

CON MARKS LAST FLING FOR YEAR

By MARG MacLELLAND

The Conversazione, or "Con" as it has come to be known, is the last big dance of the college year, and marks the official end of student activities before final exams. The Con and the Fall Formal are the only two formals open to all students on the campus.

Sponsored by the SRC, the Con has changed considerably from its original form. It has evolved from an evening of essays, recitations and revues in the great hall of the Arts Building to a formal dance in the Lady Beaverbrook Gymnasium. Its function has remained the same, that of marking the end of student activities each year.

Exotic Atmosphere

This year's Con promises an evening in an exotic Oriental atmosphere. A jewelled Buddha and a ferocious dragon will have top place in the decoration scheme.

The Collegians will provide the music. Photographs commemorating the occasion will be taken downstairs by Roch Dufresne.

Admission

All students must show their SRC passes at the door. If one member of a couple has a student's pass, that couple may enter free. Tickets for guest couples may be purchased at the SRC office from Marg Corey today at noon from 1.30 to 2.30. Tickets are $5 per couple.

Vos Vill Vatch

Comrade Vos is warning not to kick heels too high tonight, or is bad fall coming. Here are lines not to cross:

1. Any student displaying fact that he has intoxicating liquor is to have name reported to SRC, liquor confiscated, and is being told to please leave.
2. If displaying profane language, is liable to red carpet and fine.
3. If conduct unbecoming is liable to discipline through SDC, from Campus Police report.

you later . . ."—Aw, you know the rest.

GOODRIDGE IS CARNIVAL HEAD

The 1959 Winter Carnival Committee held its final meeting on March 10. Norm Goodridge, a third year business administration student, was elected as Winter Carnival Chairman for 1960. This appointment is subject to ratification by the SRC.

A financial statement of the Winter Carnival was not available at the time of the meeting due to a large number of outstanding bills.

Many people during the last Carnival expressed the desire to put forward suggestions for the improvement of the Carnival. Their only complaint was that they did not know who to approach. In accord with the wishes of the students, a suggestion box will be placed outside the cafeteria from today through next Thursday. The Carnival Committee hopes that as many students as possible will submit their opinions and suggestions for the benefit of next year's Carnival. The Committee would appreciate signatures at the bottom of the suggestion in the event that the idea might have to be discussed with the person involved.

Six new members are among those elected to next year's Committee. Dave Hashey, former treasurer of the SRC will control the purse strings. Bob Soward, Sandy Kilburn, Roddy Ainsworth and George Bryson, all assistant chairmen last year, will head the Committees of Floats and Sculptures, Prizes, Campus Decorations, and Opening Night respectively.

Due to the rapid growth of the Carnival in recent years, it was deemed essential that a new Committee be instituted to handle all purchasing. This position of Purchasing Manager will be filled by Herb Shephard.

Shown here are (l. to r.) Freddie Critchley, Joan Young and Dawn Bell putting the finishing touches to one of the sprigs of cherry blossoms that will help carry out the Oriental theme of the "Con" which takes place tonight. This is Joan Young's last job as this year's Decorations Committee Chairman. The formal dance, taking place at the Lady Beaverbrook Gymnasium, marks the end of student activities before final exams.

HELP!

The Creative Arts Council has issued a plea for billets for the Bowdoin Glee Club scheduled to appear here Sunday evening.

The seventy member all-male choir arrives in Fredericton Sunday afternoon, and at press time billets had been obtained for only thirty-seven of the singers. Anyone who can provide overnight lodging and breakfast for members of this choir is asked to contact Stephen Hart at Aitken House, Carol MacPherson, or Miss Nan Gregg, Records Librarian.

The concert will start at 8.15 and the selections to be heard range from the classical music of Handel and Mozart to the Broadway favourites of Rogers and Hammerstein.

NFCUS Seminar Aug. 30 - Sept. 5

The National Federation of Canadian University Students is sponsoring its second annual seminar at the University of Montreal from August 30 to September 5.

The theme of this seminar will be "The influence of the various cultures on Canadian National development, with special references to the artistic, social, economic and political aspects".

The seminar offers the opportunity to meet fellow students from all parts of Canada, and to participate in group discussions, formal lectures and panel presentations.

