Mrs. Broad and granddaughter, of Brockville, were guests of relatives here.

The Elgin Women's Institute recently paid a visit to the House of Industry, Athens, about 35 motoring in the forenoon and spending the greater part of the day at the institution. The time was spent in doing some needed sewing for the house, the unfinished work being brought home for completion at the August meeting, and in visiting the inmates in the various parts of the building. The appetizing dinner served by Mrs. Burnham was much enjoyed and a hearty vote of thanks was extended the superintendent and his family for the pleasure afforded the society in their first visit to the Industrial Home.

ESTABLISHMENT OF RECREATION GROUND PLANNED AT TOLEDO

Different Clubs of Union Church Are Behind Scheme.

NEWS NOTES OF DISTRICT

Still More Campers Reported at Riverdale, East of the Town.

Toledo, July 23.—The members of the different clubs of the Union church are planning to have a recreation ground fixed up in the near future in Toledo, where tennis, basketball, croquet and other games can be indulged in.

All roads led to Toledo on the evening of 18th inst., the occasion being the Roman Catholic social held on the grounds of Mrs. Smith. The crowd was immense, the tables fairly bent with good things to eat. The excellent music furnished by a Perth orchestra tempted the people to such an extent that the dancing platform was kept crowded until midnight. Other amusements flourished and a roaring trade was done in ice cream, soft drinks, etc. Altogether it was a decided success in every way.

Mrs. R. J. Seymour, of Athens, was a recent visitor for several days with her daughter, Mrs. M. Weatherhead, Mr. Weatherhead and family, and her son, Arthur Seymour, of this place.

The Misses Laura and Jean McClure, of Perth, are renewing old acquaintances here.

Mrs. Stanley McAndrew, of Toronto, is visiting relatives here.

Mr. and Mrs. D. L. St. John, formerly of Hearst, Ont., where Mrs. St. John, formerly Miss Marguerite Seymour, was engaged as teacher, and where she first met her future husband, are enjoying a visit at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Seymour. Mr. and Mrs. St. John purpose leaving soon for their future home in Portland, Oregon.

Mrs. C. A. Wood is entertaining her young niece and two young nephews from Lansdowne.

Miss Lela Eaton is visiting Brockville friends.

Miss Collier, of Maitland, is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. John Seymour.

BISHOP'S MILLS

Bishop's Mills, July 17.—The death occurred suddenly in Newmanville on Saturday, July 14, of Miss Annie Chrisman, at the residence of her sister, Mrs. W. Montgomery, where she had been visiting for the past week. The deceased had been in failing health for some time, but her death came suddenly.

The late Miss Chrisman was a native of New York city, and was aged 71 years. During the last few years of her life she resided at the home of her sister, Mrs. J. Sherrard.

She was a very quiet, reserved, kindly woman, and will be greatly missed by the members of the home.

The funeral was held on Monday afternoon, in the Presbyterian church here, Rev. Mr. Leach conducting the service.

She leaves to mourn her loss one brother, Edward Chrisman, of Carthage, N.Y., and three sisters, Mrs. J. Murphy, of Montreal; Mrs. W. Montgomery, of Newmanville; Mrs. J. Sherrard, of Oxford township.

W. G. Dobson and son, formerly of Phoenix, Arizona, motored here and were guests of Mr. and Mrs. William Johnston recently.

Leonard Greer and family, Oshawa, Mrs. Meiss and daughter, Miss Dorothy Meiss, of Montreal, are guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. Greer.

Mrs. W. Render, who has been spending the past five months in Albuquerque, New Mexico, has returned home, accompanied by her daughter, Mrs. F. B. Miller, and son, Garnet, of that city. The latter will remain here for a few weeks visiting relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. John Eagley and family, of Merrickville, and M. Allison, of Smiths Falls, motored here on Sunday and were visitors at G. Atkinson's.

Very successful meetings are being conducted by Rev. Mr. Tompkins and S. Woodlawn, in a gospel tent located about two miles from here, by the Holiness Movement church. At a meeting held recently a collection amounting to $70 was contributed to help purchase a new gospel tent.

Rev. Mr. Morrison, moderator of the Presbytery, conducted the services in the Presbyterian church on Sunday evening last.

The Magic Rug of Friendship

—BY MRS. JOHN ALMY.

PART I.

Toward evening, the wind grew stronger, bringing with it a cold rain. Mrs. Lester peered into the thickening darkness.

"I'll put another log on the fire, Grandma," Mrs. Lester said, "and light up a little more so that it will seem good to the family to get home."

"There's George now," Grandmother Lester said, her face brightening.

"Well! Home for the night and glad of it!" Mr. Lester was tall, spare and white-haired. He laid his hand caressingly across his mother's shoulders. "As soon as I stepped off of the car, I caught the light in the upper tower-room and it beckoned so cheerily that I could scarcely wait to get home. And yet, it's been a great day! I must have waited on at least two hundred freshmen and half as many sophomores. Just being with them makes me feel young, Agnes. Are the children home yet?"

"They're coming now, I think. Supper's ready—all of you!" she cried, as Myrtle and Ina, rosy and tingling with the cold, came into the room, followed by Glen, whose stalwart form almost filled the doorway.

Mr. Lester, for years country clerk in a small country town, had moved to the city a few months ago with his family, so that the children might have educational advantages. He had obtained a position as storekeeper for the Physics Laboratory at the University, which brought him only a modest salary. Myrtle hoped to enter the University the next year. She had a position in the office of one of the largest stores in the city. Glen, who had just turned twenty, had a position with a manufacturing company, and was saving his money for a four-years' course in architecture. Ina, fifteen, was attending high school. "Family, listen!" Myrtle cried, as they were about to leave the table. "Mother has asked me to preside over the decision of an important matter." "State the question," demanded Grandmother Lester.

"It's this: shall we buy that oriental rug that looks as if it belonged to us?" "Agnes," said Grandmother Lester, turning to her daughter-in-law, "if you feel that you would like to have that rug, get it. I've no doubt that it's worth economizing for, or you wouldn't even be considering it."

"To be sure, Agnes, let us get it," said Mr. Lester smiling kindly at his wife. "It's a long time since the family has indulged in anything other than a necessity. To have a thing of real beauty in our home would be worth more than money. Do get it!"

Ina spoke up with all the wisdom of her young years. "We Lesters ought to realize that fact. Our house is dreadfully run-down looking and that's the reason these rich people pay no attention to us. It's not fair! I mean to Mother, most of all! I suppose that they are glorying in the fact that they have dozens of Persian rugs, and floor-lamps, and half a dozen automobiles apiece! But, for my part, I'd a great deal sooner be as poor as we are—and be decent—than that sort of new-rich!"

"Ina!" her father said mildly remonstrant, "you can't judge. Your mother would be the last person in the world to bait for friendship. We must not forget that we are living in the city and that it is not customary for neighbors to be freely neighborly."

"You'd better buy it, Mother," said Glen. "We want to begin to get used to beautiful things—I mean, really artistic ones, for, you know, some day, I'm going to build the sort of houses that will need the finest rugs. That is, if I succeed," he added, suddenly embarrassed as he caught the answering glow in the faces about him.

Holden's, where Myrtle worked, carried the largest stock of oriental rugs in the city. Mrs. Lester had seen the rug in the window on display, and its peculiar beauty had taken possession of her. "Just as if I had woven it out of myself, telling how I feel towards folks," she thought. "I like that rug," she had said to Myrtle, "better than any I have ever seen before. I wish that we could afford to have one like that. Find out how much it costs."

Myrtle inquired of Mr. Chesney, assistant in the rug department, and Mr. Chesney asked to be allowed to initiate her into the respective merits of oriental rugs. Then she too agreed, with her mother, that there was just one in the lot that was peculiarly suited to the Lesters. In case they bought the rug, Mr. Chesney had made a second and more reasonable price.

"We've come to buy our rug, Mr. Chesney," Mrs. Lester said, following the family decision. "I'm beginning to understand why these rugs take one's fancy so. They are like something living. This one looks like kindness to me—like an open fire and hospitality and good friends."

"They don't suspect that all of my commission goes with that rug but I wanted her to have a real treasure," Mr. Chesney said to himself, as he attended to the details of the purchase. That evening, Mrs. Lester spread the rug upon the floor for the family's inspection. It was an oblong, not more than a yard wide, over which medallions of quaint flower-forms merged their variegated, jewel-like colors, the whole subdued with a sheen like summer haze across shadow-purpled hills.

