CHAPTER XXXIII.
"They'll get him, eh, Gilsby? He can't escape, can he?"
Mr. Gilsby smiled assuringly.
"Oh, no; certainly not. Quite impossible! You may make your mind easy on that point, Mr. Mershon. They'll bring him back in a few days."

Mershon drew a breath of satisfaction, and hurried out of court. Mr. Boskett glanced after him, and bled his eyebrows questioningly. Mr. Gilsby smiled.
"Both fond of this Miss Deane," he said, answering the unspoken question. "You'll bitterly disappoint my client if you fail to get a conviction, Mr. Boskett. But that's a certainty, I suppose?"
Mr. Boskett only smiled in reply.

"The 'Pevensey Castle' went on her way. There were a number of passengers, and the usual amusements and entertainments were arranged and successfully carried out; and there was a good deal of laughter and merry-making on board the big ship.

But Gaunt took no part in the quizzing, the concerts, or the dances. He craved for solitude, and he avoided his fellow-passengers and spent most of his time in solitary pacing of the least frequented part of the deck, or shut up in his cabin.

It seemed to him as if his heart would never cease to ache with the longing for the girl-love whom he had so nearly wronged, and whom he should never see again.
"Decima was always before him, always in his thoughts; and as he imagined—and he could so easily picture her—her sorrow and horror at his conduct, he felt almost too wretched to live.

And yet he had not sinned wilfully. He had gone to Scotland to avoid her; he had been on his way to Africa to put a still greater distance between them, when Fate had led her to his rooms.

There was only one other passenger who took no part in the pastimes of the vessel; this was Mr. Jackson.

He, like Gaunt, spent his time pacing the deck, but in another part than that which Gaunt so restlessly trod. But, when down below, Mr. Jackson did not confine himself to his cabin, though he spent some time there. He was very often in the smoking-saloon, or in the purser's canteen; and there was always a glass of champagne or brandy and soda before him. He drank a great deal; but he was never intoxicated; indeed, his liquor seemed to take little or no effect upon him.

For some days he avoided his fellow-passengers, only speaking when he was obliged, and then only in monosyllables. People on board a ship are always curious about their fellow-voyagers, and there was a general idea that Mr. Jackson had lost all his money in Africa; but this idea was dropped when Mr. Jackson one evening joined the inevitable card-party and took a hand at poker. He played every night; and he did not seem to care how high the stakes were. Nor did he seem to care very much whether he won or lost.

It can not be said that he added much to the geniality of the party, for he rarely spoke, and never laughed or even smiled. The other players regarded him rather curiously, and with a certain amount of doubt; for there was something peculiar and uncanny about his manner and appearance. His face was so unnaturally pale, his eyes so unpleasantly red and bloodshot, and he had a singular trick of looking up suddenly, in the midst of the game, with a vacant stare as if he were seeing something or hearing something that was not perceptible to the others; and one or twice he had laid down his cards and risen from his chair, as if he had forgotten that the game was in progress.

"Our friend, Mr. Jackson, has got something on his mind," remarked one of the players one evening, after Jackson had left the saloon.
He had walked out with a perfectly unmoved countenance, as impassive as a stone mask, though he had won a considerable sum.

"It's a drink, I think," said another.
"He drinks like a fish. Why how many glasses do you think he's put down while he's been sitting here?"

"And the extraordinary thing is, that it never seems to have any effect upon him," remarked a third. "Why, most of us would have been under the table if we had drunk half that young fellow has mopped up. You meet some queer characters on board a ship, don't you?"

Now and again Gaunt met or came across Mr. Jackson, and Jackson would always eye him sideways and give him a nod, which Gaunt returned in an absent-minded way. One evening Gaunt was pacing up and down on his favorite part of the deck, thinking, of course, of Decima, when he saw Jackson coming toward him. The moon was shining brightly, and Gaunt could see the young fellow's face quite plainly. It was working spasmodically, the lips were moving as if he were talking to himself, and his hands were clenched at his side. Gaunt stopped half mechanically in the shadow of a deck-house, absently watching the man.

Jackson brought up his walk within a few yards of Gaunt, and, leaning over the vessel's side, started out to sea with bloodshot eyes. Suddenly he put one foot on the gunwale, then drew up the other, and stood in imminent danger of falling over.

It looked to Gaunt as if the man were meditating suicide, and Gaunt sprang forward, seized him by the arm, and dragged him down to the deck.

"What are you doing?" he asked, sternly.
Mr. Jackson eyed him vacantly for a moment, then he said, without a smile:
"I wanted to see if I could stand there without falling over."

"Rather a dangerous experiment, wasn't it?" said Gaunt.
Jackson looked up at him with a kind of sullen defiance.
"Anyhow, it's no business of yours!" he said.

Gaunt smiled grimly.
"I suppose not," he said. "But I am not sure. If I had allowed you to fall over, you would in all probability have been drowned and I should have been accessory to your suicide; I might have been charged with your murder."

At the word "murder," Mr. Jackson started and shuddered, and looked at Gaunt with a half-suspicious, half-gangy stare.
"What do you mean by that?" he said.

"Exactly what I say," said Gaunt.

He saw that the young fellow had been drinking, and a kind of pity stole into Gaunt's breast; his own sorrow made him very tender toward the weakness and folly of his fellow-men.
"Better go down to your cabin," he said; "and don't drink any more to-night."

"I'm not drunk," said Jackson, sullenly.

"No; but you've had enough," said Gaunt.

There was a touch of sympathy in his tone which appeared to affect the young fellow.

"I'm devilish wretched!" he said.

"My dear fellow," remarked Gaunt, "if all the men who were 'devilish wretched' flung themselves into the sea, how many passengers do you think would remain on board the 'Pevensey Castle'?"
Jackson looked at him curiously.

"You don't look particularly cheerful," he said.

Gaunt froze instantly.

"Better go down to your cabin," he said. "I will see you down."

"Oh, it's all right," said Jackson, with a distortion of the lips which might pass for a smile. "I sha'n't try the experiment again."

"Don't," said Gaunt, quietly. "Nothing in this world is so bad that it might not be worse."

"That's a lie!" remarked Jackson, laconically.

Gaunt made no response, but accompanied the young fellow as far as the saloon stairs, and waited until he had entered his cabin.

The next morning Mr. Jackson passed him on deck with a casual kind of nod; but after Gaunt had passed, Jackson looked after him with a curious expression on his face.

There were half a dozen children on board, and though Gaunt had avoided his fellow-passengers, some of these children had, not so much attracted his attention, but forced themselves upon it; for there was something about Gaunt which exerted a magnetic influence upon animals and children. Decima felt it that first day on meeting him at the Zoo.

One little girl—a pale-faced little thing, whose mother was taking her to Africa in the hope of snatching her from the demon Consumption—had, on several occasions, contrived to attract Gaunt's attention, and once or twice Gaunt had stopped in his pacing and spoken to her; and the child had looked so pleased that he had got into the habit of pausing beside her deck-chair and talking to her about the ship's log, the absence of any toys on board, and her own complicated ailments. He would draw the shawl across her chest, or carry her and her chair bodily into the sun and out of the wind. He rarely spoke to the mother, who was rather afraid of the grim-looking gentleman; but Maude did not share her mother's fear and shyness, but talked to Gaunt with the frankness of childish innocence.

Greece Must Follow Course Laid Down By Allies

Constantine's Restoration Will Mean Trouble-Italy Flirting With D'Annunzio--Police Escape Ambush, Killing Three Attackers--Covenant-Breaking Members of League Will be Blockaded.

AWAIT GREEK DECISION.
LONDON, Dec. 3. The course to be pursued by the Allies in the Near East will have to wait Greek decision on the dynastic question, it was decided today by the Allied conference here. The conference also resolved to make formal protest against issuing of the Greek Government of millions of drachmas in currency despite the opposition of the Allies.

THE ALLIES AND GREECE.
LONDON, Dec. 3. The Allied Supreme Council today publicly announced it would withdraw financial support from Greece should ex-King Constantine be returned in the plebiscite of Sunday. The Council considered territorial reprisals should be enthrone. The Council also decided that the Allied Premiers should meet a fortnight hence to discuss the conditions as they exist after the Greeks register their choice in the plebiscite.

