Lieutenant-General Viscount Terauchi, the Japanese resident-general of Korea, will leave for Seoul, the Koean capital, on July 15, to confer with Emperor Yi-Syek, of Korea, who is reported to be in a complaisant state of mind in view of the provision made for him, immediate family and other members of the royalty under the annexation arrangements.

Broadly speaking, annexation will mean the wiping out of the hermit kingdom as a nation; the strengthening of the military status of Japan, and an effect upon the financial affairs of all countries doing business with Korea as the flat 5 per cent custom tariff of the present Government is likely to be increased to meet the expense of Japanese administration. Until 1894 China was the suzerain of Korea, but on the conclusion of the war in 1895, China relinquished her suzerainty and the independence Korea was acknowledged. Following the Russo-Japanese war the paramount interest of Japan in Korea was recognized, and a subsequent treaty between Korea and Japan provided that Japan should control and direct the external relations and affairs of Korea, and be represented at Seoul by a resident-general. The man to whom the ear belonged has already been identified as Edward Fraser, a non-union sailor, who was assaulted in Buffalo, N. Y., last Monday, and had his ear severed from his head by his assailants. He was picked up later by the police, dying from loss of blood. Across his chest was pinned a sheet of paper inscribed, "Don't be scab." Mr. Coulby turned the letter and the bottle and its contents over to the federal authorities, and a search was immediately started through every port of the great lakes for the perpetrators of the outrage. A Women Athletes' Society, the latest development of the Women's Freedom League, has been organized by Mrs. Garrud, a Hujitsu expert, and Miss Kelly, one of the hunger strikers, who once entered a political meeting at Dundee by way of the fanlights.

"He was a very nice man and he did not mind a bit," she says; "but there are other men who are not a bit nice,

LASH TWICE WEEKLY FOR IDLE HUSBANDS

Chicago Judge Proposed a New Punishment for Erring Spouses.

Chicago, July 4.-Wealthly idling Benedicts should be horsewhipped twice a week, according to Circuit Judge Petit, who expressed himself as in favor of alimony for wives who seek relief from erring husbands who refuse to work because they can live without toil. Mrs. Mary Robbins Sherwood was urging Judge Petit to grant her a divorce from Russell H. Sherwood, son and heir of a wealthy commission merchant. She medium-sized houses, Nos. 570 Pall Mall said she did not need alimony, but finally and 41 Palace street, all in good repair. admitted that the court might do wisely admitted that the court might do wisely in impressing upon her errant husband the virtue of industry. "I can't understand why you girls don't ask for alimony," said Judge Petit. Mrs. Sherwood flushed.

"Take the fellow who makes a misstep," continued the court. "He has a yoke of alimony hung around his neck. But a fellow like this, who ought to be horsewhipped twice a week, is let off by his wife. I don't like the idea.' "But," pouted the young wife, "he has no position, anyway."

"Well," retorted the court, "I saw an advertisement this morning in which 400 men were wanted to shovel cement at $2 a day. There's a job for him." Mrs. Sherwood seemingly was shocked at the suggestion of her husband shoveling dirt-such menial labor-and insisted: "I am an heir. My father and mother

AN $11,000,000 TRANSACTION.

The passing of the Dunsmuir coal interests in British Columbia into the hands of a syndicate of capitalists, headed by William Mackenzie, president of the Canadian Northern Railway, is of more than ordinary importance to the people of that province, and is not without interest to Canadians generally. The deal, which involves a payment of $11,000,000, marks the beginning of a new era in the industrial development of the coast province.

For nearly three score years the same of Dunsmuir has been identified with the industrial life of that province. Sixty years ago the late Robert Dunsmuir, a native of Leith, Scotland, was sent out to the then colony by the Hudson Bay Company, to proscoveries of which had been made Columbia's greatest industry. A NOVEL ADDITION TO THE TELEPHONE.

[London Daily News.] By means of a clever invention called 'The Telewriter," it is possible now to vrite as well as speak your message over the same wire. This involves no interference with the telephone in ordinary use, written message is reproduced in facsimile at the other end.