"It's like poetry," said Mr. Lester. The new rug was laid in the little square room on the ground floor of the tower. It would have been the parlor if the Lesters had needed one in addition to their living room. Its furniture consisted only of the rug, the old walnut cupboard, the hickory summer chairs, and the wide brick fireplace, above which hung Grandfather's sword.

"Surely no one will think that I am baiting for neighbors," said Mrs. Lester weeks later as she carefully spread the precious thing over the railing of the verandah. "And yet," she thought whimsically, "how happy I should be if this rug was really a charm to draw neighbors!"

On a rare, crisp autumn day, Mrs. Lester again hung the rug over the railing and stroked its silky surface tenderly. It was such a lovely thing and it seemed as if it silently breathed a message of friendliness and good will. "I suppose that there are a good many people who wouldn't care about immediate neighbors," she thought, "but, somehow or other, having friends has grown to be a part of me and I'm getting too old to change. I wish I did not think so much about it!"

"We had a caller to—Lester said, as they sat together at the evening meal. "I'm so glad that she came!"

"O Mother! At last! Which one

About the House

THE SUMMER BRIDE'S KITCHEN PAD.

Do the brides of your neighborhood have the various fads that change and vary as much as the new styles and fashions? They do in our section; and a fad that is very popular with them here at present is the enameled drop-leaf dining-tables. And it is not only brides who are indulging in this fad, either. Many women who only have small families are investing a few cents and a little time in these attractive accessories.

All of the second-hand stores of our town have been ransacked in search of the old-fashioned dining-room tables with drop-leaves at the side, and for kitchen chairs of attractive design. These are selected in as quaint a pattern as possible, and are of soft wood that has been painted, instead of varnished.

Both the table and chairs are well rubbed with sandpaper, until every sign of the paint or varnish has been removed. They are then painted with three coats of paint. Some use ivory for this, while some prefer white, but I think the most attractive ones I have seen are of a soft gray color. After the paint is applied, a thorough coating of enamel of the same color is put on. Then they are decorated with some design, usually a conventional pattern, put on with enamel. If the furniture is ivory, canary yellow and black may be used for the design; while there are no colors that look so well on gray as some of the soft pastel shades. Old blue may predominate.

The very beauty and attractiveness of such a set as the one I have described would be reason enough for any bride to choose it for the main part of her dining-room furniture; but the small cost is an added virtue, and has an added appeal to most brides who prefer to start their married life, living in a frugal way, that it may be easier for the couple to "get a start."—N. Portrey.

MAKING THINGS STICK.

Besides, being of invaluable aid in the medicine chest or cabinet, adhesive tape may be used as first aid in innumerable cases of household emergency. It may be made so useful that the housewife should never be without it.

After cementing broken glass or china it may be applied to the outside to hold the parts in place until they become thoroughly dry.

When the glass in the oven door accidentally gets broken a very satisof them?" This, from always eager Ina.

"It was Mrs. Finley, the woman who works for the Hardys, the Heatherbys and Pettibrooks."

"O-oh!" Ina's exclamation registered disappointment. "How did she happen to come?"

"The rug did it! This afternoon, about two o'clock when I thought that the rug had aired long enough, I went to bring it into the house. It was gone. I walked all around the house, looking everywhere. I decided to call up the police station. Just then, I caught sight of a bit of purple hanging on that sharp prong of the gate. It was a piece of the rug. I walked down the street a way, looking. Then, I found another piece, just as if it had been torn out with a jagged fork—"

"Oh, Mother!" cried Myrtle, "our beautiful rug!"

"I thought a dog must have torn it down. Still, I couldn't find any other trace of it. I was sick at heart. About four o'clock some one knocked at the side door. It was a woman, carrying our rug rolled up under her arm. I could see that she had been crying. She was greatly distressed. She introduced herself as Mrs. Finley, the woman who washes for the neighbors. She said that her dog had come home about an hour before, dragging the rug with him. He was a big St. Bernard, though not much more than a pup, and always getting into mischief."

"She said she would have got rid of him save that her husband, who is somewhat of an invalid, was greatly attached to him. She knew the rug belonged to us for she had seen it hanging on the railing. She said that she was willing to pay for the damage, though she supposed it would be a great deal, for that kind of a rug was expensive. She went on, then, to tell about her family: they had had a great deal of sickness and trouble the last few years. I told her not to worry but to come right in and we'd talk it over. We looked at the rug—it might have been mutilated worse. It's in the tower-room now."

"As we talked, Mrs. Finley spoke of the neighbors, especially young Mrs. Hardy who has lost her baby; it died a few weeks before we moved here. The poor young mother does nothing but grieve. Mrs. Finley also spoke of Mrs. Pettibook as an unusual woman, 'one in ten thousand.' I wish I might know her."

All the next day Mrs. Lester kept thinking about the neighbors. She looked across the street, to the third house, the largest and finest. "Such a lovely girl in such a great house! If I could only go to her and comfort her!"

As the days passed, Mrs. Lester's longing to show Mrs. Hardy that she cared, grew stronger. How could she let her grieve alone! In the home town she would have known how to take comfort to her. She must find a way now, too. She would have to think of a way. She pondered and then had an idea which she shared only with Grandmother Lester.

factory temporary repair may be effected by applying adhesive tape to each side of the break.

If the glass top of the percolator seems to suddenly leap from its proper position and cleaves asunder upon the floor it may be mended with adhesive tape until another may be purchased.

When paring any hard fruit or vegetable, protect the inside of the thumb and forefinger with pieces of adhesive tape.

When ripping seams with a knife or razor blade, wrap the blade with adhesive tape to within an inch of the end to prevent injury to the fingers and fabric.

In case a break comes in your rubber gloves apply a patch of adhesive tape to the underside of the cut or break. It may be used in the same manner to mend kid gloves, using a bit of dye or ink to stain the patch to match the gloves.

Use adhesive tape to cover the opening in the bottom of salt or pepper shaker instead of cork, which is often hard to remove and often slips inside.

When small cuts or breaks appear in the table oilcloth they may be mended by applying a strip of adhesive tape to the underside.

ICE CREAM SAUCE.

For chocolate sauce, to be served with ice cream, put one pound of light brown sugar into a saucepan with one quarter pint of milk, two ounces of chocolate, grated, and one ounce of butter. Boil together until it forms a soft ball when put in cold water. Take from the stove and flavor with vanilla.

To make caramel ice cream, put one quart of milk in a double boiler and when hot add one tablespoonful of cornstarch which has been moistened with milk, yolks of four beaten eggs, and one-half cup of sugar. Scorch one cup of maple molasses or one-half pound of maple sugar. Add a little water to it, then add to the custard. Cool, add one pint of cream and freeze.

Leave Me But These.

Leave me the kiss of the winds that pass,
The love that is breathed by the whispering grass;
Leave me the friends that the woods do hide,
The joy that the shingle shares with the tide.
Leave me but these!

Have I not paid thee yet enough?
Wouldst thou my pain make yet more rough
And blind my eyes to the things still dear,
And chill my heart to a frozen tear?
Ah no, not that!

Leave me the vision to see more clear
These that to me are still so dear
God, grant me wisdom to recognize
The love that is known not to the eyes.
God—leave me these!

—Ian MacGregor.

Canada's Love for Great Britain.

We love those little rock-bound isles
Which nestle in the sea,
We love her towers and bulwarks grand,
Their glorious history.

We love Old England's mossy dells,
Proud Scotia's mountains hoar,
Erin's sweet fields of "living green,"
Their minstrelsy and lore.

Dear Avon's banks, where "free to roam," Sweet songs sang glorious "will";
"Ye banks and braes of Bonny Doon"
Where "Rab's" ghost wonders still.

Where "Irish Nora's eyes grow dim,"
Where Moore's sweet songs of love
Diffuse their mystic brightness round,
Like incense from above.

The cities by "Old Father Thames,"
Whence wealth and culture flow;
The "Silver Firth," "Dunedin's" towers,
Their glamor and their glow.

The purple hills of proud Argyle,
Loch Katrine's rugged shore,
Where Scott writ tales of love and hate,
To charm us evermore.

In thought we fly to Flodden Field,
Where Scotia's noblest fell,
Gainst serried ranks of the gallant South,
As ancient records tell.

When tartan'd clans fierce battle fought,
With buckler and claymore,—
Where Melrose shed her mystic light,
Amidst the clash of war.

We glory in Great Britain's fame,
Brave sons and daughters fair;
Her mighty strength, her vast renown,
And her protecting care.

Let us, "The Maple Leaf Forever,"
With loyal voices sing,
In union with each patriot's song,
"God Save Our Gracious King."
—Robert Stark.

Brains Wanted.

