Faith and Hope.

A swallow, in the spring,
Came to our granary, and 'neath the eaves
Essay'd to make her nest, and there did bring Wet earth, and straw, and leaves.
Day after day she toil'd
With patient art; but, ere her work
was crown'd,
Some sad mishap the tiny fabric spoil'd,
And dash'd it to the ground.
She found the ruins wrought;
Yet not cast down, forth from her place she flew,
And with her mate fresh earth and grasses brought,
And built her nest anew.
But scarcely had she plac'd
The last soft feather on its ample floor,
When wicked hands, or chance, again
laid waste,
And wrought the ruin o'er.
But still her heart was kept
And toll'd again; and, last night,
hearing calls,
I look'd, and lo! three little swallows slipp'd
Within the earth-made walls.
What trust is here, O man!
Hark! hope been smitten in its early dawn?
Have clouds o'ercast thy purpose, trust or plan?
Have faith, and struggle on!

SELECT STORY.

When a Man's Single.

BY JAMES M. BARRIE.

CHAPTER XVIII.—Continued.

"The dear beads," murmured Mary.

"Many a day my mother has walked from the saw-mill into this glen with my dinner in a basket."

"Good mother," said Mary.

"Now," said Rob, "now, when I come back here and see you, I remember what I am. I have lived for you from the moment I saw you, but how ever hard I might toil for you, there must always be a difference between us."

He was standing on the high bank, and their faces were very close. Mary shuddered.

"I only frighten you," cried Rob. Mary raised her head, and, though her face was wet, she smiled. Her hand went out to him, but she noticed it and drew it back. Rob saw it too, and he did not seek to take it. They were looking at each other bravely. His eyes proposed to her, while he could not say a word, and here accepted him. On the hills men were shooting birds. Rob knew that Mary loved him. An awe fell upon him. "What art thou?" he cried, and Mary put her hand to his forehead, and he raised his head and could not speak.

The colonel sighed, and his cheeks were red. His head sank upon his hands. He was young again and walking down an endless lane of green with a maiden by his side, and her hand was in his. They sat down by the side of a running stream. Her fair head lay on his shoulder, and she was his wife. The colonel's lips moved as if he was saying to himself words of love, and his arms went out to her who had been dead this many a year, and a tear, perhaps the last he ever shed, ran down his cheek.

"I should not," said Mary at last, "have let you talk to me like this."

Rob looked up with sudden misgiving.

"Why not?" he cried.

"Papa," she said, "will never consent, and I—I know that; I have known it all along."

"I am not going to give you up now," Rob said, passionately, and he looked as if he would run away with her at that moment.

"I had no right to listen to you," said Mary. "I did not mean to do so, but I—I—her voice sank into a whisper—"I wanted to know—"

"To know that I loved you! Ah, you have known all along."

"Yes," said Mary, "but I wanted—I wanted to hear you say so yourself."

Rob's arms went over her like a hoop.

"Rob, dear," she whispered, "you must go away, and never see me any more."

"I won't," cried Rob; "you are to be my wife. He shall not part us."

"It can never be," said Mary.

"I shall see him—I shall compel him to consent!"

Mary shook her head.

"You don't want to marry me," Rob said, fiercely, drawing back from her. "You do not care for me. What made you say you did?"

"I shall have to go back now," Mary said, and the softness of her voice contrasted strangely with the passion in his.

"I shall go with you," Rob answered, "and see your father."

"No, no," said Mary; "we must say good-by here, now."

Rob turned on her with all the dourness of the Anguses in him.

"Good-by," he said, and left her.

Mary put her hand to her heart, but he was already turning back.

"Oh," she cried, "do you not see that it is so much harder to me than to you?"

"Mary, my beloved," Rob cried. She swayed in her saddle, and if he had not been there to catch her she would have fallen to the ground.

Rob leaped a footstep at his side, and looking up, saw Colonel Abinger. The old man's face was white, but there was a soft look in his eye, and he stooped to take Mary to his breast.

