AS BRIGADIER GENERAL
Boston, Mass., June 18—A man giving the name of J. E. Murphy walked into the office of the Canadian Recruiting Mission and asked if there was room in the army for a brigadier-general. Murphy refused to be discouraged, however, and said he would go to Canada and try recruiting officers there until he was accepted.

THE WAR SITUATION.

Canadians will be particularly interested in the grave statement made by Sir Arthur Currie at the dinner to the Canadian ministers in London. "The situation in France is serious. There is no use hiding it. I believe the truth has been hidden too long. The German has struck four mighty blows with success, and it is just a question how many blows we can afford to endure. Personally I think the great factor is that if we can stop and fight the Boche we can kill a sufficient number that will make him sick. I believe that is the temper animating the whole army, and I know we shall never take such delight in killing him as when we need most him. It comes to a question of who can stand the killing the longest."

Supplementing Sir Arthur's statement, cable today says the Germans at several points continue to push down the Meuse Valley, but that farther west the French have pushed the enemy off the slope of the Mery plateau and are seriously menacing the German centre. Today's report says yesterday's fighting did not materially affect the general situation, as each side made some gains, although it is held that the French can claim some advantage. As the Germans are fighting against time, the situation may fairly be said to be satisfactory from the Allied standpoint.

WHAT GERMAN LOSSES.

The German people are responsible for the war. Three years or more ago it might have been argued with some apparent reason that the Kaiser and the sabre-rattlers of the Prussian military staff were responsible, but after nearly four years in which no word of protest has come from Germany against the atrocities committed and the destruction of life and property wrought by the war, it is plain that the German people as a whole must bear the burden of guilt.

In the earlier stages of the war there was a tendency to talk as if at the end of it trade with Germany would be renewed, and even men of influence deprecated any suggestion that there should be a boycott of Germany or the Germans, or any favored nation treaties that might bear heavily upon the German people. We hear less of such talk today. The long duration of the war, the constant new revelations of German duplicity, cunning and barbarity have gradually wrought a change in public sentiment in Allied countries. The feeling grows that the colossal crime against humanity must be adequately punished, and the German people excluded from the comity of nations until that punishment shall have borne fruit in real penitence and a complete change of heart.

The New Brunswick Power Company will not spare expense in the effort to get more money out of the people of St. John for its services. The city, therefore, should not spare expense in the fight for a square deal. If the company has its way the people will not only pay now but for the years to come. It was wise to secure the services of Mr. John A. Sullivan of Boston, and he should be given all the expert assistance he requires. The coming investigation should result in such legislation as will effectively guard the rights of the city. That means a deep probe and a full exposure of power company finance for years past.

Fourteen counties are now under the provincial prohibitory law, and the fifteenth will come in this month. This makes enforcement uniform and much more effective. Chief Inspector Wilson has proved himself a very capable official, and deserves the endorsement given him by the temperance and religious conventions. The New Brunswick method of enforcement is attracting attention in Nova Scotia and elsewhere.

Mr. Balfour says Japan will live up to her full obligations, and if fresh efforts are required of her she will not fail. Sir Arthur Currie says the Canadians were never in a fierce fighting fettle than at the present moment, or more eager to exploit the German submarine in American waters. They were promptly arrested and held without bail. The Bangor Commercial voices the growing American sentiment when it says: "The yeast is working in the bread in this country, just as it has worked in France, in England and in Australia and the time is arriving when German sympathizers will not be able to clothe their real sentiments by slight contributions to the Red Cross or the Liberty League, contributions made the way of camouflage and with the hope of retaining trade and not from real wish to help or from any real sympathy with the cause. As our people come to a realizing sense of the barbaric cruelty of the Germans who are now killing the innocent, and German residents by the hundreds, perhaps by the thousands, and being interned, we are no longer taking for granted the loyalty of persons of German ancestry although born in this country and more lip service will not avail. Absolute, approved loyalty is the only thing that will serve for the American people are now realizing that all who are not for us are against us."

TO FRANCE

(From "Why Don't They Cheer?" a new volume of verse by a Canadian poet, Robert F. C. Stead.)

We little knew thee, France: we thought— And God forgive us that our thought was sin— We thought thee fair without, and false within; And did not seek to know thee as we ought.

We knew the face thou turnedst touristward; The painted face, the sensuous design; We held thy virtue subtle as thy wine. As cheap and subtle neighbor, we have erred.

For thou hadst poured thy life in every mould And we had found the mould of our desire; We warmed our marrow at thy Latin fire And found it hot, for we were Saxon-cold.

Forgive us, France, we passed the lie along; "A thoughtless people, frivolous and gay." And now we know thee, we can only say: "Forgive us, France; we sinned; we did thee wrong."

How well thy sons have risen to thy need And of our young men in France they are waking up to the real situation. The study of German is being forbidden in our schools, German teachers are being dismissed, and German residents by the hundreds, perhaps by the thousands, are being interned. We are no longer taking for granted the loyalty of persons of German ancestry although born in this country and more lip service will not avail. Absolute, approved loyalty is the only thing that will serve for the American people are now realizing that all who are not for us are against us."

Murphy Preferred Coasting. An officer on board a warship was drilling his men. "I want every man to lie on his back, put his legs in the air, and move them as if he were riding a bicycle," he explained. "Now commence."

"Why have you stopped, Murphy?" asked the officer. "If ye please, sir," was the answer, "O'm' coasting."

Whether a bargain can be got at present is extremely doubtful. A compulsory arbitration would not be safe, because an arbitration would necessarily take into account the value at current prices of the plant and equipment of the railway; and current prices for such things are just about double what they were before the war, and probably far higher than they will be after the war, or at least five years from now.

