A Child of Sorrow.

CHAPTER XL.

"It is drizzling with rain—one of those charming drizzles which gets into your ears and drives down the back of your neck and sticks you to your nose; and there is a cold, spiteful wind that makes you wish you were a man, so that you could swear, without being called unlady-like; and the mud an ankle deep—the same colour and consistency as the brown sauces they always give you at the restaurants; and the houses look as if they wanted a good wash; in fact, it's one of those evenings when London looks at its worst. I should think the intelligent foreigner—I wonder why all foreigners are described as intelligent? they always seem to me excessively stupid—must wonder why we English are so proud of it, and why, being so rich, we don't pull it down, or pay one of the inventing Americans to invent a new climate for us. Yes; it's wet and muddy and dirty; but, oh, how I love it! I declare to you, Maida, that as I sloshed along just now, I wanted to sing; and I would have done so, only I was afraid that the passers-by might stop and hale me off to a lunatic asylum—fancy, singing in the streets, from sheer joy at being in London on such an evening as this!—if they had, you wouldn't have got this stuff for your new dress."

Carrie drew a flat parcel from under her cape and dopped it down on the table—on the same old table in the same, dear old shabby but comfortable room in Coleridge Street; for by sheer good luck they had found their old rooms just being vacated, and with a relief, almost amounting to joy on Carrie's part, had re-entered on them.

They had been back nearly a month now, and to both girls that momentous, almost tragic time in Australia seemed well-nigh a dream; but often Maida started from sleep, with a cry, as she woke from an actual dream in which she was once more confronting Robert Broseley in the lonely hut. Carrie had been very greatly, anxious about her when they started from Melbourne, for Maida was nearly worn out with the strain of that terrible time; but she recovered on the voyage during which the two girls received innumerable kindnesses from their fellow-passengers and officers, and by the time she had reached London she was in perfect health and stronger than she had been since her parting with Heroncourt.

For a week or two they had remained quiet, Carrie insisting that Maida should rest; but their stock of money was giving out, and Maida would now have to face the world again and earn their living. In her heart of hearts she was not sorry that it should be so, for the tide of life was flowing strongly through her young veins, and though the loss and sorrow of her life would remain with her while life lasted, she turned to her art with the eagerness born of the conviction that only by work could she find consolation and solace.

She was sitting at the piano now working at her recitation which she was to give at a great house in three days' time, and the old dreamy look was in her eyes as she turned them to Carrie. She was still pale—the delicate ivory of her complexion was rarely tinted—but her eyes were bright and there was that little resolute curve of the sweet lips which was indicative of firmness and resolution.

"It's awfully pretty, I think," said Carrie, as she cut the string of the parcel in the reckless and extravagant way peculiar to her sex; "and I've got a pattern which will suit you down to the ground. It will be quite a treat to see you in an evening-frock again; and I mean to do your hair in the dear, old fashion, which has come in again, thank goodness! in a knot low behind, and not scragged up as if you were just going to wash yourself. How I did hate that style! No one has been, I suppose?"

She put the question casually, and began to hum with an air of indifference; but Maida did not deceive.

"No; no one has called," she said. "Very well, then; they can stop away," said Carrie, with a toss of her chin. "Out of sight is out of mind with some persons."

"But Ricky does not know we are in England," said Maida, gently.

"Oh, yes, he does," retorted Carrie. "You forget the paragraph which the agent put into the society papers announcing the all-important fact that Miss Maida Carrington had returned to England."

"Ricky may not have seen it."

"He reads all the society papers at that little pot-house he calls his club," said Carrie, grimly. "Young men have nothing else to do but read papers and smoke cigarettes. I bought 'Classy Snips' as I came along. Here's the paragraph, large as life. And there's one about the Glassburys. They're at Nice still."

"I am glad," said Maida, in a low voice.

She did not want to meet anyone who would remind her of Byrne. Lady Glassbury would ask questions, would insist upon pleading Byrne's "cause"; and Maida did not want anything to come between her and her work; she wanted to pretend to herself that she was forgetting Byrne; she wanted to forget that terrible time in Australia.

She had written to Mrs. Broseley, thanking that lady for all her kindness, but had not attempted to explain their sudden departure from Milda Wolda, saying simply that she and Carrie had found that it was imperatively necessary they should return to England. The letter had cost her a great deal of thought and anxiety, and when, after many experiments, she had written it, it had seemed cold and ungrateful; but she could not enter into particulars, could not tell the fond mother of her son's villainy. She wanted to forget everything, to give the whole of her heart to her work which, with her love for Carrie, was the only thing that could make life endurable.

Carrie took off her hat and jacket and tidied her hair—it required constant attention, for she had "put it up" now, and, as is usual with young girls during the early stages of that mysterious operation, she was always under the impression that it was coming down—and at once set to work on the dress.

"Just like old times, isn't it Maida?" she said, cheerfully; but she checked a sigh notwithstanding; for where was Ricky, to romp with her as of old; though, of course, she was too old, with her hair up, to romp any more. "Why, what an idiot I am!" she exclaimed suddenly; "I've forgotten the lining. I never had many brains, and I seem to have lost what I had. Maida, I am strongly of opinion that it would do you all the good in the world to run into Tottenham Court Road and get the lining for me."

Maida smiled, for she knew very well that Carrie had "forgotten" the lining so that she might have an excuse for sending her out; for, in Carrie's opinion, Maida stuck to the house and her work too closely. She put on her old-fashioned things and paused as she left the room to fondly stroke the recently done-up hair.

"Are you sure that you don't want me to go right to the end of Oxford Street?"

"No; I think Tottenham Court Road will be exercise enough for you tonight," said Carrie, blandly. "Is my hair coming down?"

Maida had been gone scarcely a quarter of an hour when Sarah, hall-marked by smuts as of old, put her head in at the door, and said, with her dear, old grin:

"There's a gentleman to see you, Miss Carrie."

Carrie's heart leapt—though, she might have known that Ricky would not come in that ceremonious fashion—and in walked Mr. Spinner with his elastic smile and his brilliant display of teeth.

"I am indeed fortunate, Miss Carrie," he said, glancing round the room as if her solitude was a relief and a satisfaction. "I only saw the notice in the papers this morning, and here I am, you see."

"Yes, I see," said Carrie; "it's very kind of you; it's nice to know that we are not quite forgotten by everybody. Won't you sit down? Maida has gone out; but she won't be gone very long."

"I hope you are very well?" said Mr. Spinner; "you are looking quite blooming and quite—quite old."

"Thank you," said Carrie, sweetly. "I will say this for you, Mr. Spinner, that when you do pay a compliment, you do it handsomely."

"I mean quite grown up. You are quite a woman. I declare! And how have you been all this long while? I am longing to hear your adventure out in Australia."

"You will have to long," thought Carrie, but she said, aloud, "Oh, we're both all right. How is Ricky—I mean Mr. Clark?"