"No," Rob said, with his teeth close, "you can't have her. She's mine."

"Yes," the colonel said, sadly; "she's yours."

Off Sandery went, with some women and a dozen children at his heels, but he did not find Tammas in. "I wanna ha'e 'ya' about here," Christy, the wife of Tammas, said, crying the telegram as something that might go off at any moment; "ye'll better tak' it on 'time!"

He's takin' a dander through the burlin' ground wi' Sneekey Hobart.

Sandery marched through the east town and at the head of his following, and climbed the steep straight brace that leads to the cemetery. There he came upon the stone-breaker and the bellman strolling from grave to grave. Silva McQuinty and Sam'l were also in the burying ground for pleasure, and they hobbled towards Tammas when they saw the telegram in his hand.

"Thomas Haggart," the stone-breaker murmured, reading out his own name on the envelope. "Thrum's, Thrum's." Then he stared thoughtfully at his neighbors to see whether that could be looked upon as news. It was his first telegram.

"Ay, ay, deary me," said Silva, mournfully.

"She's no very explicit, do ye think?" asked Sam'l Todd.

Sneekey Hobart, however, as an official himself, had a general notion of how affairs of state are conducted.

"Rip her open, Tammas," he suggested. "That's but the shell, I'm thinkin'."

"Does she open?" asked Tammas, with a grin.

He opened the telegram gingerly, and set down on a prostrate tombstone to consider it. Sneekey's fingers singled to get at it.

"It begins in the same way," the stone-breaker said, deliberately; "Tammas Haggart, Tenement, Thrum's."

"Ay, ay, deary me," repeated Silva. "That means it's to you," Sneekey said to Tammas.

"Next," continued Tammas, "comes Elizabeth Haggart, 101 Lower Fish Street, Whitechapel, London."

"She's a' names thegither," muttered Sam'l Todd, in a tone of remembrance.

"She's a' rights," said Sneekey, nodding to Tammas to proceed. "Elizabeth Haggart—that's the telegram comes from."

"Ay, ay," said the stone-breaker, doubtfully, "but I ken no Elizabeth Haggart."

"Hoots," said Sneekey; "it's your ain dootier Lisbeth."

"Keeps us a'," said Tammas, "so it is. I didna understand at first; ye see we aye called her Leebie. Ay, ay, that's the whaur she bides in London too."

"Lads, lads," said Silva, "an' is Leebie gone? Ay, ay, we all fade as a leaf; so we do."

"What!" cried Tammas, his hand beginning to shake.

"Havers," said Sneekey, "ye himna come to the telegram proper yet, Tammas. What mair does it say?"

The stone-breaker canted over the words, and by-and-by his face wrinkled with excitement. He puffed his cheeks, and then let the air rush through his mouth like an escape of gas.

"It's Rob Angus," he blurted out. "Man, man," said Silva, "an' him lookin' sae strong an' snod when he was here i' the back end o' last year."

"He's no deid," cried Tammas, "he's mairit. Listen, lads. The thing is true. Rob Angus has married the colonel's daughter at a castle Rob Angus has married the colonel!"

"Loosh me!" said Sam'l, "I never believed he would manage't."

"Ay, but she reads queer," said Tammas. "First she says Rob's mairit the dootier, an' next 'at he's mairit the colonel."

"Twa o' them!" cried Silva, who was ower in a state to believe anything. Sneekey seized the telegram, and thought it over.

"I see what Leebie's done," he said, admiringly. "Ye've restrected to twenty words in a telegram, an' Leebie found her had said a' she had to say in fourteen words, so she's repeated herse' to get her full shillin's worth."

"Ye've bit it, Sneekey," said Tammas. "It's just what Leebie would do. She was aye a mighty-thrifty, shrewd critter."

"A shillin's an awfu' siller to fling awa', though," said Sam'l.

"It's weel spent in this case," retorted Tammas, sticking up for his own; "there hasn't been sic a starlin' in Thrum's since the English kirk-steepie fell."