UNB students wishing to attend the seminar must plan to return to the university in the fall. Applications should be forwarded to Jim Ross, UNB NFCUS Chairman.

An individual registration fee of $10 is required, but all other expenses, such as food, lodging and travel, will be paid by the National Secretariat. Deadline for applications is March 31.

EIC Applications

Membership applications for the Engineering Institute of Canada will be accepted until one week after the Easter recess.

There are many application forms out, indicating that many students wish to join, yet have not handed their forms in, says Hans Foerstel, EIC Chairman.

The Men's Badminton team gained top laurels last weekend, winning the NB Provincial Senior Singles Championship and the Intercollegiate Doubles Championship. The girls team placed second to Mount A., who won top honors, taking the singles and doubles matches.

Olive Saved

At last Olive, the alligator, has a home.

This refugee from Florida's Everglades, who was sent to UNB with the purpose of making Irish stew out of a couple of English muffins, John Drew and Barry Yoell, has become the property of Vernon Saunders, equipment superintendent at the Lady Beaverbrook Gym.

Messrs. Drew and Yoell were forced to part with Olive after she became literally a growing problem. When she arrived in Fredericton a few weeks ago, this ravishing reptile was a little under twelve inches long. The former owners predict that by Easter Olive will be large enough to attempt to eat that hare which habitually makes an appearance this time of year.

The parting of Olive with her former owners was filled with emotion. In a choked voice, a tearful John Drew was finally able to muster the words, "See

'59 YEARBOOK TO HAVE 'NEW LOOK'

SENIORS TO RECEIVE 'UP THE HILL' IN MAY

Up the Hill '59, UNB's yearbook, will make its debut on the campus in the first week in May. When interviewed by The Brunswickan, Ian Collins, editor-in-chief, said; "Through no tribute to myself, I think it will be a huge success."

Unfortunately, most of the students will not be able to pass judgement on the revamped yearbook until next fall. Only four hundred copies will arrive in May, mainly for the graduating class of '59.

To those who are accustomed to looking at previous yearbooks, this year's edition might come as quite a shock. It is a definite break from the traditional style. Mr. Collins said, "The style of the book has been completely revamped, as well as the content. I think this has helped to give the book more continuity. My staff and I felt that parts of the book needed a more informal atmosphere, and with approximately two thousand hours of work, we think we have accomplished this."

IAN COLLINS

SUCCESS OF YEARBOOK DEPENDS ON GOOD STAFF

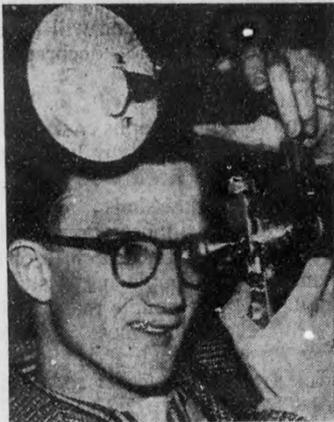

With a new format already established, the yearbook staff of 1960 will find the task much easier. Many of the "workers" will know more tricks of the trade.

How will Up the Hill compare to yearbooks across Canada? "I'll stack it up to any yearbook in Canada," says Editor Ian Collins.

This year's staff, pictured below, was increased from four last year to twelve this year. In the editor's estimation, the members have been really tremendous. They have given a lot, and have come up with a lot of original ideas. Probably the most outstanding innovation is the use of art work, largely credited to Dave Folster, Janet MacNair and Peter MacNutt. They were able to come up with a series of ideas, which "we feel is good art work".

On the business end of the yearbook, George Lemmon, business manager, and John Williams, advertising manager, have done a very commendable job. Their efforts have cost the students (indirectly) $9,650, but The Brunswickan has their assurance it was well spent.

Photos Of Pair Not Available

Unfortunately, pictures of two important members of the staff of Up The Hill 1959 were not available at press time.

Not included in today's display are:

John Brander, associate editor, and Peter MacNutt, artist.

Tribute to Roch

Next year's yearbook will cost about $2,000 more, and part of this will be due to increased photography costs. For the last two years, the yearbook has been fortunate to have a photo editor who was able to print his own photos.

