An Indispensible Favorite
OR
Wealth and Beauty at Stake!

CHAPTER IV.
These friendly criticisms are uttered in close confidences with Colonel Majilton, whom Lady Nora tries to keep from being jealous of Major Hutchinson; and she endeavors by a whole network of smiles and jures to keep the audacious Irishman close to her side, and to impress upon him the assurance that Yolande Dormer and her fortune are but "sour grapes." Lady Nora has also the additional duty and care of improving her acquaintance with old Miss Dormer to the degree of confidential friendship delicately toned with condescension.

"For, in case Dallas should find the idea of this girl quite impracticable—and I'm sure I couldn't blame him, prim, spiritless, gawky creature as she is," Lady Nora says, crossly, to herself—"it will never do to be quite tied to those drysalter people."

She has likewise a great many anxious moments watching to see that Dallas and Yolande Dormer pair off together safely, and has besides to reward Mr. Dormer for all his services with smiles and sweet thanks. So, perhaps, after all, her share of the day's anxieties are not so disproportioned to Mr. Dormer's.

At last she is rewarded. "Events are on velvet," as Major Hutchinson says, with a sneer. The rendezvous is the moss-grown old bridge at the head of the valley, overhung by oak trees above the rushing stream down to the Moulin de Naque, a long way below. And here Lady Nora, with her very sweetest maternal air, introduces Dallas to the girlish heiress of "the drysalter people."

"My son, Captain Glynn—Miss Yolande Dormer," she says, with a tender smile divided between them both, as Yolande, tall, slender, nunlike, in her clinging black grenadine and snowy lada muslin scarf, acknowledges the introduction with a schoolgirl bow and a deep, hot blush of schoolgirl consciousness. For, in a moment, she recognizes with a joyful rush and whirl of almost incredulous gladness the "courteous stranger" who opened the cathedral doors for her last night, and whose face and figure she saw for a few minutes in the moonlight.

She hoped in the innermost shrine of her girlish heart—void and innocent of the mystery of love as it is—that she might one day meet with him again—perhaps know him, and be his friend.

He is her ideal of a hero—this broad-shouldered, stalwart, soldierly young fellow, with the proud face and cold, gentle, refined voice and manner. He is something far different from her former heroes of imagination—shadowy creatures of romance and history.

She has not mentioned her brief adventure to Mademoiselle Gantier, confidential and affectionate as that amiable, lively young lady is with her dear pupil.

No doubt Miss Yolande Dormer loses by her maidenly reticence, for mademoiselle could have enlightened her as to the personality of the soldierly-looking young gentleman in the gray tweed suit before she slept that night—could have enlightened her girlish ignorance on a great many other points as well. But Yolande had never spoken of him. She has put away the thought of him until some quiet hour arrives when she shall be all alone, when they go back to England—until some quiet evening when Aunt Keren is gone to drink tea with some of her friends, and Uncle Silas is reading the paper, and Yolande can wander through the espaliered walks of the old garden, lonely and happy with her tender, mournful, girlish fancies.

And now, here, in this lovely place, in the golden afternoon, she has met again—met him, spoken to him, and learned his name—Dallas Glynn—Captain Dallas Glynn! And he does not turn away coldly and distantly after his introduction to her, as she fancied—feared he would. On the contrary, he places himself at her side, and they walk together, through the warm amber lights and tender, emerald shadows of the autumn day, with its glories of color in the purple haze of the fields and woodlands and the yellowing vine leaves on the white cottage walls. The stream runs in music beside them—a soft, rippling sound, as if murmuring of love and gladness.

"What on earth am I to begin to talk to her about?" Captain Glynn is thinking, perplexedly. "I know! Of course—the old church! Well, that will do to begin on; but I can't spin out the cathedral to last all the way down to the mill! Hum! Her school friends? Mademoiselle, her discreet governess? No, by jove! What am I to discourse upon? She never reads a novel, I should think, by the look of her, and I am sure she doesn't go to the theatres or the opera. I should say a church bazaar and attending early services constitute the chief excitements of her existence. I trust you got home safely last night?" he says, making a conversational plunge.

"Got home?" Yolande has almost forgotten where she is for the time being. She looks up, startled out of her reverie, blushing and smiling nervously. "Oh, yes, thank you! You saw me in the church last evening, didn't you?"

"Yes," he replies, smiling slightly, wondering if she is always shy and stupid as she is now. "Were you afraid you were locked in for the night? Suppose you had been?" he adds, banteringly.

"I should have died or gone mad with terror before morning," she says, excitedly, "shut in that great building with those ghostly, white altars and pillars, and all that funeral drapery!"

Captain Glynn shrugs his shoulders un sympathetically.

"Hysterical into the bargain," he says, between his teeth. "Unco' guid young women often are, I believe. Let us hope, then, that such a disagreeable catastrophe will never occur," he says, aloud, dryly. "Do you go every evening to pray there? You are a Catholic, I presume?"