The advantages are obvious. It will tance is no obstacle. The electric current will transmit the written message as far as it will convey the spoken word. A Daily News representative yesterday tested one of these machines. In the ofthe successful launching of a useful enterprise." In less than thirty seconds the facsimile of the message was brought from another part of the building.

The charm of the machine is that it is as simple in its working as the telephone the telephone you simply lift the receiver The message is written on the exposed surface of a reel of paper, and when the writing is complete the slip can late the electrical currents that are sent over the connecting wire.

It has this additional advantage over the telephone. When using the telephone there must be a person at the other end to hear the message. When using the telewriter the message remains on record at the other end, even if there be no one resent at the moment to receive it. The invention has passed beyond th stage of experiment, and is now in actual used by over 40 firms in London alone. It will come into more extended use on Friday next, when the Lord Mayor of Lonwill officially inaugurate the first telewriter exchange for the city at the offices in Walbrook. The offices of the l'elewriter Company are at 20 Bucklersbury, E. C.

LONDON'S TAXICABS DISPLACING HANSOMS

Cheat.

The increase in the number of London's axicabs has meant ruin to the hansom but a renewal of life to the four wheel The figures now stand: Taxicabs, four-wheelers, 3,066; hansoms, 2,648. Taxicabs are therefore nearly as numerous as hansoms and four-wheelers combined. The humble "growler" as London slang has nicknamed the four carrying capacity, outnumbered the "gondola of London.

How rapidly the number of taxicabs is January 1, 1904, there was but one, the following year there were two, and then the figures for succeeding years were 19, 96, 723, 2,805 and 5,070. In the same period horsed cabs showed a steady decline from 11,404 in 1904 to 5,714. Londoners have the best of New York-

THE MESSAGE

BY LOUIS TRACY. Author of

"The Wings of the Morning." "The Wheels of Fortune."

"You would better bring your men shore, run the launch as far bank as possible, and barricade yourself in the strongest building available." said. "The men of Oku are out. Three of their war canoes are stationed at the bend in the river and their occupants are armed with Mannlicher rifles. Escape that way is impossible. Your only chance is to hold this post as long as Allah permits. I shall try to pass the blockading canoes and reach Ibi, though I fear it will be too late.

Colville hardly knew at which he was most amazed, the commanding tone of this haggard son of the desert or the "Say, then, hadji," he cried, half ironically, "What plague has broken out in Oku that the whole line of the Benue should be threatened." "The chief plague is that of blind-ness among officers who fail to see the pits dug for them by crafty natives," was the stern answer. "I speak truly, young master. You have half an hour, at best an hour, in which to make preparations."

"But these war canoes you speak of—they are not at the bend; I have just come up stream. "Why did I not hear them?" "They drifted down quietly lest they should arouse the mission."
"And yet you came here? Why?"
"To warn the mission people. Hurry, I pray you, and waste no time in use-less talk."

"Oh, I say, Colville," broke in Fairofficer should permit an Arab to detain him, "can't Mr. Hume take me to Miss Dane? If she is as sick of this rotten river as I am she'll be jolly glad to see me."

"Certainly," said Colville. "I shall fol-"Certainly," said Colville. "I shall follow you soon. This chap seems to be able to explain matters, so I must remain here for a few minutes."

Hume, eager to get away, led Fairholme in the direction of the house. The young soldier felt a strong hand grasp his shoulder, and an English voice whiswhere the moonbeams gave some degree of light. The Arab had pushed back his burnous, revealing a worn, handsome face, tanned brown with exposure. Though the characteristic traits of his supposed race are the heavy lip, and the hawk-like nose, this man was straightnosed and thin-lipped. He was cadaverous enough, but no Arab.

Colville did more than gaze, he actually gaped at the other. There was no mistaking the cultured accent of an English gentleman, and yet—the thing could not be; he fancied he was bewitched. "My dear Jimmie, have I changed so much, then, since last we played snooker together in the club?"