"Mr. Clark has left my service," said Mr. Spinner, blandly.

"Oh," commented Carrie. "Indeed! Where has he gone?"

Mr. Spinner shrugged his shoulders as if the subject were of no consequence.

"I really do not know at present. As usual, Miss Carrie, my visit is one of business and pleasure. Always combine the two if you can, is my motto."

"What's the business?" asked Carrie, as she bit off a piece of cotton. "I came to ask you if you could tell me where to find Lord Heroncourt," said Mr. Spinner, with a series of nods.

Carrie shook her head.

"Your business is a failure, then, Mr. Spinner. I haven't the least idea. I—we haven't seen him for months and months; he may be in Jericho or in Jerusalem." She sighed. "Why do you ask?"

"I have some important business with him," said Mr. Spinner. "I raised no objections when he left England, because I thought he was only going for a short time; but now that months have passed and he does not return, and nothing is heard of him, I am naturally anxious. You may not be aware that Lord Heroncourt is heavily indebted to me."

Carrie shrugged her shoulders.

"I'm sorry; but I don't know where he is. And that disposes of the business; now, what is the pleasure, Mr. Spinner? Did you say that Mr. Ricky—that Mr. Clark had not left you his address?"

"He did not, Miss Carrie," replied Mr. Spinner, succinctly. "And now for the pleasurable part of my visit, Miss Carrie, you may be aware that I am a man of some substance."

Carrie raised her eyes from her work and looked at the thin figure dubiously.

"I have a certain, shall I say considerable position in the world? I am a bachelor; there is no one to share my hearth and home, to—er—participate in the success which I have made in life. I have a fine practice, Miss Carrie, which is, I may say with truth, on the increase. I want a partner."

"Why don't you advertise for one?" asked Carrie, innocently.

Mr. Spinner put his head on one side and smirked.

"Not that kind of partner, Miss Carrie; not a business partner; but one of a more tender description. In a word, Miss Carrie, directly I heard that you had returned, I determined to carry out a purpose which for some time past I had been forming in connection with you. No one who has the privilege and happiness of enjoying your society could be insensible to your many charms; and I am, if I may say so, the most acute and appreciative of men. I say acute, because I foresee that you would develop into a most charming young woman; you have done so and have thus verified my anticipations. It is, therefore, without hesitation that I ask you to share my hearth and home and my well-earned prosperity."

Carrie dropped her work and stared at him.

"Eh?" she said, with her mouth slightly open, and an expression of perplexity on her pretty face. "Would you mind going all over it again? I've got it all wrong somehow."

"Surely you cannot misunderstand me, Miss Carrie," he said, with the wide grin that displayed every tooth in his head. "I am asking you to be my wife."

"What!" cried Carrie.

Then she leant back in her chair and laughed until the tears ran from her eyes.

(To be Continued.)

War Office, London, S.W. 1.

NOTICE!

Competition for Designs for a Memorial Plaque to be Presented to the Next-of-Kin of Members of His Majesty's Naval and Military Forces who have Fallen in the War.

INFORMATION FOR COMPETITORS

1. The memorial is to take the form of a bronze plaque, with an area of as near as possible 18 square inches; e. g., it may be a circle of 4 3/4 inches in diameter, or a square of 4 1/4 inches, or a rectangle of 5 by 3 3/5 inches.

2. The plaque is to be produced by casting from a model, which should be finished with precision.

3. All designs submitted must be actual models in relief in wax or plaster of the size indicated in paragraph 1. No models on a larger scale will be considered, and no competitor may submit more than two models.

4. The design should comprehend a subject and a brief inscription.

It is suggested that some symbolic figure subject should be chosen, but the following inscription has been decided upon:—

He Died for Freedom and Honour.

Since the surname of the person commemorated and the initials of his Christian names are to be engraved on the plaque, the design should be arranged so as to leave space for the name within the dimensions mentioned in paragraph 1. In the case of a rectangular design, this space should be left at the base; if the design is circular, a margin surrounding or partially surrounding it should be left free.

Competitors are reminded that the design should be essentially simple and easily intelligible.

5. Prizes to an aggregate amount of £500 will be awarded (in proportions to be subsequently decided), for a limited number of the most successful models. The award of such prize may, if the Judges think fit, be made conditional on certain modifications being made in the design. If none of the models submitted is, in the opinion of the Judges, of sufficient merit, no prize will be awarded. The names of competitors will not be revealed to the Judges, nor will the names of any but the pre-arranged artist or artists be published.

6. All competitors must be British-born subjects.

7. No framed models can be accepted, but each model should be packed in a small box and delivered to the Director, National Gallery, Trafalgar Square, W.C. 2, not later than 1st November, 1917. The model must not be signed, but should be marked on the back with a motto or pseudonym which should also be written on a sealed envelope containing the competitor's name and address. No other communication should be attached.

8. The models to which prizes are awarded shall be the sole property of the Government, who will arrange for the appearance of the artist's signature or initials on the finished plaque.

9. Further copies of these instructions may be obtained on application in writing to the Secretary, War Office, or to the Secretary, Admiralty, August 25, 1917.

ANOTHER FRENCH ADVANCE

Grand Headquarters of the French Army in France, Aug. 26 (By Associated Press).—The gallantry of French troops before Verdun continued forward again to-day when they attacked between Mormont Farm, Lachaux Wood, and advanced over 1,000 yards, capturing 1,000 prisoners. Territory south Beaumont heights and woods almost the village of Beaumont fell to their hands, despite most severe German counter attacks which under vigorous fire from French artillery. The first attack in the morning was checked for a time, but distance of numerous nests of machine guns was overcome by the dexter dash of the French troops would not be denied. The German artillery which seems to be weakening has been heavily lately but retreating under pressure, but has been wild and little harm been done.

GERMAN ATTACKS REPULSED

PARIS, Aug. 26.—Strong German attacks were repulsed last night on the Alsace and Verdun fronts. The war office announced that the assaults were broken up by the French fire, and that all French positions were maintained. More than 11,000 prisoners were taken to yesterday.

FURTHER BRITISH PROGRESS

LONDON, Aug. 26.—An official from British headquarters in France to-night reads: heavy rain has fallen throughout the day. This afternoon our troops attacked the enemy's positions east-south-east of Langemarck. First reports indicate that we have made satisfactory progress. The enemy attempted a raid on one of our positions north of Lens this morning, but was driven off with loss. Bombing and observation work for artillery were carried out vigorously yesterday by our airplanes. Enemy batteries, transports and infantry were effectively engaged with machine guns during the fine intervals the enemy air craft were active and aggressive. In the air fighting four German airplanes were brought down, three of which were driven down out of control. Two of ours are missing.