The teacher was discouraged over one dunce of a boy in the class. At last in order to see what the boy would do, he said:

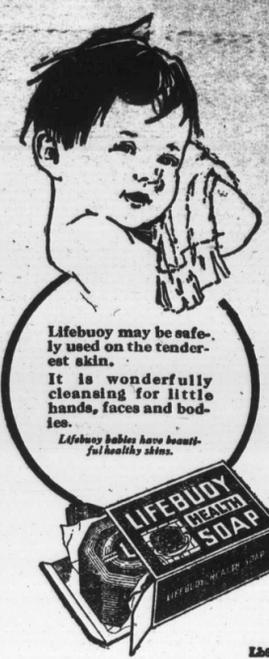

"Here's twopenny; go and ask Dr. — to give you twopenny worth of brains."

The boy, coming back with a dull, disappointed look, said to the teacher: "The doctor wouldn't give me any brains. Will I go back and say they are for you?"

HEALTH EDUCATION

BY DR. J. J. MIDDLETON
 Provincial Board of Health, Ontario

Dr. Middleton will be glad to answer questions on Public Health matters through this column. Address him at Spadina House, Spadina Crescent, Toronto.

Let our thoughts turn for a few minutes to the problem of the preservation of child life, especially of the white races among our native-born population. In considering this problem the most advisable way is in all probability to look at the subject from the standpoint "Is it worth while?" Those who know, think that it is worth while, and they have facts and figures to back up their beliefs.

In the first place, this Dominion, and even the Province of Ontario, needs more settlers of the right kind. Now there are two kinds of settlers that increase our population—those that come to our shores as immigrants and those that are born here—our own children. A record of efficiency tests was made in the United States during the war to test the physical and mental efficiency of drafts of recruits required for war service. A comparison of the mental capacity of these recruits was made with similar recruits from Canada, and it was found that the Canadians were superior in intelligence to even the white recruits of the United States army. What is the reason for this? One reason is that in the United States there is a heavy influx every year of immigrants from South Eastern Europe and other parts of the earth. There is also a large negro population, native born, but this latter group need not be considered here, for their mentality ranks far below that of the whites. To be specific, the mean mental age of the negro drafts in the United States army was 10.37 years. That means that the intelligence of the average negro soldier is that of a boy a little over ten years of age and a little less than an average boy of eleven years. On the other hand, the mean mental age of the white drafts in the United States army was 13.08 years and that of Canada 13.29 years.

Now, a comparison of these figures with the actual age of the boy himself would seem to indicate that after a certain age, the average youth ceases to learn anything that would qualify him as being called intelligent.

Either that or his rate of mental progress during his early years is so slow that at puberty, that is when he grows up to young manhood, he has no more actual sense than a boy of 13 years. There is something wrong here. If your country is going to be great, if it is going to take its place among the leading nations of the world a high standard of mentality should be aimed at. The fact that Canadian recruits show superior intelligence to those of the United States might be due in some degree to the fact that a large percentage of the immigrants who come here are of British stock and consequently of a higher mentality standard due in part to heredity, environment and the system of universal education which prevails in the old country at the present time.

No figures are available at the moment to compare the intelligence of the average native-born Canadian boy or girl with those of their race and kin across the seas, but it is safe to say that Canada would hold her own in any fair test of this kind. It behooves us therefore as Canadians interested in the welfare of our country, interested in every condition that will tend towards producing a healthier and more intelligent race of people, to do all in our power to reduce infant mortality in Canada and to have facilities for the proper feeding and upbringing of the rising generation so that this country can point with pride to the physical and mental status of its native-born population and feel assured that in health, mentality, physical fitness and in social conduct, Canada can proudly take her place as one of the foremost countries as regards efficiency and progress among the nations of the earth. To reach this ideal, much work is yet necessary, and when we know that the prevailing rate of infant mortality in Ontario at the present time is, roughly speaking, one hundred per thousand, which means that one child out of every ten born, dies before reaching twelve months of age, we have some idea of the problem confronting us.

RED HOT JULY DAYS HARD ON THE BABY

July—the month of oppressive heat; red hot days and sweltering nights; is extremely hard on little ones. Diarrhoea, dysentery, colic and cholera infantum carry off thousands of precious little lives every summer. The mother must be constantly on her guard to prevent these troubles or if they come on suddenly to fight them. No other medicine is of such aid to mothers during the hot summer as is Baby's Own Tablets. They regulate the bowels and stomach, and an occasional dose given to the well child will prevent summer complaint, or if the trouble does come on suddenly will banish it. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Commandments for Brides.

On her wedding day the Japanese bride is given eleven commandments by her mother. These are rules of conduct which have been handed down from generation to generation, and all self-respecting brides are expected to live up to them.

"The moment you are married you are no longer my daughter. Therefore you must obey your parents-in-law as once you obeyed your father and your mother.

"When you are married your husband will be your sole master. Be humble and polite. Strict obedience to a husband is the noblest virtue a wife can possess.

"Remember to be always amiable to your mother-in-law.

"Never be jealous. Jealousy will kill your husband's affection for you.

"Do not get angry, even though your husband may do wrong. Be patient, and when he has calmed down speak gently to him.

"Do not boast of your father's rank or fortune. Never allude to his riches before your husband's relations.

"Do not frequent too youthful society, even though you may be young yourself.

"Always be neatly and modestly dressed. Do not wear very brightly colored garments."

Caught Off Montreal Island

The guide under whose directions these muscalunge were caught in Lake St. Louis, about two and a half miles from Ste. Annes, claims that there are no finer muscalunge fishing grounds in the Province. He makes a specialty of this kind of fishing and guarantees one fish per day or no pay. There is also good fishing for small mouth bass, pickerel and pike and in the fall, Lake St. Louis is visited by flights of duck Southward bound. Mr. Pilon, the guide, conducts parties for duck shooting also, in season, from Ste. Annes. Perhaps the reason for the plentiful supply of large fish is that Ste. Annes is too close to Montreal, the Sportsmen preferring to go further a field, but whatever the reason is, there they are.

A MOTHER'S HEALTH NEEDS GREAT CARE

Care of Home and Children Often Causes a Breakdown.

The woman at home, deep in household duties and the care of motherhood, needs occasional help to keep her in good health. The demands upon a mother's health are many and severe. Her own health trials and her children's welfare exact heavy tolls, while hurried meals, broken rest and much indoor living tend to weaken her constitution. No wonder that the woman at home is often indisposed through weakness, headaches, backaches and nervousness. Too many women have grown to accept these visitations as a part of the lot of motherhood. But many and varied as her health troubles are, the cause is simple and relief at hand. When well, it is the woman's good blood that keeps her well; when ill she must make her blood rich to renew her health. The nursing mother more than any other woman in the world needs rich blood and plenty of it. There is one way to get this blood so necessary to perfect health, and that is through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Mrs. W. T. Riley, R.R. No. 1, Apple Hill, Ont., has proved the great value of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to mothers, and tells her story as follows:—"Two years ago, after the birth of my boy, I became very weak and run down. Gradually I lost weight and energy until I was unable to do my housework. I could not sleep, my nerves would twitch and jump so that I awoke in the morning with aching limbs and head. My husband helped to make the misery worse, and my heart would palpitate terribly. I doctored steadily for a year without getting better, but just dragged along feeling that I would never be well again. But one lucky day, on the advice of a friend, I began treatment with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I have taken only six boxes, but I wish you could see the difference. I am now able to do my work, go about and enjoy myself. I feel so entirely like a new woman that I advise every weak or ailing woman to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and I know they will get beneficial results."

If you are ailing, easily tired or depressed, it is a duty you owe yourself and your family to give Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a fair trial. What this medicine has done for others it will surely do for you. You can get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills through any dealer in medicine or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

EASY TRICKS

No. 36

The Clothes Brush

For this trick you'll need a clothes brush and a friend. Say to your friend: "You think you are observing, don't you? Then, perhaps, you will tell me how many times I brush your back with this clothes brush."

No matter how observing he is, he will be wrong. The chances are that the laughs of those who are looking on will acquaint him with the fact that there is "a trick about the trick," before you have brushed his back more than once or twice.

The fact is that you do not brush his back with a clothes brush at all. While you appeared to be doing this, you were brushing his back with your hand while you were brushing the front of your own coat with the brush. If you will try this you will discover that it is impossible to tell, when the strokes of the hand and the strokes of the brush are simultaneous, whether the brush or the hand touches the back.

(Clip this out and paste it, with others of the series, in a scrap-book.)

New White Metal.