"Oh, no," Yolande answers, "I am a Protestant! We are Nonconformists, indeed. Uncle and aunt are at least, and I go to chapel with them. They are Baptists."

"Oh, then you like going to Roman Catholic services as well?" he says, looking puzzled. "I shall be out of my depth in a minute," he thinks, dismayed, "if my little devotee gets me into a tangle of creeds and polemics. I thought Dissenters were—well, bigoted, you know," he goes on, stumbling over his words a little before the wondering, innocent eyes, "and wouldn't go to pray in a Catholic church on any account. You are more liberal minded, I see."

"But one can pray anywhere," rejoins Yolande, seriously. "And why should I not pray in a Roman Catholic church, Captain Glynn? Aunt Keren and Uncle Silas would not, I know," she admits, in a lower tone, looking up at him confidentially; "they don't like me even to go in and listen to the music. But I think that is rather bigoted, and I don't think it is right."

"Come," says Dallas to himself, rather amused—"we have opinions of our own, demure little nun though we look! I don't think it is right, either. You and I quite agree," he says aloud, smiling slightly, and lowering his keen deep-set eyes to gaze into hers, which droop shyly, so that he is not able to get more than a glance at them.

Large, clear, wistful gray eyes they are. A nervous shirking is perceptible in her manner at the change in his, a faint flush begins to rise in her thin, colorless young face.

They have paused in their walk, and are standing in the shadow of some birch trees, and the brook at their feet has eddied out into a miniature lake, with a miniature, pebbly shore, so he and she are all alone in this quiet, shady nook under the birch trees, by the deep, dark pool, with clusters of the wild, mist blossoming purple beneath their feet.

"I shall never forget this day as long as I live," she is saying to her own glad, frightened heart, all astrife with strange emotions.

"Do you often go to pray in the cathedral while mademoiselle goes to see her friend?" he asks again.

"When we go out to walk after dinner up in that quiet old Haute-Ville, and mademoiselle leaves me for a few minutes," falters Yolande, "I go into the church. I am safe there, you know."

"So you are praying while she is sitting?" Dallas says, looking very stern, and thinking all the time what a good joke the whole thing will be to tell some of the fellows after mass. Yolande's pure, childlike face grows suddenly scarlet.

"Oh, no, she isn't! Please don't tell her!" she exclaims, tears of alarm rising to her eyes as she looks up beseechingly at Dallas, who prescribes a stony aspect. "He is engaged to her—they have been engaged, I should say, for ever so long! And he is so poor, her friends won't let them be married; and she is so devoted to him—poor mademoiselle!—and, as he is going to Madagascar, she begged me to allow her to meet him a few times. Please don't tell any one, Captain Glynn!"

The Change Cure.

When we get a holiday our one idea is to go away from home. Each of us has a sort of deep-seated feeling that the change is the great thing to refresh him and restore his health, and as a rule the instinct is a perfectly correct one.

The fact is that this instinct is hereditary. The period during which our ancestors were savage hunters wandering over vast tracts of country, with no fixed abodes, was so immensely longer than any estimate of historic time that it affected the whole constitution of man. The habit has left a lasting impress upon every cell and fibre of the human body.

Change is good, even if it is from one bad climate to another. At any rate, the air is different, so is the food, and so is the water. Water plays a much greater part in our lives than most of us imagine.

Even if you do not drink cold water, yet you take it in tea and coffee, in all sorts of cooked foods, even in bread. One of the first points which should be considered in the choice of a spot for making holiday is the water, yet few ever give it a thought.

For a healthy person the more complete the change, the greater the benefit. Those who live all the year round on low ground should go to the hills; those who live by the sea should move inland. A country clergyman living in a sequestered parish will often find that the bustle of a big town refreshes him beyond any other form of holiday.

In some cases the best holiday is found in a change of work.

MAY BE MOVED TO HERMANNSTADT.
Bucharest—Hermannstadt, a city in Transylvania, 160 miles northwest of Bucharest, is being considered as the new capital of Greater Rumania. For a long time many Rumanians have felt that the enormously increased frontiers of the country demanded a capital nearer the Western States of Europe than Bucharest. They want to make of Hermannstadt which in Rumanian is called Sibiu, a sort of executive Washington.

Hermannstadt was founded in the twelfth century, and has been splendidly developed by the Austrians. It is thoroughly modern and has a series of fine, public squares, parks, schools, churches, libraries and theatres. It is much cleaner than any of the cities of Old Rumania, and has a much more healthful climate.

Former Emperor Reluctant to Pay Dutch Tax.

AMSTERDAM, June 12.—(A.P.)—William Hohenzollern is quarrelling with the Dutch over the payment of taxes. He is now engaged in a dispute with the municipal authorities at Doorn over the question of local assessments. The former German emperor refuses to pay, contending that the municipality is not entitled to its demand because he came to Holland under compulsion.

