The Heir of Bayneham

—AND—
Lady Hutton's Ward.

CHAPTER XXVIII.

As he was pondering over what to do and perplexed by many thoughts, Barbara Earle entered the room—Barbara, whose noble, soul-like face looked serene and calm. For a moment Lord Bayneham's whole heart seemed to go out to meet her. There was no mystery, no concealment here, nothing but clear, glorious truth in the dark eyes raised to his face.

"What is the matter, Claude?" she asked gayly; "you look as uninteresting as possible—almost cross, in fact. Surely you are not thinking of this nonsense about Hilda's bracelet? Lady Bayneham has just been telling me where you found it."

"And how do you imagine it came there?" asked the girl of his cousin. "I should never try to discover," replied Barbara. "Perhaps Hilda's maid took it to be cleaned or repaired, or something else, and dropped it, or perhaps Hilda walked in her sleep. I tell you what, Claude, I should imagine every combination of strange and singular circumstances before I dared to think even the slightest wrong of one so pure and gentle as your wife."

"But it seems strange," said Lord Bayneham. "The thing that puzzles me most is, that she seems so frightened—she trembles at the very mention of the word."

"Is she frightened?" asked Barbara earnestly. "Then my idea is a correct one. Rely upon it, Claude, there is some little mystery, and Hilda is shielding some one else from blame."

"She ought at least to confide in me," said Lord Bayneham. "Perhaps she fears your anger for the real culprit," said Miss Earle.

"I do not think so," replied her cousin; "she talks so tragically to me, poor child, that I am afraid there is something not quite straightforward. She tells me she cannot explain."

"Then," replied Barbara with generous spirit, "if she says so, Claude, never seek to know the rest. When a pure, guileless woman like Hilda wishes to keep a secret, be noble and allow her to do so. Rely upon it, her motive justifies her."

SOLD BY ROYAL STORES, LTD.

Think as he would, Lord Bayneham was no nearer solving the mystery; so he went out into the park, wondering if the fresh air would give him any inspiration. As he strolled listlessly along, Simpson, the head gamekeeper, saw him, and drew near, as though desirous of speaking to him.

"What is it, Simpson?" asked Lord Bayneham, listlessly, annoyed at the interruption.

"I am afraid we shall have some trouble, my lord," replied the man. "I have seen one or two notorious poachers about lately, and I feel sure they have been at their old tricks. I was in the park all last night, and I wanted to tell your lordship, but I saw you here walking with my lady, and I would not interrupt you."

"It would be after ten," replied the man. "You were in the Lady's Walk with my lady. I saw her face, but not yours, my lord; I did not like to intrude."

Not by one word or look did Lord Bayneham betray his wife.

"Quite right," he said hastily; "but what about those poachers? I do not believe in the Game Laws, as some of my neighbors do, but I will have no poaching."

Simpson then entered into details, of which Lord Bayneham never heard one word. His wife had been there, and not alone—who was with her? Ah, that was why she fainted with fear. Could that pure, sweet face hide deceit or guilt? Barbara's words rose before him, but what would Barbara say if she knew what he had heard?

The gamekeeper spoke in entire good faith. He had passed near the Lady's Walk on the previous evening, and seen two figures there. When Lady Hilda turned to look in Paul Fulton's face Simpson saw her plainly, and naturally supposed she was with her husband. The man thought nothing of the circumstance, merely naming it in a gossiping way—partly to prolong his interview, and partly to show his zeal.

"I will attend to it, Simpson; we will have no poaching," said Lord Bayneham, suddenly interrupting the astonished gamekeeper in the midst of a brilliant description of the poaching affray at Hulsemeer. But not one word he had uttered was heard by his young master, who was all impatience to find himself once more with his young wife.

All the way home Lord Bayneham was pondering on the one question—who was walking with his wife after ten at night, when she was supposed to be in her own room? Could it have been Mr. Fulton—no, the idea was simply ridiculous. Mr. Fulton might have admired her, might perhaps have addressed some complimentary verses to her; but under the Earl of Bayneham's own roof he would not dare to solicit an interview with his wife. Even had he the audacity to propose such a thing, it was not likely that the fair, innocent lady of Bayneham would consent to such a proceeding. Whoever was with his wife must have been a stranger, not one of those within his own gates.

The mystery must be solved; she had refused to tell him the contents of the notes; but let that pass—most likely they contained little but nonsense. She would not explain the finding of the bracelet; that, too, might pass, but she must tell him with whom she walked and talked at night and alone.

Ends Stubborn Coughs in a Hurry

For real effectiveness, this old home-made remedy has no equal. It is ready and cheaply prepared.

You'll never know how quickly a bad cough can be conquered, until you try this famous old home-made remedy. Anyone who has coughed all day and all night, will say that the immediate relief given is almost like magic. It takes but a moment to prepare and really there is nothing better for coughs. Into a 16-oz. bottle, put 5% ounces of syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup. This mixture saves about two-thirds of the money usually spent for cough preparations, and gives you a more positive, effective remedy. It keeps perfectly, and tastes pleasant—children like it.

You can feel this take hold instantly, soothing and healing the membranes in throat. The cough loosens, it grows weaker, a dry, tight cough, and soon you will notice the phlegm thin out and disappear altogether. A day's use will usually break up an ordinary throat or chest cold, and it is also splendid for bronchitis, croup, hoarseness, and bronchial asthma.

Finex is a most valuable concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, the most reliable remedy for throat and chest ailments. To avoid disappointment ask your druggist for "Finex" or "Finex" with directions and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. Something About The Foot.

The French foot is narrow and long. The Spanish foot is small and elegantly curved—thanks to its Moorish blood. The Arab's foot is proverbial for its high arch.

The Koran says that a stream of water can run under the true Arab's foot without touching it. The foot of the Scottish is high and thick; that of the Irish flat and square; the English short and fleshy. When Athens was in her zenith, the Grecian foot was the most perfectly-formed and exactly proportioned of that of any of the human race. Swedes, Norwegians and Germans have the largest feet. Russian toes are "wobbed" to the first joint. Tartarian toes are all the same length. Camel's hair yarn embroidery in brick, blue, green and orange is used on the sleeves, collars, and under-arm panels of many of the topcoats of camel's hair.

DURANT AND STAR TUBULAR CHASSIS: Is one of the most important automotive engineering accomplishments. This is a five-inch hollow steel member riveted at both ends to the second and third frame cross members parallel to the side members. It makes the whole frame rigid and prevents distortions resulting from uneven surfaces. It forces the springs to perform fully their proper function of absorbing the shocks of the road. Mounted on such a foundation, the body panels and joints are not subjected to torsional strains, creaking and rattling are reduced to a minimum, and the car is preserved in good condition even after a long period of use.

FREE STORAGE: Until the end of the year on all DURANT and STAR cars driven for PRIVATE USE.

British Press Criticise French Action

Poincare Colossal Idiot or Greatest of Knaves -- Government Advised to Withdraw From Reparations and Rhine -- Payment of French Debt Should be Insisted Upon.