LESS QUIET

Canadian Headquarters, France, London, Aug. 27 (By Associated Press).—Special Correspondent to the Canadian Press.—During the past few days the Canadians in front of Lens have had a period of comparative quiet and have been able to consolidate their positions recently captured with little retaliation from the enemy and with surprisingly little loss. They have been pushed out at favorable points and where trenches could be connected up to shorten the front line has been done. The general result is that our men hold a compact line which on that part of the front west of Lens is about 600 yards from the enemy's main defensive position on the eastern side of the battle front section by means of strong outposts located in a concave position. The chief incident of operations on that front at the moment of writing occurred in connection with encounters between our patrols and those of the enemy in this queer No Man's Land of ruined houses. In a recent skirmish a German non-com. officer was wounded severely by his men who fled, leaving his wounds undressed. He was able to stay the flow of blood but could not drag himself back to his own line. Next day a Canadian patrol passed by on an outward trip and he tried to attract their attention. He failed then but on their return the patrol saw him and risked their lives in carrying him in. He expressed the views of German militarism when put into comfortable quarters in the casualty clearing station that would startle the gentlemen of Potsdam. During the clearing up of operations our men have destroyed three more machine guns and captured five, making a total of machine guns taken since August 15, forty-three. Twenty-one trench mortars are also among the spoils of war.

ANOTHER FRENCH ADVANCE.

Grand Headquarters of the French Army in France, Aug. 26 (By Associated Press)—The gallantry of the French troops before Verdun carried them forward again to-day when they attacked between Mormont Farm and Lachapelle Wood, and advanced another 1,000 yards, capturing nearly 1,000 prisoners. Territory south of Beaumont heights and woods and almost the village of Beaumont fell into their hands, despite most severe German counter attacks which came under vigorous fire from French artillery. The first attack in the centre was checked for a time, but the resistance of numerous nests of machine guns was overcome by the wonderful dash of the French troops who would not be denied. Posts have been pushed out at favorable points and where trenches could be connected up to shorten the front this has been done. The general result is that our men hold a compact line which on that part of the front west of Lens is about 600 yards from the burnt out area in the city. The enemy occupies the area between our line and his main defensive position on the eastern side of the burnt out section by means of strong outposts located in a concrete cellar. Watch Out For Anonymous Shoes

AN expert recently offered to tell the REGAL Shoe makers how to cut down the cost without effecting the appearance of the shoe.

The Head of the business said "My friend, we are not interested in taking something out of REGAL shoes—but in putting more into them."

The REGAL business grew from a small beginning. It was built on a knowledge of shoe leather—a study of shoe style and shoe service—of human feet and how to fit them, not in study of price tags and eye effects—not on a knowledge of wax and finish and leather substitutes.

Note the above illustration. This shoe is photographed with a foot in it—not stuffed with paper or filled out with a wooden form. It will look just like this on your foot, if you let the REGAL salesman fit you properly.

We call this shoe the Rugby. It is made of sturdy Oil Grain Russia Leather with full double soles of white-oak tanned leather. Made for all weathers and finished as neatly as a glove—perforated tip over a medium city toe, invisible eyelets half way up, hooks for the upper lacing, broad backstay from heel seat ending in the serviceable leather pull strap.

A lot of men buy "window shoes"—an eye full of shoe and price tag. Window style is not foot style. REGAL Shoes are all for the foot—good style and good shoe-sense. A hard combination to beat when you consider these new and wanted leathers, selected hides, special tannage, in Russets, Mahoganies, Blacks and Two-tone effects.

There never was a time when it was more important in buying to know who made the shoe—the men back of it, their idea, their purpose, and how much they are thinking about you.

Think for a moment of REGAL as an institution—the stake it has in the good-will of its two million customers: its forty REGAL stores in the Metropolitan centers; its thousands REGAL Special Agents in other towns and cities.

Every REGAL Shoe is signed with the REGAL name, and the price stamped on the sole of the shoe.

An anonymous shoe is like an anonymous letter—it evades responsibility.

It is our aim to deliver the best shoe-value in America for the money.

Good leather is scarce. The shoe situation is serious. Nobody can make the kind of shoe we think you ought to wear for $4 any more.

We advise you to get REGAL Shoes if you can.

GERMAN OFFICIAL.

BERLIN, Aug. 27. An official statement from the general headquarters, issued this morning says: A strong attack by the British this morning west of Ypres failed. During the afternoon a very violent artillery duel took place north east of the town before Verdun which in an early engagement remained in our hands. In the east an attack enabled us to take possession of important positions east of Czernowitz. Up to the present more than 1,000 prisoners and 6 machine guns are reported captured.

WILSON WILL REPLY.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27. Signs are in evidence of the despatch of President Wilson's reply to the peace proposals of Pope Benedict at an early date. Officials freely conceded the probability of an early completion of the communication, indicating that President Wilson and Secretary of State Lansing at least have agreed upon the basic features of the reply, so that what remains to be done is to put these ideas into diplomatic language. It is understood the rough draft of some important points already have been prepared. So far no authorized statement has been forthcoming as to the nature of the reply.

RUSSIAN FINANCE.

MOSCOW, Aug. 27. Vice-Premier Nekrasoff told the National Conference to-day how expenses had increased during the war. He said that in 1914 about 219,000,000 rubles of paper currency had been put in circulation, 223,000,000 in 1915 and 290,000,000 in 1916; that the first two months of 1917 there had been issued $46,000,000 and from March onward the issue averaged $32,000,000 rubles monthly. The budget, said M. Nekrasoff, was in a profoundly abnormal condition, because it had placed on one side the cost of the war, and thus in effect there were two budgets, one giving a false impression of prosperity, and the other concealing the Government's financial catastrophe. The Vice-Premier admitted that the new regime was costing the country much more than the old, and that the new administrative bodies were absorbing enormous sums, the Food Committee for instance. He said the financial difficulties were largely due to the extraordinary increase in wages of workers, which alone have been paid this year 900,000,000 rubles. Continuing, M. Nekrasoff enumerated a series of measures which would strengthen the financial position of the country, including various monopolies, especially on sugar, tea and matches. The Mayor of Moscow, it appears, says the population of the ancient capital does not support the anarchical minority, which was trying to detract from the importance of the conference. Premier Kerensky thanked the Mayor, saying that his speech would instill strength and confidence in the Government. The Conference adjourned to Monday.

SUCCESSFUL RAID.

LONDON, Aug. 27. A successful trench raid was made by the British east of Gostayevna, which is about a mile northeast of Wyachete, early to-day, the British official statement issued this morning says, and secured a few prisoners. There is nothing further of special interest to report.

RUSSIAN GENERAL KILLED.

LONDON, Aug. 27. General Poyosooki, commanding a Russian division, fell valiantly amidst his soldiers, who he was encouraging by his example during the fighting at Zoretti, says the official Roumanian war statement.

GERMAN OFFICIAL RESIGNED.

AMSTERDAM, Aug. 27. Dr. Von Strumme, German Secretary for Foreign Affairs, has resigned, according to news from Germany. He had decided to resign when Dr. Richard Von Kuehlemann, Secretary for Foreign Affairs, took office, but his inadequate rejoinder in the Norddeutsche Allgemeine Zeitung to the statements by James W. Gerard, former American Ambassador to Germany, hastened his removal.