"Well, I'm blessed!" muttered Colville, or to be candid, he used the subaltern's variant of the phrase.

"You seen will be if you don't do can or to be candid, he used the subaltern's variant of the phrase.

"You soon will be if you don't do as I tell you," came the emphatic assurance.

"But before I go, for I must give the people at Ibi a chance—though it is a thousand to one I shall be too late—who is the lady your friend inquired about?"

Colville wanted to say so much that he found but few words. He could only gasp: gasp:
"My dear Warden—didn't you hear?"

"My dear warden—didn't you near?"
"I heard her name, of course, but it cannot be a lady of the same name in whom I was once interested. Still, it is an odd thing it should be mentioned tonight, and in this this. Who is she?"
"Oh, d—n it all!" groaned Colville." "how could any poor devil guess he was in for this sort of stew when he started from Ibi yesterday!"

"I assure you we are wasting precious time, Jimmie. Perhaps it is my fault, but the question was a natural one under the question was a natural one under the circumstances. Tell your men it is all right, or they may want to prevent my departure; they understand those drums, you know. My only hope of suc-cess in case I am stopped at the bend is to keep up the pretence that I am a special envoy from the emirs in the in-terior. Some day, if we win through this business, I shall have a fine yarn

"But look here, old chap, I can't let you slip away like that. Confound it! I you slip away like that. Confound it! I don't know what to say, but the plain truth is best, perhaps. The girl you were engaged to, Miss Evelyn Dane, is inside the mission house now, this minute, and the man I brought from Ibi is the Earl of Fairholme. He told me all about you on the way up. He's a decent sort, and he is wild over Miss Dane. But it is only fair to add—"

A series of blood-curdling yells and a volley of musketry that lit the bush with spurts of flame put an abrupt end to Colville's qualifying sentence. He was so taken aback by the extraordinary coincidence that Warden should arrive at Kadana almost at the same instant as the dana almost at the same instant as the man who had come there with the avowed intent of taking Evelyn Dane home to England as his wife, that for one bemused second he failed to grasp the imminence or extent of the native onslaught. It was otherwise with Warden. Though his brain might well have reeled at the words he had just heard from a brother officer's lips, the incessant watchfulness words he had just heard from a brother officer's lips, the incessant watchfulness demanded by the life of the past five months had created in him a second nature. While his heart asked tumultuous questions and found no answer to any of them, his head dictated the steps that must be taken if they were to offer any sort of organized defence, "Company! Attention!" he shouted. "Four men remain with the launch keep. "Four men remain with the launch, keep steam up and shove off from the bank; all others follow to the mission. Double Beni Kalli, run the canoe ashore and come The loud command, proceeding appar ently from their leader, though not in their leader's voice, was promptly obeyed by the Hausas. They came running across the clearing, loading their rifles and fixing bayonets as they ran.

"Now, Colville, take hold!" said Warden coolly. "I'm afraid I startled you out of your wits, but they're your men, not holme, with two women in white dresses, had rushed out at the first sound of firing, and they were painfully distinct in the light that came from a large lamp the room at the back. "Shout to them to get inside, close the doors, and extinguish all lights," said Warden, keeping close to Colville during he combined rush to gain the obscurit afforded by the heavy beams that supported the upper story.

Colville obeyed. He was honestly glad that a stronger man had taken control. His knowledge of the country told him hat a most serious and far-spread re bellion was in progress. Riffer, not gaspipe guns, were in the hands of a tribe famed for its fighting qualities. He had dozen men, not counting the four in he launch, to meet the onset of as many housands. He did not fear death, for he had faced it many times, but it was one thing to thic on a definite campaign, no matter what the odds, and quite another to find himself plunged into a seemingly hopeless fight in a time of profound peace, and at the an exhausting journey undertaken to oblige a sporting British peer.

He had to bellow his instructions twice before the alarmed occupants of the mission house quitted the veranda. The sound of his own voice was helpful; it steadied him. It was in his natural tone that he growled to Warden.

