PAPER MILLS MUST REFUND LARGE SUMS TO THE NEWSPAPERS

Paper Control Tribunal Reduces Newsprint From $69 to $66 a Ton.

OTTAWA, Aug. 27.—A judgment which means that the paper mills of Canada must refund about $30,000 to the newspapers of the Dominion on bills for newsprint sold between July 1 and November 30, 1918, has been rendered by the paper control tribunal. This is the final pronouncement of the long-drawn-out newsprint inquiry, so far as the period in question is concerned, but later periods up to the end of the war have yet to be dealt with.

The judgment reduces the price of newsprint in rolls from $69 a ton to $66. The price of $69 was that fixed by Paper Controller R. A. Pringle, and both the manufacturers and publishers appealed to the paper control tribunal against it. The manufacturers attempted to have that body impose a price of $80 a ton upon the newspapers. If they had been successful in this demand the Canadian publishers would have had to pay at the rate of a million and a quarter dollars a year more than they are now directed to pay by the tribunal's judgment, or over half a million dollars more for the five months covered by the judgment.

The tribunal also finds that the Port Francis mills, which were given a special price of $73 by Mr. Pringle, were entitled to no more than the $66 a ton which is now fixed for the other manufacturers, and Port Francis must refund the difference of $7 a ton for the period in question.

Even the $66 a ton price which is fixed for all mills by the present judgment is an increase of nearly 90 per cent above the price of $35 a ton which was charged up to the end of 1916.

RUSSIAN REDS ARE SEEKING AID OF CHINESE PEOPLE

Bolsheviks Send Manifesto to Chinese, Outlining Objects and Benefits of Soviets.

LONDON, Aug. 27.—(By the Associated Press).—The Russian Soviet government is making a bid for the support of the Chinese, to whom a manifesto has been sent.

The manifesto is quoted in a Bolshevik wireless message received here today as follows: "The people's commissars address fraternal words to all the peoples of China on the day when the soviet troops, having crushed the revolutionary despot, Kolchak, victoriously entered Siberia."

"Soviet Russia's army, after two years of struggle, and incredible strain, is marching onward to the east across the Ural. Not in order to enforce its will on other nations, not to enslave them nor to conquer them—we are bringing freedom to the people, liberating them from foreign bayonets and from the yoke of foreign gold, which is throttling the enslaved peoples of the entire, particularly the greater Chinese nation."

"We are bringing help not only to our own working masses, but to the Chinese."

FORESTERS GREET VISITING MEMBERS

Temple Building, Bay and Richmond, Toronto, Placed at Incoming's Disposal.

While the outstanding characteristic of Independent Forestry has always been Fraternity combined with Life Insurance on a solid basis at cost to its members, the organization's thoughtfulness for its membership upon every occasion has marked its career from its inception. Mr. George A. Mitchell Assistant Supreme Chief Ranger, the enthusiastic superintendent of the organizing department, has with his usual enterprise made provision for the members who will visit Canada's National Exposition.

Mr. Mitchell has arranged to place the handsome offices in the Temple Building, at the corner of Bay and Richmond streets, of the organization department over which he so ably presides, at the disposal of visiting companies and brethren. Here they will find every facility and convenience that will add to the pleasure of their visit to Toronto, and at the same time receive a souvenir, besides being provided with attractive literature. Reading desks, writing desks and materials are provided, thus assisting members to keep in touch with the home circle even when absent.

This accommodation no doubt will be fully appreciated, as it can be made the meeting place for the members and their friends.

In past years the order has had a tent in Society Row at the Exhibition grounds, but this new arrangement will not only take the place of that, but is located in the heart of the city, in the home of Independent Forestry, the Temple Building, from which radiate all the principal car lines, and is in close proximity to the business and entertainment sections of the city.

Very interesting facts were gleaned of the progress of Independent Forestry, as has since organization paid out in sick and funeral benefits, $1,500,000. Its assets at December 31, 1918, were $4,767,709, with a membership today of over 175,000, and without any extra premium charge it paid all death claims resulting from the great war and is now heartily interested in assisting returned members who may get back to the equilibrium of former years as speedily as possible.

Mr. Mitchell, assisted by an able staff, will be on hand ready to extend cordial welcome to all who may accept of the Order's hospitality during Canada's Great National Exposition, and as the superintendent tersely put it, at all other times.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

VETERANS' GRATUITIES.