The belief that the submarines attacking shipping in American waters are accompanied by mother ships, which are nothing more than specially large submarines built to carry oil and supplies instead of torpedoes, was voiced yesterday by Lieutenant Lev A. Trofimov, formerly commander of the Russian submarine Leopard. Lieutenant Trofimov said that for three years he was stationed on a submarine in the Baltic and worked in conjunction with the British submarine fleet. He came to this city recently.

These vessels are about 1,000 ton displacement," he said, "and carry two guns of 5 or 6 inch caliber. They cannot remain away from their base for more than a few days, while their instruments detect our presence and made it hot for us when they could."

"There are three methods by which submarines are served with oil and supplies. They pick out a deserted island or a waste piece of land and use that as a base for their supplies. Another method is to have a submarine base on the coast, but really to make a submarine at sea, where a transfer of supplies can be made. Signals are prearranged, and oil and even torpedoes are delivered without much danger of detection."

"The third kind of base is a specially constructed submarine of the type which carries oil and munitions. With the movable submarine base the commander of an attacking U-boat makes a rendezvous at a certain time. The supply submarine goes to the designated place, which is generally some quiet spot near the coast."

"The base of these supply submarines is always near the scene of action. For this reason and because I am sure that the type of U-boats described as operating in these waters is the one with which I am familiar and which cannot remain away from their base for more than four weeks from the time they are supplied nearby."

"I hardly think it is necessary to go to the coast of South America to ferret out a secret submarine base when there are hostile U-boats off these shores. The secret rendezvous for the U-boats is some place not far from New York, I believe. The attacking U-boats must keep near their supply vessels."

"For this reason I say that it is more important to search the waters off this coast than it is to have destroyers put out to sea and attempt to catch the German submarines. A constant watch should be kept on the entire coast, even in the shallow waters. Constant water should be kept on your coast night as well as day, not one hour of the night or two, every hour. Observation should be made of the same spots on the coast every hour of the night. The secret rendezvous for the U-boats is on a large scale like those in British waters."

"Above all, it is absolutely necessary to search every vessel of whatever nationality before it leaves any port. This applies even to the very smallest and apparently innocent craft. We found in the Baltic that in the beginning of the war German submarines were being supplied with oil and remained at sea for long periods. Subsequent investigation revealed that small sailboats of neutral nationality were leaving ports for rendezvous with German sub-

WOULD CONTROL HER PUBLIC UTILITIES

The Interesting Situation in Ottawa in Relation to Street Cars, Electric Light, Heat and Power

(Ottawa Journal-Press.)

Too much should not be expected from the move in the city council to negotiate with the Ottawa Street Railway Company for purchase by the city of the railway. No need for haste by the city exists. The charter of the company expires five years from now, and the city will then have the legal right to take over the property and business, paying simply for the plant and equipment by arbitration. No security of title will be necessary. The company will have no option. The city is therefore in a strong position, and is not called on to worry about buying the street railway at present unless a real bargain is extremely doubtful. A compulsory arbitration would not be safe, because an arbitration would necessarily take into account the value at current prices of the plant and equipment of the railway; and current prices for such things are just about double what they were before the war, and probably far higher than they will be after the war, or at least five years from now.

Would Search Neutral—Type of Submarine Now Raiding, He Says, Has Cruising Radius of Only a Month

Captain Pratt Here.

Capt. J. H. Pratt, formerly captain of the Dominion Fisheries cruiser Curlew, was in the city yesterday. He is at present in the employ of the United States Shipping Board and has command of a large transport now in an Atlantic port en route overseas. Captain Pratt is a brother of Harry Pratt of the North End. He also has a sister residing in the city.

Mr. Balfour says Japan will live up to her full obligations, and if fresh efforts are required of her she will not fail. Sir Arthur Currie says the Canadians were never in a fierce fighting fettle than at the present moment, or more eager to exploit the German submarine in American waters. They were promptly arrested and held without bail. The Bangor Commercial voices the growing American sentiment when it says: "The yeast is working in the bread in this country, just as it has worked in France, in England and in Australia and the time is arriving when German sympathizers will not be able to clothe their real sentiments by slight contributions to the Red Cross or the Liberty League, contributions made the way of camouflage and with the hope of retaining trade and not from real wish to help or from any real sympathy with the cause. As our people come to a realizing sense of the barbaric cruelty of the Germans who are now killing the innocent, and German residents by the hundreds, perhaps by the thousands, are being interned, we are no longer taking for granted the loyalty of persons of German ancestry although born in this country and more lip service will not avail. Absolute, approved loyalty is the only thing that will serve for the American people are now realizing that all who are not for us are against us."

Murphy Preferred Coasting. An officer on board a warship was drilling his men. "I want every man to lie on his back, put his legs in the air, and move them as if he were riding a bicycle," he explained. "Now commence."

"Why have you stopped, Murphy?" asked the officer. "If ye please, sir," was the answer, "O'm' coasting."

Whether a bargain can be got at present is extremely doubtful. A compulsory arbitration would not be safe, because an arbitration would necessarily take into account the value at current prices of the plant and equipment of the railway; and current prices for such things are just about double what they were before the war, and probably far higher than they will be after the war, or at least five years from now.

Other speakers were J. T. Henderson, Windsor (Ont.), who endorsed the plan for greater union between farmers and manufacturers, Senator Nichols, of Toronto, who agreed that an understanding was desirable and also alluded to the huge profit the farmers were apparently making in wheat, and Sir John Willison, Toronto, who pleaded for action now on after-the-war problems.

CAPTAIN BAILEY FREE

Toronto, June 12.—When Captain (Dr.) George Bailey and his bondsmen appeared in the county judge's court this morning with his counsel, T. C. Robinson, the crown attorney said: "Not wanted here any more." Thus the order for the incarceration of the captain at the jail farm made by Magistrate Denison, was set aside.

The department of justice, Ottawa, last night sent the decision of the minister to free Captain Bailey. The bondsmen were released whilst the conviction of Captain Bailey is not revoked but he will be virtually free, what is known as "Serving his sentence under license," and not having to report to the police.