HAVE ECONOMIC BLOCKADE PLAN
GENEVA, Dec. 3. A definite plan for use of economic blockade against members of the League breaking the covenant, was unanimously adopted by the sub-commission on blockades at the Assembly of the League of Nations today. Members of the commission expressed the belief that the plan would give the League a very effective weapon against offending members, and do much to prevent serious international disputes from developing into actual wars. The members declared themselves confident that the scheme will be ratified by the full commission and later by the Assembly of the League. A public session of the armaments commission will consider the plan.

WOULD PLACATE D'ANNUNZIO.
LONDON, Dec. 3. Fourteen Italian deputies, representing all political parties, have left for Rome today, under Thursday's date, to endeavor to persuade Gabriele D'Annunzio that his resistance is inopportune.

INTERNING SINN FEIN PRISONERS.
DUBLIN, Dec. 3. The first group of Sinn Fein prisoners to be interned under the Government's recently announced plan, left Dublin last night for Ballyken, County Down, but the number was not made public.

THREE CIVILIANS SHOT DEAD.
LONDON, Dec. 3. Three civilians are reported to have been shot dead this afternoon near Bandon, County Cork, following the ambushing of a party of police, says the Central News Dublin correspondent. The police escaped without casualties, he adds.

U.S. SUPPLYING COAL TO FRANCE.
PARIS, Dec. 3. Large arrivals of coal from the United States at fourteen dollars are causing much comment among British interests. England is losing her privileged position as a coal exporter in the world, says the Paris edition of the Daily Mail.

COTTON TRADE POOR.
MANCHESTER, Dec. 3. A section of the cotton trade that uses cotton from the United States has decided by ballot to reduce weekly working hours from forty-eight to twenty-four. The decision, which affects one hundred thousand operatives, is attributed to the poor demand for cotton.

ARMENIA NOT ADMITTED.
LONDON, Dec. 3. At a conference this morning Premiers Leygues and Lloyd George with Count Storza, Italian Minister, reached a decision that Armenia could not be admitted to the League of Nations because her legal existence was not established.

ANOTHER APPEAL.
GENOA, Dec. 3. The Catalans have asked the League of Nations to free them from Spanish rule. Montenegrins repeatedly are appealing to the Council and Assembly for independence of their country and for relief from alleged cruelties of Serbian troops of occupation, and among almost innumerable odds and ends in League mail are demands for revision of the Treaty of Secures.

A POOR EXCUSE.
TOKIO, Dec. 3. The military commission at Chien Tao, Manchuria, has addressed a letter to Canadian missionaries there in answer to charges made recently by missionaries that massacres alleged to have been committed by Japanese troops had taken place and that villages were burned. The letter emphasizes that the Japanese military expedition to the district was due to the fact that the Chinese authorities co-operated with outlaws, and destroy that churches and schools were burned only where there was incontrovertible evidence that they had been used as breeding places of iniquity.

ON IT GOES.
LONDON, Dec. 3. The Finnish Parliament today ratified the Peace Treaty with the Soviet.

THE PEASANTS' NO FIGHT.
WARSAW, Dec. 3. The Bolsheviks have smashed all detachments of Gen. Bulak Balachov, and remnants are fleeing towards Poland, some crossing the frontier near Davidgroden, north of Pinsk Marshes, where they were disarmed, according to latest reports received here. This ends the adventurous plan of General Balakovich to rush to Moscow with a handful of men after arousing millions of peasants against the Soviets while enroute.

The Genuine Culver Race is the finest auto for girls and boys ever built. Its real steering wheel and gear with shifting lever, steel springs, powerful brake, pneumatic tires, hand-somely enameled body and good upholstery. Runs up to 25 miles an hour and uses very little gasoline. You will be good if you win it. Dozens of boys and girls have won them and are proud of them.

What is the difference between a 1920 dime and an 1899 cent?

Answer NICE NETS N

HERE are four riddles for boys and girls with wise heads. We told the artist to draw the pictures to represent the riddles, but he guessed the right answers—and put them in too! So we barred him from the contest and told him to keep it a secret. Luckily, he got the answers all jumbled up, so you won't be any the wiser. If you can unscramble the jumbled letters beneath each riddle picture and put them in their right order to spell the right words, you will have the right answer. It isn't an easy task. Good thinking, patience and perseverance may find you the answers. Try it.

If you think you have found the answers, write them carefully on a sheet of white paper. Put on nothing but your four answers and your name and address in the upper right-hand corner of the page. Handwriting, spelling, punctuation and general neatness will count if more than one answer is correct.

We will write and tell you immediately if you are correct, and send you a handsome illustrated list of all the prizes that you can win.

Prizes Presented at Poultry Show.

The Poultry Exhibition in the C.L.B. Armory was again visited by large numbers yesterday, who were very pleased with the splendid display that the Association has given. At 9 o'clock last night the exhibition was officially closed and the prizes distributed. His Excellency the Governor and Lady Harris with Capt. Saltmarsh as A.D.C., were present and with President and Mrs. LeMessurier and Doctor Campbell and the members of the Committee occupied the platform. The various prizes were presented by Lady Harris to the lucky winners who were heartily applauded. After the presentation a vote of thanks to His Excellency the Governor and Lady Harris for the great interest they had shown in the exhibition and for the kindness of Lady Harris in presenting the prizes, was proposed by Hon. Dr. Campbell and seconded by Mr. G. R. Williams, who was heartily accorded. His Excellency replied on behalf of himself and Lady Harris thanking the Association and those present for their vote of thanks, and congratulated the Poultry Association on both the improved quality of the birds and on the great success of the 1920 Exhibition. At the close of the Governor's speech the singing of the National Anthem brought the show to a close. This has been the most successful exhibition that the Poultry Association has held, and during the three days that the show was open 3,000 people visited the C.L.B. Armory. The energetic committee in charge of the affair worked hard in arranging the exhibition and they should feel justly proud of the success of their efforts. Secretary Carter wishes to announce that all members who have not received their prize ribbons and cash awards may get them from him at his store Duckworth st.

Side Talks by Ruth Cameron

"BAD SAMARITANS."

Did you ever hear of a Bad Samaritan? The phrase is a Letter - Friend's. She uses it to describe the kind of people who give you a boost with one hand and a slap with the other. Here is the example she gives: "A friend of mine keeps house for her brother. Though she is personally very neat, she is rather a slipshod housekeeper, but her brother, knowing that she is not strong, is patient with her. I don't mean that she is really slack in any way that greatly matters, but she isn't orderly and her house, though not dirty, is apt to be dusty.

They Haven't Stopped Talking Yet.

"Well, a year or two ago she was taken seriously ill and had to give up and be removed to a hospital, and the bad Samaritans in the guise of lady church workers entered her house, put it in order, and looked after her brother. That of course was good Samaritanism, but here's where the bad part came in—they have talked about the condition of that house ever since (behind her back) while receiving her overflowing gratitude for their help."

Don't you think "bad Samaritan" is a clever phrase, and don't you recognize the type? I do.

She Offers to Help and Then.

I know a woman who, when she goes to a certain friend's house to visit, always says, "Now what can I do to help you?" The friend, a busy woman with three small children, (the father has none) accepts this offer in the spirit of Good Samaritanism in which it is apparently made, and lets her visitor help. Whereupon the first woman goes about saying that when she visits So-and-so, she has to get nearly all the meals.

Another woman has a trick of getting people to talk about themselves by showing the deepest interest and sympathy. Then when you have fielded to what seems her genuine and friendly interest, she will accuse you (behind your back, of course)

DEMORALIZED.

