THREE MORE BOYS TO GO TO REFORMATORY

Boys Who Tapped Mr. McDade's Till Plead Guilty in Police Court, and Implicate Peter Moran of St. Patrick Street.

Three more boys must go to the reformatory for stealing, but for how long has not yet been decided. They are Harold Chamberlain, twelve years old, John McDonald, the same age, and Willie Clayton, aged eleven. McDonald seems to have been the ring leader of the group, and the fathers of Chamberlain and Clayton, who were in court today, blame him for influencing their boys to do wrong.

JUDGE WEDDERBURN SCORES A PRISONER

Donald B. Kennedy Before King's County Court on Abduction Charge--Severely Censured by the Judge and Remanded for Sentence.

HAMPTON, N. B., June 24 (Special).—At the adjourned session of the King's county court this morning, Judge Wedderburn continued his hearing of the case in which Donald B. Kennedy is charged with the abduction of Elsie Boone, the fifteen year old daughter of Fred Boone, of Apohaqui, on June 1st. A number of additional witnesses were in court ready to give evidence, but before any of them were placed on the stand J. M. McIntyre, counsel for the accused, said he would give "evidence" and to plead guilty of the charge as set forth in the indictment from her home with the prisoner, he urged that his honor extend such mercy as he might in delivering sentence.

JAP OFFICER IN DISGUISE

He Purported to be the Representative of a Japanese Syndicate But It Did Not Work.

GALVESTON, Texas, June 23.—O. Ayuna, purporting to be the representative of a Japanese syndicate interested in the colonization of his countrymen in Texas, was arrested here Saturday afternoon by an officer in the Mikado's army. A document bearing the royal seal was found in his possession showing that he was a captain of artillery. Ayuna admits he has had military service for many years, but vows that he is now an aviator.

RESTORATION OF UNION ST.

Sub-Committee of the Board of Works Had It Under Consideration This Morning.

A meeting of the sub-committee of the board of works, which was appointed to have charge of the restoration of Union street, west end, was held this morning, and considerable business discussed. An offer from J. S. Gregory for supplying timber was accepted. It was arranged that the offer of the C. P. R. for the use of their big pipe-driver at a nominal rental of $5 a day, be accepted, and that C. P. R. employees be placed on the work and the city pay their wages.

BROWNSVILLE INVESTIGATION WAS MERELY LAUGHABLE FARSE

Negro Witnesses Had Evidently Rehearsed Their Stories Many Times--Roosevelt's Original Action Entirely Confirmed.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 20.—The long drawn out Brownsville investigation is practically terminated, and the charges against the negro troops is naturally charged at the outcome of the investigation though he should have known almost from the first what it would be. He has been hoisted by his own petard, as it were, in his opposition to the president in the matter of the ill-fated march. His stubborn resistance to regulation has attended him through this case. Those who know him intimately are surprised that he should have suffered from the strain and annoyance of the nervous and alarming degree, and that his nervous system should have been so seriously affected. Certainly during the examination of the witnesses he has been one of the most difficult and pettifogging of men. He has been so far from being a witness, he has been a hindrance to the investigation, and his conduct has been a disgrace to the military service.

METHOD CONFERENCE

THE SCHOOL FOR THE DEAF

Closing Exercises Will Be Held in the Opera House Tomorrow Afternoon.

The summer closing of the New Brunswick School for the deaf will be held at the Opera House tomorrow afternoon at three o'clock. A very interesting programme has been prepared. The principal, G. W. Haswell, talking with the Times today said that the pupils had made excellent progress during the year and he was more than satisfied with the results of the examinations. No changes will be made in the teaching staff for the winter season and the thirty-eight pupils as well as the teachers will spend the summer holidays at their homes. There are seventeen male and twenty-one female pupils in the institution at present, ranging from six to twenty years.

Callaghan-Gilson

A pretty wedding was solemnized this morning at 9 o'clock in the Cathedral, when Timothy Callaghan, of Little River, was united in marriage by Rev. A. W. Meahan, rector of the Cathedral parish, to Miss Charlotte Gilson, daughter of Daniel Gilson, Mill street.

Hiram's Fish Story

In the country market this morning Mr. Hiram Hornbeam listened attentively to a fish story. A man from the Washington region was the raconteur. He told of fishing through the ice in a small lake in winter, when the trout came out just as they were thawing. As it was he caught pneumonia after he had both and has never been the same since.

