POETRY.

In the Night Season.

You are face to face with trouble,
And the skies are dark and grey;
You hardly know which way to turn,
You are almost dazed, you say.
And at night you wake to wonder
What the next day's news will bring;
Your pillow is brushed by phantom fears,
With a grim and ghastly wing.

You are face to face with trouble—
A child has gone astray;
A ship is wrecked on the bitter sea;
There's a note you cannot pay.
Your brave right hand is feeble,
Your right eye is growing blind;
Perhaps a friend is cold and stern,
Who was ever warm and kind.

You are face to face with trouble!
No wonder you cannot sleep;
But stay—and think of the promise.
The Lord will safely keep.
And lead you out of the thickets,
And into the pasture land;
You have only to walk straight onward,
Holding the dear Lord's hand.

Face to face with trouble,
And did you forget to look,
At the good old father taught you,
For help to the dear Old Book!
You have heard the tempter whisper;
And you've had no heart to pray;
And God was dropped from your scheme
Of life.

Oh! for many a weary day!
Then face to face with trouble;
It is thus He calls you back,
From the land of death and famine,
To the land that has no lack.
You would not see in the sunshine,
You hear in the midnight gloom;
Behold, His tapers kindly,
Like stars in the quiet room.

Oh! face to face with trouble,
Friend, I have often stood;
To learn that pain hath sweetens,
To know that God is good.
Arise and meet the daylight;
Be strong and do your best;
With an honest heart and a childlike faith
That God will do the rest.

—Margaret E. Sangster.

STORY.

My Mother's Hymn.

What an unconscionably long time seems to have elapsed since the old days on the far-away homestead in the Berkshire Hills! How the years have dragged themselves along, so that, although I have several birthdays to come to me (if I live) in the twenties, I seem to be already an old man when I think upon the farm and mother and the old meeting-house and all the sweet memories of the time when I was a boy and knew nothing—absolutely nothing—of sorrow and trouble and hard knocks.

Even to-day, when, young as I am, I have to content myself with worn and battered, bruised and broken, scarred and seared by contact with all the roughness, the rudeness, the dirt, the grime, the sin and the heartless, the grimness of the world—even yet I bless God for the hale of goodness which has followed me, in all my wanderings, from my Massachusetts home.

I was the youngest of the merry youngsters who had grown up, under our family roof-tree, to youth and manhood, and was the last to break away from the comparative quiet of New England for the bustle and hurly-burly of the great West.

My two brothers were full-grown men while I was still a small boy, attending our village school, and nothing could keep them at home, when the gold excitement broke out in the Black Hills. After they went away my mother and father never saw them more. The next events of importance in our family was the wedding of my two sisters, following in rapid succession.

Then, more than ever, I became my mother's companion and might have remained so, perchance, to this day had not death claimed her and father for his prey within a few short weeks of each other.

Father was a good man and I always loved, honored and respected him; but to me I think, say, I am certain, he was never as dear as mother—and I felt this the more during the few short weeks that mother lingered after father's death.

How she liked to have me sit by her bedside and read to her—sometimes from one of Dickens' masterpieces and sometimes from her well-used Bible! How it pleased her when I would sing (as a boy, I believe I had a pleasant, musical voice) one of her favorite songs or a hymn from the little brown-covered hymnbook! How contented she was, on the day that she passed gently away, to have me place my head in hers while she whispered her farewell words. "Give me the hymn-book, Rod," she said, towards the last. There is a hymn, which I have a fancy to hear sung before you begin business, Jerry Davis, there, can play and knows all the church tunes. I'd like him to play and sing this one. And, judges, ask the boys that don't want to hear it to step outside, because I shouldn't like to see them poking fun at it."

"Boys, you hear?" said the judge, and strangely enough there was absolute silence, while not a man left the room.

There was an old piano in that western saloon, used for free-and-easy, noisy concerts and occasional dances, though it is doubtful if sacred songs had ever been played upon it during its sojourn at that settlement.