The Doorn city fathers maintain that he came there voluntarily, and have decided to enforce the law with retrospective effect. The municipal council in Amersfoort, where the former emperor resided the first year of his exile, has not been slow in following up the decision of the Doorn council, and proposes to submit its claim for arrears in taxes.

Britain is Ready to Submit Reply to German Note.

Urges Unity of Action—Firpo Wins—Turkey Makes Further Difficulties.

BRITAIN READY TO DRAFT REPLY TO GERMAN.

LONDON, July 12. Great Britain has informed France and Italy that she is ready to assume the responsibility of preparing the draft of a reply to the German reparations note. The reply will be submitted to the Allies with the least possible delay in the hope that they will agree to the terms. Announcement to this effect was made by Premier Baldwin in his statement to the House of Commons to-day on Great Britain's reparations policy. The British Government, he said, invites the sympathy of the Allies and all interested states for a proposal which aims solely at the pacification of Europe and the recovery of an exhausted world. Premier Baldwin said it could not be made too clear, in the interest alike of the powers concerned and any who might hope to profit by exploiting the differences between them, that the sole ground of emergency was as to the best and most effective means of realizing the ends which were vital to all. These ends were the payment of reparations and the recovery of the security of Europe. To secure these ends, he said, the Allies have grudged nothing in the past, nor will they grudge anything in the future. This responsibility, he went on, is acknowledged and shared in equal measure by the Allies but devolves especially on the French and British nations. We are determined as any of the Allies that Germany shall make reparations for the damage done in the great war to the fullest extent of her capacity. We have never wavered on that point. The Government are conscious that as a business nation it we ask Germany to pay in excess of her capacity we shall not succeed. We are firmly convinced that measures which would result in the ruin of Germany would be fatal to this country, our Allies and the whole of Europe. The Allies are obtaining less reparations than before the occupation of Ruhr and these have to be exacted at the price of the dislocation of the German economic system and the probable future collapse of that system. Opinion throughout Europe and not least in Great Britain, is becoming more sensitive to these conditions, with alarm at their continuance. The recovery of the world is in danger and peace is at stake. Peace cannot be secured until three questions are settled; first, payment of reparations; second, settlement of inter-allied debts; and third, the security of a pacific Europe. From the beginning we have made it clear that in our opinion the occupation of Ruhr was not calculated to produce the maximum amount of reparations payments. Many of the consequences which were anticipated are in course of fulfillment. Germany herself is moving fast towards economic chaos. Dealing with the present situation in Ruhr, the Premier said the indefinite occupation by one country of the territory of another in time of peace was a phenomenon rare and regrettable, to which an honorable end should be found as soon as possible. The proposals set forth in the recent German note were inadequate, he admitted, but they should be explored and examined not ignored. In conclusion, Mr. Baldwin said so far as united action is possible we shall continue to pursue it. We shall confidently invite the sympathetic consideration of the whole of the Allies and all interested states to the proposals which will have no other aim than the pacification of Europe and the recovery of an exhausted world. Mr. Baldwin failed to state what the British proposals will be in the note the Government intends framing, nor did he say anything in regard to an International Commission to examine into Germany's capacity to pay.

Many Murders by Eskimos Charged.

Nine Held on Murder Charges and Three Suspected.

Quebec, July 4.—That nine Eskimos are being held in the northern territories on charges of alleged murders and that the Canadian Mounted Police is investigating three other reported murder cases was the startling announcement obtained from reliable sources this morning.

As already stated the S. S. Arctic, which leaves on Saturday for the northern regions, will have on board a special judicial party, which has been delegated with powers to deal with the charge of murder laid against one Eskimo and the charges of complicity against two others as the result of the death of one James, a Newfoundland trapper.

At the Attorney General's Department this morning information regarding the whole affair was available for the first time and the details of the far north case made known. From the information gathered Robert James, a native of Newfoundland, who had established a post at Ponds Inlet, Baffin Land, was on the eve of returning after four years sojourn in that section of Canada, when he was shot at Cape Crawford, some distance from his post.

The shooting took place in March, 1920, and according to the crime report filed by Sergt. Major Joy, of the Canadian Mounted Police, who investigated the affair, death was inflicted by one Noo-tax-wat-soo, an Eskimo, two other Eskimos, Roob-re-way-nak and Ah-tee-tak, are claimed to have plotted the death with the alleged murderer and having paid him with white fox skins.

It is claimed in the report of the special coroner that James was persuaded by the three Eskimos to go on the ice at a few yards from his temporary home and that while he was there he was fired at. He fell to the ground and as he was trying to get up again the two Eskimos above mentioned finished him. The story was naively told by other Eskimos, who, however, added that James was afraid and that the Eskimos were afraid that he would kill them as he had menaced them.

It took several months before the Canadian Mounted Police were informed of the affair, and in March, 1922, an investigation opened and led to the arrest of the three men. The body of James was found at some distance from Crawford Cape. It was then also that it was disclosed that three Eskimos, who resided near Crawford Cape, walked several hundred miles to get lumber to prepare a coffin for the dead man. It was they who advised the Canadian Mounted Police, in June last the preliminary investigation, conducted by Sergt. Major Joy, acting as coroner, resulted in the indictment being returned against the three Eskimos.