PULL UP THE WEAKLINGS.
Thinning should be going on continuously these days. The war gardener must show himself to be merciless in getting rid of all weaklings for they serve no purpose other than to sap for themselves the strength which should be reserved for the stronger plants. It stands to reason that if too many plants are trying to take nourishment from the soil, none of them will thrive as it should. Ordinarily thinning is better to pull out the plants in the centre of the bunches which have come up together. The following scale is a good one to go by in thinning:

Carrots	.....	1 in.
Lettuce	.....	2
Parsley	.....	2
Radish	.....	4
Spinach	.....	3
Turnip	.....	3
Beet	.....	4
Parsnip	.....	3
Salsify	.....	3
Onions	.....	3

HOW TO TELL A GOOD EGG

Housewife Need Not Break Shell To Find Cause for Rejection

There are many more or less sure and more or less fallacious ways for telling a good egg from one that is not so good without breaking the shell, but candling has come to be recognized as the only unfailing method. It has been adopted universally by commercial egg handlers and regulations of interstate commerce and food handling are enforced in the United States. Millions of eggs are candled in downtown New York every year, not always to the advantage of the consumer, perhaps, but surely to the benefit of the seller.

In an effort to help the egg producer and country handler to count with government requirements and to give them knowledge by which they may assure themselves of fair dealing when their shipments reach market the United States Department of Agriculture has prepared a set of instructions for the novice. Professional egg candlers handle eggs with almost lightning rapidity and rarely make a mistake. The instructions to that commercial candling costs only a trifle per case. But the novice can soon do the work with a few eggs to gain facility. The department's instructions are so complete and the apparatus suggested is so simple that any housewife may candle the dozen eggs the grocer delivers in a few minutes and send them back unbroken if they are not to standard.

The process, in simple terms, is to hold an egg before a shaded light in a dark room, and by noting certain characteristics seen through the semitransparent shell to determine its edible quality. Persons with only a few eggs to handle may improvise a candler by placing a stove-pipe or closed box over a light, cutting a small hole in the pipe, level with the light. The egg is held in a slanting position at the opening. It is twisted a few times to the right and left and then from end to end, so that the entire contents may be visible. Care should be taken that the fingers or hand do not conceal small blemishes, which otherwise would be disclosed by the light. The beginner should study carefully the general formation of an egg, as this detailed knowledge is necessary for an understanding of the markings that indicate age.

The yolk ranges in color from light yellow to orange, and occasionally is olive green. The eggs with olive-green yolks are less desirable because of this color, but are considered edible. The yolk is contained in a delicate membrane and its surface is a small light-colored circular area called the germinal disk, from which the chick develops. The yolk always floats in the white egg, but the cord-like coils of opaque white material called chalazae extend from the yolk through the white toward each end of the egg and hold the yolk in position, yet allow it to turn freely.

Between the white and the shell are two fibrous membranes with an air space between them. When first laid the contents fill the entire egg, but when the egg cools the contents shrink and these membranes separate, forming an air space. The size of this space is important in determining the freshness of the egg. As the egg ages the air space increases in size. Most bad eggs have enlarged air spaces.

A fine thick white is found in a fresh egg, and a weak, thin white in a stale egg. As the egg becomes stale the amount of this white increases and the amount of thick white decreases. Several classes of bad eggs are indicated by discolored whites.

The yolk of the fresh egg when twirled before the candle is seen dimly as a dark object moving slowly in the white. The yolk of a stale egg is seen more plainly than that of the fresh egg. When the yolk is so weak that the shake of the egg in candling causes it to break it should be discarded. In the fresh egg the yolk is slightly above the centre in the large end of the egg. As the egg becomes stale the yolk floats higher and nearer the shell.

The start of incubation in a fertile egg may be detected by a reddish glow surrounding the germinal spot. Such eggs, although considered edible, are not graded as first class. This reddish glow is entirely different from the so-called blood ring, which indicates that the egg is unfit for food.

Where there is any doubt as to an egg's fitness for food the candler should reject it as dangerous to health.

300,000 MEN IN SHIPYARDS

Force Grew from 25,000 in a Year—250,000 Others Built Machinery

Washington, June 12—Less than a year ago there were not 45,000 men employed in American shipyards. Today there are more than 300,000 skilled mechanics and laborers engaged in building ships, and an additional 250,000 employed in making the engines, boilers, winches and other machinery necessary to equip them. This tremendous expansion by which the United States hopes to put into service a new merchant marine that will rival the trading fleet of any nation in the world has been brought about by the Shipping Board through recognition of the principle that untrained men can become skilled workmen only through competent instruction. One of the first tasks of the Shipping Board, therefore, was the creation of a division of education and training, which has supervised the establishment of training centres and the development of instructors among the foremen and superintendents. Training of the various kinds of shipbuilders in the yards is accomplished by putting the men to work on production jobs, under the supervision of a yard instructor. This yard instructor has full charge of gangs while they are learning. The men get a six weeks' course of training, eight hours a day. During the last part of this course they were obliged to spend forty hours in the actual handling of gangs of green men. Yard instructors are drawn from a variety of trades, such as riveters, ship fitters, ship carpenters, caulkers, etc.

The first four of the Japanese ships chartered by the United States have reached Pacific ports.

THE WAR IN THE FAR EAST

Even the sands of the desert are used in war. How the British army builds dugouts with sandbags in the sandy waste of which the children of Israel traveled centuries ago.

Liverpool members of parliament, who have been engaged in doing very responsible service in securing produce for the old country from abroad and in establishing new factories. He took up a year ago the bitter problem, applying himself to the question of the supply of oil seeds amongst other things, and in the public uncertainty of the situation in England. Mr. Bigland is quite convinced that we shall promote a system to ensure the exclusive of coming years. Mr. Bigland's teeming population to be provided from within the empire and by a process of allowing rebates proportionally to the amount of the arrangements will benefit the consumer as they did not attempt at the moment to elaborate his views, but there is obviously material in them to be thought out at coming imperial conferences.