Jerry Davis took the little torn page, struck a chord or two, and then commenced to sing in his rich tenor voice:

"There is a fountain filled with blood,
Drawn from Immanuel's veins,
And sinners plunge beneath that flood
To lose all their guilty stains."

"The dying thief rejoiced to see
That fountain in his day,
And there may I, though vile as he,
Wash all my sins away."

Somehow, Jerry Davis' voice weakened and he could not finish the hymn, which must have been familiar to many a hardened man in that strange company. As for me I was sobbing violently—not so much moved by the words of the hymn as by the sadly sweet memories which it brought to me. There was absolute silence for several minutes, when the stranger who had spoken a word in my behalf walked over to the piano where Davis sat with his fingers listlessly resting on the keyboard. He took the torn leaf, examined it critically and then walked over to me. Taking my hand in his strong grip he spoke in a loud but rather husky voice.

"Judge," he said, "I feel certain there is some mistake here, and I ask for a postponement of these proceedings for further investigation. This lad is my brother, my name is Phil Kimberly. I own the Kimberly claim over the hill, and am pretty well known along the Turtle Valley."

It was indeed my oldest brother, whom I had not seen for 16 years.

That hymn of my mother's had somehow softened the feelings of the boys, for they willingly acceded to Phil's request. Two days later I was cleared of all suspicion and became for a time the most popular man in the camp.

It is almost needless to add that I now treasure with more care than ever the little scrap of paper upon which is printed, in old-style type, my mother's favorite hymn.—Free Press.

where Fowler was at work, ran up the trimming machine like a buzz saw for a few minutes, stirred up the paste, hung all the paper in the room and trimmed sixteen yards of arabesque border. Some of the family went in the room about 7 o'clock that evening and found Fowler lying on the table, still sleeping from the effects of the shock. The stroke had also affected his mind and seriously biased his moral faculties, for he afterward brought in a bill for the work, and had to sue for it (Mr. Montgomery being a very rich man), and he testified that he had done all this work himself before going to sleep. But that was impossible, and the court so decided, as it was established by the evidence of more than twenty householders that no paper-hanger ever did that much work in a day.

Last July, Mrs. Weatherbe Showers, wife of the well-known financier of that name, was putting her three children to bed one very warm and sultry evening when a flash of sheet lightning—hey? Sir? I "wonder" to remember that this is a Sunday paper?" Ha; I'd like to see me get a chance to forget it. Well, that's so; guess I'll leave that Showers story out. It is pretty tough, a little. But the others may stand; if they are not as true as some lightning stories I've heard told by some awful truthful people, I don't want a cent that I can't get.—Burdette, in Brooklyn Eagle.

Self Made.

A wealthy business man, not long ago, made a short visit to his native town, a thriving little place, and while there was asked to address the Sunday school on the general subject of success in life.

"But I don't know that I have anything to say, except that industry and honesty win the race," he answered.

"Your very example would be inspiring, if you would tell the story of your life," said the superintendent. "Are you not a self-made man?"

"I don't know about that."

"Why, I've heard all about your early struggles! You went into Mr. Wheelwright's office when you were only ten!"

"So I did! So I did! But my mother got me the place; and while I was there saw that I had something to eat, and when I got discouraged, told me to cheer up and remember that tears were for babies."

"While you were there you studied by yourself?"

"Oh no, bless you, no! Not by myself. Mother heard my lessons every night, and made me spell long words while she beat up cakes for breakfast. I remember one night I got so discouraged I dashed my writing-book, ugly with pot-hooks and tangles, into the fire, and she burned her hands pulling it out."

"Well, it was certainly true, wasn't it, that as soon as you had saved a little money, you invested in fruit, and began to peddle it out on the evening train?"

"The rich man's eyes twinkled, and then grew moist over the fun and pathos of some old recollection.

"Yes," he said slowly, "I should like to tell you a story connected with that time. Perhaps that may do the Sunday school good. The second lot of apples I bought for peddling were speckled and wormy. I had been cheated by the man of whom I bought them, and I could not afford the loss. The night I discovered that they were unfit to eat, I crept down cellar, and filled my basket as usual."

