WON AT LAST.

CHAPTER XL.

This was the precious story which I had listened to that morning, as Nat, bathed in tears and filled with contrition, had sobbed it out to me from a sheltering nest of sofa-cushions, winding up with the incoherent declaration that she would never as long as she lived dare to see Roger any more, and throwing out a final hint to the effect that she considered herself solely and entirely to blame for everything that had occurred—the matter of mademoiselle and the diamonds included, presumably—and that the sooner she either went into a convent to expiate her sins, or died, leaving him free, with her blessing, to marry somebody else, the better and more satisfactory it would be for all parties concerned.

This, then, was what I wanted to tell my friend, and what presently, after a word or two of introduction, I began to tell him. Yorke's face as I went on and his expression when I had concluded were a study. It seemed that he could not get over it at all.

"And that was all?" he said, at last.

Madam! If you Are Bilious, Constipated or Headachy Please Try "Syrup of Figs."

All women get bilious, headachy and constipated—simply because they don't exercise enough. They don't eat coarse food, or enough fruit and green vegetables. Those are nature's ways of keeping the liver and thirty feet of the bowels active; but very few women employ them. The next best way is delightful, Syrup of Figs.

Nearly all ill women can be overcome with Syrup of Figs alone. There is no need to have sick headache, backache, dizziness, stomach sour and full of gases, bilious spells, sallowness, coated tongue, bad breath, had complexion, nervousness and depression. The surest and safest remedy is one or two teaspoonfuls of delicious Syrup of Figs. Try this to-night—you'll feel splendid in the morning when the sour bile, clogged

"Just that," I assented. "And she could condemn me on the word of a fellow like that!" he went on bitterly.

"Yes," I assented again. "But look here, old fellow—it wasn't his word alone, you know. There was that blessed business with mademoiselle; and I went and corroborated that you might have turned suspicious of her perhaps in the same circumstances."

"I don't think so." "And then she's such a hot-headed little creature when she gets upset or excited," I went on; "and upon my word I don't believe that on the day when she was so mad as to go and engage herself to that unlucky mar Froude she was more than half fit her right senses. The fact is, her temper was up, and she didn't care what she did. And look here, old man—and I lowered my voice involuntarily, as though the skeleton could overhear—"if you still have the fancy that she doesn't care for you, you'd have dropped it if you had seen her for the last day or two. I verily believe that a little more of it would have killed her. Dizarte feared for her brain, you know."

"Why, is she ill?" Yorke asked, with quick anxiety.

"Not very well. You see, Ned"—

"nd he laughed—"I can't well neglect the doctor, bless his old heart—just now, at any rate! He'll be in directly to dinner, and after that I shall be free. I'd come quickly enough but for that."

No doubt; but in the circumstances I thought he was quite right to stay where he was, and said so, as we left the den together. But, as we crossed the hall, a thought came into my head which made me pause and ask him curiously:

"I say, Roger, did you know anything of mademoiselle's husband, Max Steinhardt?"

"I knew him by sight—little else. Why?"

"What sort of a fellow was he?"

"A heartless, daring sort of scamp,

"Bless you, no, not now! She doesn't want anything but you—although, to be sure, the awkward part of it is that she has firmly made up her mind never to dare either to see or speak to you any more. At present she is undecided whether to end her days in the retirement of a convent or to go off in a galloping consumption—in the latter case you will have the goodness to drop an occasional tear upon her tombstone. I fancy the convent rather carries the day at present, though, mainly, I believe, because the consumptive symptoms don't appear to be coming on very strong. That's the lively sort of talk she has been pouring out to me all day, and it strikes me that the sooner you come along and put a stopper on it the better. There's no one else who knows anything about it, and the consequences is that I get it all. We've had rather too much of mopes and misery lately, and I'm getting tired of it."

Yorke half laughed, and his face lost the momentarily hard look which it had worn. I went on:

"The worst of it is she has taken it into her head to blame herself for everything."

"Herself?" he echoed. "What do you mean? What is she to blame for but this absurd tea-cup storm—poor little thing!"

"Of course—that's what I want to know. But say what I will, she has got it into her head that everything that has happened is her fault. Absurd, of course! She is the cause of it undoubtedly, after a fashion; but I can't see how she's to blame for that. As I put it to her this morning, she wouldn't have married St. George in any circumstances; and, if her engagement to you had been announced instead of to Froude, St. George would very likely have served you as he served him. I myself haven't a doubt of it." Nor had I, remembering what he last words of Raby St. George had been.

"What did she say?" asked Yorke. "Oh, that view of the question comforted her a little, I think!" I returned, getting up and beginning to but on my coat. "But she's dead on the onvent at present, old man. You'd better hurry up, or she'll have taken her veil before you know it."

"Do you remember," Roger asked, "the day I said that I could never come into her presence again unless she sent for me?"

I made a wry face at that, remembering well enough.

"Oh, I recollect! But you know, it seems to me, Yorke, that the next stupid thing to taking a stupid pledge is to keep it."

"Ah, that's pretty much my own tea—in this case, at any rate!"

"Just so. You'll come then?"

"I would probably do that if she were on one side of the globe and I on the other. What are you grinning at?"

"I was wondering which of you two was the more gone of the pair," I said. "All serene, then! I'll get some and comfort the disconsolate lassel with the news that one of these days, when you've nothing particular to do, you will find time to come over and give her your gracious forgiveness before she retires finally from a heartless world. She really believes it, you know—there's the joke of it. I've no doubt she is at present amusing herself by crying her eyes out over the inspiring prospect. And there's madame all this while firmly persuaded that she is 'retting her heart out after that unfortunate Froude. Can't you walk back with me now?"

"Not very well. You see, Ned"—

"nd he laughed—"I can't well neglect the doctor, bless his old heart—just now, at any rate! He'll be in directly to dinner, and after that I shall be free. I'd come quickly enough but for that."

No doubt; but in the circumstances I thought he was quite right to stay where he was, and said so, as we left the den together. But, as we crossed the hall, a thought came into my head which made me pause and ask him curiously:

"I say, Roger, did you know anything of mademoiselle's husband, Max Steinhardt?"

"I knew him by sight—little else. Why?"

"What sort of a fellow was he?"

"A heartless, daring sort of scamp,

"Do you mean that girl with the spots on her face?"

Overheard in a Street-Car. There's a lesson right there!

Little blemishes of complexion, small sores, eruptions, spots, are not only unpleasant to the person afflicted, but are the first thing noticed by other people.

A little Zam-Buk applied at night to spots, eruptions, sores of any kind will do wonders.

Zam-Buk is not a greasy preparation which will go rancid on your dressing table. It is made from healing, herbal extracts and essences. Always pure, fresh and ready for use. Doesn't lose its power. Keeps indefinitely. Healing, soothing and antiseptic all the time. Try it!

in my opinion. But his wife, poor thing, was devoted to him."