The Peace Offensive. For weeks past newspapers have used the phrase "Peace offensive" quite appreciating what they meant but justifying the word. It remained for Mr. Balfour to give the definition that should be the basis of the peace offensive. When we talk of the enemy making a peace offensive we mean opening up directly or indirectly the prospect of obtaining a settlement, but in order to divide the allies by presenting the prospect of a settlement, it is attractive to one and not the other. All this will have been told you in your own hearts, but it is interesting to see Mr. Balfour's speech so recorded.

Key Industries Within Empire Independent of Other Countries After War Food for the Population—System to be Promoted to Ensure Supplies From Within Empire

London, May 12.—The debate on the finance bill and the review of the industrial position made by the president of the board of trade, have a particular interest on your side because of the evidence afforded of the desire to build up our commercial life after the war. There is no occasion here to recall the Paris resolutions, the report of Lord Balfour of Burleigh's committee, nor the movements for a preferential system within the empire. Parliament is now so occupied with the prosecution of the war, that discussions on future policy and their application are infrequent and irregular in their best. Besides, the fact that the new register puts an element of uncertainty of magnitude into decisions that may be made in the months ahead is the further consideration that so great a mass of the circulating, 6,000,000 of 2,000,000 are in hand, and 2,000,000 are in France, living under conditions and with social blending that are so different to what have been normal. The most expert politician does not profess to gauge the extent nor the direction in which opinion will be altered. The Wiltshire laborer who had hitherto not been out of his village will have had a tremendous awakening by his continental experiences. The old-fashioned hereditary type of Tory who has held firmly the class distinctions in war, that Conservatives in a new country can scarcely imagine, will have made fresh discoveries by service in the ranks along with artisans and other workers. How far the changes in outlook and social life will cause regrouping of parties and variations in party programmes, nobody can guess. It is hardly necessary to point out in making these remarks that party terms of Conservatives, Liberals and so forth, have very different significance in the old country to what they have in Canada.

That there are two or three things that matter, and about them it seems likely that there will be an overwhelming majority in favor of certain courses. After our experience here, with all the anxiety we have had at the beginning to find various necessities for manning the war, including the carrying on of the war, there can be no doubt that we will see to it that what are called key industries are maintained within the empire on such a scale that the empire shall be independent of other countries for its resources in this respect. Secondly, there is the effect of the financial burden to be considered. In making ourselves free from risk of shortage of the things we want in the future, we shall take care to produce these things within the empire, and we shall seek at the same time to assist our revenue. This reflection brings me to a very interesting speech delivered during the finance bill discussion by Mr. Alfred Bigland, one of the

THE BIGGEST I. O. U. (Philadelphia Telegraph.) The brief tale of the biggest I. O. U. in history. At the outset of the war Germany had seventy-one cents in gold for every dollar of paper money. Today she has only eighteen cents in gold for every dollar of paper money.

TENDERS SEALED TENDERS, will be received until noon on Monday, June 15, 1918, for the purchase of the brick building, damaged by fire, on the northeast corner of Mill street and Union street, to be repaired and moved by the purchaser within thirty days of acceptance of the tender. The building must be accompanied by a certified bank check for five per cent. of the amount of the tender. For further particulars apply to THOS. NAGLE, 147 Prince William Street.

SURPASSINGLY GOOD AT GEM

Athletic Act as Good as Seen at Hippodrome—Rich Comedy, Music and Pictures Also

The Gem's new programme is a dandy. Applause rang out time and again last night in appreciation of the excellent acrobatic act, while laughter was uproarious over some of the comedy features of the bill. The vaudeville is big, of outstanding excellence and the pictures also are entertaining, running out a superior entertainment, one of the best in a long while.

"Her Topknot Love," a rousing comedy picture, opens the programme. In it Fay Tichner and Ford Sterling, two of the best comedians of the day, play the principal parts. It aroused a lot of laughter. The other picture feature is the Pat Bennett farce, "The Interesting Budget of News Events Caught by the Camera Man." There are war scenes and scenes in civilian life, and a deeply engaging and giving an intimate reproduction.

The Washington Trio—two men and a woman—are fine. They sing "A Perfect Day" in glorious harmony and then, among other things, give an imitation of a village choir at practice. It is highly amusing and one could listen to it for a long time without being surfeited. There is fun galore, not only in the singing but in the actions of the performers. The set "Sweet High" and the hearty approval of all.

The Thomas Trio closed the performance with an athletic novelty act very much in the line of the "Circus Days" and they give a wonderful comedy and trampoline act. Some of the feats are marvelous, yet performed with the grace and ease of veterans at the circus. They call their act "Circus Days" and they give a wonderful comedy and trampoline act.

For non-committal brevity of speech, says Puck, commend us, if you please, to the Yankee lord of the soil. One such, who was recently making a visit to the city, was knocked down in the street by an automobile. A sympathizing crowd instantly surrounded him, with condolences and questions. "Are you hurt, my friend?" kindly asked a gentleman who was first among the rescuers, as he helped the sufferer to his feet and brushed the mud and dust from his clothes. "Well," came the caustic reply, "it ain't done me no good."

BELIEVE TWO BATTLESHIPS WERE BAGGED

Daring Exploit By Italian Torpedo Boats Marked Success. Only One of the Vintus Units Type Now Left—Revenge for Infamous Plots of Early Days of War

Rome, June 12.—The splendid exploit on the Dalmatian coast is equivalent to a great naval battle won," says the idea Nationale, commenting on the achievement of Commander Rizzo. The newspaper believes that the two Austrian battleships torpedoed by the two torpedo boats under his command were lost. Commander Rizzo is the officer who entered the port of Trieste and torpedoed the Austrian battleship Wien on December 5, 1917.

