HIGH FLYER ON A $20-A WEEK SALARY

New York Youth and Bride Lived as Millionaires

NOW SOUGHT BY POLICE

Motor Cars, Rich Jewels, Expensive Dinners and Suite at Fashionable Hotel Out of Proceeds of Embellishments From Employers

(Canadian Press) New York, Sept. 15.—John Schlicht, twenty-two years old, cashier of expert department of the Washburn-Flores Company, has vanished in the splendid suite he occupied throughout the early summer in the Eden City hotel.

With him has vanished a beautiful woman, who, at his bride, was a peer's desire for a time. Whether it is Queen Mother Alexandra's affection for some magnificent tapestries, or a peer's desire to possess some valuable antique furniture, or the holders of royal residences who try to pass off loans as presents, cases show that the late King Edward VII was a person whom others after his death are trying to victimize. There has been no man suggesting the opposite.

The most recent instance of this concern is that of King Edward's chief valet. After a lengthy dispute he has agreed to pay over to King George $50,000 which Chandler at first contended was a gift to him from King Edward. At the time of King Edward's death the money in question was invested in Canadian Pacific Railway stock purchased in Chandler's name. Immediately after King Edward's death Chandler sold the stock and invested the money in a house and property in South London.

When King Edward's private financial affairs were being investigated by Sir Edward White, King George's solicitor, evidence was brought to light showing that the valet had the Canadian Pacific stock only in trust and that it properly belonged to the late King's estate. Chandler for a time stubbornly maintained that it was a gift to himself though its form and the fact that Chandler immediately after King Edward's death sold the stock and reinvested the money in his own net piece of investment were regarded as sufficient to show that the king was using his valet for a small deal in Canadian Pacific on his own private account.

But, besides this, when the late King Edward's papers were investigated the whole thing was plain and last week Chandler went to Baltimore and as a result of an interview with Lord Stamfordham and Lord Knollys, private secretary to King George, was ordered to return over $80,000 to King George.

There is no need to think that Chandler tried to reconquer himself for favors to King Edward which had been recognized by the late sovereign, for Chandler is certainly a man who is known to own a house and property in London worth $80,000 while King Edward bequeathed him $75,000 in cash.

PHONE ON I. C. R. FOR DISPATCHING

Try it First on St. John-Moncton Section—Two New Departments and Other Matters for Government Railway

(Canadian Press)

Montreal, Sept. 15.—Two new departments and an improved organization of the whole I. C. R. system will soon be in operation, said F. P. Guelius, general manager of the Intercolonial Railway today in the new departments Robert Simpson has been appointed general agent, and B. K. Kluck, general telegraph agent.

On the programme of improvement are the double tracking of several sections of the road, increased yard and work shop facilities, improved ferry service at the Strait of Canoe, installation of a telephone service on the Moncton-St. John line, and the introduction of the automatic block service. The construction of several new and attractive station houses is also planned.

Speaking of work shop facilities, Mr. Guelius said it did not pay to make an absolute concentration of mechanical force at headquarters, and at the River Du Loup shop fifty additional men were recently appointed. All boiler repairs, however, must be done at the Moncton shops.

The contract for eight miles of double tracking from Levis to Chaudiere Junction was awarded on Saturday to Messrs. Soper and McDougal. The yards at Levis, too, are to be extended to accommodate the new freight trains.

A second ferry boat for the Canoe crossing will be provided soon at a cost of $800,000, and this will give a more efficient service.

The train despatching by telephone on the St. John and Moncton section will mark the first attempt of this kind on the government system. At the same time the automatic block system is to be introduced.

A cut off has been completed between the I. C. R. and N. T. R. at the three mile culvert. At this point the railway are only fifty feet apart. It is said that the main line for three miles north of Moncton, runs in and out of the city over the Transcontinental Railway from "Moncton Junction," near Cornhill street, to the three mile culvert.

It is also reported that the N. T. R. yard is to be used to some extent for the shunting and handling of I. C. R. freight trains so as to relieve frequent congestion in the lower yards. This may also have the effect of doing away with the freight shunting near the I. C. R. depot.

Moncton, N. B., Sept. 15.—A Liberal rally in Memramook on Saturday evening was attended by many, despite a heavy downpour of rain. The speaker was Hon. H. R. Emerson, P. M., who was accompanied by Messrs. M. B. A. Hall and C. M. Legere, reception committee.

He spoke of the importation of highly paid officials from Ontario and the C. P. R., and the suppression of the I. C. R. train yard.

The proceedings closed with cheer for the king, Sir Wilfrid Laurier, the speakers and Chairman Legere.

Very many throughout the party were greatly disappointed at not being able to attend on account of unfavorable weather and almost impossible to get to the meeting.