I used to find my evenings cheering, a time for reading and repose; but since I have been profiting, I've lost all taste for honest labor's and when the evening meal was done, there would blow in a bunch of neighbors, and we'd indulge in harmless fun. Alas, I do not see them steering in my direction any more; since I got busy profiting they all insist that I'm a bore. Each day I'm bringing home the bacon, I put another wad in brine; but I am lonely and forsaken, and how I miss those friends of mine! In other times the evening found me gay as a monarch on his throne; with all my loving ants around me I'd sit and play the graphophone; then hearts were glad and smiles were sunny, and laughter made the windows shake; but now my thoughts are all of money, of extra dollars I can make. I care no more for helpful readings, the birds don't stir me with a note, to busy marts my thoughts are speeding, on useless schemes of profit bent. Old ways, old dreams are trampled under by this late mania of mine; the man whose mind is fixed on plunder gets out of touch with all that's fine.

Just Folks by Edgar Guest

DAD'S BIG FAULT.

When I was young I never heard my mother speak an angry word. My father had his faults, but oh, my mother seemed to love him so! She praised him for the good he did and kept his little failings hid. Yet always she would look distressed when he spilled gravy on his vest.

When there was company for tea she seemed in constant fear that he would grow so interested that he'd quite forget that he was fat; and when across her gentle face of pain and sorrow came a trace, we children very promptly guessed that he'd spilled gravy on his vest.

He used to laugh and say: "My dear, whatever is the matter here?" And she'd "Tut, tut," and shake her head.

As though some dreadful thing he'd said to indicate that she had seen how very careless he had been. That telltale streak to all confessed that he'd spilled gravy on his vest.

Now I am sitting where he sat, and though I'm not so very fat, I maintain a constant watch over me; perhaps it is a sign of age. But, anyhow, I've reached the stage where all the women grow distressed when I spill gravy on my vest.

Will it Wear?

This is a question that the economical woman must needs ask about all her clothes.

When she asks it about a Corset, we answer confidently: It will indeed!—if it is a

It will wear longer than you thought possible and it is "guaranteed not to rust, break or tear."

Sole Agents for Newfoundland.

An Ocean Mystery.

About October, 1873, the French ship "Marie Celeste," trading between France and Boston (U.S.A.) left the latter port, having nineteen people on board, amongst whom were the captain's wife and little daughter. On December 4, a ship in full sail was sighted off Gibraltar, behaving queerly as to the course she was shaping. A boat from a British brigantine set out to discover what was wrong with the ship, and the crew saw, as they drew near, that the vessel was the "Marie Celeste," which had evidently got far out of her proper route. The boat crew hailed her, but got no reply; they then rowed up and boarded her, without experiencing any opposition, or seeing a soul on board. The vessel was in excellent condition, her rigging and sails being in perfect order; but her cabin fore-castle showed evidence that she had been hastily abandoned. The last entry in her log showed that she had been at the mercy of wind and tide for at least eight days, and had drifted 400 miles eastward of the observations. On the cabin table was a meal but half eaten; a child's garment half-made hung from a sewing machine; the captain's watch was hanging over his berth, and the ship's boats were still hanging on the davits. Not the least of her treasures or fittings were missing, and she had abundance of good food and water. There was no evidence whatever of mutiny or disaster, except that extra-

The Real Reason.

It suits the Government organs at all times and on all occasions—and none such are ever omitted to rail at the Opposition Press, charging the latter with being blue ruinists and enemies to the best interests of the dominion, and charging that they are using every means, availing of every opportunity to destroy trade and bring about impoverishment of the people. It is doubtless good politics to conduct such a campaign of defamation against opponents, because in the first instance it diverts attention from the short-comings and crass failures of the Government to do anything but involve Newfoundland still further in debt, and secondly, hectoring the Opposition does away with having to explain any of the policies upon which the Government has embarked. All through the discussion of the merits (few) and demerits (many) of the Fish Regulations, the papers supporting the Government and in sequence the Regulations, could not or would not put forward one jot or tittle of evidence to prove that benefits were being derived by the whole population, irrespective of class, from the operation of these measures, though repeatedly challenged to do so. They would not or could not submit any statistics in contradiction of the arguments of the Opposition Press that the fishermen were reaping any advantage from the sale of their fish locally, proportionate to the minimum prices fixed in the foreign markets. They could not or would not explain why it was that South West Coast exporters were being held up on their cargoes, nor was their defence of the regulations backed up by presentation of facts and figures.

Mr. Coaker declared in his address delivered at the opening of the Supreme Convention of the Fishermen's Protective Union, some days ago, that "he welcomed fair, honest criticism of a Government or the public actions of public men." That gentleman—with all due respect to his exalted office and profound knowledge—does not comprehend the meaning of fair, honest, criticism. Witness the disgusting exhibitions of his own paper. Witness the use of the bludgeon on opponents who were offering fair, honest, criticism on his Fishery legislation. Witness the heated language of portions of his address from which we have quoted, published in the Advocate of yesterday. Witness the villenous of his epithets as applied to the editors of the Herald, News and Telegram. Mr. Coaker, himself, cannot be, does not know how to be, fair and honest in criticism. He would suppress everybody holding contrary views to himself if he possessed the power, and he is making an attempt to secure that power by later on subverting the independence of the Legislature. Fair, honest, criticism and honourable and straightforward argument are foreign to the mental make-up of Hon. W. F. Coaker. He will brook no opposition to his will. His dictum must be accepted and agreed to. Any objection to his ideas is the signal for an immediate attack on the personality of the objector, through the columns of newspapers at present subservient to him. Bluff, bluster and evasion are the characteristics of the wonderful address so loudly and enthusiastically proclaimed by his fuglemen, and those who have the patience to wade through it cannot but fail to arrive at any other conclusion.

War Graves of the British Empire.

Lt.-Col. (Rev.) T. Nangle, with customary courtesy has forwarded for information and perusal an advance copy of the Register of the British Military Cemetery at Forceville, France. This register is issued by the Imperial War Graves Commission, and is the first series of a complete record of the names and graves of those who fell in the Great War and whose bodies are interred in foreign soil. The registers will be compiled by cemeteries, and each will contain the names of all British and Dominion soldiers buried in such cemeteries. Forceville being one of the first three which the I.W.G.C. have constructed. These registers will—with the registers of the missing, also to be commemorated in the cemeteries—form a complete roll of those who fell in the war, and will when completed comprise probably 140 volumes.

As the number of cemeteries in which Newfoundland is interested is comparatively small, compared with the number scattered all over the world, Rev. Nangle, when the records are completed, intends publishing a Newfoundland Death Register, containing all the particulars of the Nfld. Royal Naval Reserve, Royal Nfld. Regt. and Forestry Battalion, giving particulars of each member as to birthplace, age, nature, place and date of death, where buried, in which cemetery interred, inscriptions on tombstones, parents names and addresses, date of enlistment, date of first departure for war zone, etc. This register will be complete so far as the Newfoundland forces are concerned.

The present register, under review, contains a record of 304 graves and names of sailors and soldiers buried in Forceville Cemetery, but does not include the names of any of Newfoundland's gallant lads. It is illustrated with photographs, map and plans of layout of the cemetery, which is situated west of the village giving its name, and is in the department of the Somme, 12 miles from Doullers and 6 miles from Albert on the main road between these two places. The volume is well printed in clear type on heavy paper and forms a most valuable record.

Fr. Nangle, in his covering letter, says that "any person desiring a copy of the Newfoundland Register should send name and address to me before the end of January next. The cost under present conditions, will not exceed $5.00 complete," and he wisely suggests that "each college, school, church and club throughout the island should have one, in which they can mark the members of their own circle who paid the supreme sacrifice."

Great Improvement in Water St. Trade.

There was a gratifying change for the better in the local fish situation this week. All the cargoes of Labrador fish afloat that were held up the previous week were hauled in to the wharves, and were being discharged at $8.00 a quintal.

It is thought that financial arrangements will be further amplified to take all the Labrador cargoes that have since arrived and that will arrive between now and the latter part of next month, when all that is coming in this winter will have been brought along. The price of Labrador in the Greek market has been re-arranged at $6.00 for Labrador all round, and the distinction of Choice and Prime has been done away with.

