The copy filmed here has been reproduced thanks to the generosity of:

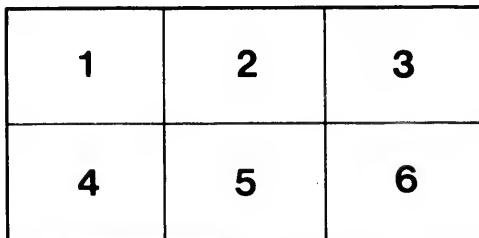

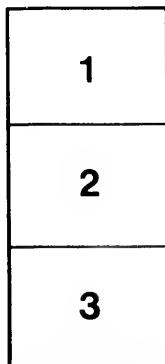

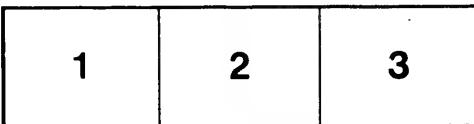

The Nova Scotia Legislative Library

The images appearing here are the best quality possible considering the condition and legibility of the original copy and in keeping with the filming contract specifications.

Original copies in printed paper covers are filmed beginning with the front cover and ending on the last page with a printed or illustrated impression, or the back cover when appropriate. All other original copies are filmed beginning on the first page with a printed or illustrated impression, and ending on the last page with a printed or illustrated impression.

The last recorded frame on each microfiche shall contain the symbol → (meaning "CONTINUED"), or the symbol ▽ (meaning "END"), whichever applies.

Maps, plates, charts, etc., may be filmed at different reduction ratios. Those too large to be entirely included in one exposure are filmed beginning in the upper left hand corner, left to right and top to bottom, as many frames as required. The following diagrams illustrate the method:

L'exemplaire filmé fut reproduit grâce à la générosité de:

The Nova Scotia Legislative Library

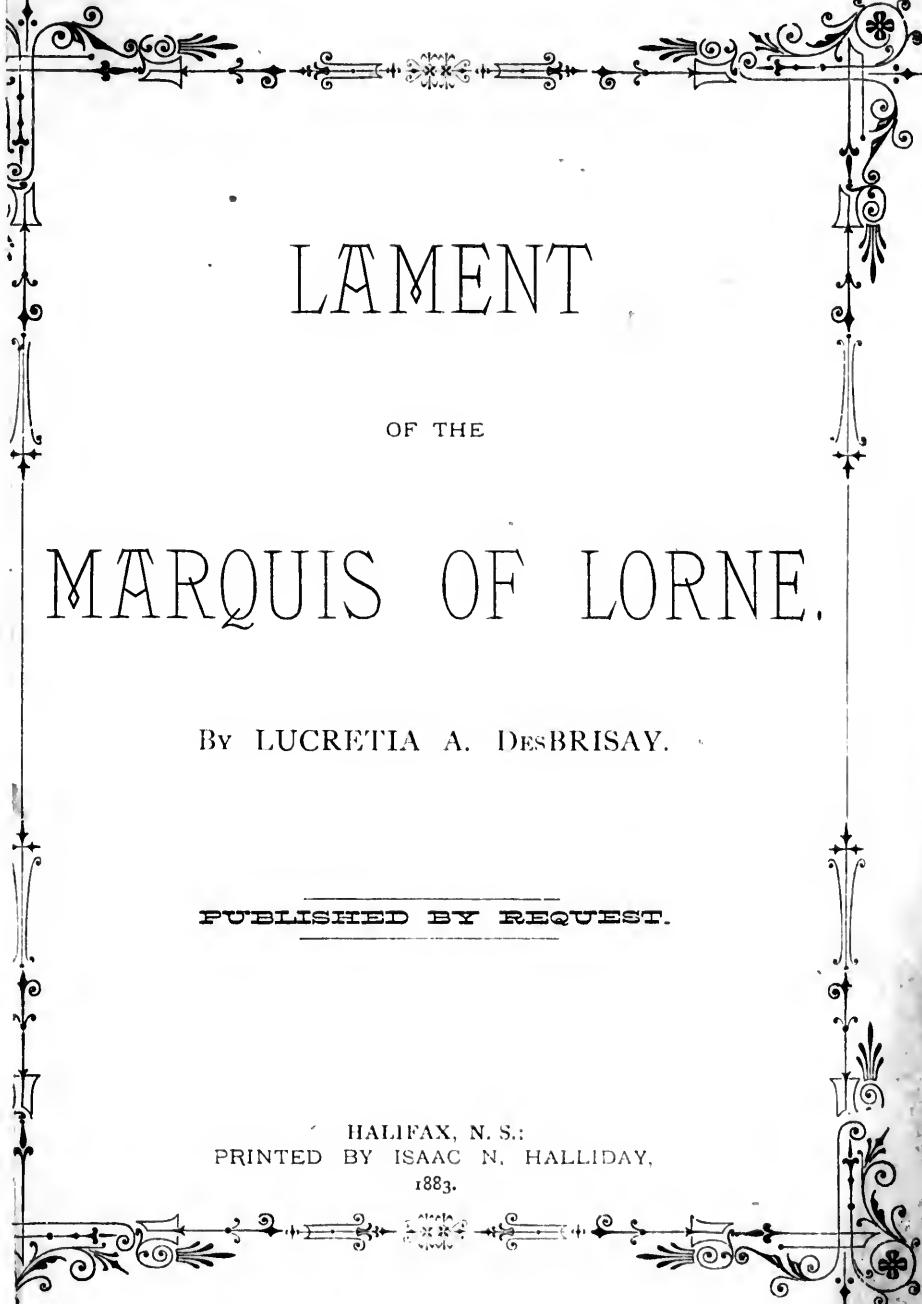

Les images suivantes ont été reproduites avec le plus grand soin, compte tenu de la condition et de la netteté de l'exemplaire filmé, et en conformité avec les conditions du contrat de filmage.

Les exemplaires originaux dont la couverture en papier est imprimée sont filmés en commençant par le premier plat et en terminant soit par la dernière page qui comporte une empreinte d'impression ou d'illustration, soit par le second plat, selon le cas. Tous les autres exemplaires originaux sont filmés en commençant par la première page qui comporte une empreinte d'impression ou d'illustration et en terminant par la dernière page qui comporte une telle empreinte.

Un des symboles suivants apparaîtra sur la dernière image de chaque microfiche, selon le cas: le symbole → signifie "A SUIVRE", le symbole ▽ signifie "FIN".

Les cartes, planches, tableaux, etc., peuvent être filmés à des taux de réduction différents. Lorsque le document est trop grand pour être reproduit en un seul cliché, il est filmé à partir de l'angle supérieur gauche, de gauche à droite, et de haut en bas, en prenant le nombre d'images nécessaire. Les diagrammes suivants illustrent la méthode.

"The perception of the comic is a tie of sympathy with other men, a pledge of sanity, and a protection from those perverse tendencies and gloomy insanities in which the intellects sometimes lose themselves."

EMERSON.

LAMENT OF THE Marquis of Lorne.

I.

Once I voyaged o'er the ocean, the great Atlantic Ocean,
To a good Canadian city on the Nova Scotian shore;
Like the surging of that ocean, there was a great commotion,
As the people came to greet me and the lady I adore,
That rare and Royal Princess whom I always will adore
Every day, yet more and more.

II.

And then our "Royal party," 'mid cheers loud, prolonged and hearty,
Rode through the decked-out city as we never did before,
'Mid the floating of the banners, and the waving of bandannas,
Till we came with the procession to the Province Building door,
Into which the multitude in a steady stream did pour,
One by one, yet more and more.

III.

In that Hall of Legislation, where we came with an ovation,
Where the people like a living tide continued still to pour;
By oaths and letters patent--of the great Canadian nation--
I stood, a Governor-General!—on the Province Building floor,
With the magnates all around me and before.
Was no room for any more.

IV.

Then the chim^{ing}eys of each steeple, and the cheering of the people,
Filled me with a keener pleasure than I ever felt before; [me,
With my Princess there to cheer me, and her brother Duke was near
And the grand old solid citadel thundered more and more,
Volley after volley, with brazen clang and roar,
Half a dozen times and more.

V.