Hope To Prove Murderer of Girl Was Pseudo Priest

He Had Also Passed as a Surgeon—Vicar-General Describes Him as Monster

(Canadian Press)

New York, Sept. 15.—In the hope of branding an impostor and pseudo priest the Rev. Hans Schmidt, the alleged self-confessed slayer of Anna Amaliegren, victim of New York's River murder mystery, church authorities today began a sweeping investigation of his record and pretensions to ordination.

"We hope, of course, to be able to prove that this unrepentant monster was an impostor and that he had been using forged papers," declared Monsignor Lavelle, vicar general of the Archdiocese of New York. "That is something which we are trying to clear up now. He came to this diocese with credentials which were apparently in every way authentic through the night and arose this morning to partake of a hearty breakfast. He had little to add to his alleged confession of last night in which he is said to have told the police that he killed his victim as she lay in bed, cut up her body in the bath tub of the apartment where he had established her, wrapped her in five bundles and dropped the bundles into the Hudson River. To the Rev. L. J. Evers, the Tomb chaplain, Schmidt was said to have made the following declaration:

"I was directed to kill her by Saint Elizabeth, who is my patron, as a sacrifice, to be consummated by the sacrifice of Abraham, of the blood."

To the police Schmidt is alleged to have said: "I killed her because I loved her." The police believe, however, that he killed her because she was soon to be married to a man who was a member of the same church in which he was both priest and bridegroom.

The Alma Keiser Case—The view to clearing the mystery surrounding the murder of eight-year-old Alma Keiser, whose mutilated body was found in quicklime in the basement of St. John's Catholic Church in Louisville, Ky., two and one-half years ago, the police sought today to obtain from Schmidt some statement of what he knew of this crime. From August 1899 to March 1900, Schmidt was a priest in Louisville, not officially connected with any church there, but a priest in New York.

QUEIRES AT LOURDES ARE REPORTED

Five Cases Told of in Cable From London Newspapers' Medical Correspondent at Shrine

(Canadian Press)

London, Sept. 15.—The Daily Mail's medical correspondent, who has gone to Lourdes where some 16,000 pilgrims are gathered, reports that five cases of queres are being reported from the shrine.

The first case is that of a woman fifty-one years of age who for four years had been completely crippled by rheumatism of the leg, being able to crawl about only with great difficulty and the aid of crutches.

The second case is that of a girl of nine who was deaf and dumb and afflicted with St. Vitus Dance from an attack of scarlet fever three years ago. Her hearing is still somewhat defective in the right ear, but apparently is normal in the left.

The third case is that of a boy of seven, who suffered from advanced tubercular disease of the leg, being able to hobble about with crutches.

Grace Maloney, who a few days ago readily regained the use of a knee that had been deformed and useless for nine years through paralysis, now joins all the processions, walking unaided by crutches and without any limp.

Michael Downey, of Belfast, who, after being a complete cripple with rheumatism, is now able to walk without crutches, suddenly threw them away, continues to enjoy the use of his legs.

VALET PAYS BACK $60,000 TO KING

Had Contended Late Monarch Gave It to Him

(Canadian Press)

London, Sept. 15.—King George is still busy settling up various outstanding items on his father's account. Whether it is Queen Mother Alexandra's affection for some magnificent tapestries, or a peer's desire to possess some valuable antique furniture, or the holders of royal residences who try to pass off loans as presents, cases show that the late King Edward VII was a person whom others after his death are trying to victimize. PLANNING EXHIBITION OF THE EMPIRE

Preparation For Big Show in London in 1915— Lord Strathcona President; Earl Grey Vice-President

(Times' Special Correspondence) London, Sept. 4.—Almost every country in the world has had an exhibition in London, devoted to its resources, but we have to go back a good many years since a purely British exhibition opened its gates in the metropolis. This is to be altered, and for the last twelve months plans have been in course of preparation for the imperial exhibition to be held in 1915, which is to bring together everything of British industry and resource from all parts of the empire.

of affairs of imperial concern, for that year in London, and it should be a very memorable year in London's records. The proposal has met with marked enthusiasm. Lord Strathcona, the president, has sent out an appeal to the members of both houses of parliament in England, and the grand council of this exhibition already consists of about 700 members of all sections of the community throughout the empire, and embraces about one-third of the members of both houses at Westminster. Almost every member of the British Parliamentary Association which recently toured Canada is a member of one or other of the committees. Before the end of the year or early in the coming year representatives will leave for Canada, Australia and other parts of the empire to invite the co-operation of these countries.