"This time," says the newspaper, "none of the largest ships of the Austrian fleet left Pola, from which they had never issued since the beginning of the war, but they were driven out of the port by the audacious exploit of Commander Pellegrini, who succeeded in entering the port of Trieste and torpedoing a dreadnought.

Wilson Urges Policy of Saving and Giving. President Appeals to American People to Buy War Bonds and Stamps Essential to Health and Efficiency.

To save materials and labor for necessary war purposes, President Wilson has appealed to Americans "to buy only necessities which are essential to the individual health and efficiency," and then volunteer on or before June 28, national day, to invest systematically in war savings and thrift stamps, or other government securities.

The securities issued by the treasury department are so many of them within the reach of every one that the door of opportunity in this matter is wide open to all of us. To practice thrift in peace times is a virtue and brings great benefit to the individual at all times, with the desperate needs of the civilized world today for materials and labor with which to end the war, the practice of individual thrift is a patriotic duty and a necessity.

"I appeal to all who now own their Liberty Bonds or Saving stamps to continue to practice economy and thrift and to appeal to all who do not own government securities to do likewise and to purchase them to the utmost extent of their means. The man who buys government securities transfers the fighting power of his money to the United States and to the cause of freedom."

"I earnestly appeal to every man, woman and child to pledge themselves on or before the 28th of June to save constantly and to buy as regularly as possible the securities of the government and to do this as far as possible through membership in war savings societies. The 28th of June ends this special period of enlistment in the volunteer army of production and saving here at home. May there be none unlisted on that day."

NOVA SCOTIA HAS A HIGHWAYS MINISTER (Halifax Chronicle.) Hon. H. H. Wickwire, M. P. for Kings, was sworn in on Saturday as Minister of Highways in the government of Nova Scotia. Mr. Wickwire was already a member of the government without portfolio; he was now promoted to the administrative charge of one of the two new portfolios authorized by the legislature a year ago. Although he is still in the very prime of life, Mr. Wickwire is, in point of service, the oldest member of the present House of Assembly. He was first elected for his native county of Kings in 1894, and, with the exception of one parliamentary term, has continuously represented that county in the House of Assembly, of which he has long been one of the leading and most useful members. He is a logical and convincing speaker, equally effective in debate and in the practical. He has a very thorough grasp of the general questions of provincial legislative and administrative concerns. In addition to his parliamentary experience, Mr. Wickwire has won a recognized place in the practice of his profession as a barrister, and enjoys the reputation of being a sound, able and successful lawyer. He is energetic and forceful, and possesses executive qualities, which specially qualify him for the successful performance of administrative duties. The new department of highways demands business capacity, sound judgment and progressive ideas, and we feel confident Mr. Wickwire possesses the qualities which will enable him to render service of a high order to the province. He is to be congratulated upon his preferment to one of the most important posts in the administration of Nova Scotia at this juncture, and the government is to be congratulated, in equal measure, upon the addition to its administrative personnel of such an experienced and well-equipped public man. The new department opens to Mr. Wickwire a great field of useful service for Nova Scotia.

Government Stands Behind The Inspector

Latter Tells Methodist Conference of Co-operation and Absence of Interference in His Work

Sackville, N. B., June 12.—The business of the ministers' section of the Methodist conference is about concluded, and an adjournment to meet at the call of the chair was taken at 5:30 this afternoon. Everything is in readiness for the assembling of the mixed conference tomorrow, when the credentials of the lay delegates will be presented and the conference organized, according to discipline. The first order of business after the opening of the ministers' session this morning was the hearing of Prohibition Inspector Wilson, in a report concerning the situation regarding law enforcement in the province. The prohibitory law, he said, became fully operative in this province yesterday morning at 1 o'clock. He made a cryptic remark when he added that this was why he was in Sackville. He gave the conference a deal of satisfactory information how the law was being enforced in the several counties of the province. The situation was showing improvement, he said, in St. John. Apart from that distributed by pocket-peddlers and from the dives there was practically no liquor being sold in St. John. The inspector referred to the curious ways in which the liquid commodity was being pilfered while in transit. The frequent reports which came to hand from the various quarters of vanishing packages and barrels seemed to show that this No-liquor law was taken as really giving incentive in certain directions. A good degree of freedom was being exercised in the matter of the joy seekers' right to the dabbly consigned goods. No interference.

Has any member of the government sought to put any obstructions in the inspector's way? This question was raised by a member of the conference. Quickly and positively the inspector replied, no.

He had been inspector under more than one government, he said, and only one of the many recommendations he had ever found it necessary to make had been turned down.

In a conversation with Premier Foster the other day, the premier had said: "The prohibitory law is to be enforced and it makes no difference whom it affects."

Following the inspector's address a resolution was adopted, commending his work and efficiency and the conference proceeded to its routine business.

A probationer who had completed the circuit and college work required by discipline was duly recommended to be received into full connexion and ordained. This probationer, John L. Land, of Sackville, will be ordained by the conference on Sunday morning.

The new minister has been stationed at Tabusintac in the Chatham district. Four probationers were given a standing of two years on the recommendation of their several districts. They were Mason S. Linton, George Elliot, H. C. Upton, and Bruce E. Carew. The record of their standing on the subjects of last year's studies was read to the conference. The standing attained was on motion officially pronounced in case, since last conference, be continued in the relation of a probationer on trial was adopted after due information.

Probationers Earle E. Fyfe and John Withani, with the forces overseas, were continued in relation with the conference.

The following ministers are listed as supernumeraries this year by consent of the conference: John C. Berris, William G. Lane, Robert S. Crisp, Henry J. Clark, Thomas Pierce, William J. Kirby, William A. Thomson, Thomas J. Deinstadt, John J. Colter, John N. King, John S. Allen, Thomas Allen, William E. Johnson, Aquila Lucas, John L. Dawson.