"Ah, we fancied that from her letter!"

"I believe that woman loved the rascal passionately," said Yorke, looking at me. "He had dragged her down, disgraced her, ill-treated her too. I have heard my sister say; and yet she will cling to him devotedly while she has breath in her body. Do you think she would ever have stolen those jewels and run the risk which she did run bit for him? Not she! I'll wager anything that, whether she says so or not, he first instigated her to do it. Queer, isn't it?"

I nodded.

"And yet we all thought that she was setting her cap at Froude."

"And so she was, no doubt; but that was when she thought her scamp of a husband was dead."

"You never saw him about here, did you, Roger?" I asked.

"No. I had no suspicion but that he was dead, as he was reported to be until Dizarte told me yesterday."

"Then that second time you rushed off to Paris it was not about anything connected with him?"

Exhausted Nerves Sleepless Nights

Continually Crew Worse Until Dr. Chase's Nerve Food Restored Vigor and Strength.

Mrs. Campbell.

What misery to lie awake nights and think of all sorts of things without being able to get the rest and sleep which is necessary to restore the nervous energy wasted in the tasks of the day.

This symptom of sleeplessness is one of the surest indications of an exhausted nervous system. You must have sleep or a breakdown is certain. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food feeds the feeble, wasted nerves back to health and strength. In a few days you obtain the natural, restful sleep which helps so materially in restoring vitality to the nerves and strength to the whole body.

Mrs. Sarah Campbell, 108 Alma street, St. Thomas, Ont., writes: "For months I was so bothered with nervousness that I could not sleep nights. There were other symptoms of exhausted nerves, but none caused so much misery, and I found myself continually getting worse."

"I began using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and it was not long before I noticed great improvement in my health. It built up the nervous system wonderfully, strengthened the nerves and enabled me to rest and sleep well."

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50c a box, 1 for $2.50, all dealers, or Edmansson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

"Of course not," Yorke returned, looking at me curiously. "My brother-in-law was ill, and I was telegraphed for. I thought I told you."

Of course he had told me; and I reddened as I shook hands again, telling him that I should keep a lookout for him at the Mount, and feeling more ashamed than ever I had felt yet that I had been dense enough to doubt my friend's perfect truth and honesty. And then, happier than I had been since the night of the ball, I left him.

Getting back to Chavasse as expeditiously as possible, I found madame nowhere visible, and Nat just where I had left her a couple of hours before, curled up on a couch by the library fire, staring with a very woe-begone face at the blaze; and, judging by the look about her eyes, she had been fulfilling my prediction and industriously endeavoring to cry them out of her head. Virtue Dent sat there, quite her placid self again, stitching away at something that looked like a sheet. She had been sent to keep guard, I suppose; but she got up when I entered, and, making her usual demure courtesy, left the room.

"Well, old lady," I said, cheerfully, sitting down by Nat's side, "and what have you been doing with yourself?" But the deepest sigh which the little lady was capable of heaving was the only reply I got. I tried again.

"Been talking to Virtue, eh?"

"No."

If Constipated or Bilious-Cascarets.

No Biliousness, Headache, Sick, Sour Stomach, Indigestion, Coated Tongue or Constipation.

Furred Tongue, Bad Taste, Indigestion, Sallow Skin and Miserable Headaches come from a torpid liver and clogged bowels, which cause your stomach to become filled with undigested food, which sours and ferments like garbage in a swill barrel. That's the first step to untold misery—indigestion, foul gasses, bad breath, yellow skin, mental fears, everything that is horrible and nauseating. A Cascaret to-night will give you constipated bowels a thorough cleansing and straighten you out by morning. They work while you sleep—a 10-cent box from your druggist will keep you feeling good for months. Millions of men and women take a Cascaret now and then to keep their stomach, liver and bowels regulated, and never know a miserable moment. Don't forget the children—their little insides need a good, general cleansing, too.

The Prince of India is Here!

Almost every booklover in Newfoundland has read that wonderful graphic story Ben Hur, by Lew Wallace, but on account of the prohibitive price they may not have read his masterpiece, The Prince of India. This fascinating novel has had a steady sale for nearly 20 years at $2.50. We are now enabled to offer a limited number of copies in special strong cloth binding at only 75c; by mail, 79c. Every one of its 730 pages will fascinate the reader from start to finish. To describe it would be but to detract much of the pleasure one would otherwise enjoy in the reading.

Other books by this author are: The Fairy God, 30c.; Ben Hur, 30c.; by mail, 32c.; The Joyhood of Christ, $1.50, post free.

Proving by Actual Experiment

This experiment will always interest the children, and will provoke a good deal of thinking. The explanation, of course, is that the heated glass drives out most of the air, so that when the mouth of the glass is quickly put down into the water there is very little air, and consequently, very little pressure above the water within the glass. Hence, the weight or pressure of the air on the water outside the glass drives the water up into the glass to occupy the space from whence the air was driven by the burning paper.

A practical demonstration of this kind is always more convincing than any mere statement. This is particularly true of medical remedies.

The effect of the anti-toxin treatment for diphtheria is noticeable within a few hours, so that everyone must believe in its virtue. In a similar way, the treatment known as ORANGE LILLY gives a practical proof of the progress it is making in curing women's disorders, and that, too, within a few days after commencing its use.

All authorities agree that in every case of women's disorders there exists a congested condition of the womanly organs. The circulation in these parts is sluggish or stagnant, and the result is that the broken-down tissue or waste matter which should be carried off if the blood was circulating freely, remains in these parts, causing inflammation, irritation, oppression of the nerves, etc. ORANGE LILLY is not taken internally, but is applied direct to the suffering organs. It is absorbed into the circulation, and its antiseptic properties at once act on the waste matter referred to above. The consequence is that this waste matter, which is causing the inflammation, ulcers, nervous troubles, etc., begins to be discharged, and it continues to be discharged until all the foreign matter is removed from the circulation. At the same time the blood vessels and nerves are toned and strengthened, the nervous trouble disappears, the circulation is restored and good health follows.

Toronto, Ont., June 2, 1909.

Dear Mrs. Currah, I wish to tell you that Orange Lilly is doing me a great deal of good. These ulcers come away one or two every week and I have less pain and fewer headaches. I feel sure I will be perfectly cured in a little longer time.

MRS. D. S. T.

The explanation of the wonderful cures performed by ORANGE LILLY is very simple. It is a scientific remedy, based on the discoveries of Pasteur and Lister. The conditions existing in all female troubles are alike in character, differing in degree and development only, so that a positive remedy as ORANGE LILLY is, acts with all the certainty of a chemical experiment. In order to convince every suffering woman that ORANGE LILLY will cure her, I make the following

Free Trial Offer

I will send to every reader of this notice who suffers in any way from any of the troubles peculiar to women, if she will send me her full name, address, and the ORANGE LILLY treatment to last her 10 days. In many cases this trial treatment will give very noticeable relief. If you are a sufferer you owe it to yourself, to your family, and to your friends to take advantage of this offer, and get cured in the privacy of your home, without doctor's bills or expense of any kind.