To the Editor of The Advertiser:
As a constant reader of your great daily paper, I would like to call your attention to the keen interest manifested by the G. W. V. A. of Canada on all matters relating to gratuity money and pensions, which at the present time is absorbing public interest in matters military. All honor and praise to our veterans and heroes whom providence has mercifully restored to their loved ones and to again gaze upon the scenes of their childhood, the land of their birth, covered with martial glory and wounds of battle, thousands maimed and blind for life, whose heroic deeds, from Monaca to Camail will ring down the centuries of time, the guide and the admiration of future posterity.

Therefore, in awarding our veterans pensions and gratuity it's up to a generous public, a real live government to give our heroes imperial measure. But as true and loyal Canadians, let us be consistent, meditate on a moment. Great heavens, have we so far forgotten our heroic blood-stained fields in Flanders, equality, liberty and justice, that millions yet unborn might enjoy true liberty?

Is there to be no consideration for an aged father and mother whose only son, the strong rod they hoped to lean on in the evening of life, has fallen in the fray. Thousands of such cases may be cited.

Are our soldier dead forgotten, or is it only a graveyard cross from Ipres to Vimy, or is it to be only a miniature silver cross for a loyal and heroic Canadian mother, who, like Spartans, gave cheerfully her only boy to march forth to foreign lands to help maintain Albion's flag?

Let us arise as Canadians from this state of lethargy and be equal to the occasion. Our heroes are silent. "They" that fall in its duty to pay homage to our immortal dead, who made the supreme sacrifice that Canada, as a result, has taken her place and station among the great nations of the military, whose sons have proven to think Canada the land of the future, a military unit of the Empire has few equals and no superiors on the field of war. Yours very truly,

JOHN POWERS,
187 Market Street, Brantford.

THE LAW OF GOD.

To the Editor of The Advertiser:

It is a law of God from the creation of the world obligatory upon man that he practice fellowship and love, equality and friendship with his neighbor. If man is willing to learn and obey that law it works toward his true happiness, but if he refuses to obey or observe the requirements of the law, the consequent result of ruin and disaster is as inescapable as in the case of gravity or electricity. All Scripture was given to induce and persuade man to practice that law; therefore, all the laws and the prophets are summed up in that law, and every man on earth is drawn or has an impulse to practice it.

The great fundamental essential of religion is that man hold in the highest esteem God's character and name, and practice it with his fellows. The gospel is the fact that every willing man shall be enabled to observe and keep that law by the spirit of Christ, and this is eternal life.

The religion of the future must stand squarely upon the actual practice in every-day life of that law. There is no other way under heaven given among men whereby they may be saved but by being willing to practice that law. That law cannot be ignored. One jot or one tittle shall in no wise pass from the law, but it must be practice, and eternal life and salvation is in the practice of it.

A JUST PROTEST.

To the Editor of The Advertiser:
I was highly amused at the short report tucked away in an inconspicuous spot of your issue today: "Fred McKittrick, described after a thorough mental examination as being mentally incompetent to earn a living, was discharged from the police court Saturday morning and told to get work on a farm." The inference seems to be that a "mentally deficient" would be in the right environment on a farm.

The report ends with: "He is suffering from financial disability, he has paralyzed himself by his right leg, as the result of injury to the spine. He is nervous and restless and mentally weak."

Let's Cheer for Sir Arthur

London should not pass up the opportunity to tender its heartiest reception to Sir Arthur Currie when he comes here on September 8. The commander of the Canadian division in its victorious march to Mons is a native of Middlesex, and this old county will be honored by his visit. To fail to show appreciation of his great service to country and empire would be an oversight which any city of live people would not permit.

This is the headquarters of Military District No. 1, which sent some 50,000 men overseas. Although the time is limited arrangements undoubtedly could be made to assemble many of the returned veterans to assist in the welcome to their chief. It might even be possible to enlist the assistance of civic officials and boards of trade of the district to make it a real Western Ontario celebration.

London's leaders, civic and otherwise, should get together at once and take steps to make the town ring with a hearty welcome.

Profiting and Profiteering

At last has come forth a champion of the profiteer. Not since the occasion when the Canadian manufacturer announced that he was not running his mill for the glory of God has anyone had the temerity to come to his rescue, but here is a correspondent in Markstay, Ont., who is convinced that the profiteers are getting all the worst of it. He rises to protest in this fashion:

"I am sorry to see so much of the newspapers of all classes taken up by printing what is called 'profiteering.' Hasn't it been made ever since the country started? I don't think profit in war time is any greater crime than in peace time. The merchant or farmer who had a stock of goods or cattle could not help making profit, and the businessman who stored up could not. What does a farmer go into farming, or a businessman go into business for? It's not for the good of his health or the benefit of others; it's for legal business and profit. Does the speculator watch the markets of the world and the futures for fun, or to let someone get hold of his money? Show me the sensible man who is not after profit. The man that cries down profit is a fanatic, and better go to the poorhouse at once, for if he doesn't profit by his doings he will soon be there. I think the kickers are people that had not brains to see far enough ahead to make a few cents profit on anything."