We understand that negotiations with the Consorzio in Italy are being renewed for Labrador fish and that there are good hopes of the Exporters being yet able to sell fifty or seventy thousand quintals there before the winter is over. This will certainly be a great relief to the situation. The free selling of fish this week has already given noticeable improvement in trade on Water Street owing to the money that has been put into circulation. The Dry Goods stores as well as the Provision stores are doing more business now than in any week this fall, and the prospect is that the activity will increase and keep up till after Christmas.

Coincident with this cheering conditions of affairs, is the fact that prices in nearly all lines are coming down and the store-windows are exhibiting goods of all kinds marked with such low prices as have not been since 1915.

Next spring importations will witness a much greater reduction and taking a survey of the whole situation, it looks as if we have passed the crucial period in the depression that was common to the whole world in 1920, and when the New Year opens we shall be able to look forward with confidence to the time when Newfoundland will have emerged triumphantly from all her financial troubles.—Trade Review.

The Christmas Spirit.

The "Festival of Christmastide" is much more than just a holiday.

It is the expression of a beautiful ideal. It is the manifestation of the generous desires and impulses that live in our hearts the whole year through, but sometimes seem hidden behind a mask of reserve or smothered in a mass of pressing prosaic duties.

Christmas gives people the best "excuse" in all the world for being just as kind and big and wonderful as they always love to be—without danger of seeming "sentimental" or fear of having the truth of their sincerity doubted. Christmas gives you an opportunity to show your appreciation in a tangible way of kindnesses received.

To cater properly to this Christmas spirit, it takes a store peopled with folk who see beyond its surface and into its heart—a store that has no interest in doing a tremendous amount of Christmas business unless the business means a correspondingly tremendous amount of Christmas happiness—a store that is brimful of carefully chosen Xmas Goods. It takes such a store to deserve the unlimited confidence of sincere Gift Givers. Such a store The Royal Stores strives to be. And the gifters themselves, they are happy people. They taste the sweetness of making other hearts rejoice. The quality of Christmas-giving should not be strained. It should be a spontaneous desire, an impulse of love—purely.

THOUGHT is what makes gift-giving count, and without THOUGHT a gift is nothing. Sincere gifts of THOUGHT for the bringing of complete happiness to your friends, your family, and yourself now await your selection at this store.

TO-DAY'S MESSAGES.

CRAWFORD'S VAGUE DEFINITION.

FREDERICTON, N.B., Dec. 4.
Lindsay Crawford was prevented from addressing a meeting here last night by interruptions. Crawford denied, in reply to a question, that one of the objects of the Self-Determination League was separation from the British Empire and the establishment of an Irish Republic, and said the League was associated with De Valera "in so far as Self-Determination goes and no further." The singing of "Rule Britannia" interrupted Hon. P. J. Venoit, Chairman of the meeting, when he asked for a hearing for Crawford. "It is no wonder there is an Irish problem." The meeting closed with "God Save the King." It was attended by a body who gathered at the G. W. V. A. Hall early in the evening and marched en masse to hear Crawford, and to ask questions.

Loyal Orange Association.

Resolutions adopted by the Grand Lodge of Newfoundland, Loyal Orange Association, at a special session held in Victoria Hall, St. John's, on December 1st and 2nd, 1920.

WHEREAS, there exists in the Colony of Newfoundland an organization styling itself the Self-Determination for Ireland League of Newfoundland, whose sentiments apparently favour the secession of Ireland from the British Crown;

AND WHEREAS, meetings of this organization have been, and are being held in the city of St. John's, at which anti-British propaganda has been disseminated;

AND WHEREAS, on October 28th, 1920, a meeting of this organization was held in the Mechanics Hall, which passed a set of resolutions containing amongst these the following statements:

- (1) In common with the whole civilized world, Newfoundlanders have kept vigil in spirit at the bedside of Terence MacSwiney, T.D., B.A., Lord Mayor of Cork, and his companions in martyrdom in Cork Jail, through their sublime moral protest against arbitrary injustice and the rule of force.
- (2) The Self-Determination for Ireland League of Newfoundland in general meeting assembled places on record its profound and earnest condemnation of the tyranny that tried these men on trumped-up charges before a Court specially established to convict them. Its abhorrence of the blind perversity that exacted their lives rather than accede to their just protest, and its conviction that the infamy will bring its own punishment.
- (3) That in the name of "sanity" and "decency" it demands the instant and unconditional release of those prisoners in Cork Jail who still survive.
- (4) And that the members of this League inspired by the immortal example of Terence MacSwiney and those who died with him, pledge themselves individually and collectively to spare no effort to ensure that they have not died in vain.

AND WHEREAS, certain persons who occupy positions of emolument under the Crown are prominently identified with the Self-Determination for Ireland League of Newfoundland, and have been guilty both at home and abroad of utterances which we regard as dishonouring to the British Empire;

BE IT THEREFORE RESOLVED, that this Provincial Grand Orange Lodge of Newfoundland now in session, representing over twenty thousand loyal citizens, believes that the object of the Self-Determination for Ireland League of Newfoundland, and similar organizations, is to have Ireland secede from the British Empire and become a Republic, and regards the Self-Determination League as a distinctly disloyal movement in respect to the British Crown, and wholly unworthy of men and women who are enjoying the liberties and privileges of the British Constitution.

BE IT THEREFORE RESOLVED, that this Association repudiates any participation by it or its members in the alleged vigil at the bedside of Terence MacSwiney and other traitorous suicides in their attempt to escape justice.

(2) That the Association emphatically condemns the allegations imputing "tyranny," "dishonesty" or "infamy" to any British Court of Justice, recognizing that no Government could continue its existence if the decision of its recognized Courts were liable to be nullified by the action of individual prisoners.

(3) That the words "sanity" and "decency" come with poor grace from an organization that is openly advocating the cause of persons guilty of such crimes as characterize the Sinn Fein movement in Ireland.

(4) That the Association regards as seditious the pledge made by the members of the Self-Determination for Ireland League of Newfoundland, pledging themselves individually and collectively to spare no effort to ensure that MacSwiney and those that died with him have not died in vain.

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED, that this Grand Lodge condemn the principle which permits persons whose avowed object is to strike at the integrity of the British Empire, to retain their positions as servants of the Crown, and recommends that the Government prohibit Civil Servants from becoming members of, or associated with, any anti-British movement such as the Self-Determination for Ireland League of Newfoundland, and that any Civil Servants now members of such organizations disassociate themselves at once from such organizations or be dismissed forthwith.

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED, that this Grand Lodge is of the opinion that the sentiments herein expressed are those of all loyal citizens of Newfoundland irrespective of class or creed.

AND BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED, that this Association re-affirms the loyalty and devotion of its members to His Majesty King George V., and is convinced that the peace of the world will best be preserved by maintaining the integrity of the British Empire unimpaired.

RESOLVED FURTHER, that a copy of these Resolutions be sent to His Excellency the Governor, the Acting Prime Minister, the Leader of the Opposition, the Right Hon. David Lloyd George, Prime Minister of Great Britain; Sir Edward Carson, Sir James Strong, the Orange Sentinel and the Public Press of Newfoundland.

Feast of Chanukah Celebration.

The Feast of Dedication, known in Hebrew as Chanukah, will be celebrated in Jewish circles beginning Sunday evening, December 5. This festival lasts for eight days and is observed with joy and gladness in the Jewish home.

The origin of Chanukah is traced to an historical event of tremendous consequence to the Jewish people. In the year 168 B.C.E. the Syrian King Antiochus IV. or Epiphanes had resolved upon an imperialistic policy of unifying all the provinces and peoples in his domain. As a preliminary measure towards this consummation of his ambition, an edict was promulgated, compelling all his subjects to adopt a common religion, that of the Greeks.

This decree met with unexpected opposition among his least powerful subjects, the Jews. The polytheism of the Greek religion its lax morality and debasing influences incited the Jews to rebellion. Under the leadership of the aged priest, Mattathias, and after his death, his son Judas Maccabeus, armed resistance was arrayed against the powerful armies which Antiochus sent against the inhabitants of Palestine. The valor of this heroic band triumphed over the mighty hosts of Syria. The Temple at Jerusalem which had been defiled by idolatrous practices was rededicated to the worship of the One God. The rededication took place on the 25th day of Kislev according to the calendar of the synagog, in the year 165 B.C.E. In commemoration of the victory, the Feast of Chanukah is celebrated even unto this day.