Up the Hill '59 owes much of its credit to its Photo Editor, Roch Dufresne. In this tribute, The Brunswickan agrees wholeheartedly. If anyone has taken notice, Roch has been snapping pictures steadily since September, at every college event. Sometimes he even seemed to be two places at once.

'Courtney' Marks Most Striking Innovation

Probably the most eye-catching innovation is Courtney, "the only walkin', talkin', red and black woodpecker up the hill".

In their search for a new mascot, (which may some day become campus wide) Ian Collins said, "We have picked the only animal, the only bird, the only thing native to New Brunswick, that is red and black. We kicked the vague idea around, and before it became distinct, it carried us through many, many long hours of arduous late, late nights." Courtney is a creature of the whole staff, and he is used extensively through the book.

The Brunswickan staff was fortunate to have a sneak preview of this endearing little fellow who romps across the pages of the yearbook. If their reaction is any indication of general campus opinion, Courtney is here to stay. Red and Black and Grey—Bold.

In keeping with the rest of the book, the cover has undergone a radical change. Plain black and charcoal gray have been added to the traditional red cover. Like the rest of the book, the yearbook staff felt that the cover too had become stereotyped. This year's cover is very plain, but also very striking.

Paper of a different texture is being used this year, and since it is very white, it has been possible to use gray very effectively.

To quote Mr. Collins again, "A lot of work and great losses of sleep have gone into the book. I hope the student body likes the finished product."

Orders For Rings Still Being Taken

Orders for UNB rings must be placed at the Bookstore before March 25. This offer for gold rings with the University insignia is open only to graduating students.

All orders will be sent away to Birk's immediately to ensure that the rings will be available before the end of the school year. Further information as to such things as cost and design can be obtained at the Bookstore.

Voluntary Illiteracy

Next to the task of overcoming the tremendous shortage of food, probably the most pressing problem in the world today is the existence of widespread illiteracy.

In many nations, 90 per cent of the population cannot read or write. For the world as a whole, UNESCO estimates that more than half the people lack these vital skills.

However, much effort is being made to increase literacy, and there is wide agreement that lasting economic and social progress is greatly dependent on the communication of information.

Furthermore, one of the most encouraging features of this basic struggle is the obvious willingness of the peoples of the so-called backward nations to make a sincere effort to overcome their handicap.

In plain fact, the ignorant want to learn

Yet, here in Canada, we face a different, and in many ways, a more dangerous problem.

Most Canadians have the required technical skills of reading and writing. But they make little use of them.

A recent Gallup Poll brings the situation into sharp focus. It shows that:

- (1) nearly one of every three Canadians has not read a book in more than a year, and
- (2) more than two out of three are not reading a book at the present time.

However the sad story does not end here.

Although Canada has the world's second highest standard of living, she ranks only 14th in the number of bookshops per capita.

Furthermore, our libraries offer little relief, for though the country has a population of 17 million souls, only about 10 million books are currently available for lending. In addition only about 60 per cent of the population is served by libraries.

Of all the English-speaking nations, only the United States shows a more pronounced willingness to read books.

Surely, we can take little comfort from being merely the junior partner in a tacit alliance for ignorance.

The fact remains that we are contributing too much toward establishing history's most ignoble precedent, the first recorded case of "voluntary illiteracy". For as UNESCO has learned, people who refuse to read soon lose the ability.

Is that to be our gift to posterity?

Since this is the last Slabs 'n' Edgings of the year, (and if all goes well this spring the last Slabs 'n' Edgings to appear under our authorship) we would like to express our gratitude to those who inspired our column over the year. We owe special thanks to:

Joseph Flathorn—for allowing us to print his bibliography.
Prince John—for his investigation into county forestry policies.
The Chestnut Tree—for sheltering village blacksmiths in the years gone by.

People—for watching so much television.
Noises—for sounding so much like the hit parade.
Job seekers—for inspiring thoughts of the South Sea Islands.
Tower Four—for burning down.

The Spruce Budworm—for letting up on its attack.
The Fauna Up the Hill—for fitting so nicely into a key.
Russian encyclopedias—for their unbiased definitions and write-ups.

The forestry profession—for having growing pains in its development.
King Henry—for dropping the Bow and Arrow.

An old lady—for not knowing the meaning of the word "silver-culture".