The conference took a recess in the early afternoon to give the stationing committee an opportunity to meet. The committee met in the board room at 2 o'clock. The first draft of the stationing sheet, which is to be laid on the table of the conference tomorrow morning, had the following changes made in it, the schedule being still under correction: Rev. Ovid Peters, who had been appointed as co-pastor at Charlottetown, has been removed to Sunny Brae (N. B.); Rev. H. Stanley Young is the new appointment to Charlottetown.

John B. Young has been transferred from Keswick to Apohaqui; Rev. James Crisp from Buctouche to Stanley; Rev. William Lawson from Alma to Keswick; Rev. L. J. Leard goes to Alma.

The final assignment of work will not come, however, before the last of the week and possibly Monday.

One of the important events of today's sessions was the passing by the conference upon the address which is to be issued to the Methodist people as the official pastoral of the conference. The address is appointed to be read to all the congregations on the first Sunday after the rising of conference. Besides reference to matters which are of

CRITICAL CONDITIONS IN SHOE TRADE OF CANADA

(Shoe and Leather Journal)

The shoe trade of Canada has only begun to realize the danger of the position into which the industry has been brought through the conditions that have arisen through the war, and more especially during the past few months. We are today facing a situation that calls for united and decisive action if serious results to the trade is to be averted in the immediate future.

Already an embargo has been placed in the United States upon the export of hides and skins that will mean a marked curtailment of leather production here, and there is not the least doubt but that should occasion arise or any sufficient excuse be available there will be legislation on the other side of the line that will cut off our access to finished leather in that quarter. All kinds of leather are now only exportable under license, and no one can tell how soon the time may come when the final step of prohibition may follow. Already it is impossible to import raw skins of any kind, and if imports of this class of finished stock be absolutely cut off, what will happen shoe production in this particular line may be conjectured. It seems only a question of time when other classes of raw materials will be eliminated and we will be left to shift for ourselves.

It looks as though Canada were in for a sober plexus blow that will seriously cripple one of her natural, as well as her most important industries. It has been felt all along that tanners on the other side of the line have been annoyed at the inroads made by Canadian leather producers upon their market since the duty was taken off leathers and would use the war, if possible, as a means of cutting short our supplies both of raw stock and tanning materials.

The Tanners' Council in Canada has been quietly but persistently endeavoring to meet this antagonism by united effort through Ottawa and Washington, but so far have only been able to partly obviate conditions that hamper not only their own industry but the shoe trade as well. It looks as though in sheer self-defence Canada will be compelled to put an embargo on hides and skins to retain what raw materials she can, although this will not begin to meet either in quantity or quality the necessities of the country in leather production.

The shoe trade has been practically "asleep at the switch." Although we have two local branches of the Manufacturers' Association, one at Montreal and another at Toronto, there has so far been no united action to meet the serious conditions which have arisen. If our leather supplies are to be cut off, there ought to be some action to conserve that portion of the shoe trade that is at present going abroad. It is most unfair to the shoe industry that their production should be seriously impaired and American leather in the shape of shoes be still allowed unrestricted access to this country. If conservation alone be the object of the embargo on raw materials exported to Canada, either the United States should prohibit the exportation of shoes or the Canadian government should assist them by preventing their coming into Canada. The suggestion made a month or two ago to restrict shoe imports would have suited both manufacturers and dealers here, but some silent influence seems to have been at work which prevented this plan being carried out.

Just now would seem a good time for a general meeting of shoe manufacturers to discuss the present situation as well as the outlook for the next few months, which is admitted to be anything but reassuring. The calling together of the principal shoe distributors, both wholesale and retail, to a general conference on shoe conditions might result in a permanent council being appointed to see that Canada does not suffer and an industry that has been developed to its present prosperous position with so much pains and expense be not swept away by war exigencies within the borders of our larger neighbor.

Old Time Baseball

One year after the formation of the American Association . . . by the way, had clubs in Baltimore, Cincinnati, Louisville, Philadelphia, Pittsburg and St. Louis, there was more trouble . . . organized baseball. It came in the shape of an outlaw organization known as the Union Association, whose mission it was the freeing of the poor shackled baseball slave, the player. In fact it was such a frequent occurrence at this time for the player who wanted more money in his monthly envelope to get out and abuse organized baseball and the reserve rule in general until it not only at times resulted in getting the increase but served to interest many of the richer class of the baseball followers in the contract all in favor of the one-sided against the player. When the player found an angel of this kind, maybe he didn't play it for all it was worth. In 1888 H. Bennett of Washington and Henry V. Lucas, a millionaire of St. Louis, succeeded in securing promises and contracts from prominent players of the kind described and launched the Union Association, with the avowed intention of freeing the downtrodden baseball slave and doing away with the notorious reserve rule. The cities embracing the circuit were Altoona, Boston, Baltimore, Chicago, Cincinnati, Philadelphia, St. Louis and Washington. After the playing season of '84 it was found that with the possible exception of Washington, all the club owners had not only lost about all they had but borrowed heavily from Henry V. Lucas, so that by the time the '85 season was under way there were only two clubs willing to enter a second season. Mr. Lucas then retired from the game not only with his fortune intact but with his fighting aggressives a tinge of the past but thoroughly convinced not only of the necessity of the reserve rule in the baseball game, but in addition the natural meanness and ingratitude of the average ball player, who had taken the money as against his signed contract. A. G. Mills, who had succeeded to the presidency of the National League at the death of Mr. Hulbert, while a thorough devotee of the game, was one of the most brilliant lawyers of the period. As an aftermath of the Union Association baseball war, he drew up a document which was called the national agreement of professional baseball clubs. To this both the National League and American Association were parties and thirty years after it is still the backbone of the baseball game a world-wide sport. Then again a trip of this kind would serve to direct the mind away from the foreigner to the wonderful opportunities to be had almost for the asking in America. Should the American tour properly make the baseball publicity propaganda cards as they did on their first European baseball trip in 1874.

