A CHAPTER ON BEARDS, HISTORICAL AND CLERICAL

(From the N. Y. Evening Post.)

CLERICAL

(From the N. Y. Esening Pest.)

The conslaughts recently made in England, from various quarters, upon the habits of shaving, seem not to have been unproductive of good results. Among, all classes the cultivation of the beard is growing into favor with unexpected rapidity, and, perhaps, the increasing spirit of fraterity which the extigencies of the time have called forth in that land of steady prejudices, may lead its people to emulate their brethern of southern Europe and Turkey in their encouragement of this manly ornament.

The clurgy, too, have done something to aid the movement; and whatever receives their sanction, we may be sure, can hardly fail of reaching, ultimately, a very respectable degree of success. Both in England and in our country, a luxuriant beard has been hereofore considered a mark of eccentricity, frivolity or genias; and none but artists, men of fortnne and gentlemen of questionable pretension have felt able to afford it. Yet, so far as we know, there are few things more conducive to health, and, in most cases, to good looks, than the beard. Indeed it may be regarded as the decus at tutamen of manhood—the sole distinctive badge to which man can set up an exclusive claim, when the fairer portion of creation should have finally usurped, as is threatened, the habiliments which, in times past, have answered so well for his protection.

It is pleasant once in a while to turn from these degenerate days to the records of antiquity, to observe the reverential care with which the beard was cherished among the most elevated races then living. Take Homer's heroes Agamemnon, Ajax, Ulyses—they were as hirsute a set of men as any dandies who parade Boadway. King Prism, for example, in remonstrating with his son Hector against his intended encounter with Achilles, begs him, most pathetically, to refrain from the contest, in order that he may live to save his father from a miserable death. As for a young man, he says, death on the field becomes him well."

But when the silver locks and silver

him well."

"But when the silver locks and silver beard
Of an old man, slain by the sword, from dogs
Receive dishonor, of all ills that wait
On miserable man, that sure is worst,
So said the ancient King, and bis gray hairs
Plucked with both hands—but Hector firm endured."

So, when the goddess Minerva wishes to improve the personal appearance of Ulyssea, which was somewhat the worse for wear and tear of his travelling experience.
"Swarthy again his manly hue become, Rannel his full face, and Mark his books shire."

Reund his full face, and black his bushy chin; And his astonished son Telemachus, gratifies the old salt on his transformation, by the compliinjured interests to bluster about. Most of the houses being of wood, they find warm commoditions the Great, the period of their complete degeneracy. But Plutarch informs us, that the disuse of it was founded on its inconvenience, in furnishing a handle to their enemies in battle. The philosophers, however, still adhered to the old badge of their profession; and their ostentation in this matter gives rise to a current saying of that time, "a long beard does not make a philosopher." The early Romans—"inolest Romans of them all?" undoubtedly did not shave, and Scipio Africanus was the first man among them that shaved his chin every day. This gentleman set the fashion, which was soon generally followed by all except the lower orders; but to an individual rejicing in the name of Publias Ticious Manas, belongs the credit of having first imported a barbeing looked upon as recognised proprietors in the country from Sicily. In later times, the Emperor Hadaian found the beard a serviceable covering for some scars with which his face had been disfigured, and beards were at a permism. The fancy of the owner, or his barber, was frequently exercised in trimming it and giving it an ornamental cut.

The Romans appear to have, in one instance made it a requirement of national concern, as when the eensors demanded of Livius, on his restoration from banishment, that he should not enter the Senste till he had been washed and shaved—a regulation which we hope it is not unjour to any would hardly be taken in good part by some of censors demanded of Livius, on his restoration from banishment, that he should not enter the Senate till he had been washed and shaved—a regulation which we hope it is not unjust to say, would hardly be taken in good part by some of the members of our own legislative bodies. By those accustomed to the hardships of shaving, it may perhaps, be deemed a refinement of cruelty, peculiarly characterizing the sterances of Roman manners, that the occasion of the first application of the razor to the boy's face was celebrated as a festival, and the hair consecrated to the gods. This ceremony, in the case of Augustus, was performed in his twenty fourth year, but commonly took place at a some what earlier period. Hence, perhaps, the term, 'shaver,' as applied to a boy, which an ingenious hypothesis has heretofore derived on the principle of lucus a non, dc.

Passing over to England, what magnificent beards adors the illustrious chins of the early usen in the early amals of that country —Look at the pictured heads of Old Gower, of Shakespeare, of Lord Bacon'; or open 'Lodge's Gallery of Portraits,' and you will witces an array of fall-bearded statesmen, that might axcite the "nationality" of the most phlegmatic John Bull whose blood ever stained the razor. Look, too, at the pictured heads of plagmatic John Bull whose blood ever stained the razor. Look, too, at the great names in the church' there is Wickliffe. "the mosting star of the Reformation," with a beard like a country, as the array of fall-bearded statesmen, that might axcite the "nationality" of the most phlegmatic John Bull whose blood ever stained the razor. Look, too, at the great names in the church' there is Wickliffe. "the morning star of the Reformation," with a beard like the pard," avery one of them! Gradually, at time rolls on, however, the heards diminish, until a smooth viange almost becomes an indispensable requisite of orthodoxy; so that at the presented in Thorwaldsen's group of statuary, would hardly be accepted by their modern successors.

