MRS. SUTTON CAUSES A LIVELY SENSATION Her Appearance on Stand Leads to Controversy.

Brings Serious and Delicate Charges
Against Her Dead's Son's Fellow Officers.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Aug. 7.—The appearance on the witness stand yesterday of Mrs. James N. Sutton, the mother of Lieutenant Sutton of the Marine Corps whose death has been re-investigated by the naval board of inquiry here was the occasion of a heated controversy between the lawyers on all sides which ended in a prolonged conference of the members of the board behind closed doors and brought the day's proceedings to an abrupt end.

Several witnesses had been disposed of during the day when Judge Advocate Leonard called Mrs. Sutton to the stand. Before proceeding with her examination, Major Leonard offered for identification and to be read in evidence several letters which he said Mrs. Sutton had written containing serious and delicate charges against the young officers of the marine corps who appeared as defendants.

Henry E. Davis, counsel for Mrs. Sutton made strenuous objection on the ground that Mrs. Sutton was not present to make any accusations and that the letters in question were irrelevant to the inquiry and of a personal and incompetent nature as evidence.

"It is inconceivable that the judge advocate should attempt to force Mrs. Sutton into such a position before this board of inquiry," said Mr. Davis. "These letters are not offered to assist the court in finding out how Lieutenant Sutton met his death. They have nothing to do with the present case."

"That these letters containing perhaps the most serious charges against a man who has been dead for some time, should be read before a court of law, is indeed unique and cruel."

Mrs. Sutton broke down and buried her face in her handkerchief during Mr. Davis' remarks. Major Leonard declared that Mr. Davis had misconstructed the judge advocate's position in the matter and asked that the lawyer's remarks implying bad faith on his part be stricken from the record.

"I would have Mr. Davis remember," he said, "that the hallowed grave of a dead son is no more sacred than the reputation of a living officer and there are many such reputations at stake here."

The judge advocate said the court had the right to inquire upon what grounds Mrs. Sutton had made the statements in the letters.

Mr. Birney, counsel for Lieutenant Adams, protested that Mrs. Sutton had consistently tried to avoid her true position in the proceedings and urged that the letters be read in evidence.

At this point, commander Hood, president of the board, ordered court closed and went into conference with his associates on the board and the judge advocate.

Upon returning from an adjoining room, Commander Hood announced that the letters would be read in evidence tomorrow to the interested parties and their counsel.

GYPSY SETTLERS HAD OVER $11,000 Prominent Brockville Citizen Charged With Perjury

Kingsford Widow Drowned—Young Man Dies While Being Hurried to the Doctor.

SOO, Ont., Aug. 6.—A band of gypsies on their way west were intercepted by Government officials here today. Upon being questioned they said they intended to take up farms in Western Canada and displayed sums of money totalling $11,000, chiefly in gold coin.

BROCKVILLE, Ont., Aug. 7.—As a sequel to the recent local option campaign, R. H. Service was today committed for trial on charges of perjury preferred by Rev. Mr. Leach. Mr. Service is a well known citizen of Brockville and his commitment is causing considerable interest.

KINGSFORD, Ont., Aug. 7.—A most deplorable accident occurred yesterday when Mrs. Jas. Steer was upset from a row boat and drowned. Mrs. Steer, who was a widow, went rowing with some friends and while endeavoring to transfer to a second boat fell overboard. Every effort was made to save her but they were of no avail and five children are left to mourn the loss of a kind mother.

SAULT STEE MARIE, Ont., Aug. 6.—While endeavoring to jump from a steamer to the launch alongside, Edward Norris missed his footing and fell into the water. Willing hands finally succeeded in getting him aboard the launch which was immediately headed for the wharf but the unfortunate man passed away before the craft had covered half the distance.

ZION CHURCH CELEBRATES ITS 51ST ANNIVERSARY Rev. Dr. Rogers Will Preach Tomorrow— Church Building Has Had Interesting History.

Zion Methodist Church will celebrate the 51st anniversary of the church with special services and music tomorrow.

Rev. James A. Rogers, D. D., of Sussex, will conduct the morning and evening services, preaching the anniversary sermon at 11 o'clock in the morning.

At 2.30 p. m. during the Sunday School service, several addresses will be delivered, after which Superintendent F. S. Purdy will present the missionary prizes.

The musical programme at the morning service will include the Anthem, Praise the God of Our Salvation, by Weaver and a solo by Miss Kane. In the evening the anthem will be "Hark, Hark, My Soul," by Leon. Miss Kane will render a solo. Joshua Stalk will have charge of the choir on both occasions.

Before finally passing into the hands of its present owners, Zion Church had been put to several uses. The church was built by the late John Owen in July, 1858, and as this worthy member was opposed to instrumental music no organ was installed. After a few years the congregation fell off and for some time the building was used by the club of England. It was later used as an art gallery and in 1882 was given by Mr. Owen to the present congregation. The church at present is in a flourishing condition, and is not likely to undergo any further transfers.

FOREST FIRES THREATEN BLACK RIVER DISTRICT Reports From Chatham of Serious Con- flagration—Have to Chase Moose From the City Streets.

CHATHAM, N. B., Aug. 7.—Forest fires have again broken out in this vicinity owing to the long dry spell, and serious conflagration is reported from the Black River district. The fire there has made great headway and is now not far from Adam McLean's house and other settlements.

Farmers who have come in from that section state that the fire is working through to Richibucto road at a swift pace. The reflection has been seen in town for the past two nights and a heavy pad of smoke overhangs the Black River district. Rain is again urgently needed.

A moose, probably driven in towards town by the fire on Thursday night, created some excitement about one o'clock among a group of residents of Henderson lot. After doing damage to gardens and fences he was eventually chased away.

The report was current about the city this morning that the grand stand on the Shamrock grounds had been consumed. The stand is pronounced in good condition.

LIEUT. SHACKLETON NEEDS $70,000 To Pay Debt on His Antarctic Expedition

Will Lecture in America—President Taft and Earl Grey Will Serve on Reception Committee.

NEW YORK, Aug. 7.—Lieutenant E. H. Shackleton, of the British Army, who recently became famous for his penetration of the Antarctic to a new record mark, has a still more difficult voyage of discovery before him, he thinks. The young explorer now seeks a way to pay a debt of $70,000, which he is said to have incurred in under-taking his recent expedition to the South Pole. His voyage in quest of gold will be made to America, according to special cable advice. He will lecture in the United States and Canada.

Lieut. Shackleton will leave England early in March, 1910, and probably a record fee for the lecture platform is guaranteed.

A reception committee, which is being organized, includes the names of President Taft and Earl Grey, Governor General of the Dominion, with many prominent personalities of the United States and Canada.

When Shackleton planned his expedition to the pole, it is said that he had at his back the financial assistance, among others, of a small group of Americans. At the period when he was absolutely pledged to the enterprise and had incurred considerable preliminary costs, there befell the financial crisis which brought ruin upon a wide circle of erstwhile wealthy men. Among them were the American backers of the new Antarctic expedition.

In these disheartening circumstances, Shackleton approached a London bank and upon his personal guarantee, secured that of the members of his own and his wife's family, raised a loan of $20,000 ($100,000).

GRAND TRUNK TRAIN KILLED 16 CATTLE Official Trials of Aerodrome at Petawawa on Tuesday—May Take It to England.

BRANTFORD, Ont., Aug. 7.—Thirty head of cattle belonging to a farmer named Simmons, who lived through a defective fence on the farm between St. George and Paris, and bunched on the Grand Trunk track for the night, died as a result of the crash of a freight train crashed into them, killing twelve outright and so badly injuring four more that they will be killed.

A big gang of men was necessary to dig a trench a hundred feet long to bury the dead cattle where they were killed alongside the track.

PETAWAWA CAMP, Ont., Aug. 7.—Military officers from Toronto, Montreal, Ottawa and Halifax are expected to arrive on Tuesday for the official trials of the McMurtry and Baldwin aerodrome "Baldock No. 1." Should the trials here prove successful it is probable that Baldock No. 1 will be taken to England this fall.

SAVED HER CHILDREN BY ABANDONING THEM SPARTA, Wis., Aug. 6.—A woman's choice of saving her husband in preference to her son and daughter, resulted in the saving of all three.

Mr. and Mrs. William O'Keefe and children were at the Lacrosse river, their son and daughter were on the bank, while the parents remained on shore. The son and daughter got beyond their depth and were struggling for their assistance, both being good swimmers.