BRITISH PRESS STRONGLY CRITIC.
 LONDON, Jan. 12. The development of the situation arising from the French advance into Ruhr is being watched in official circles with anxious interest, and some fears are beginning to be expressed that the British Government may before long be compelled to revise its attitude of benevolent disassociation from the French action. Never before during the long disputation over the reparations problem has the French policy been so strongly and universally criticized and deplored in London. The weekly reviews, following the utterances of the daily press in this respect. The outlook declared Premier Poincare is assured of immortality as one of the most colossal of idiots or alternatively the greatest of knaves who ever have strutted upon the stage of high human destinies. Says the Spectator "France poisoned and intoxicated by a sense of wrongs, with a mind dazed by fears and suspicions, is going to commit the extremity of human folly. Short of a miracle she seems fated not to awaken to what she is doing until she finds herself ruined in purse and pride without even the barren knowledge of having performed a great feat at arms and without a friend in the world." The Spectator argues that France's action will compel Great Britain to take a much less generous view of the question of France's debt to Great Britain. The foregoing is illustrative of the general trend of comment, and while most papers support the present policy of the British Cabinet, voices are not wanting, demanding "something different." As an instance the Economist, one of the leading financial organs, points out that the withdrawal of the United States troops of Occupation increases the very definite danger, which cannot be disregarded, that the occupation of Ruhr may start a conflagration which may spread right through Central Europe and the Balkans because the action of the United States advertised to the world France's complete isolation. Continuing, this journal says, that in deciding her policy, Great Britain must endeavor to follow French action to its logical conclusion and ask herself in the event of the present action in Ruhr fails to bear fruit, and France takes further military steps, at which point is the French policy in danger of overstepping the line. "The Nation goes still further and says, "French militarism being established, it will of necessity march through illegally to fresh deeds of perfidy and violence. There is only one way out of the position into which M. Poincare has placed us,

WILL EXTEND TIME.

PARIS, Jan. 12. The Reparations Commission tomorrow will grant Germany further delay until February first on the payment of the five hundred million gold marks due next Monday. It was forecasted in Reparations circles tonight. The decision will be taken at the request of France. Although the official reason is to give the French delegation more time in which to prepare new proposals, it is believed the increasing indication of passive resistance by Germany to the French occupation of Ruhr has much to do with it.

COAL LADEN VESSEL LOST.

ISLESFORD, Maine, Jan. 12. The Nova Scotia tern schooner Don Parsons was wrecked in a North-east storm early to-day at Little Cranberry Head, off Mount Desert Island. She was bound from New York to St. John, N.B., with coal. Capt. Carl, his wife and six of the crew were rescued by coast guardsmen. It is believed the ship will be a total loss.

U.S. WILL NOT REPLY.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12. The United States Government will make no reply to the German protest against the French movement into Ruhr. It was said to-day at the White House.

NEED GIRLS UP AGAINST U.S. LABOR LAW.

DETROIT, Jan. 12. Whether the Western Union Telegraph Company violated the Contract Labor Law by bringing twenty-five women employees to the United States after they had been deprived of their positions in Newfoundland is decided here by Federal Judge Arthur J. Tuttle. Five of the girls are employed in the Detroit office of the Co., and the Immigration Officers sought their deportation.

TWO SELFISH MOTHERS.

Two letters have come to me in the same mail from young girls who want to be married and whose mothers, both widows, oppose the match. The daughter in each case has supported her mother for some years and proposes to do her share toward her support in the future, either by offering her a home or by financial contributions. But of course marriage will mean the break-up of the home which the mother and the girl, and in one case the mother, girl and older sister, share. And so the mothers bitterly oppose the marriage—for no other reason, each girl declares, than that it means a change in her way of living. Of course all these facts have been given me from the girl's standpoint. I wish I had a letter from the mothers too. (Perhaps after this is published I shall have.) I'd like to know what she would say about it all. And then I'd like a letter from an unprejudiced

PLEASURE AND ITS PRICE.
 Pleasure's worth so much to me—so much, and nothing more. It's worth the dollar I can spend to bring it to my door. It's worth the time to walk with friends, it's worth what I can give. But I'll not pay too great a price in Pleasure's court to live.

A joyful hour is good to own and I am fond of play. In search of pleasure through the years I'll lose my time away. I'll tramp the woods and roam the fields, with honest men I'll game. But I'll not pay for Pleasure's thrill in terms of grief and shame.

I will not wreck the home I keep, or bring it to despair. To drink the wine which Pleasure brews and in its revels share; I'll pay its price in daily toil, I'll earn the joy which cheers. But I'll not buy it at the cost of one good woman's tears.

I will not pay my friends' respect for Pleasure's greatest thrill. I'll laugh and game with honest men and gladly foot the bill. But when 'twould leave me with regrets, on it I shut the door—For Pleasure I will pay so much, but not a farthing more.

SHE RECOMMENDS DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS TO ALL HER FRIENDS.

Miss Adeola Hallen who Suffered From Bad Kidneys Tells of the Relief—She Got.

St. Antoine Padon, Que. Jan. 12. (Special).—"I suffered with a very bad back and my kidneys. My case seemed to be particularly grave. I had used your Dodd's Kidney Pills before, so decided to try some more. Five boxes sufficed to restore me to perfect health."

The above statement is made by Miss A. L. Italian, a resident of this place.

The relief that Miss Italian found has come to thousands of other Canadian women through the use of Dodd's Kidney Pills. That shows that the ache is caused by the kidneys. For Dodd's Kidney Pills are purely and simply a Kidney remedy. For more than a quarter of a century Dodd's Kidney Pills have been a household remedy in thousands of Canadian homes.

Ask your neighbors about 'Dodd's Kidney Pills.'

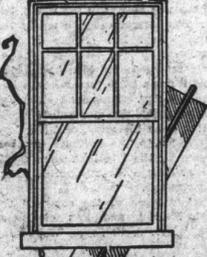

Count The Cost.

Sugar is nowadays the grocer's leader and is sold practically at cost, i.e. landed price plus grocer's percentage of handling expenses. Calculating handling expenses such as cost of weight, cost of bags, labor, etc., is usually guess work rather than figuring.

American and Canadian shopkeepers who have employed expert accountants to figure their costs are refusing to handle bulk sugars and are dealing solely in package sugars; their argument is—"If we must follow the crowd and sell sugar at the cost, we shall sell only package sugars, the cost of which we know." If shopkeepers who prefer to retail sugar out of a barrel, knew the cost of such procedure, they would gladly pay 75 cents per 100 lbs, over the bulk price for package sugars. This appears to be an instance where blissful ignorance is unwise—Jan. 13, 20, 27.

Some Centenaries.

Certain years produce great men and women in numbers that are impressive. Other years the tally can be reckoned on the fingers of one hand. In the year 1809, for instance, there was recorded the birth of Gladstone, Lincoln and Holmes—all famous in their particular sphere. Some noteworthy centenaries were celebrated in 1919. The year 1822 saw the birth of Pasteur and Grant. The year 1823 produced no genius of this first magnitude, unless it was that prodigious scholar, thinker and idealist, Ernest Renan, whose birthday was on February 27th. Another great Frenchman was the French poet, dramatist and essayist Theodore Banville, born on March 14, 1823. In United States, Francis Parkman, the great historian saw the light in Boston on September 16th of the same year. George Horatio Derby, better known by his nom de plume "John Phoenix," humorist and soldier, was born on April 3rd, 1823. In England on July 23rd, one hundred years ago Coventry Patmore, afterwards poet and critic, was born. He was a man of rare spirituality and possessed of a sentiment that went to the very roots of human interest. His poem "The Toys" is a household word and his "Unknown Eros" will live long in the annals of poetical literature. In the same year were born Alexander Cabanel (Sept. 28) who was a French artist of distinction; Thomas Francis Meagher (August 3) Irish-American soldier and editor. Next there is Robert Collyer (December 8) the offspring of humble parents in Yorkshire, England, who was first a working blacksmith, after that a Methodist local preacher and later, when in the fulness of his years, an American Unitarian divine of the foremost rank, whose pungent Saxon style both in preaching and writing, suggested a John Bunyan of the nineteenth century. The present year, 1923, is the bicentenary of two great Englishmen—Blackstone (July 10) the father of the legal commentators and teachers, whose law writings are accepted as authorities in all English speaking lands, and his illustrations and comments quoted daily in the courts by counsel, whether opposing or defending alike. The second is Joshua Reynolds (July 16) the leader of England's art in his day. It is very possible that note will be taken, in their worlds, of the two hundredth anniversary of the birth of these two famous men, to whom both law and art owe so much.