For our

warrant from common sense or the laws of health. The priests and early missionaries of the Roman Catholic Church adopted the use of the resor, probably as means of distinguishing their order from the populace. But this expedient was much less heardous in the climate of Italy, where it was first tried, than in the bleak atmosphere of more morthern reigions.

We are pleased to observe that the Boston Congregationalist, a leading religious journal, of an orthodox complexion, has undertaken in good earnest the work of forwarding the referra minog clergymen. In two vigorous articles, it has recently advocated the dety of cultivating the beard on biblical, historical and physiogical grounds. From a late number of that print, we take the following paragraphs:

"It is physiologically clear, that he who daily removes his beard, daily forces the secretionary part of his constitutional mechanism in an unnatural, and therefore perficious manner; beside, removing from some of the tenderest and vitalest portions of his frame their intended, and therefore necessary, covering; thus, on the one hand, overtaxing, and on the other, underelothing his hody.

moving from some or the tenderest and vitalest portions of his frame their intended, and therefore necessary, covering; thus, on the one hand, overtaxing, and on the other, underclothing his body. "We might add the testimony of experience, as loudly affirming the inportance of a return to the dictates of nature in this matter of the beard. Many a minister of Christ is sinking into his grave by a slow, yet sure, suicide of shaving. "Let every coughing and endaverous brother throw away his razor and his muffler together. Let him restore to his throat and chin, and cheeks, their natural covering. Let him bathe plentifully in cold water, and use much physical exercise, bearing his breast to the north wind, and throwing his physic to the dogs, and our word (and our expedience) for it, he will be both a wiser and a stronger man, and his grave will be thrown (in the course of asture) from under his very feet, far forward into the distant perspective of a good old age."

AN ORIENTAL PASTIME

One of the peculiarities which strikes me most among the inhabitants of Turkey, says a writer in "Household Words," is their love of fleas. I am obliged to use the word inhabitants, because all are not Turke who live in Turkey; and all are alike in this respect, whether Osmanli, Armeniaa, Bulgarian, Wallach, Moldavian, Greek, or Jew. They pounce upon them with a cry of delight wherever they find them, and fondle them before putting them to death. They show as much art and address in their capture as a keen sportsman will evince in trying to get a shot at a flock of wild ducks. The flame are not ungrateful for being thus held in honer, and have effected a very considerable settlement in the country. They are, in point of fact, one of the nationalities of Turkey—the one which has nothing to sak of the Government; which has no wrongs to redress or injured interests to bluster about. Most of the houses being of wood, they find warm commoditue quarters; quarters which are utterly inaccessible to the broom of the houseman. I use the word houseman, because there is no such thing as a housemaid in Turkey. These little animals are so prompt and ferecious in their assaults, and have, moreover, such a keen appreciation of the delicacy of any fresh arrival from a distant country, that they keep a stranger in a perpetual state of liveliness and motion: which ingeloubless, extremely beneficial to his health. especially if he slothful.

No idea of disgree or dirt seems to attach to a houseful of fleas—these pugnacious little animals AN ORIENTAL PASTIME.

change, the depreciation of Kaimes, and the rise of gold.

No individual throughout the country seems to be able to resist the fascination of hunting a flea wherever he sees one. What trapping was to the Red Indians—what the fox chase was to the squire of our childhood—flea-hunting is to the Oriental; it is a passion—a delight. As soon as the lively little game breaks cover, no matter where or when, the eyes of the Perote lights up with the unwonted fire; a keer sporting expression passes over his face; he raises his hand steel-thilly by a sort of instinct; the certainty of his aim might pass into a proverb, and the next moment the hand has descended, and the Petote is twiddling his finger and thumb with tranquil satisfaction, and has resumed his occupation, be it what it may. He would stop to catch a fles, on his way to be hanged or to be married. He must have missed appointments, lost fortunes, by the habit; but it is engrafted in his nature, and is unconquerable.

have missed appointments, lost fortunes, by the habit; but it is engrafted in his nature, and is unconquerable.

