THE PRINCESS BEATRICE WAS WILDLY JEALOUS

Reasons for Her Attempt at Suicide.

Death of Bret Harte, the Noted American Author.

Condition of Queen Wilhelming Still Critical—Royal Family of Greece in Peril.

PRINCESS WAS JEALOUS.

Rome, May 6. - It is learned that Princess Beatrice, daughter of Don Carlos, the Spanish pretender, who attempted to commit suicide, arrived at the Sistine bridge, beautifully dressed and wearing jewels. She made the sign of the cross and then jumped into the Tiber. Her clothing kept her afloat until two policemen jumped into the river and rescued her.

She refused to give her name to the police, who decided to take her to a hospital. Upon arriving in the hospital ward she revealed her identity, and explained that her attempt at self-destruction was due to jealousy of her husband, Prince Massimo. The princess is now suffering from fever, and her father has been summoned.

Princess Elvira, a sister of Princess Beatrice, ran away with a painter, named Folchi, two years ago. DEATH OF BRET HARTE. London, Hay 6. - F. Bret Harte, the American author, died here last night. He was born at Albany, N. Y., on Aug. 25, 1839. Bret Harte died suddenly at the Red House, Camberley, near Aldershot, from hemorrhage, caused by an affection of the throat. Mr. Harte had been living quietly in England for years. Most of his time was spent in the country, and when in London he was almost equally secluded, having few visitors to his rooms at Lancaster Gate, and only going to the houses of a limited number of very intimate friends. Several months ago, when a Wales report of his death was circulated in America, a representative of the Associated Press called at his rooms. Mr. Harte then appeared to be perfectly well. He laughed heartily and quoted Mark Twain's old saying about the report being grossly exaggerated. "Except for a little cold," said Mr. Harte. "I have no allments or complaints. While I am getting to be a pretty old man" (pointing to his snowwhite hair), "there is life in the oid dog yet," and thereupon he lit a cigar so large that it would have done credit to any of his Poker Flat friends. He was hoping, he also said, to do some more work, but he confessed he was growing lazy. BRET HARTE'S DEATH WAS SUD-

Her temperature this morning is normal, and her condition at the present moment is fairly satisfactory, although the patient still requires great care and attention." Queen Wilhelmina went through a similar illness about a year ago, when there was great disappointment among the people who had looked forward to greeting an heir to the throne. A few weeks ago the young queen was taken ill with typhoid, and for a time her death was feared. Then the fever sub-sided, and on Saturday she was reportted to have practically recovered. event of Sunday night had been feared from the first of the typhoid attack. THE CATTLE EMBARGO. In answering a question to the House of Commons, suggesting the desirability of augmenting the food sup-ply in view of the present prospective short supplies of beef, the president of the board of agriculture. R. W. Hanbury, said that the government could not remove the restrictions placed on the importation of Canadian store cattle; but, possibly, Argentine beasts might be admitted on the same conditions as cattle from the United States. Mr. Hanbury added that he was awaiting information on the subject from the Argentine Government.

MR. ROSS' TRIBUTE TO LAMBTON

When Premier Ross rose to speak he was given a magnificent reception. In opening, Mr. Ross recalled the names of famous sons of Lambton. Hon Alex. Mackenzie, Hon. T. B. Pardee and Hon. J. F. Lister. And now they had another scion of the Pardee family, able and courteous in debate, and thoroughly informed in regard to public matters. (Cheers.) "Mr. Whitney says it's time for a change," Mr. Ross continued. "I have been premier for less than three years. What is the matter with me? (Laughter.) Why should I be changed because my pre-decessors occupied office for a good while? The time has not come for a change. The rebellious Israelites were compelled to wander forty years. Our opponents have only been thirty years the wilderness. (Laughter and cheers.) Their time is not up yet. They have ten years longer to serve, and what I have to say to you is to see that they serve their full term. (Renewed laughter.) It will take it all before they are fully equipped and ready to enter the promised land. (Cheers.) Mr. Whitney gave me a very bad name when speaking here a week ago, and I fear that you royal and other notable personages, scarcely recognize me as the same gentleman who was for six years ingentleman who was for six years inspector if schools in this country, and who enjoyed the complete confidence of who enjoyed the complete confidence of Tarte stated he was personally of the opinion it would be profitable to erect a new departmental building, and that the site near the exchequer court, west of the Mackenzie block, which R. L. Borden had suggested, was a good one. The rental now paid for buildings in Ottawa was $18,000 yearly, but For instance, at Chicago a or two thousand dollars this year by making improvements in the postoffice building. The question of erecting a new chamber for the House of Commons was, he said, under consideration, but it was a most difficult problem to solve. He promised to give the matter of the ventilation of the chamber his most careful attention and to consult experts. This afternoon, in answer to Mr. Borden, Mr. Tarte explained that the government has 6,000 miles of telegraph lines, including the Yukon line, and some 230 miles of cable. In answer to Mr. Earle, Mr. Tarte stated that the total length of the Yu-kon telegraph line is 2,135 miles, the total cost $786,224, not including $95,000 taken out of construction money. The total average cost per mile was $368 23. There are 70 offices and 110 employes. He explained that by laying cable in the most exposed sections to was hoped to have an uninterrupted circuit throughout the whole year. Next year [Continued on page 6.]

