THE SITUATION
The latest French victory on the Somme may be regarded as of first importance. Striking between Comblès and the river, Gen. Foch's forces seized the entire first line of the enemy trenches on a three and a half mile front. They also seized Hill 145, and other important points, and incidentally took fifteen hundred German prisoners. From the British lines comes the statement that in these self-same operations their offensive, successful though it has hitherto been, is regarded as just about under way. The Huns will evidently soon have to evacuate the railway centre of Comblès, and Peronne is also now in danger. The latest official French report shows for this front, ending with Sept. 6th, the taking of 7,000 prisoners, 36 big guns and several hundred machine guns.

The Allied forces assembled at Saloniki have commenced to strike some staggering blows along the Bulgarian front. The Bulgarians have been pushed back at point after point, and the Roumanians are also advancing. Premier Zaimis of Greece has definitely insisted upon his resignation and that of the cabinet, and Venizelos, the man of the hour there, will be the new force in any rearrangement. He has long been regarded as perhaps the first statesman in Europe, and his sympathies are altogether with the Allies. Under his guidance, there can be no doubt as to what course the country will pursue, and that speedily.

"THE PUBLISHERS' DILEMMA"
The Toronto Globe of to-day devotes an editorial to the above subject. After referring to the fact that "the publishers of daily papers in the Canadian West have been hard put by the extraordinary increase in the cost of white paper used in the press rooms" the Globe adds:

"It is not in Western Canada alone that the publisher must choose between smaller papers and an increased subscription price. Conditions in the East are becoming acute. If the price of paper continues to increase and the shortage of labour becomes more intense the one-cent daily paper will be in danger everywhere."
This is the condition of affairs which has forced the two Brantford papers to abandon the one-cent rate after it has been vogue in this city for a quarter of a century. The move has not in any sense arisen from a desire for increased profits, but as an absolutely essential step if the papers in size and efficiency of news service, are to be kept at the present standard. Without any doubt the general public will fully understand and appreciate the circumstances.

RETURN OF REV. JEAKINS
All classes of citizens and of every denomination are pleased to welcome home the Rev. Mr. Jeakins, rector of St. Jude's Church. He offered his services as chaplain at an early period of the war, and has since rendered excellent services in that capacity. It is also worthy of note that his two brothers are in the King's uniform, so that the family is one of many others which have done their full duty in this time of stress. The example is one which should put some others to shame. Mr. Jeakins reports that on his arrival at Quebec he was pained and surprised to see such a large number of eligible young men in civilian uniform. He thinks that it will be necessary to adopt some form of conscription, and this opinion fully accords with the views more than once uttered by this paper.

In New Zealand the Government was loath to take steps in such a regard, but public opinion finally forced them to it. Under the measure adopted the voluntary system of enlistment is not abandoned, but there is "an expeditionary force reserve" of all British subjects between the ages of 20 and 46. Military districts have been established from which a certain quota of men are expected. If the response fails to measure up to the requirement, an enrolment of the first division of the district may be ordered, then the second and so on. When such a course has been decided upon the men are selected by lot and refusal to comply is visited by heavy penalties up to the death sentence. The only grounds of appeal are, (1) Exemption because a man's calling renders it undesirable that he should be sent to the front; (2) That by reason of domestic or other circumstances his "calling up" would cause undue hardship to himself and others. The plan is said to be working well and the fairness of it appeals to the general public.

The message of Mr. Jeakins again emphasizes the need for some such method in this Dominion.

KITCHENER
There are still a number of residents in old-time Berlin, who resent the changing of the name of Kitchener. A German paper published there recently gave voice to this feeling and said that the Government of the day would lose all of the German votes in the Dominion as a protest.

Now the News-Record, an English paper of the place in question comes along with the editorial assertion: "While the result of the voting on the matter of re-naming the city was practically a fifty-fifty affair, it is evident that a large majority of electors now consider the proposal to have been a grievous error. And that its fulfilment will work injury to the community."

"This law is still there. Were the electors five months hence, to carry a by-law having for its purpose the re-naming of the city, the Cabinet would be bound by its own legislation to change it."
"But the Post Office Department did this: It gave a deputation from this city an assurance that letters and other mail addressed to Berlin, Ont., will not be sent to the Dead Letter Office. In practice, the community will use both names."

"The division over the name matter is so wide that it seems impossible to bridge it. To-day, those who wrought the change are in a minority. They will discover that while you may lead a horse to water you cannot force him to drink."
"There is no hope of the majority accepting and generally using a name chosen by 346 electors. Before peace and unity can be restored, the name matter will require to be re-submitted to a vote of the electors."
"In order to have this done, the electors will need to elect a Council next January which will implement their desires."

The average outsider has just about come to the conclusion that there are a whole lot of people in the burgh under discussion who need to be brought to their senses. They are showing themselves to be Hun sympathizers in wishing to cling to a name which is a synonym for all that is false, and reprehensible as compared with another name which stands for a high sense of duty and opposition to menacing militarism. Canadians are a long-suffering lot, but if the community in question knows when it is well off, it would take the better and more sensible course of comporting itself in a manner more in accord with British surroundings. Self interest alone ought to be sufficient to make the inhabitants realize that they may arouse a feeling of exasperation which will greatly damage their material interests.