Large Funeral.

The funeral of the late Capt. Edward English, took place yesterday afternoon and was very largely attended. A Guard of Honor from the Knights of Columbus was present, and at the Cathedral the prayers for the dead were recited by the Rev. Dr. Green. Interment took place at Bellevue.

UNITED FISHERMEN'S MOVEMENT CHALLENGES F.P.C.—MISSIONARY CAMPAIGN ABOUT TO BEGIN.

Special to Evening Telegram. GREENSPOND, To-day. Another big United Fishermen's meeting held last night. Glover Hall crowded. Resolutions passed unanimously without a question raised. People more determined than ever to support the movement for lopping off mouldering branches of the Civil Service and reduction of taxation. Bragg, White and myself with three from Wesleyville, will start canvassing the country preaching the doctrine of Liberalism from the thralldom of excessive taxation, and the ushering in of an era in which we may live as of yore.

WALTER CARTER.

C. M. B. C.

The Cathedral Men's Bible Class will hold its annual meeting in its rooms at the Synod Building tomorrow afternoon, when all the members are requested to attend. Through many changes in the personnel of chairman and members as well as many "ups and downs," the class has continued its splendid work for over thirty years. It not only serves its own members but, through a body of volunteers, spreads its energies to those in prison, to the sick, and to the many seamen who visit here throughout the year. At the meeting to-morrow the several reports of the year past will be presented and the officers for the ensuing year will be elected.

The Mission

AT ST. THOMAS' CHURCH.

The first weekly service of preparation for Bishop Nevill's Mission was held at St. Thomas' last evening, and was largely attended. The service, which was taken by the Rector, commenced with the Veni Creator, sung kneeling, the special lesson being read by the Rev. E. O. Lightbourne. After the hymn "Blest are the pure in heart" the Rector addressed the congregation on "How can I help the Mission?" He announced that Bishop Nevill expected to arrive in St. John's a fortnight to-day, and that the Mission would begin on Sunday, January 28th, and continue until the following Sunday, Feb. 4th. Services would be held daily at all of which the Bishop would preside. The Bishop is a big man physically, mentally and spiritually, one who might be described as possessing "a pleasing presence and a pleasing voice." He has been greatly blessed in his ministry, and the Rector feels that his Mission here will be one of the greatest events in the parochial history of St. Thomas'. The congregation were urged to help the Mission by (1) sympathy, (2) service and (3) prayer. At the conclusion of the Rector's address intercessions were offered for the missioner and his work for the congregation and particularly for the children, on whose behalf a special mission service will be held, and the service closed with the benediction. Next Friday evening the Rector will speak on "What difference is it making to others that I am a Christian?"

Milk Standard.

QUALITY SHOWS BIG IMPROVEMENT.

Inspector Lawlor of the Health Department has effected a remarkable improvement in the quality of the milk supplied to the city since he started a vigorous campaign several years ago. In 1921, one hundred and forty-three samples were taken, out of which thirty-three per cent. or forty-one samples were found under the standard. In 1922 one hundred and sixty-five samples were taken out of which three per cent. or seven samples were under standard.

St. Bon's Rink Nearing Completion.

WILL BE READY FOR SKATING NEXT WEEK.

Work on the St. Bon's Skating Rink is rapidly nearing completion, and is being pushed so that the opening may take place early next week. It was hoped that the rink would open in December, but owing to unavoidable delays in shipments of steel from Montreal this was found impossible. After the material had arrived the steel framing was rushed ahead by a staff of men under the supervision of Bro. Brennan of Mount Cashel, and the work on this was rapidly pushed to completion. The new rink will be a splendid edifice. The plans were drawn by the Brothers of the College and the steel work is the best procurable in Canada. The ice surface will be about 120 feet long by forty feet wide. Ample space is available at the sides for general skating, where there is an ambulatory with a width of seven feet around the entire rink. The surface for hockey is neither too cramped nor too large, being ideal for good fast team work, and has a board-edged fence built around the interior of the arena on the same style as adopted by the Prince's Rink. The exterior of the structure was covered in, in ten and a half days, and a better class of timbers could not be found in Canada. The ice surface was laid as stated by Bro. Ryan, who supervised the work. At the north end of the building, two towers have been built on either side, which show up to advantage. The main entrance is on the west side of the building. An important feature of any rink is the lighting system. Special attention will be paid to the lighting arrangements in this structure, and all mistakes which experience has exposed will be avoided. When completed there will be ample room to comfortably accommodate about 1,500 people. Galleries with a seating capacity of 400 can be installed at either end, while there is ample room for a third at the western side of the building. The comfort of the players and skaters has not been overlooked. To supply their needs, the plans call for two dressing rooms. They will be made as comfortable as possible. Yesterday afternoon the work of the carpenters was practically completed on the interior, and the boys of the College busied themselves in cleaning up the space allotted for the ice, after which the rink was flooded for a first time. Should the frost continue the new rink will be open for the use of the boys on Monday next.

NOTES ON THE WEEK. The entire spirit of the services was impressive and helpful.

The addresses were such as appealed to men more than to sects, and were therefore greater than denominationalism.

Preparation was evidently a keynote of the speakers; hence the congregations had much to carry away; and the press much to pass on.

Thus closes our notes of the Week of Prayer for 1923. To all who helped by kind words we feel grateful; and for the co-operation of the Press there is equal gratitude due. With such short time at one's disposal, it was not easy to do the best; but we have endeavored to record what may be taken as the essentials of the topics, and the soul of the meetings.

AT WESLEY. The Rev. J. G. Joyce, pastor of the church, conducted the service, and read a short lesson. A number of prayers suited to the evening's subject, were offered. Talking as the basis of his remarks "The World's Search for God," and his text from Acts 17—"The Nations feel after—" the Rev. C. E. Johnson, of Cochrane Street, the speaker of the evening, spoke eloquently and instructively.

Week of Prayer.

CLOSING SERVICE—A LARGE CONGREGATION—HEALTHY SINGING—Eloquent Address. (L.C.M.)

Judging from last night's congregational at Cochrane Congregational Church, it would seem that another week such as we have had, would be in order. If for no other purpose than that of engaging in a whole-souled congregational song-service, such meetings would be worth while.

The Rev. Dr. Fenwick, assisted by the Rev. T. B. Darby, conducted last night's meeting, and when the speaker of the evening, the Rev. R. J. Power of the Presbyterian Church, began his address, every heart was warm, and an atmosphere of confidence prevailed.