A few weeks ago Sir Lomer Gouin, Minister of Justice, appointed L. A. Rivet, K.C., Montreal, as stipendiary judge; Mr. Leopold Tellier as attorney for the accused and Adrien prosecutor. Mr. Falardeau stated this morning that most likely the case would not be heard before a jury.

ANOTHER HIT.

LAUSANNE, July 12. The Turks want all British warships withdrawn from the straits simultaneously with troops, but the British insisted on the right to keep two cruisers pending ratification of the Straits Convention. The British say they are willing to move all warships when Ankara ratifies the treaty, but desire the right to come back with up to two cruisers.

KILLED WHILE GOING TO WORK.

BIRMINGHAM, July 12. Five miners were killed and twelve injured, some fatally, at the one mine of the Stoves Sheffield Steel Company, near Bessmer. A train of trip cars carrying forty men parted from a broken coupling while the morning shift was descending into the mines.

FEWER FARMERS

IN NOVA SCOTIA.

OTTAWA, July 12. A decrease of nine per cent. in the number of occupied farms in Nova Scotia in the decade from 1911 to 1921 is shown by the census of agriculture taken in the latter year. The value of farm property has increased eighteen per cent. in the last decade.

MORRISON TO KING.

OTTAWA, July 12. In a telegram to Premier King to-day, made public this afternoon, Mayor Morrison, of Glace Bay, urged the Government to withdraw the troops in the strike area and declared that the city will repudiate the expense of their maintenance.

SYMPATHETIC STRIKE.

EDMONTON, July 12. The Drumheller coal miners are out on strike to-day in sympathy with the Nova Scotian strikers and as a protest against the use of troops in Cape Breton. It will have no effect on the Edmonton field as the local miners are not affiliated with the United Mine Workers of America but with the Canadian Federation of Labor.

OTTAWA REPLIES.

OTTAWA, July 12. Replying to Mayor Morrison of Glace Bay, C. J. Desjardis sent the following message:—"In reply to your telegram to the Prime Minister which has been referred to this department, we desire to point out that the responsibility in withdrawing troops does not rest with this department, but with his Honor Judge Finlayson on whose requisition they were called out. We would suggest that you make a representation to Judge Finlayson accordingly and if you satisfy him of the conditions stated in your telegram we should be glad to comply with his request that they be withdrawn."

Star Movie To-Night.

MAE MURRAY, RODOLPH VALENTINO AND HAROLD LLOYD.

If movie patrons were searching the entire moving picture world, it would be no easy proposition to get together for a show, a bigger and more classified combination than that which is being presented at the popular Star this evening. Reference to the advertising column will show for the feature picture there is the well known Rodolph Valentino and Mae Murray in a Universal Special entitled "The Delicious Devil," and the presence of two such stars cannot help going to make a picture that is well worth while seeing. The cabaret scene with dance is one of the most striking scenes in the production, and the way Miss Murray glides across the waxed floor is a show in itself, whilst the dancing of Valentino needs no reference. In the comedy part of the programme is the popular Monarch of "Mirik"—Harold Lloyd in "The Sad Sea Waves," and needless to say he will produce the laughs. The Management has booked for showing within a short while a Super Special Serial entitled "The Oregon Trail." The purpose of this production was to paint history on the undying screen and inspire the patriot. The "Oregon Trail" is the story of the ride of Marcus Whitman and his little band from New York State to Oregon to restore the Northwest and carry the word of God to the Indians. It is a story with a sermon that cannot fail to please all who will see it.

The Book-World.

AUTHORS and READERS.

Only one volume of Mr. Baring-Gould's reminiscences will, I understand, appear just now. He has written two more, but they are not to be published, while he is alive. Though he is now on the brink of ninety, we shall hope that it may be some time before we get those two volumes, interesting as they are sure to be.

A Novelist's Novels.

Mr. W. J. Locke, like most popular novelists, is generally a story ahead with his public. By this I mean that when we are getting one printed volume from him he has another in manuscript. During the late summer we shall have a Locke story called "Mordicus and Company," and already its successor is in type and on the way to be serialised. Mr. Locke has been living for some time at Cannes, and now he has bought a permanent home there with the beautiful name, the Villa des Isles.

A Posthumous Fragment.

My friend, Dr. George Haven Putnam, tells me that his friend Mrs. Florence Barclay left a novel half written. The members of her family have read it carefully, hoping that there might be a way of publishing it, but they have come to the conclusion that this will not be possible. Mrs. Barclay had not gone far enough with the story to give it any very definite form, nor did she finally revise such writing of it as she had done, and in these circumstances non-publication is no doubt the right policy.

Canon and Bishop.