"Professor Zavitz told the farmers four years ago that hogs would be one hundred dollars apiece, yet they have failed to raise them, and the cry now is 'How dear they are!'"

"Who be to brainless people and non-producers?"

Of course, it is just possible this correspondent is not referring to profiteers in the common meaning of the word, and it is possible that many readers are not clear on the same point. There is a difference between profiting and profiteering. The latter refers to abnormal profits gained through combines or by taking advantage of the country's perilous condition such as exists in time of war. Therefore, profiting in war time is at least morally worse than in peace time. The farmers who took advantage of the advice of Prof. Zavitz cannot be said to have profiteered, because the price, so far as they are concerned, was determined by the law of supply and demand, but if they had taken advantage of the scarcity of pork to corner the hog market they would be profiteering.

There are people, indeed, who claim that all profit is illegitimate. But they are the extremists who would go back to the conditions of the aborigines, whose chief object in life was to get an occasional meal.

Canada has plenty of room for the honest business man who seeks to gain a legitimate profit by legitimate methods, but the man who takes advantage of the helpless, who plunders because the law allows him, who creates an artificial scarcity of an article in order to increase the price, even through the means of a high tariff wall, is a menace to the general prosperity of the country and should not be tolerated. All people cannot be equally prosperous so long as brains vary in quality, but in a new and rich country like Canada laws can be established which will eliminate both plutocracy and poverty—this is what the newspapers ask when they cry "Down with the profiteer!"

The Referendum Puzzle

Premier Hearst having announced that the vote on the repeal of the Ontario temperance act will take place sometime between the 1st and 22nd of October, it is the important duty of every citizen who is qualified to cast a ballot on the issue to see that his or her name is on the voters' list, and to grasp clearly the exact meaning of the referendum ballot card. The form in which the prohibition issue will be placed before the electors is not one that is readily understood. To confess to this is by no means a reflection on one's intelligence. There is an exasperating ambiguity about the ballot that is puzzling thousands. Probably by this time all those who intend to vote have definitely decided in their own minds what they desire, but large numbers will have to apply themselves intensively to a study of the ballot form in order that this desire may be given accurate and legal expression at the poll.

The four questions which the ballot will contain are as follows:

1. Are you in favor of the repeal of the Ontario temperance act?
2. Are you in favor of the sale of light beer containing not more than two and fifty-one one-hundredths per cent alcohol weight measure, through Government agencies, and amendments to the Ontario temperance act, to permit such sale?

3. Are you in favor of the sale of light beer containing not more than two and fifty-one one-hundredths per cent alcohol weight measure, in standard hotels in local municipalities that by a majority vote favor such sale, and amendments to the Ontario temperance act to permit such sale?

4. Are you in favor of the sale of spirituous and malt liquors through Government agencies, and amendments to the Ontario temperance act to permit such sale?

These are the four questions which every voter must answer, but if the first question is answered in the affirmative then the whole Ontario temperance act is repealed and the remaining questions are included in the answer to the first. On the other hand, if "No" is placed opposite the first question, and has a majority, the result will depend on the answers to the other three. Should the majority vote "Yes" on question 2 it will provide for (1) the sale of light beer; (2) Government ownership. If a majority vote "Yes" on question 3, licenses may be issued by the board of license commissioners, authorizing the sale of light beer in standard hotels in any municipality wherein a majority of the voters shall have voted "Yes" to this question, and only in such municipalities. If a majority vote "Yes" on question 4, liquor of all kinds will be sold, by sales agencies established by the board of license commissioners, for consumption in homes only.

The above explanation, made by Sir William Hearst, framer of the referendum ballot, makes it clear that those who would have the Ontario temperance act remain as at present must vote "No" to all four questions. If the majority vote "Yes" to the first question it should be understood that the conditions prior to the passing of the act automatically return, except in such municipalities as are under local option bylaws.

Another vital point rests in the answer to Question 3, for if there is a majority in the affirmative it reopens the liquor question in every municipality in Ontario. A locality which has gone dry by a three-fifths majority may revive the sale of beer by a simple majority in the referendum vote. The rule works both ways, as a municipality formerly under license may also vote itself dry by a majority. The issue may be again voted upon in any municipality after December 31, 1921, under the local option laws which would be revived for the purpose.