THE TIMES NEW REPORTER

As Hiram listened to this yarn his eyes narrowed and one foot seemed somewhat restless. He lost no time when the other man had finished, in giving the whistlers a preliminary stroke and plunging into the relation of the following story: "I mind one time when I was a young fellow I went out on a little lake back of my place and started to row in an old tub to catch some trout. Just after I got started I saw a kind of ripple on the water on the other side. I turned and looked over the bow of the boat, and there was another ripple, bigger than the first. Now what if you jump it? It was fish, yes, sir. Sort of body-guard by Hen. I saw the ripple, but I didn't see the fish. I kept watchin' the head of the ripple, and there it came. Great fish, when I got my line, I saw it was just at the deepest hole in the lake. Well, sir, I got out my gear, and got ready to fish, and there wasn't a ripple to be seen nowhere. But all at once I jumps a fish on one side and falls into the boat. Then another one come in from the other side. They began to come over both sides and the ends. I seen in a minute what they was up to. They wanted to sink the boat. I grabbed the oars, with trout jumps a fish on one side and over me an' tried to make for the shore. But the boat wouldn't move. They was a wall of trout all round me. In just about minute they sunk down till the water began to run through a crack in the side. I seen it wasn't no use, so I just stood up, run out on the back of the wall of trout on the side nearest the shore, and jumped in an swim ashore. That was the greatest experience I ever had trout fishin'. Great fish—ain't it?"

TWO BULLETS IN THE BODY

DALHOUSIE, June 24 (Special).—The second autopsy on the body of the late Peter Fontaine was held on Saturday by Doctor Martin, of Campbell, before Coroner Ferguson, and while no official statement has been made, the impression is that two bullets were found on the body, of calibre .32. The doctor's report will be made when the inquest is resumed on Tuesday. Mrs. Fontaine, the widow, returned here from Fall River on Saturday.

FIRE ON THE S. S. ABERDEEN

It's Timely Discovery Fortunately Prevented Another Tragedy on the River.

Had it not been for the timely discovery of fire on the S. S. Aberdeen, the Crystal Stream's rival steamer might also have been burned on Saturday morning. The Aberdeen had just left Laskey's Wharf, when Mr. Laskey, who was standing on the wharf noticed the canvas covering one of the boats on fire. He immediately shouted to those on board and the fire was immediately extinguished. Only the canvas was destroyed. The Aberdeen is a wood-burner, and it is the belief that a spark fell on the canvas, and it ignited. It is fortunate that Mr. Laskey saw the blaze as the boat was on the upper dock and the fire might have gotten considerable headway before being discovered by those on board.

THEY SHOT THE CHUTES

The lively nooks in Rockwood Park enticed a great many men and women there last evening and the shoot-the-chutes caused many youths to wend their way in that direction. Despite the fact that the shoot-the-chutes was not in working order a crowd of small boys used boards and enjoyed excellent sliding on the new structure. They were watched by a number of citizens. The small boys had been enjoying themselves for some time when three big boys decided to shoot-the-chutes on two boards. They started at the top and their weight evidently caused the chutes to start moving. They went down much faster than the small boys. They lost control of the boards and their feet struck the boards at the bottom of the shoot-the-chutes and the young men, with their new suits, went up in the air and it heard first in the water.

THE BLUE DIAMOND

BY ALICE AND CLAUDE ASKEW. Authors of "The Shapamits," "Eve-and the Law," "Gilded London," "The Premier's Daughter," "The House Next Door," Etc.

(Continued.) Fenton made his way into the house, and had used the knowledge he possessed to force the strong-room. The safe which contained the papers had been clearly described to him by Spencer Stern. He had opened it, knowing the secret of the spring. He had seen the wonderful array of jewels, the same that had been paraded before Stern's own eyes in the afternoon. The temptation had been too much for him. He had seized them and began to fill his pockets.

And then Baron Geldenstein himself had appeared upon the scene, disturbed by a noise, perhaps, or perhaps merely paying his usual nocturnal visit to his treasures. "The darling—the beautiful!" Stern could remember how the master, the moonstruck had spoken. Yes, probably that was the explanation, and it was due to his miserly instincts that Baron Geldenstein had met his death.

The Jew must have cried out in amazement and horror when he recognized his friend, the man he had trusted, telling his wife he had attempted to lay hands upon Fenton, who had struck out in self-defence, struck, slain, and fled, his pockets filled with the proceeds of his robbery, littering the floor, perhaps in his haste with articles that he could not carry.