Trees and Treasures.

Time changes all things, and time is changing the public and private esti-mate of trees in this country. When the pioneers came upon a vast wilderness the trees were as much opposed to their making comfortable livelihoods as were the copper-skinned sav-ages. They made war upon the forest with more zeal than judgment; they slaughtered and laid waste, says the Pittsburg Post. With such beginnings of the people their constituted authorities have been slow to make laws for the protection of mere trees, though gradually the worth of the latter has come to be understood by many: Old trees soon will be held, as they should be, to be sacred, and young trees as something to be encouraged, fostered and trained in the way they should go. It is only a few years since Dr. Marill, of this state, astonished the public by bringing suit against a telephone company for hacking branches off some trees because they interfered with the stringing or proper insulation of its wires. The courts sustained the doctor's contention that ancient trees are treasures. The telephone company will not soon forget the fact, for it was compelled to pay smartly for the destruction wrought.

Big Tunnels of the Future.

An article in the Pall Mall Gazette on the Simplon tunnel suggests speculation on the great tunnels still to be made. One which involves great engineering difficulties was lately sanctioned by the Austrian Parliament. It will pierce the Alps between the Vorarlberg and Trieste, and with its approaches will cost not less than £7,000,000 ($35,000,000). Another project of greater importance, though it has not yet got further than being talked about, is for a tunnel under the Grimsel Pass. This, indeed, may be regarded as the inevitable supplement to the Simplon, which it will couple with the Bernese Oberland, enabling travel almost in a bee line from Colais to Milan. It is bound to come, therefore, in due course, but it will probably be the last big tunnel in our days. At all events one searches the map of Europe in vain for a place where the present exigencies of traffic call for or would justify another.

BEAFREEMAN

Be a Man Among Men! Be Strong and Youthful! Free Yourself From the Chains That Hold You Down!

Nature intended you to be a strong man. You have the physique, the constitution, and yet you do not feel the vim, the sand, the ambition one would expect in a man of your age. What is it? Why, a lack of vitality—the foundation of manhood. You have lost it, no matter how. Get it back, feel young, look young, act young. Life is beautiful when you have health. I can help you with my Men, why will you be weak? Why do you not listen to the echo of thousands of grateful voices raised in thanks to Dr. McLaughlin's Electric Belt? Why do you go on from day to day realizing that you are losing your nerve force, your manhood, when you see a cure within you'r grasp? Reach for it, take it to your heart, and feel the life blood flowing, jumping, dancing through your veins; feel the exhibit arating spark of manly power warm your frame, the bright flash come to your eye, and the firm grip to your hand—the grip which grasps your fellow-man and tells him that you have found your Mecca—you have regained your manhood.

Act to-day. Do not delay a matter which is the key to your future happiness; do not allow a disease to destroy all possibility of future pleasure for you. Whatever your condition to-day, you will not improve as you grow older. Age calls for greater vital force, and the older you get the more pronounced and apparent will be your weakness; so cure it now—cure it while you are young. The time is ripe. While the vital spark is still warm it can be easily fanned to flame by Electricity, and Dr. McLaughlin's Electric Belt will make you strong if you try it now.

Warranted Not to Burn or Blister.

My appliances are warranted the strongest in the world, yet they give the current like a soothing, glowing warmth, flowing into the body without the stinging, burning sensation caused by old-style Belts. to edit the New England Review. During his brief stay in that city, lasting less than two years, he became acquainted with Judge Russ, one of the ablest and most influential citizens of the town. His youngest child, Cornelia, was a strikingly beautiful girl, about seventeen years old, when the young poet met her and fell desperately in love. Why she did not reciprocate we do not know, but it is not difficult to conjecture. About to leave Hartford, he wrote to her an offer of marriage. This letter is deeply interesting, not only because it finally settles the question of Whittier's only romance, but for another even more important reason. The youthful literary aspirant, aged twenty-four, who had published at this time only one volume of poems, suppress, and with only a small local reputation, distinctly prophesies his months after Wh future renown — a prophecy fulfilled poem 'Memories.' beyond his furthest aspirations. Through the kindness of Mr. Charles C. Russ, a grandnephew of Cornelia, I am now able to print this highly interesting document for the first time:

and the girl faithfully kept his secret. USE which he afterwards did his utmost to Though much sought after, she was never married, and died in 1842, a few months after Whittier had written the