If you have a good memory for books you may remember a really funny story which appeared years ago under the title, "The Canon in Residence." It was written by Mr. Victor L. Whitechurch, who, I hear, is just now engaged upon what will be a companion story, "A Bishop out of Residence." The bishop in this case suffers from a breakdown of health, and is forced to give up the duties of his diocese for a time. He takes charge of a small country parish, as an ordinary clergyman, hoping to benefit by this retirement into quiet surroundings, but he only tumbles into the most amusing and amusing series of adventures.

The Calling East.

Why has that wonderful romance of the desert, "The Sheik," had such a great sale? It has now sold hundreds of thousands of copies on this side of the Atlantic and on the other, and it still goes on. A working woman writing to me from Bedfordshire says very frankly why she read it, and she thinks that other women, especially working-class women, may read it for the same reason. She fancies that for all women there is emotional glamour in the East, particularly to those who, in their wildest flights of hope, can never hope to visit the East. "Personally," she adds, "I shall always feel grateful to the author, because for one dreary day I was able to forget everything whilst in the company of a 'perfectly impossible gentleman' and a very 'mattisome lady' in a land of enchantment." She also adds rather neatly, "We can meet the possible gentleman every day."

LONDON, NEW YORK & PARIS ASSOCIATION OF FASHION

The Height of Heels.

How many women realize how absolutely essential it is to their health and consequent happiness that they should know to a fraction what height the heels of their shoes should be, regardless of the degrees of Dame Fashion? A small percentage, I imagine. Yet it is an immutable fact, but no matter how high a price is paid for her footwear, the little stout woman who endeavours to make half a inch square support her ten stone or more cannot be comfortable, for the age of miracles is past, and, therefore, she can never be really healthy at her own with the world's general.

nature that the tall, thin figure can really justify the wearing of a high heel, but as she is doing, adds at least an inch to the height this is not always welcome. This, then, is one of the occasions when the "happy" medium comes into her own—for to her to add an inch is quite practicable—and undoubtedly at certain times the Louis pattern is indubitably the smartest heel to favor.

As an alternative for the small, stout, and tall, slim figures the semi-Louis is by far the most graceful. It is usually found on long-ramped shoes, and is a well-made, solid little block, but slightly shaped, thereby differing from the sensible every-day Cuban worn by one and all.

The origin of heels comes from distant Paris—where they were first devised for the sole object of keeping the feet a little away from the burning sands. These were, of course, just flat wooden affairs, secured to the sandals.

Scarcely credible, however, in these days, when our manfolk are apt to scorn, almost the height of our brogue heels, is the origin of the high heel, for they were the invention of jealous husbands. This happened in Venice in those early days so adequately described in some of his writings by Boccaccio.

These husbands rightly thought that it would be far less easy for their wives to steal out of their domain to gad about while they, their masters, were enjoying their mid-day sleep, if they were hampered with heels, or "clogs," as they were then termed. To compensate for this indignity the women were permitted to have their heels embellished with rare and precious stones of every description and value.

Canadian Immigration Increases.
OTTAWA, Ont., July 12—(A.P.)—Immigration into Canada increased 31 per cent during the first four months of 1923 as compared with the same period a year ago, according to figures compiled by the Department of Immigration and Colonization.
Up to May 1, the figures show, 22,146 immigrants entered the Dominion to take up permanent homes.

Austrians Drinking Less Wine.
VIENNA, June 17—(A.P.)—Wine growers and wine sellers in Austria are alarmed at a recent notable reduction in the consumption of their wares. They are loud in their complaints, and they laudably parliament with proposals for help.
The principal cause of the falling off in the consumption of wine would seem to be, first, the exorbitant prices asked by both produce and inn-keepers, and second, the conditions of unemployment and half-time employment still reigning in the country. These have converted the wine lover's forces into a water drinker.

Our Fish Problem.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir:—The economic position of Newfoundland to-day, calls for serious consideration on the part of all leaders in business, church and state. We are passing through a period such as was never experienced in the country's history. In former years of depression, the population although reduced to semi-starvation, stayed "on the job" until better times came.

To-day, we are dealing with a population who will not "stay on the job." The fisherman, mechanic, tradesman, etc., as soon as he can get enough money joins the "emigration contingent" for the U.S. or Canada.

The argument put forward by some of our fish exporters is "produce cheaper fish," so that we will be in a better position to compete in the foreign markets.

The fisherman's answer is, "It cannot be done unless I reduce the expenses of myself and family to a very low level, a bare existence, I am now living on the coarsest foods and wearing the cheapest and shoddiest clothing. Why should I do this when I am only two or three days away from work at good wages in the United States or Canada?"

Our exporters overlook the fact that ten thousand of our young men saw modern life in England, Scotland and France, and thousands more have experienced steady work at good pay in the U.S. and Canada. Those who have come back from war service, and those who are writing to friends at home will not live in Newfoundland at starvation pay and are influencing others to emigrate.