Our thanks are also due to the editors of The Brunswickan, who put up with our last minute rushes to meet the deadline, and to the Forestry Association for placing their confidence in us. Also, all the best to next year's authors.

Waiting For A Phone?

From JUDY FRAIN

VANCOUVER—Twenty of the students from the University of British Columbia squeezed into a telephone booth here this week, and they lived to tell the tale.

They also laid a joint claim to the world's record for squatting in a 'phone booth.

The stunt was arranged by staff members of The Ubysey, the campus newspaper. It was sparked by a press clipping which told of how 17 students of North Staffordshire University, Keele, England, had jammed into a booth to surpass the previous mark established by Manchester University.

FILM SOCIETY HEAD
At the recent annual meeting of the UNB Film Society, Prof. Allan R. Donaldson, of the Department of English, was elected president of the group. Others elected to office were vice-president, Tim Arnold; secretary, Zeta Rosenberg; treasurer, John Findlay.

After considerable discussion, it was decided that continuation of two series of films would not be economically feasible next season, and that a single program of at least 12 features should be presented.

The meeting concluded with the showing of the Swedish wildlife film, The Great Adventure.

Legal Liquor

Sir: If it has been said once, it has been said a thousand times—when are we going to get sane liquor laws in New Brunswick?

I could repeat the complaints put forward by Mr. Wardell, but these complaints—that the present law is bad for the tourists, induces bootlegging, promotes "behind-the-barn" drinking—are now stale clichés, monotonously repeated to deaf ears.

I don't intend to come up with any sparkling new complaints, as I feel the ones now being bandied around are sufficient.

However, I would like to relate the matter to college students, and make a few pertinent suggestions.

My first suggestion is that the legal age for purchasing liquor be lowered to eighteen.

This would legalize the activities of most college students in New Brunswick. Surely, a college student at eighteen is just as responsible (or irresponsible) as a college student of twenty-one or a businessman of thirty-five.

I would advocate that all college students be allowed to drink if they choose to, but, since a line must be drawn somewhere, eighteen is the best age.

Secondly, if the laws are changed, the SRC should obtain permission to set up a bar in the Lady Beaverbrook Gymnasium for the Fall Formal and the Con.

This would eliminate the guzzling in the parking lot and in the washrooms. It would be a most pleasant addition to the formals and would keep down the drunkenness, as it would then not be necessary to "down the bottle" before you are caught.

Thirdly, I would advocate, along with Mr. Wardell, that restaurants and cocktail bars be licensed.

For college students, this would mean that they would not necessarily have to visit the liquor store if they just wanted to have a drink on Saturday night.

It would also greatly increase late night restaurant business, as students, after a dance, would then go to a bar or a restaurant instead of having to rent a hotel room or a motel unit to have a drink.

This is a one-sided point of view, admittedly, but, if a revision of the liquor laws is ever contemplated, I hope that the government will take college students (the future of Canada) into account in the above ways.

Irish Sighs

Sir: Since I have been driven to tears with Irish Eyes Are Smiling, and permanently soured with the constant repetition of Sweet Peggy O'Neil during the last week, I demand to know why the Irish insist on forcing the annual torment of St. Patrick's Day upon the well-bred populace of the country.

Examining Ireland analytically one finds very little to sing about, and I strongly suspect that "native" Irishmen (the ones who haven't been able to leave) don't sing Irish Eyes Are Smiling at all. Conversely, the emigrated sons of Eire undoubtedly sing in relief.

In any event, I end my plea for peace with the observation that the "Irish" songs we hear so much of these days aren't Irish at all—but some variety of American. Let's end this pseudo-sentiment and get some music on the radio.

SWIMMING Cross Country Team

by DOUG PATON

Carrying the message of UNB to Upper Canada this year were the Varsity Beavers, a group of men made over from dog-paddling newcomers to dangerous competitors for Canadian aquatic honors. A solid month of callisthenics laid down by Coach Amby Legere soon separated the men from the boys as from the 30 aspirants who showed up for practice only 11 finally made the Varsity squad.