"There are several interesting points to be noted in this love-letter: Whittier did not use the Quaker pronouns, his almost invariable custom, thinking, perhaps, the plural was more respectful. Although a declaration of undying love, it is curious that the letter is almost all about himself, and scarcely at all about the person to whom it was written. It affords another instance of the old proverb that 'faint heart never won fair lady,' for the note of despair is even more evident the country, I have ventured to make than the pitch of passion. Its cold reserve, however, but ill conceals the heart, the constancy of which sixty years of solitary life were abundantly to prove.

The passage from "Memories," in which the poet alludes to his early love are these: MEMORIES.

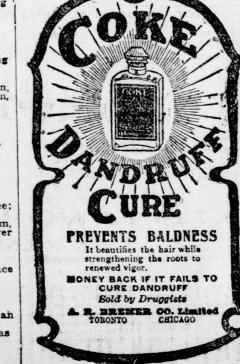

Shadowed by many a careless curl
Of unconfined and flowing hair;
A seeming child in everything,
Save thoughtful brow and ripening charms,
As Nature wears the smile of Spring
When sinking into Summer's arms.

How thrills once more the lengthening chain
Of memory at the thought of thee!
Old hopes which long in dust have lain, Old dreams come thronging back again,
And boyhood lives again in me;
I feel its glow upon my cheek,
Its fullness of the heart is mine,
As when I leaned to hear thee speak, Or raised my doubtful eyes to thine.

Ere this thy quiet eye hath smiled My picture of thy youth to see. When, half a woman, half a child, Thy very artlessness beguiled, And folly's self seemed wise in thee; I too can smile, when o'er that hour The lights of memory backward stream, Yet feel the while that manhood's power Is vainer than my boyhood's dream.

Years have passed on and left their trace Of graver care and deeper thought; And unto me the calm, cold face Of manhood, and to thee the grace

Three Years of Suffering Before a Cure Was Found-All Credit Given to

DR. CHASE'S. KIDNEY-LIVER PILLS

Before reading Mr. Gallant's letter. which is quoted below, look over these symptoms and see if your kidneys are its results. Books, literature, lectures, in a healthy condition. Scores of peo-ple attribute their sufferings to stom-the life out of him. I know half a ach troubles or indigestion, when the hundred such men who have come to real cause of the discomfort is in the this condition within the last few failure of the kidneys to properly filter the blood.

When poisonous impurities are left lurking in the system, disease of the most painful and dangerous kind is bound to show itself sooner or later. It is possible that you have kidney disease, and have not recognized it as

The symptoms are: Pain in the back and over the kidneys, sediment in the urine after it stands for 24 hours, unusual desire to urinate, pain in passing water, gradual loss of flesh and weight, pain in limbs, not unlike rheumatism. dry, itching skin and brittle hair, fullness under the eyes and dropsical swelling of the legs, sleeplessness, in-

A STARTLING AND

Vast Increase in the Number of Multi-Millionaires.

The Generosity of Wealthy Men-The Amount Contributed to Charities

[By Chauncey Depew.]

Nothing more marks this decade from others than the sudden accumulation of fabulous fortunes. When I graduated from Yale there were only two multi-millionaires in the United States, John Jacob Astor and Comodore Vanderbilt. Neither of them at that period had reached the $10,000,000 limit. There were not in the whole country twenty people worth a million Today there are more than dollars. one hunderd in Pittsburg alone who have passed that figure. There were then no trusts, no great combinations of capital, and no concentration of industries. These have made possible our in instrial advance and superiority over other nations. They have increased the scale of wages and enlarged the area of employment. They have given vast power to a few men who are being closely watched and who have in their hands vast responsibilities which are accompanied by great perils. The misuse of these great powers, the exercise of them oppressively, the imposition of burdens upon the people beyond reasonable returns for capital invested, the failure to recognize the rights of all, will be sure to react in drastic measures of legislation. MATTERS OF CURIOSITY.