Legends, impressive of this triumph and the festive character of the celebration, have been preserved. An old legend recounts the miraculous preservation of a single cruse of undefiled oil, found in the Temple at the time of the rededication, which burned for eight days. The kindling of lights in the home and in the synagogue is a distinguishing feature of the festival. The traditional practice is to light one candle on the first night, two on the second and so on until eight are kindled on the last day of the feast.

The special prayers recited in the synagogue in connection with Chanukah stress the triumph of the spirit of God over the might and power of goddess man.

The festival is utilized by the modern synagog as an occasion for participation of the children of the religious schools in plays or pageants which express the glorious victory of the few and feeble over the mighty hosts of oppression.

Trial Trip Monday.

The reinforced concrete vessel-Permanencia, owned by Mr. W.N. McDonald and associates of Sydney, will make her trial trip on Monday. This voyage will be up through the lakes, and a short distance out to sea. On the return, a full crew will be secured and a general cargo taken aboard. Then the maiden commercial voyage will be made to Newfoundland.

Much interest is attached to the trip of the Permanencia. The boat was built at North Sydney, and was the first concrete vessel to be erected and launched in the Maritime Province. The Permanencia is 430 tons, deadweight.

A number of Sydney people will be on the vessel during the trial trip.—Sydney Post.

DANDERINE

Stops Hair Coming Out; Thickens, Beautifies

A few cents buys "Danderine." After an application of "Danderine" you can not find a fallen hair or any dandruff, besides every hair shows new life, vigor, brightness, more color and thickness.

The Fish Situation.

Along the waterfront to-day there is very little activity in buying fish, and with the exception of Goodridge's, where some five or six western boats are discharging and at three or four other premises where fish is being taken from the dealers, there is absolutely nothing doing. This evident stoppage of buying is apparently the reason of conditions in the foreign markets, particularly Greece and Brazil. Excepting good shore fish, merchants are not anxious to handle other qualities. This year there is an immense amount of West India fish, and at one premises we were told that there was more West India in proportion to shore, made this year than perhaps for five average years together. The result to the fishermen has been practically disastrous, the whole catch not averaging more than $6 per qtl. It seems that the guarantee purchase of $3 Labrador fish has ceased, and the best offer for that quality now is $7.00 cash, but it is doubtful if a sale can be made. At any rate one of the firms in the West End, who before the Convention was buying up Labrador fish, is not handling any to-day. At an East End premises there is likewise none being handled. We understand that there is a lot of Labrador fish still unsold. Labrador sloop fish is a begging purchase. The schr. Maggie Stone from Trinity Bay, is in port with 600 qtls. on board, and though the fish is fairly dry, the owner said he tried every merchant in town and even went to Mr. Coaker, but he did not get a purchaser. As for shore fish, it is not hard to sell if the quality is good, but unfortunately the cull, according to the fishermen, is very strict. We saw where all the fish was taken as West India. At another premises fish that had gone down was offered as low as $1 per qtl. without a purchaser. It eventually was bought by a farmer for fertilizer.

Conditions on Southern Shore.

In conversation with a resident of Trepassay, who had been here for the past four days, we learned something of the terrible conditions which prevail in parts of the Dominion to-day. In Trepassay itself there is a scarcity of supplies and family men who still have flour are forced to share it with those less fortunate. The schooner on which our informant was has to go back to Trepassay with 130 qtls. of shore fish unsold, whilst a man who sent in a car load by rail from the same place, recently, has to take it back again. West India will not be taken by purchasers at any price, and those people who have sold merchantable are obliged to hold the cullage until such time as a market is made.

Exporters' Meeting.

A meeting of the officers of the Fish Exporters' Association was held in the Board of Trade Rooms this forenoon when matters relating to the rules and regulations of the Association were discussed and amendments recommended. These will be submitted to the full body later. There are some 18 or more members in the Fish Exporters' Association, although there are about 80 fish exporters.

Police Court.

A youth of 16, who stole a number of articles to the value of $40 from Goochie's West End premises, gave himself up voluntarily to-day, evidently hoping that he would receive free board and lodging for the winter. He was sentenced to six months' imprisonment.

Disabled Ship Arrives.

S. S. Castle Point, reported off port since Thursday last, arrived at noon to-day under her own steam. Three tugs were sent to meet her. The S. S. Mouton, however, got a lige aboard when off the Narrows and rendered what assistance was necessary. The crew of the Castle Point had a rough experience during last night and this morning, when the wind blew a hurricane. The ship's steam steering gear being disabled, hand gear had to be used. The Castle Point is now berthed at Shea & Co.'s premises.

Complain of Leading Lights.

The harbor pilots, and captains of ships, entering port at night complain that the present leading lights are out of date and should be replaced by more modern appliances. It is now almost impossible to distinguish the lights until well in the narrows and although they are given every attention by those in charge they do not give the satisfaction that is required.

Newfoundlanders Quarantined.

In the city at the present time there are three families of Newfoundlanders quarantined with smallpox. They are without means of support and word of their plight has been sent to the Newfoundland authorities, who are being asked by the city to advance the means of tiding them over their illness. At the present time they are being cared for by the city, but officials think that as the families have been in the country for only a short time, their home government should be made to pay expenses.—Sydney Post.

If Mr. Coaker is still buying at $8?

Or has another of the 'Wordy' President's bluffs been called?

What is being done to alleviate the distressful conditions prevailing both North and West?

Nameless Warrior For Ever on Guard

Empire's Homage to "The Unknown Soldier."—The Salute of Royalty.

(By SIR PHILIP GIBBS.)

LONDON, Nov. 11.—It did not seem an unknown warrior whose body came on the gun carriage drawn down Whitehall where we were waiting for him. He was known to us all. It was one of "our boys," not warriors, as they called them in the days of darkness, lit by faith.

To some women, weeping a little in the crowd after an all-night vigil, he was their boy who went missing one day and was never found till now, though their souls went searching for him through dreadful places in night.

To many men among those packed densely on each side of the empty street, wearing ribbons and badges, on civil clothes, he was a familiar figure—one of their comrades, the one they liked best, perhaps, in the old crowd, who went into the fields of death and stayed there with the great companionship.

The Old "Tin Hat."

It was the steel helmet, the old "tin hat," lying there on the crimson of the flag which revealed him instantly, not as a mythical warrior aloof from common humanity, a shadowy type of the national pride and martial glory, but as one of those fellows, dressed in the drab of khaki, stained by mud and grease, who went into the dirty ditches with this steel hat on his head and in his heart the unspoken things, which made him one of us in courage and in fear, with some kind of faith not clear, full of perplexion, often dim in the watchwords of those years of war.

So it seemed to me, at least, as I looked down Whitehall and listened to the music which told us that the unknown was coming down the road. The band was playing the old "Dead March in Saul" with heavy drumming, but as yet the roadway was clear where it led up to that altar of sacrifice as it looked, covered by two flags hanging in long folds of scarlet and white.

About that altar cenotaph there were little groups of strange people, all waiting for the dead soldier. Why were they there?

The Great Await Him.

There were great folks to greet the dust of a simple soldier. There was the Archbishop of Canterbury and the Bishop of London and other clergy in gowns and hoods. What had they to do with the body of a soldier who had gone trudging through the mud and muck like one ant in a legion of ants, unknown to fame, not more heroic, perhaps, than all his pals about him, not missed when he fell dead between the tangled wire and the shell holes?

There were great Generals and Admirals, Lord Haig himself, Commander-in-Chief of our armies in France, and Admiral Beatty, who held the seas; Lord French of Ypres, with Home of the First Army, and Byng of the Third, and Air Marshal Trenchard, who commanded all the birds that flew above the lines on the mornings of enormous battle.

These were the high powers, infinitely remote, perhaps, in the imagination of the man whose dust was not being brought toward them. It was their brains that had directed his movements down the long roads which galled his feet, over ground churned up by gunfire, up duck boards from which he slipped under his heavy pack if he were a foot slogger, and whatever his class as a soldier ordained at last the end of his journey, which finished in a grave marked by metal disk—"unknown."