Saying What You Mean.

By RUTH CAMERON.

When I was a very little girl, if I made a slip of the tongue, my big brother used to say to me, "Why don't you say what you mean, Ruth, not mean what you say?"

And then I puzzled my small brain over the d i f f e r e n c e.

If there was one, and over the job, if that was what it was intended to be.

I often think of that now-a-days when I hear people failing to say what they mean. And that, it seems to me, is very often. It may be because we are too much in a hurry to bother, or it may be because we lack intellectual training to make us accurate, but it surely seems to me that very few of the ordinary people we meet and talk to are absolutely accurate speakers. We make ourselves understood well enough, but we don't say exactly what we mean.

For instance, people often say to me, "Do you know what time it is?" And whenever they do, I am tempted to answer logically by simply saying "Yes" or "No," as the case may be. What they meant to say is, "What time is it?" Or, "Please tell me what time it is." And so, knowing how often I fall in logical speech myself, I answer the intention rather than the actual question.

I think my own most common mistake in the use of accurate English is to begin a letter of thanks, "I want to thank you." Whenever I catch myself using that silly phrase I say to myself, "then why don't you?" And if I am not too lazy I begin the letter over again by writing simply "I thank you."

The misplacement of the negative or other verb modifier is a most common inaccuracy. Also the wrong use of can and may. Of course no one falls to understand when you say, "Can I do this?" meaning, "Have I your permission to do this?" The use of the proper word in the proper place is simply an accuracy of speech which is a hallmark of the educated and logical mind.

There is another inaccuracy that always amuses me. If you meet a friend who has been suffering with a cold and ask, "How is your cold?" and she answers, "Better, thank you," you say you are glad. But ought you not really to be sorry to hear that such an affliction as a cold in the head is in a flourishing condition? I suppose there are many people who will call this hyper-accuracy. Perhaps it is, but I know I am not the only person in the world who has thought about this, for just the other day I asked "How is your cold?" of a friend who is a very logical and rather whimsical person, and he answered promptly, "Finely, thank you, and I'm about as miserable as possible."

It was that discovery of a mistake in this matter that made me feel there must be others who would be interested, and so gave me courage to write about it.

HOW BLOOD IS MADE.

The liquids and the digested foods in the alimentary canal pass through the wall of the canal into the blood. This process is called absorption and takes place chiefly from the small intestine. After absorption the blood carries the food through the body, and each cell takes from the blood the food it needs. A pure glyceric extract made from bloodroot, mandrake, stone, queen's root and golden seal root, and sold by druggists for the past forty years under the name of gives uniformly excellent results as a tonic to help in the assimilation of the food and in the absorption of the blood of the food it requires. Eradicate the poisons from the blood with this alterative extract which does not shrink the white blood corpuscles, because containing no alcohol or other injurious ingredients. Thus the body can be built up—strong to resist disease. This is a tonic taken from Nature's garden that builds up those weakened by disease. Sold by druggists everywhere. Address World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N. Y.

Dr. Charles F. Parker, Jr., of 632 Woodlawn Ave., Philadelphia, Pa., writes: "I was troubled with my stomach for almost three years. I tried several doctors and most everything anybody recommended to me, but kept getting worse and honestly did not care to live as I was never well even though, at times, I had no pain. My symptoms were as follows: Always tired, my whole body in a throbbing pain, gas, pain and soreness in the stomach, vomiting, constipation, could not tell what to eat or what would serve with me, and was melancholy. But after taking Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery with the Pleasant Pellets it has made me a well man which is something to live for."

Bones.

BY H. L. RANN.

Bones are rectangular protuberances upon which people hang avoidpools, low-necked gowns and other cumbering cares. Some people are so constituted that they do not have any avoidpools to hang, and have to be padded in several different localities in order to prevent the bones from eating holes through their best clothes.

The most useful bone in existence is the jaw bone, which is condemned in the Scriptures as a murderous weapon, but which has come to be the most prized possession of man. If it were not for the jaw bone, the Chautauque industry in this country would be depopulated at the rate of 1,000 pops per minute. Hundreds of politicians, ex-clergymen, moral uplifters, vocalists and two-ply reformers are now riding around in tourist sleepers and disseminating costly ozone with the aid of a roary jaw bone which can reach to the back of the tent on a windy night.

NEVER HAD ITS EQUAL

Rochester, N.Y. Man Found Something Good in Canada.

Mr. Theo. Johnston, whose home is in Rochester, N.Y., 44 Tremont Street, is enthusiastic over one Canadian product at least. He says: "While visiting in Millbrook, Ont., I was suffering from a sprained knee, and could get nothing to help me until my father gave me a bottle of Egyptian Liniment, which relieved me in a few minutes. I have never had anything to equal it in my life. I am sure if your liniment was introduced to the people of Rochester it would sell like hot cakes."

Quick work is one of the strong points of Douglas's Egyptian Liniment, it goes right to the spot. It stops bleeding at once. It prevents proud-flesh or inflammation, and is a positive safeguard against blood-poisoning. It relieves all kinds of aches and soreness.

How to Avoid Middle Age.

Big Thoughts, Much Fruit, and a Morning Tub.

How to remain young and escape the disadvantages of "middle-age" will be explained by Dr. Josiah Oldfield, the food expert, at the Simple Life Exhibition to be held at the Caxton Hall, Westminster, soon. Dr. Oldfield has already disclosed his secret.

"There ought to be no such thing as 'middle-age'." If a man lives properly he can carry the spirit of youth to the end of his days. I am on the way towards ninety, but I feel entirely young. The secret is simple. A man must submit himself to mental and physical discipline and eat wisely and not too well."

Dr. Oldfield's rules are:

- 1. Think big thoughts and cling to noble ideals.
- 2. Live on the fruits of the highest minds.
- 3. Do not waste time over petty things and do not take narrow views.
- 4. Take fruits, vegetables, oils, pure wines, eggs, butter, milk and bread. Avoid shoddy, second-hand food of all kinds.
- 5. Bathe every morning and rub the skin hard with a towel.
- 6. Change underclothing every twenty-four hours.
- 7. Know yourself.—Daily Mail, Feb. 30.

Another Proof From The West.

THAT DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS ARE A NATURAL REMEDY.

For Cases of Exhaustion and Nerve Weakness—How S. Jeremy Found Relief When He Cured His Kidneys.

Sialayn, Alta, March 14.—(Special)—That the natural remedy for exhaustion and nerve weakness is one that will give good circulation and pure blood carrying nutrition to all parts of the body, is again proved in the case of S. Jeremy, a well known resident of this place.