The topic was indeed a big one; but not too big for the good man who dealt with it for the speaker came to it with a full heart, and with strong convictions.

The week began with the individual topic of Self, and then broadened out to the Home, and still wider to the Church, and then to the State; and lastly to the World. From any stand point this great subject would be of paramount interest just now with world conditions so disturbed. The Rev. Speaker decided to treat the topic from a missionary standpoint; and in doing so he delivered a message that seemed to bring home to every heart the whole force and spirit of the week. His topic was "The World"; but the convictions during his address were felt by every individual. Each person either believed in missions or did not believe in them; but sometimes men appeared to play and to juggle with a question. Hence we find that while the sum of ten million dollars had been subscribed for this great work, the sum of three hundred and fifty million dollars had been spent in the same period, for things other than the ordinary expenses of living.

Continuing his address, the speaker laid down four cardinal points as follows, and upon these points he dwelt with strong emphasis; 1st, Do we believe that the world needs to be saved? 2nd, Do we believe that the Redeemer is able to save the world? 3rd, Are we willing to take responsibility in missions? and lastly, what are we going to do about it? The work has been entrusted to human agency; it might have been given to angels; or to just spirits; but not so. It has been given to us, ours is the privilege.

The world needs the message which the Gospel brings, and the message suits the whole world. "Into all the world" was the command of the Master. Neither education nor legislation of themselves would do. The need of the world is greater than these agencies apply. The need is spiritual. At the last day of the Feast the Redeemer stood in the Temple and cried out that He was the maker of life. This same great truth still holds good. Would that the Church could better hear this cry. Would that the water of life could be supplied to all the world. We cannot do full justice to Mr. Power's address from a world-wide missionary standpoint; to put it in a word would be to say—masterly.

Storm Raging Up Country.

TRAINS MAKING FAIR PROGRESS. A northeast gale, with blinding snow storm, has been raging from Bishop's Falls west to Port aux Basques since last night with unabated force. The roads were closed by the weather at noon here to-day. The rotary ploughs were again brought into effect and are fighting the snow drifts in advance of the east and west bound trains. The west bound express arrived at Crabbie's at 10.30 this morning, while the incoming express reached Howley at 11.30 a.m.

At The Prince's Rink.

A large attendance of skaters was present at the Prince's Rink last night. The ice was in excellent condition, and everyone thoroughly enjoyed the invigorating pastime, skating to the splendid airs of Bennett's Band. The arrangements at the Rink is all that can be desired by the many patrons, and one and all feel thankful for the appointment of the ice manager who is carrying out his duties to the entire satisfaction of all.

Spanish-Canadian Trade Relations.

In addition to the French treaty, which is already signed, and the Italian agreement, which is on the way, Hon. W. S. Fielding and Hon. Ernest Lapointe will probably be able to announce a new convention with Spain when they return to Canada. Negotiations have been in progress, and will be continued in London. It is understood that Spain proposed to offer Canada the same terms as she gave to and received from Great Britain in the new trade treaty concluded between the two countries a few months ago. These were unacceptable, but it is hoped that a new basis will be found. Meanwhile a modus vivendi has been arranged which will last for six months, and before it expires a more permanent arrangement may be arrived at.

The force of the storm was spent late this morning, and the weather is clearing in Nova Scotia.

Booper Strikes Pier.

BY R. FORSEY SINKS AT GRAND BANK.

Yesterday the Deputy Minister of Marine received a message from the collector at Grand Bank stating that the schooner Frank R. Forsey, entering Grand Bank during a heavy fog, struck the pier and was damaged that after drifting struck at the mouth of the harbor the Frank R. Forsey, Capt. Rose, from St. John's with a cargo of fish and had harbored at St. Lawrence. The Forsey is on the passage. The Forsey is a schooner of 194 tons gross and 155 net, built at Liverpool, N.S., in 1917 and owned by S. R. Forsey, Grand Bank. She was chartered to her arrival at St. Lawrence. Forsey rescued the crew of the schooner A. G. Eganor, 100 miles off the coast and took her to the above port.

The Sufferer Appeals.

FOR LIFE SAVINGS IN BLAZES. The fire on Signal Hill Road on Monday last which wiped out the life savings of Mr. Thos. English has left himself and family in a helpless state. Mr. English lost everything he possessed and recovered but lost from the ruins of his house the household effects and wearing apparel have gone up in smoke so that Mr. English looks with dread on the prospect of practically starting life over again. He has secured rooms at York street, next Dolger's Forge, but clothing and furniture are necessary to make the home. The job of finding these out of a wage of $10 a week that Mr. English is forced to depend on for assistance. Anything that will help to make up a home would be gladly accepted by him at the address given. Mr. English's record as a steady worker may be gleaned from the fact that for 28 years he was employed with the late J. B. Ayre and has been in his present position for seven years, and in his case it would not be encouraging a dream.

Passages To Brazil.

Record Runs of Olden and Modern Times.

(H. F. SHORTIS.)

For many years I have heard it discussed and argued by our seafaring men as to whom may be attributed the honor of having made the quickest passage to Brazil in our mercantile Marine. I have heard of many quick runs, but, unfortunately, I have not the records in my possession, and have only received them by word of mouth from the captains or crews who took part in the events. Some time ago I asked Capt. J. R. Randell, one of our most experienced and successful master mariners, to procure a list for me during one of his voyages to Pernambuco, because I knew that a man named Carroll had kept a record of Newfoundland vessels visiting that port from the earliest days, and that his successors in the business kept it up after his death, at least for some years. But I understand that the Carroll firm has gone out of business, and that it was impossible to get hold of the old records, as they were probably destroyed. However, Capt. Randell kindly searched the records of the British Consul, but he could not find any passage entered under 20 days from St. John's to Pernambuco. As a matter of fact the quickest passage he could find recorded was that of the "Lake Simcoe," Capt. John Tizzard, which sailed from St. John's on February 7th, 1906, and arrived at Pernambuco on February 27th, also to the hour, 21 days. The subjoined notes of vessels in the twenties of the past century and after do not give dates, as at that time no records of any sailings from the former port were noted in the consular books; nearly all of those ships, though, were charged with translating manifests and other charges. It seems by the list that John Gilchrist had considerable trouble with his crew, as one man was charged four shillings for recording his apology for the captain. He (Gilchrist) also had as will be observed, two muster rolls. Many of the dates of arrivals are a day later than the real day of arrival, as captains usually noted protest the second day in part—for instance, the Lake Simcoe is noted 1st March as arriving, when she really arrived on February 28th. Capt. Moore in the "Evelyn" also made the passage in 23 days.

AN INTERESTING LIST.

The following is the list taken from the records in the British Consul's office, Pernambuco, and should prove of some interest to our master mariners and seafaring men generally. Capt. James Jewer, sch. Isabella from Harbor Grace, sailed Feb. 3rd, arrived at Pernambuco March 12th, 1862. Samuel Prowse, bk. Olanda from St. John's, sailed Feb. 19th, arrived March 18th, 1864. George Bracombe, brig Amazon from St. John's, sailed Jan. 3rd, arrived Feb. 15th, 1865.

barque Fleetwing, making the passage in 19 days to Pernambuco. The Fleetwing was, I think, 245 tons register, of local build, and was put out of hand by the famous builder Jonas Newhook of New Harbor, Trinity Bay. She was indeed a splendid ship—beautifully made, fast sailer and as staunch and strong as wood, iron and copper could make her. The Fleetwing made another remarkably quick passage, under the command of Capt. Kearney in the sixties, which was the topic of conversation among mariners for several years in my young days, but, for the moment, I forget the particulars. Robert Newhook, brother of Jonas, built the barque "Queen," which was also a very smart vessel, and a great favorite of our genial friend, Magistrate Squarey, of Channel, who was certainly one of our best known, capable and experienced mariners in his early and middle life. But I do not think she could show her stern to the barque Rothsay, built by Kearney.