"Fairholme admits that he is an ass, rather boasts of it, in fact, but I thought the world have more sense then to let. Hume would have more sense than to let the women stand there offering a clear the women stand there offering a clear target."

"They are safe enough yet," was the reply. "Their rooms face the river; the attack is coming from the bush."

"Wouldn't it be better to take to the river at once?"

"No, that means certain death. There are three canoes, and each has a Nordenfeldt mounted in its bows." denfeld mounted in its bows."

"Good Lord man a Nordenfeldt!"

"Yes, and M'Wanga has a dozen hat they will ever be of much use him. I took care of that. But I failed utterly to get on board the canoes. They ere moored in mid-stream, guarded day and night, and the guns were sheeted. Moreover, I have been out of gear nearly six weeks. This is a big business, Colville. How is it no one knew of what was going on?" There were rumors, but they died "Did they send Forbes in my place?"

"That explains it. He is a capital fellow in an office. To ask him to unravel an Oku plot was to set a bat catching sparrows by daylight.

They had plenty of time to discuss matters thus coolly. No West African fighting man would demean himself by delivering an assault on an enemy's position with-out a preliminary hubbub of yells and out a preliminary hubbub of yells and wild shooting. It is different when he wild shooting. It is different when he is the defender. Then he will lie close as a partridge till the precise moment that his usually antiquated guns can most effectually belch forth a destroying blast of nails, iron scraps, pebbles and broken glass and pottery.

But the seconds passed, and the minutes, and no horde of demoniac figures poured across the open compound. The shooting was incessant, yet no bullet struck the house, though not even an indifferent native marksmen could wel avoid hitting a big building in which all the living rooms were on the same flo as the verandah. The lower part of the structure served as a store. The Hausa soldier-policemen, picked men of the West African Regiment, were trained not to fire without orders. They were far too few in number to line the stockade, which inclosed a space fully two acres in extent. In any case, the defence it afforded was worse than useless. The gates were jammed open by a year's growth of herbage. In some instances a passage had been read to the stances, a passage had been made by the simple expedient of removing a whole sec-tion. It would demand many hours of

DE LESSEPS MAY FLY MONTREAL TO TORONTO

Montreal, July 4. - Count de Lesseps, the famous French aviator, has stated that if the big Bleriot in which he crossed the English Channel, arrives in good shape, he will consider undertaking a flight from here to Toronto.

Though the count has done some wonderful flying during the present meet, he has been handicapped by his machine. He has only his small one here, which he says is but a toy. The distance from Montreal to Toronto is about 333 miles.

The aviator's route will be through the St. Lawrence valley and along the north shore of Lake Ontario. If he covers the distance without alighting he will break all non-stop records.

Reno, July 4 .-- When the sun that today lifted its rays above the sage brush hills inclosing this ordinarily peaceful valley sets over the Sierras, there will have passed into comparative oblivion for the Tigers, making the final score 4 one of two mighty men, James J. The main struggle this morning was to get something to eat before going to The restaurants last night almost gave up the attempt to feed the hungry multitude. Many places were sold out of every scrap of eatables before morning. The doors of the main restaurants were guarded by husky waiters, who let a few hungry patrons sift in at on Jeffries later.

Once inside it was a waiter who told the guests what they could get to eat.

He had heard the hiss of race feeling in the shouting and yells at countess ring sides. He knew that if a black man held the coveted title of the arena the day must come when the white champion would be forced out of his retreat and do battle for his relinguished honors, driven into the ring by popular clamor. And today Jeffries and Johnson face each other in what virtually is a fight to a finish. For Johnson, it is the fruition of his years of hoping and planning and fighting. For Jeffries it is —what? He has yielded to the pressure of public opinion. He has reentered the ring after five years of easy, comfortable living, years when age was etching its wrinkled device upon his forehead, when his mighty muscles grew soft and flabby from disuse, and when, the rigors and self-denial of training forgot, he cared nothing for the growth of his waist line. Blues Hit Big George Hard- Jeffries Does Not Want Any of Negro's Friends Around Him

Former Leads Middleweight Champ to Porch and Pushes Him Along.