More Homage Than Any General. In life, he had looked upon these Generals as terrifying in their power "for the likes of him." Sometimes, perhaps, he had saluted them as they rode past. Now they stood in Whitehall to salute him, to keep silence in his presence, to render him homage, more wonderful, with deeper reverence than any General of them all has had.

There were princes there about the cenotaph, not only of England but of the Indian Empire. These Indian Rajahs, that old white-bearded, white turbaned man with the face of an Eastern prophet—was it possible that they, too, were out to pay homage to an unknown British soldier?

There was something of the light of Flanders in Whitehall. The tattered ruins of Cloth Hall at Ypres used to shine white. A mist, suffused a little by wan sunlight, white as the walls and turrets of the War Office in this mist of London. The tower of Big Ben was dim through the mist like the tower of Albert Church until it fell into a heap under the fury of gunfire.

Presently the sun shone brighter so that the picture of Whitehall was etched with deeper lines. On all the buildings, flags were flying at half-mast. The people who kept moving about the cenotaph were there for mourning, not for mere pageantry. The Grenadier officers, who walked about with drawn swords, wore crepe on their arms. Presently they passed the word along, "Reserve arms," and all along the line of route soldiers turned over their rifles and bent their heads over their butts. It was when the music of the Dead March came louder up the street.

The King Stands Alone.

A number of black figures stood in a separate group apart from the Admirals and Generals, people of importance to whom the eyes of the crowd turned while men and women tip-toed to get a glimpse of them.

The Prime Minister and Ministers and ex-Ministers of England were there—Asquith, Lord Curzon and other statesmen who in those years of conflict were responsible for all the mighty effort of the nation, who stirred up its passion and emotions, who organized its labor and service, who won the victory and this peace. I thought the people about me stared at them as though conscious of the task that is there's, now that peace is the test of victory.

"But it was one figure who stood alone as the symbol of the nation in this tribute to the spirit of our dead. As Big Ben struck three-quarters after ten and the King advanced towards the cenotaph, followed by the Prince of Wales, the Prince's two brothers, and the Duke of Connaught. And while the others stood in line looking toward the top of Whitehall, the King was a few paces ahead of them waiting motionless for the body of the unknown warrior who had died in his service.

Crowd Stilled by Emotion.

It was very silent in Whitehall. Before the ordered silence the dense lines of people had kept their places without movement and only spoke little in their lone time of waiting, and then as they caught their first glimpse of the gun-carriage were utterly quiet, all heads were bared and bent. Their emotion was as though a little cold breeze were passing. One seemed to feel the spirit of the crowd. Above all this mass of plain people something touched one with a sharp, yet softening thought.

The massed bands passed with their noble music and their drums thumping at the hearts of men and women. Guards with their reversed arms passed and then the gun-carriage with its team of horses halted in front of the cenotaph where the King stood, and every hand was raised to salute the soldier who died that we might live, chosen by fate for this honor which is in remembrance of that great army of comrades who went out with him to no man's land.

The King Laid a Wreath.

The King laid a wreath on this coffin and then stepped back again. Crowded behind the gun-carriage in one long vista was an immense column of men of all branches of the navy and army moving up slowly before coming to a halt, and behind again other men in civilian clothes, and everywhere among them and above them flowers in the form of wreaths and crosses.

Then all was still, and the picture was complete, framing in that coffin where the steel hat and the King's sword lay upon the flag which draped it. The soul of the nation at its best, purified at this moment by this emotion, was there in all once about the dust of that unknown.

Guns were being fired somewhere in the distance. They were not loud, but like the distant thumping of guns on a misty day in Flanders, when there was "nothing to report," though on such a day, perhaps, this man had died.

Presently there was a far-off wailing like cry of a banshee. It was a siren giving the warning of silence in some place by the river.

The deep notes of Big Ben struck 11, and then the King turned quickly to a lever behind him, touched it and let fall the great flags which had draped the altar. The cenotaph stood revealed, utterly austere, except for three standards with their gilt wreaths.

It was a time of silence. What thoughts were in the minds of all the people, only God knows, as they stood there for those two minutes which were very long.

There was dead stillness in Whitehall, only broken here and there by the coughing of a man or woman, quickly hushed.

Who Was the Unknown?

The unknown warrior! Was it young Jack, perhaps who had never been found? Was it one of those fellows in the battalion that moved up through Ypres before the height of the battle in the bogs?

Men were smoking this side of Ypres. One could see the glow of their cigarette ends as they were halted around the old mill house at Vlamertinghe. It rained after that, beating sharply on tin hats, pouring in spouts down the waterproof capes. Shelling began along the duck boards by Westhoek ridge, gas shelling, every old thing.

Fellows dropped into the shell holes full of water. They had their packs on, all their fighting kit. Some of them lay there in pits where the water was reddish.

There were a lot of unknown warriors in the bogs of Glencorse Wood and Inverness Cope. They lay by upturned tanks and sank in slime. Queer how fellows used to drop and never give a sound so that their pals passed on without knowing.

In all sorts of places the unknown warrior lay down and was not quickly found. In Boulton Wood they were lying after the battle among the river trees. On the fields of Somme they lay in the churned-up earth. In High Wood and Delville Wood and this side of Loupart Wood. It was queer one day how the sun shone on Loupart Wood which was red with Autumn tints. Old "Boche" was there then, and the wood seemed to have a thousand eyes staring at our lines newly dug. An airplane came through the fleecy sky, wonderfully careless of the black shrapnel bursting about it. Wonderful chaps, those airmen.

For the man above it wasn't good to stumble in that ground, barbed wire tore one's hands damnably. There was a boy lying in a tangle of barbed wire. He looked as though he was asleep, but he was dead all right. An airplane passed overhead with a loud humming sound.

What is this long silence, all this crowd in London streets two years after the armistice peace? Yes those were old dreams that have passed, old (continued on page 10.)

Kearney's

Of course you all want "him" to prance down Xmas morning, his face a big sun of happiness, beaming to say, "How on earth did you know that this was just what I wanted?"

Many Xmas gifts for "him" don't just plan out that way.

Because—

People will wait until fifty-nine minutes to ten Xmas Eve to burst in on an overwhelmed, busy clerk to purchase that important gift that should have a week's careful consideration 'way back in November.

And when gifts are bought that way I'll stake a whole sledful of joy they do disappoint. If that "him" is a person of any consequence at all, he deserves to have more than one minute of your time devoted to the purchase of something he has to wear for at least a day. And if real thought and time is given to the purchase, he WILL wear it until next Xmas comes 'round.

Advice: BUY NOW, and Buy Men's Wear, for this is an Economy Xmas, and little articles to wear never disappoint.

Yours for the Right Gift at the Right Time,

CHEERY JOE.

Storm Along Line.

A heavy S. E. gale, accompanied by snow squalls, was raging Thursday and yesterday along the western part of the railway, being particularly severe between Deer Lake and Grand Falls. The temperature stood at about zero, and section men and trainmen at work along the line were obliged to abandon their work. Yesterday morning there were "combs" of snow on the railroad from Port aux Basques to the Topsails, but so scattered and light that train progress was not impeded, and the different trains worked along on schedule. To provide against any snow troubles, the Government Railway Commission are now getting the snow ploughs ready for the cross-country trains, and they will likely be attached next week to all trains moving east and west to and from Port aux Basques.

To Honor Pastor.

At a meeting held last night in the Parish Hall of St. Joseph's, Holytown, arrangements were made to offer a testimonial of regret at the leaving, as well as approval of the appointment of their Pastor, Rev. Dr. Kitchen, who has been transferred as rector of St. Patrick's, Riverhead. A committee, consisting of J. Clooney, chairman, J. W. Hayse, Treas., and R. Jardine, was appointed, and will, with the others of the congregation, make all arrangements in connection with the presentation of an illuminated address and purse of gold. On Tuesday evening another meeting will be held, at which the matter will be further discussed.