These vast fortunes, themselves so conspicuous, so almost incomprehensible, are at present more matters of curiosity than of antagonism. Most of the possessors of them have shown a wise generosity in the distribution of ordinary growth of population in the their wealth. In no other country in peninsula, despite the large emigration | the world, at no other period, have the rich from their abundance given so vailed there in late years. In round lavishly to education, philanthropy, and patriotism. Last year the known sums which were thus contributed amounted than 4,000,000 in the last wenty years. to the high figure of $107,860,000. The That is not a large inc. se, but it is, on the whole, satsfactory. It is not, hension by the multi-millionaires of the United States, who have gained so enormously by the tremendous development of our resources and because of their masterful control and promo tion of them, of what they owe to their country, and those of other lands who have been similarly fortunate. The legacies of Cecil Rhodes are magnificent, their purposes are sufficiently grand to make them seem wise and beneficent, but the distribution of this vast fortune, accumulated by the opportunities given by his government, calls attention to other fortunes much larger than his own similarly acquired. Except under the inspiration of these capitalists and for the protection their mines and investments and for the promotion of their schemes, the war in the Transvaal would hardly Britain grew from 16,000,000 to 41,000, have been begun. Their palaces, their 000, and Germany from 24,000,000 to layish expenditures, and their Oriental lavish expenditures, and their Oriental 56,000,000, and each of these countries suffered as great a loss from wars as Lane one of the most famous of aventually and a considerably greater loss ues. But one hears everywhere in England, where wealth and rank are sel dom criticised, little but criticism of these enormously rich men. And yet South Africa has not produced, with the exception of Cecil Rhodes, a benefactor like Carnegie, or Rockefeller, or Morgan, or scores of other Americans whose names are not so well known. The lack on the part of these South African millionaires of public spirit and of recognition of the debt due to the country to which they owe so much gives to Cecil Rhodes, man of affairs, empire builder, and dreamer, a monopoly among the beneficiaries of England's expansion and development, of the fame of a wise appreciation of a great fortune. A MISFORTUNE. The sudden acquisition of almost incalculable riches by so many in the last five years has produced many singular results. The most ghastly misfortune which can happen to a man who has been successfully prosecuting and increasing his business until he has passed middle life is to be compelled to sell out and retire. He may receive a sum far beyond any value he ever placed upon his plant and good Nevertheless, the sale is generally accompanied by an obligation not to resume and compete. Little ouside the factory or office interests him because the cells of his brain have become, some of them, abnormally active, and others paralyzed through disuse. He can think of nothing and years. During the panic season from 1893 to 1897 most of them were in the greatest distress. Their credit was expanded, their mills, their factories and their furnaces were practically and they were dependent upon the faith which their banks had in them and the help of their friends to keep their heads above water. But even those conditions occupied their time and minds in a way which gave a certain measure of enjoyment-that enjoyment which the strong swimmer feels when he buffets the waves, is master of the sea, and knows that he will reach the Punishing Election Offenders.

The contribution of the Ross Government to the purity of elections is writ large in the statute books of Onwere embodied in the bill in the session of 1900, and these have placed corrupt practices in the same amendments may be summarized as

1. The penalty for undue influence has been increased from six months' imprisonment to one year's impris-

2. For personation the penalty has been increased from $200 to $400, and the term of imprisonment from six 3. For voting more than once the term of imprisonment has been in-voters or polling books by a returning officer, the term of imprisonment has been increased from six to twelve from two years to three years, and (b) by any other person, from six months to one year.

6. For unlawfully destroying or in-luring documents, or aiding or abetting therin, besides a penalty of $2,000, the term of imprisonment was increased from six months to one year.

Mr. Whitney and his followers have been extravagant in their denunciations of the Government for its alleged neglect to mete out condign What are the facts? Thirty ave been convicted in the courts since the elections of 1898. These men have been fined sums of from $200 to $800, or failing to pay their fines, have been imprisoned for periods of has done its utmost to safeguard the not too much to say that no other administration in Canada has to the same extent set the law in motion against this class of offenders.

Public Opinion the Power.

pulsory arbitration of labor disputes on railways. The principle of the bill meets with general approval, though difficulties in the way of its practical operation are suggested. The measure provides that "every railway company which locks out employes contrary to the provisions of the act shall be liable to a fine equal to the wages of such employes for a term equal to the lock-out and shall also forfeit to each employe an amount equal to double his ordinary wages for a similar term." It provides also that every workman who goes out on strike is amenable to a fine equal in amount to his wages for a period as long as the duration of the strike. Any person inciting a railway employe to strike is liable to a fine equal to a week's wages of that employe. Suppose that either party refused to abide by the judgment of the board of arbitrators-could that judgment be enforced? The penalty might be inflicted upon the railway companies with their centralized capital, but could the great mass of employes, who might have no collective fund, be penalized? The difficulty at first glance may appear insuperable, but it is more imaginary than real. There can be no doubt that the decision of an impartial tribunal, which had weighed all the facts of a dispute, would be accepted by the public as conclusive. Against the recalcitrant party would be arrayed the whole force of public opinion, which in such a case would be irresistible. Public opinion is the real power which will make the measure effectual.

The License Record.