The Beavers had a shaky beginning with only three returnees to the squad, first meet with CMR cancelled and general lack of incentive. With Captain Dave Sanger pushing the Junior Varsity unit, the team came up with two wins over Saint John Dolphins Swimming Team and the 2RHC Black Watch Club from Camp Gagetown. As the season got rolling, the Beavers began aiming for pool records and at the height of this record breaking jag, Beavers trounced the Dolphins 69 to 30 in the Winter Carnival Meet. About this time, Wayne Barry broke his own 440 yd. free style record, Dave Sanger cut his 40 and 100 yard butterfly marks, Glenn Murray had all three back stroke records under his belt, and Albert Bene had a hold on the 40, 100 and 200 yard breast stroke times. Dale Milton had won one diving event and was on his way to taking a second when Jerry Shaw pulled up his socks and obtained a place on the squad heading to Montreal.

With three teams failing to show up at CMR, UNB found themselves staring in the faces of the McGill Redmen. When the smoke cleared, UNB Beavers were down 50 to 32 but with 8 points for a win and zero for second or third in the relays, winning one more event would have put the Beavers in the driver's seat.

The meet in Montreal had a dual purpose. In addition to the pursuit for competition, the times notched by the Beavers at CMR counted for the Canadian Intercollegiate Telegraphic Swimming Championships, the results of which have not been published as yet. Last year's team came up fifth in Canada following UBC, but hopes this year to rest on third or fourth place.

Following the M.I.A.U. meet last week, the Beavers now hold 10 of the 11 Maritime records. In smashing these records the Beavers also smashed Acadia 90 to 23. The meet last week was saturated with 1/2, 1 and 2 lengths leads over other competitors with an astounding 4 lengths lead in the 400 yard free style relay.

The Beavers will say good-bye to Captain Dave Sanger and veteran

Basketball

by DAVE TWEEDIE

This year's cross-country team competed in more meets than any previous squads and experienced a longer running season, to their benefit. This team was the strongest one in several years.

The harriers established an important first by winning the first New Brunswick Intercollegiate Cross-country championship. It was held at Mount Allison and the only entries were UNB and Mount Allison.

Meets were also held at Minto (two), the University of Maine, and Saint John. In the first meet at Minto, UNB defeated a squad representing the Minto Athletic Club. In the other meet at Minto, Howes won the NB Juvenile Championship and Turnbull and Levesque placed second and third in the Junior division.

At the University of Maine, UNB gained a draw with Maine Freshmen. This was a tremendous improvement over the results of previous meets held there. At Saint John, teams and individuals were entered for the annual five mile race. UNB won the team trophy and several of our runners fared well in trophy competition.

Next year's team should be just as strong despite the loss of its captain, Bill Webster and Kris Morgenstern who for the past four years have led the team in most events.

Track and Field Team

by DAVE TWEEDIE

The Maritime Intercollegiate Athletic Union track and field championships were held at Acadia University last October 21. Our old rival, Mount Allison placed first with 48 points. UNB was second with 41, Acadia, Dalhousie and Saint Francis Xavier were third, fourth and fifth respectively.

A highlight of the meet was the establishment of a new Maritime Intercollegiate record, although not set by a UNB athlete. MacLeod of Mount Allison ran the mile in 4.35.4 minutes which broke a long standing record.

It is expected that a lot of the new talent which appeared this year will be on hand for next fall. However, Robin Shearer and Bill Webster will be lost to the team through graduation.

It is planned to include a meet with Camp Gagetown in the team's agenda next year.

Many of the University's teams have been coached by a very able individual in the person of Amby Legere, and the track and field is only one of many. The team thanks him for his persistent and wise coaching.

Geology Win Hoop Crown

The Geologists won the Intramural Basketball Title Wednesday night with a convincing 53-31 victory over the Sophomore Engineers "A". The Geologists completely outplayed the Engineers, running up a 26-12 score by half time.

Captain Jack Garnett led the "rock hounds" with 19 points, high for the night. Mawhinney and Gene Leavitt backed up Garnett's outstanding performance with 11 and 6 points respectively. For the Engineers Miller with 10, Bamford 8, and Wetmore 7 were the offensive guns.

Varsity Basketball Coach Don Nelson, presented the winners with a silver trophy after the game.