"They looked very well on the outside," I thought, "and perhaps none of the people who buy them will ever come this way again. I'll sell them, and just as soon as they are gone, I'll get some sound ones. Mother was singing about the kitchen as I came up the cellar stairs. I hoped to get out of the house without discussing the subject of sound fruit, but in the twinkling of an eye she had seen and was upon me."

"Ned," she said, in a clear voice "what are you going to do with those speckled apples?"

"So—sell them," stammered I, ashamed in advance.

"Then you'll be a cheat, and I shall be ashamed to call you my son," she

"A Dry Cough"

Is dangerous as well as troublesome. It renders the patient liable to the rupture of a blood vessel or to other serious injury of throat and lungs. To allay bronchial irritation and give immediate relief, the best medicine is Ayer's Cherry Pectoral.

"I was recently troubled with a dry cough which seemed to be caused by an irritation in the throat. My physician prescribed for me, but no relief was obtained. A little over a week ago, my attention being called to Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, I commenced to try it, and after I had chased a bottle, I could see a change in the condition of my throat, and I had used it a week, my cough had entirely disappeared."—H. W. Denny, Franklin Square, Worcester, Mass.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral leads all other medicines as a safe, sure, and speedy cure of throat and lung troubles.—W. H. Craft & Co., Druggists, Carson, Iowa.

said, promptly. "Oh, to think you could dream of such a sneaking thing as that!" Then she cried, and I cried, and I've never been tempted to cheat since. No, sir, I haven't anything to say in public about my early struggles; but I wish you'd remind your boys and girls every Sunday that their mothers are doing far more for them than they do for themselves. Tell them, too, to pray that those dear women may live long enough to enjoy some of the prosperity they have won for their children—for mine didn't."—Youth's Companion.

This Marriage a Success.

I saw one of those rare old couples, who seem to have grown nearer and dearer to each other as the snows of the swiftly passing winters have made their locks whiter and scautier, in one of Saratoga's bazars. She was a dear old lady with a tender voice and confiding manner, and her pretty little aristocratic hands trembled as she held to the light the handkerchief she was examining. He was broad-shouldered and white bearded, and he wore a broadcloth coat buttoned closely. He caught sight of some pretty, frivolous-looking scarfs that the girls wear on their heads going in and over the shops. Bringing a gay pink one from her, she showed it to his wife.

"Here is something you must have, dear."

"Oh, no. What use could I make of it?"

"You need it when you sit on the piazzas in the evening, and," in an undertone, "you will look so nice in it."

She blushed and said:—"That is a little too gay. I will see what they have."

Between them they selected a pretty one, all covered with crystal beads, and as she protested weakly that ever that was too gay for her he pressed her hand tenderly and said:—"What nonsense!"

I wondered if that match had been made at Saratoga in years gone by.—Saratoga Letter.

THE ACADIAN.

WOLFVILLE, N. S., OCT. 13, 1889.

The Turf.

The United States is moving rapidly on towards the right to be called the greatest racing country in the world.

Halifax Street Railway.

The Halifax street railway has been purchased by a syndicate composed of Halifax and Windsor gentlemen.

Suspicious United States.

A most ridiculous report is being industriously circulated throughout the United States regarding the alleged "wild excitement" in Canada about the cruise of an American war vessel in Behring Sea.

Why Not Incorporate?

For years the ACADIAN has advocated incorporation for Wolfville and we are more and more convinced that it is what is needed to place our town on a footing with the other towns in our Province.

The Harvest.

The weather for the past few weeks has been all that could be desired by the husbandmen to enable them to complete the year's harvest.

Difference in Opinion.

HARL HARLEE.

People differ in opinions, and they probably will for some time yet. No two think exactly alike in every respect.

A Day in Russia.

A Day in Russia.

Our first impression of Grajewo was dirt, the second dirt, and the third and last dirt. It lay in heaps on the streets, it floated in clouds in the air, and the faces of the inhabitants looked out at us through age-stiffened coatings of it.

