THE FATE OF A FENIAN.

FOOLHOUND GUILTY OF THE MURDER OF KENNY.

Sentence of Death Passed—Evidence of Guilt, the Informer—A Long Excited Speech by the Prisoner.

DUBLIN, Nov. 20.—The jury found Poole guilty of the murder of Kenny after forty minutes' deliberation. The court sentenced the prisoner to death. He addressed the court and admitted he was a Fenian. He cursed England and called for "three cheers for the Irish republic."

Liam, brother-in-law of the prisoner, testified today that he at first thought Kenny had been an informer, but he now believed that revenge for the abduction of a girl led to the murder.

Poole will be hanged Dec. 18. The judge in passing sentence was deeply affected. He said the evidence led to the jury no alternative and he quite concurred in their verdict of guilty.

Before he was sentenced, Poole spoke at length, earnestly at times and in excited tones. He emphatically denied that he was a Fenian. He said he would be proud to go to the scaffold for being one. The object of the Fenian Brotherhood was not to commit murder but to free Ireland from tyrannical rule. He acknowledged he was able to distinguish objects for the first time in 14 years. He had been blind and paralysed, and the shock caused by the blow he received on the head awakened the sensibility of the dormant brain. Maybe died some time after he was taken home yesterday.

The writer expresses regret at having joined the organization, and says every eye is watching the other, that he is a paid officer, that he must keep himself acquainted with the whereabouts of 228 men, to whom he is required to hand sealed orders, that everything in society is done with the greatest secrecy, and that the members of the society are members of the same profession as it is known to headquarters when a member receives a visit and shows B-named had married her the same day, and that he had had several other wives, and that he had had several other wives, and that he had had several other wives.

A CENTRAL PRISON BLAZE.

DISTRIBUTION OF THE WOODENWARE WORKSHOPS.

Loss priced at from $15,000 to $20,000—Fully Covered by Insurance—No Alarm Among the Convicts.

At 5 o'clock last evening about 80 convicts quit work in the woodenware shop in the central prison yard. Half an hour afterwards a fire broke out in the southeast corner of the building on the second floor. This workshop is leased by Messrs. C. T. Brandon & Co., who manufacture all kinds of woodenware. The shop is 200 feet long, 50 feet wide, two stories high, and like the prison itself is built of white brick. It is situated immediately behind the north wing of the prison proper and only about twenty feet from the main wall.

The premises were well filled with woodenware of different kinds in various stages of completion. The origin of the fire could not be traced to any definite article. The men left work at 5 o'clock exactly, when everything was apparently all right. The night guards commenced duties at 5.30, and when one of them reached the yard he noticed the fire just breaking out. A telegraphic message was at once sent to the Toronto Bridge company's works near by and box 65 in three minutes was notified. The five sections of the fire brigade east of Yonge street at Court street contingent were called out.

Warden Massey at once gave orders to the guards in charge of each corridor to notify the prisoners that there was no alarm, and that the fire had nearly been extinguished. The men were all in the hands of the 150 or so of prisoners confined in the north wing.

The firemen found plenty of water in the prison grounds and they were not long in getting the fire under control, although the flames had gained great headway before the first stream was thrown on it. Eleven ladders were kept at work steadily and by 7.30 the fire had nearly burned itself out. At this hour a heavy fall of rain commenced to descend, which put the finishing touches on the firemen's efforts. The water in the shop was left standing, but the interior was as thoroughly gutted as possible. At the east end of the shop were the boiler and engine; the fire was first noticed in a corner.

The exact amount of the loss and insurance could not be ascertained last night. The building was constructed by the government. Also the boiler and engine, the shafting and a portion of the machinery in the shop were lost. The loss is estimated at $15,000 to $20,000. The insurance company is expected to cover the loss.