SOME LATER RECORDS.

The brigantine "Glenelov," Capt. Michael Power, owned by his father, in 1865 made the passage from Pernambuco to St. John's in 22 days. The late Hon. Capt. Philip Cleary made many quick passages in Balne Johnston's famous brig "Walter Baine." Capt. Moore in the "Evelyn" made the run down in 23 days and in the sixties the brig Margaret Ridley in 21 days. I may here mention, in particular, that the brigantine "Florence," Capt. Currie, owned by Balne Johnston & Co., made the run from St. John's to Waterford in 8 days, and the crew were paid off on the ninth day. The late Mr. T. C. Job (Job Bros. & Co.) wife, two little sons and servant were on board at the time, and one of our youngsters at that time is our genial friend, W. C. Job, of the old firm, at present in England. It was a splendid passage, and the royal yard was not lowered during the voyage. I may say that many of our famous captains in the sixties, seventies, eighties and nineties of the past century made average runs of from 24 to 36 days, more particularly those of Balne Johnston's, Stewart's, Tessier's and Job's employes. I could name scores of those vessels and their captains, and the number of days on the voyages, but space does not permit. I shall conclude this brief article with special reference to one of our most successful and experienced mariners, Capt. Charles Nicholls, who is as bluff and hearty to-day, as he was in the days when he walked the quarter-deck of his splendid brigantine Petunia, and brought his vessel into port, after a voyage from Brazil, a picture of beauty, always newly painted, rigging tarred down, spars and yards varnished and painted, deck holly-stoned and scrubbed, with the sun's rays scintillating from the highly polished brasswork; in a word, in such a condition as attracted scores of landmen and seafaring men to visit her to view the ship-ship manner in which the veteran sailor brought his ship into St. John's.

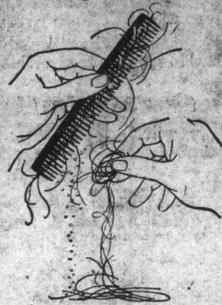

AYERAGED THREE VOYAGES A YEAR.

Capt. Nicholls made 74 voyages to various ports in Brazil, such as Pernambuco, Bahia, Macao, Pavia, etc., in twenty-five years—the average run to these ports, during that period, being 34 days. In 1884 Capt. Nicholls made four voyages to Pernambuco and Bahia—two trips to each port. On one return trip he called at Barbados, discharged ballast and loaded with molasses for St. John's, and on another he called at Sydney, discharged ballast and loaded with coal for this port, and he performed these four voyages in some few days less than twelve months—a record hard to be beaten. In 1895 Capt. Nicholls made the run to Pernambuco in 24 days. On another voyage, the late Capt. George Bursell in Tessier's brigantine "Kalmia," sailed from Bahia street, and Capt. Nicholls in the "Petunia" to Pernambuco for orders. After Capt. Nicholls' arrival he was ordered to Bahia, and arrived there one day after the "Kalmia." Both ships arrived in ballast, arriving in Turk's Island within one hour of each other. They sailed from Turk's Island for St. John's, and both ships arrived within three hours of each other—the Kalmia coming in first; but it must be remembered that the Kalmia left Turk's Island one day in advance of the Petunia—so Capt. Nicholls won the race. The most singular part of the eventual voyage was that neither the Kalmia nor the Petunia sighted each other during the passage, and it will be admitted that seldom have two vessels been so evenly matched during so long a voyage. And now the veteran Captain Nicholls is spending the evening of his days in well-earned retirement, but as he views one of our mercantile marine ships enter the Narrows, the keen eye brightens up, and there is a thought of old times as the retentive mind of the veteran goes back to the days when he stood on the quarter-decks of the Evelyn, Merry Lane and Petunia, and gave orders to his hardy and able crew to crowd every inch of canvas on them, and never allow it to be said that any vessel took the wind out of his sails without a supreme effort to prevent it. And long may his big jib draw.

A SIN TO LET HAIR FALL OUT

35c "Danderine" Saves Your Hair—Ends Dandruff! Delightful Tonic

Hurry! It's your duty! Each day you see a little more hair falling out and you are making no effort to avoid baldness. What a pity. Falling hair means your hair is weak, sick—possibly dandruff is strangling it, or the hair root pores in the scalp are not firm and tight, thus wasting the hair-growing oils. Danderine almost instantly stops falling hair of men or women and cleans every particle of dandruff away, then the hair takes on new life, vigor and strength to grow strong, thick, and long. Danderine is delightful—hot, sticky or greasy. Go to any drugstore now and get a bottle. Use it. Have healthy, heavy, beautiful hair and lots of it.

Teal Flew From Toronto to Trinidad.

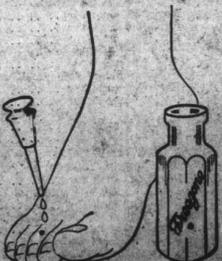

Many animals in the course of the year, or in the course of their lives, undertake regular migrations. The teal, born in the sea, returns to the sea to breed and die; other fish visit the sea yearly; seals, walrus, bions, bats, all have their seasonal journeys; and even insects and toads have their periodical fittings. But the most wonderful migrations are by birds, who in autumn fly to temperate to tropical zones, and in spring return to temperate zones. Their migration may be due to the food question, and year by year they may have learned to fly rather aloft; but it is strange that they always migrate from the topics to the north temperate, never to the south temperate zone; and there are many other things about their migration very difficult to explain. For some years investigations have been made at Washington to determine how far birds travel in their long migrations. More than 200 birds have been caught and labelled, and sent off on their travels from a Lake near Toronto, in Canada, and thus the distance of their migration has been measured. So far the record for speed and distance is held by the duck known as a blue-winged teal. It was labelled and set free on September 24, 1920, and it was killed nine weeks later in a swamp on the Island of Trinidad. The distance as the bird flies between Toronto and Trinidad is 3,000 miles. So that the bird must have flown about 50 miles a day for nine weeks.

New Varieties of Apples.

Two new apples, the Cortland and Toga, the former a cross between the Ben Davis and McIntosh, and the latter from the Northern Spy and Sutton, have been developed by horticulturists at the New York State agricultural experiment station at Geneva. The Cortland is said to be most promising for New York. New England and the commercial apple regions of Canada. They are larger and brighter hued than the McIntosh, have the same flavor, but keep longer. The Toga is described as a "late-keeping" yellow apple with a sprightly flavor.

The Quebec Basilica.