O'Keefe was caught in some rocks at the bottom of the river. The wife gave up her efforts to save the children and extricated her husband. In a moment she was resuscitated, when both plunged back into the river, the father saving the son and the mother the girl.

CONVENT RECEIVES EIGHT NEW SISTERS

This morning there took place at St. Vincent's Convent, Cliff Street, the beautiful ceremony of the reception of eight new sisters among the Sisters in the diocese of St. John. His Lordship the Bishop officiated at the religious profession, at the closing of the retreat, said the Mass and addressed the sisters at some length.

The new sisters are: Sister Mary Christina, Miss Deloy of Prince Albert; Sister Mary Catherine, Miss Mutter, also of Prince Albert; Sister Mary Augustin, Miss McDonough, of Hampton; Sister Mary Regis, Miss McCarron, of St. John; Sister Mary Mercedes, Miss Sweeney, of Melrose; Sister Mary Anna, Miss Mallett, of Buctouche.

This is a very large number to be received, and was only one surpassed in the history of the community.

NOVA SCOTIA GUIDES FORM ASSOCIATION Chief Objects are Protection of Game and Forests

Met at Milford and After Organizing Held Interesting Series of Sports.

ANNAPOLIS, N. S., Aug. 7.—An association was formed at Milford yesterday under the name of the Nova Scotia Guides Association with Dr. Edward Brock as president and L. D. Mitchell, Liverpool, vice-president. Delegates from the whole province were present. The objects of the organization are the protection, enforcement of game laws, advertising the sporting attractions, and also to prevent the destruction of forests by fire and otherwise. The result should be of enormous benefit to the province.

Dr. Brock and secretary Kelley of Yarmouth, the organizers of the People's Fish and Game Protective Society are the promoters. At a dinner at the Milford House last night Dr. Brock, Chief Game Commissioner Knight, Mr. Armstrong, M. P. F., of Yarmouth, Judge Owen of Annapolis, and Messrs. Kelley and Mitchell were the speakers. There was a long toast list and excellent music.

The dinner was followed by sports indulged in by the guests at Milford. The morning and afternoon. There were also sports open to the guides of Nova Scotia and also visitors' events. There was a large number of competitors from all over the province. The events included log rolling, tilting, canoe races, swimming, canoe carrying and shooting competition for cash prizes. There were a large number of spectators from Annapolis and other points. The affair was a huge success and will be an annual event. Dr. Brock is responsible for the success of this effort.

STRUGGLE FOR LIFE IN CABIN OF YACHT With Water to Their Waists, Captain and Wife Make Fight Against Death.

LONDON, Aug. 7.—A terrible struggle for life in the locked cabin of a yacht took place early Thursday morning in Torbay.

Colonel Vaughan and his wife were sleeping in the cabin of their yacht Chestah, which lay at anchor about a mile from shore. The crew of three men were also on board, and a powerful riding light swung from the mast head.

Between 1 and 2 o'clock, without the slightest warning, the British trawler Lark cut into the yacht amidship with tremendous force, and the Chestah at once began to fill. She did not sink at once, however, for the rigging of the two vessels became entangled, and the yacht was thus held above the surface.

Colonel and Mrs. Vaughan, roused by the shock of the collision, ran in their night attire to their cabin door and found themselves unable to open it. It had been locked, and had become jammed by the collision.

With her own hands Mrs. Vaughan broke open a panel of the door, while her husband smashed the skylight, but still they were unable to get out. The water had risen to their waists when Colonel Vaughan with a great effort smashed down the door, and he and his wife with the yacht's crew, clambered on board the trawler.

As soon as the British boat's rigging was disentangled the yacht sank in seven fathoms of water.

Rev. Josh. Snyder, of Baltimore, Md., U. S. A., who is stopping at Mr. Dean's Sea View House (Lorneville) will conduct the evening services at the Presbyterian church at Lorneville on Sunday, August 8th, and will also christen the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Birch, of Montreal, Canada.

ANOTHER YEAR FOR WHITELAW REED As Ambassador at the Court of St. James

Various Reasons Ascribed for Change in Plans—Wants to Welcome Roosevelt on His Way Home.

NEW YORK, Aug. 7.—Whitelaw Reid will remain Ambassador to the Court of St. James for at least a year longer, says a cable dispatch to the World from London. It is said that Mr. Reid expected to relinquish his post as soon as Mr. Taft became President of the United States, but Mrs. Reid desired to pass the present season here and President Taft obliged her, the more gladly of the difficult he has found in choosing a successor to Mr. Reid. Two explanations are given in the World dispatch of the further extension of Mr. Reid's terms as ambassador.

One is that it was made at the personal request of King Edward, who is a warm personal friend of Mr. and Mrs. Reid.

The other, which receives more credence, perhaps, is that Mr. Reid himself asked to remain here until Theodore Roosevelt reaches London on his way from Africa. Mr. Reid desires the pleasure and honor of introducing at court and in society the former President who appointed him Ambassador.

GOOD OUTLOOK FOR A LIVELY HOLIDAY Baseball, Athletic Meet, Water Sports and Yacht Racing Among the Attractions.

The first half holiday of August promises lively enjoyment for the large numbers of pleasure seekers. Beaming sunshine with a cool breeze makes ideal weather and the attractions are numerous.

Sporting events will probably rank first in the programme. The championship base ball match on the Shamrock grounds between St. Peter's and Maristons should draw a record breaking number of enthusiasts.

The Westfield Athletic meet is the centre of attraction for hundreds of suburbanites. Keen competition in the various events is promised and a few of the W. O. A. records should be smashed.

A series of water and sailing sports will be conducted at Brown's Flats by the Long Reach Outing Association. The Beveridge cup races will take place at Millidgeville this afternoon. The entries to date are: Longima, F. J. Lasky; Roma, F. A. Williams; Foxsum, H. B. Robinson; Vagabond, Dr. A. H. Merrill; Pei Yuen, C. E. Elwell; Saviour, J. Gordon Liskay; Robin Hood, T. T. Lantaulum, and Chinook, R. P. Church.

Rockwood and Seaside Parks, as well as the various amusement centres in the city anticipate heavy business.

Rev. C. P. Wilson, of Gilead, N. B., will occupy the pulpit on Sunday at the Tabernacle Baptist church at both services. Rev. J. W. Kierulff is absent from the city on his vacation.

MRS. BELLE DIAMOND EXPIRES SUDDENLY

Dies After Asking Daughter to Get Her a Glass of Beer

There was a rumor up town last evening that there was a rather sudden death of a woman on Sherfield street, and for a short time there was some excitement as to the cause of death. There were a number of theories, but when a Sun reporter called at the house on Carmarthen street near the harbor, late last night, it was found that the woman was Mrs. Belle Diamond, and that there should not have been any cause for excitement over her death.

The woman resided with her daughter, Mrs. Sarah Jefferson, on Carmarthen street, and has been ill and confined to bed since Wednesday. Last evening she called for a glass of beer, and while her daughter, Mrs. Jefferson, was out of the house to get the drink called for the woman died.

The deceased was 57 years of age and leaves a family.

Coroner D. E. Berryman was notified and gave permission for the interment.

SIMPLIFYING THE SYSTEM.

Doctors these days are discovering so many useless members of the human body, that one almost wonders why we ever given material form. Since it is possible to live comfortably without half of those organs with which nature has endowed us, since many of them are not only useless for all practical purposes, but absolutely harmful, the non-scientific man may well ask why we are built in this image, why not merely spiritual in construction.

The most recent announcement is that the large intestine in man is positively injurious, that it is the breeding place of disease, that it develops a majority of those ills that seem to be inherited, and that it is human life. Out of this intestine, says Dr. Metchnikoff, the Russian physiologist, and man will live twice as long. Strangely enough a series of experiments conducted in Paris have supported his theory to the extent that invalids from whom the large intestine has been removed, have shown marked improvement in their general health. Ages ago, in the days of Mohammed, for instance, men lived for several centuries. At the age of two hundred Noah's fellow countrymen were looked upon as lads in their teens, and not until a man reached at least five hundred years was he really regarded as approaching the age of maturity. Were these people all going about minus their "midst"? If not, how did they ever manage to live while burdened with such massive organs of tissue and other components of the human body?