The main feature about the present state of affairs in Greece, is that Venizelos is the last part of his name for the allies.

MAYOR DELIVERED AN ULTIMATUM

Will not Endure Gas Trouble in the City During the Winter.

Mayor Bowlby is determined that a recurrence of last year's trouble with the Brantford Gas Company will not be again endured by the citizens of the city.

Unless unmistakable evidence is given to him at the board meeting on Sept. 15 that a factory actually does exist at the fields in Tilbury for the removal of the sulphuretted hydrogen, he intends taking immediate steps toward obtaining the forfeiture of the company's charter.

The mayor was placed in a quandary last winter in regard to the question since with the supply cut off there was no other available source, and consequently much suffering would have resulted. The matter has been allowed to rest during the summer months, as the sources of supply were sufficient, but with the approach of colder weather the obvious Tilbury product will in all probability be turned into the mains to supply the increased demand.

However the mayor is taking timely action so as to enable the citizens to make adequate arrangements for the winter months should the supply be cut off. However no such contingency is anticipated.

Well, old pal, I will have to close for this time, because I is getting very noisy. Our friends the runners, have just started to give Fritz his supper.

LETTER FROM SGT. W. BEACH OF 84TH

The Battalion Has Been Drafted, the Majority Going to the 75th.

In confirmation of the many reports which have from time to time reached Brantford that the 84th Battalion no longer existed as a unit, is the following letter sent by Sgt. Wm. Beach, of this city, who went overseas with 84th and is now at the front, to Mr. I. D. Scruton, secretary of Court Success, A.O.F. The letter which contains much news of local interest, reads:

No. 164,014, D. Co'y, Canadians, Somewhere in Fimnee, c.a. Army Post Office, London, England.

Dear Ira: Just a line to let you know that I have not forgotten you. I intended to write to you before we were moving around a great deal since we left Canada. I do not know whether you have heard about it or not, but the 84th Battalion, half of whom were stationed in Brantford, were nearly all transferred into the 75th Battalion, stationed at Bramshot Camp, England, so if you are interested in any of the boys who were in Brantford last winter you will have to look in the 75th Battalion records, from Toronto.

Well, after a short stay in England we were shipped over to Belgium, and after a few weeks training, were eventually sent to the firing line.

We have been in the trenches for three days, and considering the heavy bombardment that Gerns, Frimze, and I have had, our casualties have been very slight.

We are now resting in a barn about a mile in the rear of the firing line, and it is really worse here than it is in the front line trenches. Here we have four enemies to contend with: Rats, bed comforters and mosquitoes. So you see we have lots of company. I think that the Germans are the easiest to contend with. They are like our bed mates. We scarcely ever see them. But they give us a lot of trouble. Well, we have another day to sleep, and scratch and then we will be going back to the trenches, so we will be kept pretty busy dodging their "rum jars" and "sausages"—two German fancy shells—before we get to the front. I must mention the Belgians and their country.

The Belgians are a very hard working race, and I was surprised to see their country, practically every inch of what they have left, is under cultivation. It is just great to see what splendid crops they have.

One thing that I noticed more than any thing else, was that all the work in the trenches is done by hand, not by machinery, the same as it is done in Canada. And it is a treat to watch both men and women cutting their crops with the scythes and binding by hand.

Well, how are you getting on in Brantford? I hear that the 126th are in Borden Camp, England, also that the 215th are going to Borden Camp, Ontario, and I Toronto will be a very quiet place to what it was a little while ago. But it may not be for long, because the old hands out here think that the war will not last much longer, and if that is the case we will all be back to our old homes very soon.

And what little bit I have seen of it myself causes me to think the same. But I do not want to come back until I have seen a little more of it. It's a place where a man has to be very careful and then it is practically safe.

For our first experience we were placed under a number of French-Canadians, and they are fine fellows. Although we new fellows were a bit nervous at first when we were under German fire, it did not take those men long to convince us that it was great sport. They know the difference of every German shell that is fired in our direction, and they can nearly tell you when and where they are going to explode. So with a little more experience, the boys from Brantford and Toronto will be as merry as the rest of the boys out here.

Well, old pal, I will have to close for this time, because I is getting very noisy. Our friends the runners, have just started to give Fritz his supper.

Yours respectfully, WM. BEACH.

An amazing story of a woman who masqueraded as a man and was found out by the Mill Hill Medical Board was told at a North London tribunal.

Her employer appealed for the worker as his "foreman."

The chairman, holding up a letter, expressed surprise that the employer urged that this "man" was indispensable to him in his work. Did he know that "he" was a woman?

The employer smiled incredulously, and suggested that the chairman had made a mistake, for his foreman was married with two children.

examination disclosed that the person was a woman. It transpired that the "man" had been before the Advisory Committee, and on a certificate then produced was sent to the medical board. On the deception being discovered there was something like consternation in the barracks. It is understood that the woman was passing as a man to hide from her husband.