"Ye can see Angus's saw-mill frae here," exclaimed Silva, implying that this made the affair more wonderful than ever.

"So ye can," said Sneekey, gazing at it as if it were some curiosity that had been introduced into Thrum's in the night-time.

"To think," muttered Tammas, "at the saw-miller down there should be mairit in a castle. It's beyond all, Oh, it's beyond, it's beyond!"

"Sal, though," said Sam'l, suspiciously, "I wud like a sight o' the castle. I mind o' readin' in a booky 'at every Englishman's hoose is his castle, so I'm thinkin' castle's but a name in the sooth for an ord'nar' hoose."

"Weel a' that, ye never can trust the foreigners," said Silva; "it's weel beknown 'at English is an awfu' pertentious langitit too. They slither ower their words in a hurried way 'at I canna say I like; no, I canna say I like it."

"Will Leebie has seen the castle?" asked Sam'l.

"No," said Tammas; "it's a lang

"It'll ha'e made a commotion in London, I dinna doot," said Sneekey, "but, lads, it proves as the colonel man stuck to R. b."

"Ay, I hardly expected it."

"Ay, ay, Sneekey, ye're richt. Rob'll ha'e manage't him. Weel, I will say this for Rob Angus, he was a critter 'at was terrible fond o' gettin' his ain way."

When the Heart is Heavy.

"There is always a remedy for a heavy heart," writes Ruth Ashmore in the March Ladies' Home Journal. "It may be in work—it outbreak it. It may be in thinking out the joys that have been given to you, and the sorrows from which you have been saved. It may be in helping others by sympathy, or in whatever way help is most needed. But the heavy heart can always be made light if self is forgotten, and the needs of others are remembered, and, as far as possible, relieved. Not one of us can learn to become light-hearted in a day, or a week, or a month, or a year, for it is the lesson of life, this knowing how to lift our hearts up and give from them help unto those who are in need. It is a good fight—this one against allowing one's self to be submerged in personal grief—it is a good fight, and out of it you can come conqueror if you will."

"Do you intend to give up the fight and fall by the wayside overcome by a heavy heart, or to go along through life as a brave woman should? You must decide this early in your life. And you will, I feel sure, decide to do that which is right, and then your heart will never be heavy nor your conscience disturbed, unless you fall. And when you fall, thank God, you can always rise again if you keep a brave heart."

Paine's Celery Compound Cures

Nervous, Weak, Sick, and Broken-down Men and Women.

Has Saved Thousands From Agony, Suffering and the Grave.

The Great Spring Medicine that Cures When All Others Fail.

Eminent Professional Men, People of Wealth, and the Ordinary People Declare that Paine's Celery Compound Has No Equal.

WELLS & RICHARDSON CO.,
DEAR SIR:—I take this opportunity to express my gratitude for the good that I and my friends have received from your valuable discovery, Paine's Celery Compound.

For years I have suffered from constant sick headaches; at times I have been so bad that I have been unable to sleep two hours a night for weeks. I have tried many medicines and doctored a great deal, but never received a hundredth part of the value from them that I have obtained from Paine's Celery Compound. After using three bottles I can sleep well, my headaches have ceased, and I feel best and fresher than I have done for years.

Being one of the earliest settlers in this place, I am known to all the enterprising country. I feel it a duty to let others know about the medicine that has done me so much good. I send this testimonial without any solicitation.

Yours very truly,
Mrs E. WILCOX, Creemore, Ont.

WELLS & RICHARDSON CO.,
DEAR SIR:—It is with great pleasure that I testify to the value of your great medicine, Paine's Celery Compound. For nearly two years I suffered from indigestion, kidney and liver troubles. After trying several medicines that did not effect a cure I decided to try your Compound. Before using it I was so low in health that I could not eat or sleep. I could not lie in bed owing to pain in my back; it was only by resting on elbows and knees I was enabled to obtain a slight degree of ease. Before I had fully taken one bottle of your medicine I began to improve. I have now not effect a cure I decided to try your Compound. WOLVILLE, N. S., APRIL 15, 1898.