Following the discovery of a non-tarnishable silver comes the news of a white metal which resists both tarnish and corrosion and has a remarkably deep and brilliant lustre when polished.

The day appears to have come when the chemist by skillfully alloying his metals, can make them resist the ravages of impure air produced by modern industrial conditions. The new white metal, which it is stated, can be produced at a price within everybody's reach, has good casting qualities and is both malleable and ductile.

While not entirely unaffected by the atmosphere, the alloy should lessen the work of the housewife when employed in cutlery, and it may have important uses in engineering.

SHIP OPERATOR OUT WITH FACTS

"Tanlac did so much for me a year ago that right now I am feeling even better than before I got sick," declared John Croysdill, 8 Haldimand St., Quebec, P.Q. Mr. Croysdill, a ship telegraph operator, is well known in Quebec, having been for four years operator at the Citadel.

"For two solid years I suffered from stomach trouble. My appetite was so poor I couldn't eat much, but even then, after meals, my heart palpitated so badly from the pressure of gas on my stomach I would be miserable nearly all day and couldn't half sleep at night. The result was I felt tired and worn out most of the time.

"It wasn't long after I began taking Tanlac that my appetite had a new start and the stomach trouble was losing its grip, and now I'm always eager for mealtime to come, nothing distresses me, I sleep soundly and feel fine all the time. Tanlac is a splendid, reliable medicine."

BACK ACHED TERRIBLY

Mrs. McMahon Tells How She Found Relief by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Chatham, Ont.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for a run-down condition after the birth of my baby boy. I had terrible pains and backache, and was tired and weak, not fit to do my work and care for my three little children. One day I received your little book and read it, and gave up taking the medicine I had and began taking the Vegetable Compound. I feel much better now and am not ashamed to tell what it has done for me. I recommend it to any woman I think feels as I do."

—Mrs. J. R. McMAHON, 153 Harvey St., Chatham, Ont.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has for nearly fifty years been restoring sick, ailing women to health and strength. It relieves the troubles which cause such symptoms as backache, painful periods, irregularities, tired, worn-out feelings and nervousness. This is shown again and again by such letters as Mrs. McMahon writes, as well as by one woman telling another. These women know, and are willing to tell others, what it did for them; therefore, it is surely worth your trial.

Women who suffer should write to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Cobourg, Ontario, for a free copy of Lydia E. Pinkham's Private Text-Book upon "Ailments Peculiar to Women."

Canada Faces the Future With Confidence

CANADIANS have always been noted for courage, optimism and faith in their country.

Canada was not built up by pessimists, nor will Canada continue to develop if her people allow themselves to become croakers and grouchers. Canada is fundamentally an agricultural country. We have a soil and climate which can grow the world's finest agricultural products.

Canadian farmers who have earned the capital invested in their farms out of profits in farming are numbered in thousands. These successful farmers have paid off their mortgages, stocked their barns and stables, bought their machinery, made a good living and brought up their families. It meant hard work, but today they are independent.

Money in Mixed Farming

In recent years, at different points on the prairies, oats fed to steers have brought from 70c to $1.07 as against the Fort William price of 42c per bushel, while barley used for the same purpose has brought as high as 99c as against the Fort William price of 57c per bushel. Farmers marketing their coarse grains in this way lower marketing cost, have a sure market and make money on their grain, while at the same time they market their roughage, otherwise often wasted.

The cattle embargo is now off. Steers are worth more money and certain to make good money for the Canadian farmer from now on.

Money in Pigs

The Dominion Experimental Farms have proved by actual test that there is a profit in feeding pigs. Last year at the Central Farm, Ottawa, after paying for feed, labor, interest and depreciation, the net profit per pig was still $4.63.

Profits from Sheep

As money-makers, sheep are hard to beat. In every Province from Prince Edward Island to British Columbia are found many flocks returning generous profits to their owners.

Poultry Pays

Poultry makes money for those who adopt modern methods, whether East or West. Little Prince Edward Island markets co-operatively in carlots, shipping annually upwards of one million dozen eggs. The British Columbia Co-operative Poultry Men's Exchange markets in the same way, thus saving ruinous glut in their local market.

There is a market for good Canadian horses, whether light or draught.

Grow Seed

Canada's Northern grown seed possesses extra vitality. There is a large market for it to the south. Canada exports seed potatoes, but imports other seeds. She has the opportunity to grow seeds for herself and for export.

The Future

Ten years from now the pessimists of today will have been forgotten. Britain has removed the embargo against our cattle. She wants our beef and bacon, our cheese, butter, eggs and apples, our wheat and flour. As the population of the United States increases, she will compete less and less against us on the British market. Eventually, she will herself be an importer of many other food stuffs besides wheat from this country.

Canada has the men, the climate, the land, the stock and the potential markets necessary for agricultural success. Let us farm with all the industry and science we can muster. Let's get to work and pay our debts. Canada is moving forward with confidence in its future. Let us keep going ahead.

We Must Cut Production Costs

Canada is meeting with the keenest competition in the marketing of her products. To hold her own and regain her place on the world's market, she must reduce cost of production.

The only way to do this is to increase production per acre, per cow or per other unit.

But improved quality, also, is essential to meet market demands.

The quantity and the quality of the products and the cost of production in competitive countries is beyond our control.

Prices of agricultural products are regulated by world supply and demand.

Hence, decreasing production will not help the Canadian farmer.

Historical Research for The Dominion

Wm. Webber, Montreal, Marquis of Sligo, Captain E. Griffiths, R.N.R., "Empress of France," Marchioness of Sligo.

AFTER a two-year holiday, completing a mileage of 46,000 miles on Canadian Pacific railway and steamships, the Marquis and Marchioness of Sligo returned to their London home. During their stay in the Western hemisphere, the Irish peer diverted from his main course of travel, visiting all the leading republics of South America and in the latter days of his travel diverted his course to Southern China, where he narrowly escaped by some few minutes being taken by bandits.
Prior to his departure on the S.S. "Empress of France," the distinguished visitor forwarded to the Canadian Government an interesting document found in the Sligo family correspondence, being a letter from the Hon. Henry Browne, who was associated with the capture of Quebec.
For some time past, the Marquis has been occupied in gathering data about his family and the part they played in the history of Canada and the Dominion is to reap the benefit of his research. The Marquis began his researches with the famous picture of the death of Wolfe, by West, and after careful investigation he has succeeded in identifying a number of the individuals who surrounded the general as he lay on the ground. Chief among these is Lt. Henry Browne who was the standard bearer in the Louisbourg Grenadiers which fought on the right of the line in Wolfe's army. In the picture the Lieutenant is shown holding the standard. Later, according to evidence gathered by the Marquis, his ancestor helped to carry the general off the battlefield after he had died.

BRITAIN DESIRES TO MAINTAIN ENTENTE BUT MUST SAVE EUROPEAN CIVILIZATION

Premier Baldwin Gives France Notice That Britain Cannot Longer Remain Passive Spectator of Policy in the Ruhr—Announcements in Commons and Lords.

A despatch from London says:—The British Prime Minister, Rt. Hon. Stanley Baldwin, made his expected statement of Government policy in regard to the Ruhr and German reparations on Thursday afternoon in a crowded House. An identical statement was read in the Lords by Marquis Curzon, but whereas, according to prearrangement, there was no discussion of the statement in the Commons, speeches were made in the Lords by Viscount Grey and Earl Birkenhead, which were, in the words of Lord Curzon, "a little irregular."

It is assumed that the French and Belgian assent had already been obtained to the general outline of the British proposals. If and when the French and Belgian assent is obtained to the text of the note which Britain will draft in reply to the German offer, the British, or, as it will then be, the allied note, will be presented to Berlin. The next stage will be the appointment of an international expert commission to determine what amount of indemnity Germany can pay.

In contrast to such statements by his predecessors, Mr. Lloyd George and Mr. Bonar Law, which were very lengthy, Premier Baldwin's pronouncements were particularly brief, taking about 16 minutes for delivery.

The question on everybody's lips—how far the British Government's open disapproval of the French Ruhr policy and its holding aloof therefrom were to be converted into an active policy separate from France—was to a great extent unanswered. Premier Baldwin certainly moved quite perceptibly away from Mr. Bonar Law's attitude of passivism, inasmuch as he announced the Government's decision to submit to the allies a separate reply to Germany's latest offer. But he did not give the slightest indication of the nature of the proposed reply.

This was the only important point in the pronouncement, which, for the remainder, was a warning couched in the most friendly language, but plainly telling France that the British Government could not much longer remain a passive spectator to a policy which threatened the economic collapse of Germany and with it disaster to the whole of Europe.