The statement made by fish exporters in the public press to the effect that only $3.50 can be expected for Labrador and $4.50 for shore fish has driven thousands of fishermen out of the fishing boat. The result is that neither merchant nor fisherman has much interest in the fishery this year, and we see vessels, boats, traps, etc., lying idle all around the coast. Hundreds of houses are boarded up, whole families having departed for good.

If instead of preaching "cheaper fish" the merchants would concentrate their energies on improving the markets and doing their utmost to obtain a better price, there would then be some hope of putting the fishery on a profitable and paying basis, and until this is done it is useless to look for improved conditions in this country. The fishery must be made profitable and attractive to the fishermen, otherwise those who can will abandon it, as fast as circumstances will permit.

It is very evident that the catch will be short this year at least half a million lbs. Some business men argue that "you cannot alter economic law" or affect "the law of supply and demand," or "have any influence on the price you will get for fish in the world's markets in competition with foreign fish." To my mind Newfoundland's present condition is due chiefly to blind obedience to such antiquated doctrines. Our American cousins have such doctrines "shot to pieces" and as the American nation is the most prosperous on earth to-day, some of the methods employed can be duplicated in Newfoundland to our advantage.

"You cannot alter or affect economic law, etc.," said the critics to Aaron Sapiro two years ago when he formed the "Voluntary Cotton Co-operative Association." Just watch us do it, he replied, with the result that the 250,000 who went into the association obtained last year $8000 to $40,000 per bale more for their cotton than the "economic law" advocates received who stayed outside the pool.

"You cannot affect the price of eggs," said the wise ones, "as the price is governed by the law of supply and demand, and an egg is a perishable product." The answer is that the Egg Producers' Association of California are getting more for their eggs in New York to-day than the New York farmers obtain for their "fresh eggs."

The price of tobacco is governed by the price and conditions prevailing in the foreign markets, and you can't change it," said the critics to Sapiro two years ago, when he formed the Voluntary Tobacco Pool of Kentucky. "Just you watch our smoke," said Sapiro. Result: Last year tobacco realized 6c. per lb. more for those who followed Sapiro's lead than the pessimists received who stayed outside the pool.

And so the story goes on, the same principles are applied to fruit, wheat, potatoes, butter, etc., and producers, jobbers, bankers and the average citizen are prosperous.

The first principles of co-operative marketing are:

- 1st—Quality, guaranteed and standardized.
- 2nd—Markets supplied only as required.
- 3rd—Active selling agencies.
- 4th—Co-operation with banks so that 65 p.c. of value is paid to owner as soon as his crop is turned in.
- 5th—One selling agency for the Association eliminating competition amongst sellers.

Standardization cannot be obtained by any other method, a properly managed Association can command quality. Individuals are a law unto themselves, and in the fish business indifferent curers can always find merchants who encourage them by buying tal qual.

I therefore submit that the same principles which are so successfully applied to the varied products of the United States, Canada and other countries, can be successfully applied to Newfoundland products.

As the merchants do not see much profit in the fish business this year, either for themselves or the fishermen, is not the time opportune to invite to Newfoundland the great co-operative marketing expert Aaron Sapiro, who was recently lecturing in Canada on the invitation of the Minister of Agriculture. Mr. Sapiro could give us of the wealth of his experience, and after a practical study of local conditions and our foreign markets, suggest a system applicable to Newfoundland fisheries. Certainly we would learn much, and even if his advice was not taken, we would have nothing to lose.

Judge Gary, President of the U.S. Steel Corporation, stated in New York in April last at a dinner given in Sapiro's honor, that he (Sapiro) was the most sought-after business man of the United States. Surely it would be worth spending a few thousand in an effort to safeguard the staple industry of the country. If nothing is done to make the fishery more attractive, then in a few years we will say good-bye to our chief source of employment and wealth.

What about it, Board of Trade? Yours truly,

Imperial Economic Conference.

The Times has made an admirable suggestion that arrangements should be made to bring home the Trade Commissioners for the purposes of the Imperial Economic Conference. As these gentlemen are, of course, in personal touch with the statesmen of the Dominions, and are familiar with the official viewpoints which exist, both in this country and in the Dominions, their attendance would be of the greatest service to the common cause in preventing "a clash between the cold precision of doctrinaires and the impetuosity of Dominion statesmen."

The possibility of such personal misunderstandings must not be allowed to arise, for the whole Empire looks to this Conference to achieve concrete and permanent results in the form of increased trade and better commercial understanding between the component parts of the Empire. This safeguard against personal misunderstandings is in itself excellent, but the proposal has the additional merit of bringing into the deliberations of the Imperial Economic Conference the expert advice of those best qualified to see both sides of the shield of Imperial trade and the development of Empire resources.—Empire Review.

ART AND LIFE.