IRISH EMIGRANTS FOR THE DOMINION Plan to Divert Workers From the United States THE CALL AT QUEENSTOWN Next Month to See a Beginning of the Work at Black Bay, Looking To The Three and a Half Day Run To Canada

(Times' Special Correspondence) London, Sept. 4.—Whatever the result of the decision of the Canadian Line to discontinue the calls of their fast American steamers at Queenstown may be to Ireland, it will probably mean a great deal to Canada, for it is the intention of the company to have steamers of the Canadian service make a stop at the southern Irish port. There are those who see in this decision another shrewd tactical move on the part of the Canadian company to capture the Irish trade, and to make ready for the record next year, which is ever in the minds of steamship company directors.

GRANDMA USED SAGE TEA TO DARKEN HAIR She Used Sulphur With it To Restore Color, Gloss, Thickness Common garden sage brewed into a leary tea with sulphur and alcohol added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant, remove every bit of dandruff, stop scalp itching and falling hair. Just a few applications will prove a revelation if your hair is falling, gray or dry, scraggly and thin. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. It is easier way is to get the ready-to-use tonic, costing about 80 cents a large bottle at drug stores, known as "Wyer's Sage and Sulphur Hair Restorer," thus avoiding a lot of fuss.

While wispy, gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyer's Sage and Sulphur, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hair has disappeared, and, after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant.

SOCIAL CLIMBERS OFFER ANYTHING

Want to Live in Same Street as Royal Pair PROPERTY TAKES RISE New London Home of Prince Arthur—Ambition to Eclipse Duchess of Marlborough's Famous Peas—News of Canadians Across the Atlantic (Times' Special Correspondence) London, Sept. 4.—Property in Mount Street, where Prince Arthur of Connaught, has just taken a house for his bride-to-be, has suddenly gone up in value. Snobs are ready to pay any price for even a small flat in that street so as to be able, as it were, to rub shoulders with the royal pair. Several rich "climbers," whose names out of charity I suppress, are begging the agents to "get them anything there," and they will double the rent of the house, as the so-called "climbers" are quite determined on being independent and paying the rent out of his own income, a fact which has caused a little friction. The Princess Royal, his prospective mother-in-law, thinks the action preposterous, but the prince, although so very genial, has a way of putting down his foot. When he says a thing he means it, so there is no more to be said.

PRIEST CONFESSES MURDER OF GIRL

New York, Sept. 14.—With the arrest early today of the Rev. Hans Schmidt, assistant pastor of the St. Joseph's Roman Catholic church, charged with the murder of Anna Annuller, a domestic, the mystery surrounding the finding twelve days ago of parts of the dismembered body of a girl in the Hudson river, was solved. Schmidt, according to the police reports of his arrest, has confessed, and at the time of his arrest, attempted to commit suicide by cutting his throat with a razor blade. "I killed her because I loved her so much," Schmidt is alleged to have told his captors, but the police version of the motive for the crime is that the woman was about to become a noth.

A GLOW-WORM GOWN STARTLES THE NATIVES

Carlie Girl, Agleam With Phosphorescent Draperies, Attracts Large Following A gown of flimsy material, which evidently had been treated to a phosphorescent wash, worn by Miss Beresford, caused much excitement the other night in Main street, of Carlie, Pa. The gown was diaphanous and had a glow that gave an ethereal appearance to the young woman as she stepped boldly around the principal streets, accompanied by a stalwart escort. A mob of hand-to-mouth tradesmen paused on their way to evening services, and many of them joined the throng, morning all gray hair has disappeared, and, after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant.

WOMAN SUFFRAGE AND THE BIRTH RATE

In reply to false reports published by the English anti-suffragists, the women voters of the city of Broken Hill, Australia, have issued the following statement: "The Broken Hill birth rate for 1912 was 88 per 1,000, the highest of any city of equal size in the world. The marriage rate was 12 per 1,000, 28 per cent above Canada, and 88 per cent above the average of European marriage rates. The death rate was 14 per 1,000, which is below all European countries except the Netherlands, Norway, Sweden and Denmark. The excessive death rate is accounted for by 21 fatal mining accidents. The margin between the birth rate and the death rate is 25 per 1,000, by far the highest in the world."

Money for Canada

Viscount Combermere, who returned from Canada last week, is, I hear, very well pleased with the investment he made during his visit to the dominion and has expressed the opinion that there is no better country today for investment. It is not improbable that other peers with whom he has been in conversation since his return will follow his example. Since the death of the Duke of Sutherland, we have not heard very much concerning the future of his Canadian holdings. It has been said that the large amount of money which he had to invest in his purchases made him a little dissatisfied, particularly as the money was the proceeds of the sale of valued possessions as well as estates. The dispersal of the objects of art and costly furniture and effects was a source of great disappointment. Valuable articles of furniture and sculpture went for a mere nothing. In the shops of the London dealers in Oxford street, there are still many of the former prized possessions of the Sutherland family, and numerous Canadian and American visitors are buying choice specimens for a tithe of their original cost. The present holder of the title is credited with the intention of selling the remainder of the property.