The Deputy Minister of Customs received the following message yesterday from the Sub-Collector at Curling:—"Schr. Grace P. The Class will meet in the Synod Building to-morrow afternoon, at 3 p.m. As the day is Bible Sunday in the Anglican Churches the subject of the address will be "The British and Foreign Bible Society—its history, work, and the claims that are being made upon it at our time." While the great Missionary Societies of the Church are doing much for the extension of the Kingdom, it is the Bible Society that is making it possible for their many missionaries in many lands to give the many peoples the word of God in their respective languages. All the members of the class are asked to be present, and visitors from the outports are heartily welcome. The monthly corporate Communion of the Class will be held at the Cathedral to-morrow at 8 a.m. and special intercession will be made for the Harbor and Wharf Mission work.

Roller Rink Sports Well Attended.

An audience, estimated at over 900, witnessed last night's sports at the Roller Rink. The programme of 9 events proved interesting, a special feature being the 3 mile foot race by J. Bell, our local runner, and being in good form, he covered the course in the very quick time of 15 minutes 54 seconds. Messrs. T. Hammond and F. Marshall also gave a fifteen minutes wrestling exhibition, which was quite an attraction. The final item was the Roller Hockey match between the Rangers and Caledonians. This event created much interest and after a hard fought game resulted in a draw, each team scoring one goal. Bennett's Band was in attendance during the evening and rendered very pleasing selections. The following is a list of the winners in the different roller events:—

TRINITY.

During the last few years, our people have been getting more and more dissatisfied with the modern mode of mummering, and several have expressed a wish to restore the old spirit of mummering, at long years ago yielded so much real sport, without roughness, or lack of artistic presentation. Such a wish is highly commendable, and although owing to several changes that have come to us, some of the features of successful mummering years ago cannot be restored; yet there are other features which, if carefully and intelligently introduced, could go a long way in the direction of restoring the real enjoyment of mummery, as well as making it educational, and more highly respectable.

There is not much of either real mummery or education, to the mummery of any one else; in a group of people with garments turned inside out and pocket handkerchiefs in their faces. And yet, such outdoor mummery, or others hardly less artistic, have to be resorted to, owing to lack of material; for to a large extent the old fashioned clothes of our grand-parents, that were, always attractive, and so welcome, have disappeared, and in their place, we have mummery, to a respectably respectable, and thoroughly practical costume exercise, is to restore the mummery, etc. This can be done by our young people, who some weeks before the mummery, should be present, to provide costumes, to rehearse, and to decide upon the action as to the costumes, and the dances. This is only suggestive, for there are many other interesting characters.

Since, however, that roughness has disappeared, the proclamation has been discontinued; and the opportunity is now offered for the introduction of some of the old methods, without the new roughness; and the result will be—things of beauty and joy all through the Christmas season. For example: What would be more interesting, educational, and enjoyable, than a group of, say, eight persons—four males and four females, plus a musician—dressed in the fashions of our forefathers and mothers in the 15th or 16th century, with the dances of those times to correspond. Goodness knows, they are all funny enough! The coloured illustrated sheet of such fashions in Webster's Dictionary, will supply all the necessary details respecting cut and colour, and style of clothe; and a few dollars, and an impromptu sewing circle will provide the rest. This is only suggestive, for there are many other interesting characters.

ancient and modern—come and tragic—that may be studied and impersonated, with dignity, respectability, and fun galore.

In my review of Trinity from Thack's Hill a fortnight ago, I stopped at the well known home of Mary Ann Morris, on the left side of the road going south. Crossing the road again at right angles I can see the dwelling house of old John Murphy, where now stands the official residence of Rev. Fr. Tarahan. John Murphy was handy-man to my father at Brookings, for years, and hence the friend of my boyhood days. I am indebted to him for the remembrance of sayings and doings, funnier than I have either ever read of, or heard told of by others. I saw him in many amusing circumstances in life; and after he had died I was privileged to be admitted to the wake. I did not quite understand the meaning of all the surroundings at the time; but I was conscious of the fact that in some very real way, I had lost a friend. R.I.P.

Two of his children, Mary and Michael, afterwards lived in the house now owned by Mr. George Gent, and from them Doctor White had bought it years before. Michael was a poet of no mean order, and he held himself always in readiness to immortalize either comedy or tragedy, in verse beyond the average of poetic effusion. Who of those years does not remember the first of several verses on the subject of Confederation!

"Ye brave Newfoundlanders who plow the salt sea! With hearts like the eagle, so bold and so free: The time is at hand when ye'll have for to say, Whether Confederation will carry the day."

Will ye abandon the rights that your forefathers won? Nay! let them "descend from father to son." For a few thousand dollars of Canadian gold, Never let it be said that your birth-right was sold."

Then, when he recalled Canada's offer to Newfoundland, he sang:—"Cheap meal and molasses they say they will give, And take off all taxes that our poor may live. Just give them a chance and get into their scrape, And they'll show you the way, with pen, ink, and red tape."

Dr. Bond Cross, of Brooklyn, B.B., has men employed taking down the old store belonging to the Cross property. This store originally formed a part of the premises of Mr. Peter Street, when he did business on the South Side. It was bought by old Mr. Cross, launched across the ice, and placed in its present position. It will yield a valuable crop of good lumber.

The Trinity delegates to F.P.U. Convention at Port Union went there every morning and returned every night by private auto.

Mr. R. H. Andrews, representing the Borden Confectionery Co., of St. John's, was a guest at Garland Hotel last week.

I wonder how many of our people have ever seen the old well, in the little ravine between Gun Hill and the ridge of rock behind it? It is all but filled with debris—just now; but the use of it, as a means of the interior wall of its exposed, to give one an idea of how carefully it was dug and lined with stone, for the use of the garrison when the hill was fortified.