lulu on November 18, arriving on the 25th, leaving on the 26th and two weeks later landing at Auckland, New Zealand. Leaving Auckland they arrived at Sydney, Australia, on Dec. 14 and played at Melbourne, Adelaide and Ballarat. The tourists were received at the great college of the Catholic church with every demonstration of welcome. On Jan. 5, 1889, they left Melbourne via the Great Southern Railway for a game on the island of Ceylon, and, upon landing at Colombo, gave an exhibition of baseball playing on the island of Ceylon. From there they went to Egypt for a game on the desert's sand with the great pyramids looking on and one utilized for a bucket. On Feb. 19 they reached the Bay of Naples, and under the shadow of Vesuvius showed the Italians how to play the American game. Rome was the next stop and then King Humbert of Italy and a number of students at the great college of the Catholic church were present at a game played for their special benefit. Following a game at Florence, the tourists departed and arrived at Paris, France, where, under the great Eiffel Tower (then under construction) they gave a baseball exhibition attended by the entire American colony. From there to England was the next jump. The reception of the tourists in England was one of the greatest the foremost citizens, including A. G. Mills, president of the National League, chairman, Chauncey Depew, Daniel Dougherty, Henry Howland, W. H. McEvey, U. S. Consul W. Griffin, Mayor Chapin of Brooklyn, Mayor Cleveland of Jersey City, Mark Twain, Theodore Roosevelt and Rev. Joseph Twitcheil. Such is a brief story of the world's tour. Financially it proved to be a success. As a publicity movement for the advertisement of the resources of America, and the business opportunities to be had there, it was even a greater success. ## The Arab Army Of Freedom

Remarkable Achievements To Their Credit Threw Off Turkish Rule Guardian of Islam's Holy Shrine at Mecca Becomes King of Arabia and Leader Against Nominal Head of Mohammedanism

Before the new Turkish Constitution, now ten years old, the high sounding principles of which are not carried out in practice, the Sultan of Turkey was an absolute despot, though his personal actions were supposedly controlled by his prime minister and his cabinet. He was rich and nominated all the members of his cabinet, but also all his provincial governors—who found it necessary to get rich quick before their august sovereign changed his vacillating mind. From high to low in the Turkish provinces bribery was rampant; rapacity knew no bounds; corruption was the ordinary rule of life. One can imagine the effect of such misrule upon the Arab. He has carried the religion of Mohammed into the richest parts of three continents; his own Empire had once been greater than that of Rome at its zenith. Courageous, temperate, imaginative, scientific, hospitable, impatient of control by an inferior race, the Arab scorned utterly the vernal Turkish official and all the misgovernment for which he stood. Yet there was one province on the sea board of the Red Sea which, inhabited by orthodox Mohammedans, was long disposed to trust the Turkish government and to hope against hope for justice. That province was El Hejaz, which today has led the van against Turkish misrule, a fitting commentary upon its outraged loyalty. Theoretically, El Hejaz stretches in the north half across the peninsula where it meets the eastern district of El Hasa, now included in the Mesopotamian vilayet of Basrah. It consists of the Tehama, blistering and unfruitful beyond the Tehama, which has an average width of fifty miles, is the rest of El Hejaz, with its highlands separating it from Nejd. Yemen is a land of promise, with its rich pastures and its trees; one fifth of the whole population of Arabia is centered there. Southward, in El Hejaz, is many a stretch of verdure, but usually the country is hot, unhealthy, and glittering with vast saline deposits, a prey to mocking mirage and tormenting thirst. It is, however, the head and front of all the political divisions of Arabia, for it holds in its bosom both Medina and Mecca. Its religious influence upon Arabia and indeed, all Mohammedan countries is supreme, and rightly so. Disgusted by Turkish sycophancy, so damaging to the high prestige of a great religion, angry at the slight upon Mohammedanism by the Young Turk Party, a batch of loud-voiced at-lists scorning the True Religion; bitterly charged at the contemptuous act of the German Emperor, who permitted to become a Mohammedan merely to curry favor as they knew; and deeply resenting the persecution of their co-religionists in various countries, they threw off the irreligious Turkish bondage and declared for Arabian freedom. The Turks had then, perhaps, 30,000 troops in El Hejaz alone, with all necessary equipment, including artillery, transport, ammunition, food, and a military railway to Medina, of which the Sultan of Turkey was specially supportive. El Hejaz in this apparently long foreseen eventuality. The Arabs, on the contrary, had then no real organization; their arms and equipment were ridiculed at Stambul. A great leader was wanted. In the shrines of Mecca and Medina, the guardian of the holy shrine of Islam (Hajj), Arabia found her liberator and her king, Taj, Jidiah, Yama, Alakiah, Wedj, and Teima, were all seized and held by the Arabian national party. Shortly after the army was gathered; east and north and south they came; afoot as well as on camel; Syria, over which the King of Hejaz was quick to send his assistance. Prisoners of war of the British volunteers to help their kinsmen and were released; camps such as were shown at Wedj, sprang up through El Hejaz. No armed rabble, these, but a great Arabian army in the right type. However eager men may be to strike leaders come forward of the right type. This great national army produced its first victory at the battle of Mecca, in the shrines of Mecca and Medina, the names they bear. Along the hot shores of the Red Sea, for nearly 800 miles, the strategic railway has been raised and damaged again and again. Perhaps of the many enterprises, that of Sheriff Feisal is most worthy of note. In any times but these he would have achieved the world-wide fame which he deserves. He is a great general, cool, systematic and resourceful. The very magic of his name has brought hosts of tribesmen to swear allegiance to the King of El Hejaz, and to fight, if possible, under Sheriff Feisal's banner. His sweep up the east side of Jordan is a great military achievement. From the inhospitable Gulf of Akaba he swept toward Ma'an, past Petra the famous to Taffith, on to Kerak, the eagle-eyed army in a mighty rock, and still moves forward, forward, pursuing and fighting relentlessly, in the name of Allah and the Prophet. West of the Jordan the Egyptian Expeditionary Force has advanced in combination with him; that western force has supported him with its air mastery, and recently, by a clever raid upon Amman, the capital of the Ammonites. No part of Arabia, indeed, has failed to respond to the generous lead of King and Sheriffs; even at Hill and Hail, the core of the country between which the desert roll, the Arab cause has its support. One day, when the tide of war has at last swept by, and peace comes to distressed continents, Arabia will assuredly achieve real unity; and with her king and her great sheriffs to lead the van, she will move forward on that path of progress of which her glorious past is a promise and for which it will be a guiding beacon.