"For over two years I suffered from attacks of exhaustion and nerve weakness" Mr. Jeremy states "I tried many nerve foods and tonics but must admit that Dodd's Kidney Pills have benefited me more than anything else I ever used."

"I am more than grateful for what Dodd's Kidney Pills have done for me."

Nerve weakness and exhaustion are caused by impure blood. Impure blood is caused by diseased kidneys failing to strain the waste matter of the body out of the blood. The natural remedy is to cure the kidneys. Dodd's Kidney Pills have yet to find a case of kidney disease they cannot cure.

Police-men's Uniforms.

Appropos of the Government's refusal yesterday, to grant a cent increase to the police, and the Premier's "soft soap" on the matter, Mr. Kent touched a point that is worth some consideration. For two or three years past, young men have been joining frequently as recruits but leave within a month or so on getting their first liberal (?) wage. There are enough discarded uniforms in the barracks to fit out a new force. All these are new and would be value for about $20 per uniform. This is a disgraceful waste of public monies and the Government are squandering enough on useless uniforms to give the whole force a substantial raise. And yet this gang is called the "People's Party." What a misnomer!

TOTAL REDUCTION

In Taxation by the Governments of Sir Robert Bond.

At this particular time, while the question of reduction of taxation is being considered by the country, it affords us both pleasure and pride to repeat the fact that during the term of office of Sir Robert Bond's Government taxation was reduced by the sum of One Million Four Hundred and Twenty-Two Thousand Dollars. Here are the figures:—

1901—Lines and Twines	$7,238.40
1901-2—Molasses Salt and Lines and Twines	59,655.78
1902-3—Molasses, Salt, Lines and Twines	58,447.44
1903-4—Flour, Molasses, Kerosene Oil, Salt, Lines and Twines	$116,680.17
1904-5—Flour, Molasses, Kerosene Oil, Salt, Lines and Twines	$271,864.16
1905-6—Flour, Molasses, Kerosene Oil, Salt, Lines and Twines, Currants and Raisins	$288,189.69
1906-7—Flour, Molasses, Kerosene Oil, Salt, Lines and Twines, Currants and Raisins	$280,627.97
1907-8—Flour, Molasses, Kerosene Oil, Salt, Lines and Twines, Currants and Raisins	$310,138.22

Or, as before stated, a total reduction of $1,422,841.83.

Contrast this, every fair-minded and reasonable man in this Colony, with the action of the present Government, who at the eleventh hour, when they are about to be hurled from office, announce the reduction on tea, beef and sugar. Have they honestly made any attempt to reduce the taxes of the people? Or have they, on the other hand, piled up burdens in the shape of increase in millions of Public Debt and increased interest charges? "By men's deeds you shall judge them." Not by their promises or professions as respects the future. To imagine that the combination which now holds the reins of government will be allowed to continue in office would be an insult to the intelligence of the people.

SAVED FURNITURE.—When the fire occurred the other night at the Nickel Theatre, the members of the B.I.S., fearing it would spread, entered the Christian Bros. schools and removed maps, pictures, statues and other property to a safe place. The splendid painting of the late Bishop Power, by Bradshaw, was also removed from the Reading Room where it hung.

If you would have your eyes accurately tested and correct glasses fitted go to R. H. TRAPNELL, Eyesight Specialist.—feb7,13

To-day hundreds of people visited the dry dock, which is dried out, to inspect the damage received by the sealig Beothic in going through the Narrows Thursday morning. Looking up under the bottom of the ship one can estimate the extent of the damage done. A large hole is in the hull under the bilge keel, the plates are indented right along with a specially large hole in the hull under the bridge. Most of the damage is done on the port side of the ship while the forefoot is also badly damaged and much injury has been done to the quarter. The big sockets of the davits and the davits themselves are twisted like corkscrews, fully 40 feet of the rail is gone the strong backs running athwart ship are also twisted and general havoc is wrought to the hull. It was determined last night on receipt of Lloyds surveyor's report that the ship would not prosecute the seal fishery this year and her crew left here by the Stella Maris last night to go to their homes in Bonavitsa Bay. This is a most unfortunate happening at the beginning of the voyage and we deeply sympathize with Messrs. Job Bros. on the loss of a possible voyage of seals and the loss that must ensue in other ways as a result of the accident. We also cannot but express regret for the loss occasioned to the crew and their families.

REV. CANON NOEL

Writes on Educational Matters.

LETTER III.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir,—In my two former letters, I pleaded for an increase of the Grant for Education, and also endeavoured to show how in my opinion it might be more fairly administered. I should now like to make a few remarks on the subject of night schools.

I am the very last person who would wish to throw cold water on any scheme, which has for its end the cultivation of the intellect. I am, of course, quite in the dark as to the intentions of the Government on this subject. All that can be gleaned at present is what may be gathered from the short paragraph in His Excellency's Speech.

Night schools are to be held and encouraged, and the reason given is that early Education has been neglected. Here we strike the very root of the matter. If schooling had been free and compulsory, and a boy or girl had been forced to put in an attendance at school till he, or she, was 12 or 14 years of age, there would be little need for night schools. But when the children are removed at an early age to attend to duties at home, or on the sea, a necessity arises to make up arrears.

But by whom are these schools to be taught? Surely not by the Day School Teacher, who from 9.30 to 3.30 is confined to a close school-room. By that time his power is pretty well exhausted, and yet this does not complete his day's toil, as we shall presently see.

For, when are these schools to be open? Certainly not in the long days and summer months, for schools are then closed for eight weeks, and Teachers are enjoying a well-earned rest and recreation. But, if in the winter nights, after short days, and in the cold and stormy weather? When, as I have said above, the Teacher's work is not over at 3.30. There are these C. H. E. pupils, and another hour, or hour and a half, must be devoted to them, or the school record may be a sad one. It seems incredible that a Teacher should have to come out of his home at 7 o'clock, or later, to re-commence work. He would be quite unfit on the following day to start afresh. How would the Superintendents like, after office work is done, to teach a night school? And where would the classes be held? In the day-school rooms? But lamps will be needed, and very few schools are provided with these. And there must be warmth. Are the fires to be kept in from 5 o'clock till 8 or 9 at night? And if they are allowed to go out, is the Teacher to light them again, or the Pupils, and with smutty hands commence to write in a copy book?

I am not exaggerating. All these things must be faced. If Voluntary Teachers can be found, the thing may be more easily solved; although a School Board cannot be taxed with cost of fuel at $8 dollars a ton. And, are these schools to be free? That is important. And, if not, what are the fees to be? Are they to be left to the discretion of the Teacher? And, if after all, they are not paid? Where is the compulsion?

No doubt, ere long we shall know the particulars of this proposed enterprise. If the Day School Teacher is merely to receive a dole for all this, "to help out his salary," would it not be fairer and more honest to pay him a better salary for his day's work, than to employ and remunerate him for overtime?