"I detest the happy ending," says the gifted fictioneer, who believes he is ascending from the rut of our daily held dear: "To my art," he says, "I'm wedded, and my art's the only stuff, and I'd rather be headed than work in that sunshine guff. Art demands the proper painting of this weary world of ours, where dead cats the air are tainting, and there is a dearth of flowers. On a rocky road we're wending, trading worn-out woes for new, and there is no happy ending to the story that is true." So our novels are despairing, full of wickedness and woes, and the characters are faring to disaster at the close. Yet in life we see some stories end as moral stories should, with the hero decked in glories, and the triumph of the good. Every day the vile deceiver finds his schemes have gone to wreck, every day the moral cleaver hits the villain in the neck. And the hero, who is lending every effort for the right, finds there is a happy ending and a fair reward in sight. And the maiden fair is married to the man with snowy ears, and the twin are gently carried down the tide of golden years.

A Multitude of Women Recommend It.

The strongest recommendation possible for any medicine to have is the sound testimony borne by the vast multitudes of women who have used it. It has been proved that 88 out of every 100 women once ill with ailments that caused suffering and despair have been restored to the joys of health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. This marvelous record shows its power over the ills of women, and the letters of recommendation we are continually publishing in this paper should induce every ailing woman to try it.

Canada Names Representatives.

SIR LOMAR GOVIN AND HON. G. P. GRAHAM WILL ATTEND THE IMPERIAL ECONOMIC CONFERENCE.

OTTAWA, July 5—Canada's representation at the Imperial Economic Conference to be held in London next October was definitely decided upon at a Cabinet meeting this evening.

Sir Lomar Govin, Minister of Justice, and Hon. G. P. Graham, who will be Canada's representatives at the League of Nations Assembly at Geneva in September, will return to London to act for Canada at the Imperial Conference. Hon. Chas. Stewart, of the Department of the Interior and Immigration, will join them in London and make the third. The invitation to the conference has suggested three Ministers from each Dominion. Mr. Stewart will attend, inasmuch as the conservation of natural resources

Artists Are Not Impractical Folk.

CLARA KIMBALL YOUNG NOT IN AGREEMENT WITH POPULAR IDEA OF THEIR INSTABILITY.

The comic-paper belief that poets and such can be told most easily by the fact that they leave the house in the morning without a necktie, or carrying a napkin absent-mindedly in their hands, is not shared by Clara Kimball Young.

This star of the screen has taken up the cause of the artist—whether his art is acting, writing, painting, or what not—against the disparagements of the business man as to his practical value in worldly affairs.

It was while enacting a scene in her newest picture, "The Hands of Nara," by Richard Washburn Child, which is coming to the Nickel Theatre, that Miss Young took occasion to say: "All a real artist does is study, try to understand and then communicate his understanding of human nature."

World's Largest Camera.

The largest camera in the world is in the department of the interior in Washington. It weighs 7,000 pounds, occupies two rooms, and takes a picture one yard square. The lens, bellows and copy holder are in one room, and the plate holder and dark room in the other.

An unusually delicious way to prepare onions is to bake them. Boil them until tender, drain, scoop out a small section of the top of each onion, fill cavities with chopped raw bacon, season, sprinkle with breadcrumbs, and bake in a little hot water and bacon fat.

WILLIARD FAILS TO COME BACK

New York, July 12.—Jess Willard, the Kansas giant, former world heavyweight boxing champion, failed in his attempt at a come-back to-night at the age of thirty-seven, when Luis Angel Lopez of Argentine, knocked him out in the eighth round of a scheduled twelve-round bout that was to pick up the opponent for Jack Dempsey, world's champion. Willard put up a good fight, but lost his advantage in the eighth round when the Argentine, feigning fatigue, broke in with a terrific onslaught and finished the fight in the ninth round. One hundred thousand people saw the contest, the largest number to attend a boxing match in all history.

10-NIGHTS' BIG GAME

The Guards-Cadet game to-night practically decided the championship. Both have won three games each and a win for either will give the jump on the other. It is expected that a record crowd will click the turnstiles to-night. The game starts at 7.30 sharp with Charley Quirk as referee.

PONY ENTRIES

Entries for the Kilbride Derby should be made to Mr. Wm. Brennan, Blacksmith. From to-night on practices may commence on the course.

METHODIST ORPHANAGE SPORTS

In the 100 yards dash, young Hamlyn, who made such a good showing in the Vets' Sports, nosed out Tommy Butler at the tape. Time 11 2-5 secs. The half mile was looked forward to with interest inasmuch as Bill Johnson was making his first appearance on the turf. He was obliged to take second place to C. J. Stone, who ran splendidly. Time 2:18 2-5.

Burnell and O'Neill, who took first and second places on Wednesday, were looked up as the logical winners in the mile walk, but a dark horse in the person of young Burgess made the pace so hot for O'Neill that he was obliged to drop out. Burgess made a great impression and bids fair to become a strong runner-up for Burnell's laurels. The latter's time yesterday was 8:56 2-5.