Honoring the Jackies

One of the most pleasing incidents in connection with the visit of Prince Edward is the warmth of the reception given the sailors of the escort fleet as they are being taken at Canada's expense for a short tour of Ontario and Quebec. While the trip is proving a most enjoyable outing for the sailors, it is also giving Canadians an opportunity to pay tribute to the men of the British navy for magnificent war service on the seven seas. These splendid fellows are not merely parade-sailors. With few exceptions they played an active part in the war, by their eternal vigilance, skill and matchless courage holding the enemy in a strangle grip that more than any other single agency of the Allies brought the enemy to his knees. We cannot too greatly honor these sailors of Albion's fighting fleets. Had they gone down before the Hun, not even equal to the stupendous task of keeping him off the seas, Canada would have suffered appalling hurt and humiliation. Montreal, Quebec, Toronto and Ottawa are the only cities possible to be visited in the brief holiday, but the heartiness of the welcome which they are displaying reflects the sentiment of the country from coast to coast.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Are you sure your name is on the voters' list?

The Prince of Wales is having a leviathan of a time.

Kiev is reported captured again, and if war in Russia continues much longer that city will surpass Lemberg's record for changing hands.

At Cleveland a lightning flash knocked an American League pitcher out of the box, but that's one defeat that won't get into the averages.

The Prince of Wales' name has been mentioned matrimonially with those of several European princesses, but what does he think of Canada's "queens"?

As Torontonians in the future sit around the grocery sugar barrel and puff their cornbobs they will begin their reminiscences in this fashion: "When the prince was in our midst."

There is at least one advantage in being a prince. His royal highness danced with five young ladies at the government house ball and he doesn't have to care a flip how the others feel about it.

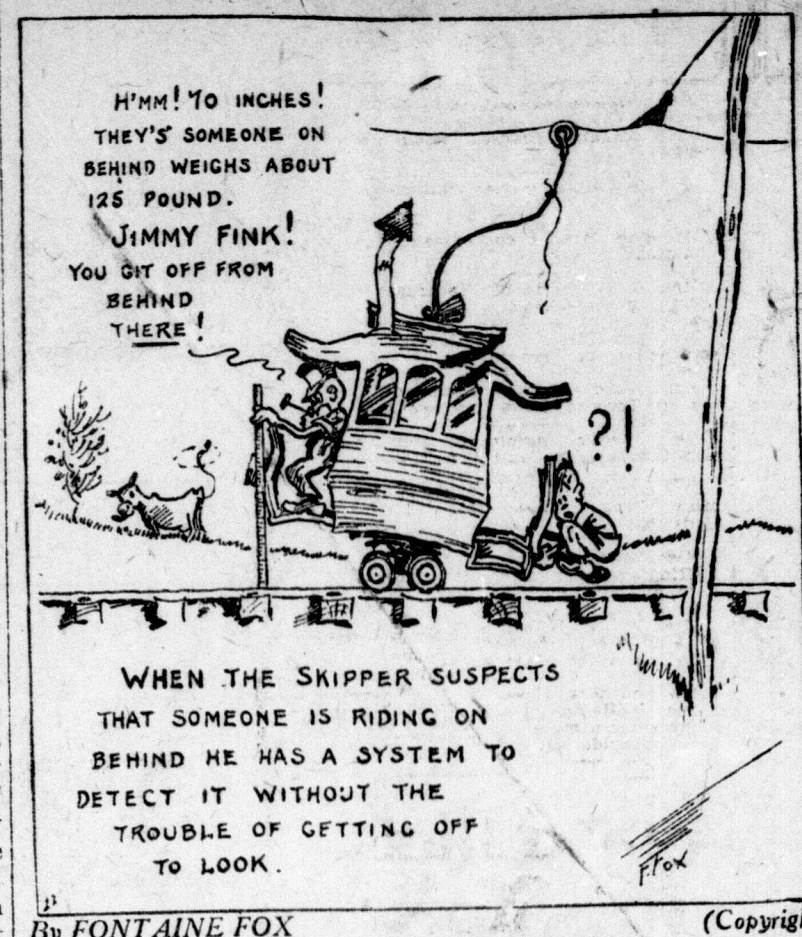

The National Shoe Retailers' Association of the United States has given notice that shoes this winter will cost from eight to twelve dollars a pair—which, plus the duty, will probably be about the price in Canada.

The Hamilton Times pertinently inquires why Sir Adam Beck asks $2,500,000 from the Dominion Government as reimbursement for extra expense incurred in providing hydro power for war orders, instead of including this in the charge for current when it was sold.