Reno, July 3.-Jeff does not want anyone around his camp who has been on friendly terms with Johnson, since he came to Reno. This was shown this afternoon, when he had Stanley Ketchel. middleweight champion, put out of the training quarters and off the grounds.

Jeffries was engaged in a game of cards with some of his staff, on the lawn, when Ketchel, who had motored out from town, came strolling up. He stood behind Jeffries for a moment before the big fellow became aware of his presence. When he finally saw him, Jeffries calmly turned around and said:

furned around and said:
"I don't want you here. You have been fooling around with that negro, and I don't think you belong here at all."

Ketchel smiled, but did not move. Jeffries continued playing for a few seconds, then, turning to Farmer Burns, Jerked his head in the direction of Kotoba and his head in the direction of Ketchel and Burns got up, took Ketchel by the shoulder, and turned him toward the cottage. Walking with the middle-cottage. Walking as far as the porch, Parker. cottage. Walking with the middle-weight champion as far as the porch, Burns gave him a mild push toward the steps and Ketchel quietly walked out at the gate and took his car to town.

It is appalling to think of the number of words that will be written about this fight before another sunrise. Not only every move, but almost every thought of the men in the ring will be chronicled. In the cold figures of the telegraph companies' estimates, 750,000 words of press matter will go out over the wires if Johnwins. If Jeffries wins it will much less.

They estimate about 200,000 words. A force of 100 telegraph operators has been gathered in this little desert city. They have been brought from as far east as Chicago. A carload of modern equipset up. Tourist sleepers were packed for the accommodation of the men. The wire official said that outside of the San Francisco disaster of 1906 no greater volume of matter has been handled for single event in the history

And yet the half has not been told. There are incidents that go to make up the real life of a gathering of this sort that no eye can see and no pen can tell. SOME OF HIS HISTORY.

On the eve of the biggest fight of his life, Johnson sat with a party of friends yesterday afternon and talked jokingly of his career. "Tonight I am thinking of his career. MYSTERY OF LIFE

Discovery of French Chemists May Help to Solve It.

Paris, July 4.-A discovery which opens up a vast field to modern chemical research and may lead to the solution of the mystery of life, has just been announced Paris Academy of Science. Put briefly and shorn of much highly technical detail, it is that Drs. Daniel Berthelot and Gaudechon have succeeded with the aid of ultra-violet rays generated by a mercury lamp in artificially reproducing the synthetic process performed by chlorothe assimilation of carbon into higher

STANDARD LOAF

It Is Said Thers Will Be No Increase in Cost to Londoners.

THE SITUATION TO DATE

Provisions of the Bill-Penalties Laid Down by Law-Committee Will Pass Bylaw Tonight.

It looks as though the local bakers are prepared to accept the provisions of the bread bill and furnish a standard 11/2-pound loaf for five cents. Many of them have secured the new sized and the application is for administrapans, and are turning out the standard loaves.

As far as the city is concerned nothing in the way of official inspection no other made. will be attempted until after tonight's meeting of the council, when the bylaw which has to be amended to meet the requirements of the new bill will be passed and Inspector McCallum will be named official inspector for the bread.

"I have not looked into the matter at all yet," Mr. McCallum told The Advertiser this afternoon. "I do not know what the bakers are doing. If I apportionment of insurance moneys am appointed bread inspector tonight

18 New Act. The new act provides "that no person shall make bread for sale or offer for sale bread except in loaves weighing 24 or 48 ounces avoirdupois," while "small bread" may be sold in any weight not exceedinig 12 ounces. A penalty of $5 is provided for violation of this enactment, and a penalty of $10 for refusal to admit or interference with any inspector of bread who may be appointed by the munici-

Under the old act bread could be manufactured in 11-2 and 3-pound loaves and fancy bread in loaves of 16 and 20 ounces.