Taken as a whole, the pronouncement seemed to be a new appeal to France to retrace her steps and come into line with all the allies in a new effort to settle the reparations problem by negotiation, instead of by military penalties. The Premier was most careful to avoid any shutting of the doors on renewed negotiations.

Notable points were the complete absence of any reference to the United States in connection with the negotiations and emphasis that Italy was with Great Britain, rather than with France.

The real meaning of Premier Baldwin's speech might be roughly paraphrased thus:

"The French are destroying Germany and the result must be chaos and war. French methods are already devastating our industry as the Germans devastated France, and the French should withdraw from the Ruhr, permit Germany to recover and pay."

"Germany has made an offer containing the germ of a settlement. We insist upon accepting their proposal to carry out the award of an impartial commission as to what they can pay. We want France to agree with us, but if she does not, we with Italy, will act notwithstanding."

"We desire most earnestly to maintain the Entente, but we cannot let European civilization fall to pieces for its sake."

HOOVER TO COMPETE IN TORONTO

It is expected that Walter Hoover, the Duluth oarsman, will compete with Hilton Belyea, the famous Canadian oarsman, at a regatta to be held in Toronto during the Canadian National Exhibition.

CANADA'S THREAT OF PULPWOOD EMBARGO ALARMS WASHINGTON GOVERNMENT

A despatch from Washington says:—Administration officials are much disturbed over the action of the Canadian Parliament in passing a law authorizing the Governor-General to place an embargo on the exportation of pulpwood.

The State Department disclosed that the United States is taking up the matter with Canada to point out the serious consequences to the paper and publishing industries in this country if the Governor-General should exercise the discretion placed in his hands and proclaim such an embargo.

In some quarters here it is believed the Canadian Parliament passed this legislation primarily for the purpose of arming the Governor-General with a retaliatory weapon to be used in the event that the United States should use the flexible provisions of the Fordney-McCumber Tariff law to Canada's serious disadvantage. Even without these provisions Canada is hard hit by the tariff, and several provisions of the law are working an even greater hardship upon Americans than Canadians. For example, Canadian cattle, which used to be shipped to this country and fattened on American grain when the price was low, are now shut out by the tariff, and are being diverted to England. The Pacific Coast lumbermen have petitioned for a reduction of the $1 rate on logs, which was aimed solely at Canada.

Whatever the real motive behind Canada's action, the administration is exerting all proper pressure to see that the Governor-General does not invoke his authority and slap on an embargo that would cripple the paper industry of this country.

Allan R. Crawford

A Toronto boy who for more than two years has held Wrangel Island for Canada. A relief party is starting north to bring him off.

The first two of the amphibian flying boats, which the Government has ordered for use in forestry patrol, will, it is expected, be flown to Winnipeg shortly. The Government has ordered eight craft of this type for the forest surveys from the Canadian Vickers, Ltd., the remainder of the machines will be delivered during the summer and will be distributed three more to Manitoba, one to Vancouver, one to Halifax, and one to Ottawa.

A larger increase in the production of dairy products than in any previous year, in Manitoba's history was recorded during the past year, according to the annual report of the Provincial Dairy Commissioner. The total value of dairy products in 1922, was approximately $12,434,223. The production of creamery butter, as reported by 44 creameries, amounted to 10,559,601 lbs., which was 2,009,496 lbs. more than in 1921, and the selling price at the creameries was $3,695,860.

To Try Eskimos

L. A. Rivet, of Montreal, who has been appointed a judge, to try the case of three Eskimos charged with murdering a Newfoundland fisherman last fall. Mr. Rivet will sail on the "Arctic" with Capt. Bernier, the explorer, and will sit at Pond's Inlet, which may be composed of Eskimos.

WESTERN WHEAT CROP GIVES HUGE PROMISE

Dominion Department of Agriculture Receives Most Optimistic Reports.

A despatch from Ottawa says:—Reports to the Department of Agriculture from the West confirm the generally optimistic statements respecting Western crop prospects that have been issued by the railways, the banks and the various Governmental agencies in the Prairie Provinces. Of course no one will officially hazard the opinion that there will be a 500,000,000 bushel wheat crop or anything like it, for this would mean 100,000,000 more than even last year, when the largest wheat crop in the history of the country was harvested. But the uniformly excellent conditions, together with an acreage only a little over one per cent. below that of 1922, warrant expectations of a new record yield.

It may seem like expecting too much to look this year for another crop as large as that of 1922. It, however, must be borne in mind that when Alberta has a big yield in the country generally follows suit. In 1915, when the West raised 364,000,000 bushels of wheat from a little over 14,000,000 acres, Alberta had an average yield of slightly over 31 bushels to the acre, six more than had Saskatchewan and Manitoba. This year Alberta has about 6,000,000 acres under wheat, and if it can duplicate its performance of 1915 this would mean about 190,000,000 bushels, and Hon. Vernon W. Smith, one of the members of the Alberta Government, has ventured the opinion that the yield may go 175,000,000. So it is not surprising that big figures are being forecast.

The railways are preparing for the heaviest crop movement in their history. Last year they set up a remarkable record, but high as it was they are convinced that they must be prepared to do even better this year, and to this end their plans have been laid. The Canadian Pacific Railway is adding sixty new engines to its Prairie lines, these being of the largest type, and adding 2,000 box cars to the already huge number on its Prairie divisions. The Canadian National is also making important additions to its equipment.

Nightingales Rarer in English Woods

A despatch from London says:—To hear the nightingale a party of sixty men and women recently spent the night in the Sarrey woods, and were recompensed for their labors by hearing some exceptionally fine singing.

Some members of the audience were disappointed in that they found Philomel a rarer bird than last year, only nineteen songsters being distinguished, as compared with fifty-two last year. One nightingale, whose mellifluous notes issued from an old quarry, was worth going all the way to hear, it was unanimously asserted by those who went there.

Arrangements are being concluded according to report by the Alberta Government for the financing of the extensions of railways in the Peace River and Grande Prairie districts, the farthest north railways in Canada.

FRENCH DEVICE TO MAKE PLANES "THINK"

New Device Eliminates the Necessity of Pilot and Takes Photographs.

A despatch from Paris says:—"Making airplanes think" is the latest diversion of French aviation experts at Villiers Coublay, according to the few details that have been allowed to leak out, but which indicate considerable success already attained.

Hitherto, it has been thought necessary to have at least one passenger in machines controlled by wireless, his duty consisting in dropping bombs or taking photographs. With a new device, however, an electrically controlled roll of paper providing contacts whenever certain altitudes and distances are attained, is made to do the same work.

For instance, by inserting a properly perforated "music roll," an unoccupied plane has been started on a twenty-mile flight, risen to 2,500 metres at the end of the third mile, released a dummy bomb, circled to the left for ten miles more, descended to less than 500 metres, opened its camera eye to snap the scenery below while the motor slowed down to prevent blurring the pictures, and resumed normal flight back to the starting point, landing safely.

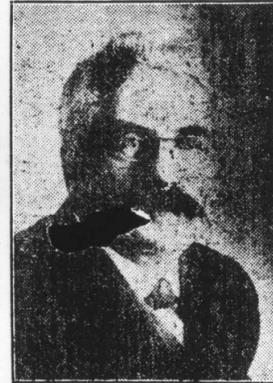

Not the least advantage of the new system is that the oldest planes can be sent up in time of war without risking the life of a pilot or observer.

The population of Greater Vancouver is 266,524 persons, according to the annual publication of a local directory. This is an increase of 12,777 in population during the year.

Queen Wilhelmina Takes Vacation at English Lakes

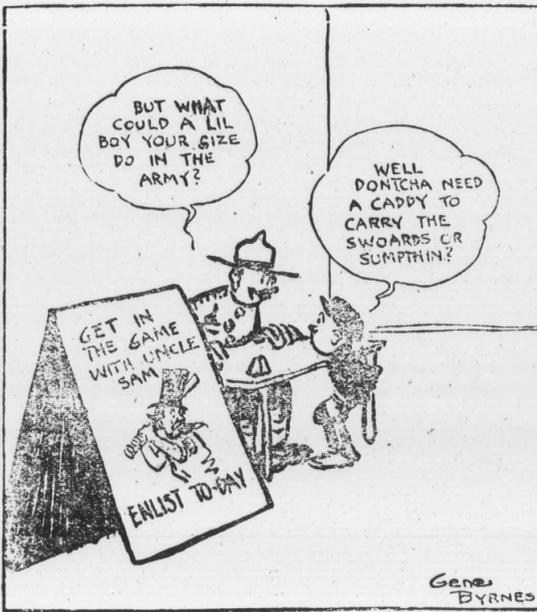

A despatch from London says:—Queen Wilhelmina is doing some outdoor painting in oil during her stay in England's beautiful lake district. But she is visiting England not as Queen of the Netherlands, but as the "Countess of Duren," and is preserving the strictest incognito.