We stopped at one of the stalls to examine the bread set out for sale. Some of it was made in the form of the old-fashioned, twisted doughnuts we all remember.

The Greek church was pointed out to us as the object of interest to be visited in Grajewo, and thither we next bent our footsteps.

An item was going the rounds of the press some time ago giving Acadia Mines, Colchester county, the credit of having the large boy of Nova Scotia, 6 1/2 years of age and weighing 122 pounds.

Local and Provincial.

Stoves are going up.

Potatoes have been moving briskly the past week at 30 cents per bushel.

MUSIC.—A harper and violinist visited our town yesterday and discoursed music.

CURIOSITY.—Mr Robert Gilmore has had on our table a curiosity in the shape of a twin apple.

Wheat Bran, a few tons, Choice, just received at 8 R. PRAT'S.

EGG CABBAGES.—F. J. Porter sold one dozen cabbages a few days ago, which weighed 151 pounds.

PERSONAL.—Mr J. J. Anslow, editor of the Hants Journal, was in town on Wednesday and made us a pleasant call.

BAPTIST.—The pulpit of the Baptist church was filled on Sunday evening last by Mr. Stackhouse, of the College.

BEILDISO.—The frame of Mr G. H. Patiquin's new house has gone up this week. We understand that it is to be completed this fall.

The largest assortment Men's and Boy's Wool Underwear at Borden's, Wolfville.

BASEBALL.—The baseball match between the Wolfville and Windsor clubs, played last Thursday at Windsor, resulted in a victory for our boys. The score stood 27 to 33.

NEW ENGLAND SUPPER.—The New England Supper, under the auspices of Acadia Lodge, which was to be held this evening in Witter's Hall, has been postponed till Wednesday evening next. It promises to be a very pleasant affair.

POTATOES.—The schooner Mosala, which left here on Wednesday for Port Williams, is receiving a cargo of potatoes at that port for Havana. The Messrs Fullerton are the shippers.—The farmers of Lower Canada intend, in a few days, to load a schooner with potatoes for Cuba.

G. H. Borden is showing the Best Assortment of Amherst Long Boots in Wolfville.

VACATION.—Rev. M. P. Freeman, pastor of the Baptist church at Gaspereau, is off on a short vacation. He left on Monday for Halifax and will visit Londonderry and other places in Colechester. The students at the College have kindly consented to fill his pulpit during his absence.

LARGE FRUIT.—Mr John W. Vaughan of Wallbrook, showed us last week four pecks of the Duchesne variety which surpass anything we have seen this season in the size of pecks. The four weighed 35 pounds, and one of them 15 lbs.—Mr Mariner Cleveland, of Gaspereau, also showed us a large specimen of fruit in the shape of a Baldwin apple which measured 13 1/2 inches around and weighed 1 pound.

PROPOSED NEW DYKE.—An agitation is again on foot to connect Kingsport with Long Island by means of a dike. We understand that an English company have been making inquiries as to its practicability, having sent to parties here for papers and estimates supposed to be in their possession. So confident are some of our mounted men as to its ultimate success that they predict that it will be accomplished within ten years.

A full line of Brushes of all kinds at WALTER BROWN'S.

ACCIDENT.—As Mr Charles Harris, of Saxton St., Cornwallis, and his two daughters were on their way to church on Sunday, Oct. 12th, the horse shied, upsetting the carriage and throwing them both out. One of the young ladies received such injuries about the head as rendered her insensible for some time. Whilst the other lady and Mr Harris were considerably bruised about the limbs and body. Fortunately no bones were broken.

THEOLOGICAL.—The governors of Acadia have taken a step towards furnishing a theological training at the College. A course of lectures will be delivered during the year by pastors in actual work on church polity, homiletics, church finance, and general church work, which will give the students who have the ministry in view an opportunity to fit themselves for that profession. This move will, no doubt, meet with the approval of the denomination and be regarded as a step in the right direction.

SNOW.—The first snow of the season fell on Wednesday morning last.

Laborer Herring very choice, 1/2 barrels and barrels at 0 PRAT'S.