There gone into rooms where fleas lay thick as dust upon the floor, and each of my steps must have killed hundreds of them; but if I ever ventured to express the smallest distaste upon the cocasion, I became as incomprehensible to the men of Pera, as if I had told a Chinese I disliked stewed dog. They will even ague the point with you if you press them closely, and maintain that the flea is like the Mirabeus—the friend of men. They will tell you that fleas keep up an irritation of the skin, which is highly beneficial in a hot country, and prevents the accumulation of morbid humors. On my remonstrating also with a hotel waiter about finding them constantly in the bread—some baked and some alive—that individual, who spoke all the languages of the world in bad French assured the bakes had superstition about them, and be thought them lucky! Pumping him with a light hand, I found he was not sluggether free from the same idea himself, and that it obtains generally throughout the rountry. He said, that is allay the irritation they occasioned, was at all times a pleasing occupation; and that it was to be remarked, that no fine ever hit a man in a dangerous place; or injured his eye, or his ear, or opened an artery, therefore fleas were the friends of mes. He did not know (nor do I) what many of the Perote gentlemes would do if it were not for the unfailing entertainment supplied by fleas. He believed they kept people who had nothing to do out of mischief. He said that the courteous catching of a fea upon the person of another, offered a frequent and pleasant opportunity of commencing a conversation, or beginning an acquintance; that acquaintances so formed had often ripened into warm and lasting friendships. He had known even more than one instance of Perote marriages, brought about by a cheefful and inoffensive gallantry of this kind. He was much surprised at this unjustifiable anger of an Englishlady at dinner, upon whose shoulder he had succeeded in catching a flea by an adroit movement of his left hand, while his right was occupied in prostuting her ut dist of kid stuffed with hestnown. She screamed and her gentleman threatened to horsewhip him. He conflued his feeling were hutt and his reason confounded by his behaviour on the part of my country people. No Perote lady would have raised her eyes from her plate during such an occurrence. I endeavoured to soothe him by saying that we were a people who lived in an inclement climate, and to whom, therefore, the utility of the flea was unknown: but he would not credit it. He could not bring his mind to bear all at once upon a fact which appeared to him so remarkable. I was like the Christian knight who told an African king that he could ride his horse dry-footed over some of our rivers in winter, and who was immediately bowstrung. I remember a personage of no mean rank once calling my attention especially to see him hust and kill two fleas, who were reposing together on the linen cover on a sofa. He began by rousing them into dight with the golden point of his pencil, and then pursued them to a state of the liveliest excitement for some minutes (he had long white beard, and was a man of august presence.) At length he ran down his game, and taking them in ADULTERATION OF VINEGAR, MILE, &c., ADULTERATION OF VINEGAR, MILK, &c., IN LONDON.—A large meeting was held a short time since in London M. Scholfield, M. P., in the chair, to discuss the adulterations in foods, drinks, &c., practised by dealers, on the people.

J. Postage, Lecturer on Anatomy, at Sydenham College, Birmingham, presented a statement from which we quote the following curious passages:—

ing curious passage....
"Much of the malt vinegar I have met with is little less than oil of vitrol diluted with water, colored with burnt sugar, and a small quantity of the real article added to a small quantity of the reat article added to give it the proper oder. A solution of the chloride of barium soon detects the acid. Even in Stilton cheese, for which I paid the best price, calcareous nodules of carbonate of time have been detected. Cream of tarbest price, calcareous notates of carbonate of time have been detected. Cream of tartar is an article of common consumption in the summer months, under the agreeable form of lemonade, ginger-beer, and other cooling beverages. I have examined recently a sample which contained three parts of alum in four, and the druggist was obliged to mix it with a better article to make it saleable. The price piad per cwt. was £5; alum is only 10s. per cwt., consequently the person alluded to has been defrauded to the extent of £3 7s. 6d. This cream of tarter, or rather tarter cream, will, I dare say, be shortly sold and consumed in Birmingham, under the characteristic cognomen of pop! With what effects? Spirits of sweet nitre and spirits of sal volatile are both sold much diluted with water—the former often contains aquafortes, and thus a mild and useful medicine is rendered irritating and injurious; the latter in one case lately pro-useful medicine is rendered irritating and injurious; the latter in one case lately produced indirectly serious consequence.

Within a mile of the centre of this midland seat of intelligence, in a back street with a very aristocratic name, resides, or did reside, a milkman, celebrated for the thickness and richness of his cream. He was thought to have rare cows. His name was up and he drove a roaring trade. His cream consisted of very finely prepared chalk, and a modeum of cow cream, to which a rich butter tint was given by turmeric. The real cream he churned. My informant is the druggist who regularly sold him these articles."