Nature certainly intended that man should live to a greater age than is now allowed by our life insurance companies, but has not our own mode of living tended to a gradual shortening of the span? The excesses of our grandfathers, the follies of past generations, have all, through heredity, weakened the race, and left its Russian situationally. And now this Russian scientist would extend our lives by taking away completely several of those organs which have in his opinion no necessary function in the human body. If you want a child to live a hundred years, says he, catch him when he is young, and at the age of three or four remove the large intestine and the vermiform appendix. He may miss them for a time, but he will be freed from those organs in which, by the decomposition of food, disease is developed.

In spite of this encouraging advice there are few who, even in the hope of extending their lives for a few years, will voluntarily give themselves over to the surgeon's knife and part with those organs to which, by long association, they have become very closely attached. It's had enough when the thing has to be done.

HARVEST EXCURSIONS.

The season of harvest excursions has arrived. From the west coast the silent cry for help in the harvest field, and in the east is the ever ready response. Thousands of men are required in the prairie provinces to assist in saving the grain. Thousands of men in the older provinces are eager to go to the west, and the mode of travel is not without men to save it, and that is men without employment. In these eastern sections the keenly than in the west, even though it is an evil not always with us, but at the worst of times we cannot afford to lose all those who go to the assistance of the growers of grain. Men are needed at home; our own New Brunswick farmers are unworkable because the farmers are unable to obtain sufficient hands to carry on operations. High wages are offered, but far away from home, and the lure of the home some land draws every year the best of our men, many of whom find their new homes for themselves. To a very large extent our own people are to blame; the home life, the system of treating their families, which has for generations been in vogue among Maritime farmers is directly responsible for much of that emigration for a change displayed by our young men. The old folks want everything, their sons and daughters even at adult age are treated as unpaid servants, as persons whose duty it is to spend their lives in toil that their parents may prosper, who are never allowed to have any rights or privileges of their own so long as they remain at home, and who are compelled to go to their fathers or mothers every time they want a cent of money or a new garment. This policy of keeping the children in dependence has created on all sides a desire among the young to break loose from the apron strings and shift for themselves. It has thrown its own object, for the prospect of inheriting a section of the farm on the death of one's father, and not before—is no very strong attraction to the young man in whose heart filial love is a strong emotion.

In Quebec and Quebec is progressing at a rate scarcely even equalled in the west—the facility of the old methods has long been apparent. There young men do not have to wait until their parents die before coming into possession of a place of their own. The farms are divided, and every son or daughter attaining a marriageable age starts out for himself or herself with a section of land from which to make a home. The drama from the province of Quebec to the farms of the west is small, in comparison to population, what it is from the Maritime Provinces. Young men of Quebec have every incentive to remain at home; those of New Brunswick through their parents short-sightedness are impelled to go away.

But it is impossible that the annual exodus to the west can continue indefinitely. The farmer of the prairie, by raising grain alone, puts all his eggs in one basket, and then asks the eastern neighbor to give him a lift with the load. The west offers employment for two months in the busiest season of the year; then the east is required to support these thousands of laborers for the next six months. It would be far better for all hands, for the farmers, the men, and the eastern provinces, if the western grain grower turned his wheat into crops other than wheat. By going in for mixed farming he would be taking fewer chances with rate, would live in the certainty that if wheat failed something else would be good, and he would at the same time be able to provide continuous employment to all the help he now requires during his busy season.

The transportation companies profit by these harvest excursions; their receipts would be much greater if all the men who go out to work for a few weeks were able to find permanent employment in the west, and thus aid in the development of that great though somewhat neglected country.

SATURDAY SERMONETTE

WHAT ABOUT JERRY?

He was always called Jerry, but his name was something else. He was a feet three, so he was called Jerry. He was thin and bony and looked very solemn, and strangers thought him a little stupid. He was a favorite pastime of the boys about town to intimate to some of the "chests" of the town. He was a visiting dude that if they wanted to see "moving pictures" or a nickers worth of vaudeville, they would go to Jerry. And then the wicked boys would chuckle and at back for the performance to begin.

As not one of those boys dared to sleep when Jerry was on the war, and he can imagine how they enjoyed seeing the stranger caricatured, ridiculed, laughed at until he wanted to break away and go home.

And when he did get away he wondered how that Jerry came to know his weaknesses and his sins so well. It was a wonder to many another what occult power enabled him to find the weak points in our armor.

Jerry-like all great men—had his church, to which he was a strong adherent. His minister was a little old fellow who was made without "the savior's sense of humor" and could not see a joke if it was illustrated. Jerry's religion was not always equal to a strenuous election campaign. One year the election had been a very hot, close one and "the resources" were very much in evidence and Jerry had not been to prayer meeting, much to the grief of his pastor, for several months. But one evening, to the joy of the pastor, Jerry came in, but the meeting was near his close before Jerry rose to give his testimony. And this in substance was what he said:

"I have been all wrong. I have been on the judgment seat. I have been finding fault with my brethren and everybody, but one day alone, as I was saying to myself 'this one is wrong and that one is wrong' a voice seemed to say to me 'What about Jerry?' brethren, I don't know about other folks, but I know Jerry is wrong."

Now when I hear one man talking about another I ask myself 'What about Jerry?'

Now when a woman talks about another I always think 'What about Mrs. Jerry?'

FOUR HUNDRED YEARS.

(New York Sun.)

In the widespread jubilation which the recent tragic events in North African history have evoked, a real if unintentional injustice has been done to the unfortunate Spanish nation. To the critics who have recognized in the fighting about Melilla an effort to renew in Africa colonial fortunes ruined in America the tragedy of the present hour is hidden completely. Not to extend but to retain the remnants of an empire, the Spanish monarchy has risked its existence. Not to revive the dreams of Charles V., but to maintain the few paltry footholds left after 400 years of fighting, Alfonso XIII. has put his very throne in jeopardy. National honor, the history of a race, could hardly deserve less at the hands of his advisers.

There is a sad significance in the anniversary which the guns of Melilla celebrate. It is four hundred years since Spanish arms triumphed in North Africa, and Oren, Algiers and Bougie were conquered for Spain. It was in 1509 that these conquests were made, and in 1538 Charles V., with his celebrated army, landed in Africa, captured the Goletta and made Tunis also a Spanish vassal state. As for Melilla, four years after Columbus set sail for America the peninsula passed to Spain. All that has happened since then in small size the story of Spain herself, the story of the decline of a greatness illumined only by the glory of brave deeds and impetuous feasts which but postponed the inevitable.

The visitors to Oren today find at every turn the evidences of Spanish occupation. For almost three hundred years, with a single brief interruption, Oren was Spanish territory. From the hills beside the city on a clear day Algeria seems almost as if Spanish troops at last sailed away. The traveler who enters the beautiful bay of Algiers sees almost as his first landmark the Penon the lighthouse of the old regime, built by Spanish hands. Here for nearly nine years of daily bombardment a Spanish garrison maintained itself, rendering aid at last, yielding to the apparent destiny of Spain in North Africa.

Today Oren is a French city, with broad avenues, splendid buildings and the color of a city.

France. But its people are still Spanish. Of its 100,000 people half are of Iberian extraction, the language of its streets is quite as much Spanish as French. Even in Algiers, one of the most populous of the Algerian cities, the future of Tunis, Algiers and Oren, this belongs to the French. The Spanish traveler, three hundred years of fighting has been in vain, and the history of lost causes must be the story of Spain in Eastern Africa.

Since the days when Charles V. gathered a broken army under his standard, and the day he died, the ship side has remained constant.

Of all the future in North Africa, which 400 years ago opened so broadly to the Spanish, only Melilla and Ceuta are left. They are Spanish, and the Spanish campaign either the empire, however, and there is a certain cruelty in ascribing to the Spanish the destruction of the African coast, the truth of course, is that it is the day in the four centuries of siege, another of the fatal days, it seems, is it to be the last?

Agreements of France, Great Britain and Spain, which the subsequent Algerian conference impaired without actually destroying the African coast, so long watched by Spanish garrisons in Melilla and Ceuta, was finally allowed to Spain to rule. From the right bank of the sea to the mouth of the Muluya the primacy of Spain is acknowledged as of right. Recognition of claims that date from the day of Columbus.

The great empire of North Africa, of course, has passed to France. Out of the wreckage there has been left to Spain this pathetic section to have, if she can hold. Her failure here can mean but one thing. Already French troops garrison Oudis and Casbah. Across the Algerian frontier 40,000 French regulars, not conscripts, but holders of the legion and native troops of battle training, are waiting. If the troops of Alfonso XIII. fall, the present regime of the region and native that of the great Charles V. on the long list of African failures, the end cannot, seemingly, long be postponed. Spain is fighting the fearful fight at Melilla. It is not the beginning of a new story, it is the continuation of a fresh page in colonial greatness—that has caused this bloodshed on the African coast. It is not invasion; but defence, the latest, perhaps the last page in a siege of 400 years long. Only the most unfeeling and unresponsive of critics, therefore, can fail to see in the tragedy at Melilla an appeal to sympathy rather than censure. Not

DUEL WITH RAZORS

Barbers' Assistants Fight Furiously in a Wandsworth Shop.