MacMILLAN'S DISCOVERIES.

NEW YORK, Aug. 27. The important survey of the coast of Ellesmere Land including the establishing of the definite position of two new islands and the discovery of a heretofore unknown ice glacier which has been named "American Museum Glacier" second in size only to the Humboldt glacier, was announced in a telegram received to-day by the American Museum of Natural History from D. B. MacMillan, explorer and his party who have landed from the rescue ship Neptune at Sydney, N.S., and who expect to reach here Thursday. A valuable collection gathered by MacMillan is being shipped here by express. The telegram received to-day describes in detail the hazardous trip to Etah from Cape Herschell where MacMillan turned back. He states he found legible records of the British expedition in 1876 left there by Sir George Nares who was in command for his two ships the Discovery and Alert, left by Sir Arthur Young of the expedition and also the mail Pandora who subsequently visited the depots of Nares's expedition.

COALITION GOVT. IN AUSTRALIA.

ADELAIDE, Aus., Aug. 27. (Via Reuter's Ottawa Agency.)—A coalition government has been formed in South Australia. The Liberal party is represented in the ministry by Hon. H. Peake, premier, Sir R. Butler and Hon. N. G. Rice. The Nationalists by Hon. A. W. Styles, former Chief Secretary, Hon. R. P. Blundell, former Minister of Marine, and Mr. Jacobsen. The portfolios of the new ministers have not yet been allotted.

KORNILOFF TO REPORT.

PETROGRAD, Aug. 27. General Korniloff, Commander-in-Chief of the Russian Army, informed the press that he intends to make a report on the military situation to the Conference at Moscow, and hoped that good resolutions would be adopted.

ANOTHER TRIAL FOR THE MONARCHY.

ATHENS, Aug. 27. M. Boussies, Opposition member, raised a tumult in the Chamber when he declared that Constantine never abdicated, but only had been dismissed by the Entente Powers as proven by the fact that an act of abdication had not been presented to the Chambers. Premier Venizelos and other Deputies left their seats to protect M. Boussies from bodily injury from a majority of the members. Later the possibility and opportunities of establishing a republic in Greece was discussed. M. Venizelos declared that despite the weakening of the Royal Power through the fall of the King, the National Government, interpreting the feeling of the Chamber, thinks another trial should be given to the Royal Institution in Greece. It is certainly the last experiment we are making. I am certain the Greek people and a majority of the representatives will approve a sincere trial, in order to make strong the conditions for a mutual working of the regime of the crowned republic.

DISPOSED OF THE COAL.—The shipment of coal for the N. I. W. A. has been removed from the ship and delivered at the homes of the members who ordered it. We are informed that slightly over a ton weight was given in each order and besides this the Association hopes to hand back a handsome discount to those who ordered the coal.

Our Politics.

The Advocate continues to be exercised over our criticism—to be labouring under an uncomfortable sense of being obliged to clear itself of certain imputations without knowing exactly how to go about it. It avoids the difficulty by the usual device of attacking the other side and quotes us at great length to convict us of the old charges of insincerity and inconsistency. We thank it, however, for emphasizing in black type the very sentences we would have chosen to acquit ourselves completely of the charge. It is not in order to dig up again the bones of an old controversy, but to bring out a few useful morals that can be applied to every political controversy in the country, that we take the trouble to answer the Advocate.

Strong as the temptation is to retort the charge upon the maker and to expose the duplicity that has characterized Mr. Coaker's conduct throughout the course of events in the past few months, we will resist it. We will go further. We will give the Advocate credit for being sincere in its criticisms of the Telegram. We will even plead guilty to the charge of inconsistency, so far as a change of opinion can be called inconsistent. We have been guilty of the inconsistency of an employer who engages a servant, thinking him honest, and finding him a thief repudiates and dismisses him; or, to take an illustration more germane to the matter, of a voter who supports a party and finding it, confirmed in office, utterly negligent of its duties and forgetful of its promises, refuses it a second vote. The Advocate quotes much of our article of May 30th last. There is not a word of the quotation that we would retract to-day. The Advocate correctly emphasized those in it that were most important. That was the position then? At a critical period in our national life we had a do-nothing Government enjoying a small majority in Parliament but not even a majority of votes in the country. It made an offer of coalition to the Opposition. The latter, which is to say Mr. Coaker, spurned it contemptuously. It was too late, for one thing; for another, an election alone would serve the country's needs. Here then were the alternatives: a coalition government on the one hand, or, on the other, the status quo, leading either to the disturbance and distraction of a general election or to complete paralysis of government produced by the "talking till September" of Mr. Coaker and his proselytes. What individual with a spark of patriotism or public spirit would have hesitated to advocate the former of these alternatives? That was what we did and that was the only thing we could do. We regarded it, if the Advocate wishes to know, as the lesser of two evils, though we paid the Opposition the compliment of regarding it as very much the lesser. We genuinely and sincerely believed that the gentlemen composing it could bring to the imperative task of government much helpful assistance, helpful suggestions and helpful criticism. How completely we were deceived, how completely astray in that opinion, the subsequent events bear ample testimony.

That was the first stage: comes now the second. The coalition was, after all, mysteriously and secretly consummated. If we had been so confident in our advocacy of it as we have been represented as being, we should have transferred some of our enthusiasm to print. Instead, we said nothing, content to wait until the new Government should take earnestly in hand the urgent duties that confronted it. We did, in fact, praise its first action in conceding the just demands of the teachers in the Island. The Advocate says, "But no sooner was the National Government formed than our friend terms it unwholly and iniquitous and denounced the movement in all the moods and tenors. The Advocate knows it is not speaking in a court of law, where the utter falsity of this statement would be exposed. We have never, to this day, denounced that "movement," we have never objected to the principle of coalition, we have never objected to the Coalition Government itself as such. What we have objected to and mostly strongly is the scandalous use, or abuse, to which the power derived from the coalition has been put.

We have, however, our own back files to refer to, and they are open to the inspection of anyone who wishes to use them against us. The coalition became an accomplished fact on July 18th. We uttered no word of criticism until July 19th, when the true purport of it all was revealed, to our own and the country's frank amazement, disappointment and disillusionment. We invite Mr. Coaker and the rest to study carefully what we said then and thereafter. They will find it perfectly consistent and perfectly logical. The News had announced that the "remaining legislation" (remaining, when nothing whatever had been done!) would be put through by August 1st, and we indignantly protested. The Advocate yesterday called the present "the most awful period" in the history of the Colony. But the grave problems of this "most awful period" could be deferred through six or seven weeks of idle talk in Parliament and wrangling behind the scenes outside it. The "most awful period" could be safely weathered in a single week or ten days! The "most awful period" of our history could be handled without the lackling of the first problem concerned with the events that made it so awful, our effort in the war. And what did that week or ten days reveal? Can the Advocate deny that the total criticism evoked in the House by the whole programme since the formation of the new Government would not occupy the space of ten minutes' recital? That but for public opinion, may, but for the Evening Telegram, the Design of the Government would have been accomplished and the House dissolved by August 1st? How can that possibly consist with the professions of concern over the "most awful period in our history?" Would such a programme have been carried out in such time and manner if Mr. Coaker's Opposition had not joined forces with the enemy? The bare facts of the case, the unquestioning acquiescence of both and, like so many sheep, in their leaders' instructions, are the clearest possible proof of the truth that the coalition was engineered from top to bottom, and purely and solely to further the political aims of those who engineered it.