BRANTFORD MAN ROBBED AT BORDER

Fake Customs Official Collected Money from Passengers on Train.

Buffalo, Sept. 13.—Seven passengers on a C. P. R. train from Toronto were victims of an unusual robbery as the train crossed into the United States yesterday. The train had been stopped for the customs inspector when a man walked into one of the coaches and began questioning the passengers. Of Mrs. Jessie M. Ardill of New York city he demanded: "How much money have you got?" Mrs. Ardill opened her purse and the man counted $110. He returned $65 to the woman, saying he would have to keep the remainder as a "deposit." He wrote a receipt for the money as "paid over to the United States customs at Buffalo."

In like fashion the man got $38 from Edward Crockett of Brantford, Ont. Five others in the car also gave up money, but their names were not obtained by the police. The robbery was not discovered until the train pulled into the Buffalo station, when Mrs. Ardill asked the conductor what she should do with her receipt. The passengers gave a good description of the man, who they had supposed was a customs official.

Pte David Lyle is Returning

Word was received in the city yesterday that Pte. David Lyle of the 4th battalion had landed at Halifax on the way home from the front, where he had spent several months. Pte. Lyle, who is a married man, residing at 233 Drummond St., enlisted for active service in Brantford in June of 1915, becoming attached to the 58th battalion. He was later sent overseas with a draft to the 4th battalion, being accompanied by his brother, Wm. Lyle, who enlisted here at the same time.

Pte. Lyle is the third Brantford man of the 58th battalion to be invalided home, the others being G. W. Broomfield, Sheridan street, who returned to the city in July last, and Capt. the Rev. C. E. Jenkins, who arrived home last night.

The cruiser Memphis was lost because she did not have up steam, according to witnesses who arrived in New York from Santo Domingo. Ramon Borden, of Los Angeles, known as "the poor little rich girl," has been married to Cole Parker, son of a wealthy Anderson, Ind., banker.

IN HALF AN HOUR

The French Forces Seize the Entire First Lines.
And Also Capture Some Fifteen Hundred Prisoners.

London, Sept. 13.—With the swift assault yet recorded in the Somme battle, the French yesterday captured the whole system of German first line trenches between the region south of Combles to the Somme, accomplishing the feat in less than half an hour.

Without a moment's halt they followed up this success and vigorously pushed forward to the east, reaping the fruits of their initial blow. They took the strategically important Hill No. 145 and captured the whole of Marrieres wood.

Hold all Trenches to Peronne-Bethune Road
The end of this whirlwind attack saw the French in complete possession of the Tonton trenches as far as the Peronne-Bethune highway, which they are now manning, having pushed their lines within a short distance of it, parallel to the Rancourt-Bouchavesnes sector.

Further south they advanced their front to Ridge No. 76, west of Feuillancourt. Yesterday's successful drive adds ominously to the menace of Peronne. It netted the French 1,500 prisoners.

South of the river there was no infantry action yesterday. Nor did the British resume the offensive on their part of the front north of the Somme. The Germans throughout last night played their big guns against the British sector between Deville wood and the Mouquet farm.

Berlin officially admitted yesterday that Ginchy village was lost to the British yesterday morning.

SUB POLICY STILL REMAINS SAME

Hindenburg Has as Yet Effected No Change—Food Troubles Supreme.

Berlin, Sept. 12.—via London, Sept. 13.—12.40 p.m.—The weeks which have passed since the appointment of Field Marshal Von Hindenburg as chief of the general staff have been marked by almost complete cessation of the discussion in regard to resumption of submarine warfare on the old or a more vigorous basis. Non-partisan newspaper observers, who are in touch with leading statesmen and politicians express that for the present at least there will arise no question of a change in submarine policy. The administration of Chancellor Von Bethmann Hollweg now feels itself fully in control of the situation in this respect. The controversy over the methods employed in connection with the food dictatorship is now supplanted in the submarine issue in the Conservative and other newspapers which are opposed to the chancellor.

17 ENGAGEMENTS IN AIR FOUGHT

By French on Somme Front Yesterday—Station of Guiscard Bombed.

Paris, Sept. 13.—Numerous aerial engagements and raids by French aviators on points behind the German lines are reported in the aviation section of to-day's War Office statement which says: "On the Somme front our aeroplanes fought 17 engagements yesterday. Two German machines were brought down, one in the direction of Aizecourt and the other in the neighborhood of Moislains, northward and northeastward of Peronne. Four other enemy machines appear to have been badly damaged.

"Last night our bombing squadrons dropped a large number of bombs. Eighty-seven bombs of 120 millimetres were dropped on the railroad station and small buildings at Guiscard, where two explosions followed by fire were noticed. Twenty-four bombs were dropped on the railroad station at Roisel and on depots at Hendicourt. Seventy-four bombs were dropped on enemy installations in the region of Etain, thirty-two on bivouacs in the region of Danvillers and six shells on Montmedy station.

"During the same night one of our bombing groups carried out the following operations: "One hundred and five bombs were dropped on the Thionville station, sixty on the Uckange iron foundries and during the bombardment one of our machines covered the distance to the scene of the operations twice. Six bombs were dropped on iron foundries at Rombach and six on the railroad from Metz to Pont-a-Moussien."