LONDON, Aug. 6.—A duel with razors fought by barbers' assistants in a Wandsworth barber's shop was described at the South Western Police Court on Monday, when George Harford, of Plough Road, Battersea, and Frederick Hebblewhite, of the same address, were accused of causing grievous bodily harm to each other. The duel took place in a barber's shop at "Jaws" Row, Wandsworth, a fortnight before, and was the outcome of a dispute that occurred on the previous night. Two men were in the service of the same employer, but served at different shops.

According to a statement made by Hebblewhite, Harford called at Jaws' Row and offered to fight him with a razor. "Shut the door," he said, "and we will fight."

Hebblewhite closed the door, and both men armed themselves with blades. Hebblewhite, it is alleged, opened the door, and the two had been fighting for some time, and Harford slashed at him with his razor to the ground.

The noise of the struggle attracted attention, and a policeman was summoned. In response to his knocking Hebblewhite opened the door, and immediately ran back into the shop.

"Both Harford and Hebblewhite were bleeding from wounds on their hands and arms. Eventually Harford was overpowered, and threw his razor to the ground.

SUMMER.

On the hill the bovine lingers
Idly chewing on her cud,
In the bog the frog's small fingers
Make soft splashes in the mud.

In the wood the buzzy tarries
Neath each cool, inviting tree,
And where'er the sunlit center
Hums the yellow bumble bee.

Now the hoppergrass is gayly
Skipping where the grass is short,
And the caterpillar daily
Curls itself in heapy folds.

Down the road the load is busy,
And the windmill, tall and daisy,
Makes its usual mournful moans.

In the modern farm house kitchen
All the canned goods sit in rows,
And the farmer's palms are itching
For the ducks in our clothes.

HE DIDN'T BET.

"A man in my country," said a Kansas congressman, "was always anxious to let on his game of checkers. One time he was about to play a game for $20 with a fellow called Three Fingers Jack. Suddenly one of his friends exclaimed: 'Don't bet, Charlie. Don't you know that fellow wore off two fingers playing checkers? That's why he's called Three Fingers Jack.' 'That settled it,' The bet was never made. A man who had worn off two fingers by brushing them up and down the checkboard was too much for my friend."

"You say you are in love with Miss Beggs?"

"I sure am."

"But I can't see anything attractive about her."

"Neither can I see it. But it's in the book, all right."

CANADIAN HORSE SETS SEASON'S RECORD

On Kalamazoo Track—The Ed's Splendid Race—13-Year-Old Veteran Country Jay Captures Another.

KALAMAZOO, Mich., Aug. 6.—The Grand Circuit meeting wound up here today with great racing and the fastest heats of the year. The two minute pace brought out four starters and was the first clash of The Ed with the free-for-all brigade. The Canadian horse was favorite and justified the opinion in which he was held. The first heat saw Hedgeswood Boy trail The Ed all the way. In the second round The Ed won by a nose from Citation, while she beat Allen Wilson as much. The 2:02.4 is the season's record and within a quarter second of Joe Fadden's stallion record for two years. Two 2:10 trot also proved a hard race and the veteran Country Jay lasted just long enough to win the decision. This 13 year old gelding won the first heat by a neck, the second a little easier and in the third round he was again victorious. The last sixteen heat and head with Carroll, was given the heat. The other races were easily won.

SENSATIONAL RACING ON BUFFALO AUTO TRACK

Chevrolet Almost Ties World's Record for 50 Miles—Amateur Drivers Had Remarkable Escapes From Death

BUFFALO, N. Y., Aug. 6.—Louis Chevrolet, the French speed marvel, fell short only a few seconds of equalling the world's record for fifty miles over a circular track at Fort Erie today in a race with E. S. Lorimer, Barney Oldfield having refused the honor because his car was not working well. The Frenchman covered the 50 miles in 2:30.14. Chevrolet was forced to stop in the fourth mile to change a tire, losing a minute and a half, making the time.

As a preliminary to the big match race tomorrow between Barney Oldfield and Walter Christie, the two met in a three-mile race.

Christie drove his record-breaker, while Oldfield was at the wheel of his new racer Benz. Christie won the race easily, the time for the three miles being 2.48.

Two amateur drivers entered in the five mile handicap free-for-all, narrow escapes from death. At the quarter mile pole one of the drivers, Harry Hughes, cut the corner too close and plunged through the fence. Albert Hoover, following close on the heels of his machine and it went through the barrier on the opposite side of the track. The machine was wrecked, but the men escaped with slight cuts and bruises about the hands and face.

ARRANGEMENTS FOR THE P. R. A. MEET AT SUSSEX

Marksmen Will Find the Range in Better Shape Than Ever.

Marksmen who attend the annual meet of the Provincial Rifle Association at Sussex next week will find a number of changes and improvements in the customary arrangements of the range. Captain J. S. Frost informed The Star last evening that plans for the big meet were progressing favorably.

About ninety marksmen are expected to attend and compete for the coveted trophies. Twenty-five riflemen will represent St. John at the meet. On Monday Captain Frost will leave for Sussex to complete preliminary arrangements for the opening of the big meet on Tuesday.

The location of the secretary's office at the range has been changed, the stand having been placed nearer the road. The tagging range has been changed, so that in addition to small wind flag, there will be four twenty foot streamers. The telephone has been moved to the centre of the firing line.

No radical changes have been made in the programme from that of former years. However, two handsome prizes have been added for competition in the county match for teams representing the different counties of the province.

The usual conditions concerning the camp and catering for the marksmen will prevail. Additional facilities have been provided for the shooting of extra scores matches. Two targets have been set aside exclusively for this purpose.

The entries are pouring into Captain J. S. Frost, secretary, and a banner attendance is anticipated.

"I fancy you've asked too many people," The table won't hold them."

"Oh, no! More people can be placed at a table now than formerly. Why, a fashionable woman in evening dress takes up about as much room as a rolled-up umbrella."

Chum—Why don't you assert your authority as head of the family and take matters in your own hands?"

Head of the house (mournfully)—My wife won't let me.

The Poetic Philosopher

A thousand cares oppress the mind, in life's long summer day; we weary of the galling grind, and endless seems the way. The journey's really not so long; we have not far to roam; and soon we'll hear the evening song, and then we'll toddle home. Our burdens seem an awful pile, and yet they're not so great; if we would pack them with a smile, we would not feel the weight. We murmur as we hold the plow, and guide it through the loam; but dusk is coming, even now, and soon we'll toddle home. We see a cloud of sultry gray, and stretch away we sigh; "the storm is rising fast," we say, "the sun no more will shine." But in a space the golden beams will light the azure dome, until shall come the time for dreams, and then we'll toddle home. No trouble lasts if we are brave, and take a manly stand; and Fear becomes a cringing slave, if we but raise a hand; the evil that disturbs our rest is but a shadow gone; the sun is sinking in the West, and soon we'll toddle home. Then let us toddle home as gay as birds, that never weep; as glad as children, tired of play, who only wish to sleep; and while Recording Angels write our names in heaven's tome, we'll seek our couch, and say good night, when we have toddled home.

ADULTERATED FOOD

COMMON IN CANADA

Analysis by Department Shows Conditions are Serious.

Hay Seeds With Which Jam Had Been Coated—Maple Syrup Improving—Pepper Adulterated.

OTTAWA, Aug. 6.—A great deal of adulterated food is being consumed by the people of Canada. This is not a matter of guess work, but is clearly established from the bulletins issued by the Inland Revenue Department during the past year. Moreover, the fact that the United States Congress has passed a rigorous pure food law has led to Canada becoming a dumping ground for food which cannot pass muster in the United States.

Perhaps no article of domestic food is so persistently adulterated as ground pepper. The department reports that it "called in said that any of the substances identified as foreign matters in ground pepper are, in the strict sense of the word, adulterated; but pepper dust and refuse (ground husks, etc.) are likely to contain many forms of dirt, and are, at least, very undesirable admixtures; while sand, flour, cayenne, coconut shells, etc., are, at the best, fraudulent frauds against the pocket, if not a menace to the stomach of the consumer."