She is accompanied by the Prince Consort and the Princess Juliana, their daughter. En route to the north country they stopped a few moments at Victoria station, where the King and Queen of England were awaiting them.

The French President, has announced that France cannot recede from her position as regards her policy in the occupied areas. Events between France and Britain have approached a crisis over the subject of Germany.

Gene BYRNES

AGGREGATE OF DAMAGE TO PROPERTY IN IRELAND COMPUTED AT $150,000,000

After All Claims Are Filed Begins the Task of Sifting the Just from the Fraudulent Demands Upon the Imperial and Free State Exchequers.

A despatch from London says:—Now that peace has been restored in the Irish Free State, an effort will be made to speed up negotiations to settle damages growing out of disturbances in Southern Ireland. The total of such claims will be enormous. The problem is a big one, and there are numerous complications which militate against haste in arriving at terms of settlement.

The aggregate of damage done to property in Ireland in the last four and one-half years is variously estimated, but the sum of $150,000,000 seems to be a fair computation. Of course, all claims are not yet in, and when the last claim has been filed, the real task will begin—that of sifting just from fraudulent demands upon the Imperial and the Free State exchequers.

The Colonial Office, presided over by the Duke of Devonshire, which is, of course, concerned with claims arising before the truce, received deputations of Lords and members of Commons, representing former Southern loyalists, from time to time, but rather strict secrecy is maintained concerning the course which the conversations take at those conferences. But, as usually is the case in the award of damages, the claimants are up in arms because they do not think they are going to receive as much as they are entitled to.

The claims fall into two categories. First, there are those arising before the truce of July, 1921, which was a preliminary to the peace treaty and the subsequent erection of the Irish Free State. Those claims must be met jointly by the Free State and the Imperial Government. All claims for damages arising after July, 1921, must be met by the Free State alone. That is, the Free State and the Imperial Government each assume responsibility for payment of valid com-ensation in respect of injuries to its own supporters in the pre-truce period. Subsequent damage will be settled under a criminal injuries bill passed by Dail Eireann.

This latter bill provides for cash settlement of approved claims up to $1,000. Claims above this amount will be settled partly in cash and partly in Free State securities. Acceptance of government securities is very distasteful to former Southern Irish loyalists, who would like to have their settlements in cold cash, and they are pressing the Imperial Government to guarantee payment of their losses. That the Government here has steadfastly refused to do so.

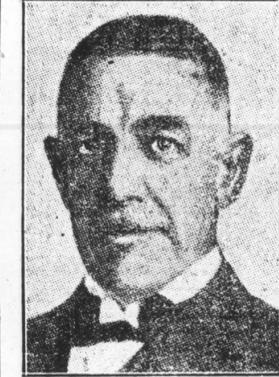

Among those former Southern loyalists are many who, having done everything in their power to thwart Irish home rule, finally abandoned Ireland altogether upon the creation of the Free State. Their position is akin to that of the loyalists in the United States after the Revolutionary War. Through much of the property of the American loyalists was confiscated, there arose no end of Revolutionary War claims, which, to this day, are still in process of settlement by a special standing committee of the United States Senate.

The American precedent may well be cited as an indication of the time it will require to adjust all of the claims growing out of the wholesale destruction which has been carried on in Ireland in the last five years.

Payment of those claims will, of course, be a drag on the Free State treasury—now nearly empty—for some years. Nevertheless claims aggregating nearly $5,000,000 have already been paid, although that, of course, is not a drop in the bucket compared to what must be found when the Government settles down to the serious task of paying the fiddler for all that has been going on in Ireland, particularly in the last year.

Halifax Wants Big Liners to Use Port

A despatch from Halifax says:—The City Council has begun a campaign to induce British steamship companies to use Halifax as a port of call for large passenger and mail steamships and it has instructed the Mayor to cable Rear Admiral Sir Guy Gaunt thanking him for his interest in developing a fast Atlantic mail service via Halifax.

A message was sent to the British Postmaster-General urging him to test Halifax as a mail port with a steamer of the Mauretania type. It was said that the port possesses "increased facilities for the expeditious handling and transit of mails for practically the whole continent."

Tests of ceramic clay resources in British Columbia are being planned this summer by the B. C. Government. The tests will be made under the auspices of the Department of Education and the Department of Industries. There are many varieties of clays in British Columbia and some are reported to be particularly suited to the manufacture of high class pottery ware.

EFFICIENT FARMING

SPONTANEOUS COMBUSTION IN HAY MOWS AND THE ANNUAL FIRE LOSS IN ONTARIO.

The farmers of Ontario have at last begun to realize, so says Prof. W. C. Blackwood of the Ontario Agricultural College, that each and every one of them is bound by the laws of national economy to play his part in the attempt to wipe out the disgrace of the past few years, when millions of dollars have been lost in the destruction of our best farm buildings. There is nothing surer than the fact that if a farmer persists in putting into the barn poorly cured, or moist hay, sooner or later his turn will come to stand the total loss of his buildings and crops through spontaneous combustion of the hay.

1. The Fire Marshal advises "caution."
2. The insurance companies plead "safety first."
3. The farmers who know by sad experience what barn fires mean speak loudly against attempting to store poorly cured hay.
4. The Agricultural College warns all farmers against the extreme danger which accompanies the practice.
5. The individual farmer places poorly cured hay in his barn at his own peril.

All who know agree that the practice should be stopped and stopped immediately, that means this year, now, before you put in that wet or partially cured load. It is not a case of "will there be fires," it is simply a case of whose turn it will be to suffer the loss. Only the reckless will fail to heed the warning. Let the hay spoil in the field rather than try to store it in unfit condition. If you do the latter the hay will lose its food value anyway, and it will show a lack of knowledge of good farm practice on the part of the farmer.

Increased acreage of clover hay in the past few years and the habit of curing only the leaves, leaving the stock improperly cured, is one of the two main causes which lie at the root of the increase in the number of barn fires. The other cause is haste in curing and storing crops with up-to-date machines (good in themselves but abused by many).

This article is an appeal to every man to act wisely this year and refrain from putting even one load in an unfit condition under the roof of any building upon which he places any value. Even if it is insured, somebody pays the price.

ERADICATE THE THISTLE.

The Canada thistle can be eradicated if thorough work is done at the right time, so says J. E. Howitt of the Botany Department, O. A. College.

- 1st By early after harvest cultivation on stubble ground.
- 2nd By careful and persistent spudding done in such a way as to prevent the plants developing above ground.
- 3rd By frequent introduction of hoed crops into the rotation.
- 4th By seeding with clover, taking one or two crops of hay, plowing shallow early after harvest, and cultivating frequently through the fall.
- 5th By summer fallowing.

CANADIAN VARIETIES OF FARM CROPS GROWN AT HEART'S DELIGHT FARM, CHAZY, N. Y.

The Heart's Delight Farm at Chazy, New York State, consisting of eleven thousand acres, is one of the most noted farms in America. It is interesting to learn, when on a recent visit to this farm, that the hundreds of acres of spring grains under cultivation were, in all instances, varieties which had been originated in Canada; the oats and the barley at Guelph, and the spring wheat at Ottawa. The O. A. C. No. 104 variety of winter wheat, originated at Guelph more recently, was being tested out.

JULY SEEDING OF SWEET CLOVER.

Experiments at the Ontario Agricultural College, conducted within the past four years, show excellent results from seeding sweet clover alone in the month of July. The seedings which took place later than July were unsatisfactory.

Thinning Apples—Both Size and Quality Improved by the Practice.

Thinning fruit is not at all general among orchardists in Eastern Canada, and attention is directed to the advantages of the practice in a bulletin "Modern Orchard Practices," prepared by the Horticultural Division of the Dominion Department of Agriculture. In the process of thinning, spotted or deformed apples are removed. Where there are too many apples in a cluster the poorer ones are removed, thus giving the remaining apples a better chance to develop. A safe plan is to thin so that no two apples will be touching each other on the same cluster. In the demonstration orchards at Kentville, N.S., Experimental Station, thinning experiments were carried out with the Blenheim Pippin with satisfactory results. The apples were removed about the middle of July. When the fruit was picked, it took 649 apples from the unthinned trees, but only 549 from the trees that were thinned to fill a barrel. The increased size of the apples on the thinned trees made up in bulk for the apples removed, and the percentage of No. 1 apples proved to be 58 per cent. against 32.3 per cent. from the unthinned trees. Shipped to the English market No. 1 thinned apples brought $2.01 per barrel compared with $1.67 for the unthinned. The conclusion drawn is that where the trees are at all loaded, it pays to thin. This is particularly the case of such apples as the Baldwin, which produce heavily every other year, as moderately large crops can be obtained every year if thinning is practiced to some extent.