Local and Provincial.

"Lily of the Valley" Division, of Port Williams, is to hold an open meeting in their hall this evening.

Borden Sells Unlaundered Shirts at 50 cents.

The Wolville Coal Co. is erecting a large building for a warehouse on the north side of the railway track, near the wharf.

Borden Sells Child's two piece Suits for $2.00.

The principal and teachers of Acadia Seminary will be at Home on Monday, April eighteenth, from quarter after four until six o'clock.

Women's Feb. Butt. and Lace Boots for $1.00 at the People's Shoe Store.

Mr. Chas. Paine has purchased the farm on the "Ridge" lately occupied by Mr. Rufus Forsyth and will occupy it in a short time. Mr. Forsyth has removed to the old Cleveland place.

Borden Sells Neck Ties, 3 for 25c, Men's Socks, 3 for 25c.

Mr. Campbell, of the Presbyterian College, Halifax, preached in St. Andrew's church last Sunday morning and evening, and in Chambers' church, Lower Horton, in the afternoon.

Borden Sells Men's genuine Dongola Oxfords for $1.25.

ACTION SALE—of Standard and Registered Mare, by Hampar, an ideal road mare with lots of speed, fast enough to race, young and sound. Sold for no fault. Don't miss a good one. Sale at Central House, Wolville, April 18th, 2.30 p. m.

Borden Sells Ladies' Dongola Kid Button Boots for $1.00.

Superintendent Collins has been at work this week constructing the crossing at the junction of Front street and Elm street. This crossing has been donated to the town by Mayor Thomson, this being the third crossing for which the town is indebted to our worthy Mayor.

Borden Sells Men's Suits for $3.50 and $5.00. Great value.

Boston Baked Beans always on hand at the Evangeline Kandy Kitchen.

Mr. N. M. Sinclair has recently had a very pretty hanging sign put out bearing the legend "The People's Shoe Store." The front of the store has been neatly painted in shades of green. An awning has been erected and the appearance of the whole building has been vastly improved.

Ladies' Low Shoes, 75c, 85c, $1.00, $1.15, $1.25, $1.50, $1.75, $2.00, $2.50, at the People's Shoe Store.

The People's Shoe Store has some Children's Goods, both good wearing, and low priced.

We notice by Halifax papers that the well known commission firm of Bentley & Layton, of that city, had an especially good show of Easter beef this year, for which they were indebted to Kings county. The best was the production of H. Stairs, Esq., of Hillsdale, and was made from those Polled Angus steers that took first prize at the Halifax Exhibition last fall. The senior member of this firm is a Kings county man, and the firm is a reliable one and uses patrons right.

These Black Dress Goods in Lustre, Cashmere, Poplin, Figured Mohairs, are rapidly disappearing. The styles are right and the prices are right. Remember they are imported direct from England and marked to compete with any log in Canada. J. D. CHAMBERS.

We are making Fresh Bread and Pastry of all kinds at the Evangeline Kandy Kitchen. Should like you to give us a try.

Customer—If you ever send me a piece of meat like the last one I'll take away my custom. Butcher—Why, what's the matter with it? Customer—Why, it was so tough, that when it was cooked I couldn't get my fork even to pierce it.

Dear Sirs—This is to certify that I have been troubled with a lame back for fifteen years. I have used three bottles of your MINARD'S LINIMENT and am completely cured.

Ever tells a good anecdote of an Irishman giving the password of the battle of Fontenoy, at the time Saxe was marching. "The password is Saxe; now don't forget it," said the colonel to Patrick. "Fate, and I will not. Wac'h my father a miller?" "Who goes there?" cried the sentinel, after he arrived at the post. Patrick looked as confident as possible, and in a sort of whispered howl, replied: "Begs, yer honor."

Tell me, pleaded the artless maid, who has the secret of the art of conversation? I, the art of conversing agreeably.