THE FIREBRANDS

Sir Edward Carson, who is seeking to arouse prejudice in England, declared in a speech at Durham on Saturday night that Ulster would never abandon the principle for which she had fought, of being governed by an Imperial Parliament with an executive responsible to Parliament.

It was a foregone conclusion, whatever government might be in power, that when the contract for the Atlantic mail service was renewed, St. John would be recognized as a direct mail port.

The Montreal Telegraph announces that arrangements are being made for another great political meeting at St. John's, Que., on October 4.

"Sympathy for Thaw," says a writer in a New York journal, "is deadened by the fact that his murderer, Stanford White, was not an isolated act."

Every possible attempt will be made to embarrass the government and delay its work. If Sir Edward Carson and some other fire-brands in Ulster cannot be reconciled, it will still be the duty of the government to carry out the declared will of the people of the United Kingdom.

LIGHTER VEIN

Two young employees of a florist, who are supposed to be variously employed in the rear of the establishment while the boss looks after things in the front, were recently startled by the appearance of the "old man" as they were engaged in a game of checkers.

"Did she take anything?" She seized the menu, glanced over it, said she didn't feel very hungry and ordered—"Well, what did she order?"

"My name is Specknoole," he volunteered. "Oh, I am so sorry," she said, sympathetically, as she left the car.

Monetary Stringency Almost Certain to Disappear Within Next Three Months in Canada

Has Been Working Its Own Cure For a Long Time—Last Two Payments on C. P. R. New Issue, Which Will Not be Drawn Against for Bond Redemption, Will Have Important Effect—Trying Period Near Its End

(Financial Times, Montreal)

Some financial experts are now coming forward with predictions that in the next three months or so the monetary stringency will be a thing of the past so far as Canada is concerned. And the experts are supported with good confidence in a question of this kind. It is to be said that this contention of the experts is based upon a number of strong arguments.

In the first place it is to be remembered that a country served by a weak and inefficient banking system, as in the United States, the system may break down, and financial paralysis then prevails for a time, to be quickly succeeded by a period in which the supplies of money are so abundant that the monetary stringency is a thing of the past. But when the country under pressure is served by a strong and efficient banking system, as is the case in Canada, a general breakdown of credit is by no means inevitable. All the indications at present are to the effect that the general financial situation of this country has successfully passed through the critical stage of the monetary stringency. In other words, the Canadian banks have added to their liquid assets the proceeds of the new issue of C. P. R. bonds, and the financial experts are confident that the monetary stringency will be a thing of the past in the near future.

It is well to be well, at this point, to draw attention to the several factors which have been working recently in the direction of easing the monetary stringency. The first of these is the fact that, at the outset, that no one expects any pronounced development towards easy money while the crop movement is in progress. During September, October and November there are endless demands for credits and loans, occasioned by the great activity of business. These special demands by themselves probably sufficient to keep the money market hard for three months to come, even if the industries and mercantile establishments of the country were not reduced activity as compared with the preceding year.

Rushing the Crop

Last week's wire from Miss Hind to the Financial Times, reported that the Canadian Pacific lines are the most complete thing ever seen in the west.

All members of No. 3 Battery 3rd Regt. C. M., will return equipment and rifles tonight, at Fort Howe drill hall, and will receive annual pay Thursday evening, Sept. 18, at 8 o'clock.

THE MILLS

There is a possibility that Murray & Gregory's mill at Marble Cove will be started on Thursday. J. Fraser Gregory will be in charge. Also there is now the certainty of a profitable crop. Under ordinary circumstances such a crop would be well to go in large measure towards the cancellation of liabilities.

ANNIVERSARY PRESENTATION

A pleasant surprise was given Mr. and Mrs. George A. Earle on last Friday evening when friends called upon them at their home, 282 Union street, to congratulate them upon the twenty-seventh anniversary of their marriage. They were made recipients of a handsome china tea set as an emblem of the regard in which they are held. Luncheon was served at midnight, and all had a delightful time.

METHODIST MINISTERS

At the St. John Methodist ministers' meeting, Rev. H. E. Thomas of Carleton, was elected chairman and Rev. G. Earle of Matville secretary. A good deal of time was taken up in preparing for a conference of all the Methodist ministers of the Maritime provinces to be held in Amherst on October 6, 7 and 8. Through the generosity of some of the laymen, the meeting was held in the hall of the Methodist church in Canada, China and Japan.