The Senators won a sensational-inning game from the Red Sox by a score of 4 to 3. The Leafs are back in second this morning by the narrow margin of one point in the percentage. Islanders may yet beat the Leafs and place honors. The Islanders have edged up the pennant again, an aged Donovan is being mentioned as a probable successor to Bill C. should the latter retire at the end of the season without big experience as player and manager.

The X-Rays on Trojan Johnnie

Boston, Sept. 13.—Captain Johnny Evers of the Braves yesterday, under the X-ray, discovered that the neuritis which has bothered him for months has been caused by a tooth that never came through, and which is now covered by a false tooth. He will have the false tooth removed and the covered tooth extracted.

The Senators won a sensational ten-inning game from the Red Sox by a score of 4 to 3. Boston had scored two runs in the seventh and the result of an error, but with two out in the ninth the locals tied the count and knocked Ruth out of the box. Boston scored again in the 10th on four infield hits. In the Senator's half Smith's single tied the count. Scott's fumble then let in the winning run.

The Leafs are back in second place this morning by the narrow margin of one point in the percentages. The Islanders may yet beat the Grays for place honors. The Bisons have stitched up the pennant again, and Manager Donovan is being mentioned as a probable successor to Bill Carrigan should the latter retire at Boston. Donovan is not without big league experience as player and manager.

Rudolph Pitched a Double-Header

Won First Game, and Tied the Other—National League Scores.

Boston, Sept. 13.—Rudolph pitched Boston to a 1 to 0 victory over Chicago in one game yesterday, then twirled nine innings of the second game, which went 13 innings before darkness intervened, with the score tied at 3 to 3. Rudolph was retired when Tyler batted for him in the ninth and finished out the game.

Carter gave Rudolph a hard battle in the first contest, holding the Braves to three hits, while Chicago made five hits off the Boston man. A single by Egan coming between Carter's only pass and Gowdy's sacrifice account for Boston's run.

In the second game the visitors had the Braves 3 to 1, with two out in the ninth inning, when Snodgrass doubled after Hendrix had given two bases on balls.

Why Not Have a Leaden Bat?

Why don't some baseball manager have built for his team a "swinging" bat that is three or four times as heavy and as large as the ordinary one?

You've noticed that every man about to take his turn at the plate approaches waving two or three bats. And you know the reason; he swings all three so that when he actually retains the selected bat it will seem much lighter in comparison.

But why not a single bat built along giant lines—one that has a handle three or four times as thick as the ordinary bat and three or four times as heavy? If a player swung that it would give off the real effect of swinging one bat. When he swings three regular bats they slip around and he has trouble in holding them together long enough to get the full effect of their weight while making a few practice swings.

CARRIGAN MAY QUIT THE GAME

Manager of Red Sox May Possibly Retire at End of Present Season.

Boston, Sept. 13.—A story was in circulation yesterday to the effect that Manager Carrigan of the Red Sox is to resign at the close of the season.

President Lannin of the club said last night:—"Carrigan's contract expires at the close of the season, and until that time arrives I do not know what he intends to do. I know that his wife wants him to quit baseball and remain at their home in Maine, but Bill has not announced his decision as yet, and probably won't until the baseball season is over."

Brooklyn began its long series down the home stretch with an even break against Pittsburg. Pfeffer was invincible in the first game and shut the Pirates out by 6 to 0. The second game was a duel between Mammaux and Coombs, the Pirate twirler having the edge and winning by 2 to 1.

This picture was taken just after the pontoons had carried the Quebec bridge span to its place and before the work of hoisting it 160 feet above the river was commenced. At either end of the span are huge steel chains which were to pull the span into its permanent position. The hydraulic jacks which were operated from the ends of the stationary spans had pulled the centre span fifteen feet in the air when the accident happened.

THE ROYALS AGAIN HAMMERED M'TIGUE

Montreal, Sep. 13.—Good honest hitting and effective pitching enabled the crippled Royals to take yesterday's game from the Toronto Leafs by the score of 5 to 2. Thirteen solid safeties at the expense of "Lefty" McTigue were collected by the local squad, and these were productive of five runs, which were sufficient to win the game, as only two Toronto runs were permitted to cross the plate.

Still another of the team was out of the game yesterday, Joe Slattery, the clever fielding and hard hitting local first base guardian, being the latest addition to the already long hospital list of the Royals. Joe has been suffering from a bad leg for a long time, and yesterday it was so bad that he was unable to get into the game. Dan Howley was obliged to take the first base job himself, and acquitted himself fairly well.

Fullerton pitched in good style for the Montrealers all the way, being especially strong in the pinches. In only one inning was he really in trouble, and on each occasion he pulled out with only one run scored against him.

U.S. TEAM FOR GAMES AT STOCKHOLM

Is Regarded as Being Best Obtainable Among Amateurs.

