons at the same time.

Conjecture and tradition say, however, that in the long ago when the Lindsays and Oglivies were at feud a number of the latter clan were imprisoned and died in that particular chamber.

That the room has some uncanny peculiarities appears to be beyond doubt, for the late Lord Strathmore had it walled up after visiting the apartment one night to determine the origin of certain weird noises. These it is said, had for a long time disturb-ed and puzzled him. The earl opened the door with the key, and then drop-ped back in a dead swoon into the arms of his companions, nor could he ever be induced to open his lips on the sub-iect afterwards ject afterwards.

Prof. Blackie used to form a very icturesque feature in the Edinburgh streets. He was a cheery old patriarch with handsome features and hair falling in ringlets about his shoulders. No one who had seen him could possibly forget him.

One day he was accosted by a very dirty little bootblack, with his "Shine your boots, sir?"

Blackie was impressed with the filth-ness of the boy's face.
"I don't want a shine, my lad," said he, "But if you go and wash your face Fill give you a sixpence."

"A' richt, sir," was the lad's reply.
Then he went over to a neighboring fountain and made his ablutions. Returning, he held out his hand for the

"It has always been considered woman's privilege as well as duty to consider her looks, her gowns, and to study what best becomes her." said one of the beauties of our social four hundred. "We should, therefore, as a matter of duty, avail ourselves of all natura' means of enhancing our looks, benefith our face or figure, whenever we can do so, without resorting to paint or other unnatural means." The benefit of sunlight to the skin and hair cannot be overestimated.

Wrinkles are caused by shrinking of the tissues just under the skin.

American houses are kept too hot—the skin is dried by the hot air. If our women went out doors more, accustoming themselves to the cold air of winter, their blood would react quicker and their skin keep fresher.

When you see a man come out on the stage and shoot the ashes off a cigar which is being smoked by an assistant don't believe all you see. A hatpin is run through the cigar, the point just reaching the ash. The assistant just pushes the knob at the other end, and down falls the ash to great applause. Of course only blank cartridges are Breaking two glass balls with two pistols is almost as simple. One of the pistols only is loaded and with shot. The other has a blank cartridge. The loaded pistol is aimed between the two balls, and the shot scatter, breaking them both. That's the trick.

Extinguishing several numbered candles by number on request of the audience is seldom more than a hollow joke. Behind each candle is a hole in the target. An assistant hidden behind it simply blows out the candle taking care to blow the right candle at the right time—that is, when the pistol cracks Blindfold shooting simply means that the performer glances down his nose to a mirror fixed at an angle behind the back sight and aims as straight this way as if the bandage were not there. Painting a complete picture in a jiffy in presence of the audience is also arti-fice. What looks to you like an immaculate and untouched canvas is in real ity a finished picture covered with whitewash. All the "artist" does is to simulate painting with his brush. The result is a picture that would require if it were honestly done at least a day's

Those awfully heavy looking dumbbells of the strong man are sometimes somewhat hollow at the core. You will notice they are always put in the same place, preferably on a special platform, when the man from the audience is invited to lift them. Under the platform are powerful magnets holding the weights down. Suddenly roll the bar off the platform, and you can probably lift it in one hand, as that operation releases it from magnetic control

A MAORI LEGEND.

The Story of How Te Kupe Discovered New Zealand.

The Maoris are not the aborigines of New Zealand. This is the story of their coming as told by a legend handed down from chief to chief from generation to generation:

Te Kupe, a priest, lived on an island called Kawaiki, supposed to be Ha-waii. He incurred the displeasure of his chief and was compelled to flee for his life. He secured a canoe and, stocking it with provisions, paddled out to sea, leaving his home and his friends, as he thought, forever. He was mourned as dead, but about a year later he returned with a glowing story of a wonderful country he had discovered. He gave graphic accounts of its mighty forests, its burning mountains, steaming lakes and huge birds. The story caused the wildest excitement among his people, who hailed Te Kupe as a god, and preparations were at once made to explore this magic country. Seven large canoes were built and stocked with provisions and water, and a party of islanders, directed by Te Kupe, set forth on their adventurous journey. In time they reached the place he had described, and Te Kupe's canoe, the Aotea, was the first to touch the shore; hence the Maori name "Aotearoa" was given to