The Faculty Quintet won the consolation championship defeating Arts 40-30. The Faculty forged to an early 16-4 lead, but Artsmen Montgomery and Jamieson hooped five quick baskets to pull the Arts within reach of the Profs. Eric Dave Graham. Their absence will be felt but with a good crop of sophomores the Beavers will be looking for similar triumphs in 1960.

The Men's Basketball season at UNB was disappointing, but in many ways it pointed for better times in years ahead.

Beginning the season with only four holdovers from the previous year's team, Coach Don Nelson had his hands full in filling the many gaps on the squad with JV's and freshmen. Only veterans Bob Porter and Lonnie Taylor brought along a great deal of experience to this year's team.

The Red Raiders compiled an 8-12 won and lost record on seasonal play counting North East College Conference, NB-PEI, exhibition and tournament tilts. Their seasonal average of points scored was 62.1, while points scored against was 72.8, the latter including five 90 plus games in the NEEC, three of these being at the hands of the Ricker aggregation from Houlton, Maine. The Red and Blackmen only went over eighty points once, against Mt. A. in the Lady Beaverbrook Gym, when they swished in 85 points.

Top scorers for the Raiders over the season were Don Morgan, with a 13.5 point average and Frank McHugh, with an 11.5 average, although credit must be given to Pete Rylander, Bob Porter, Ron Belfoi, Lonnie Taylor, Dave Petrie, Guy Collin, Steve Vaughan and Al Casey, who all came up with fine performances throughout the schedule.

However, the Raiders were lacking a requisite of all fine ball teams and that was consistency. They could play a half of brilliant basketball as they did against Husson here, and then look terrible as they did against St. Dunstan's.

Consistent efforts, which are so characteristic of the American squads UNB meets, must be forthcoming if the Red and Black are going to hold their own in such competition.

The Red Raiders dropped the NB-PEI hoop crown to the Mt. A. Hawks for the first time in a number of years but they did so by the slimmest of margins, a single point. Because of St. Dunstan's 64-64 victory over Mt. A. on "the Island", Mt. A. entered the Maritime finals against St. FX by virtue of their one point total point victory over the Red Raiders. However, the X-men had an easy time in copping their twelfth Maritime crown in a row which shows that one man, although, very good, cannot do everything.

To close out the season, UNB hosted a tournament with an international flavor. It is hoped that this will become an annual event and perhaps spread out to include the top Maritime and New England cage teams.

The Raiders are fortunate in having only four graduation losses this year. Bob Porter has been a regular with the Raiders for four years and his hustle and team play have added much to past UNB successes. Lonnie Taylor's experience and rebounding ability will be sorely missed in seasons to come. Although spending only one year in Red and Black livery, Ron Belfoi was a great asset to this year's squad. Steve Vaughan's hustle and team enthusiasm certainly has added to past UNB success.

Prospects for next year look rosy. With a year of experience under their belts, next year's squad will be that much stronger. This year's Junior Varsity was the strongest yet and should supply plenty of power come November.

Golf Instruction

Instruction sessions on golf fundamentals will be held immediately after Easter.

Interested university members are asked to register at the Athletic Department.

Garland and Ken Brookshire fired 14 and 13 points respectively for the victors. Larry Montgomery with 12 points was the scoring star for the Artsmen.

GIRLS' BASKETBALL

Last week the final game was played in the women's intramural basketball league. Every Thursday evening throughout the winter session, the girls battled it out in the gym. The league was organized and operated under the capable direction of Miss Iris Bliss. Iris, who was coach of the Red Bloomers (Maritime Champs), had a league composed of four teams, Physical Education, Students' Wives, Science and Arts. The idea of the league was to promote a great deal more interest in girls' basketball which in previous years was lacking. The league was very successful and the girls enjoyed themselves.

The Physical Education team defeated the Students' Wives 46-20 in the final game to cop the championship.

Congratulations are in store for the winners and to all the girls who took part in the league. A great deal of credit is in store for Iris Bliss and her helpers who organized and ran the league with such success.

Badminton

An intramural tournament will be held in the gym this Saturday beginning at 2:00 p.m. Play will be held in ladies' and men's singles, ladies' and men's doubles and mixed doubles. Varsity players are ineligible for this tournament.

Players may register by signing the sheet in the gym or by contacting Don Ripley at 5-4433.