By Courier Leased Wire.
 New York, Sept. 13.—Officials of the Amateur Athletic Union consider the team of four men selected to represent the United States in the track and field games at Stockholm, Copenhagen and Christiania among the best all round athletes in the United States. The team will be composed of Robert Simpson, of the University of Missouri; Fred Murray of San Francisco; Ted Meredith and J. G. Loomis. Both Simpson and Murray, the two late additions to the team, are holders of world's records. The athletes will leave for Europe September 25, and expect to return November 18.

Frederick W. Rubien, secretary-treasurer of the Amateur Athletic Union, believes that no hurdlers in the Scandinavian countries are able to extend Loomis, Murray, the intercollegiate champion, is a crack sprinter and shot putter, and is expected to win the 100 yard dash and the high jump, and to score points in the running broad jump and low hurdles.

Meredith is picked for the quarter and half mile runs, and the four together are regarded as almost unbeatable in a half mile relay.

LINERS.
 The Leafs are scheduled at Rochester to-day and to-morrow, after which they will return to wind up the season with Buffalo.

TY HAD FOUR SAFE BINGLES

Two Homers and Two Singles; Tigers Won—American League Results.

Cleveland, Sept. 13.—Detroit again hit Cleveland pitchers hard, and won 10 to 2. Cobb led in the onslaught, making two singles and two home runs. Each of the home runs was with a man on. Bagby pitched good ball until the ninth, errors being responsible for Detroit's runs in the fifth and eighth. Score: R. H. E. Cleveland . . . 000001010—2 7 2 Detroit . . . 300010033—10 16 2

Only three American League games scheduled.

World's Series is Nothing to Jack

If Jack Barry is able to get back in the game by October and the Boston club wins the American League pennant, the Worcester citizen will enter his sixth world's series. Barry played in world's series with the Athletics against the Cubs in 1910, against the Giants in 1911 and 1913 and against the Braves in 1914. Last season it was due largely to the splendid fielding of Barry that the Phillies only took one game from the Red Sox in the annual baseball classic.

Should Barry get into the world's series this year he will establish two records—that is, he will have played in four successive world's series, those of 1913, 1914, 1915 and 1916, and he will be the first player to share in six series.

Minor Leagues Do Not Survive

It has been just fifteen years since the National Association of Professional Minor Leagues was launched in Chicago. At that meeting Michael H. Sexton, the present president, was elected to the executive job, and John H. Farrell was elected secretary, a position he still holds. In the fifteen years that the association has been in existence considerably more than a hundred leagues have been on the association's roll, but at present there are less than half that number. Only six of the circuits enrolled in 1902 are now left—The International, the Southern, the North-western, then the Pacific North-west, the Three-I and the New York State.

Champion of Verdun League

The American ambulance field section No. 8, under Austin Mason, of Boston, claims the baseball championship of the Verdun salient, having defeated the other three ambulance sections of this sector and also the Norton and Harjes ambulance units.

Section 4, under Oliver Perry, of Morristown, N.J., ranks second, losing but two games, and section 1, under Herbert Townsend, of New York, third. Section 2, under J. T. Walker of New York, occupies the bottom berth in the league race.

"French-American aviators often fly above the grounds, watching the game, but once in a while a German soars over the diamond and must be driven away before he drops bombs and ruins the field," Mason writes.

"The games always are played within range of the Crown Prince's big guns, but seldom does a shell bursting in the vicinity stop a contest. When a game is called on account of the rain of shrapnel, bomb or mortar cards are issued for the spectators to return and witness a resumption of the game on another day."

"The chief trouble is that the French baseballs are worthless, and we are using a dozen in playing a full game. We can't get the American-made baseball, and wish the patriotic fans or big league officials would send us boxes of used balls, bats and gloves."

AUSTRIANS ARE STILL RETREATING

Says Roumanian Official Statement—Navigation on Danube Stopped.

Bucharest, Sept. 12.—via London, Sept. 13.—The continued retreat of the Austrians in Transylvania is reported in an official announcement issued by the war office to-day. The text of the statement follows: "On the north and northwest front the enemy continues to retreat westward in the valleys of the upper Maros and Aluta River. On the south front the navigation of enemy merchant ships on the Danube has been stopped. On the Dobrudja front operations are progressing."

"Enemy aeroplanes bombarded the town of Piatra and Neamtzu, killing an old man and seriously wounded two infants."

Boston Braves won the first game from Chicago 1 to 0, and tied up the second, 3 to 3, the game being called on account of darkness in the thirteenth inning. Rudolph pitched 18 of the 22 innings for Boston, retiring in the ninth inning of the second game for a pinch hitter. Carter allowed Boston but three hits in the first game, Boston getting its only run in the fifth inning on a pass-a-single and a sacrifice fly. Boston tied up the second game in the ninth after two were out on two passes and a double by Snodgrass.

Fans in Toronto and Ontario generally will not be disappointed if the Detroit Tigers win the American League flag and figure in the big annual baseball classic with the winners of the National League championship. Right now the Bengals appear to have a great chance to beat Boston for the pennant. Last season they finished a bang-up second after a great dash through the last few weeks of the campaign.