SOLDIERS HOME

Welcome to Returned Man—Gunner James Haley One of Them

Twenty-two New Brunswick soldiers, who arrived in the city last evening from overseas, were tendered a welcome this morning at the armory by the Returning Soldiers' Reception Committee. His Worship Mayor Hayes delivered an address of welcome to the returned members of the committee distributed bags containing candy and smokes to the men. Included in the party was one St. John man, Gunner James Haley, of West St. John. Gunner Haley went overseas with Major Magee's Battery and after serving in France for more than two years was taken ill with trench fever. He was invalided to England and thence to Canada. He left the firing line in last October.

Gunner Haley is very highly of both Lieutenant-Colonel Magee and Major Inchee, who is at present in command of the battery. He says that both officers are very highly thought of by the men. He says that Colonel Magee's wounds were quite serious, although he is able to be around.

A wedding of interest at St. John friends was solemnized at St. Timothy's church, Adamsville, N. B., on June 12, by Rev. Father Bourgeois, at nuptial mass, when Bertram J. Cormier, of the C. P. R. foreman's office, Bay Shore, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Cormier, of the Heights, and Miss Madeline M. Cormier, recent employee of the N. B. Telephone Co., St. John, daughter of Peter Cormier of Adamsville, N. B., and the late Mrs. Susan Cormier, were married. J. Cormier.

The good wishes of many friends are extended to the happy pair.

A very pretty wedding was solemnized in St. Peter's church at five o'clock this morning when Rev. F. Healey, C. S. R., who was celebrant at nuptial mass, united in marriage Miss Florence C. Garnett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Garnett of 564 Main street, and Louis Gorman, a popular member of the Customs House staff. The bride, who was given away by her father, looked charming in a costume of light blue silk with hat to match and carrying a shower bouquet of roses. She was attended by her cousin, Miss Isabella L. Garnett, who wore a pretty dress of dark blue silk with hat to match and carried a bouquet of carnations. Following the ceremony a dainty wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride's parents. Mr. and Mrs. Gorman will reside in Britain street. LIEUT. JAMES B. DEVER WOUNDED

"Slightly," Says Cable From Himself, Followed by One Reading "Feeling Fine"

Many will be sorry to learn that Lieut. James B. Dever of the N. B. Battalion on the western front, has been wounded, but there is reassurance in the words of cablegrams announcing the fact. His mother, Mrs. Hugh Dever, Victoria street, last night received a message from him saying "I am slightly wounded, no danger." The cable was sent from Rouen, which is taken to indicate that Lieut. Dever was on his way to hospital in England. A later cable this morning announced that he was "feeling fine."

FAIRVILLE LEAGUE MAN PITCHES BALL GAME ON WESTERN FRONT

Interesting Mother's Day Letter From Charlie Humphreys—Thinks Boys Will be Home in Fall

The following interesting letter was received this week by the mother of Pte. Chas. Humphreys, Fairville. Charlie pitched good ball in the Fairville League that memorable season of 1914 when the Royals, Athletics, Carletons and Portlands fought many a hard nine innings at Fremen's Park. We can easily believe Charlie, if he was in good form, pitched a game that won him praise and pleased the crowd. He was quite capable of doing it. The letter was written on "Mother's Day" and is as follows:—

Dear Mother—
I can remember the exact spot I wrote to you last Mother's Day, just a year ago, and it just seems like a week to me. How the time does fly! Well, Mother, I am in a much nicer place this Mother's Day, than I was last year. This day last year I was in an old German dugout well in range of the big shells; this day I am writing in a nice building well away from shells with plenty of nice trees and the birds are just as happy as if there wasn't a war on. I find it rather hard to write today as my arm is very sore, but at a game of ball last night and, not having any practice, my arm got sore after the seventh inning, but I got great praise and pleased the crowd. We won the game 15-7. It was a very interesting game, rather a large crowd and all the signal officers were there, and seemed well pleased. I won't be able to play any more for at least a week.

CAPTAIN MAJOR NOW ADJUTANT OF THE N. B. BATTALION

Captain "Reg" Major, M. C., is now adjutant of the N. B. Battalion on the western front. He was an officer in the 88th and has been with the N. B. Battalion for quite a long while; has been twice wounded, first at Vimy Ridge and again at Hill 70, where he won his decoration by staying on duty though he was wounded. He made "slightly" a good chance to kill off the remaining Hun and thus end the war soon. I feel quite sure in saying that this is the last year of the war, I think the old boys will be home this fall.

MEAN TO KEEP EYE ON CERTAIN CLASS OF GIRLS AT BAND CONCERTS IN SQUARE

In the police court this morning Magistrate Ritchie gave notice that particular attention would be paid this evening to the girls in the streets. He said that it had been drawn to his attention earlier in the week that during a band concert four small girls walked about the stand in King square and vainly endeavored to "pick-up" boys and young men. He said that he was warning the parents as well as the girls that if they were caught roaming about tonight they would in all probability spend the remaining hours of the night in a cell in the police station.