Then we stepped into the carriage, as upon our happy marriage,
Passed thro' the handsome arches, read their welcome words all o'er,
In the pomp of our new station, we came by invitation,
To the Lieutenant-Governor's hospitable door.
Met again the little lady who the "welcome bouquet" bore,
And many hundreds more.

VI.

All Halifax addressed me — their kindness quite oppressed me
From the City's Corporation, on the Province Building floor,
Creeds, Societies, and Factions, one would think that by their actions
They would never have a chance to address me any more.
E'en the wild and wandering Miemac, master here in days of yore,
Came my Princess to adore.

VII.

But nobody had feared, as it afterwards appeared,
Of these long and loyal greetings, shewing fine scholastic lore;
That they gave me just as many as the arches that they reared
In this fair and famous city, (may it be so evermore!)
Baptists, Methodists and Catholics my ire and patience spared,
And my gratitude they shared.

VIII.

Then came the day of parting, and with tears of sadness starting
From the eyes of my sweet Princess, we went onward to explore,
All the new scenes opening o'er us, with a cheering, ringing chorus.
From our dear and loyal people, and the deafening cannon's roar;
And away we flew like lightning 'round the lovely Bedford shore,
With "farewell" and "au revoir."

IX

At Truro they addressed us, at Amherst and at Moncton,
From Newcastle to Rimouski, from Richmond on to Gore;
The arch bowed flat in Amherst, to do us greater homage
Than any town or city had shown us heretofore;
Then we came to Montreal, as was all arranged before,
And our journey, thus far, o'er.

X.

Then addresses came on thickly, chasing each other quickly,
From Societies and Churches, Convents, Colleges, galore;
And from surrounding cities; oh, what a thousand pities!
There seems to be enough here, a plenteous stock and store;
I hope I'll keep my senses, I shall lose them, I am sure,
As I never did before.

XI.

When the moonday sun is shining, and the weary day declining,
They bring on their addresses, all around me, by the score,
In the bright and glowing morn—in the dripping rain, for "Lorne,"
Till he almost wishes in this world he never had been born,
Or sighs for the merry, happy, careless days of yore,
On old Caledonia's shore.

XII.

I perceive with real pain, that they have "Lorne" upon the brain,
When they bring on their addresses, as they never did before;
But what can you expect when people are insane! . . .
I freely do forgive them, though greatly I deplore
Their very sad condition from my heart's deep inmost core,
And hope 'twill soon be o'er.

XIII.

What! another one is coming! Like bees around me humming,
Oh! why can they not spare me?—oh dear! what shall I do?—
From a Ladies' Association of this great Canadian nation;
Thank all the "Stars," and "Garters," my Princess, 'tis for you!
And I know that you can give them the response that is their due,
"Twill be nice and clever too.

XIV.

Went to great St. Andrew's ball, in the town of Montreal;
Our stay must not be lengthened at the "Windsor" any more;
And now, ho! for Ottawa! let the multitude harrah,
We shall find our happy home in the far famed Rideau Hall;
Our journey from old England, we find is nearly o'er,
And we need rest, I am sure.

XV.

Now I really do believe that these people could not live,
Did I not keep up the programme since November twenty-four.
Unless an unusual number of addresses I receive,
I know that there will be a great outcry and uproar :
But,—here an inundation is beginning now to pour—
I shall faint !—shut that door !

XVI.

Oh, how this way distresses, of bestowing their caresses,
I cannot help from voting all a nuisance and a bore ;
My very name a mark is, (Marquis) a target for addresses,
Addresses on addresses, by the dozen and the score ;
Before I came to Ottawa, I fifty had and more ;—
Will it be so evermore ?

XVII.

I have them all before me, English, French, both plain and ornées,
In poetry and prose, and I'll try to count them o'er ;
I'll stack up my addresses, in my Secretary's presses,
And I fear they will extend from the ceiling to the floor ;
Guess how many I have now ? Exactly five and four score ;
Only these, and nothing more.

XVIII.

Some day I'll cross the ocean, the great Atlantic Ocean,
To see my Queen and Empress, and the great McCallum More ;
Resigning my commission, stepping from my high position ;
If they say, "Go to Canada, as once you went before,
Keep your administration, you'll be received with acclamation,"
I will answer, "N E V E R M O R E !!!"