I am in no way prejudiced against this work being undertaken. I would approve of it, if it can be successfully carried out. I do not know what emolument is likely to be offered by the Government to encourage it. It may possibly be a great boon in some of the smaller settlements.

But it does occur to me, that if it takes the form of a really substantial grant by the Legislature, might not some such sum be equally well appropriated to make the Day School Free? Parents are often put to their wits' end to provide school fees; and this is one excuse for keeping their children at home.

Free and Compulsory Education is the key and solution of it all. It must come, and it will come, but when? It will come, when the Legislature awakes to the fact, that the children are the greatest asset that the country possesses, and that no sacrifice is too great to give them a sound, religious, moral, and intellectual training at an age when they can best receive it.

JOHN M. NOEL,
 March 12th, 1913.

At The Kirk To-morrow

The St. Andrew's choir, under the direction of Mr. Methuen has prepared some special music for to-morrow. Miss Strang will sing "The Palm" at the morning service and in the evening the choir will sing an anthem "They that trust in the Lord." Solo part by Miss Jean Strang. As Miss Jean Strang will soon be going abroad to continue her musical studies the St. John's public will not have many more opportunities of hearing her.

Theatrical.

A Tableau Company consisting of three gentlemen and two ladies have been engaged for the Casino Theatre. They are due here next week and will open on Easter Monday night. They have a large and varied repertoire and as such entertainments are very popular in the principal cities of America and England, they will no doubt find favor here.

Dangerous Practice.

The lads who wounded the dogs, as referred to in yesterday's Telegram, were of a type complained of repeatedly in its columns. These are boys who have been roving the country with 22 calibre revolvers and rifles and endangering peoples' lives. A few days ago a gentleman, head of a department of the Reid Nid. Co., while passing near Kenny's Pond, heard shots from these weapons whizzing round him, and he had to throw himself to the ground to escape being wounded. It is to be hoped that these boys will be caught.

Object of Charity.

A streak of illness seems to have followed Mr. John Croke, whose house with its effects and his sister were burned at St. Brendan's recently. The man was one of the crew of the boat and also, of course, met with another reverse in her, and went home in the Stella Maris last night. Last fall when coming home from the Labrador with a good catch of fish his vessel and fish was lost at Belle Isle. He had not a cent of insurance on either, neither was his house and furniture insured, and the poor fellow, who has several children, is certainly a worthy object of charity.

St. Patrick's Day at Holyrood

On the 15th of St. Patrick coming in Holy Week the Star of the Sea Association of Holyrood have dispensed with their annual parade for this year. The Bishop of Harbor Grace, Right Rev. J. March is sending a priest to officiate upon St. Patrick's Day and to preach a sermon on the life and labors of the illustrious Saint. The Amusement Committee of the Star of the Sea Association are giving a theatrical entertainment in their Hall at night, when the popular Irish drama "Con the Shanghrill" will be produced. The troupe is a fine combination, they are working hard, and promising well to eclipse any theatrical effort hitherto in Holyrood.

McMurdo's Store News.

SATURDAY, March 15, 1913.
 To-day we announce the coming of a new full stock of Foramin Tablets, of Sanatogen, both sizes, of which we have been out of stock for some little time.

Jergen's Violet Glycerine Soap continues to increase its popularity, as it is becoming known. There is no doubt that it is away ahead of most glycerine soaps in quality and perfumes. It has excellent emollient properties, and is a good hard soap and gives good value for the price. 50c. for two cakes; single cake, 15c.

Magisterial Enquiry Into Cause of Fire.

The enquiry into the cause of Thursday's conflagration, which destroyed so much property belonging to the Reid Nid. Co., began before Judge Knight last evening when the evidence of two witnesses was taken.

Mr. E. Duder (sworn)—I am foreman of the locomotive repair shop, which is situated on east side of Long Bridge. The building is divided into two apartments, separated by a stone arch. In one apartment repairs were effected to the engines, and in the other was machinery exclusively. There was also a small office on the south side and at the eastern end of the building. Mr. John Angel, general foreman, would be in charge of the shop. Mr. Ludley is superintendent of motor powers and is at present out of the country. The office is used by Mr. Angel and myself. I went to work 7 a.m. Thursday. I went in the tool room and signed up the checks of the men for the previous day. Then I came out and gave instructions to boilermaker North to go to the Round House to open the extension door of engine 112, as I wanted to examine the nozzle of the engine. Next I went round the shop and made a general inspection of the work being carried on. Then I entered the office and turned on the electric switch for the heater which heats the office. I changed my cap and left for the Round House, and was gone about 4 or 5 minutes when I heard the building was on fire. The main portion of the repair shop is heated by steam. There are no fires in the building except the fires which are lit in the portable forges during the day time when the men are working. The steam heating boiler is situated half way down the dock and about 50 yards from the shop which was burned. The locomotive shop is constructed of wood, concrete floor, roofed with felt and sides clapboarded. It was not sheathed inside and uprights were shown. There was a concrete arch running up about 12-feet from the floor. The building was fitted with air compressing attachments and were scattered all over the building. In the day time the air pressure would be continuously on, i.e. in the air compressor pipes. The air compressor must have been on when the fire started. Pipes were made of iron. There is a large main pipe going round the building, and adjoining were a number of smaller pipes. To these pipes are attached a valve and a hose, which is coupled up for testing purposes and for the use of pneumatic tools. In case of fire the pipes would break down and air would escape until shut off at the compressor. I think this would have a material effect to fan the flames. When I came down from the Round House, having heard of shop being on fire, the flames were coming through the eastern windows. The fire department had arrived but there was no water turned on. It was 2 or 3 minutes before the firemen had the first hose in operation. I started in to save some tools and at this time think the air compressor was shut off. I noticed the body of the fire to be in the western end of the building. Could not enter locomotive shop. The office was consumed with all its contents. The repair shop was eventually burned to the ground. There were 8 old engines in the building undergoing repairs and 4 new ones under construction. One of the latter was nearly finished. These engines with laths and machinery were destroyed. All the engines and a portion of the machinery can be repaired and put in good condition again. The office referred to contained blue paints, templates, a tin can containing 5 or 6 pounds of powder, some office furniture and my tools. The building was lit by electricity. The same service heated the office. Electricity was installed in latter place in September last. Never had any trouble with it. Connections and switches were in perfect order as far as I know. The office is separated from the main shop by a wooden partition. The explosion of the powder might have burned down the air compressor pipes. I can't form any opinion as to the origin of the fire. Everything was all right in the office when I left, and I left nobody behind me in the office.

Harry Seymour (sworn)—I am an apprentice engineer in the employ of the R. N. Co., and work in the locomotive repair shop. On Thursday morning I went to work at 7 o'clock through the eastern windows. The fire department had arrived but there was no water turned on. It was 2 or 3 minutes before the firemen had the first hose in operation. NEW YORK, To-day.