RETURNED MEN ARE OPTIMISTIC

All Agree that Result Is No Longer in Doubt—Troops in Fine Spirits.

Halifax, N.S., Sept. 12.—After an uneventful trip of little over five days, more than five hundred Canadian soldiers returned yesterday from overseas. The majority of these have the scars of battle, and a number are on sick leave. Among those returning were Captain Victor Drury and Lieut. Allister Fraser.

No Doubt of Result.
 Captain D. A. Hagar of Toronto, who has a short leave, said: "By George—it pleases me to see the way the boys are coming. That is what we need. Men, men, more men. There is no doubt now about the result, and despite all the hardships our boys over there have gone through they are in great fettle and ready for whatever orders are given."

They kept me in France for a number of months in France before I saw an action, then we got it. On the fifth of last March in front of Messines I got mine and I got it good. They kept me in France for two months, then sent me to London. They've used me well, but I want to get home. I can't tell any stories, and I don't want any injuries.

Then he went away on his two crutches. The shell that struck Lieut. Livingston caught both legs, but modern surgery has done much for him.

Claude MacDonnell, M.P., of Toronto, came over on the same ship. He had spent three weeks in London and he too was filled with the same spirit of optimism and confidence. He would not venture a prediction regarding the probable duration of the war, but expressed the belief that peace would come as suddenly as did war.

Fans in Toronto and Ontario generally will not be disappointed if the Detroit Tigers win the American League flag and figure in the big annual baseball classic with the winners of the National League championship. Right now the Bengals appear to have a great chance to beat Boston for the pennant. Last season they finished a bang-up second after a great dash through the last few weeks of the campaign.

AUSTRIA SENDS A PROTEST TO ITALY

Appeals Against Sequestration of Palazzo Venezia. Vulgar Language Used.

Rome, Sep. 13.—Austria sent a note on August 25 protesting against the Italian sequestration of the Palazzo Venezia. The Spanish ambassador presented the note to the Italian government.

An official communique says the note was "couched in such vulgar, insulting terms" the Italian minister of foreign affairs sent it back.

PRESIDENT TRAVELS

New London, Conn., Sep. 13.—The naval yacht Mayflower, with President Wilson aboard, steamed out of the harbor at six o'clock this morning. The Mayflower will take the President to Sandy Hook, where an automobile will be waiting to take him to the summer White House at Longbranch, N.J.

The President decided to leave New London last night after physicians attending his sister, Mrs. Anne E. Howe, whose critical illness brought the President here, had advised him that from now on Mrs. Howe would be constantly under the influence of opium, and would be unable to recognize him, and that she might live for several days.

U.S. WILL PROTEST TO GREAT BRITAIN

Concerning Alleged Violation of Neutrality by Torpedo Boat.

Washington, Sep. 12.—Violation of American neutrality by a British torpedo boat, which held up and examined the Philippine steamer Cebu within the territorial waters of the Philippines, was reported to the War Department today by Governor-General Harrison. The despatch immediately was transmitted to the state department and will be made the subject of a vigorous protest to Great Britain.

Explosion Cost 2 Lives in Toronto

Two Soldiers Killed by Dynamite on Lake, Off Exhibition Grounds.

Toronto, Sep. 12.—A terrific explosion occurring in the lake off the Exhibition grounds this morning cost the lives of two soldiers. Quartermaster-Sergeant William James Griffiths, of 921 Ossington Avenue, and Sapper John Edward, 43 Lavina Street, Swansea. The men were in a small boat engaged in placing explosives in the lake for the camera of a moving picture man. In their boat was a quantity of dynamite which in some fashion was set off and the resulting explosion tore men and boat to atoms. The men belonged to the Canadian engineers and had been employed in providing the submarine explosions on the water front during the Exhibition.

GERMANS TAKE NO PRISONERS

Ordered to Despatch all with Bayonet—Are Not Sorry to Do So.

New York, Sep. 13.—From official British sources the New York Times received yesterday the translation of a letter found on a German prisoner captured in the battle of the Somme. The prisoner, writing to his family in Stuttgart, said that the Germans had received orders "to take no prisoners," but to despatch them with the bayonet. With the translation came a photograph of the original letter, which was addressed to "Karl Koch and family, Kallental, near Stuttgart."

A part of the letter as officially translated, follows: "And now we had three days' rest and I could get nothing at all to drink except costly wine. It is very disagreeable to us that we are obliged to go through it once again; you cannot conceive it. So many of our comrades are missing, who have fallen or were wounded during the week; and now we are obliged to go through it once more. Oh, dear! "Here we have proper Englishmen against us, and have orders to take no prisoners, but to despatch them all with the bayonet, which I would not be sorry to do. But they are always getting more prisoners from us and what do they do with them?"

WAR LOAN
DOMINION OF CANADA

As with the previous Loan, we predict a great success for this issue. During this period of stress our Government needs our help and counts upon our patriotism. But a chance is given investors of placing their money in securities of the highest grade, upon terms the liberality of which will, perhaps, not be fully realized until the return of normal times.