New Zealand. Just when this took place is one of the points in the history of these peo-ple that are lost in the shadowy mem-ories of the past, but it is supposed to have been about 800 years ago. The Maoris of today always refer to Ha-wall as the fatherland, and there is a native proverb, "I kune mai i Hawaiki te kune kni te tangata" ("The seed of our coming is from Hawaiki"). Moro Story of the Flood. The legend of the flood as told by the Moros is as follows:

"When the forty days and nights of rain came No and his family got into a box. One pair of each sort of bird and beast also came in. Men who were busy with their ordinary occupations and did not enter the box were over-taken by the flood. Those who ran to the mountains became monkeys; those who ran to the water, fish. The Chinaman changed to a hornbill. A woman who was eating the fruit of a seaweed and would not stop was changed into a fish called a dugong, and her limbs can still be seen under its skin."

The Lion's Share.

It is really not the male lion, with his terrific roar and formidable appearance, that the explorer fears, but his mate. The male lion is a good looking poser, but when it comes to business it is his wife who counts, a la the African native. Game is pulled down by the female lion, and then the male beats her off until he has feasted to repletion, when she may have what is left; hence "the lion's share."

The logic of a woman usually is built upon the way she thinks things should go.

Conscience that is mainly exercised within the limits of the personality it is set to guard increases the common stock of righteousness.

The Boy and the Wolves. On a recent Saturday afternoon J. J. spden of Toronto and Norman Cam-Aspden of Toronto and Norman Cameron, the latter an eleven-year-old boy of Golden Valley Mills township, were out fishing in a boat at the lower end of Stanley Lake, Muskoka, when young Cameron, landed with his dog and a thirty-two-calibre Stevens rifle for a ramble in the bush and a little hunt. He had it. Before he had gone far in the cedar brush his dog was attacked by a big wolf. Cameron fired and hit the brute. It rose howling and thus attracted the attention of a number of the pack to which it belonged. The boy and dog began a scientific withdrawal, while the wolves came on victorally. Cameron fired frequently. tously. Cameron fired frequently.
Once he fell over a log and a wolf sprang at him, but after firing at it he reached the lake and got out on a log, where he kept up a fusilade till escued by Mr. Aspden. There were about a dozen wolves in the pack.

Royal Tours In India. The present Prince of Wales is shortly to start upon a tour of India, and arrangements are now being made to accustom the horses he will take with him for his own use to the strange animals they will encounter on the trip. The idea is not new, for when King Edward made his tour of India there were carried for his personal use three magnificent horses which had spent the preceding three months at the Zoolo-gical Gardens in England.

Not only were the horses thoroughy accustomed to the sight of elephants but they had learned to know by sight and sound all of the jungle folk kept in the gardens, and when they arrived in Indian there was no danger of their heing startled by any of the parades their rider was called upon to review. Since it is supposed to be good form for the prince to carry his own mounts with him, the necessity for some such course of schooling becomes readily ap-

Swiss Attempts at English. The Swiss have not a grasp of English grammar, as the following examples show: The proprietor of an Alpine hotel addresses his clients thus: "Misters the venerable voyagers and mesdames are requested earnestly not to dames are requested earnestly not to take the clothes of the bed to see the sun rise, for the color changes" Recently the following advertisement appeared in an "English" guide book published at Berne: "The — hotel is a favorite resort of people fond of sollitude and rest. Those who are in search of loneliness are, in veritable fact, constantly flocking to the — hotel from the fore-quarters of this hotel from the fore quarters of this globe." "Strange gentlemen will to please not to dress for dinner, etc., as this costume flutters the souls of the maid folk and no work is resulted. Humbly asked." Such is the announce-ment posted in the bedrooms of an in

The harvest home services held in Christ Church yesterday were very largely attended both morning and evening and were highly successful from every point of view.

In the morning Rev. Robert Mc-Cosh, rector of the church, occupied the pulpit and gave an excellent sermon suitable for the occasion. In the evening Rev. at once.