And now we come to the moral of it all, which may be worth so lengthy introduction. The trouble that the Advocate is that it is ruled from start to finish by the hoary, absurd and mostly local tendency to look for an ulterior motive, preferably a personal one, in every trifling act, word or thought which an opponent displays. It is a trouble that is nature to a man who cannot shake hands or bid "Good morning" without having some dark purpose behind the civility, and who judges others by himself. If A stated that two and two make five and B denies it, the Advocate would puzzle its wits until it found some other sinister design behind the denial. Its merits and those of A's statement are of no account. And so it is that we have been accused of a number of nefarious and culpable purposes in taking the course we have taken (which has been that of criticizing where criticism was demanded), without any regard for the fact that the purposes alleged conflict with one another. By a number of us have been accused of being bribed by certain merchants, and have disappointed our accusers in not giving them a gratuitous advertisement through a libel action. The fact that we were at loggerheads with the same parties over the four questions quite recently weighs not at all with these critics. It may interest them, though we do not expect them to believe it, to know that we have not had five minutes conversation with a single merchant during the past three months. The absurdities and injustices of the legislation aimed at them are sufficiently patent not to need their pointing out to us by anybody. But the strangest manifestation of this distorted judgment is seen in the Advocate's ascription to us of political motives. What our "politics" are, exactly, we would like the Advocate to inform us. If we had had any, we should have paid some attention at least to the rule of thumb of politicians to curry favour with the majority, a rule on which the Government have rung the changes in the most unscrupulous way. Of course, that moved us to object to the Prohibition Act, which has resulted in the refusal of the Customs to admit even the most innocuous articles, since they are plainly forbidden from importation and sale; or to the Pensions Act, which, while admirable in its intention, contains inequalities that could easily have been removed; or to the Profits Tax, which allows a business not even the right of making, untaxed, an ordinary commercial interest on its capital. No doubt this was all politics, but what was the political purpose of it? Being frankly ignorant, we would like to be enlightened. Knowing that the Advocate never states what does not exist, we offer it two bits of advice, following which it may in future be able to understand a little of our incomprehensible tactics. The first is, occasionally to give an adversary credit for meaning a little of what he says. The second is, before it jumps at ridiculous conclusions about fanciful motives behind judgments of any sort, to examine a little the merits of the judgments themselves, and not to imagine that because we say that black is not white we are aiming at Mr. Coaker's or anyone else's political head. Even if the Advocate is unable to adopt a point of view and practice so foreign to its own, the effort of trying to do so should prove decidedly beneficial.

SAYS VON PAPAN BUSY IN BUENOS AIRES.

BUENOS AIRES, To-day. Some of the papers insist that Captain Franz Von Papan, former Military German Attaché at Washington, is directing the work of the German spies here. Persons whose veracity is not doubted say the newspapers report having seen Von Papan many times accompanying German Propagandists and have so reported to the British Consul.

TIGHTENING THE BLOCKADE.

WASHINGTON, To-day. President Wilson tightened the Government's control of exports to-night, by issuing an order forbidding shipments of any goods to European neutral countries except under license, and requiring shipments to Allies and neutrals other than European countries to include cotton, all meats, sugar, and most of America's other export commodities. In a statement accompanying his proclamation, the President said that one of the first intentions of the Government will be to see that no American products are made for the benefit of the enemy, either directly or indirectly. Officials interpreted the order as forecasting the vigorous use of export control as a war weapon and a policy of the strictest rationing of countries contiguous to Germany. Exports to Germany and her Allies also are formally prohibited by the President's order, and it is understood to mean that export control is about to supersede the British system, giving letters of assurance to American cargoes. Up to now, there has been nothing except the British blockade to prevent shipment of American goods to Germany. To-night's order in this respect accomplishes one purpose sought in the Trading with the Enemy Bill pending in Congress. Accompanying the proclamation was a statement from the President explaining its purpose. It said "The purpose and effect of this proclamation is not export prohibition, but export control. It is not intended to interfere unnecessarily with our foreign trade, but our own domestic needs must be safeguarded and there is the added duty of meeting the necessities of all the nations at war with the German Government. After these are met it is our wish and intention to minister to the needs of neutral nations, as far as our resources permit. This task will be discharged without other than the very proper qualification, that the liberation of surplus products shall not be made the occasion of benefit to the enemy either directly or indirectly."

GERMAN POLITICS.

BERLIN, To-day. Dr. Von Sturm, Under Secretary for Foreign Affairs, has been granted leave of absence owing to ill health. It is not at present known whether he will return to the Foreign Office or be assigned to some other post. Baron Von Dembushche-Haddenhausen will be acting Under Secretary during Dr. Von Sturm's absence. The assertion has been made that Von Sturm was the author of a criticism of an article appearing in the North German Gazette aimed at refuting Ambassador Gerard's exposure, and that it was for this reason that he was granted leave of absence, but this is denied in official quarters.

COURAGEOUS BELGIUM!

LONDON, To-day. The Press Bureau announces that the Germans occupying Belgium have been for a considerable time urging Belgian Socialists to participate in war with the German Government. After these are met it is our wish and intention to minister to the needs of neutral nations, as far as our resources permit. This task will be discharged without other than the very proper qualification, that the liberation of surplus products shall not be made the occasion of benefit to the enemy either directly or indirectly."

date from the party that could not be obtained because the German authorities would not allow to meet her to which the speakers would be free to express their views. The Germans afterwards consented to such a meeting, which was held a few days ago. Between four hundred and five hundred Delegates attended, and it was decided with only two dissenting votes not to go to Stockholm, even though British, French, and Italian Socialists were represented there. This decision, says the Press Bureau, was in the nature of a protest against the cruel treatment to which Belgians have been subjected and in order to avoid steps might possibly depress or discourage their gallant compatriots in the trenches."

SUB SINKS SUB.

AT AN ATLANTIC PORT, To-day. The destruction of a German submarine by a British submarine in the Atlantic Ocean was described here to-day by the Captain of a British steamer, which was torpedoed by an enemy submarine. The trader, which was attacked on a voyage from this country to a British port, returned here after being repaired abroad. According to the Captain of the trader, the Commander of the German submarine attacked a British merchantman by firing his deck guns, when the torpedo which struck her led to her destruction. The trader's crew which had taken to open boats witnessed the arrival of a British submarine and its attack on the German U boat, which was broken in two and sunk by a torpedo from the British U boat. The steamer crew then boarded their vessel, pumped her out and reached a British port.