Had he secured the papers too? It was very doubtful if he had brought himself very often in the excitement of the moment, more doubtful still if he had secured them, he would keep his appointment to meet Spencer Stern that night, for the papers were safe in his pocket, and he had but to exchange them with Stern for the promised cash.

It was going on for midnight when he reached the little club in Bloomsbury, where he was wholly unpretentious place, frequented mainly by betting men and those who loved gambling. It had somehow escaped the attention of the police, for "Fenton" had been called the night before, was an astute man, and knew how to keep on the right side of the law while habitually breaking it.

A long, low room, with a bar at one end and a few tables at the other, a sand floor, and walls discolored by smoke and the accumulated grime of years; it was into such a room that Fenton made his way. It was here that he expected to meet Spencer Stern. A few men were lounging over the bar, a few were seated at a small table engaged in playing faro by means of the time-honored device of four wooden matches in place of the actual cards. It was still rather early, and the habitual frequenter of the club had not yet put in an appearance. Later, "chemin-defer" became the order of the night, but this would be played in an upstairs room specially adapted for it.

Fenton strolled up to the bar and ordered a drink. He had been drinking heavily all the afternoon, and this, combined with unworldly nervousness, rendered him talkative and excitable. The men at the bar were discussing the murder. It was very natural that they should do so, for Baron Geldenstein was known to most of them. They looked at him a little suspiciously, Fenton thought, but he assumed an air of bravado, and joined in the discussion, giving his own opinions as to how the crime had been committed. There was a strange or present—a big, fat man—and it was with him that Fenton entered into an argument—in this spite of a discreet nudge administered by "Fenton" Stern himself, who, a little while before, had been discussing the same subject with the fair man.

"Fenton" Stern knew how to exercise discretion in the presence of a detective—as was the fair man in question—and usually managed to keep on his right side. At present he was aware that the doings of his own club were not the object of attention. After a while Fenton took his drink and seated himself in the neighborhood of the faro players. He was growing impatient, and as the game proceeded his impatience and irritability increased. Why could not Spencer Stern keep his appointment? Why did he not put in an appearance? The thing was absurd. The little, wizened, ugly man sat there lowering and angry. He must take the first morning train out of London, and there was business to be attended to. He swore under his breath, and tried to interest himself in the game. One hour, two hours passed, and still Spencer Stern remained absent. At length Fenton could stand it no longer. He must go and manage as best he could with the little money in his possession. He must communicate with Stern later. But the papers in his possession? He did not want them, they were only evidence against himself if found. He had better leave them and a letter with one of Spencer Stern's friends. He looked about him for a reliable person to whom to confide them. His eyes rested on Colonel Strangeway, who had just risen from the faro table, having played and won a good round sum. Colonel Strangeway—the very man!

FOR DRESSY WEAR, THE SILK SKIRT AND COAT.

For dressy street wear, the smartest and most practical thing the business woman can have is the silk tailored suit. Very smart indeed are those with golden brown taffeta coat and skirt of the same material in a brown and white check. In this instance each gore of the skirt is strapped with plain brown silk. Above the hem there is a band of the plain silk, and reversing the usual order of things, the hem is turned up on the outside of the skirt and cut in tabs, and each gore is finished with a point extending above the pocket. These tabs are finished with tiny roses of plain and checked silk. The coat is a ribbon model, the broad pleates both front and back extending well out over the top of the full sleeve. The bottom of the jacket is finished with three tiny skirts which come just about two inches below the natural waistline. These are piped with the checked silk as are the high sleeve cuffs. The turnover collar rolls over a pleating of fine linen, edged with embroidery, and there is a dainty vest of white linen carrying Egyptian embroidery. Checked silk buttons with brown bone rims are set above the waistline in groups of six on either side of the front and the collar is seemingly held in place by two or more of these silk roll, high crowned shapes in shiny golden brown straw, trimmed with varicolored pantries and two shades of ribbon, while the parasol is one of the new rose petal models in golden brown.

HOW TO TEST FLOUR How to know when food stuffs are "good" is a puzzle that faces the inexperienced housekeeper at every turn. From market to butcher, from butcher to grocer, the same perplexity awaits her, but she can escape many mistakes by keeping a few simple tests in mind. Flour, for example, should be kept in a cool, dry place, and should have some elasticity, some "bite," as the millers express it. When made into dough it will be elastic, easy to knead, and will retain its shape when rolled out. The best flour to use is the best quality of both, with their faults eliminated. This Blended Flour stands every test. It has always gained a deserved popularity in the esteem of good housekeepers, and in fact they declare the Blended Flour is far ahead of any other that can be had.