Upon entering the store Mr. Kenny found that the cash register had been robbed of all the small change and the show cases had been gone through and the goods left in a disorderly condition. He was not able to make an estimate of the value of all the goods missing. The burglar, whoever he was, is rather a joker in his way, for when he opened the cash register he rang up a "No Sale." The police have, so far, been unable to obtain any clue as to who per formed the deed.

A Rugby football game is a match between two teams of eleven men each. Both teams are restricted to specified territory during play.

The object of each team is to advance a ball by rulable means across stated boundary line or to project it over a goal, or both.

The ball may be either kicked or carried (but not thrown or passed) in the direction of a team's objective goal, and men engaged in advancing

DIAGRAM NO. 1-HOW TEAMS LINE UP AT the ball may, while in actual possession of it, be tackled and thrown to the ground, or forced backward, by their opponents.

The skill used in advancing men carrying the ball is evident to even the casual spectators. Feints and flank movements, dashes and criss-crosses follow each other with bewildering rapidity. Now and then a start-ling trick play or a sudden skyscrap-ing kick adds still more variety.

The field is 130 feet long and 150

The field is 130 feet long and 150 feet wide and inclosed by heavy lime lines. At the end boundaries are the goals, placed in the middle of the line. A goal consists of two upright posts eighteen feet six inches apart connected by a crossbar ten feet from the ground. In scoring the ballemust be nected by a crossbar ten feet from the ground. In scoring the ball must be either carried beyond the goal line by a team or else kicked, under rulable circumstances, between the goal posts and over the crossbar. A touchdown occurs when the ball is downed behind the goal line by a member of an opposing team, and it counts 5 points for the side so scoring. A try at goal is allowed after a touchdown which is allowed after a touchdown, which, if successfully kicked, adds 1 point to the 5 already obtained. Goals from the field count 4 points.

the field count 4 points.

When teams line up for the kickoff, which puts the ball into play, the men of the side kicking arrange themselves along the line crossing the middle of the field, as shown in diagram
No. 1, and from which the ball is kicked. When the ball is sent whirling down among their concepns the side down among their opponents the side kicking rushes forward to tackle and down the man catching the ball before he has an opportunity to advance may chance to fall.

A scrimmage occurs when two teams line up directly opposite each other, the side holding the ball intending to advance it by means of tending to advance it by means of tending to advance it by means of rushes around or through the oppos-

When lined up for a scrimmage the team in possession of the ball is arranged as shown in diagram No. 2.

DIAGRAM NO. 2—LINE-UP FOR SCRIMMAGE TO TEAM HOLDING THE BALL.

The seven men in a straight line are the forwards. The middle one is the centre rush who snaps backs the ball to the quarterback (at his rear), thus putting the ball into play.

The two halfbacks and the fullback stand from two to four yards to the rear of the quarter. They are the men who most frequently advance the ball. The forwards, consisting of the right and left ends, right and left tackles, right and left guards and centre, are primarily men of defense.

The backs and forwards (or rush line) must be trained to work together, to avoid confusion and to develop that most important of all factors, heady, unselfish team work. The interests and aspirations of the individual must be secondary to the welfare of the team as a whale be secondary to the welfare of the team as a whole.

Arizona Cave Dwellings.

In Arizona there are many cave dwellings of peculiar interest. About thirty miles east of Flagstaff, as well as nearer, are a number of volcanic cones, the whole region being the scene of vast plutonic energy. As the flowing lava cooled, gases were generated, which caused gigantic bubbles to form in the slowly solidifying molten rock. Many of these bubbles still remain in the form of natural caves, and in these caves the Indians of early days found shelter. Many of them have been explored and antique pottery, of the earliest known form and decoration, together with metates, stone axes, hammers, arrow and spear points, corncobs and various small seeds have been found in large quantities.—Crafisman. ON PLAYING FOOTBALL WHY DOCTORS FAIL AND MRS. PINKHAM SUCCEEDS

Plain Reasons Are Here Given to Explain Why Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Com-pound Cures When Doctors Are Powerless

A woman is sick; some disease peculiar to her sex is fast developing in her system. She goes to her family physician and tells him a story, but not the whole

She holds something back, loses he story.

She holds something back, loses her head, becomes agitated, forgets what she wants to say, and finally conceals what she ought to have told, and thus completely mystifies the doctor.