EXTRAORDINARY LONGEVITY.-We were informed yesterday by Dr. Snowden, of Prince George's county, of the death of a female servant on Saturday last, who was temale servant on Saturday last, who was upward of 130 years of age. She was raised by his great-grandfather and has been blind since 4812, and has given birth to 20 children, the youngest of whom is eighty years of age; and is now living in this city. VISIT TO A FRIGATE OF THE BALTIC Canton, who was killed in an e

It is a strange sight to inspect a frigate ready for sea, and to contrast with the order which prevails in every department the multiplicity of occupations which are being carried on. In one spot is the carpenter's shop, replete with tools of every description, and by its side sawyers are at work over their saw-pit, as though they were about to erect some substantial edifice on shore. There, again, are rope-makers busily engaged at their occupation; and, because two hands are not sufficient, they are holding a third yarn in their teeth. At a huge cooking apparatus on the main deck, cause two hands are not sufficient, they are holding a third yarn in their teeth. At a huge cooking apparatus on the main deek, soup and beef and vegetables are holling for a crew of 530 men; there are sheep in the pens, and fowls in their cages, feeding as peaceably and quietly as though they were on shore, instead of between two long rows of 53's diversified by a few 68-pounders. Sailmakers are at work, too; and neither the navigation of the Baltic nor the reception of the "Rooshams" appear to mar the jolity or harmony of the crew and marines as they eat their mess and sip their grog. You walk to one end of the main deek, and a chart shows you the position of every man in the ship. There are the fourteen men to every gun; there is a long train of men, who hand the powder from one to another, and to the men at the guns; there are boarding parties, and there are those who attend on the wounded; others who carry shell, hear red-hot shot, or guard the magazine; each and all have their alloted place in the work of destruction; but the crew heed it not, and every one appears lighthearted as though he were starting on a summer excursion. But there is something more than light-heartedness and activity which arrests the attention of a visitor. On each side of the upper deek, ranked in deadly order, black and polished are thirty-two's, and the four sixty-eights; at the bow is the long swivel gun, traversing any direction, and capable of sweeping at any point within a semi-circle of more than a mile radius; and there are, two, the brass cannonades for the ship's boats. In every possible place between the guns are racks point within a semi-circle of more than a mile radius; and there are, two, the brass cannonades for the ship's boats. In every possible place between the guns are racks filled with shot greased and shining; and there are red, dull, rusty-looking hollow shot; and there are furnaces for heating balls, and huge tongs for taking them from the fire and conveying them to the muzzles of the gun. On the main deck there is again the same array of guns along each side; four sixty-eights are in the centre, and they are flanked on each side by thirty-two's. On racks over head are the sponges and other utensils, rammers for charging the guns, short pistols, bright poleaxes, sharp cutlasses, shells in small square boxes, strapped with iron bars, piles of muskets, boarding pikes, and piles of shot in every direction. Descend another stage, and you are in the midst of stores of all kinds. Here is biscuit for six months for more than 500 men, barrels of pork and beef and puncheons of rum out of number. There are other stores, in which you may lies elly find everything from a needle to an mere than 300 men, barrets of pork and beef and puncheons of rum out of number. There are other stores, in which you may literally find everything from a needle to an anchor; yarns and twine, and ropes by miles, spare muskets, spare cutlasses, spare pistols, apare something of everything. Another stage, you are below water level, and amid the levers and cranks, and pistons of the collossal engines; another descent, and you are in the furnace room, where light and ventilation reach you by a shaft, some forty or fifty feet above on deck. Pass through "serew alley"—a long low, dark passage, half the length of the ship—and a massive iron shaft some 100 feet long is revolving with furious velocity, to which were the screw attached, the whole mass—3247 tons, 586 men, 51 guns, with all the provisions and stores—would be propelled through the water without wind or sail, at the rate of more than a mile in five minutes. n a mile in five minutes

Moving Chronicle.

Transmax Extrosion.—A shocking catastrophe occurred at Wilmington, Delaware, on the Sist uit. Three wagons laden with near 450 kegs of gunpowder, from Dupont's Mill, passing through the city, blew up with a trememendous explosion, killing all the horses and drivers, causing the loss of several other lives, blowing down several dwelling houses and stables, and injuring a large number of other building. Nearly all the window glass in the city was broken, and in many houses distant from the scene of the explosion the plaster was knocked down from the walls and ceiling. Some of the effects of the explosion were most autonishing; of the fourteen horses comprising the teams, most of them were blown to fragments; in some cases pieces of heavy iron work were driven through their books. Heads lags, hoofs, &c., were picked up hundreds of feet from the scene of the scrountaines that in every direction. It is a currious circumstance that in every case the ground in every direction. It is a currious circumstance that in every case the iron ahous were torn from the hoofs of the animals by the force of the explosion. Canton, who was killed in an encounter with a bear on Monday, last. It appears that about noon on that day, a bear, which for some time had been observed prowling about the neighbourhood, having attempted to devour one of his cows, the unfortunate deceased set out in parsuit of the savage monster; end at about 7 o'clock in the evening a report of a gun, evidently discharged at a great distance off was heard. His absence after this having excited some uneasiness in the minds of his friends, a party of them went in search of him, and on the following day discovered his dead body, in such a state as indicated that after a severe struggle, he had fallen a prey to the attack of his ferocious destroyer. His features were completely disfigured, and his gun, broken in pieces, was picked up close by. The bear was lying dead at his side! Canton has left five children to deplore his untimely end.—Quebe Chronicle.