THE BEST WAY TO ASSURE YOURSELF OF THE QUALITY OF FLOUR IS TO BUY A LITTLER OF IT. It is always good, and you can be sure, however, if you begin by using Blended Flour, then you won't want to use any other. Blended Flour is certainly best for bread, and best for pastry.

EIGHT MEN WERE KILLED AND THIRTY-FIVE SERIOUSLY HURT

This Tells the Grim Story of Awful Train Wreck on New Haven Railway.

Hartford, Conn., June 23—Eight workmen were killed and 35 injured when a passenger train on the Highland division of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railway crashed into the rear end of a work train that was backing into the city from New Britain tonight at Signourney street crossing. Of the injured two are not expected to recover. The wreck is one of the worst that has occurred here in years. Dead and dying were strewn along the sides of the track while unfortunate victims horribly mutilated were beneath the wreckage, some pinned amid a mass of tangled iron and wood. Their groans and appeals for aid moved the rescuers to desperation, and brave men worked till prostrated in an attempt to extricate the sufferers. Some of the victims within easy reach were dead, and after this fact was definitely ascertained, they were left while the rescuers united in getting the living out of their desperate positions. In one instance it took an hour and a half to rescue one workman who was pinned between the tracks. His head was hanging down backwards. He suffered untold agonies, but the rescuers kept encouraging him while doctors reached behind the framework which held him a prisoner and treated the wounds on his face and head.

There are three unofficial versions of the manner in which the wreck occurred. One is that the passenger train for New Britain went out on track No. 2 instead of track No. 1. The second is that the work train had the right of way until 7 o'clock and should have had a clear track, that the passenger train was ahead of time at that point. The third is that the work train opened a switch and failed to close it, thus making the collision possible, but this version is generally discarded. It is understood that all the trains on the division today operated on track No. 1, thus leaving the other track to the work train, whose crew have been employed repairing the rails. The engineer of the work train claims that he had the right of way and his statements are borne out by other witnesses. Engineer Wilson, of the passenger train, jumped in time to escape injury. The passengers, however, were badly shaken up and some were cut by flying glass.

The 4 o'clock express from New York was held up about half an hour directly ahead of the wreck. The 7.10 express, north, passed on an adjoining track, soon after the accident and "side swiped" the wreckage. When the news of the accident reached the city a squad of police were detailed and they had hard work keeping the horde of people who came from all directions, from the scene. There was danger all of the time because the wreck cars had to be maintained in an upright position by stays, while the rescuers were underneath battling to save the lives of the victims. During the excitement fire broke out and the department was summoned. After quenching the flames, the firemen became rescuers and with axes and saws worked until the arrival of a squad of fifty railroad wreckers. A half dozen priests were early at the scene and administered the last rites to some of the sufferers. Soon after the wreck while an investigation was being made to ascertain the whereabouts of the living victims, one man underneath several tons of debris was seen waving a red flag. Some one reached in twelve hours, and God knows I need it." He had a terrible gash in his neck and is one of the hospital patients who is in a critical condition. At St. Francis Hospital there are 31 victims tonight. The doctors say that two of them cannot live, and they are unable to give any detailed information regarding the condition of the rest. At the Hartford hospital there are four injured and none of them fatally.

10,000 IN PARADE

St. Jean Baptiste Day Celebrated in Montreal Yesterday.

Montreal, June 23—Seven sections representing the eastern division of the St. Jean Baptiste Society celebrated the French-Canadian national festival today by a procession through the streets and attending grand mass. There was a big turnout, it being estimated that more than 10,000 took part in the demonstration. The chief feature of the procession were several decorated cars bearing the living symbols of the celebration in the shape of little tots of boys dressed in the traditional lambskin breeches, leaving bare their shoulders and arms. The big celebration will take place tomorrow.

MORE BOYS IN JAIL

Three more small boys are in jail on the serious charge of entering a shop on different occasions late at night and robbing the till. One of them says he spent the money for cigarettes and candy. The father of one boy says he has tried hard to keep him at school, but he has got into bad company and plays truant. One of the boys has a brother now in the reformatory.