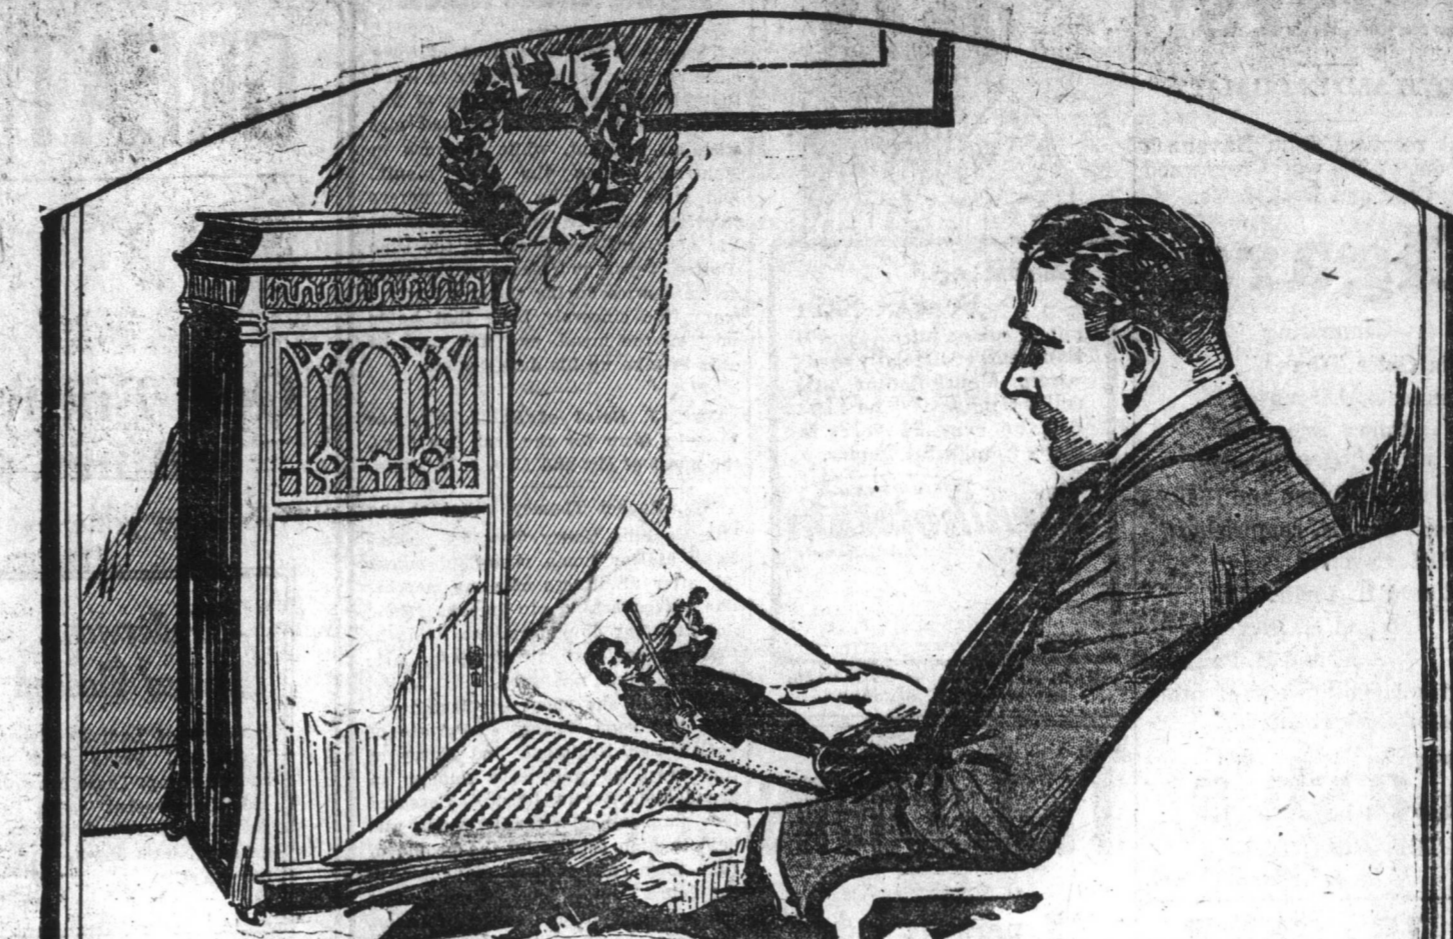

John Woolridge, son of the late Richard and Mary Woolridge, died on Friday, November 28th, and was buried on Sunday, 28th, in the Church of England Cemetery. John Woolridge was baptized by Rev. Thos. Wood on January 11th, 1822. He was married to Louisa Adams on November 26th, 1875, by Rev. Rev. Smith, in the presence of Isaac Woolridge, Honour Jane Woolridge, Edwin Hiscock, Lavina Woolridge, Abel Rowe and Rachel Miller. He leaves a widow and one son in Trinity, and a daughter who is a graduate nurse in Canada. He was one of our quiet, careful living, God-fearing citizens; highly respected by all who knew him, and we shall miss him. May he rest in peace. He was a member of the L.O.A., and also of the Order of Black Knights, and the brethren of the Orange and the Black attended the funeral, which, in the absence of the Rector, was conducted by Rev. Canon Lockyer.

Mr. Walter N. White spent the week-end at his old home in Bonaville in order to be present at the marriage of his sister to Mr. Edward Murphy.

Capt. Barbour has bought the hull of Mr. William Lockyer's condemned schooner "Dart," and is breaking it up for firewood.

Mr. and Mrs. Murphy, who were married in Bonaville early on Saturday morning last, came to Trinity by the Saturday's express, and remained till Wednesday, as the guests of Mr. Murphy's sister, Mrs. Sheehan. We wish them "abundance of peace so long as the moon endureth."

Let the Realism Test help you measure

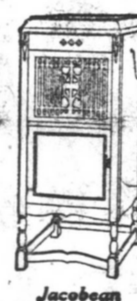

The NEW EDISON as a Xmas Gift

WOULDN'T you like to know why the family will get more enjoyment out of the New Edison than out of any other phonograph? Come in and ask for the "Personal Favorites" Realism Test. We've said that listening to the New Edison is the same as listening to the living artist. We've said you get the same emotional thrill when you hear your favorite music RE-CREATED by the New Edison, as when you hear it by the living artist.

The Realism Test will help you test these claims for yourself. If you find what we've said is true, you will know the New Edison is the phonograph your family wants for Christmas. You know they'll get more enjoyment out of the New Edison than out of any other musical instrument.

Xmas Tip! Investigate our Budget Plan. It brings your New Edison for Christmas—makes 1921 help pay.

Hotel a model of a snow plough, made to scale, from one that is owned by a town in Nova Scotia, and used with perfect success, to clean off the sidewalks after a fall of snow. Under ordinary circumstances one good horse is sufficient power to operate it—plus a few boys for ballast. It would not cost much to build, and would be a useful thing for Trinity.

There has not been so much fresh mutton and beef for sale in Trinity for a long time, as there is at present.

Nearly all our local shopkeepers are advertising sweeping reductions in anything and everything in stock.

Some of the days of this week were very busy ones in the shops here. Judging from the cash receipts, some of the largest on record, there is no great scarcity of money in the district.

Mr. E. Lodge registered at Garland Hotel on Wednesday last. He is the Assistant Superintendent of Methodist Schools, and has visited Bonaville, Catalina, English Harbor and Summerville. He will pay an official visit to the school here, and return to St. John's via Heart's Content. Glad to see him.

I desire to thank a prominent business man at St. John's, for his appreciation of my consecutive historical review, of four of the business firms in Trinity, viz., Granger, Erikson, Lockyer and Morris. In the best interests of Trinity I shall be glad to do the same for any others who may wish me to do so, and who will supply me with the outlines of the necessary reliable information. I am well aware of the value of such a review to business men in the Capital, who are so deeply interested in the "outport trade."

A quiet but very pretty wedding was solemnized at the Chapel of Our Lady of Mercy, Military Road, on Thursday, December 2nd, at 8 o'clock, when Miss Ethel, daughter of Mr. and the late James O'Flaherty, was united in the Holy bonds of matrimony to Mr. Geo. T. McGuire. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. Carter in the presence of the immediate relatives of the bride and groom. The bride was given away by her cousin, Mr. John

NOTICE.

TO FISHERMEN, LUMBERMEN and THE GENERAL PUBLIC:

I wish to announce that we have in our shop the only Vulcanizing Machine in Newfoundland, made for the sole purpose of vulcanizing soles and heels on rubbers and gaiters or any other part of same needing repairs. We do not do it in the old-fashioned way—by cementing the rubber on. We bake the new rubber into the old and put the design on the sole the same as when it left the factory. We guarantee our work and if not satisfactory, return and we will do it over. We also sharpen Hatchets, Axes and Butchers' Knives, also Skates sharpened and attached to boots. Give us a trial and be convinced. Outport work given strictest attention. Come in and see the machine working.

Harbor Grace Notes.

Through a letter received in town quite recently, we were sorry to learn that Mr. Herbert Heater, son of Mr. John Heater of this town, had met with an accident, while at work in Montreal, during the past month, and from which he received severe injuries. Mr. Heater is an ex-member of "Ours," being one of the Blue Puttee boys, and saw considerable active service during the great world war. We sincerely hope that he is now on the mend, and will soon be able to take up his duties again.

Mrs. J. Baird of St. John's, has been in town for the last few days, the guest of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Munn.

Mrs. Rachel Thomey, relict of the late Captain Henry Thomey, passed away at her home yesterday morning after an illness of some months. She leaves behind to mourn, their sad loss four daughters, two living in Canada, and two living here, Mrs. William Pike, and Mrs. S. White, with whom she spent her last days; also two sons, Frank, ex-Private of a Canadian Regiment, and Harry of this town, as well as a number of grandchildren and friends. Deceased lady was one of a family which was held in high esteem by the people of this town, and was a daughter of the late Capt. Thos. Green. The funeral took place this afternoon, interment being at the Roman Catholic Cemetery. To the sorrowing family the town extends sincere sympathy.

A young daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Peddle yesterday. Congratulations.

Mr. T. C. Makinson of the Goulds, near Brigus, was in town during the week. His many friends were pleased to see him.

Quite a storm raged here yesterday, and the greater part of the town was without light for the most of the afternoon and evening, which handicapped the shops and other places of business quite a bit.