The license statistics of the Province tell their own tale. In 1871 the liquor traffic was under the control of the municipalities, and there was a tendency to abuse the privilege. The first radical step in advance was the Crooks Act, passed in 1876, by which the license system came under Government control. The first five years of Liberal rule witnessed a reduction of 2,165 licenses, or 433 per year. During the second period of five years the licenses were reduced at the rate of only ten per year. In the third five year period the reduction in the number of licenses was considerably greater, being 410, or 82 per year. The rate of reduction per year for the next five years was 81. During the fifth five yearly period there was a total decrease of 201 or at the rate of 40 per annum. For the period from 1875-1890 the rate of decrease in licenses granted was 130 a

The steady reduction in the number of licenses issued and the general improvement in the character of hotels testify to the wisdom of Provincial control, and constitute a record of temperance legislation which should be remembered to the credit of the Government. The Methodist General Conference of 1882 passed this resolu-year, or an aggregate of 3,235,

"Although we cannot accept as righteous absolutely any license law, yet, if we must tolerate some one as the tentative regulator of an evil till we can have it removed, we must regard the Crooks Act as the best intrument for this suppression the Province of Ontario ever had. We would emphatically deprecate any legislation that would impair its efficacy, and we would respectfully recommend our people, where the law obtains, to use their voice and franchise to prevent the control of this license system reverting to the municipalities, where the industrious ward politician and the interested liquor dealer so largely manipulate the election."

The word the working organization of the party, trial, social and religious life of the to use the opprobrious term, is comcreased from three months to six posed of the same representative class. To attempt to connect an honorable January last, is, we repeat, a gratuitous insult and a deliberate misreading of the judge's report, which does not boxes by (a) a returning officer, the term of imprisonment was increased criminal act. The frauds were comand we are sure no one can regret it more than the candidate who was the innocent victim of their misconduct.

Of all this thinking soul has thought; And from these fleeting moments caught, For glory or for shame.

No Fewer Than 7,392 Came to Canada in a Fortnight.

Ottawa, May 6.-Never in the history of the Dominion immigrating department has there been such an influx of settlers to Canada by ocean ports. During the past two weeks the following arrivals have been reported: By steamship Lake Simcoe, 1,333; Tu-nisian, 1,479; Parisian, 717; Sarmatian, 300; Pretorian, 380; Bulgaria, 1,760; Lake Manitoba, 1,423; total, 7,392. In addition to these were 339 British mariners, who were on board the Lake

The great bulk of these passengers, possibly 6,000, were for the Northwest. The department of the interior has now a system for receiving and caring for arrivals, so that no difficulty has been experienced in looking after this large number of new settlers. It is expected that during the next few weeks there will be quite as large a proportion of arrivals as during the past two weeks

Pittsburg, May 6. - Mrs. Kate Soffel, the wife of Warden Soffel, of the Allegheny county jail, who figured in the sensational escape and recapture of the Biddle brothers last January, was called into court yesterday morning and entered a plea of guilty to the charge of aiding and abetting in the escape of prisoners. She will be sentenced next Saturday.

The maximum penalty is two years in the penitentiary. The court room was crowded to the doors, many women being present and much curiosity to see the prisoner was manifested. Mrs. Soffel entered room with a firm step. She was accompanied only by her physicians and quest that none of her relatives be present during the trying ordeal. She was dressed neatly, unveiled, and appeared to have entirely recovered from the wounds received during the battle between the bandits and officers. During the preliminaries incident to the opening of court she showed little embarrassment, and talked freely with Thrilling Ride of Passengers in Michigan.

Engineer Brown Had Become Demented and Tore Through Stations at Lightning Speed.

Flint. Mich., May 6 .- Tearing along at the dizzy speed of sixty miles an hour, and whizzing through stations where the train ought to have stopped, was the thrilling experience of the passengers on board the Grand Trunk Western, due here a few minutes past 11 each evening. The train came into the station Saturday night at full "What are you shingling it again speed, and made no attempt to stop "Well, I couldn't think of anything brakeman noticing that something was wrong applied the emergency brake and the train was brought to a standstill in the vards. Investigation developed the fact that the engineer, Billy Brown, of Port Huron, had be come demented, and that the lives of the passengers were at the mercy of

The train was scheduled to stop at Emmet, Capac, Imlay City and Davidson, but it went through each place at lightning speed, and the passengers began to fear that something was wrong. Someone started a rumor that the engineer was crazy, which was too true, and there was much excitement. The demented engineer's cabmate, the fireman on the flying trip, had a trying time of it. Brown persisted in running the train to suit himself, which was his right under normal cir-

The fireman detected symptoms of violence in the engineer's actions, and adopted the only course open to him. He humored the demented man, so far persuading him that the train was up at two stations where it should have stopped. It is said that the flyer narrowly missed a couple trains that were pulling into sidings to let No. 5 go by Nothing would induce the passengers to again board the train so long as Brown was left at the throttle, and as soon as possible Engineer Cassidy, of the local switching service, was secured and took the train to its destina-Brown was taken to a hosand one of the most reliable in the company's employ.