POOR ENCOURAGEMENT

If forty-five young men and boys were seen together, conducting themselves in a manner that suggested vicious tendencies, start in life, the citizens would throw up their hands in horror, and bewail the degenerate spirit of the age. Even if the group did no more than light cigarettes and line up on the street corners, exhorting on the sidewalk, and occasionally taking something warranted alms, they would be subjected to some criticism.

ARE WE MARKING TIME

The man-on-the-street is not always an authority; indeed, he is sometimes quite wrong in his conclusions. But not infrequently his remarks are worthy of some attention. Now the man-on-the-street asserts that there is too much delay in connection with the work on the west side of the harbor, and he may be right. The matter is worth looking into. If there is one thing more than another that St. John business men should take a lively personal interest in at the present time, outside of their own particular business affairs, it is the question of the new steamship berths and the completion of the work laid out in time for next winter's trade.

THE THEORY OF THE STEAMER

The theory that the steamer Crystal Stream was set on fire while those on board of her were sunk in slumber, seems too horrible to be accepted. The tragedy will of course be very thoroughly investigated, and the question of having a night watchman on river steamers, as well as that of carrying large quantities of hay on passenger boats must be considered with a view to the safety of life rather than the production of dividends.

The mill contained rotary, shingle engines, no part of which could be saved. There was a large quantity of shingles and other lumber destroyed, besides 15,000 barrel heads owned by the coopersage company." A. W. Hay, the owner, was partially insured, but not nearly enough to cover his loss. The coopersage company is also a heavy loser.

Postmaster General and Mrs. Smith Are in the City on a Visit

Lucius Smith, postmaster-general of Jamaica, and Mrs. Smith are in the city on a visit. Mr. Smith was in his home in Kingston, sick at the time of the earthquake and had a very narrow escape. After that event he was given six weeks leave of absence. This is the first time he has ever in this part of the world and he is so delighted with what he has seen he is coming back again. He is going up the river today. He declines to discuss postal or other public matters.

HE HAD IT

A farmer tells a conversation he chanced to hear between a boy and a Christian Scientist, who came across the lad sitting under an apple tree doubled up with pain. "My little man," the Scientist said, "what is the matter?" "I ate some green apples, and, oh! how I ache." "You don't ache; you only think so." The boy looked up, saying, "But I've got inside information, sir!" Charles O'Hara, Douglas avenue, has gone to Annapolis (Md.) to enter the novitiate of the Redemptorist order.

BURIAL OF SACRED PARCHEMENT IN WASHINGTON CEMETERY

NEW YORK, June 22.—For the first time in the United States the ancient Jewish rite of holding funeral services over the fragments of sacred parchments was witnessed at the Zehru Torah Moses Synagogue, No. 183 East Broadway, today.

Four rabbis and as many Hebrews as could crowd into the small synagogue took part in the impressive ceremonies, while a crowd large enough to fill the place three times clustered about the doors of the building to witness the proceedings.

It was an occasion of much solemnity and scores of those within the synagogue wept, as if the body of a dear relative instead of a few torn and charred parchments were lying in the coffin in front of the altar. All through the service the lamentations of men and women could be heard, and many wept constantly on the way to the cemetery and while the coffin was being lowered into its grave.

Rabbi Isaac Siegel, of Zehru Torah Moses Synagogue and Rabbi Israel Isaacson, assisted by Rabbi Abraham Bexerter and Achmed Gollink, were in charge of the services, which consisted chiefly of an exhortation to the Hebrews to remain loyal to their ancient faith. They explained the sacred character of the parchments and told how from the earliest days of the Mosaic law it had been the custom to give sacred burials to the parchments which became impure through fire or other cause.

There were the pieces of eighteen parchments over which services were held yesterday. Originally they belonged to the eighteen congregations worshipping in New Irving Hall, No. 214 Broome street, but when the place burned about a year ago it was supposed the scrolls were destroyed.

S. Humbert and Mr. Walker. Miss Worden played the accompaniments for the Carleton singers. The house was crowded. SWEET CAPORAL CIGARETTES STANDARD OF THE WORLD

YACHTING

YAGABOND WON LOVITT CUP Saturday's yacht race for the Lovitt cup was the closest and best in the history of the R. K. Y. C. There were but four starters, but it was very keenly contested throughout.

Wingene, Robin Hood, Vagabond and Fei Yuen crossed the starting line in the order named.

It was a spinaker run to the Milkish buoy and the yacht rounded it in the same order. On the beat back to Millidgeville Fei Yuen took second place, and Vagabond and Robin Hood third and fourth respectively, keeping these positions on the second run to the Milkish buoy.