There will be no envy expressed in Western Ontario because Calgary claims to have a Garden of Eden nearby. The publicity agents call it a wonderful irrigated area. Assuming this is true will not detract from Canada's real and original Garden of Eden in this peninsula.

Some people are always looking for a chance to "start something." No sooner has the United States Congress declared daylight saving a thing of the past than a nationwide campaign is organized to resurrect it in 1920, and a race is under way to see which city will be the first to adopt it. Incidentally, it may be pointed out that Brantford, Canada, will discard daylight saving at the end of this week.

The Advertiser's Daily Short Story

TURKEY RED

By Don Mollan.

The new doctor and his young bride excited much interest in the small town of Carrington. After a week's inspection, the consensus of opinion, even among the women, was favorable toward Mrs. Loring. "She's quite pretty," said Mrs. Pettigrew, describing one of the new arrivals to her next door neighbor. "She has wavy black hair and black eyes; the type that can wear red, you know."

The minister's wife gave a luncheon. Loretta Loring was very charming in a pale yellow gown. Her manner was naturally bright and vivacious, but when the little group had filed into the dining-room, which was decorated with red carnations, she became quiet and ill at ease. The talk turned on childhood days. The hostess, with the good intention of bringing the conversation into the conversation, asked "Were you city or country bred, Mrs. Loring?"

Against her will the color flooded Loretta's cheeks as she replied: "Scarcely either, Mr. A. Jackson. My childhood days were spent in an orphan asylum. There were murmurs of sympathy; then the subject was changed, and Mrs. Loring's subsequent demeanor was attributed by the hostess and guests to the unfortunate question."

No one dreamed that the young doctor's wife had told a direct lie in that reply, or that the color of the cheeks was the real cause of her changed manner.

Dr. Loring had noticed this strange antipathy before. There had been the time when Loretta had begged him never to wear a red necktie if he loved her; and the incident of a set of O. Henry, bound in red morocco. Therefore, though he was somewhat astonished on returning home that afternoon, to find his wife in tears, the doctor was not surprised when she told him the reason. Learning that she was puzzled, he said: "That horror of red is strange. Did you ever try to overcome it, dear?" As there was no reply he continued: "Did it ever occur to you that it might be a birthmark?"

Mrs. Loring set up. "Why, I never thought of that," she said, eagerly. "It sounds plausible, doesn't it? When I can't help showing it people would believe—she stopped abruptly and shot a quick glance at her husband."

"Dear," the latter answered, "there are times when I think you know the real reason for that strange dislike and are keeping it from me." Loretta tried to look him straight in the eye, but somehow failed. However, she shook her head. "Why, of course not, Hal. My past is an open book to you. Just as yours is to me."

The doctor seemed about to make some reply, but he closed his lips at that moment, then changed the subject.

The Lorings were apparently very happy in their new home. As time went on the doctor built up a lucrative practice in Carrington. Loretta made many friends. But it came to be generally understood among them that the subject of her past life was one to be avoided.

As the minister's wife expressed it, "The poor girl seems so sensitive on the subject. Probably she led an unhappy life in that asylum, and the thought of it upsets her."

But Dr. Loring was worried about his wife. He had faith in her love and tried to believe her repeated assurances that she was happy. But there were times when Loretta thought herself unobserved.

Then her expression changed; it became strange, almost desperate. There were nights when she couldn't sleep, or had horrible dreams. During the influenza epidemic Mrs. Loring was one of the numerous victims. The doctor, coming in one evening after an unusually hard day, offered to relieve the nurse for a while. As he sat down by the bedside Loretta said, with a trace of hysteria in her voice, "Hal, I've been thinking. Suppose I don't get well. Suppose—"

"Nonsense," said her husband; "you must put those morbid ideas right out of your head. You're coming along all right." The patient looked at him strangely. "But if I do," she persisted, "I should go with this awful lie on my conscience—I must tell you."

Stroking his wife's head, Dr. Loring bade her not to talk then. "Tell me some other time," he said. "Here, dear, take this," and he gave her a sedative tablet and a little water. But Loretta was not to be quieted thus. "I know I will have to give up your love if I tell you why I hate red so." Her face flushed, her eyes wide.

She pushed aside the restraining hand on her shoulder. "Hal," she said, "I lied to you the first time we met. I never saw the inside of an orphan asylum—and I know all about my parents. They drank themselves to death soon after I was sent to the reform school for theft. I was kept there four years, and once I tried to escape. They found me and took me back—and made me wear a red dress on me as a badge of disgrace, and made me wear it for months. The very sight of the color brings it all back to me. My mother's voice died away in a weak sob."