It is true that the percentage of adulteration in the samples taken up is not so large as formerly. During the period extending from 1937 to 1938 the average was 10 per cent. Last year out of 152 samples collected, 110 were found to be genuine. Mr. A. McGill, chief analyst, in his report to the Deputy Grand Minister says that "this marked improvement is very gratifying," but adds, "it must be acknowledged that in spite of it, ground pepper still remains one of the most badly adulterated articles of food in Canada. The recent enforcement, in the United States, of a strict inspection of food-stuffs, and the refusal to admit to the States to admit materials imported for the express purpose of adulterating spices, has resulted in attempts on the part of our suppliers to secure dumping ground for these adulterants."

Some of the samples upon the microscopic examination of the samples taken up by the department are interesting. In the case of the pepper produced in May are characterized as follows: "Adulterated. This is labeled 'wheat flour, coconut shells and dirt.' 'Adulterated with blackhead flour.' 'Adulterated with wheat flour.' 'Contains excess of stone cells, brown in color; probably meant for black pepper.'"

Ground cloves is another article of food which seems to be frequently adulterated. In the case of the sample of 115 samples collected at random from every part of Canada, only 74 were found to be genuine.

Just now the department is engaged in a determined effort to put down adulteration of ground coffee. The adulterants in common use are chicory and roast grain. The officials are inclined to believe that many customers are not adverse to the addition of chicory, but there seems to be no defence for the dealer who uses a roasted grain with his coffee. As the chief analyst says, "This is simply fraud."

The adulteration of maple syrup is less common than formerly. This is due in part to the fact that the producers of genuine maple syrup are on the alert for competitors who sell the adulterated article. In the case of the sample of 115 samples collected at random from every part of Canada, only 74 were found to be genuine. In 84 cases the adulteration was found to be chicory and roast grain. The officials are inclined to believe that many customers are not adverse to the addition of chicory, but there seems to be no defence for the dealer who uses a roasted grain with his coffee. As the chief analyst says, "This is simply fraud."

NATIVE WINES.

In the bulletin upon native wines the department discusses at some length the propriety of applying certain well known names generally associated with an imported wine to the domestic product. To quote: "Port wine, for example, is not necessarily a product of a certain region of Spain, although it may be justly argued that a port wine of other than Spanish origin should be distinctly labeled to show the place of production. England and America afford the largest markets for port wine and it is evident that some attempt to approximate to the port type governs the production of wine in Canada." It is well to remember, however, that while there may be no impropriety in calling a Canadian port or a Canadian claret, 'port' or 'claret,' as the case may be, there is something incongruous in naming any wine either native or imported after a well known type unless it approximates that type in its essential characteristics. A Canadian claret should not be sold as 'old port.' A more censurable matter, however, is the practice of labeling native wine as 'imported.' Several samples of native wine taken up at Montreal were labeled respectively 'Muscatel de France, 1888,' 'Opote de France, 1888,' and 'Chateau Ramsay.' Another sample of native wine was labeled not only as coming from a foreign port, but also with the name of a mythical vintner, 'Fine old port, Manuel Bore, Opoteo.'

It is considered to know that few adulterants used in our food are distinctly deleterious to health. Roasted peas may weaken the coffee, but they do not injure the consumer. Starch and tumeric take the edge off mustard, but do no harm to the system. Even a strawberry jam made of apples, hay seed, and a flavoring extract is not injurious. In making this last compound care has to be exercised. Not long since a consignment was returned with the comment that it had "winklers." The seeds had begun to sprout. The problem today in dealing with the food question is largely due to the use of dyes and preservatives. Of recent years chemists have been able to extract any color and almost any flavor for that matter, from the by-products of coal tar. The dyes thus obtained are mineral in their origin and taken in sufficient quantities, may be poisonous. The principal complaints have come from their use in ice cream. During the winter season they are largely used to color butter, which now presents the same yellow appearance all the year round. They are also used to dye wines and unfermented grape juice.

In the bulletin upon unfermented grape juices we find frequent notations like these upon the samples taken up for analysis: "Dyed, pink, aniline dye," "Dyed, aniline dye," "Dyed with aniline dye and contains salicylic acid."

PUBLICITY NEEDED.

It is unlikely that the adulteration of food is even now being better, any great extent unless the matter is taken up by the press. Reading over the recent enforcement, in the United States, of a strict inspection of food-stuffs, and the refusal to admit to the States to admit materials imported for the express purpose of adulterating spices, has resulted in attempts on the part of our suppliers to secure dumping ground for these adulterants."

Some of the samples upon the microscopic examination of the samples taken up by the department are interesting. In the case of the pepper produced in May are characterized as follows: "Adulterated. This is labeled 'wheat flour, coconut shells and dirt.' 'Adulterated with blackhead flour.' 'Adulterated with wheat flour.' 'Contains excess of stone cells, brown in color; probably meant for black pepper.'"

MORE PROTECTION NEEDED.

On the other hand, many adulterations worked off on the public are of a fraudulent, and often harmful. An encouraging feature of the situation is that a man who buys adulterated food and sends it to Ottawa is held up and charged $7 before the department will order an analysis. Officials say that except for some such provision the department would be swamped by the adulterated food. It would seem, however, that if the government is to protect the people it must demand a fee, which to many must be a prohibitive.

GENERAL STRIKE IN NOVA SCOTIA FIRST OF WEEK

Springside Miners Will be Called Out Monday.

SYDNEY, Aug. 6.—Present indications are that the miners of Springside will be called out on Monday by the U. M. W. and that the men of Sydney Mines will be called out a day or two later. The international executive of the U. M. W. has endorsed the strike since the beginning of the strike. At a meeting in Caledonia tonight international Vice-President McCullough stated that they had decided to call out Sydney Mines and Springside and that both these places would be out in a few days. There will be a big U. M. W. demonstration at Sydney Mines on Saturday night, when addresses will be delivered by McCullough and others of the U. M. W. leaders.

Peter Harrison, one of the international board members, leaves for his home in Westville tomorrow, and it is understood his visit is for the purpose of endeavoring to organize the U. M. W. in Pictou county with a view to a general strike all over the province. There was a large output at the collieries and banks today, over eleven thousand tons being secured. The colliery production was considerably over six thousand tons. This is showing that has been made for some time in production and is within about fifty tons of the best day's showing since the beginning of the strike. Thirty-four arrests were made for looting around No. 2 last night and the company police are endeavoring to break up pickets of strikers wherever found. A number of arrests are anticipated tonight. This makes the total number of arrests since the beginning of the strike one hundred and twelve.

CARDIGAN MEMOIRS.

Belle of Second Empire, Who Was Betrothed to Spanish Pretender, Refused Lord Beaconsfield—Her First Husband Led Charge at Balaclava.

LONDON, Aug. 6.—Lady Cardigan, who was one of the most famous belles of the period of the Second Empire, who was once betrothed to a claimant to the throne of Spain, and who rejected Disraeli, is going to publish a volume of reminiscences in the autumn and meanwhile has been giving the public a preliminary taste of them by means of an interview in The London Daily Mail.

Nobody who should see the Countess of Cardigan today without knowing her real age could believe that she was born just after the days of the Regency. Her figure is slim and upright, her face is scarcely lined, her eyes are those of a young woman, and, see, one may be sure, as much of the amusing side of life as they have ever done.

And when one hears her talk of the scenes and the figures of the past, her talk is so alert that it is difficult to believe that she is speaking of the time before Queen Victoria came to the throne. Recently she wore a dress of rose-colored silk trimmed with old lace, and around her neck some strings of great pearls, and her dress became her. One felt that the sombre clothes of an old woman would have suited her at all.

One of her earliest recollections is of a children's ball at St. James' Palace which William IV. gave in honor of the Princess Victoria who was then about thirteen. Lady Cardigan—she was then Miss Adelaide de Horsey—was only five, and during the course of the entertainment she was misled, but discovered eventually curled up in the King's chair fast asleep.

She remembers, too, the preparations for the great Exhibition Tournee, which was to be a revival of medieval glories but was unfortunately spoiled by rain. Davenney taught her to dance—the famous Davenney who afterwards became Mrs. Lyne Stephens, succeeded Lord Beaconsfield as her husband, and died a very old woman not so many years ago.