A visible landmark in the history of Canada and one of the ornaments of the country's Ancient Capital has been lost, through the destruction by fire of the Basilica, the cathedral church of the Roman Catholic Archdiocese of Quebec. From many points of view the fire, which destroyed it on the night of December 21 and 22 inflicted no less than a calamity upon the Archdiocese; but the City of Quebec shares in the loss, for it is deprived of an edifice that was a matter of pride to all its citizens, and the country loses a collection of sagged art that can never be replaced. The Basilica occupied a central position among sites that are historical. Across the public square on which the Basilica stood was the site of the Jesuits' College, erected in 1647, and not far distant was the site of Notre Dame de la Recouvrance, the first parish church in Quebec, erected by Samuel de Champlain, the founder of the city, in 1633, two years before his death.

The first service in the Basilica was held on Christmas Day, 1650, but it was not until 1666 that the edifice was consecrated by Mar. De Laval, the first Roman Catholic Bishop of Canada. He died in 1708, and his remains were deposited in the crypt of the Basilica, but in 1875 they were transferred to the Chapel of the Seminary. During the siege of Quebec in the summer of 1759, stray shots from Wolfe's artillery inflicted considerable damage upon the Basilica, but repairs were made after peace was restored; and since then other restoration work has been carried out, and some alterations and additions made.

The Basilica contained a large collection of paintings, the greater number the work of noted European masters, chiefly French, Dutch and Italian. This collection of art was deservedly famous, and was one of the sights of Quebec. Several of the stained glass windows were among the finest in this continent.

In the crypt of the Basilica reposed the remains of fully nine hundred persons, among whom were men who had to do with the making of Canada. Here was the last resting place of four Governors of New France, as Canada was once called, and beside them slept high ecclesiastical dignitaries, military officers and judges.

Fables of Monster Serpents.

From time immemorial the sea serpent has figured in story and legend. Pliny the Roman naturalist (23-79 A.D.) tells of enormous water and land serpents, some so large that whole armies were sent against them. The hardy Norse fishermen gave thrilling stories of sea monsters. Olaus Magnus, a Swedish bishop, wrote of "a very large serpent of length upward of 200 feet and 20 feet in diameter, with a row of hairs two feet in length hanging from the neck, sharp scales of dark color, and brilliant, flaming eyes. It attacks boats and snatches away the men by raising itself high out of the water, and devours them." Hans Egede, a Norwegian missionary to Greenland, tells of encountering, on July 6, 1784, "a very terrible sea animal, which raised itself so high above the water that its head reached above our mainmast. It had a long, sharp snout, and blew like a whale." The orphis, with a body 25 to 30 feet long, and almost as thick as a rib, is believed by some naturalists to be the creature which gave rise to many remarkable fables, told from ancient days until now, of "sea serpents." The silvery body, crossed with dusky stripes, the grotesque head and face, with enlarged fins tipped with red, waving above like a horse's mane, might well give foundation, it is said, to almost any story. Still no one can definitely say that the sea serpent does not exist.

An importer predicts a vogue for black satin and felt hats for spring. Black suede will also have prominence.

Whiskey, Politics and Religion.

How They Are Used and Abused.

By O. E. WARE.
ARTICLE I.

THE WAY OF THE TRANS- GRESSOR.

...bold John Barleycorn, and dangers thou can't make us scorn: Tippeny we fear no evil, and Equivocal we face the devil!"

It is true, as stated, that the Controller's Department handled directly a million dollars' worth of whiskey and other intoxicating liquors last year? I am not prepared to answer this question either in the affirmative or negative; but a well-informed member of the legal profession alleged in my hearing at the Court House a day or two since, that he had reason to believe "the seven persons named would not exceed the limit of the strong drink consumed in 1922." Anyway, in spite of the poorness of the times, there is a brisk trade in the various kinds of alcohol done on Duckworth Street at the time—a trade that is winked at otherwise encouraged by certain of the powers that be. Detective work does not come within the scope of my duties, and I have no desire to act the part of a "Pussyfoot" but I know of at least one other place within the city where men go in broad daylight and get all the booze they want, not blaming anybody in particular for this condition of things; I am saying that such is the case and the Prohibition Act "MIGHT" be removed from the Statute Book altogether for what good it is doing.

normalcy, adopt a policy similar to that which obtained here previous to 1908 when governments were patriotic and economical, and the people contented and happy, when confidence existed between the classes and the masses and all worked together in harmony for the common good. As it is to-day, an air of mystery surrounds the lack of sustained policy. There is no announced programme, no definition of mission that may be generally understood and passed on from one executive to another. One political appointee pulls down the political accomplishment of his predecessor, and able administrators are removed from office just as they are learning their jobs. The inherent trouble seems to be the amateur way public affairs are administered.

BOOTLEGGERS AND SMUGGLERS AT ST. PIERRE.

Of course, there's an incredible amount of smuggling done on our West Coast. That goes without saying. But how is it possible to stop this illicit traffic under existing circumstances? It cannot be done while bootleggers and smugglers meet at St. Pierre, tell of their profits and laugh at the Newfoundland Government.

"The Literary Digest," says the liquor traffic that is now second only to the Bahamas. St. Pierre, as we all know, is the chief shipping point from the Miqelonis, and this town has grown in the past three years from a small fishing harbor to a commercial centre. There is no concealment of rum traffic there, for St. Pierre is under the flag of France, and French merchants have yet the legal right to buy liquor of whom they choose and sell it to whom they can in return for coin of the Republic, which has not depreciated.

DRY GOODS MERCHANTS IN THE LIQUOR BUSINESS.

It is said that even the dry goods merchants of St. Pierre carry stocks of liquor. There is but little difference in the methods of smugglers who use St. Pierre, and those of Nassau in the Bahamas, except that the rum that comes down from the North is usually hid away in fishing

Real Barn Dances.

Dwellers in Western Canada and the States do not have such a dull time in winter as is often supposed. Perhaps the most popular society activity is a dance, either in a hall in the village or in a private house.

Every town and village has its "hall," a room above some store, and some of the inhabitants make a point of arranging these dances. Musicians from some larger town are engaged, and leaflets announcing the dance are circulated in the district as widely as possible.

The sale of the tickets cover the expenses, one ticket usually admitted a lady and a gentleman. Refreshments may be provided by a local caterer, or the ladies may bring supper-baskets with them, these sometimes being put up for auction, the gentleman who buys one sharing it with the lady, who brings it.

As many of the revellers are ignorant of the figures of the square dances the master of ceremonies is a most important individual, who calls to those present to take partners for the ensuing dance and directs each figure.

POLITICS AND POLITICAL RUMORS.

The political atmosphere, I find, is again surcharged with rumors about the formation of a new political party and a general election the coming spring, should the "Humber Proposition" materialize in the meanwhile. It is very desirable that the next appeal to the country should be made in such a way as to insure the return of the very best man available as members of the House of Assembly—men who their duties know, but know their rights, and, knowing, dare maintain! Although we all appreciate the wisdom of keeping religion as widely apart from politics as possible, yet we are confronted with the fact that, during the last general election religion was notoriously and shamefully made use of to influence the electorate in certain districts. Let us hope, however, that no such experience will be ours in the appeal to the country in November next. What, in the name of common sense can it matter if a man is an Episcopalian, a Roman Catholic, a Methodist, a Presbyterian, a Congregationalist, or what not, when it comes to representing a constituency or to holding an office if the man himself is all right? No question as to a citizen's church affiliations should ever arise in the minds of voters; in fact, it cannot arise in the minds of those who think broadly and fairly, and who put good citizenship above creed and dogma—which, too often, lead to narrowness and bigotry; thus shriveling the soul. To recognize any such basis for political preference is to strike at the very foundations of government; in fact, to set up church government—the very thing that those most prone to religious intolerance say they do not want.