She was exhausted and lay with her eyes closed so she did not see the expression of her husband's face as he asked, gently, "Why did you steal, Loretta?"

She replied: "Because my mother beat me. She wanted something to pawn for drink."

Dr. Loring gazed into space thoughtfully. Then he spoke: "You were better than I Loretta. I stole because I was too feeble-minded to work." His wife regarded him wide-eyed and looked at SUEZ CANAL WAR DANGERS.

[Philadelphia Record.] The Suez Canal has been blocked by the blowing-up of an Italian cruiser. This, of course, was pure accident. But the ease with which a vessel under a neutral flag could have been sunk in the canal explains the extraordinary precautions taken by the British during the war. Mrs. Egan, in "The War in the Cradle of the World," tells the story, given by a British naval officer, of a mine dropped by a neutral vessel.

SLEEPLESS NIGHTS OVERCOME BY SAFE METHOD

Suggestions Given Whereby Insomnia Can Be Safely and Quickly Cured.

Worry, overwork, overstudy and indigestion cause insomnia. Healthy, natural sleep can't be produced by drugs.

First, the blood circulation must be improved.

Congestion of blood in the head must be removed.

Irritation in the brain must be relieved.

It's because Ferrozene equalizes circulation, because it soothes the irritation, because it removes congestion that it does cure insomnia.

For building blood and nerve, for instilling force and life in overworked organs, for establishing strength and vitality, where can you find anything so efficient as Ferrozene? Remember, sleep is just as important as food.

You must sleep, or break down, but if you'll use Ferrozene and thereby remove the conditions which now keep you from sleep, you'll get well quickly.

Ferozzone is not a narcotic, not a dope; it is a health-giving tonic that any child or delicate woman can use. Absolutely safe is Ferrozzone.

Take it for a month, take it for a year—no harm, but immeasurable good will result.

To sleep well, look well, feel well, to be free from depression, nervousness or blues—use Ferrozzone. It's a food tonic, a healer to the weak and wretched, a boon to the sleepless—sold in 50c boxes, six for $2.50, at all dealers, or direct from The Catarothozine Company, Kingston, Ont.

in the path of a troop ship. The act was seen from the troopship and nothing happened—except to the master of the neutral vessel.

WHAT THE RAILROADS NEED.

[New York Sun.] What the railroads need today is what every other worker and consumer needs—not more people climbing to an unseemable pitch-off, but a sane, balanced journey back to a stable landing place, where a dollar of honest service or of honest exchange will be worth an honest dollar that will be worth one hundred honest cents in buying power.

SHOULD NOT "BUTT IN."

[New York Herald.] Why the American delegates at the peace conference should intervene in a settlement of territory in which the United States has no concern, should oppose their views to the unanimous judgment of all the Allies and should advocate what amounts to aiding a co-partner of the Germans in the war is a mystery. But it is not too late to remedy the injustice contemplated in their proposal to award Thrace to the Bulgarians.

PRODUCE!

A work day so long as to cause excessive physical and mental fatigue undoubtedly reduces produce, because workers can always hold a faster pace and show greater efficiency if they are allowed to rest. But any theory that reduction of profit itself benefits labor is entirely false, and when acted upon can only involve labor in disaster. Selfish agitation is ruinous both to the individual character and to the people collectively.

BRINGING MEXICO TO TIME.

[New York Times.] Armed intervention is an alternative that can wait a while. There are other means of bringing the Mexicans to their senses, and they should be tried. There is the punitive expedition for outrages committed upon Americans. If President Carranza cannot suppress brigandage on the border, if he cannot protect our people in the Tampico region, it can be done in thorough fashion by American soldiers and marines. A few such lessons, and there would be order on the Mexican side of the border and peace along the coast—at no great cost, too.

GYPSIES USE AUTOMOBILES.

[Indianapolis News.] The old-fashioned gypsy who used to travel in a covered wagon with several horses and mules hitched on behind is being succeeded by those who travel in the legitimate modern way, that is, by automobile. Three car loads came through here (Scottsburg) recently, with a number of dark-skinned, bejeweled women clad in brilliant gowns and wearing the flowing veils of their grandmother's day.

While the cars stopped at the garage (even the automobile of a free-roving gypsy is subject to broken springs and a thirst for gasoline), the women swarmed to the houses and stores to read palms and tell fortunes. The women were dressed as is customary for women of their race, and they gained a livelihood in the same old way.