The Small Boy's Question

Small Boy—"What is a roost, papa?"
Parent—"A roost, my son, is the pole on which chickens roost at night."
Small Boy—"And what is a perch, papa?"
Parent—"A perch is what chickens perch on at night."
Small Boy—"But if the chicken perched on a roost, that would make the roost a perch, wouldn't it?"
Parent—"Oh, yes, I suppose so."
Small Boy—"But if just after some chickens had perched on a roost and made it a perch, some chickens came along and roosted on the perch and made it a roost, then the roost would be a perch and the perch would be a roost, wouldn't it?"
Parent—"Susan, Susan! take this child to bed before he drives me mad!"

One Regular Job

There was a man in our town—
A lazy sort of chap,
He got a job one summer day
And thought he'd found a snap
He lingered and he loitered,
He loafed and chattered—then
He found he had to go
To hunt a job again.

There was a man in our town—

He found a place once more,
You'll find him there today;
No matter where the town may be,
As he is shortly to be,
This chap when you've discovered
You've found one fellow then
Whose steady job just to go
To hunt a job again.

There was a man in our town—

All in the boss's ken,
As he is shortly to be,
To hunt a job again.

JOHN I. RUSSELL OF MILFORD IS FATALLY STRUCK

The death of a well-known resident of Milford, John James Russell, occurred suddenly last evening at the residence of his son, Thomas, with whom he had made his home for some years. His son and two grandsons survive. Mr. Russell had been a resident of the city all his long life, most of which had been spent in North End. At the age of seven years he was apprenticed to a shoemaker under the old style of indenture and had followed that trade all his life.

It was noticed that he was not quite well while he and his son were eating supper last evening and it was found that he had sustained a slight stroke of paralysis, and this was followed by a severe attack of pneumonia which he had contracted at the time and was called in, but nothing could be done for him. The funeral will be held tomorrow afternoon from the home of his son.

MILLIONS JUST TO MAKE TORY TORONTO MORE BEAUTIFUL CITY

Borden Government Thus Spends While Country is Crying For Works Needed in Commerce

Ottawa, Sept. 14.—The Toronto harbor contract which the government has just awarded is for works designed almost exclusively for the beautification of Toronto on the water-front. The amount to be paid contractors is more than $5,250,000.

Of this sum less than $200,000 will be applied to useful works which will be of benefit to commerce.

The great bulk of the money will be spent in constructing breakwaters and piers which will serve only as a usual paid for by the taxpayers away more than six miles long covering the whole lake side of Toronto and taking in the island in front of the city.

It is said that when the works are carried out Toronto will have one of the most beautiful aspects in the world from the water-side.

There is some surprise here that the government should have lent itself to a work of local ornamentation in Toronto when the commerce of the country is making demands everywhere for wharves, breakwaters, railways and canals. The Toronto work is of the sort which is usually paid for by cities themselves as part of their park system. In addition to the $5,000,000 contract there is another contract of more than $1,000,000 for dredging Toronto harbor.

MY LADY'S PERFUME

(London Graphic)

The day was, I confess, unpropitious for my pilgrimage to the shrine of Our Lady of the Flowers. The mistral was blowing hard and it was glad to escape the carriage windows as the train puffed wearily up the mountain side which had not been for the beauty of the scenery as Grasse was reached. The one would have wondered why Queen Victoria chose for her winter home so easy and the countryside is so lovely and I for Grasse is not a lovely town. But, then, the call from it will on a bottle of perfume one of us, and again of their lack in the possession of a climate which for nine days out of ten, is more reminiscent of spring than winter.

There is an idea current—I possessed it till I made my pilgrimage to Grasse—or "illac," or whatever flower name you will, on a bottle of perfume one of us, and again of their lack in the possession of a climate which for nine days out of ten, is more reminiscent of spring than winter.

BIG MAN OF FRANCE IS THE PRESIDENT

Glimpse at Inner Life of Monsieur Poincare

STEADY, PERSERVING WORKER

This Has Brought Him Success—Happy in His Home, Fond of Children, and Very Popular in the Republic—Works 16 Hours a Day

(Times' Special Correspondence)

Paris, Sept. 8.—Little is known by the public of the intimate home life of M. Raymond Poincare, the French president.

Strangely contrasting with the glittering pomp and ceremony of his public life, his existence when shrouded from the limelight behind the walls of the Elysee Palace, is one of marked simplicity.

The public life of the French president, from his birth in 1856 in Joan de Arc county to his election on January 17 of this year, is now common knowledge.

After winning all the prizes of his class at school he won the greatest prize that France has to offer her illustrious sons—the presidency.

He is a typical specimen of the successful Frenchman—clear-headed, muscular, active and industrious. It was sheer hard work that won him his place at the bar, his admission into the ranks of the forty "immortals," a seat in the cabinet, the presidency—and his wife.

When M. Poincare was a struggling young barrister he fell in love with the beautiful woman who now shares the honors of the Elysee with him. Her parents demanded a marriage settlement of one million francs ($200,000) and it took him only five years to save this considerable sum.