On the beat back to the Milkish buoy and the yacht rounded it in the same order. Second heat, Fei Yuen third, and Robin Hood fourth, keeping the same positions on the third run to the Milkish buoy and on the beat to the finish line.

The time was as follows: Elapsed Allow. Corrected Yacht. Time. Time. Time.

Vagabond... 1 22 1 57 1 56 23 Wingene... 1 29 39 0 00 1 59 39 Fei Yuen... 2 00 10 4 31 1 55 39 Robin Hood... 2 07 40 0 00 2 07 40

Fei Yuen which took first place on time allowance, unfortunately fouled the Milkish buoy the third time of rounding and was consequently disqualified. After fouling the buoy, Fei Yuen went around it all right, but under the rules this does not overcome the disqualification and Vagabond gets first place.

Wingene second, Fei Yuen third, and Robin Hood fourth. The race was witnessed by a large number, who enjoyed the contest greatly.

The judges were Horace King and Fred L. Heans, and the timers Louis J. Munro and John H. Kimball.

The next important event will be one of the most important of the season, being a cruising race from the Cedars to Millidgeville. Already eight or ten entries have been received, and it is expected that more than twice that number of boats will start in this race.

The Westfield Outing Association finish line will be off Brundage's wharf, at Westfield, while the R. K. Y. C. race will finish at Millidgeville.

Suitable prizes, in the way of yacht fittings, have been offered for the R. K. Y. C. and these will be presented to the winning boats at the finish of the race.

Entry forms may be obtained in the city club rooms, in the club house at Millidgeville, from the secretary, Heber S. Keith, and from the secretary of the sailing committee, J. H. Kimball.

YARMOUTH INVITES AMERICANS The American yachts participating in the races at Shelburne, with their crews, have been invited by the Yarmouth Yacht Club to visit Yarmouth and enter the races here, and a committee has been appointed to provide for their entertainment.

IMPORTANT CHANGES AT NICKEL THEATRE Several Improvements Which Go Into Effect This Week.

With the commencement of another week of first class entertainment at the Nickel Theatre a number of changes have taken place, which will find instant and continued appreciation on the part of the public.

In the first place the occasional inconvenience brought about in emptying the playhouse on a crowded afternoon or night will be obviated by the addition of another exit, leading through the doorway of the west aisle to a special stairway running directly to the Carleton street side.

By this means those leaving the main floor are in no way jostled by the crowd at the main exit, or by those coming down the gallery staircase.

Furthermore the ticket office has been shifted from the right-hand side of the main entrance to the left-hand side, which is more in keeping with the eternal fitness of things, and will do away with that congestion of figures and outcrops, which occasionally happens when business is particularly heavy.

This week's pictures at the Nickel Theatre are of a most grotesque and elaborate photo-production of the wonderful tale of the Oriental land of the magic lamp he fell heir to when he met the mysterious wizard.

The story as thrown upon the canvas is full of weird and Eastern magic, and startlingly lifelike.

The next film is known as Pigeon-Fairy, a bitheosme, charming set of motion views, especially for the children.

The picture machine man gets down to real life, as we all know it, and shows the Office Boy Saw the Ball Game, and it's a side-splittingly funny story.

The illustrated song is For She Was a Grand Old Lady.

MARK TWAIN AMUSES THEIR MAJESTIES London, June 22.—Mark Twain was the centre of attraction at the king's garden party at Windsor this afternoon and side meeting the king and royal party had a handshake with several hundred notables.

He was accompanied to Windsor by John Henninger Heaton, the father of imperial penny postage, who introduced him to many of the king's guests on his way to the party, including Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman, Fridtjof Nansen, Sir Henry Mortimer Durand and Ellen Terry.

He heartily congratulated Miss Terry on her recent marriage, the two shaking hands, which was served on the lawn, Ambassador Reid presented Mark Twain to King Edward and Queen Alexandra, and the king and the humorist spent a quarter of an hour in conversation, the king laughing heartily at Twain's jokes.

The queen also joined in the conversation and was much amused when Twain jokingly asked if he could buy the Windsor Castle grounds from her majesty. Then the king called on him to meet the other guests.

He introduced Twain to the King of Siam, the Duke of Connaught, Prince Arthur of Connaught and others.

Ottawa, June 23.—George Cooper, a bricklayer, of Kent street, was drowned today at East Templeton, by the upsetting of a boat.