HOW FACTIONS FIGHT AMONG THEMSELVES.

Somebody at the club the other evening asked why it was that the Chinese, an extremely intelligent race, had so far failed to establish order and good government in their new Republic. A person with some experience of the country replied: "Because the people do not realize that the government of China has anything to do with them. They are preoccupied with their own personal affairs, and with the local parish pump, but they do not think about the government of China at all. That, they think, is somebody else's business. And so the high officials go about as they please, and party factions fight among themselves and intrigue with partisans and cronies about graft, same as they do in some Christian countries I could name." Hence it is that China remains in a disorderly and dissatisfied condition, and will so remain until the people wake up and see that it is their business to put things right. What is true of the Chinese people is equally true of us to-day, in a certain sense. We must, if we hope to get back to Effective Net Preservative.

American Investigation Discloses Copper Oleate Treatment Produces Best Results in Extending Life of Net.

In the September issue of the "Canadian Fisherman" was set forth a review of experiments conducted in many parts of the world over a wide range of years in order to locate the best means of keeping fishing nets from rotting and getting the maximum of service from twine. Authorities in Belgium seemed convinced that the most effective method involved treatment with copper sulphate, one favoring direct treatment and another after tanning.

H. F. Taylor, chief technologist of the Bureau of Fisheries, Washington, and Arthur W. Wells, his assistant, have been conducting experiments along the same line for some time and have arrived at the conclusion that treatment with copper is the most effective means of extending the life of nets and strongly recommend copper oleate.

Summarizing their experiments, etc., they state:

"The principal results of practical interest are that those preservatives containing copper are superior to those which do not contain it. They are good preservatives for a period up to two months, but they fall off in value after that time, and besides they greatly increase stiffness and weight of the lines and are not suitable for gill nets. They do not protect against marine growths, barnacles, sea moss, etc. Copper paint, while preserving tensile strength well, is objectionable in producing great stiffness and increase in weight, and greatly reduces the ability of the lines to resist mechanical wear.

"As an all round preservative in salt water, copper oleate undoubtedly leads, at least as far as laboratory experiments go. It produces no objectionable increase in weight or stiffness, resists mechanical wear, holds tensile strength well, and no marine growths fouled the lines preserved by it. It is suitable for any kind of line or net—gill nets, pound nets, traps, etc. The copper oleate was applied very sparingly in the lines tested—there was only about 1-15 as much copper as in the lines treated with copper paint. Of course the quantity can be made suitable for any purpose.

What it is.

"Copper oleate is a green, waxy or stiff pasty substance soluble in gasoline, kerosene or benzol. It is dissolved, preferably in gasoline, in which solution the nets are to be dipped and dried. Drying takes about 30 minutes to an hour. If kerosene is used 24 hours will be required to dry. One pound of copper oleate should be dissolved in a gallon of solvent for gill nets, linen or cotton; for heavy gear that is to remain in water for long periods, such as pound nets, traps, etc., two pounds of copper oleate should be used to each gallon of solvent.

"Copper oleate is not patented nor trade-marked, and is free for anybody to manufacture or use. Any chemist will know what is meant by the name. It will be more expensive than tar, but probably considerably less so than copper paint, and it appears certain that the saving in the nets will much more than pay for its kind of tar, is not messy, and all of it can be used without waste.

"It is now being made in the Fishery Products Laboratory in Washington, D.C., for trials in commercial application to practical use.

"In addition to the tests reported, new series are in progress at Woods Hole, Mass., and in fresh water at

"Mount Pearl Turnip Greens."

Since the canning of Food Products has been commercialized, it is a daily occurrence to eat fruits and vegetables grown 10,000 miles away from Newfoundland; now for the first time one of our local Newfoundland vegetables has been canned, and is offered for sale.

During the past summer about 10,000 lbs. of Turnip Greens were packed in the factory of the UNITED CAN MANUFACTURING CO., LTD., under expert workmen and thoroughly sanitary conditions. These Turnip Greens were purchased mostly from farmers in the Mount Pearl district and are now on the market under the name of "Mount Pearl Turnip Greens." It took 4 1/2 lbs. of fresh turnip greens to fill each can, and as the retail price is 35c., they come really cheaper than early spring greens, in addition to which they are already thoroughly cleaned and only have to be heated to be ready for the table.

Those who have already tried some speak very highly of them, and a brisk sale is expected by the following grocers who have them for sale:

German Bid For Air Mastery.

STRAINING EVERY NERVE—NEW SWISS-BUILT PLANE.

The contention of experts that treaty limitations impose and German post-war air progress have been more effective on paper than in reality is supported by the fact that a new German-designed Dornier fighting plane, built under licence in a Swiss factory at Romanshorn, in its flying trials at the Dübendorf aerodrome, near Zurich, flew at the rate of 162 miles an hour and showed itself capable of a height of 20,500 feet. It has a motor of 340-horsepower.

The machine is a cantilever monoplane, entirely metal-built. The thick-section single wing has steel spars and is covered with sheets of a feather-weight metal alloy. The wing is raised above the hull, giving the pilot, who operates two machine guns, a clear view.

Emphatic views are voiced by an air technician who—desiring for good reasons to remain anonymous—has just returned from the second of two visits to Germany, during which he was in a position to make detailed observations.

He says: "You cannot control brains. There is in progress to-day organized, unselfish team-work by the finest brains in Germany to produce bigger, swifter, higher-flying, and generally more powerful aircraft.

"What we must never lose sight of is that all the air resources of Germany—mental, scientific and mechanical—are harnessed to the task of improving machines that fly. And it is their secret investigations, their assiduous laboratory work which make them so formidable.—Daily Mail.

"My Heart Would Palpitate, I Had Weak Spells"

Mrs. L. Whiting, 202 King St. West, Brockville, Ont., writes—

"I took very sick with my nerves and stomach, and seemed to be all run down. At times my heart would flutter and palpitate so and I would take such weak spells in the pit of my stomach that I sometimes thought I would never get better. I had almost given up hope when a friend advised the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. I did not stop until I had taken twenty-five boxes. It has done wonders for me and I want to recommend it to everyone."

TRINITY.

A STORY OF TRINITY A HUNDRED AND FIFTY YEARS AGO.

About the year 1750 there lived in the little seaport town of Bideford-in-Devon, four brothers, who had inherited more or less of their fathers' love for marine adventure. Their family name was Porsh. One after another, as soon as they were old enough to secure a position of any kind on a vessel going to sea, they were off, not caring very much where they went, so long as they were on the sea, and likely to visit foreign ports. Their father, in addition to the money he had managed to save during his years in charge of foreign going vessels, had accumulated a variety of curious things from India, China, and other Eastern countries; so that when he retired from the sea, the old family house that had been left to him by his father, became known as the "Museum," owing to the number of curiosities he had brought on shore with him year after year.

The father's favorite son was the youngest, who, when he was baptized was given the name of George (Godlove—George being his father's Christian name, and Godlove his mother's maiden name. His father was deeply anxious that George should not follow the sea, as after several years two of his sailor brothers had found a watery grave and the other had been killed in a fight with pirates in the China Seas. George was more like his mother than his brothers were, and not having the same longing for the sea as they had, he was easily influenced by his father to spend his boyhood days at school, and then to be apprenticed to the village apothecary for the next five years. George made the best use he could of those years. He was fond of reading, and so by the time he had become his own master, he was in possession of much valuable information about many things, one of which was, the nature and use of drugs, and the preparation of medicine for ordinary diseases.