If this Loan were issued to yield 4½%, instead of about 5 1/3%, the price would be 105.41, instead of 97.50. A 4% yield (the basis on which Dominion Government bonds sold so recently as 1914) would mean a price of 111 for the present issue.

We will forward your application, procure your allotment and render other services free of charge to you.

As Gipsy sank back in her seat her eyes met those of her elder sister Audrey, and the familiar glint of humor lurking in the wide-open gray eyes brought an instant smile to her bright face. Audrey and Gipsy were as nearly of an age as sisters can be who are not twins. Eleven months only divided them, and from babyhood singularly devoted. Allayce had never come quite within the inner circle of their lives; she had always been somewhat of a creature set apart. No lack of love had there been on either side, and from babyhood and her nameless charm of person and character they were fully conscious and fondly proud. But she had always lived her life in a certain isolation of spirit which had not brooked invasion even by them. In olden days she might have been termed a "changeling child," for she was never altogether as they were; she was happiest alone in garden or woodland, or dreaming in some high-up, deserted room with her violin for company. She had dreaded what most girls looked forward to—the age for "coming out." She had lived her life alone and remote, surrounded by a dream atmosphere of her own weaving; and, if a stern necessity had of late obliged her to step forth and face the realities of life as she had never done before, this had not changed the calibre of her mind or the desire of her heart. As Gipsy sank back in her seat her eyes met those of her elder sister Audrey, and the familiar glint of humor lurking in the wide-open gray eyes brought an instant smile to her bright face. Audrey and Gipsy were as nearly of an age as sisters can be and only divided them, and from babyhood singularly devoted. Allardyce had never come quite within the inner circle of their lives; she had always been somewhat of a creature set apart. No lack of love had there been on either side, and of her talents and her nameless charm of person and character they were fully conscious and fondly proud. But she had always lived her life in a certain isolation of spirit which had not brooked invasion even by them. In olden days she might have been termed a "changeling child," for she was never altogether as they were; she was happiest alone in garden or woodland, or dreaming in some high-up, deserted room with her violin for company. She had dreamed what most girls looked forward to—the age for "coming out." She had lived her life alone and remote, surrounded by a dream atmosphere of her own weaving; and, if a stern necessity had of late obliged her to step forth and face the realities of life as she had never done before, this had not changed the calibre of her mind or the desire of her heart. Already she was back in her childhood's dreamland, and the things of reality would soon for her be lost and merged in the glamor of that with which she had power to re-create at will, when the sweet leisure of a sheltered life should be hers again.

There was a certain superficial resemblance between Audrey and Allardyce, since both owned the dark shadow-soft hair and delicate arched brows and long curved lashes of deepest black. But Audrey's gray eyes were alert and wakeful; in their depths a glint of appreciative humor seemed always to lurk, and the curve of her bowed mouth was expressive of a half whimsical, half critical habit of mind which betrayed an outlook upon life quite different from that of Allardyce. If in feature and coloring she and her younger sister were most alike, in expression she was closer akin to Gipsy, though there was less of sparkle and the jeu de vivre in her, and a greater understanding of the graver questions that encompass human lives.

"Audrey, do you remember what mother used to tell us of her home beside the sea? I have been racking my brains, and so little comes back to me."

"That is how it is with me. I wonder if Cissy remembers more. It is the kind of thing which would take hold of her."

"Cissy" was the sisters' pet name for Allardyce, whose own name was too long for constant use and did not lend itself to abbreviation. They looked across at her rap and dreamy face in which the dark violet eyes with black pencilings were shining now with a great light as of "coming joy," as they called her name softly so as not to disturb the old nurse, who was dosing restfully against the cushions in the sense of happy release from a week of rush and strain.

She came across to them smiling, and at their question, the light glowed over her face and she clasped her hands as if in some inward rapture.

"Do you not know? Do you not remember? Then I can tell you. Mother used to make me see it. I have been there with her. There is a great shining bay which lies open to the south where the sun shines over the water from morning till its set-hours of land which stretch out to enclose it. The one on the east side does not run out very far. It is clothed in larch wood where it leaves the mainland to me the projecting promontory, and our house is at the end and faces the sunset, just a little wild merrymen when- ever you could slip away to the sea."

though on each floor there is one room with a great south window too, so that there is sea all round. The larch woods do not belong to it, though there is a path through them to the church and village. There is a garden to the west and to the south a place where herbs grow in little terraces over which the salt spray often sweeps; and behind the house are a few fields and a little cluster of farm buildings and stables. As most of the windows look out to the west towards the setting sun, they have called the place Sunset Craig."

"Ah, I remember that name now." "And opposite, on the other side of the bay running far, far out in a great curving, cruel horn, is a mass of rock—great jutting promontory, and off its pointed tip a lightship rides for the warning of vessels. And almost always these rocks are black and threatening and terrible. But in the dawning of the day, when the sun rises and sends long golden lights over the green, tossing waters, then the rocks take wonderful colors and glow as though touched by an enchanter's rod, and so the people have called it Sunrise Reef."

"Cissy, you speak as though you had seen it."