The official life of the French president is hedged round with ceremony. He cannot go anywhere without the escort of a regiment of soldiers and a bodyguard of detectives.

When he visits a provincial town he is received in state by the mayor, the corporation, the municipal band, and the fire-brigade. In foreign countries he is welcomed with regal honors. With all this the public and foreign press are well acquainted.

Every phase of the French president's life outside the "Elysee" is shown at the picture halls of his own evening, but when the gates of his official residence have closed behind him the wall of the "vie privee" shuts him out completely from the outside world.

"At Home" M. Poincare rises every day, winter and summer at six a. m. At half past six his dressing and toilet are finished and he reads the morning papers until seven.

His training as a lawyer enables him to exercise a rapid and judicious choice of his news, and half an hour suffices for him to extract the cream of half a dozen journals. He takes his breakfast at the same time. His "petit dejeuner" is the same as that of millions of Frenchmen—coffee and rolls.

At seven o'clock the day's work begins with the signing of multitudinous documents. This might be done in a couple of hours if performed in a perfunctory manner, but M. Poincare has the bump of prudence very strongly developed; he reads every document he is asked to sign. This work, performed with the minuteness and thoroughness which characterizes all his actions, lasts till noon.

M. Poincare now takes lunch with his wife. This is a moment of relaxation in the midst of his daily work, and he takes full advantage of it. Being blessed with perfect health and a good appetite, M. Poincare does justice to the efforts of the Elysee cooks, who have carefully studied his tastes. He finds time, however, to carry on an animated conversation with Madame Poincare. He tells her what he has read in the morning papers, and informs her what arrangements he has made for the afternoon. They are a typical happy French "menage"—communicative, confiding and good-tempered.

This break in the monotony of official work passes all too quickly, and M. Poincare is back again with his nose to the grindstone at 1 p. m. In the course of the morning his six secretaries have been busy answering the hundreds of letters that fill the president's post-box every day, and all these answers must be read and signed. A certain number of secretaries, M. P., and high officials are

"Pape's Diapessin" Digests Food When Stomach Can't—Cures Indigestion

Do some foods you eat hit back—taste good, but work badly; ferment into stubborn lumps and cause a sick, sour, greasy stomach? Now, Mr. or Mrs. Dyspeptic, get this down: Pape's Diapessin digests everything, leaving nothing to sour and upset you.

There never was anything so safely quick, so certainly effective. No difference how badly your stomach is disordered you will get happy relief in five minutes, but what please you most is that it strengthens and regulates your stomach so you can eat your favorite foods without fear.

Most remedies give you relief sometimes—they are slow, but not sure. "Pape's Diapessin" is quick, positive and puts your stomach in a healthy condition so the misery won't come back.

You feel different as soon as "Pape's Diapessin" comes in contact with the stomach—distress just vanishes—your stomach gets sweet, no gases, no belching, no eructations of undigested food, your head clears and you feel fine.

Go now, make the best investment you ever made, by getting a large fifty-cent case of Pape's Diapessin from any drug store. You realize in five minutes what you need—it is to suffer from indigestion, dyspepsia or any stomach disorder.

minutes afterwards he returned with the biggest doll in the establishment. The little girl wept again, but this time it was for joy.

These visits are pleasant distractions in the president's busy day. When he has no guests, he dines alone with his wife, and afterwards spends an hour with her in the drawing-room. Madame Poincare is an excellent pianist and sings quite as well as many professionalists.

She was born in Italy and prefers to sing in the language of her country, but she is equally at home in French. At ten o'clock her husband returns to his study and starts to work again, but the last two hours of his day are devoted to study.

Although his knowledge is almost encyclopaedic, he is always learning something, "just to keep his brain from getting rusty," he says. He is at present reading "Green's History of the English People." His recent visit to England made a great impression on him, and he is anxious to get a deeper insight into the character of these friends of France.

Dignified and Firm Although he is good-natured and unostentatious, M. Poincare is not lacking in firmness and dignity. When he backed the Mayor of Rouen, Toulan and "Toulan" had "officially" refused to receive him with due civic honors, he re-ceived him with due civic honors.

"The president of the republic is at home every where in France and can dispense with the hospitality of a mayor. The officers of his household will proceed to these three towns and make the necessary arrangements without the help of the municipality."

He can always be relied on to act with scrupulous fairness and justice, and this is a quality which has endeared him to all those who serve under him. He is, above all, a faithful friend, and his rise to power has made no change in his early affections.

His training as an advocate has made him a ready speaker, but this is not the only secret of those little masterpieces of oratory which seem to spring from his lips so aptly. Every speech he delivers is written by himself and committed to memory. This is not a difficult task, as he is one of those fortunate people who can remember a page after one reading.