How You May Banish Tan and Freckles the Beauty Way

By Lucretia Bori, the Famous Spanish Prima Donna.

The old story of "paying the piper" is certainly true of summer fun. The call of the big outdoors brings joyous health and a definite beauty. Even tan and freckles are attractive in midsummer when every girl wants to look as though she had her "place in the sun." But with the approach of the fall and the call of the city, comes the time to "pay the piper." The more formal clothing and indoor surroundings accentuate the less attractive side of tan and freckles and makes every woman want to possess a white unblemished skin once more.

Summer freckles are more easily removed if they're gone early, because when allowed to remain on your skin they become strongly entrenched and are more difficult to banish.

Besides applying bleaching lotions you should remember that massage is a valuable agent in eradicating freckles. Everything that promotes the activity of your skin tends to remove its blemishes. The application of a good lanolin cream should be part of your daily massage. An excellent cream with lanolin base is made of these ingredients:

Lanolin 1 ounce
Sweet almond oil 2 ounces
Boric acid 40 drops
Tincture of Benzoin 10 drops

Blend the oils and then add the boric acid. Lastly pour in the tincture of benzoin.

Massage with this cream will add your blood in circulation through the skin and muscles of your face and prepare them for the reception of a freckle lotion. One freckle eradicator is made of:

Lactic acid 4 ounces
Glycerine 2 ounces
Rosewater 1 ounce

Apply several times daily with a bit of absorbent cotton, pouring a small quantity of the lotion as needed into a saucer.

The nature of most freckle eradicators is acid, hence they may have a tendency to burn your skin if it's particularly delicate. Different skins are differently affected, but if the redness or irritation becomes at all acute the freckle lotion should be applied less frequently and the burning allayed with cold cream.

Equal parts of ammonia and peroxide may be dabbed upon your face several times a day with absorbent cotton with excellent results in ridding your skin of summer freckles. Equal parts of glycerine and fresh lemon juice also make a good bleach for freckles or tan. Practically all freckle lotions may be used to overcome tan.

An excellent glycerinated lemon lotion which is an official remedy for removing freckles or tan is made of:

Citric acid 3 drams
Hot water 11 ounces
Borax 2 drams
Red rose petals 1 ounce
Glycerine 1 ounce

Dissolve the acid and borax in the water, infuse the petals for an hour and strain through a jelly bag. After 24 hours decant the clear portion and add the glycerine.

Many freckle lotions contain bichloride of mercury. No recipe containing mercury is given herein because this deadly poison should be used only with the utmost care under your doctor's orders and observation.

The white of an egg beaten to a froth and mixed with an equal portion of sweet almond oil is an excellent skin bleach if rubbed on your face at night. It should be allowed to remain on overnight and washed off with warm water in the morning.

Six Ways You Can Make Coffee That Will Surprise You.

Every so often I hear the wail—and it comes from experienced housekeepers as well as the young ones—"How can I make good coffee?"

It seems almost an occult art, for some women take to making delicious, aromatic coffee almost without knowing how they do it. And so many conscientious ones slave over the problem in vain.

Here are a group of tried and true methods that ought to produce delicious coffee—provided you have the basis of a good brand to begin with, and the right utensils to cook them with.

American Coffee.

If it is not made in a percolator the coffee should be finely ground, but not pulverized. It should be measured, and redried and then added to the water.

Novelty Pottery.

We have been very fortunate to secure a fine stock of imported novelty pottery. We invite you to call and see our fine display.

HOME-MAKING HELPS

BY JEANNETTE YOUNG NORTON.

"Everything About the House Helps To Make the Home."

Here is the Right Way to Care for Cut Glass.

Is there, think you, a modern housewife in this country who doesn't glory in the possession of genuine cut glass? Of all the brilliant gifts that a girl receives, cut glass more than any other gift adds "perfection" to her happiness. The pleasure of ownership in these outweighs the anxiety for its safety, and also calls for a knowledge of its proper care.

Cut glass requires a special cleaning outfit of its own, that must be used for no other purpose. It consists of a new wooden, brass-bound dish tub with a quilted cotton pad made to fit the bottom, two fine, soft nail brushes—one narrow and deep, the other wide—fine cheesecloth, washing cloths and soft, lintless linen towels. A large, soft, chamois skin and a quire of tissue paper will be needed for polishing.