LARE SUPERIOR SILVER.—The Detroit

LAKE SUPERIOR SILVER .- The Detroit LAKE SUPERIOR SILVER.—The Defroit Tribune says it learns, from undoubted authority, that the Minnesota Copper Company have recently, at a single blast blown out eight thousand dollars worth of pure native silver. We have conversed, adds the Tribune, with gentlemen who have seen some of the specimens, and others who have just returned from the mine, and they assure us that there is no humbug either as to the amount, or the quality of the ore. Lake Superior bids fair, to be as rich in silver mines as it is known to be in copper and iron. iron.

An Ancient Book.—The oldest book An Ancient Book.—The oldest book in the United States, it is said, is a manuscript Bible in the possession of Dr. Witherspoon of Alabama, written over a thousand years ago! He describes it as follows:—"The book is strongly bound in boards of the old English oak, and with thongs, by which the leaves are also well bound together. gether. The leaves are entirely made of parchment, of a most superior quality of fineness and smoothness, little inferior to the best satin. The pages are all ruled with great accuracy, and written with great uni-formity and beauty, in the old German text hand, and divided off into chapters and verses. The first chapter of every book in the Bible is written with a large capital of inimitable beauty, and splendidly illuminated with red, blue, and black ink, still in vivid colours; and no two of the capital letters in the book are precisely alike."

The Christian Wife.—Cheateaubriand discourses beautifully on this theme.—
'Man in uniting himself to her, regains a part of his substance; his soul, as well as his body, is incomplete without his wife he has strength, she has beauty; he labours in the field; he does not understand the details of domestic life, the his companion prepares the repast, and her smiles sweeten existence.—He has his crosses and the partner of his couch is there to soften them; his day may be sad and troubled, but in the chaste arms of his wife he finds comfort and repose.—Without woman man would be rude, gross and solitary. Woman spreads around him the flowers of existence, as the creepers of the forest decorate the majestic oak, with their odoriferous garlands. Finally, the pair live united, and in death are not separable; in dust they lay side by side, and their souls are united beyond the limits of the womb.' TIE CHRISTIAN WIFE .- Cheateaubriand

The Turkish Stave Trade.—This traffic is carried on only among the Western tribes of the Caucasus mountains, and the fair Circassian maidens look forward with delight to the hour when they shall be sold by their parents to the Turkish traders, and for the desired end brave the miseries of the Black Sea passage with pleasure. The Russians objected to this slave trade, inasmuch as it afforded supplies of gunpowder and other important articles to their enemies, the warlike Circassians; and when at the time of the Adrianople treaty, they obtained the Western Caucasus, they established a line of forts along the shore to prevent the trade. A few years since how, ever Russia withdrew, in effect her prohibition of the slave trade, by declaring that though the Turkish vessels might come to Annapa and buy as many young Circassians as they pleased, the slaves must all be entered as Russian subjects travelling to Trebizonde or Constantinople, and provided with Russian passports. By this shrewd policy the slaves have a right to claim the protection of the Russian Ambassadors and Consuls in Turkey, and thus all such Circassians who may be raised to high offices of state in Turkey will be led to regard Russia as there natural protector.—When

How To RECEIVE YOUR PASTOR.—When your minister calls to make you a friendly visit, receive him without ceremony. His time is precious, and he cannot well afford to wait for you to change your dress, perform your toilet, and put things to rights. He calls to see you, not your clothes. And do not weary him with your apologies. He would much prefer to hear you speak of your moral concernments. And if you invite him to sit at your table, give him precisely such food as your family would have if he had not visited you.

Improve your time while he is with you, in conversation upon such subjects as tend to increase your knowledge and your happiness. Preachers are men, and they know that people have their affairs to see to; and if your minister is a man of common sense, and finds that you put yourself out on his account, he will not soon come again, lest by so doing he should put you to some inconvenience. Be kind enough to see him just as you are when he calls—he will like you the better for it.

A Transformation.—The peach originally was a poisonous almond. Its fleshy parts were then used to poison arrows, and was for this purpose introduced into Persia. The transplantation and cultivation, however, not only removed its poisonous qualities, but produced the delicious fruit we now enjoy.

GENERAL INTELLIGENCE.

ENGLESH ORDERS FOR ARRECAN SHIPS.—The Liverpool Courier of May 12th says: "Capt. McKay, brother of the celebrated ship-builder, takes his departure in the steamer America for Boston this afternoon. Since his arrival here in the Lightning, he has made arrangements for his brother to build for different Liverpool houses nearly £200,000 worth of shipping; a pretty good specimen of the business habits of the enterprising Yankee."