By this she meant she'd get to the root of the evil. She continued: 'The vile, stinking cigar smoker, he'll smoke and smoke in hell when he gets his just dues."

This tickled the crowd. "Saloons are hell-holes, the saloon man is nothing but a malicious pauper," she repeated in various ways. He not only robs you of the money that justly belongs to your wife and children, but sends your child to hell. "Hell, hell, all saloonkeepers

"Oh, the hell-holes of Ann Arbor! Oh, the hell-holes of Detroit!" Mrs. Nation next called out a Detroit brewer by name, and roundly scored him for sending 40 barrels of

KIDNAPPING OF A

Creates Great Excitement Among New York Celestials-Wasa Cultured Beauty.

New York, May 6.-Wee Lung Fong, a beautiful Chinese girl, who was brought to New York three weeks ago to become the wife of Ling Foy, a wealthy Ninth street tea merchant, has been kidnapped by Highbinders, and intense excitement prevails in London, May 6.—In military circles the question of Earl Roberts' retire-Joss House in Mott street at midnight chief immediately after coronation is last night, and extensive preparations freely discussed. It is looked upon as had been made for the event. The a certainty that the Duke of Con-naught will succeed him, and will not the disappearance of his fiancee, and the news will be kept from him until the last moment in the hope that the girl may be found.

Ling Foy is said to be one of the wealthiest Chinamen in America. Near Hong Kong he had seen a beautiful girl, whom he determined to purchase for a wife. An agent was sent to China, where the girl was purchased from her father for $800. She reached New York three weeks ago in the care of an emissary, and was placed in the hands of a resident of Mott street, who was instructed to allow no person to see her. Shortly after the news of the approaching marriage was spread through Chinatown, Ling Foy was approached by a committee of the Highbinders and asked to contribute $1,000 for a general merry making among his people. The merchant flatly refused. The next night the girl was carried away in a carriage, and the woman in whose care she was also disappeared.

Milford, a Connecticut Village, Suffers to the Extent of $500,000 or $600,000.

Danbury, Conn., May 6. - Between $500,000 and $600,000 is the latest estimate of the loss by the fire which destroyed the business section of New Milford, 16 miles north of here, last most of the stores in the place, two banks, three hotels, the postoffice and the Y. M. C. A. building, were burned. The fire started in the stables of the New Milford House. The village fire department was unable to get sufficient water from the six-inch main which supplies the place to combat the fire, and the flames spread quickly to the Mygatt block, and thence west along Bank street, the principal business thoroughfare of the village, and leaped from building to building unchecked. Twenty different buildings were on fire at one time. Assistance was sent from Danbury, and the fire was under centrol at 4 o'clock this morning, but was still burning in many places. The

The Uncertainty of Life. Has it ever occurred to you that nothing can be more uncertain than the duration of your life? You may be alive and well today and able to provide for the wants of your family. Everything may point to a long and successful career, and fear for the morof age. His wife died thirteen months ago. He leaves one son, James, of thoughts. DERELICT ISLANDS ON THE HIGH SEAS

Before Being Destroyed.

Of all passengers carried by ocean currents, floating islands are the most found voyaging on the Atlantic. These river banks which broke away under stress of storm or flood and floated out Plata and other tropical rivers often send forth such pieces of their shores. Some of the bits of land are of large size and carry animals, insects and vegetation, even at times including trees, the roots of which serve to hold land intact, while their branches and leaves serve as sails for the wind. Generally the waves break up these slands shortly after they put to sea out sometimes, under favorable condiions, they travel long distances.

The longest voyage of a floating sland, according to government records, took place in 1893. This island was first seen off Florida, and apparently it had an aret o ftwo acres. It ore no trees, but it was thickly covered with bushes, and in one place it was thirty feet high above the sea level. It was in the Gulf Stream, traveling slowly and with occasional undulations to show where the groundvell was working beneath it. Probably it got away from its river anchor ge in the spring of the year, for, to ward the latter part of July it had reached the latitude of Wilmington, Delaware. No large animal life had een seen on it, though there must have been myriads of small creeping things, which abound in the tropics By the end of August it has passed Cape Cod and was veering toward the Grand Banks. It followed the steamlane routes quite accurately, and several vessels reported it. One month later it was in midocean, northwest of the Azores, and its voyage evidently was beginning to tell on it. It was nuch smaller and less compact. It was not seen again, and probably it met estruction in the October gales. But had traveled at least 1,000 miles, and f, as was thought, it came from the Orinoco, it must have covered twice hat distance. It is quite possible that floating islands larger than this one inder more favoring circumstances, might during past ages have made the complete journey from America to Europe or Africa and so brought about a distribution of animal species.