Every contact with grease must be carefully avoided, as grease clouds the glass and in some instances causes dullness that cannot be removed. Danger from scratching must also be guarded against. A hard brush or rough cloths will often scratch cut glass, as will coffee with dishes or flatware. Bonbon dishes, berry bowls, cake plates, tumblers, flagons and open for. But delicate stemmed vases, cruetes, carafes and slender-necked pitchers are difficult to keep free from the effects of disfiguring sediments. It is practically impossible to reach the bottoms of the glasses through their slender necks, to cleanse them dependence must be placed on the slow but sure mechanical process. Strong ammonia and white soap suds put in the vessel to be cleaned and shaken often will ordinarily do the work. If it doesn't, add little bits of tissue paper. If stains still remain, empty the water and rub the place with lemon juice and salt, or the potato or bakewell's very carefully employed.

Any of these agents will remove wine and vinegar stains, which cling the most tenaciously. Never wash a piece of cut glass under running water, for not only is there the chance of letting it slip from the wet fingers and crash in the sink, but the varying heat of the water is almost sure to find a flaw in the glass and shatter it. The glass should be washed with the chamois and lastly a bit of the tissue paper crumpled in the hand.

After cleaning the cut glass should be put into a cabinet which has strong shelves, for rock crystal is very heavy, or a china closet with glass shelves that show to advantage the prismatic beauties of the pieces and keep them free from dust or clouding dampness.

When ready for cleansing, assemble the cut glass and have all the cleaning articles in readiness. Half fill the dish tub with water—white is comfortably warm to the point of a cup of ammonia, and wash one piece at a time, using the soft cloth and brush for the crevices. As no soap is used, the glass doesn't require rinsing; only wiping on the soft towel, then polishing with the chamois and lastly a bit of the tissue paper crumpled in the hand.

Cynthia Grey's Mail-Box

Fortune Visits Us.

Dear Miss Grey—I have been an interested reader of your page for some time, and enjoyed the letters appearing daily very much; but of late the page has almost disappeared from my view, and the old-time correspondence rarely appears, at all. Where have all the "old ones" gone to? I miss such as Calamity Alley, Two-One, Original Lonely, Mrs. Homebird, etc.

My purpose in making this appearance at this particular time is to make a request for the ever-popular stocking foot pattern, which must be nearly worn out, if not completely demolished; and also for the tea cup lore, which appeared on your page some time in the last two weeks, which I failed to seize upon at the time, and lost the paper before I rescued it from its cruel fate in the stove.

I am enclosing a stamped addressed envelope for the pattern, and if you have an extra tea cup lore, I would be pleased if you would put it in also. Thank you, I am, DAME FORTUNE.

Ans.—It's not every day Dame Fortune smiles upon us, although we may much rather have her than that relative whose prefix is "Miss." Why, we'd send a foot pattern or a tea cup lore every week if "Fortune" could be induced to knock at our door.

"Early to Bed."—I noticed where poor K. Pistol had a broken leg, so I sent him a card. Not likely it is near his birthday, but that is all I have at present.

I was out picking plums today, and I got my foot caught in the crotch (is that the word?) of a tree, and I was so embarrassed that I had to go home. I had better close, as it is near 10, and my Ma believes in "early to bed, early to rise, makes a man healthy, wealthy and wise," only it is a girl's trouble, and I haven't the wealth yet. Love to all.

LADY JANE.

Ans.—What a wise woman Ma is. Perhaps she's right, but I don't know. LADY JANE.

Ans.—What a wise woman Ma is. Perhaps she's right, but I don't know. I was out picking plums today, and I got my foot caught in the crotch (is that the word?) of a tree, and I was so embarrassed that I had to go home. I had better close, as it is near 10, and my Ma believes in "early to bed, early to rise, makes a man healthy, wealthy and wise," only it is a girl's trouble, and I haven't the wealth yet. Love to all.

Ice Hockey Game To Be Staged for Prince's Benefit

VICTORIA, B.C., Aug. 27.—An ice hockey game for the entertainment of the Prince of Wales during his visit here in September, is the plan that Lester Patrick has on hand. He will probably gather together a couple of teams of professional players to give the royal visitor an opportunity of seeing an exhibition of Canada's national winter game on artificial ice.

THE PAS. Man, Aug. 27.—Details of the gold discovery made at Copper Lake by J. P. Gordon show that he uncovered a vein six feet wide with a determined volume of 50 per cent. Gold samples have arrived here and in one sample the wire gold was holding the quartz together. Commissioner Wallace has issued a statement, saying that no similarly rich discovery has ever come under his notice. Gordon says that he sank a test pit three feet down and the yellow metal was seen on the side of one wall and freely under the bottom. The formation surrounding the discovery is a granite schist located in a small basin of Copper Lake.

A rush of prospectors and miners men has taken place and the town is emptied of every available man.