Is it any wonder, therefore, that the doctors fail to cure the disease? Still we cannot blame the woman, for it is very embarrassing to detail some of the symptoms of her suffering, even to her family physician.

It was for this reason that years ago Mrs, Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass., determined to step in and help her sex. Having had considerable experience in treating female ills with her Vegetable Compound, she encouraged the women of Canada to write to her for advice in regard to their complaints, and being a woman, it was easy for her ailing sisters to pour into her ears every detail of their suffering.

In this way she was able to do for them what the physicians were unable to do, simply because she had the proper information to work upon, and from the little group of women who sought her advice years ago a great army of her fellow-beings are to day constantly applying for advice and relief, and the fact that many thou sands of them have been cured by following the advice of Mrs. Pinkham during the last year is indicative of the grand results which are produced by her unequaled experience and training.

No physician in the world has had such a training or has such an amount of information at hand to assist in the

No physician in the world has had such a training, or has such an amount of information at hand to assist in the treatment of all kinds of female ills, from the simplest local irritation to the most complicated womb diseases. This, therefore, is the reason why Mrs. Finkham, in her laboratory at Lynn, Mass., is able to do more for the falling women of Canada than the family physician. Any woman, therefore, is responsible for her own suffering who will not take the trouble to write to Mrs. Pinkham for advice.

The testimonials which we are constantly publishing from grateful women establish beyond a doubt the power of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to conquer female diseases.

Tracks But No Trains.

One of the oddest railways is the West London Extension, which owns considerable trackage but possesses neither engine nor cars, although hundreds of trains pass over the road daily. The trains are owned by various roads running into London from the west, and they use the tracks of the West London Extension by paying that company an established ren:al, but the company owning the tracks has never even owned a president's car, to say nothing of the equipment used in veryday service.

Borrowed tracks are not uncomm in America, but it is customary for a terminal company to at least have some small equipment of rolling stock for re-pair purposes. The English roads does ot possess even a hand car, and in his respect is unique

OUTSIDE THE WARD

BD A. M. DAVIES OGDEN

Copyright, 1905, by A. M. Davies Ogden

Nurse Humphreys was hardly what would be termed popular. Tall, hand-some, in a dark, cold type of beauty. she was much admired, and the doctors all respected her clear, keen intelligence and executive ability. But the patients regarded her with evident awe. No one urged her to come and sit for a moment by his bedside.

Nurse Humphreys herself regarded the patients as so many human machines to be tended and cared for. It was her work to superintend the doing of this. What more could be required of her? And then one day a tender, helpless little morsel of a child was carried into the ward, and Miss Humphreys experienced a strange sensation. The blue eyes looked appealingly into hers; the thin little arms were extended. "Molly lonesomé, murmured a baby voice. And Miss Humphreys, rather shamefacedly, bent and kissed the tiny face.

From that day a new life began for the nurse. All the pent up tenderness of years, all the starved affection of woman's heart, sternly repressed for so long, were unstintedly lavished upon the child. It was a bad case. Miss Humphreys flung herself with tireless energy into the battle with death. Molly could not die; she must not die. And love won. The fatal crisis was passed; the little life began to tighten its hold on existence. Miss Humphreys rejoiced until one day came a sudden, most unwelcome thought. Molly was out of danger Molly was growing well; Molly would soon leave the hospital and go home. Miss Humphreys started and tried to banish the thought. But it would not go. It pursued her, obsessed her, became a nightmare. Outside the big ward was a small room where Miss Humphreys some-times sat. Late one afternoon she was there, still haunted by the thought of Molly's departure. It seemed terribly near. How could she let Molly go back to that aunt-that narrow faced, hard eyed woman-from whom the child palpably shrank upon the occasions of her rare visits? Was she unkind to the little thing? Miss Humphreys wondered.

A sudden sense of discouragement possessed the nurse. Molly was nearly convalescent, yet to the doctor Miss Humphreys had dilated at length upon unfavorable symptoms, inherent weaknesses, and this morning, this very morning, she had deliberately altered the temperature line on the patient's That was unpardonable. She had fancied that the doctor had looked at her rather oddly as he returned the chart. Did he suspect anything? Must she let he go-this child with Tom's name and with Tom's own blue eyes Where had Molly found them? aunt, a dry, uncommunicative person, only said that the child's mother was dead. Molly babbled of a daddy almost always from home. The idea had once flashed across Miss Humphreys mind that Tom himself might be this daddy, but she had dismissed the sug-gestion as too improbable. There were doubtless thousands of Brennans.