For over a year past he had suffered with an affection of the heart, which obliged him to give up his employment, and the active pursuits in which he delighted. In politics Mr. Wanless was a Liberal, and as such he displayed an enthusiasm which proved infectious. He was president of the Young Liberal Club for two years, and during that time he organized the "Young Liberal Fleet." Mr. Wanless was one of the Liberal party's leading workers in several hard-fought campaigns.

Mr. Wanless took a deep interest in military matters. As a corporal he accompanied the 7th Regiment to the Northwest in the rebellion of 1885, and he is remembered by the veterans of that campaign as being the life of the regiment. REVOLUTION IN PORTUGAL

Probability.

Queen Wilhelmina's Condition Is Not Reassuring—Mount Pelee in Active Eruption.

London, May 6 .- A dispatch to a news agency from Madrid says that advices received there from Portugal indicate that there is danger of an actual revolution in that country. Considerable apprehension is felt in official quarters as to the attitude of the Portuguese troops. The 60th Infantry, stationed at Oporto, has been disarmed and disbanded, having fear that the soldiers would join the rioters. The military and naval officers are advocating that King Charles establish a

Doubly Blest §

At last she quietly removed the cover, and there before hel lay some superb buds, the very duplicates, she felt sure, of those she had seen in Laura's hands on the night of the reception.

The sight made her turn white again, and she caught her breath with a little gasp of pain; it recalled so vividly her suffering of that evening. But she remembered her friend's words—"something you ought to have had long ago, only through the mistake of a servant it missed reaching you"—and she took courage, while just then she espied the note peeping out from among the green leaves and stems.

With fingers that trembled with mingled weakness and excitement, she unfolded it and read those impassioned words that had so unfortunately fallen

"My Darling.—I love you, and I think you must have begun to realize it before this; for days the avowal has been upon my lips, but I have lacked the courage to make it. If you can return my affection and will give yourself to me, wear these roses in your belt this evening, as a pledge of your dear love, and meet me on the balcony in the rear of the drawing-room at eight o'clock. I must have a word of hope before our guests arrive.

"Oct. 30, 18-."

It seemed to Agnes for a moment after It seemed to Agnes for a moment after reading this, that she was slipping out of the world; it had come so suddenly upon her. The box, the flowers, the note, were identical with those that Laura had so cruelly vaunted before her eyes, telling her that Max sent them to her, had asked her to be his wife and wear the buds as the seal and pledge of her love; and now she had learned for the first time that it had all been a first time that it had all been a

Then a great rush of joy surged over her, her heart leaped, and the blood went coursing through her veins, ting-ling with a swift, new, life-giving happi-

She understood it all.

She eould see now just how the mistake must have occurred, and the box been carried to Laura's room instead of hers, and, there being no address on either the note or the box, she had naturally supposed they had been intended for her. In the purity of her own heart she did not just then suspect the girl of having cunningly plotted the whole thing to ruin her happiness.

It was such blessed news—Max loved her! had loved her all this time, and had been very unhappy over the blunder.

Now she longed—was eager to get well; she knew she would; of course, strength must come back to her now, when she had so much to live for.

How sorry she was that she had not read the letter that he had written after.

CHANGE OF LIFE

A Time of Interest and Great Importance to All Women.

Wrecked health is produced by neglect during this trying period, and small wonder that women look forward with dread to its coming, for if not properly passed, it is but the beginning of an endless chain of troubles. As soon as the unmistakable signs known to all women make their first appearance, Ferrozone should be used regularly, and if persistently taken will be a guarantee of happy, healthy, old age.

Nothing can bring more pleasure than to know that the days of sickness though she had made up her mind to tell Mrs. Remington all about it some day when she felt equal to it.

But Mr. Archibald was impatient to get hold of something tangible, so that he could punish the rascal who had blayed such a villainous trick upon the girl who had twined herself so closely around his and suffering are over. This can best be accomplished by building up the system with Ferrozone, which produces blood, muscle, tissue, and strength to resist and ward off disease. Mrs. Remington smiled fondly upon the lovely upturned face.

"Who could help being kind to you?" she said. "And I have had no trouble equal to that of seeing Max unhappy. What may I tell him from you when he comes tomorrow?"

Agnes colored again vividly, but she did not reply for a moment. Seventeen batsmen have fanned the

CHAPTER XXXII.

When Mrs. Remington told Max the next day what Agnes had said, his face grew luminous with a smile of joy.

"Did she say that?" he murmured, his voice tremulous with happiness. "Then she has given herself to me! When may I see her, mother, dear?"