"I feel as though I had seen it. But what I can't remember is whether those great turrets and battlements and walls that I see are just the rock reef itself, carved by Nature's hand, or whether there is a house there—a lonely, grim old house, from which at nights a few faint lights gleam, but which by day shrinks away and loses itself amid the wild rocks of the jutting horn."

Only at sunrise it springs up again—a fairy castle upon some enchanted rocks! Ah, I wish I could remember."

She held her face between her hands, her eyes gazing straight before her as though she saw a vision.

"You seem to remember a good deal, as it is," said Audrey, a gleam in her gray eyes—"perhaps rather more than there is to remember—like other dreamers of dreams."

"Mother used to draw it for me—sometimes in words, sometimes on the sands with a stick, sometimes in her sketch-book. I shall know our house when we get there. The hall is at the north end, and there is a passage leading straight to the drawing room with one window to the south; the other windows look to the west, towards the sunset, with diamond lattice casements, and roses looking in, and fuschias like trees clinging to the walls, where little jutting bays or gables give them shelter from the winds from the sea. And upstairs it was mother's rooms which looked both ways over the sea, so that you feel as though you were in a great ship with sea-birds wheeling round you."

"You shall have that room, Cissy," said Audrey, with her elderly-sisterly protective air. "You were always a little wild merrymen when- ever you could slip away to the sea."

"It calls me," said Allardyce, "it sings to me; it rests me. I should love to have that room—if you do not want it."

"The sunset rooms will do for us," said Gipsy, with a kindling smile. "I love a great, red, golden blaze in the west. Sunset Craig is a nice name for one's home. Cissy, do you remember anything about the people? People interest me more than waves and sea-gulls."

Allardyce shook her head.

"I do not think we ever talked about the people," she said. "If mother ever told me, I have forgotten."

"If it had been animals there might have been a chance," said Audrey indulgently; "but human beings—not the least!"

"Are you laughing at me, Audrey?"

"No; but we like you as you are, my child. We would not change her, would we, Gipsy?—for a more rational being! Only we would prefer to keep you with us. We don't want to see you growing a mermaid's tail and slipping away into some rocky pool before our very eyes."

"Ah, how good it will be to swim again in the hot sunshine and the warm salt pools!" cried Gipsy.

"There is a little steep pathway down to our own boat-house," Allardyce went on; "and in the bay the water is nearly always warm and kind through the summer. There are rocks to dive from and deep pools and green caves and beautiful sea creatures on the rocks; when the sun shines in it is all lit up like an enchanted palace. And it will be all our own!"

"Go on, darling! Tell us more!"

"Into the bay, almost in its centre tumbles a leaping stream, which rises in the moors behind. There are a few fishermen's huts by the mouth fresh and fit to drink, and a path leads up beside it to the village of Rockhaven. But it is a rather steep climb, for the bay is cut out of the heart of a cliff, and is set like a cup between the protecting horns. The church is very old, and much bigger than Rockhaven needs; perhaps there was once an old priory near it. I am sure there is a ruin. What was it? I had it just now and then it goes again. Ah, I remember—Gaston's Keep! That was what it was called; and the ruin was quite near."

"Gaston's Keep?" repeated Gipsy, with her head slightly on one side.

"Rather an attractive-sounding name, don't you think, Audrey? If our little sister has not been weaving all these charms out of the fabric of her own imaginations, I think that our home should be a rather fascinating sort of place."

Chapter IV.

Over the wide wind-swept moor, where small, sure-footed sheep browsed upon the short green turf, and gorse-bushes showed like patches of sunlight against the brown earth or rolling billows of verdure, where sea-birds wheeled and sailed, uttering their discordant cries, a horseman was riding slowly, with slack rein and careless seat, while the fine horse he bestowed picked its way daintily across the trackless waste with an air of perfect knowledge.

The horse was a splendid chestnut without a white hair. He stood sixteen hands and showed his breeding in the arch of his sleek neck, the expanded nostrils with the rim of red, the network of veins beneath the satin-smooth coat, the long, elastic tread, which seemed to spurn the ground, and which, at a word or a touch, would change to that smooth, bounding pace which brought the rider to his destination with an exhilarating promptitude.

It needed a fine horse to carry Gaston Lebron over the rough, wild country where lay his home; for he was a man of great height like those forefathers of his whose portraits hung in the gallery and hall of Gaston's Keep. Indeed, with his dark, forceful face, his great height, his massive shoulders and lean, lithe frame, he might well have stepped forth from one of those ancient canvasses himself; and one of those suits of mail that adorned the shadowy corners of the vast baronial hall would have well become the finely proportioned figure with its air of warrior-might.

The legends of the house were many and delved far back into regions of mediaeval story and romance. It was said that in the early days of the Plantagenets a certain Gaston de Brocas had received a grant of land in this wild sea-girt place and had builded a mighty tower and called it by his name—Gaston's Keep. Since that day many Gastons had come and gone, but the name had never died out, though the estate had been merged in that of Le Breton now for many generations written Lebron.

Legend told how the same De Brocas or Le Breton had, in dying, bequeathed the lands to the Church; and that Gaston's Keep had been pulled down to erect a priory which long dominated the lonely stretch of country around.