According to the local bakers there will be no increase in price, although, of course, the loaves will, in some cases, be smaller than they have been. Previously, the majority of the bakers sold their bread in 20-ounce loaves at 5 cents, and it is on this plain bread that the consumer will receive benefit. The new law requires that this be either 24 or 48 ounces, and already the bakers have increased it to 24, but have not raised the price. The Interpretation.

In this respect the law has but one interpretation, the bread must be either 24 or 48 ounces, and the bakers say that the latter will not be made unless for a special demand or order. 4.6 In the case of the "small" bread, this is 7.1 where the baker receives the benefit. Under the old law this was made 0.0 usually in 16-ounce loaves, but the 7.0 new law requires that it be made any 31.3 weight under 12 ounces. The law does 19.3 not specify whether the loaves have to be made single or double, and it is on this point that the local bakers are at sea. If it is not a violation of the law sea. ALL ARE WELL PLEASED Dispatch Says the Citizen Soldiers Conducted Themselves in a Most Beeoming Manner.

The Seventh Regiment returned last night at 10:30 from Sarnia, where they have been encamped since Thursday. The soldier boys returned in fine fettle but one man, Pte. Lohman, being left behind. He is in Sarnia General Hospital suffering from an attack of acute indigestion. He was taken ill Friday, and was ordered to the hospital. His condition is not considered serious. All Well Pleased. The regiment marched to the ar- FOLLOWS A LYNCHING mories where they were dismissed. All were well pleased with the outing. The weather was excessively hot, and the troops suffered somewhat from that, but on the whole it was most pleasant "We enjoyed the outing very much," said Col. Campbell. "It was a very pleasant, and I think, profitable time. It was extremely hot on Friday and Saturday, but that is all in a day's enjoyed ourselves, and I think the men Robert Coleman and Sam Fields were had a good time. Huron Park. From the time of their arrival in Sarnia until their departure the "boys" gaged in a sham battle under the commands of Major McCrimmon and Col. Campbell, and for a short time the fields in the region of the park assumed the air of a real battlefield, but when down. the smoke had died away there were no fatalities to record, and the men were dismissed for the day. Guests Entertained.

cers of the Seventh Regiment gave a delightful tea in honor of their guests delightful tea in honor of their guests the leading feature of the camp, "a ropes over a limb. The Cortese c chestra, other body of men rushed from the which arrived at the hotel Saturday ail dragging and pulling the other ball dragging and pulling the ball dragging and pulling the ball dragging and pulling the ball draggi the satisfaction of all.

On Sunday morning the soldiers (who happened to get a chance to sleep), arose early and enjoyed a plunge in the lake, and after partaking of a hearty breakfast, lined up on the camp ground for church services, an eloquent discourse being delivered by the chaplain of the regiment.

The remainder of the day was spent in breaking up camp and preparing for the return journey, which was commenced at 6:30, and by 7 o'clock nothing remained of the camp but the ashes from the camp fires.

On behalf of the regimental band it can be truthfully said their many band negro told the captors he "Guessed the passengers and quieted them. Some things appreciated by after all he could not find the spot." No help was asked for by the all, and should the Seventh Regiment decide to again hold their annual outing at Sarnia, they will receive a loyal and hearty welcome from the citizens of the town. NEW BANK MERGER

Arrangements for Amalgamation of Union With Royal Reported Made. Montreal, July 4. - It is stated that the deal by which the Royal Bank of Canada absorbs the Union Bank of Halifax, with its $15,000,000 of assets, has been consummated so far as the directors of the two institutions are concerned, and that the final closing of the arrangement now depends upon the vote of the shareholders of the Union Bank. In all probability, a special meeting of the shareholders of the Union Bank will be called for this With July Comes End of Mournpurpose, as the annual meeting of the bank does not come until February next. It is expected that when the union is consummated a number of branches of the Union Bank will be closed where the Royal Bank already has offices.