One Winar—The State Journal (Columbus) says: There is no danger of famine in Ohio. We assure the timid we never saw the wheat prospects more promising at this season of the year. There will be pleuty of grain raised in Ohio this asson to supply the inhabitants of four such States; so there is no danger of starvation.

four such States; so there is no danger of starvation.

MARYLAND WHEAT.—In Ann Arundel County the wheat measured three to four feet nearly two weeks since. In Kent County some of the farmers are afraid that wheat is growing too fast. It is thought that there are peaches enough left to make a good crop.

The SOUTH.—Harvest has already commenced in Georgia, and they are rejoicing in new wheat flour. We notice one man who after harvesting his wheat, plowed up the stubble and planted corn.

ILLINOIS WHEAT.—A letter from Manchesters III., mays wheat never looked better than it does this spring, shough the chinchbug threatens destruction to some crops.

"THE KNOW NOTHINGS."—There was recently a hotly contested election at Bridgeport, Connecticut, for a State Representative to supply a vacancy. Philo F. Barnum, and a Rev. Mr. Smint were the candidates. When the poliswere counted, great was the astonishment at discovering that Thos. H. Oakly, whose name had never been mentioned for the office publicly, had been elected by a majority of 856! Where the tickets came from and who voted them remains a complete mystery. The citizens "know nothing" about it.—Herrisburg Journal.

Shir Third.—As the demand for ships has increased and the most accessible timber lands have been exhausted, ship-timber has become exceedingly valuable, and an important question arises as to whence future supplies are to be derived, and what effect the growing scarcity of timber will have upon the interests of commerce. Already ship builders are sometimes greatly embarrassed for lack of suitable timber; and in a few years, except from the distant interior, the supply must entirely fail. Speculators and foreign agents are scattered through the country, in all directions, from the British Provinces to the Florida Capes, supplying not only the demand for domestic consumption, but sending off enormous quantities of timber to European continent. The rapid extension of the European continent. The rapid extension of trailroads has opened vast sections of timber lands, affording temporary relief, but New York and New Jersey, which were formerly the great timber States, have nearly failed, and Virginia, Delaware, and Maryland, are now the principal timber States. Very recently, live oak has been procured from Louisiana, knoes from Michigan, and other varieties of timber in this State, but it is too straight for ordinary purposes.

State, but it is too straight for ordinary purposes.

The New York market is chiefly supplied with occasional arrivals from Ohio. Live oak framing timber comes from South Carolina. Georgia, Florida and Louisiana. One of our largest builders says that eventually some other means of strengthening ships must be adopted than those now employed. The rich forests of the South and West present rich fields for individual enterprise, where large purchases are being made; and though they may now be quite inaccessible, are only reserved for a time, till they shall be penetrated by railroads, and become mines of wealth to their possessors.—

PATENT ARTIFICIAL SLATE. This PATENT ARTIFICIAL SLATE. This composition has been upwards of, three years extensively used in New Branswick, Newfoundland and Prince Edward Island, the Canadas and Nova Scotia, principally for covering shingled roofs, as you will perceive by the accompanying circulars of certificates. It has been severely tested, and proved most successfully its fire proof qualities under most extraordinary circumstances; so much so, that I am of opinion that Fire Igsurance Companies should encourage its general application to all kinds of wood building (where the color would be no objection to its being used, such as he back, walls of dwellings in the city, out houses, ware-houses, &c., as well as the roofs) by lowering the premium of insurance on such buildings as are covered.

Ludicaous Mischier.—The following

'droll'incident' is related in the Knickerbocker, as having occured to a lady of respectability in Brooklyn:—"The lady has a charming little boy, very observing, imitative, and active. The child had noticed the postman constantly leaving letters, and moving off quickly, and he thought it would be a very fine thing to become a postman.
So he went one day to his mamma's escritoire, and took out some twenty-five or thirty letters, tied them up, and salfied forth, leaving one at every house, and moying off quickly. The lady was rather surprised when her next neighbour brought her an open letter, which she said somebody had left at her door; but what was her astonishment when visiting hour arrived. For another, and another, and another lady coming in, all bringing open letters, until her ample parlour was completely crammed. You need not doubt the mirth and fun graw fast and furious, as each lady entered with the same tale, and the little fellow was elated beyond measure to find what a capital postman he was; but the best of the fun was, that every lady, one and all, asserted she had not unfolded or read a word of it."

The Origin of the term "He is a brick."

The Origin of the term "He is a brick." is as follows.—One eastern prince went to see another, who, having been shown all the curiosities, he expressed a wish to see the fortification. Hereupon the entertainer took him to a review of his troops, and exclaimed, "These are my fortifications—every man is a brick."

Hens fed with wheat and rice and constantly supplied with fresh spring water, charcoal, lime, wood ashes, will produce eggs in the greatest quantity and best quality. The last species of fow play in N. Y. is the glueing feathers on the legs of large common fowls and selling them for Shanghaiss.