No matter how they squeal, give the hogs their worm medicine. A farmer made a dollar a head more last year on pigs treated with santonin capsules.

Pointers on Painting by a Painter

A Business Where a Little Knowledge Often Saves Many Dollars

BY CLIVE B. PRICE.

One can safely say that fifty per cent. of the farmers' buildings in Canada need painting. The author reached this conclusion when crossing the country by rail between the Great Lakes and the Pacific over two different routes and noticing the condition of the buildings along the right-of-way in the country through which he passed.

If you are among the fifty per cent. whose buildings need paint, and you paint them this year, you will have made an investment that will be offset two ways. It will add more than what it cost you to the value of your place, and it will add years to the life of your buildings. However, the main purpose of paint, when composed of a good combination of ingredients properly mixed and skillfully applied, is to form a complete weather-proof covering to all the wood and metal in your structure. Without this protection both wood and metal soon deteriorate.

Although the usual procedure followed in getting a job of painting done is to call for competitive bids on the work and let the job to the lowest bidder, one should have some knowledge of just what a good paint consists of, and have it definitely stated in the contract as to the kind of material to be used and how applied.

A job of painting done with some of the cheap, adulterated materials that are found on the market to-day, and these improperly applied, is almost as good as no job at all.

It is not the author's policy in this article to boost any particular brand of ready-mixed paint, or to say a thing that will injure any brand. However, if a brand of ready-mixed paint that is put up by some good reliable house that has a large patronage, is being used, it is only reasonable to expect such a company will keep the quality of their goods up to a certain standard which will protect their future business.

The proper compounding of paint demands great skill and experience and it stands to reason that a manufacturer who has had years of experience in the business, the proper machinery for the grinding and mixing can put out a much better mixture than the local painter, who buys his material and mixes it on the job.

In many districts throughout the country the competition in bidding on jobs has become so keen between local painters that in order to keep up the standard of wages they have been forced to sacrifice the quality of the materials used and speed the work up to a point where it is impossible to do a thorough job.

This adulteration can be quite easily accomplished by a painter who mixes his own paint and has some knowledge of the many kinds of cheap materials that are being used.

These materials are found on the market under many different names. The raw material principally used in the manufacture of these adulterations is as follows: Carbonate of lime or chalk white from the chalk pits of England and France. Chalk contains magnesia, silica and clay. Paint containing a very large percentage of chalk has a tendency to be gritty and does not work freely under the brush. Sulphate of lime or gypsum (also known as plaster of Paris), is used extensively to adulterate zinc white. This can also be detected in the same manner, as it does not work as freely under the brush as the pure zinc or lead.

Baryta is a white stone found in veins with ores of lead, silver and mercury. This white stone is ground to a very fine powder then cleaned of all foreign substances by a process called floating. This consists of mixing it with water and running it through a series of settling tanks. In the last tank, the milk-like substance is allowed to remain until the water clarifies, then the water is run off and a pure white substance is left in the bottom of the tank. This is removed, dried, and ground again and is now ready for use.

In this form it is known as sulphate of baryta, and is used to adulterate both white lead and zinc. Baryta slides free from under the brush and makes a good paint, its only bad feature being the fact that it is less opaque, and does not cover as good as an all-lead paint.

These are just a few of the pigments used to adulterate paint. We should also give some consideration to the relative quality of oils.

For all exterior work there is only one available that is capable of drying reasonably fast and forming the film or binder required to produce a good lasting job, and that is the raw pure linseed oil.

However, there are a great many substitutes being used to-day by painters in doing cheap work. The cheapest and poorest of these is a by-product of crude petroleum. This oil is doctored up with driers and called various names.

A job done with this kind of oil will look fine while it is fresh, but at the end of thirty days will have the appearance of a job of kalsomining.

Fish oil is sometimes used to adulterate linseed oil. In this case the binding qualities of your linseed oil is weakened in proportion to the amount of fish oil used.

The only substitute for linseed oil on the market that has any value as a paint oil is the true soya-bean oil. However, most of the so-called soya-bean oils sold to painters is merely the residue left after extracting the finer grades for cooking oils. The one bad feature of the soya-bean product is that it is a very slow dryer. This makes it necessary to doctor it with artificial driers.

When red lead, litheroge, or Japan driers are used, the quality of the paint is impaired. Tungate or cobalt driers give the best results with soya-bean oils.

The most important feature in getting a good job of painting done is to see to it that all surfaces to be painted are first properly prepared.

All scale and blister should be removed with a steel scraper or steel brush. All surfaces where the old paint is decomposed so that it rubs upon the hand should be gone over thoroughly with a steel brush or a good stiff scrubbing-brush. If a good grade of paint is now used and well brushed in on the first coat, you will have a job of painting that will last and look well when the cheap jobs are being done again.

Haymaking

There is an old saying which says "hay while the sun shines," which Prof. Wade Toole of the O. A. College agrees—and fortunate is the farmer who gets sunshine for the job. However, with hay to harvest, one cannot always wait for the weather. One of the essentials in the production of good hay is that it will be cut at the proper time. It must have sufficient maturity to ensure curing quality, but over maturity means coarse, fibrous, low quality feed. Sweet clover should be cut in the late bud stage. Alfalfa is ready just as it begins to blossom and the new shoots are starting at the base of the plants. Red clover is handled to best advantage when approximately one-third of the blossoms have turned brown, and timothy just after the second blossom falls.

In curing sweet clover two methods are followed. Perhaps cutting with the binder and stooking up like grain until the crop is dry saves leaves better and gives as good results as can be obtained. Or the crop may be cut down and allowed to lay in the swath for about two days' sun and then raked into small windrows. If the weather is dry about three days in the windrow with an occasional tending makes it ready to harvest. If the weather is catchy it is advisable to coil the crop as soon as it is raked up.

Alfalfa is more easily cured than sweet clover. If the weather is fine it may be cut in the morning and raked the afternoon of the following day. It must not be allowed to remain exposed to the dew too many nights or bleaching results. After raking, if the sun shines, one more day in the windrow generally makes good hay. If rain threatens coil it up immediately and let it make in the coil. In any event be sure it is dry when harvested and be careful of the leaves in handling as they constitute the most valuable portion of the feed.

Red clover is the common clover hay crop. Much of it is allowed to get over-ripe because it then cures more easily. It may be handled in the same manner as alfalfa but, unless the crop is heavy, does not usually take quite as long to cure. The hayloader has changed methods to some extent. It is good practice to cut one end, ted the following morning and rake the next afternoon. If the crop is very heavy it may have to lay over an extra day. It is surprising how much faster hay will make, after it has gone so far, when pulled or rolled into windrows. If it is to be coiled the work should be done soon after raking, and the hay should remain in the coils for a few days to sweat out. However, most of it is drawn out of the windrows and if dry makes good feed.

Timothy is the easiest to cure. If crop and weather are right it may be cut one morning and hauled the next afternoon and, in fair weather, is always ready by the third day. It is not necessary to coil timothy to cure.

No matter what the hay crop, cut in time, rake as soon as possible to hasten drying, ted only when green or damp and coil in catchy weather. No doubt alfalfa and red clover may be made into the best hay by coiling but in good weather this extra work is not necessary and the loader hastens the harvest.

I Sell to a Hatchery.

I keep the purebred White Wyandotte chickens of from 300 to 305-egg strain. Instead of selling eggs to the stores at market price, I contract all of them from February 1st until August 15th or September 1st to a hatchery for 10 cents a dozen above the market price here. I have built up a reputation for good chickens, and sell lots of eggs by advertising in our town paper.—Mrs. L. H.

To criticize is one of the easiest things to do. To praise where praise is due is often left undone.

The Sunday School Lesson

JULY 22

John the Apostle, Mark 1: 16-20; 3: 17; Luke 9: 49-56; John 13: 21-25; 19: 26, 27; 21: 20-23; Acts 4: 13-20; Rev. 1: 9. Golden Text—God is love; and he that dwelleth in love dwelleth in God, and God in him.—1 John 4: 16.