It brought the man to her mind, however. Tom! Where could he be? He had loved her once. Why had she let him go? Miss Humphreys looked about the plain little room, thought of the ward beyond. She had sent Tom away, had left her home, come to New York and entered the training school, worked, denied herself, suffered, inspired, sustained by no ignoble am-

Well, she had er She had achieved her goal. Was she not head nurse in this busy hospital ward? Again her eyes traveled around the dreary little room. Was this then what her ambition meant, a solitary what her ambition health, a solitary woman growing old alone? Miss Humphreys, tired and depressed, knew that she was morbid; sought to shake it off, but the feeling was too strong for her. The reaction from the years of effort had set in, and all at once a wave of heartsickness seemed to submerge her in its depths, forcing the unaccustomed tears to her dark eyes. Miss Humphreys uttered a little sob. Was what she had won worth the sacrifices demanded? Did life hold no more than this?

The sound of voices outside the door roused her. The doctor was speaking.
"So I thought it best to send for you yourself and explain matters," he was saying. "She is one of our best nurses and has worked night and day to save your child. Indeed, that the child lived at all is largely due to her untiring vig-ilance. But there is no reason now why Molly should not leave the hospi-It sometimes happens, however that a nurse takes a fancy to a patient and tries to keep him overtime. Therefore I preferred that you yourself should come and remove Molly. I would not wish to hurt Miss Humphreys' feelings," he added kindly, for he was a humane man and could sympathize with the dullness of the nurse's life. "We call thinks "We all think so much of Miss Humphreys."

"Miss Humphreys," repeated the man, And at the voice the woman started and clasped her hands ever her heart. "Miss Humphreys, you say? Could—could I see her?"

The doctor considered a moment. "I hardly think that she is on duty now," he said slowly. "Oh," with a sudden recollection, "she often sits in that lik tle room. Possibly she may be there

As Brennan entered she sprang up, facing him, and for a moment they dropped a teacup.

both stared in silence, the woman struggling to control her uncertain breathing. The man started forward. "Margaret!" he cried. Miss Humphreys nod-ded. "Yes, it is I," she answered, trying to speak in a commonplace manner. "I belong to this hospital." But he did not seem to hear her "Margaret, oh, Margaret!" he repeated below his breath. She was far more lovely than he had ever seen her, with that new, softened expression, the tear-drops still clinging to her long black lashes. She lifted her head.

"So you have come to take Molly away," she said simply. The man started. He had quite forgotten the child. "Why-she cannot stay here—the doctor says that she is well," he stam-mered confusedly. "He said"—

"Yes, I know," responded Miss Hum-phreys. "She is quite well." She phreys. "She is quite well." She was staring straight ahead, her dark eyes filled with a blank, unseeing look. He would go away again. Molly would go away. What was there left for her? The doctor knew what she had done. She might have to leave the hospital. But she did not care about that. Brennan took a step forward.

"Margaret," he cried; "oh, Margaret, why did you send me from you? There was a whole lifetime of pain and yearning in the man's voice and Miss Humphreys' heart gave a sudden throb. He had not entirely forgotten her then. The image of that woman had not entirely obliterated her

"You—don't—know?" echoed Brennan. A sudden well known gleam sprang to the blue eyes. "You—don't—know," he repeated. "Then—might there be a chance for me after all?" he asked squarely. Miss Humphreys, sobbing, had sunk into a chair. The man bent over and with soft fingers reverently touched the shining hair.

"I-I loved my wife," he said loyal-"She was a dear, sweet soul. But you were my first love and I could never quite forget. You have saved Molly for me," he added unsteadily, but she needs you still-we both need you. Won't you come and make us happy, sweetheart?" a sudden intensity deepening the strong voice. "Won't you, dear?" And Miss Humphreys whispered persisted. "Named after his uncle, sir," plained the nurse, getting red in the face.