In the meantime his father and his mother had died, and as the only son, George became the owner of the family house, several hundred pounds in money, and all his father's accumulation of valuable curios. I have mentioned the fact that George was more like his mother than he was like his father. As however, the years passed and he grew into manhood, there developed in him an occasional longing for the sea. He had not married, so he was free to do what he pleased in this respect, without embarrassing anyone. A casual visit to his uncle who lived in Poole, and the lure of the salt water, found him a frequent visitor to the wharves, which were always busy places. His latent interest in the sea was awakened by the continuous coming and going of vessels between Poole and Newfoundland, and before the time of his visit to his uncle had expired, he had made up his mind to see the far-away place that everybody in Poole seemed to know something about—Newfoundland across the sea. He went back of it. Through the kindness of Mr. Lester, a house was quickly got ready and placed at Dr. Porsh's disposal. His baggage and freight were sent to the house, together with a woman to keep house for him, and a man from the "Room" to do odds and ends of requirements for the both of them. Within a few days every room in the house was in order, and the little room in which the doctor arranged his medicines and his curios was an attraction for everybody. The doctor's "handyman" was a youngster from Devonshire by the name of Richard Cove. He was not by any means an intelligent lad; but he soon developed a sense of his importance in the house, and whenever he got the opportunity—unknown to the doctor—he took his chums into the surgery and showed them the valuable and wonderful curios. Some of them who saw them were satisfied with having seen them. There were others however, who, realizing the great value of some of them, were filled with a desire to possess them. Amongst those were some foreign sailors who were on a vessel that was loading for Hamburg, and whom the doctor would never have permitted to enter his home, had he known it. In due time the vessel for Hamburg was got ready for sea, and left for her destination. About the same time the doctor's man Dick was missing. This however, was not an uncommon occurrence for Dick had a permanent tendency to sample a neighbour's Jamaica Rum, wherever he found it; and then, if the stock was plentiful, he became dead to the world for a few days in the louse of one of his chums, and nobody considered him of sufficient importance to search for him. The doctor, however, believed he had stowed away on the vessel for Hamburg. After nearly a week of absence from duty on the part of Dick, Mr. Jacob Taverner from "around the point" whilst cutting loggers in God's Cove Woods, found the body of a man, which he knew at once was that of the doctor's servant, Dick Cove. He lost no time in reporting this to the doctor, who, taking some men with him went with Mr. Taverner to the spot where he had found the body. Upon examination he found that the man had been dead for several days, and that his death had been caused by strangulation at the hands of others. Not far from the body the doctor was surprised to find one of his curios, that he had supposed was still in his surgery. The body was taken out to town and placed in a room in the Joiner's loft, that had been set apart as a temporary hospital, and a morgue for sick and dead sailors. It did not take the doctor long to find, that not only did the curio that he had found by the body belong to his collection, but that several of his most valuable pieces were not there at all.

Many and various were the opinions expressed to account for all this; but the following entry in the Burial Register of St. Paul's, Trinity, embodies the finding of the jury, and explains the tragedy:—"Nov. 19th 1768—Interred Richard Cove, 'Servant to Doctor George Godlove Porsh. He 'was deputed to elope from his master with several valuable articles by some villains, and afterwards found strangled by ye noose of a garter.' The 'villians,' no doubt, were some of the crew of the vessel that was then half-way to Hamburg, where they probably got a good price for the curio (quite unconcernedly) secured at the cost of a human life. Dr. Porsh remained in Trinity for several years, and was known and respected as a useful citizen, that Trinity in those days could ill afford to lose. In the meantime, two or three other 'doctors' had come and settled down in Trinity; and when the ten year lease of his property in Bideford had expired, Doctor Porsh went back to England, married and settled down for the remainder of his days in the old home.

A GENEROUS PROPOSAL, AND A HEADLESS REJECTION. When I first went to Trinity in the brave old days of yore, 'Twas there I took a stroll All around Green Island shore, 'Twas there I met my own true love The girl that I adore, A more handsome little fair maid I never saw before.

It was a new experience for him to be addressed as doctor; and though he was too much a gentleman ever to have claimed the honorable title for himself, yet he quickly realized that a refusal on his part to be known as such would be misunderstood. So he responded to the address, and so far as it was possible for him to do it—he determined to make himself worthy

I have a staunch a bully boat As ever rode the ground She can beat anything with sails From the Horse Chops, to the South. Besides, I have a big Poole gun About five feet or more, And 'tis for your sake I'll shoulder her. All round Green Island shore. I have a feather bed, a watch, Of a new house I've a frame I'll take you home to Robinhood If you will share my name. If Bill Hooker seeks to win your heart, I'll leave him in his gore And sail far away from Trinity And the dear Green Island shore. (To which the maiden replies) To wed you now, dear Johnny Would be a poor look out. You have two very small legs Which scarce carry you about Besides you're not able to stand the cold Of a cold winter's day. I'd rather wed a wheel, So Johnny, go away.

Miss Sharpe of Blaketown, registered at the Garland last week, and went on to Ireland's Eye, where she will take charge of the Church of England school there. She is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sharpe who lived at Trinity East, where Mr. Sharpe taught school some twenty years ago. We were glad to meet her, and we wish her the happiest of New Year's at Ireland's Eye.

"The tumult and the shouting dies" The Yule-tide visitors declare. The Hon. Alex. Mews, Mrs. Mews and children; Misses Marie Erikson, Phyllis Erikson, Mollie White, and Fowlow went back to their respective duties at St. John's last week. They report having had a most enjoyable visit to Trinity and home; and we hope that the keynote of the holy, happy Christmas, will be the dominant one in all their life music of the New Year.

The children of the day school, under the training of the teachers, Mr. Simms and Miss Goodwin, and the music-and-drill instructor, Mrs. Foster, gave a concert in the Parish Hall (3rd inst.) It was well attended by the parents of the children, and others who are always interested in the children. Several of the little children had not taken part in anything of the kind before, and yet they acquitted themselves splendidly. The Chairman, F. Somerton, Esq., took advantage of the opportunity to place the blame for irregular attendance at school upon the right persons, viz. the parents; and he expressed the wish that some day in the near future the Government would place a law upon the Statute Book compelling every child to attend school so many days a year. So note it be. The C.H.E. certificates and diplomas won by the children at the last examinations were handed to the winners. One of those was Master Willie Gent, whose fine showing at of march was, first, to the home of Brother Samuel Hussey, who is still confined to his home by illness. There the Band discoursed appropriate music, which was followed by three cheers by the brethren. Then the march was continued around the harbour, till they came opposite the home of Brother E. Stranger, who is also confined to the house by illness. He too, as he appeared at the window in regalia, was generously serenaded, and assured of the best wishes of the brethren by their lusty cheers. This was repeated at the home of Brother Joseph Morris, who from age and infirmity was unable to take part in the parade. The members then partook of a generously supplied dinner of fish and brewis in their Lodge Room. During those refreshments speeches were made, and selections by the Band aided the appetite, and helped the digestion. On Monday evening a dance was held by the members and their lady friends, in the Parish Hall. The whole proceedings constituted the