Antonie le Duc, a Frenchman, ran ten miles in 58 minutes, at Eagle harbor, beating two Indians and an Irishman, and winning $100. The Irishman gave out in the fourth mile, one Indian in the eighth, and the other Indian was just a mile behind the victor, who was borne off upon the shoulders of his friends; but not liking that sort of glory, he dropped upon his feet and ran away from them all, shouting "Free la France 1".

This may certify, that for about four years I was seriously afflicted with a disease in the hip, which Physicians termed Neurology, or Sciatic Rheumatism, and reserted to various remedies without any permanent relief; have been under the care of a regular Physician for six months at a time. Last spring, had a very violent attack, which haid me up, when I made use of the Cramp and Pain Killer, prepared by Messrs. Curtis & Perkins, of Bangor. It gave me immediate relief, and I do not hesistate to say, that it is the best article I ever used. I cheerfully recommend it to all who may be afflicted with similar complaints.

These Bitters are worthy the attention of invalids.

Possessing great virtues in the rectification of diseases

The "Philadelphia Saturday Gozette," says of Dr. Hoogland's German Bitters.

"It is seldom that we recommend what are termed Patent Medicines, to the confidence and patronage of our readers; and therefore when we recommend Dr. Hoofland's German Bitters, we wish it to be distinctly understood that we are not speaking of the nostrams of the day, that are noised about for a brisf period and then forgotten after they have done their guilty race of mischief, but of a medicine long established, universally prized, and which has met the hearty approval of the faculty itself."

"Scott's Weekly," said, Sur. 25...

" Scott's Weekly," said, Aug. 25-

"Scotl's Weektly," said, Aug. 20—

'Dr. Hoofland's German Bitters, manufactured by Dr. Jackson, are now recommended by some of the most prominent members of the faculty as article of much efficacy in cases of female weakness. Persons of debilitated constitutions will find these Bitters advantageous to their health, as we know from experience the salutary effect they have upon a weak system." MORE EVIDENCE.

J. G. Moore, Esq., of the Daily News said,

October 31st:—
"Dr. Hoopland's German Bitters.—We are trying this renowned medicine for a stubborn disease of the bowels, and can with truth testify to its efficacy. We have taken the contents of two bottles, and we have derived more benefit from the experiment than we derived previously from years of allopathic treatment at the hands of our first physicians."

allopathic treatment at the hands of our first physicians."

Hon. C. D. Hineline, Mayor of the City of Camden, N. J., suys:

"HoopLann's Germann Bitters.—We have seen many flattering notices of this medicine, and the source from which they came induced us to make inquiry respecting its merits. From inquiry we were persuaded to use it, and must say we found it specific in its action upon diseases of the liver and digestive organ, and the powerful influence it exerts upon nervous prostration, is really surprising. It calms and strengthens the nerves, bringing them into a state of repose, making sleep refreshing.

If this medicine was more generally used, we are satisfied there would be less elokness, as from the stomach, liver and nervous system, the great majority of real and imaginary diseases emanate. Have them in a healthy condition and you can bid defance to epidemics generally. This extraordinary medicine we would advise our friends who are at all indisposed, to give a trial—it will recommend itself. It should, in fact, be in every family. No other medicine can produce ovidences of the same merit."

In this mammon-worshipping Age, it is rare to find a man place his assefulness to the public, before his interest. During a late visit to the 'City of Spindles,' we were presented by a professional friend, to the cell-obrated Chemist, Da. J. C. Ayara, whose name is now perhaps, more familiar than any other, at the bed-side of sickness, in this country. Knowing the unebrated Chemiat, Dz. J. C. Axxn, whose name is now perhaps, incre familiar than any other, at the bedside of sickness, in this country. Knowing the unprecedent popularity of his medicines, and the immense sale of them, we had appeted to find him a millionare, and rolling in wealth. But no, we found him in his laboratory, busy with his labores, among his crucibles, alembics, and retorts—giving his thes personal care to the compounds, on the virtues of which, thousands hang for health. We learned, that notwithstanding his vest business, and its prompt returns in cash, the Ductor is not rich. The reason assigned is, that the material is contly, and be persists in making his preparations of expensively, that the nett profit is small.—Imerican Furmer, Phil.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT.

MOST ASTONISHING CURE OF SCROFULOUS ULCERS-A CASE CERTIFIED BY THE MAYOR OF BOSTON.

THE MAYOR OF BOSTON.

Copy of a Letter from J. Noble, Esq., Mayor of Boston, Lincolnshire.

To Professor Holloway,
Dear Sir,—Mrs. Sarah Dixon, of Liquorpond street, Beston, has this day deposed before me that for a considerable period she was severely afflicted with Scrofslous Sores and Ulcers in her arms, feet, legs, and other parts of her body; and although the first of medical advice was obtained, at the cost of a large sum of money, she obtained no abatement of suffering, but gradually grew worse.