And so as Original Story the unoffending little fellow was christened. It was some weeks after this event that the minister made the acquaintance of the said uncle-a farm laborer in an other village—whose name was Reginald Story.—Liverpool Mercury.

There was never a time when Mrs. Austin did not attempt to put the best foot forward not only for herself, but for all her friends.

"How's Mary Ellen getting on?" asked one of the neighbors when Mrs. Austin returned from a visit to the house of a former resident of Bushby. She fixed a keen gaze on Mrs. Austin, for rumors of Mary Ellen's domestic troubles had reached Bushby some time before.

"Why, she's got everything fixed up real nice," said Mrs. Austin slowly.
"She has a good house and yard and a garden and a most excellent cow and some o' the likeliest hens and a couple

TURONTO LIVE STOCK.

TURONID LIVE STOCK.

Thanksgiving Day on the city cattle market yesterday gave little evidence of the holiday spirit which permeated every other avenue of trade. So far from being a holiday it is believed to have constituted a record on the old market.

From all sources the receipts were 188 cars, totaling 2207 cattle, 2211 hoss, 2101 sheep and lambs and 114 calves. Of these the G. T. R. contributed 88 cars and the C. P. R. 50. A comparison with the deliveries of one year ago may prove in resting to the cattlemen of the Province of Ontario. On Oct. 26, 1904, the deliveries of live stock at the city market were 55 cit loads, composed of 542 cattle, 502 hogs, 1428 sheep and lambs, 54 calves and nine horses. An increase of 83 car loads in the volume of business transacted in one year while not due wholly to an increase in Butchers' Cattle—For the best butchers' cattle the demand was more than ordinarily active and all offerings were picked up at good fair prices. Dealers are a unit in the hope that more extra choice thick-set butchers' helfers will soon be forthcoming. For a few odd picked lots of this kind from $4 to $4.25 was paid yesterday. Good butchers' brought from $3.75 to $4 per cwt. while medium butchers' steers and helfers brought all the way from $2 to $3.35 per cwt. Light butcher helfers were quoted from $2.75 to $3.25, butcher cows from $2.50 to $2.10. Canning bulls soid a shade better, going from $1.75 to $4.25 per cwt.

Freeders and Stockers.

SELL YOUR COLD FOR $1 ?

You surely won't stop at a dollar bill to cure that horrid, sniffeling cold? Go to any druggist and get "Catarrhozone" and your cold will be a thing of the past. There is almost witchery in the swift way Catarrhozone kills colds. But when you consider the penetrating, healing and antiseptic qualities of Catarrhozone perhaps it's not so wonderful. Certainly there is no remedy half so prompt for colds and catarrh as Catarrhozone. Refuse a substitute and tarrhozone. Refuse a substitute and insist on having only "Catarrhozone."

OLD AGE.

Old age as it comes in the orderly process of Nature is a beautiful and majestic thing. The very shadow of eclipse which threatens it, makes it the more prized. It stands for ex-perience, knowledge, wisdom and counsel. That is old age as it should be. But old age as it so often is NEW YORK DAIRY MARKET.

New York, Oct. 27.—Butter, steady, unthat ged; receipts, 4725.

Cheese, strong; receipts, 2327; state full cicien, small and large, colored and white, fair to good, 12e to 12½e; do., fair to good, 12e to 12½e; skims, full to light, 3½e to 10½e.

Eggs—Strong, unchanged; receipts, 3407. much. But when age comes the sto-mach is worn out. It can't prepare and distribute the needed nourish-ment to the body, and the body, un-nourished, falls into senile decay. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is a wonderful medicine for old people whose stomachs are weak, and whose digestions are poor. Its invigorat-ing effects are felt by mind as well as body. It takes the sting from old age, and makes old people strong.

St. Petersburg, Oct. 30.—The Russian capital is like a city in the possession of a foreign army. Last night again the soldiers, of whom there are 90,000, are bivouacking in the darkended and otherwise deserted streets. The Nevsky Prospect alone is flooded by the glare of the great searchlights fixed on the spire of the Admiralty building. The curious are drawn there like moths to a candle, and the sidewalks are thronged, while the Government clerks scurry along the roadway threading their way through the infantry and cavalry patrols.