LESSON SETTING—This week we study the life of John the Apostle. Like Peter, he was called from the nets to become a fisher of men. We recognize a distinct difference between the characters of Peter and John. Peter is the leader of the disciples; John is the lover.

I. JOHN'S GREAT MISTAKE, LUKE 9:49-56.

Vs. 49-51. Casting out devils in thy name. Note that this person was doing a good work and also doing it in the name of Christ. This incident shows that the good work of the kingdom was not confined to the disciple band. Others without that small circle had with power. Forbid . . . because he followeth not with us. John's objection is not that this person is not a follower of Jesus, but that he is not a follower of the disciple band, and therefore lacks true sanction and authority, and guidance. Forbid him not . . . not against us . . . for us. Although he was not a partner in the disciple band, he was a partner in the work which that band was doing, and referring to his ascension after his death. Steadfastly . . . to Jerusalem; braces himself to go to Jerusalem, knowing the dread experience that awaited him there.

Vs. 52-56. Sent messengers; to make necessary preparations for himself and the company that should go with him. A village of the Samaritans. He intended to go by way of Samaria and his messengers came to the village of Gennesa in the Samaritan border. Did not receive him. The religious hatred of the Samaritans would naturally be shown most to those going up to any of the great feasts. This was the time of the feast of Tabernacles. Will thou that we command fire. Here we see the fiery nature of John. He wishes to destroy the Samaritans by lightning. This bears out the name given by Jesus to James and John—Boanerges, Sons of Thunder, Mark 3:17. Even as Elias; when at Elijah's request, fire consumed king Ahaziah's messengers, 2 Kings 1:5-14. Know not what manner of spirit ye are of. This spirit of retaliation was never the spirit of Jesus. He came to save and not to destroy. John's proposed method was the method of anger, not love. Went to another village; turned eastward to go through Jewish territory.

II. JOHN'S GREAT TRUST, JOHN 19:26-27

Vs. 25-27. There stood by the cross of Jesus. The time of actual crucifixion has come. Matthew tells us that there were many women standing afar off viewing the sad scene. They had followed Jesus from Galilee in devoted friendship. Then there was the small group standing nearer the cross, within hearing of the words of Christ. Jesus his mother. The time had come when Simeon's words were to be fulfilled, when he said that a sword would pierce the soul of Mary. Mary Magdalene; of whom it was said that seven devils went out of her. Now she is possessed of a great love for Christ that will not suffer her to forsake him in his last agony. Jesus . . . saw his mother, and the disciple . . . whom he loved. John, alone of the disciples is mentioned. John seems to have some acquaintance with Caliphos which gave him the privilege of being with Jesus through Christ's trial and crucifixion. Behold thy son . . . Behold thy mother. Even in the midst of his pain, the thoughts of Jesus are not of, or for himself. He thinks of his mother and, what is more fitting, that he should commend the mother whom he loved to the disciple whom he loved. From that hour that disciple took her. John accepts unhesitatingly the trust committed to him.

III. JOHN'S GREAT MESSAGE, 1 JOHN 4: 7, 8.

Beloved, let us love one another. Many years have passed since John said, "Wilt thou that we command fire . . . and consume them." We see how his character has mellowed. Love is the whole duty of life. Love is of God. Love must reign in the human heart because love reigns in the heart of God. We can only interpret God to men through the spirit of love. He that loveth not knoweth not God. It is only the loving heart that can understand God. God is love. This is the briefest and fullest definition that we can have of God. For John, Christ was the living definition of God.

APPLICATION.

John's Intolerance, Luke 9: 49-55. In a valuable study of New Testament characters, Rev. George Matheson insists that John has been much misunderstood. Instead of a man of near, placid and unobtrusive disposition, he says that John was a born leader. It does seem as if, when he first came to Jesus, he was decidedly aggressive. He made a bid for one of the two uppermost seats in the Messianic Kingdom. Mark 10:35-37. He comes forward when the people of a Samaritan village shut its gates and counsels a return to the policy of fire and sword, Luke 9:54. He sharply rebukes one who, while evidently doing good, was not a professed follower of Jesus, Luke 9:49. The impression produced by reading these things is that John was assertive and intolerant. He was loyal to Christ, but with a hot and misguided zeal. He had at this time the same spirit which led men to crucify Jesus. It was the same spirit which, from time to time, has made conformity to certain narrow views, a test of Christian discipleship. There have been many who would have made communion with them a test of communion with Christ. Jesus said, "I am the door." Many Christians have tried to arrogate to themselves Christ's prerogative, and have thought their particular church was the door into the Kingdom.

John, the Transformed. John became a different man after he had fellowship with Jesus. John 19:25-27 shows us a man who is a contrast to the picture we get earlier in the lesson. If the former picture shows us a man, self-assertive and intolerant, these verses portray a disciple who was self-forgetful. It is deeply significant that when John came to write his Gospel he does not mention himself. It is not that he conceals his name, rather he never seems to think of himself. There has been an amazing change in the man who earlier on wanted an uppermost seat in Christ's Kingdom. The lesson for us is that Christ loved men, not for what they were but for what they could become. It was said recently of a great choir-master that he could detect at once the qualities of a good voice, even if the owner was singing wildly out of tune and in the wrong key. Christ loved John even when that disciple showed egotism and intolerance, for withal John had great possibilities which were revealed in later life.

When John loved, he loved with all his heart. He remained with Jesus until the last. To John's care Jesus committed his mother. John had entered into the deepest experiences of Christ's life, and that probably is the reason why Jesus committed his mother to him rather than to his brothers. John gladly accepted this legacy. From that hour John took her unto his own home.

John, the Apostle of Love. John's Epistles reveal such a man as is set forth in the Gospels. With the passing of the years John grew in Christian love. Love, he points out, is not simply an attribute of God, it is his being. We must prove our onship by showing that we know not love, we know not God, for God is love. John had not the impulsiveness of Peter, but with advancing years the love of God burned brighter in his heart than ever. When a fire is first kindled there is much noise; the crackling of sticks and leaping of flames. After a while there is less noise but there is a warmer and steadier glow. Immature enthusiasm passed away from John, but not the calm, intense, purpose of his surrendered life. When at last the curtain is about to fall on the life of John, we see a man whom arguments have ceased to interest and whom theories no longer excite, but one whose love to Christ is greater and deeper than ever it had been before.

POULTRY

Egg eating is a habit that seems to come from idleness and the fact that the eggs are laid in open nests. Sometimes it can be stopped by filling an egg with mustard and red pepper, and placing it in view of the hens. The best remedy is to have nests which are slightly darkened. The hens enter on a track at the rear and the eggs are removed by lowering the door in front. Then the eggs can be gathered often.

Keep the hens busy in scratching litter and turn them out on range if possible. When they are busy outdoors they have less time to form bad habits in the poultry house. Provide the hens with plenty of oyster shells so the eggs will have firm shells and not break easily in the nests.

Care of Milking Utensils.

Milking utensils during the hot weather should be kept clean. Cleanliness is not only essential to the production of high-grade dairy products, but also to the health of the family, especially if milk is used on the table and butter made on the farm.

At Forest Grove Farm we separate our milk. The separator is thoroughly cleaned daily. As soon as separating is finished we cleanse the bowl by running eight quarts of hot water (not quite to the boiling point) through the separator. Boiling water will set the casein and make it more difficult to wash. The bowl is then taken apart and each part washed separately in warm water then scalded. We do not use any special preparations in washing our dairy utensils.

In hot weather the sun is one of the most effective germ destroyers we have. All dairy utensils used 1 hour or set in the sun for four or five hours. I know that it requires more time and labor to keep dairy utensils clean in hot weather, but it is time profitably spent.—Leo C. Reynolds.

KENDALL'S SPAVIN TREATMENT

Keep Kendall's always in the barn. A strained muscle, a sprung tendon, a jolt or a knock demands immediate attention. A few hours' delay will result in a long lameness—perhaps in the loss of the horse. Kendall's Spavin Treatment has saved more horseflesh than all the other known remedies. Under the name of Kendall's Spavin Cure, it is the forty-year-old standby of horsemen, farmers and veterinarians.

Get a bottle of Kendall's today. Ask, too, for the Free Book or write for it to Keep it ready to serve at home

When it is ice-cold, nothing else is so sure to please—at home parties, when unexpected guests drop in and for just the family. And nothing is more convenient to serve—ordered by the case from your dealer like groceries, and a few bottles kept on ice in your refrigerator.

More and more a favorite every year for 22 years—since the first Canadian plant was established in Toronto in 1901.

Choicest products from nature make it wholesome. Our sanitary plant, with sterilized bottles, makes it pure.