Being recommended by a friend to try your Ointment, she procured a small pot, and a box of the Pills, and before that was all used, symptoms of amendment appeared. By persevering with the medicines for a short time longer, according to the directions, and strictly aftering to your rules, as to diet, &c., she was perfectly cured, and now enjoys the best of health.

MEDICAL AID HAD PAILED.

Copy of a Letter from Mrs. Elizabeth Yeates, of the Post Office, Mdwick Road, near Bognor, Sussez, dated January 12th, 1858.

To Professor Hollowar,
Sir,—I suffered for a considerable period from a severe attack of Erysipeles, which at length settled in my log, and resisted all medical treatment. My sufferings were very great, and I quite despaired of any permanent amendment, when I was advised to have recourse to your Oinsment and Pille. I did so without delay, and am happy to say the result was eminently successful, for they effected a radical cure of my leg and restored me to the enjoyment of health. I shall ever speak with the utmost confidence of your medicines, and have recommended them to others in this neighborhood similarly afflicated, who derived equal benefit.

I am, Sir, your obliged and faithful Servant, warded to Professor Holloway for publication, by Mr. B. Dixon, Chemist, King-st., Norwich.

Copy of a Letter from Captain Smith, of Great Yarmouth, dated January 19th, 1853.

To Mr. Dixon,
Dear Sir,—I send you the particulars of a cure effected by Professor Holloway's invaluable medicines:—Mr. John Walton, late in Her Majosty's Service, in the British Fleet at Malta, had a very bad ulcerated ancle, acd after having been in the Malta Hospital for six months, was sent to England as an invalid to Portsmouth Hospital, where he remained an inmate four months, there, as at Malta, refusing to have the limb amputated, he was turned out incurable. He then came to Yarmouth, and was under a medical gentleman for about three menths, but his ancle became so much worse that all hope was lost. At this period, by my advice, he tried Helloway's Ointmeut and Pills, which, by unremitted application, healed all the ulcers, and restored him to perfect health and strength.

I remain, Dear Sir, yours very truly,
(Signed) JOHN SMITH.

SURPRISING CURE OF A BAD BREAST, NER-VOUS DEBILITY, AND GENERAL ILL HEALTH.

Copy of a Letter from Mr. T. P. Ker, Chemist, &c., Lover Moss-lane, Manchester, dated February 12th, 1853.

To Professor Hollowax,
Dear Sir,—I have great pleasure in forwarding to you the particulars of a very extraordinary cure of a had breast, effected colely by the use of your celebrated Oistment and Fills. Mr. Martha Bell, of Fittstreet, in this town, had been for a considerable time laboring under nervous debility, loss of appetite, and general ill health, occasioned by ulcerated wounds in the breast. She had had much experience in the use of all the known remedies for the care of ulcers, but without any beneficial result; in fact she had nearly lost all faith and hope of a cure being effected. In this distressing and painful condition of body and mind, she was persuaded to have recourse to your invaluable Gintment and Fills, which she immediately did, and in the course of a very short time the effect produced was most actonishing; her appetite was speedily improved, and the sores and ulcers in the breast gradually healed, and the nervous excitement of her system was wholly removed.

I remain dear Bir, yours faithfully,

Among the numerous discoveries Science has made in this generation to facilitate the business of life—increase, its enjoyment, and even prolong the term of human existence, none can be named of mere real value to mankind, than this contribution of Chemistry to the Healing Art. A vast trial of its virtues throughout this bread country, has proven beyond a doubt, that no medicine or combination of medicines yet known, can so surely control and cure the numerous varieties of pulmonary disease which have hitherto swept from our midst thousands and thousands every year. Indeed, there is now abmalant reason to believe a Remedy has at length been found which can be relied on, to cure the most dangerous affections of the lungs. Our space here will not permit us to publish any proportion of the cures effected by its use, but we would present the following:—and refer further enquiry to my American Almanac, which the agent below named, will always be pleased to further the helow named, will always be pleased to further the theory maned, will always be pleased to further the sent the maned, will always be pleased to further the continuous of these statements.

J. C. Ayer. Dear Sir,—My little son four years old has just recovered from a sovere attack of malignant Scarlet Fever, his throat was rotten, and every person that visited him, presonneed him a dead child. Having used your Cherry Protromal in Childrenia, in the winter of 1850, for a severe attack of Broachitis, with entire succes, I was induced to ry it on my little boy. I gave him a tea-spoon-ful every three hours, commencing in the morning, and by ten o'clock at night, I found a decided change for the better, and after three days use he was able to eat or drink without pala.

Its use in the above named disease will save many a child from a premature grave, and relieve the anxiety of many a fond parent.—For all affections of the Throat and Lungs, I believe it the best medicine extant. A feeling of the deepest gratitude, prompts me in addressing you these lines,—but for your important discovery, my little boy would now have been in another world.