Plans for important preliminary work in connection with the celebration in 1915, of the one hundredth anniversary of peace between the English speaking people, dating from signing the Treaty of Ghent, shaped themselves rapidly yesterday, the outgoing of a meeting of the American sub-committee, appointed to prepare for the celebration. A conference between the representatives of the English speaking nations to discuss further plans will be called and will be held in this city, from May 5th to 8th next. British and Canadian committees have accepted invitations to attend the Conference, May ninth, the closing day of the conference, the American committee will hold its annual meeting. In the evening a dinner will be given to which President Wilson, Vice-President Marshall, and members of the Cabinet and Premier Borden will be invited. The celebration will take place in February, 1915, was decided. State Senator Root authorized a draft bill for the introduction into Congress and the various State legislatures making February 17th, 1915, a National State Holiday for Thanksgiving for Peace and Prayer for its continuance. The Bill provides for suspension of all travel business and recreation for five minutes after noon on that day. Special committees appointed to prepare a programme for May Conference to take up with yachting authorities, plans for international yacht race in connection with the celebration, and arrange for securing sessions important international congresses and conferences in America during celebration year. Premier Morris will act for Newfoundland.

Old Resident Dead.

The death occurred at Tor's Cove a few days ago of Mr. Martin Howlett. The deceased, who had reached the advanced age of 96 years, was a type of the hardy old-time fisherman, and for several years before and up to his 86th year he would fish alone in his punt and would often remain out in weather which would make others seek shelter. He is survived by several sons and daughters and has many grand and great grand children.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Sir.—The Morris Administration takes credit to itself for putting all sugars on the free list. To my mind, it is far from creditable to have placed Loaf and Cube sugars on the free list—these sugars are solely used by the so-called upper classes at their afternoon teas and bridge parties. People who can take their trips away and return with new clothing on their backs which don't pay the outrageous duty of 45 p.c. The duty on common soaps, such as the average fisherman uses, was advanced by the Morris Government to about 70 p.c. Probably Sir Ralph Williams had this in his "minds eye" when he assumed that the Newfoundland people were next to the "bores" in uncleanness.

Casino Last Night.
The Casino was well attended last evening, and the programme was most favorably commented on. The destruction of Pompeii, is one of the finest films ever presented in St. John's. The story which is an interesting one is depicted in a clever manner. No one should miss this great picture. "The Hospital Baby" is a marvellous picture, too, which delighted all present. "Training a Husband" is a sparkling comedy. To-night will be the last chance of seeing this great programme. The Casino closes to-night for Holy Week.

Irish Music!

P. J. KINSELLA.

Every Poet from Chaucer down to Austin has sung of Music and given immemorial tributes to divine harmony, but I think Keats' offering in his glorious "Eve of St. Agnes" is one of the most magnificent periods in our language.

"Music, thou glorious Spirit, Hall, thou of God's inspiration, Music, Minister of the golden tongue, Flatter to tears they who have suffered, they who have loved, they who now regret. Weave anew joys amidst their sorrows, Make the poor and aged Forget, make them Forget."

A very celebrated Irish Judge once asked a friend "If he remembered any period in his later years when a spirit of daring and (perhaps) utter boyish pugilism appealed to him?" replied, that "one St. Patrick's Day when he heard 'Garry Owen' and 'Father O'Flynn' played in a Meo town he experienced all the recklessness of youth, but when the band struck up 'St. Patrick's Day' he felt (with all due respect to the Saint) like going through a regiment." And he was right. Music in general has strange and varied powers. One moment it can cause to weep, and the next, move one to martial daring; but I think there is no national melody known, can affect and move the soul so rapidly as Irish music.

It has often been remarked, and often felt, that our music is the truer of all comments upon our history. The tone of defiance, succeeded by the languor of despondency, a burst of turbulence dying away into softness, the sorrows of one moment lost in the levity of the next, and all that romantic mixture of mirth and sadness, which is naturally produced by the efforts of a lively temperament. Such is Irish music. It is in one strain worthy of the honors as were won on the Field of Fontenoy, or with the plaintive melodies of Carillon tell us of peace and hope, of mingling regrets for the ties that once we knew, and for the days that once were ours. To speak of Irish music, one must simultaneously be reminded of Moore's Irish Melodies, the terms are identical, synonymous. The Irish Melodies were written by Thomas Moore in the year 1807-10, and were arranged and set to their present beautiful airs by Sir John Stevenson, an Irish gentleman of repute, and who brought to the task a national feeling that is expressed in every note of those magnificent compositions. The late Sir Henry Irving was asked once what he thought of the Irish Melodies, and made this delightful answer: "The loveliest words in the language are worthy surely of the grandest airs." Truly no more genuine and happy tribute could be paid to those splendid Irish songs.

In looking over a collection of the Irish Melodies, there are so many beautiful lines to quote that one hardly knows which to praise most. In that tender melody "Has sorrow thy young days shaded?" the concluding stanza is indeed an epigram and a delight.

"If thus the young hours have fled
When sorrow itself looked bright,
If thus the fair hope hath cheated
That led thee along so light,
If thus the cold world now wither
Each feeling that once was dear,
Come, child of misfortune, come hither
I'll weep with thee—tear for tear."

The immemorial and beautiful melody "Tis the last Rose of Summer" is said to have been a favorite recitation and song with our lamented late King Edward, and its words are surely worthy of the remembrance of everybody. But perhaps the grandest air in the whole of the Irish Melodies is given to the composition "The Meeting of the Waters," and the beautiful words are certainly deserving of it.

"There is not in the wide world
A valley so sweet

Steel Fleet All Jammed.

Last evening, Mr. R. B. Job had the following wireless message from the captain of the Nascope:

"Bellaventure, Bonaventure, Diana, Erik, Bloodhound and Eagle, all here jammed together, trying to force to westward; took two families of hoods this morning; Florizel and Stephano twelve miles to eastward also jammed; Diana took whitecoat yesterday 50 miles E.N.E. of the Barracks; our position 50 miles N.E. 1/2 E. of the Funks; no seals cut yet; Sagona and Ranger east of us; Raymond Tiller and Augustus Carter who escaped from the Beothic, via the Bonaventure, in the collision, on board."

This is the first time that the larger of the steel ships have been reported jammed and, no doubt, the ice is exceptionally heavy this spring.

Marine Notes.

The s.s. Tobasco is due on Monday from Liverpool.

The scho. Milred is now awaiting a favorable chance to sail for Brazil. The brig. Rosina has reached Pernambuco after a 41 days' passage.

CREW SENT HOME.—It has been definitely decided that the s.s. Beothic will not go to the icefields, and Mr. R. B. Job has effected arrangements for the transportation of the crew, to their homes in Bonavista Bay. The most of the Beothic's crew left by last evening's train. The remainder will go home to-day.