STRAWBERRY BLOSSOMS.—Miss Carry Coldwell presented us with a strawberry blossom on Tuesday. A rare season this.

Lecture Postponed.—The lecture by Prof. Clarke Braden, which is billed for this evening, will be delivered on Monday evening in College Hall. The lecture will no doubt be largely attended.

Go to Payzant's for Dentistry.

ATHLETIC.—The sports which took place at Windsor last Thursday under the auspices of the Amateur Athletic Association, of that place, resulted very successfully. Several of the Wolfville boys went down and took part in the contests.

MOUNTAIN FRUIT.—Mr Silas Davidson laid on our table one day last week a collection of Northern Spy apples, grown on his farm on Gaspereau Mountain, which are some of the finest we have seen grown anywhere. Another testimony that fruit can be grown on the higher lands as well as on the low.

Johnson's Decorators' Pure White Lead; warranted equal to any lead in the market at WALTER BROWN'S.

Wire Fencing, plain and Barbed, and posts at WALTER BROWN'S.

OBITUARY.—It is our sad duty this week to record the sudden death of Mr Frederic Angus, second son of Burton Angus, Esq., of this place, which occurred on Saturday evening last. Mr Angus was a young man of sterling character and was a general favorite. The funeral took place on Tuesday and was attended by Wolfville Division, of which he was a member, which marched in procession, clothed in regalia. We tender our sympathies to the bereaved family.

Tweed and Rubber Coats cheaper than ever at Borden's, Wolfville.

THE INSTITUTIONS.—The coming year bids fair to be a very successful one at Acadia. The attendance at the college is larger than ever before, and more students are expected to join the classes. The Freshman class numbers thirty-five, three of whom are ladies—two graduates of the Seminary and the other a matriculate of the Academy. The Seminary has also a much larger attendance than that of last year. This institution, under the principalship of Miss Graves, is increasing its reputation for a thorough school for young ladies. The Academy also promises to experience a successful year. The course of study this year requires more work for matriculation than hitherto. It is doubtful if this Academy is surpassed in its standard or staff of teachers by any similar institution in the Province.

Kingsport.

Joseph Cox met with a serious loss on Tuesday last. He had delivered a load of potatoes at the Kingsport pier and was turning about his horse, two in number, when they took fright, as it is supposed, and backed off the wharf, killing them both. Loss is estimated at $300.

Wedding Bells.

A pleasant social event occurred at Billtown, King's county, on Wednesday afternoon of this week in the marriage of Bowman O. Davison, editor of the Wolfville Acadian, and Miss Ella M. Taylor, of Palmouth. The ceremony was performed in the Baptist church by Rev. S. B. Kempton, of Canaan, assisted by Rev. R. D. Ross, of Wolfville, in the presence of a large number of relatives and friends of the contracting parties. The bride, attired in Nile green cashmere trimmed with white lace, looked very charming. Miss Ruby Card, half sister of the bride, was bridesmaid, while Master Avard Davison, brother of the groom, acted as "best man." After the ceremony the bridal party repaired to the home of the bride's stepfather, Mr J. M. Card, and after congratulations, etc., the happy couple, escorted by a number of friends, drove to Kentville where they took the evening train for Halifax en route for a short wedding tour. The bride was a recipient of many handsome and valuable presents, including a pretty watch and chain from the groom. The newly wedded couple have the best wishes of a host of friends for their future prosperity and happiness. Halifax Herald.

Farewell Missionary Service.

HALIFAX, OCT. 22.—A farewell missionary service was held in the North Baptist church, at Halifax, last evening on the eve of the departure of Mr and Mrs Higgins and Miss Nettie Fitch for India, Pastor Manning presiding. After music and prayer, the Rev. G. O. Gates, of St John, was introduced, who gave an eloquent and stirring address on the grandeur of the missionary enterprise, and the significance of this new movement in sending fresh reinforcements to the East, for the subjugation of the heathen to Christ. It has seldom been our privilege to listen with equal pleasure to words so hopeful and stimulating and in language so chaste and beautiful. The missionaries elect followed with remarks appropriate to the occasion. Now that the supreme moment had come when they must bid adieu to friends and country they showed no sign of looking back, but rather an eagerness to be gone with their message to the perishing. The Democrat in which they sail, leaves port Tuesday night.