Early portraits of Lady Cardigan show her as a very beautiful girl with an expression of great vivacity. One of them was painted about the time she was engaged to the Count de Montemolin, son of the first Don Carlos, claimant to the Spanish throne and uncle of Don Carlos, who died the other day. "I remember him as an interesting and charming man," she told the interviewer, "and very black eyes." "I remember him as an interesting and charming man," she told the interviewer, "and very black eyes."

The engagement was announced in the Morning Post in 1848. She was staying at Castle Howard, and was brought down to see him at the house of her mother, who was then Countess of Devonshire. "Let me be the first to kiss the hand of the future Queen of Spain," returned almost immediately with a secret passion from Louis Napoleon, a great living authority on Spanish history.

SCOUT CRUISER

TO BE BARRED
To be Replaced by Torpedo Boat Destroyers

Later Cheaper and More Effective—This is the Decision of the United States Navy.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6.—It is unofficially stated here that the government will build no more "scout" cruisers. Tests have convinced the navy department that the torpedo boat destroyer is a much more serviceable, swift and effective vessel for the purpose, and it can be built at far less cost.

An official high in the navy department said that the Chester, Salem and Birmingham, the three "scouts" now in commission, had been a costly experiment, and he would not be surprised if they were thrown out of the navy.

"These ships are the only ones of the kind in the world," he said; "they were built especially to go ahead of a battleship fleet, search out the enemy, and give warning of his movements. They were to run away when possible, and were armed to put up a stiff argument in a pinch."

"Now, however, they are outclassed by the destroyers. The scouts have a length of 520 feet, and a displacement of 3,750 tons. Each of them cost $1,800,000, for which eight torpedo boat destroyers can be built. Their main armament consists of two four-inch guns and six of the lesser calibre. The destroyers have two four-inch and seven of lesser calibre, so that they have the advantage of one gun. Fourteen are under construction."

"The destroyer can do the work better than the scout ship. For example, one destroyer we are building now will run 30 knots an hour against the 25 knots credited to the scouts, which they have made with difficulty. The destroyer also has proved more seaworthy than the scout, and in every way is better fitted to act as the eyes of the battleship than the new type of vessel."

The Chester arrived in New York from Liberia a few days ago, and an inspection of the ship's English turbines now being made in the Brooklyn navy yard.

This is the Coupon—It is Worth 10 cents to You
Only One Cake Free to a Family

Taylor's Infants' Delight

Toilet soap should do just two things—remove the dirt and nourish the skin. Let us then show you how we have blended both qualities into a single cake.
For in 43 years we have learned the secret of perfect soap—one that leaves the skin as soft and pink as an infant's. So we call it Infants' Delight.

The olive oil in this soap comes from the gardens of France. There we pay the highest prices—often double what we might pay. But our oil is pure enough to use on your table.

Then we bring coconut oil over 12,000 miles from the Isle of Ceylon. This oil has for centuries kept the Egyptian's skin soft and beautiful in spite of the tropical sun.

Please use a single cake—then let the results decide for the future. See for yourself how it lathers into a rich, creamy foam. Note how it wears as thin as a wafer—how it leaves the skin as soft as velvet and as smooth as silk. Besides this it is the loveliest soap for the baby's skin. And if it is best for the sensitive, pink skin of an infant, it surely is best for your own.

You will like the dainty perfume, too. We pay over $100 a pound for pure Otto of Roses, but it requires 3,000 pounds of rose leaves to make a single ounce. The fragrance is simply exquisite, for it is only the scent of roses—the breath of a million flowers.

Taylor's Borax Soap

Here again is a soap different in every way from the ordinary—it contains borax. Where other soaps merely cleanse, this goes further—it whitens and purifies. The effect of the borax is almost magical—it is the most wonderful soap ever made for the laundry.

In this soap we use only the finest grade of coconut oil, for it lathers with great abundance. Then we mix in the borax which softens the water and also softens the hands.

Soft water is pure, but hard water contains mineral matters which prevent the soap from lathering. Borax makes the hardest water as soft as rain water, so you require only half the amount of soap.

It cleans the daintiest of laces as well as the heaviest of woolsens—and it prevents shrinkage of both. Every odor is removed and the cloth is pure and sweet. This soap also prevents starch from sticking, and adds greatly to the stiffness.

It sterilizes and destroys every germ, so as to avoid any possibility of contagion. Send a bar to the laundry and protect the health of your family.

This powerful cleanser is utterly harmless to the hands—it leaves them whiter and softer than before.

It requires twenty-one days to make a single cake. The labor of more than 200 persons is needed. Yet this wonderful soap costs no more than the ordinary. Simply because we make every year millions of cakes—we can buy at the lowest prices and give you the highest quality.

Don't Wait—

Cut Out the Coupon This Minute

We ask you to do us a favor—we want you to learn for your own interests the difference between these soaps and the ordinary. You have been using some soaps in the past and you naturally consider them good.

But now we ask that you compare them with these—try them both and note how vastly they differ. We gladly invite the comparison because we have made it ourselves and we know just what must be the result.

But it would be unfair to ask you to bear the expense of the test so we have made you this generous offer. We only ask that you buy one soap and we'll buy the other. Cut out the coupon on this page and take it to your dealer this week. Pay him only 5 cents and you will then receive both cakes worth 15 cents.

There is a world of meaning in the three words: OPPORTUNITY, EFFORT, REALIZATION. To deal with each of them individually, we will take first OPPORTUNITY. The SUN and STAR is granting to its readers the opportunity of their lives to win a prize of unmistakable value for an infinitely small amount of work (we use the word guardedly). As for the EFFORT, we have repeatedly said (and the number of votes recorded each candidate in this contest will bear us out) that it will not be necessary for you to neglect your business in order to be a winner of one of these prizes. You will never know how very easy it is to secure subscriptions to the SUN and STAR until you have given it a trial. Then after you have been declared a winner in this contest, will come the REALIZATION of an absolute satisfaction in having won something by your own efforts. You will never cease to praise the SUN and STAR for having made this possible, and we shall rejoice with you in your proud ownership. In this paper today we show you the names of all who have entered, and you can easily see by the list that there is plenty of room in each district for a wideawake candidate to enter and win one of the prizes offered.

SAMUEL GOMPERS WRITES ON TRADE UNIONISM IN FRANCE

Charge That French Government is Opposed to Working Class Organizations is Baseless, According to M.
Vivain—Gompers Has a Busy Time

(Copyright, 1903, by P. S. Ridsdale, for Samuel Gompers.)

PARIS, July 17.—The various passing phases of trade unionism in France, as coupled with revolutionary projects, form a stock theme for writers of all sorts of opinions on the subject, from the dreamer who catches in one or another of the attendant circumstances, a promise of the fulfillment of his ideal state, to the cynical newspaper man who sees in the continuous performance of the contesting leaders an endless supply of "copy." There is always something new to chronicle, something fresh to be offered in comment, I cannot, of course, offer in this letter the confident conclusions to which one might arrive after an exhaustive inquiry into the present phase, but my opportunities during the last week have been unusually good for seeing some of the governing facts in this situation.

I have been in touch with the leading characters in the French labor movement, in and out of office, have spoken at an important meeting where representatives of all sides were present, and free to ask me questions, and have been interviewed by a swarm of newspaper men who waited at my hotel to make articles out of me, to earn their honest living and who in turn I have interviewed.

My short trip to France now over, with many events occurring daily that had some relation with my mission, I feel called upon first to say that the cordiality with which I was treated on all occasions, most gratifying it was, left me with the feeling that the organized French workmen recognize the significance to themselves of the American labor movement and wish to learn the principles which have been the cause of our success. While in my talks, in public and private, I was called upon to explain our methods, at times to that necessary extent which embodied the criticism of the sort of politics that hamper the French labor movement, I was listened to in every instance with attention and respect. There was shown very little of that spirit of wrangling and demonstration that has unfortunately characterized those leaders of socialism in America who without cause reason pretend to think that they are promoting the same cause as the socialists of Europe.

The reader may at once get a point of observation which whether entirely correct or not, will enable him to survey the situation as a whole. I begin by stating the views of M. René Vivain, Minister of Labor and Member of the French Cabinet, as he gave them to me in an interview on Thursday, the morning after the national celebration of the fall of the Bastille, July 14th. His are, of course, the views of the present administration—as they say here, government of France. I was presented to M. Vivain formally in his office by M. Harlet, one of the investigators of the department to whom the usual courtesies to strangers had been extended by me last year at the American Federation of Labor headquarters in Washington.