One of his favorite hobbies is graphology, at which he is almost an expert. He studies every unknown hand with the same minuteness as a carefully examines a new specimen, and carefully notes the page after one reading.

results of his investigations in a large U.S. book. This volume, which contains the graphological portrait of nearly a thousand deputies, senators, and public men, is carefully kept under lock and key. He has even had the frankness to analyze his own writing; here is his own portrait of himself:

"Tastes aesthetic and poetical, combined with lucidity of thought; a hard worker, leaving nothing to chance; too much inclined to give way to impulses, which should be checked by an effort of will; inclined to believe in the supernatural, good-natured, but a little shy."

Although M. Poincare is what the French call an "intellectual," he does not believe in neglecting the body. He finishes his day with twenty minutes' systematic physical exercise, followed by a cold "douche." He has done this for many years with very beneficial results.

"It is absolutely necessary," he says, "to fatigue the body before going to bed, in order to prepare it for sleep. If we do not do this, the brain remains active and prevents or delays sleep."

Popularity Makes Him Busy He probably owes his own robust health to a long line of sturdy ancestors, among whom may be mentioned his maternal grandfather who was an "official wolf-hunter" at a time when these beasts over-ran the countryside; the wolf-hunter's daughter married a very clever engineer, Antoin Poincare, who was the leading student at the famous Polytechnic College. Raymond Poincare has inherited his father's brains. He started life, therefore equipped with health and intellect, but these two advantages would never have carried him to the foremost rank unless they had been backed up by unflinching industry and steely strength of character.

He is one of the few "strong men" who have been elected to the presidency in France and his popularity increases every day. His picture on the moving-picture screen is always greeted with shouts of applause; Fallieres' image always attracts a mob for the moving-picture screen is always greeted with shouts of applause; Fallieres' image always attracts a mob for the moving-picture screen is always greeted with shouts of applause.

Nowadays, even the poorest Frenchman takes a holiday, but there will be no rest this year for M. Poincare. His predecessors were wont to spend a month or two in the luxurious national castles of Fontainebleau or Rambouillet, but President Poincare will have to lead a strenuous life this month and next.

He has had invitations from nearly every town in France, and will visit all the important centres in the south-east and south-west. His intention is to go from Hendaye to Madrid, where he will be the guest of the King of Spain. He will then proceed to Toledo, to inspect the military school, and from thence to Carthagena, where the Spanish fleet will hold a review in his honor. He will return to France by way of Marseilles, which will be his visit in true southern style. He will be back at the Elysee in October to take up the helm of the ship of state. Every Frenchman knows that there are stormy waters ahead, but he knows, too, that there is a "man" at the wheel.

JACK COOMBS MAY BE IN PLASTER CAST FOR WEEKS

Muscles of Back Have Suffered by Strain of Trying to Get Into Condition

A Philadelphia despatch says that "Jack" Coombs, formerly of the St. John Alerts, and now star pitcher of the Athletic Baseball Club, and hero of two world series, is in the University Hospital. The muscles of his back, weakened by an attack of typhoid fever, the physician said, were unable to stand the strain put upon them in his attempt to work into condition, and it is said he may be placed in a plaster cast for several weeks.

CEMENT HOUSES OF NEW KIND

Canada Company Finding a New Use For Its Product

(Montreal Financial Times)
The Canada Cement Company Limited is finding a new use for its product. Contracts have been let and the work is already under way for the building of continuous cavity concrete houses to help solve the housing problem for their workmen and families, in the vicinity of the huge Pointe aux Trembles plant of the company.

To some extent these houses are more or less of an experiment, though the designer, Dr. Roughsedge, formerly of Ottawa and now of Montreal, believes his idea to have passed the experimental stage. Associated with Dr. Roughsedge in the undertaking is Colonel Ramsey of Ottawa, under the firm title of Roughsedge and Ramsey.

These workmen's houses were originally designed by Dr. Roughsedge, his announced aim being "to provide a better house than yet has been for less money, containing such domestic conveniences as will enable the housewife to maintain a clean healthy home at the lowest cost of money and of labor."

Dr. Roughsedge claims that these "continuous cavity" houses will solve the problem of house building.

Eliminated Humidity

In the building of these houses "continuous cavity" is the keynote. The idea is to eliminate the humidity, the dampness generally supposed to exist when a building is entirely of cement. The "continuous cavity" works for sanitation, for improved ventilation, for, as expressed by the designer, "healthy homes produce healthy bodies, healthy minds and healthy communities."

The building of these workmen's homes at Pointe aux Trembles has a direct bearing on the future consumption of cement in Canada, as well as being a big factor in the housing problem of a big and fast growing country. Every important industry must to a greater or less extent have its housing problem.