TO DISCUSS THE POPE'S NOTE.

COPENHAGEN, To-day. Pope Benedict's note will be the principal subject of discussion at a meeting in Berlin this afternoon, in which the Imperial Chancellor, Michaelis, members of the German Parliament, and Representatives of Prussia, Bavaria, Saxony, and Wurtemberg will participate. Reports from the German capital add that Dr. Michaelis will leave for Berlin immediately after the meeting, where he will have a conference with Governor General Baron Von Falkenhause.

EXPECT CONFLICT BETWEEN KERENSKY AND KORNILOFF.

MOSCOW, To-day. A conflict at the national conference between Premier Kerensky, backed by moderate socialists and a majority of the Council of Workmen's and Soldiers' Delegates and constitutional democrats and other non-socialist parties of the Moscow industrial group, and that part of the army which stands for ruthless discipline is approaching. The opposition to the Premier looks to General Korniloff, Commander-in-Chief of the Russian army, as their chief. This line-up of delegates to the conference is indicated in interviews given to the Associated Press.

SPEAKING OUT IN GERMANY.

COPENHAGEN, To-day. The possibility of another change of the Imperial Chancellor in Germany is discussed by George Bernhard in the Vossische Zeitung. He says that it is "plainly evident already that the appointment of a minor official like Dr. Michaelis without general political experience was a great mistake and that the results desired are not apt to be reached quickly under the leadership of the new administration. Parliament, he argues, must take the matter of internal reforms and peace into its own hands. Herr Bernhard still hopes that Chancellor Michaelis will see the error of his ways and avoid the necessity for another change of the Chancellorship. Theodore Wolff in the Tagblatt dismisses the new Bundesrat committee as a Nostrum designed to soothe the cry of German people for popular control of the Government. Herr Wolff attacks Dr. Michaelis' reasons for side-tracking Parliamentary reform until after the war, and says that the truth is that Parliamentarism is not desired just now because it would pose a real control upon the Government and end this domination of secret influences.

COMRADES IN CAPTIVITY IN GERMANY.

Food Inspector William O'Brien is just in receipt of a most interesting, well composed and well written letter from a friend of his in Germany in the person of Sergt. A. Slattery of the Royal Munster Fusiliers. He says that by the time his letter would have reached Mr. O'Brien he would be three years in captivity, and he would like to be able to relate his experiences during that period. At the time of writing he was well physically and mentally. He recently made the acquaintance at Lemberg of Nathan Rice, who he said was then out working away with the other two Newfoundland prisoners of war. (Nathan Rice is a favourably known St. John's boy and was taken prisoner nearly two years ago with the Canadians. The other two men referred to are, no doubt, Barron and Coombs of the Nfld. Regiment who were taken prisoners 14 months ago.) Another extract from Sergt. Slattery's letter says: "Our memorial to our departed comrades in Lemberg has been unveiled and I hope to send you a picture of it very soon. It has a Celtic face, beautifully finished, and was consecrated by Father Croft." Sergt. Slattery is only 24 years of age and was taken prisoner in one of the big battles in the early stage of the war.

Two Notorious Characters Landed in the Toils.

The notorious "Boo" Hollihan and the celebrated Dick Gray (though not the one who made Boston Ironed Wine locally famous) occupied berths at the police station last night and this morning took their places at the bar in the Magistrate's court. Although both have spent half their lifetime in jail, they looked bewildered, as if the place was new to them. The first called was Gray, charged with being drunk. In trying to outdo the "National" beverage of his brother he experimented, but too extensively, on Florida water, a dangerous cargo to carry in bulk, and suddenly collapsed. The Judge told him he could only repeat the last dose he gave him for a cure, namely $5 or 14 days. Richard was indignant with the accommodation dished out to him the last time at the Government Inn so he deposited a five spot for his release—an unusual proceeding that surprised everyone in court and actually astounded himself. Then came Hollihan, who is better known for his blackguardly behaviour towards children. He was charged with indecently exposing himself towards his own niece, aged 13 years, who gave evidence against him. Hollihan recently came here on a ship as sailor and asked to be let go on fine. The Supt. of Police stated that it would be in the public interest for the country to be clear of the scamp. Accordingly the Judge imposed a fine of $5 or 14 days and ordered that Hollihan be put on board his vessel by the police.

The Unscrupulous Woman.

By RUTH CAMERON.

RUTH CAMERON

The business drinks are served because she says that countenances the business. And yet she would not hesitate to use unscrupulous methods of getting her money back for a pair of stockings she herself had spoiled.

I Should Have Thought Her Word Sufficient.

The other day I heard this conversation between two women. The first, "What do you suppose I did? I had on a pair of new silk stockings and I was reading and a mosquito bit my ankle and I rubbed it and rubbed it and all of a sudden I found I had rubbed through the silk."

The second, "Take them right back. Tell them you got a hole in them the first time you wore them."

"But they will say I shouldn't have rubbed them so hard."

The second, "Don't tell them anything about that."

She Felt Some Qualms of Conscience.

The first, "I don't know as I ought to do that."

The second, "But those stockings with a hole in the ankle are no good to you. You can't ever mend them so it won't show."

Could anything be more naive than that entire sidestepping of the question whether it was the right thing to do, by bringing up the fact that the stockings were useless. That apparently justified in her mind the demand for a new pair.

And They Weren't Young Girls, Either.

If that conversation had been between two very young girls I shouldn't have wondered. But the second speaker was a woman of about thirty-five, excellently educated and extremely conscientious about many things. She will not even go to a place where

Here is another case. A very high bred, sweet appearing woman on whose sense of honor I would have staked much, let a house to some tenants giving them a two years' lease. The month after it was let she tried to sell it over their heads, calmly explaining that her lawyer had told her a two years' lease didn't hold. I should have said that her word alone would have been sufficient guarantee and here she was trying to avail herself of some lawyer's quibble to break her bond. And yet she is one of the most refined, most well bred, most conscientious appearing women I ever met.

Of course men are unscrupulous too, but not the kind of men who otherwise represent the best breeding in the community.

Thank goodness women are growing away from such unscrupulousness. But altogether too slowly.

PREPAREDNESS.

Preparedness is something which everybody is in favor of so long as it does not increase the high cost of living. If a big army and navy could be built up and paid for by the railroad and gasoline trust, it would not be necessary for the newspapers to hold straw polls and post-card showers in order to locate the direction of the wind.

There are two schools of preparedness—for and against. Both schools have earnest, superheated advocates who feed long columns of statistics to the common people and convince themselves and their immediate relatives that they are absolutely correct. By the time the ordinary man has read what both schools have to say, he becomes so mentally flabbergasted that he couldn't recognize the truth if he saw it crawling up out of a well.