M. Vivain is an enthusiastic admirer of American trade unionism. After the greetings, I asked M. Vivain what grounds there were for the statement I had frequently heard before and since coming to France, that his government was opposed to working class organizations to such an extent that on the occurrence of a strike of any character the authorities might be expected to order the intervention of the army or provide a supply of strike breakers. M. Vivain replied that the charge was baseless. Never had the present government interfered on any occasion when the strike was between a private employer and his men, except when actual violence had taken place, with attacks upon persons and destruction of property. It was then only when government employees had gone on strike, endangering the public safety, that soldiers were sent to the scene or men hired to take the place of the strikers. In these cases," said he, "the nation being the employer, the suspension of an essential public business and the stability of society were threatened. A strike of government functionaries could not be tolerated. The work of postmen and government telegraph operators, for example, must go on uninterrupted if a country is to maintain order, peace, communication from place to place, publicity of current events and those conditions of commerce in which above all other classes the masses of working men have a vital interest. The present government found it necessary to put an end to the strike of the postmen and telegraphers and then made its explanations to parliament and had been sustained in the action, and now promises to continue the policy that had thus far been followed. The malcontents were led by politicians holding extreme, impractical and inconsistent views. They were trying to mislead the working classes while often promoting their own political fortunes. As to the "C. G. T." (Confédération Générale du Travail) General Federation of Labor, it by no means represented the majority of the organized industrial workers of the country. By an unfair system of voting at its delegate sessions, a comparatively small number of extremists controlled its actions. The large and sane rational unions such as the Typographical, the Metal Workers, the Bookbinders, the Miners were thus criticized by delegates representing cases, but a few hundred members of the C. G. T. represented only about one-third of the union members of France.

The uninformed readers of certain French daily newspapers," he continued, "might be led to believe that the country was in a constant state of riot and disorder arising from the government's attitude on the labor question. Not so. Much attention given the disturbers by the press in general because of politics and not as a result of real gravity in the situation. France, in general, was at peace industrially. The unions were quiet, but persistently pursuing their work of organizing and promoting the welfare of their members; the scenes of outbreaks were only in Paris and occasionally in a few other industrial centres. The government had been more sympathetic in its efforts on behalf of the working classes than any preceding government in France. The establishment of this department, now in its third year of its existence, earnestly striving to be of service to labor and of the country, is one of the best proofs of my statements. The cabinet will continue its present course, depending upon the common sense of only of the French people generally, but of the working people of France particularly for support.

I confess that I had heard officials even in the United States and elsewhere glibly make statements of a similar character, but M. Vivain really impressed me with his sincerity. I differ with him strictly as to the right of the working people in any employment whether private or public, to cease work. The right to cease work distinguishes the free men from the slave who must work regardless of the conditions imposed upon him by his employer, whether that employer be an individual, a firm, a corporation or the state, but in France as in many countries, the pernicious tendency is to the man to his work.

At M. Vivain's mention of the generally stable character of the unions in France outside of the few industrial centres I recalled my visit to Calais, with its many pleasant features. When with my little party I landed, on coming from Dover accompanied by Secretary Appellon, of the General Federation of Trades of Great Britain, we were met by a score of delegates of the Lace Makers' Union, which is strong in the northeast of France. In appearance and address these men were of the very best type of wage workers. Their union, they explained to me, had been modelled on the English system, and they had mainly followed through trade union methods in increasing wages and otherwise improving their conditions as workers. Their wage scale now compares well with that of the English workmen of the same industry, especially so, where the industry has grown considerably in recent years, the union has at the same time developed strength. At present employers and employees are both doing well. The mayor of Calais, who was present, and some of the councilmen, are union members. They have helped in the improvement of the municipality sufficiently well, in fact, to be re-elected to office. Some of these councilmen call themselves socialists, in which case the name does about as much good, or about as much harm, as it does in the case of the unitary co-operative society of Calais, which also goes by the title of socialist. In either case work is done for the present day, beneficial in character. There have been strikes in Calais at times; but neither unionism nor the public welfare have thereby suffered seriously. On the contrary they have abolished grievances and brought about improved conditions. Incidentally to such few strikes which have occurred, agitation had been lively and some friction with the police has occurred, but neither unionism nor the public welfare have thereby suffered seriously. France could and will very well get along and progress with such a character of trade unionism as is practiced by the Lace Makers at Calais and the practical trade unions, which obtain in many trades.

The morning I reached Paris "Le Matin" contained a letter from L. Niel, who had just resigned as secretary of the "C. G. T." in consequence of a decision by its delegates contrary to his convictions, and because of which he deemed it obligatory upon himself to resign his office. M. Niel described the "C. G. T." in his letter, as ruled by politics. While admitting that he was a socialist, he denied that he ever permitted his political opinions to influence his trade union action. He said that the unionists now in full power in the central organization, asserted that "their Unionism was but Anarchism under another name." "Politics," wrote M. Niel, "has always been a poison to trade unionism." "Never was trade unionism in France so invested with politics as today." "In 1902 the C. G. T. at the Congress of Amiens had solemnly interdicted all unionists from introducing in the organization politics of any kind whatever." But while this interdictum still remained in the text of the rules, the fact in practice was otherwise. "Unionism has closed the front door to the socialist virus, to open the back door to the Anarchist poison." And now, the more solid unions were about to try to regenerate the labor movement. The miners, railroad men, printers, textile workers, commercial employees and others were about to organize a central Union Committee to promote trade unionism without party politics.

M. Niel, who is a Union printer and a Socialist, had written a letter published in M. Jean Jaurès' paper, "L'Humanité," on July 6th, in which he spoke of my coming visit and described the work of American Trade Unionism. He said it was more practical than ideal, more conservative than revolutionary. He expressed a welcome to me to France as the representative of the American Federation of Labor. Now it is quite significant both of the French spirit of hospitality towards America and of the intention of the leaders and followers of the various groups in the C. G. T. to show that they were willing to hear me explain my mission, that in "La voix du peuple" of about the same date, M. Georges Yvetot, another Union printer, who is an Anarchist, and M. Niel's antagonist, also welcomed me warmly and in his letter said that the occasion of my address before the C. G. T. would be "salutary instruction for all various reasons." I may add that during my stay in Paris, M. Niel and M. Yvetot were amongst those who were indefatigable in showing me and my friends all possible hospitality. And when they met in the presence of us Americans they were not only respectful to me but also to each other.

The meetings of the C. G. T., to which I had been invited, I found, from the newspapers and otherwise was attracting general attention from all that part of Paris which has an interest in social problems. What was going to take place? What would the radicals present say or do? Friday, the evening set for the occasion, I went to the hall of the "Eclair," Rue Sambre-et-Meuse, accompanied by half a dozen American friends and also by a committee representing various shades of French working class opinion. When the meeting was opened about 100 persons were present. M. Yvetot introduced me, his address being cordial and well adapted in every sense to the occasion, and declared for a fair hearing for me and earnestly said that all no doubt had something to learn from the great and successful American labor movement. No applause whatever greeted me as I arose to address the meeting. But during more than an hour with perhaps not a score of persons in the audience who understood me, a respectful and a patient audience was maintained, evidently the audience knew or imagined that I had something to say and was saying it to its members and that they wanted to hear. When I had finished a former member of the American Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, Mr. D. Mikol of Boston, who had taken long hand notes of the meeting, translated my entire address into French. Several persons present, who understood both languages, said that the performance of the task was remarkably well done, though, as it turned out, he made one or two mistakes. The audience was pointed upon by critics among the so-called "intellectuals," on hand with pencils and notepaper, who proceeded in an animated manner to applaud me. I could perceive that while certain groups were approving those expressions which were broad enough to gratify all, others were in manifest contempt, and a higher and higher plan for labor, other groups were reserving manifestations of sympathy for the passages in which I stood up for true trade unionism. Very hearty applause came from the close of Mr. Mikol's translation.