As the vale in whose bosom
The bright waters meet;
Oh—the fast rays of feeling
And life must depart.
Ere the bloom of that valley
Shall fade from my heart.

Sweet vale of Avoca
How calm could I rest
In thy bosom of shade
With the friends I love best.
When the storms that we feel
In this cold world should cease,
And our hearts, like thy waters,
'Be mingled in peace."

Irish music is known and played the world over, and in the most celebrated musical circles is often requested as a prelude to the heavier but not more charming Operatic Cantatas. Warner in his history of Ireland mentions the story of a soldier named O'Halloran who heard the "Song of O'Quark" played in the temple of "Medenot Haboo" in Egypt, and the simple Irish melody was so touching and so plaintive that the heart of the white was moved to tears. It is most striking, too, that the airs set to those melodies seem most suited, the very spirit and thought of the poetry are most truly expressed in the sad and plaintive harmonies which gives expression, and the power of the music is so great over the minds of the ardent and susceptible, that it becomes a stimulus which quickens taste and feeling into enthusiasm.

Another one of the beautiful Irish Melodies is the well known "Oft in the stilly night"

Oft in the stilly night
Ere slumbers' chains has bound me,
Fond memory brings the light
Of other days around me.

Moore wrote many brilliant things, but we love and honor him best because of his gift to us of the Irish Melodies. His "Lalla Rookh" is imperishable, whilst connoisseurs declare that his "humorous and satirical" poems are masterpieces of epigram; but Irishmen will always know him best when they hear the good old Irish airs on St. Patrick's Day. When the blood is fired and the brow flushes with the enthusiasm of memory's power, when a single melody most naturally expresses the language of feeling and of passion, and when experiencing this as we do, we more knowingly trace a vein of Irish sentiment which points us out as peculiarly suited to catch the spirit of our country's music.

Moore again most truly speaks here—
"Music, oh, how faint, how weak,
Language fades before thy spell—
Why should feeling ever speak
When thou canst breathe her soul
so well?
Friendship's balmy words may feign,
Love's are e'en more false than they,
Oh—'tis only music's strain
Can sweetly soothe, and not betray."

Let us hope that now the shadow which has so long been around the Old Land is soon to be removed by just legislation, these words of the poet may be a pessimism:

"The harp that once thro' Tara's halls
The soul of music shed,
Now hangs as mute on Tara's walls
As if that soul were fled,
So sleeps the pride of former days,
So glory's thrill is o'er,
And hearts that once beat high for praise
Shall feel that pulse no more."

Instead let us pray heaven that soon it may be, when—
"The harp once more in Tara's hall
Makes tuneful music away,
And bid the mournful shadows fall
'Neath glorious freedom's day;
Once more the pride of former hours
With glory's pean entice
That peace once known midst Mor-na's bowers
And Irish hearts rejoice."

Naval Stoker Killed

While on her voyage from Bermuda to Gibraltar, on January 26th, H.M.S. Cornwall, the big cruiser which visited St. John's with a number of cadets last summer, had a bad time of it. Stoker, Sydney Cutbert, well known here, fell in the engine room, from the ship's rolling, and sustained such terrible injuries, that he died in an hour. He was buried at sea with naval honors. Some of the cadets and crew also received cuts and bruises.

HOUSE of ASSEMBLY

Opposition Continues "Third Degree" -- Government Being Brought to Time on the Estimates--Debate on Police Vote

FRIDAY, March 14.

The good work of the loyal Oppositionists in the Assembly was continued yesterday when the session opened, and he was a poor observer of human nature who could not discern on the countenances of the occupants of the Government benches from the Premier down to the latest "recruit" a reflection of the surprise and dismay they entertain on witnessing such talent for getting at the root of things and such a reserve of political sagacity and acumen as that displayed by the comparatively small though doughty workers who sit at the right of the Speaker's chair. The unexpected ability and unimagined versatility in debate possessed by the Opposition members has disconcerted as well as surprised the Government forces so that they are on their best behaviour and show that they entertain a wholesome respect for their opponents. One of the first and most important matters on the tapis yesterday was the discussion of a largely signed petition from the residents of St. George's praying for a Branch Railway from Stephenville to Port au Port spoken to by the Premier who referred to the disabilities of the people of that place and St. Barbe labouring under in the past, the splendid possibilities of the districts in many ways and the intention of doing partial if not full justice to these places in future. Sir Edward gave interesting statistics as to the growth of the population of these important parts of the country. They were in the remote past taken jointly and in 1857 their population was 3,300; in 1874 an increase had been recorded but in 20 years they had doubled and totalled 8,600. They were given representation in 1882 when the late Michael Cary was elected for St. George's, and the late Mr. Boone, for St. Barbe. In 1884 St. George's had 5,400 of a population and St. Barbe 6,500, and in 1891 their respective populations were 6,500 and 8,200; in 1901, 9,000 and 8,184, and last year, respectively, 11,800 and 12,000 or roundly for the districts 20,000. He thought these districts would quadruple themselves in a few years and he traced their history up to the time in 1904 when the mortgage which the French had on them was raised by British diplomacy impelled by local agitation and French "rights" were exchanged for an exchange of British territory in Africa thereby causing further possibilities for growth and development for these two promising countries.

Mr. Kent had listened to the Premier's speech on the matter with pleasure. One of the greatest problems of railways and railway enterprise was development. These two sections, St. George's and St. Barbe, held in themselves some of the greatest promises relating to the future of Nfld. and not a year passed that they did not hear of the great resources that were discovered in the earth or grew on the surface or of the great products the soil was capable of producing. St. George's was already forging well ahead in the matter of agricultural pursuits. Its farmers were numerous and settled on rich soil and had a great future before them. The first great resource was coal, with copper, lime and other natural assets well worthy of development. The same might be applied to St. Barbe which is also one of the most promising agricultural sections in the country. This petition asks for a railway and is well worthy the favourable consideration of the Government and he thought it was their duty to enquire into the conditions prevailing there and to see how far our financial circumstances and the possible returns from this projected railway would allow them to go in according to the request of the petitioners and he felt sure that the Government would recognize its obvious duty in the premises.

THE SUPPLY BILL.

The House having gone into Committee on Supply.

Mr. Kent referred to the lack of any satisfactory or correct information regarding surveys. He referred to the number of documents burned in the big fire of 1892. The surveys of allotments of land were destroyed in the Surveyor General's Office of the time and all that information by which the land held by private owners for collection are placed or plotted on the maps and plans now in the offices of the Crown Lands is made up from time to time as either old grants or new grants are issued. The result is that the plans are very incorrect not being taken from any survey of the lands itself, but the individual cases or leases are plotted and placed on plans in the office itself. He had occasion to visit the offices for clients and in every case found overlapping on the plans that exist. This should be remedied as the rights of many individual land owners were affected. He cited a case where two parties had what they considered separate pieces of land surveyed in St. John's East, they had applied for and had grants issued, and when they went to get their diagrams they found both pieces of land overlapping. He (Mr. Kent) with the clerk adjusted the matter but it entailed considerable expense on the individuals concerned, and he could cite similar cases during the past four years. The time is come to replace these plans with correct and up to date plans of the granted and ungranted lands of the city.