It is highly discouraging to the sincere seeker after the truth to find two of our foremost military men perched on opposite ends of the preparedness pole.

The idea of preparedness is to prevent some foreign nation from landing on our shores with both feet and conquering us before we are ready to have it done. It is a disagreeable experience for any nation to be conquered by people to whom it has never even been introduced, but who drop in after dark and bring a stout yoke with them. Yet this has been the fate of many a proud nation which was too busy playing golf and computing compound interest to head off the conqueror before he could land his conquering instruments.

It is highly discouraging to the sincere seeker after truth to find two of our foremost military men, Colonel W. J. Bryan and Colonel Theodore Roosevelt perched on opposite ends of the preparedness pole. The plain, every-day, blue-serge citizen reads asbestos-lined romances of these authorities and immediately contracts mental strabismus and hardening of the thick arteries. There would be more unanimity on the preparedness issue if anybody knew whether our navy is in fourth place or just two degrees above Spain. A lot of people who have been helping pay for a first class navy regret to be told that a battleship of the first line could cut our entire Navy without getting red in the face, and then fifteen minutes later receive the assurance that we can whip our weight in wild-cats on the bright blue sea.

When somebody has started a general purpose conflagration and pointed it in our direction, it is a good thing to get out the fire extinguisher.

The Child Welfare Exhibit.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir—The Child Welfare Exhibit was closed on Saturday night. While during the week it was visited by hundreds of interested mothers, who I hope derived some benefit from the instruction provided, there were no doubt hundreds of others who did not think it worth while to attend. This was of course to be expected in a first endeavour of this kind. But I feel nevertheless that the principal object I had in view has been accomplished, and that the public, the thinking public at least, are now alive to the high rate of mortality among the children of the city, and having become aware of this disgraceful state of affairs will see that measures are taken to set it right.

I wish to thank Drs. Tait, Fraser and Roberts for their valuable assistance in giving special talks to mothers and only regret that all the parents in the city did not hear them.

I feel sure that I am carrying out the wishes of every one who visited the Exhibit in publicly thanking Miss Hudson for the very able manner in which she prepared and managed the Exhibit. For weeks beforehand Miss Hudson was busy selecting and gathering together the material for the Exhibit, and during her short stay has entered into our problems with an enthusiasm and intelligence for which it is difficult to reward her. I feel that on behalf of the community I can tender her our heartiest thanks.

I understand that Lady Davidson, with her accustomed energy, has already taken steps which I trust will result in the provision of a Maternity Home for St. John's.

Yours truly,
W. G. GOSLING.

PLAGIARIS

TO-NIGHT.
The attraction for tonight's baseball game between the Wanderers and the Hartnetts is the fact that last year's champions, the Wanderers, are in excellent form. Both nines are in excellent form. A good fast classy game is the result. The outcome will be of interest to the fans, as a win for the Wanderers gives them the lead in the 1917 pennant. As can be seen, the Hartnetts are taking chances, and they hope to have a chard in from Bay Roberts game.

STARTS EARLY.
We would remind the plagiars of tonight's game will start. This however will make no difference to the fans, as the game will not start until after 8 o'clock. They stroll along at the beginning of the game and they will see at least 5000 fans.

TO-NIGHT.
The attraction for to-night is the baseball game between the B. I. S. and last year's champions, the Wanderers. Both nines are in excellent form, and a good fast game should be the result. The outcome will be of interest to the fans, as a win for the Irishmen gives them the lead and ousts the Wanderers from any chance of the 1917 pennant. As can be imagined, the Hartnettites are taking no chances, and they hope to have Dr. Pritchard in from Bay Roberts for the game.

STARTS EARLY.
We would remind the players that to-night's game will start at 6.15. This however will make no difference to the fans, as the game will not be over until after 8 o'clock, so that if they stroll along at the regular hour they will see at least 5 innings.

THE PLAYERS.
The following will likely be the lineups to-night:—
Wanderers. B. I. S. pitcher—Carew
catcher—Brazie
1st base—French
2nd base—P. Grace
3rd base—Doyle

OFFICIALS.
Both the Official Umpires—Major Montgomerie and Mr. F. V. Chesman

—will be on deck to-night, with Messrs. Outerbridge and Mullings scoring.

INTER-TOWN GAMES.
Mr. Chesman received word from Manager Geo. Harvey of the Bell Island team, asking if possible to arrange an exhibition game for to-morrow afternoon, the proceeds of which were to be devoted to the Red Cross Fund. As the cricketers have the field however it could not be arranged, though they have been invited for Saturday afternoon. It is likely that this will be a tryout for the Ironmen preparatory to entering the Inter-Town Series, and the fans are hopeful that the game can be managed.

LEAGUE MEETING.
A meeting of the Baseball League will be held on Saturday night to decide about the Grand Falls trip.

IVORY.
He looked like a wonder in spring. He threw to the bags like a shot. The kid had a cracker-jack wing; And he gobbled up drives piping hot.

But the majors gave him his release. Now he plays in the bushes instead. He was clever and neat with his hands and his feet. But he played bush-league ball with his head. His speed got applause from the stands. His pep and his vim were a treat. He had a nice pair of hands; And his hitting was awfully sweet; But he drifted away to the sticks. When it seemed that his job was a dud. For he did the right thing at the wrong time, by jing. And he pulled the wrong thing in a pinch. He looked like a Maise! for speed. The scribes wrote, "He hits 'em like Cobb." But his attic was vacant, indeed. He was comical up in the knob. The boss tried him out for a while. But at last had to send him back home. In a physical way that bird surely could play. But he carried an Ivory Dome.

Prospero Back From the North.

The S.S. Prospero, Capt. A. Keen, arrived back from Griquet and inter-vening ports at 11 a.m. to-day. Beautiful weather was experienced throughout the entire round trip. She brought these saloon passengers:—J. Pynn, A. Cramm, J. Marks, E. Patoy, E. Elliott, F. James, E. Knight, J. Norris, E. Robinson, G. Massey, J. Winsor, W. Giles, C. Small, J. Crowther, F. Roberts, H. Parly, A. Colbourne, S. Tucker, A. Hodge, T. Shave, Corp. Hawke, L. Blundon, J. Pinsen, F. Godden, H. Pike, D. M. Baird, N. Morris, H. Brooks, Roy. Scully, H. Brookings, Misses. Neudley, Lane, Rideout (2), Knight, Taylor, Strong, Mursell, Clarke, Osbourne, Pike, Anker, Osmond, Poveridge, Tucker, Pickett, Dwyer, Penny, Whelan, Davis, Moore, Kree, House, Barbour, Drover, Barbour, Burden, Harris, Diamond, Miles, Morris, Rea, Froude, Campsey, Crocker; Mesdames Milley, Stewart, Whitehorn, Ford, Crowther, Whitehorn, Hann, Colbourne, Tucker, Stone, Taylor, Moore, Hunt, Kean, Morrison, Mumford, Colton, Diamond, Milley, Brooks, Davidson, North, Crocker, Murphy, and 80 in steerage.