When his critics got from him his explanation that in his almost instantaneous interpretation of sentence by sentence he had, as they pointed out, translated a phrase or two in the wrong way, he was a letter perfect adherent to the original, they trained their eyes upon the speaker, and the speaker, who was a socialist and theories of an exploded socialism. What had I to say about the "C. G. T." in consequence of the employment of the abolition of the wage system? What about the general strike? How was to be the anti-militarism and anti-patriotism? Did not the trusts in America simply raise prices when the Union raised wages? etc. In brief I replied that I was not sure I wanted the wage system abolished, I should like first to see closer some of the possible results of the project of abolishing the wage system, enterprise and management of a higher developed industrial system of our time. As to the general strike its utility was questionable, but in any event, in the present state of labor organization in France, the comparatively few organized working people of France, were doing little or nothing but talk about it. As a matter of fact the confusion of a general strike had the tendency to keep working men away from, instead of being attracted to the unions. In any event it would be necessary to organize first for material improvement, and to be enabled to conduct lesser strikes to a successful result before making the subject of a general strike the chief issue of labor. The question of anti-militarism, anti-patriotism, and the like, were not questions in which the American working men had been interested, but I was certain that if I were a Frenchman I would uphold my country and not have it placed at the mercy of others. I would not insist that my country should disarm while other countries were arming to its teeth, but I would ever earnestly strive for general disarmament and international peace. I showed that though misery obtains in all countries; that the organization of our Trade Unions and our Federations are a standing protest against these great human wrongs, yet it is a fact incontrovertible, that misery is less and the conditions of the workers best in those countries where wages are highest and hours of labor least—that is where a normal work day obtains. I closed my part in the evening proceedings by urging all to Such conservative papers as the "La Temps" besides describing the meeting in several columns gave it leading and sober editorials. "Le Temps," in summing up its conclusions said: "Will the French trade unionists some day understand the beneficent role the unions can play in the economic and social organization? The trade union ought to be a part in the organization of society, not a ward machine directed against it. It ought to help regulating the relations between the categories of production, the employers and the employed. It could be a source of a beneficent collaboration, instead of a cause of division between men and of a industrial paralysis.

Revolutionary, liberal and conservative shifts alike, cited the principal points of my theory. The failures in the early attempts to mingle party political creeds with trade unionism; the simplicity and unlimited scope of our organizations and federations; its plain and practical objects; its greatness and development; its achievements in advancing wages, reducing the hours of the work day, protecting women and children, obtaining the cooperation of the National and State Labor Departments, improving conditions in the workshop, factory and mine, and perform the duties of great benefit societies.

In bidding au revoir to Paris—for I expect to be there again at the end of August to attend the International Trade Union Congress—I look back over my brief visit to the beautiful city with genuine satisfaction in spite of hard work which occupied nearly my entire time. Aside from the exceptions partly to be expected in certain forms of business, devoted to commerce or getting at any cost the cost of tourists, the people of Paris seem to me to be good-natured, obliging, sincerely polite, of a fine intelligence, ever ready with a sympathetic word and smile. The committee-men, who acted as my hosts, anticipated every wish of the little party with which I travel. My short visit has shown me a wonderful city—a hard working city, as a back ground to the city of pleasure seen by the stranger who looks no deeper than the surface; a city in the main of earnest people, characterized by a commendable pride in their personal appearance, by the expression of many sentiments that add happiness to life and in general to a charm of manner that must at bottom spring from a goodness of heart and kindly intentions toward their neighbor who ever for the passing hour may be that neighbor.

DR. FOWLER'S EXTRACT OF WILD STRAWBERRY

The medicine with a record of cures extending over 65 years. You don't experiment when you buy it.

Mrs. JOSEPH MARCHAND, Huntsville, Ont., writes: "It gives me much pleasure to write you of the wonderful benefit I have found in your medicine. Last summer it saved the lives of my three little ones. They all took the summer complaint and were very sick with it. The baby would take fits, and after trying many remedies, which were of no use, I suggested we should try Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry. After giving them one bottle I found a great change and now my little ones are as well as ever. We have never been without it since, and I have recommended it to my friends.

Mrs. R. A. HARRISON, Napawee, Ont., writes: "I take great pleasure in sending you this testimonial of what Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry has done in our family. My daughter, little girl, three years old, took summer complaint and was nearly dead. After all other remedies failed, I thought of your remedy. The first dose gave relief and the third cured her. My son had diarrhoea and a few doses stopped it right away. I advise all mothers to have a bottle of Dr. Fowler's on hand all the time. It is a great medicine for young and old, and I cannot recommend it too highly in all trouble where the bowels become too loose. A few doses will check the trouble at once."

THIS HAS BEEN A BUSY WEEK IN THE CONTEST

But Next Week Will be Still Livelier—

Don't Miss a Chance to Pile Up Votes.

CONTEST ? evntf.c.m
This is indeed a bustling week for the contestants. They are "stepping lively" and doing some lively work, too. All are eager and cheerful, looking to the speedy fulfillment of their wishes and securing subscriptions with more ease than at any time since the very beginning of the contest.

COME TO SEE US.

In the contest department we are anxious to see you as often as possible, and it will be a real kindness to us if you will bring in your subscriptions as soon as you can. We will postpone until the last day we will be swamped with work and the announcement of the prizes may be decidedly delayed.

TOO ANXIOUS TO WAIT.

You know that you will be so impatient on the last night that you will feel you can't wait a minute longer than is absolutely necessary to know the result. So help us to have everything brought right up to date by letting us have your subscriptions each day as you get them, so that we may issue the certificates which will win you a prize.

THE MORE THE MERRIER.

Don't let any one refuse you a subscription on the plea that you have enough. Don't think so yourself. Do all you can. You will have no reason to regret it if you have enough, and to spare, but you will not easily forgive yourself if you just miss the mark.

BAKERS COULD NOT RAISE CAKE PRICES

Increased Cost Justified Boost But Mutual Distrust Prevented Action—What They Have Done About It.

Only the mutual distrust of each other on the part of the bakers of the city has saved the consumers from paying higher prices for cakes, pies and other edibles of that class this summer.

There has for some time been a steady upward tendency in the price of eggs, butter and other materials used in the concoction of the toothsome dainties displayed so temptingly in the shop windows. Labor is costing more than formerly also. Then when flour jumped the bakers nearly howled with despair.

The natural remedy for curtailed profits seemed to be a raise in prices but none of them had the moral courage to try it alone and the deep and confident suspicion with which they regarded each other made all thoughts of concerted action look very hopeless. That method had been tried before and found lacking. There was always a weak sister in the outfit and when one fell from grace and cut prices the others had to climb down also.

Speaking to The Star, a leading baker said that as he would not sacrifice the quality of his goods by using inferior materials the only course left to him if he was to continue in business was to cut the quantity. This was effected by reducing the size of the cakes and while his customers have been paying an increased price per pound they did not notice it to any extent, as the price of the loaf remained the same.

Several months ago a couple of local biscuit manufacturers agreed to increase the price of biscuit by half a cent a pound on the wholesale price on account of the increased price of flour. The increase has remained in effect so far but now that the price of flour shows signs of falling off one of the manufacturers informed The Star that he feared they would be forced back to the old price as the competition is keen and outside firms are always willing to sell on a close margin to get a share of the city business.

Regarding the effect of the increased cost of materials on fancy cakes, etc., of which they also sell a large quantity, the manufacturer said that they had made no difference in the price. They figured that the extra half cent per pound would help them to show a balance on the right side of the ledger, and they made so many different kinds of cakes that it would upset their trade if they tried to add the extra cost of production to the price.

Another baker doing a large business in the city said that he felt that the local bakers should follow the same course as their confreres in Toronto, who recently boosted the price of their goods by two cents a pound.

The local bakers had found, however, by experience that it was useless to attempt any concerted action as they had tried it in the past and had only failed. "In fact," he said, "it is over two years since we have attempted to have a meeting."

The predicament of the bakers is certainly unfortunate for them, but the consumers who are profiting by their lack of ability to raise their prices, will have considerable difficulty in looking genuinely sorry about it.

CARLETON MAN WAS INJURED AT QUEBEC

Struck by a Sling of Iron—Boy Badly Hurt by Falling From Aloft.

QUEBEC, Aug. 7.—A peculiar accident occurred here in shipping circles when the steamer Montrose was in port. A lad of sixteen years was sent to clean the whistle. Suddenly a low blast was blown and the youth was thrown backwards to the lower deck. He was discovered in a semi-conscious condition with his head cut in several places. At Notre Dame Hospital, it is learned that both arms, a leg and four ribs were broken by the fall. The lad is in a precarious condition and faint hopes are held for his recovery. The injured boy was trumpeter on the old Beaver Line steamer Lake Superior which opened the winter port in St. John. Edward Craft, of St. John, West, N. B., employed with the C. P. R. at Montreal in summer and at St. John in winter, had a narrow escape from being killed while working in the hold of the steamer Montrose. A heavy sling of iron was being hoisted, when some of the iron slipped and struck Craft a severe blow on the right arm. He was taken to the Royal Victoria Hospital where the physicians found his arm was badly crushed.