HALIFAX FIRE CHIEF IN CITY

A visitor to the city yesterday was Chief Broderick of the Halifax fire department, here on his return home after having attended a convention of Canadian fire chiefs in Kingston last week and also a New York convention held towards the latter part of the week. He was greatly pleased with the two gatherings, but thought that the Kingston convention was of greater advantage to those who attended than was that held in New York, although only sixty-one chiefs were present at the former, as compared with 1,100 at the other.

While in the city yesterday the visiting fire chief was taken on a round of the local fire stations by Chief George Blake. He also visited the new Imperial Theatre in King square and was greatly pleased with the fire precautions there. He will return to his home today.

SIR GILBERT PARKER

The Canadian Clubs at St. John have been trying to get Sir Gilbert Parker to address them, but as yet without success. The Montreal Telegraph says: "Sir Gilbert Parker, M. P., D. C. L., who is in the Canadian west at present, and who is reported as having addressed the Canadian Club at Vancouver, on subjects of pressing imperial interest, has been asked, and has consented to give the opening university lecture of the new session at McGill University on October 6. The date in question is the anniversary of the birthday of the founder of the University—the Hon. James McGill—and for some years the lecture has been given on that day. Sir Gilbert will speak on "The Duty of the University to Art and Music."

NEW POINT IN MISS MCGOLDRICK WILL

Being Typewritten, Is It Valid Instrument?

MAY GET TO SUPREME COURT?

Probable Also That There Will Be Action in Chancery—Mr. Baxter Raises Question, It is Believed, For First Time

A new point which may take the will of Miss Elizabeth McGoldrick to the Supreme Court of Canada arose in the matter of the will before Judge Armstrong in the probate court today. It is whether or not a typewritten will is a valid instrument. It was also announced during the hearing this morning that, because of a contention that some of the property covered by the will was held in trust, there likely will be a chancery court action brought.

The whole matter came up today on return of a citation to prove the will in solemn form. Stephen B. Bustin appeared for the executor, Amos A. Wilson, K. C., for two of the legatees, and John B. Baxter, K.C., for John McGoldrick, a brother of the testatrix.

The will having been proved in ordinary form by the two witnesses thereto, Mr. Baxter, who appeared contrary to the question that the power to dispose of property by will is dependent entirely upon the statute, and that the statute of wills, the earliest being that of Henry VIII, and later down to the present time, were enacted when typewriting was not known, such statutes using the word "writing" which must at the time have meant writing with the pen and ink. He contended that as the present will is written entirely in typewriting, it is not executed in accordance with the statutory requirements.

Mr. Wilson and Mr. Bustin argued that the fact that since typewriting came into use that mode has been adopted for drawing wills and would be reorganized by the courts as an established custom.

Mr. Baxter said that so far as he knew there never had been a decision on the point in either a British or foreign court.

As Mr. Baxter was not ready to call other witnesses, the court adjourned for a week. Decision then will be given by Judge Armstrong.

The court took up the matter of the will of John A. McC. Lawrence. Probate of the will was granted on March 14, 1899, to the executors therein named—George E. Palmer and John E. Irvine. The will gave the widow, Mary E. Lawrence, power to nominate new executors in the case of vacancies occurring. John E. Irvine having died, James King Kelley was appointed an executor, and George E. Palmerweather having since died, on the request of the widow, part of the estate being still unadministered, James F. Sanford, barrister-at-law, was appointed to take the place of Mr. Palmerweather. Messrs. Barnhill, Ewing & Sanford are executors.

BOTH ROTHESEY SCHOOLS, RE-OPENING TOMORROW, TAXED TO CAPACITY

Some New Teachers—Reunion of Netherwood Graduates at End of This Week

Rothesay Collegiate School for boys and the Netherwood School for Girls at Rothesay will both open tomorrow after being closed for the long summer vacation. The popularity of both institutions is indicated by the fact that the attendance will be limited only by the capacity of the buildings in both schools.

With the addition of the south wing the boys' school can now accommodate sixty pupils and this number is expected for the opening. The north wing will be ready by the first of the year and fifteen more boys will enter then. The only change in the staff of the appointment of H. A. Harley as teacher in place of H. L. Adams, whose resignation took effect at the close of the last term. Mr. Harley is a graduate of King's College, Windsor, N. S., and comes highly recommended.

A reunion of the graduates of Netherwood is to take place at the end of this week and already a large number of former students have announced their intention of being present. They will arrive at the school on Friday and probably remain until Monday.

TWO DEATHS ON NORTH SHORE

Chatham, N. B., Sept. 15.—A little after midnight last night, Mrs. Hannah Cassidy, widow of David Cassidy, died at the age of eighty-nine.