Royal Visit to the Nfld. Hospital Ward.

At the meeting of the Committee of the St. John Ambulance Association held yesterday afternoon in the Chief Justice's Chambers, the President, Sir William Herwood, read a letter received from Lord Ranfurly informing the Committee that the Queen recently visited the St. John's Hospital at Etaples and inspected the Newfoundland Wards. Her Majesty afterwards lunched at the Hospital with Lord Ranfurly and expressed her great approval of everything. This hospital is said to be second to none in its medical and surgical appliances and in its treatment of the sick and wounded.

Serious Shortage of Salt North.

Many Fishermen Forced to Cease Catching Fish.
By the coastal steamer Prospero which arrived this morning, we learn that there is a decided improvement in the codfishery north, especially along the French Shore and in White Bay where the voyage was very slack during the trapping season, but this encouraging news is counteracted by the knowledge that there is practically a famine in salt in the French Shore region. One gentleman informs us that there was not an ounce of salt at St. Julien's. There was an abundance of fish, but operations had to be discontinued, owing to the direct want of the curing article. Other places we hear, are nearly as bad. At the Grand Etaples hook and liners were getting all the fish they wanted when the Prospero was there, but the salt supply was very limited. There is, in consequence of the salt scarcity, we are told, some thousands of dollars worth of fish rotting.

Did Well on Fresh Bait

A number of fishermen who were short of bait were given a supply free and an abundance of chopped ice to keep it fresh, at the cold storage plant yesterday afternoon. Three men from Spout Cove, Conception Bay, who reached this port yesterday in a small motor boat remained on the grounds all last night and this morning returned to port hauling for eleven hundred pounds of fish, for which they received 2½ cents a pound. Together with what they received for the fish they netted slightly over $20. The main cabin and deck houses of the Desaix have been converted into sleeping and eating compartments fitted with electric light and other modern conveniences. This is chiefly being used by outport fishermen who are selling their fish to the cold storage plant.

Poor Football.

Stars and B. I. S. Play to a Draw.
The worst exhibition of League football for the season was dished out last evening by the Stars and B. I. S. The result was one goal for each team. Neither the game nor the official handling of it would do credit to a kindergarten. There was very little, if any, combination evident during the game.
The players were:—
STAR—Walsh, goal; Sullivan, Hartley, backs; Kavanagh, W. W. Duggan, halves; B. Hart, McGrath, Bell, Power, Evans, forwards.
B. I. S.—Whelan, goal; J. Kavanagh, T. Duggan, backs; Brown, J. Kavanagh, Simms, halves; Brien, St. John, Devine, Whelan, McGrath, forwards.
Referee—T. Evans.
The sanitary arrangements for the accommodation of baseballers, cricketers and footballers on St. George's Field is, to say the least, deplorable, and would be a disgrace even to an uncivilized country. We would urge a visit to the place by the Public Health Officer, and other strong advocates of the abolition of disease.

The Gas Range!

The Gas Range means comfort for the housewife; shorter kitchen hours for her, and a cleaner kitchen. It is a great mistake to think that cooking with gas is expensive.
Whenever a woman becomes used to gas for cooking, thoughts of a coal or wood stove fill her with gloom. A gas range is so much easier to operate, so efficient for all kinds of cooking, and so much cleaner, that the idea of going back to the old style methods is decidedly unpleasant. Yet in winter many housewives think they must use a coal or wood stove, because there is no other way of heating the kitchen. THERE IS ANOTHER WAY AND IT IS FAR BETTER THAN THE OLD. The Purchase of Titles.

Under the above heading, the Toronto "Christian Guardian" says:—To the ordinary Canadian the recent debate in the House of Lords on the purchase of titles makes very strange and disagreeable reading. It was freely admitted that titles were purchasable, and one peer said that he had been approached by a gentleman who wanted to know if £25,000 would go as far toward securing a title if presented to a hospital as it would if given to the party himself. He was informed that in the case of the hospital the title was its own reward, and so the hospital got nothing. But the man got the title. Lord Curzon actually argued in favor of this method as tending to democratize the peerage. If the price were only made low enough it would certainly be the end of the peerage. We notice that in the Liberal convention in Winnipeg a resolution was adopted opposing all hereditary titles in Canada and all other titles except for military and naval service. We think this resolution expresses the view of probably three-fourths of the voters in Canada. The ordinary Canadian has not much use for titles, and we think he is wise.

Another Patriotic Exhibition Mooted.

To augment further the football receipts for the Patriotic Fund, we learn that a match will be played about a fortnight hence between the Championship team of the League for this season and a picked city team of "has-beens." The latter will include men who have been out of the game as long as sixteen years. No doubt the old guard will give the youngsters a lively time of it and incidentally give the onlookers the worth of their present.

COLLECTION FOR ORPHANS.—In all the R. C. Churches of the city a collection will be taken up for the Belvidere Orphanage.

OUR VOLUNTEERS.—Recruiting is slow and there are only fifty volunteers in training at Headquarters at present.

Victims of Motor Tragedy Buried This Afternoon.

The remains of Mrs. Ethel Chafe and her 3-year old son, victims of Sunday's motor tragedy, were coffined by Undertaker Collier yesterday and conveyed to their late home at the Goidels, where interment takes place at 3.30 o'clock this afternoon. The mother was placed in a beautiful casket and the child in a white coffin. Quite a number of people from the city, friends of the Chafe family, drove out to attend the funeral.

Burglary Insurance.

The Burglary Insurance Underwriters' Association of New York, because of the increase in the number of burglaries in the city, has resolved that an increase in premiums is necessary, and the new rates will become effective on September 1. It is calculated that the result will be that merchants and others concerned will have to pay about a million dollars a year more than has been the rule in the past. The situation suggests a weakness in the policy, either in efficiency or number. The amended charges begin at $40 a thousand, and decline as the size of the policy grows, to $10 a thousand. Even the latter sum is large for protection from loss of property by robbery in a civilized community.

Hr. Grace Notes.

The schr. Minnie Maud, Jas. Wells, master, left this morning on a trading trip to the Straits and Labrador. Mr. T. Thistle is gone on the schooner as agent for the owner, Mr. E. Simmonds.

Patriotic Concert At Topsail.

The annual concert, promoted by a number of young ladies who are summing at that resort, will take place in the L. O. A. Hall at Topsail to-morrow evening. The programme, which is an elaborate one, is in charge of Miss Jean Strang, and some of the leading artists of the city will take part. The last success of this year's promises to be no exception. The proceeds are for patriotic purposes.

Here and There.

The Buckboards will leave the Cross Roads every half hour to-morrow afternoon for the Brookfield Garden Party.—1i