"Not for another week, sure, although she is as bright as a new dollar this morning." Mrs. Remington replied, smiling at his impatience. Then, as she saw

SOME HISTORIC GAMES. Frank Hahn twirled a double-leaded paragraph for himself in the history of the campaign of 1901 when he struck out sixteen Boston batsmen at the morning," Mrs. Remington replied, smiling at his impatience. Then, as she saw his face fall, she added: "We cannot be too careful; any little over-exertion or excitement might bring on a relapse that might prove fatal. Agnes did not allow her to forget her promise that she might sit up if she continued better, and accordingly, the nurse wrapped her in a warm blanket and carried her in her strong arms to a luxurious invalid chair, which Mr. Archibald had sent only a couple of days previous, to be in readiness for this very occasion.

Congalton had other ideas toward the flying as he sprinted sphere, and raised his gloved mitt, in which the ball stuck. It was a lucky but none the less meritorious catch.

BIG LEAGUE AFFAIRS. It is possible for the American League to stave off the loss of any more than these three stars by fighting suits that may be brought against other players. Had Their Hands Full Doing | American League. He is not a desirable player for any club. He is a great player—one of the stars—but too untrustworthy. His return to Brooklyn was not caused so much by fear of court proceedings as by the attitude of the Baltimore fans and papers towards him. He was constantly being reminded of his contract jumping and could not "stand the gaff." It would work a great revival among the tribe of grasshoppers, of which Sheckard is chief, if the public and press of every city would follow Baltimore's lead and make it equally warm for every player who ignores not only promises but signed contracts. Meanwhile this fighting in the courts is costing somebody a small barrel of coin. Lawyers are higher priced players than the best of the diamond stars and someone must foot the bill. He said his experience was that every good game developed good men. He knew that the men in his old company in the Royal Engineers who did best at cricket were generally the best men in every other respect, and that, indeed, had been his experience all through life. Cricket called for self-restraint, discipline and intelligence, and the only thing he objected to as an excess was the tendency to look at cricket and bet on cricket, instead of playing it. The games that produced good cricketers and footballers also produced good soldiers, and many of them had shown that they could wear khaki, the fighting dress of the empire, with as much credit as they could wear fiannel.

CHOYNSKI'S WORK. Age cut no figure in the battle between Joe Choynski and Al Weinig at Louisville on last Friday night. Weinig had youth and strength in his favor, but the old war horse found him to his liking, and fairly jabbed him to pieces. Weinig is a big, husky fellow, but has not the science or foot work to carry him through with Choynski. Joe, by his years of experience in the ring, knows just how to handle one of Weinig's kind, and had things his own way after getting line on Weinig's style of milling. Had the bout gone the full distance Weinig would have been the stronger at the finish, but Joe nipped him early and got the load off his shoulders. Choynski can worry a man of Weinig's caliber into desperation with his tantalizing feints and footwork. He will lead, block and get away before his opponent has time to counter, and in any number of his fights Choynski has stood off and brought his man to him simply by making a move as to lead, and follow it up with a series of blows that not only puzzle the man in the ring, but the spectators as well. colored sport who watched Joe Choynski fight one night when Joe was at his best stood up in his seat in amazement as Choynski executed some clever work. There was that he thought it would be unwise to asphalt and vitrified brick, ordinary do this, since the holiday had been old gravel, and the macadams (com-mon macadam, tar macadam and bituminous macadam). All except this last are old friends, much spoken of since the discussion first arose. The bituminous variety is a new-comer. Its notoriety is the offspring of a pamphlet that Ald. Winnett received from the men who make it, and of the mayor's visit to the Boston horse show. They have this pavement over

It will be remembered that the newest phase of the situation there was a petition praying that tar macadam be not constructed, and that instead an ordinary gravel macadam be built out of the general rate. It thus was a double-barreled petition, may be said that it was practically the and its legality was questioned. The city solicitor gave his opinion last night that it was sufficient for the purpose of preventing the tar macadam being proceeded with, if the number signed and the value of their property was sufficient under the statute. This means that the tar macadam will have to go away back as far as King street is concerned. The Wit of the Japs.

There is humor, as well as secrecy, in diplomacy, and an excellent story is recalled by the treaty with Japan. Years ago the Emperor of Japan sent an embassy to France to arrange with the French government about the opening of certain ports which were to be declared free for the benefit of the republic. The Japanese government had consented to throw open three ports to be chosen by France in exchange for three French ports, and the foreign minister in Paris, who need not be named, made his selection in conference with the embassy from Tokyo. He chose the ports of Yokohama, Yeddo and Han Yang. The embassy bowed and left-with a smile, we may be sure. A few days elapsed, quaintances. H-U-T-C-H.