Hon. Minister of Agriculture and Mines (Mr. Blandford) said that the Deputy was giving the matter his earnest attention with a view of doing for the lands what Mr. Kent had suggested.

His name having been mentioned for a vote in the Estimates, Mr. Kent asked as to the position and status on the civil list of Mr. James Spratt. He showed that he received as much as Mr. Churchill, the Superintendent of Public Works in salary, when the Premier pointed out that his duties were to look after the proper construction of concrete and mason work at which he was an expert and that his function was to see work in this line properly and satisfactorily performed.

Mr. Kent now referred to the various duties performed by Mr. Power, as Magistrate of Bell Island. He had seen this official day after day deal with just as heavy and responsible a docket as could be seen any day in the District Court in St. John's. His civil jurisdiction and the amount of business he transacts was astonishing and the time was come when the importance of the magistrate's position on Bell Island, should be recognized. He showed by comparison with the stipends of other magistrates that $750 was utterly insufficient for this man and hoped the Minister of Justice would grant an increase.

The Hon. Minister of Justice, Mr. Morison, referred as to the justice of some increase for Mr. Power, but could not see how at present it could be granted.

PLEA FOR THE POLICE.

In connection with the votes for the Department of Justice, Mr. Kent spoke in the strongest possible terms of the unfair manner in which the police were treated in the matter of salary. It is simply disgraceful to expect men to work at this particular juncture for the pittance which the police get for the important service they render to the public. They will however, get little fair play or satisfaction from the present Government and nothing will be done for them this session. However, next session, when Sir Robert Bond and the Liberal Government are in power, the police can rest assured of more equitable treatment.

Mr. Kent said that he had brought this matter before the Minister of Justice the past two sessions, and was sorry to see that the estimates now brought down, did not indicate that the desire he then expressed, would be complied with. All would agree with him that the police and firemen were very poorly paid. It was a position that required the very best type of manhood to perform. They had, police and firemen, to work under circumstances the most trying to a human being. In all kinds of weather, under most trying circumstances the police should be about protecting us while we slept, and we seldom stop to think what the policeman actually means to us. A man must be in the force 15 years before he earned $1.25 per day. Compare that with the way the police were paid in other cities and we can see that we pay the police less than any other country in the world. With their large increases the past four years, the Government could well afford now to deal justly with these deserving parties the police and firemen, the latter being men who faced extreme danger and who protected hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of property. As regarded the police they got the service of the best young men at $1 per day, increasing to $1.10 after one year's service, $1.15 after 5 years, and $1.25 after 15 years of service. Looking at the cost of living at present and the demands on the policeman, it is only reasonable to suppose that they should be given at least a living wage. These men (or those who were married), must educate children, feed, clothe, and house them and at what a salary. Those who do not live in barracks get for rent the sum of $48, but any person with experience knows that this amount will not secure for a man a respectable dwelling. The cost of coal was also a factor in household economy with them, and it was now prohibited. This condition of affairs applied to the St. John's policemen, particularly, as he has to pay the city taxes which the outport policeman was not asked to bear. He was sorry that the Minister of Justice could not see his way clear to make a thorough revision of the police pay rolls, as the Liberal Party did some years ago, when the Prime Minister of to-day was in the Justice Department. This now was utterly inadequate, and as the Minister of Justice could meet this matter and revise the salaries, when additional estimates came up he (Mr. Kent) hoped he would do so and give police and firemen a liberal living wage to which they were so justly entitled.

Hon. Mr. Morison Minister of Justice, said that while on the question of salaries, in the Department of Justice, he was sorry that Mr. Kent did not evince that sympathy for the head of the Department that he held for the police and firemen. Mr. Kent here interjected that that gentleman could well look after his own interests, and the outcome was that Mr. Morison could not see that the members of the force were after all so badly paid. The Government must cut its cloth according to its measure and though thousands of dollars were squandered in useless salaries for Agricultural "experts" for bulls, exhibitions and contingencies, not one cent could be granted the police and firemen who protect the police. The Premier, Sir E. P. Morris, also pointed out the very "liberal" pay the police on the whole receive, and could not see that an increase for them was so absolutely necessary. He gave interesting data (he is strong on statistics always), as to the amounts the police receive and their lines have fallen in such pleasant places, according to the Premier that we must wonder how they can spend their bulging salaries in the short space of a year. Sir Edward said that there were no gratters in our police force. Well, hardly, and for obvious reasons. The present "People's Party" save the mark, can do all the shady to be done around this little domain and they do not want the help of the police to do it either. They are perfectly capable themselves.

Mr. Kent said he was sorry but he had not the sympathy with the Minister of Justice that he, the Minister might think. He believed that the $2,000 per year (he the Minister receives) was not the limit of his bills on the Exchequer. He said the Premier sympathized with the firemen and police but not with the men who protect the men could not live on sympathy. He then made a vigorous onslaught on the Government for the truculent and unfair policy they had evinced towards the police and it is not the fault of the Opposition that these deserving men (police and firemen) were not treated with fair play.

Mr. Clift—in connection with a vote for the Tuberculosis Hospital asked about the proposed sanatoria, when the Premier said that last year a vote of $20,000 had been taken to defray the expenses for the past year. Plans were drawn up for them by a Specialist in Canada at the request of the donors, and the general sanatoria in St. John's will cost from $75,000 to $100,000. The Government has been looking round for suitable localities to build them in the outports. Several sites about St. John's were available but none were yet decided upon. The Messrs. Reid would not alone build and equip that at St. John's but these in the Outports. The Opposition severely criticised several other votes in the Estimates.

Mr. Clapp also opposed proceeding any further with the Estimates. He was in possession of correspondence from White Bay complaining both of the mail service as well as the coastal service. The Col. Secretary and P. M. G. were also in receipt of complaints of a like nature and from which no satisfaction could be obtained. Mr. Clapp then asked if it was the intention of the Government to look into the matter before the passage of the Postal Estimates. He was informed the service was never worse.

Quite a number of petitions were presented including one from Mr. Clapp for a road from the Riverhead of White Bay, which he declared to be badly needed and for which he made a strong appeal supported by the Premier. The Premier gave notice of Resolutions for a railway from Quebec to Labrador, and quite a number of questions were answered including one asked for by Mr. Dwyer re expenses of agricultural stations and farm, showing that up to the 12th inst. that for printing, salaries and other items that $698.30 had been paid and the farm and stables sold for $7,500 to Harold Macpherson.

The House adjourned till 3 p.m. on Tuesday.