Old Coach Days.

Thomas O'Brien, who left Wolfville for Uncle Sam's domains some thirty-five years ago, is now home on a short visit to the land of his nativity. For several years he was in the employ of the late Dr Brown, and at one time hostler at the Wolfville Hotel. Some of our older readers will remember the time, about 40 years ago, when there was such a sensation created on account of a Mr Hyde, of Truro, a mail contractor between Truro and Halifax, and a Mr Barnaby, of Cornwallis, mail contractor between Halifax and Annapolis, entering into a competition to see which could deliver the mail from the English steamer on her arrival at Halifax, at Annapolis first. Large sums of money were bet on each party and the sum of $10,000 was to be the reward of the one who succeeded in delivering his mail first. In order to make the quickest time possible both parties had relays of horses placed along the route at easy steps ready at a moment's notice for service. Mr O'Brien had charge of Mr Hyde's horses stationed at the Wolfville Hotel, then kept by Charles Hancock, and on account of some accident to one of Mr Hyde's drivers Mr O'Brien had to ride the relay at Kentville, covering the distance (seven miles) in fourteen minutes. At this time Mr Barnaby was taking the lead, but at Kentville he changed the saddle for a tandem team who, before arriving at Annapolis, passed Mr Barnaby and delivered his mail first, covering the whole distance (12 1/2 miles) in 8 hours and 40 minutes and some four minutes in advance of his adversary.

James Smith, charged with the murder of his companion, James Barron, at Tidnish, in a drunken quarrel, pleaded guilty of manslaughter at the recent term of the Supreme Court and was sentenced to 20 years imprisonment in the penitentiary.

The new Lord Mayor of London, Sir Henry Isaac, will be the third steward who has held that high office. The first was Sir David Solomon in 1854 and the second Sir Benjamin Phillips in 1865, and there are now in that city four Jewish aldermen, with a Jewish population of about 50,000, which is pretty good evidence that the ratepayers of London are not much influenced by either race or creed.

James Campbell, of Londonderry, Colechester county, and a man named Brophy, hailing from St John, charged with the burglary of McLeod's jewelry store at Amherst, by which some $2000 worth of goods was taken, were tried last week before Judge Morse at Amherst under the speedy trials act. They were both convicted, the former being sentenced to 20 years and the latter four years at the penitentiary.

The Rev. T. DeWitt Talmage has made an appeal to all the world for aid to erect a new tabernacle in place of the one lately consumed by fire. He says, "We want to build something worthy of our city and worthy of the cause of God. We want $100,000, which, added to the insurance, will build what is needed." He makes his appeal to all denominations, to all creeds and those of no creed and wishes the readers of his sermon the world over to contribute as far as their means will allow.

BYAM'S Improved "Common Sense" SASH BALANCE. LOOKS AND LIFTS.

The only practical substitute for weights invented. The most durable, the cheapest and best device for all ordinary windows. Balances when in position are entirely out of sight. No rivets, bolts or screws are used in putting it together so that nothing can get out of order or need repairing. No cutting, boring or mortising of the sash, as the Balances are let into the jamb. Especially valuable for repairing old buildings as they can be put in at a trifling expense, and easily put in old buildings as new ones. Each can be removed from frame in a moment for cleaning or repairing broken panes. Can be used when it is impossible to use weights or other devices. No unsightly cord wrapping point of side of frame. No rattling of sash as pressure against sash prevents it. No rattling of weights or pulleys when sash is raised or lowered. No sticking of weights in frame. No cords to rust off, wear out and break. No rubber rollers to become gummy with use. No spring or delicate mechanism to break, wear out or get out of order. Its simplicity of construction and operation is the wonder of all.

Byam's Automatic Sash Locks (self fastening) and Sash Lifts on upper and lower sash are the best and cheapest in the market.