In the mercantile football five, Bairds' defeated Dicks' and Knowlins' the Post Office. In the semi-finals Bairds' eliminated the Royal Stores. In the play-off Knowlins' defeated Bairds' by a corner. The winners were: Walsh, Evans, Mitchell, Badcock and Meadus.

In the quarter mile Butler and Hamlyn exchanged positions, the former winning in 59 1-5 secs. G. Perry, of the Guards A.A. finished a very close second to C. Stone in the mile event. Both lads ran well. The time was 5:15 1-5.

ST. PATRICK'S SPORTS

The principal attraction at the St. Patrick's Garden Party Sports was the 5 mile race, particularly when it was known that Ron O'Toole had entered. The start was made with 19 entrants at Davey's Cottage by Mr. C. E. Jardine. O'Toole immediately took the lead and did the first mile in 5 minutes flat. The result was that when he entered the enclosure he was three-quarters of a mile in advance of the next runner Russell. The mounted police did yeoman service in keeping the course clear of traffic and pedestrians. The pilot car, however, reported one road-hog who refused to slow down when passing the runners. The result was that the competitors were lost in the cloud of dust, which the car kicked up, and it is likely that the ungentlemanly and unsportsmanlike owner will be reported to the Motor Association. Unfortunately the course was not accurately measured one. The reported 5 miles were done by O'Toole in 24 mins., 30 2-5 secs., which would easily constitute a Newfoundland record. Shrubbs' time for the same distance is 24:23.

What happened, however, was that although the committee in charge had roped off the enclosure in Lester's Field for the finish, the immense crowd present, in their excitement, broke down the ropes and the competitors had to finish in a circular bowl of frenzied spectators. It was unfortunate for O'Toole as he was undoubtedly out for a record. Under the wing of Stan Cullen he has completely altered his method and style of travelling, and in addition is much more speedy than he was last year. He will certainly make a big bid for the Telegram Road Race. A short programme of sprints was run off as well. The mile race ended in a mix-up. Owing to darkness the leading four men cut off the two flags at the lower end of the field with the result that Oakley, who was fifth and who kept the track, was rightfully awarded the prize.

LAST NIGHT'S FOOTBALL

B.I.S. 2; Star 1.

Last night's game was very good in spots, and furnished lots of thrills at times. The Stars won the toss and elected to defend the western goal with the wind and sun in their favor. They were somewhat handicapped by the absence of three of their regular players through illness. Just before half time they scored on a free kick. On crossing over the Irishmen began to bombard the Star goal, but over anxiety to score lost them many chances. The game had gone for twenty-two minutes in this period before Halley scored the equalizer. Then the B.I.S. forwards gave some flashes of real football and the game resolved itself into a duel between them and the Star defense who played magnificently. Eddie Phelan, a minute before time got the chance he was looking for, and put the game on ice. Mr. C. Quick was referee.

GREAT ATHLETICS AT GRAND FALLS

They're real live wires at the inland town. They have a four team Football League, viz., Cadets, C.L.B., Guards, Scouts and St. Andrew's. Up to the present, the whole four teams are running neck and neck as the teams are very evenly divided, and at present it is impossible to say who will secure the championship.

Baseball is going very strong out there—the Scouts, Cadets and C.L.B. The Scouts have the jump on the others and to date have not lost a single game. Since the re-organization of the League the fans report a much better brand of ball. Our old friend Darby Pitcher is the leading Scout twirler. Sebald Foran is on the mound for the Cadets, while Snowball LeMoine does slab duty for the Brigade nine. And then they have a real Cricket League out there with three teams competing, the Rabbits, Terriers and Thistles. They are most anxious to try conclusions with a St. John's team if such can be arranged. Surely we can assemble an eleven from our famous old-timers such as Messrs. Berrigan, Peters, Wallace, Savage, et al.

On Saturday last Grand Falls football fans got a rude shock with their crack city team going down to defeat by the s.s. Cranley's team by a score of 5 to 2. Last year the Grand Falls made pie of all the pulp steamer's eleven. This solar plexus blow has put new life in the erstwhile champs and from now on the team that beats the Paper men has got to go some.

THIS YEAR'S DERBY SWEEP

Newfoundlanders invested $3473.00 in the Cable Derby Sweep this year, which was won by ticket 55872 held in London, non-de-plume "Monde." The holder, we understand, was a London newsboy, who won £7,500. There were 86 horses listed, and the holder of each won a prize ranging from £20 upwards for non-starters. Out of a total of 66,996 tickets in the Sweep St. John's bought 3221; Heart's Content 282, and Bay Roberts 226. Ticket 9011 sold at the latter town under the non-de-plume of "Blanc Sablon" drew one of the non-starters, "Pharon," and received one of the smaller prizes. In spite of the tremendous expense it cost only 6 per cent to run the Sweep, which should be an eye-opener to promoters of local sweepstakes.

OPEN LETTER TO REGATTA COMMITTEE

Dear Sirs—In this country, where everyone spends a great deal of time on the water, it is a tragic thing that not one in a hundred can swim. Every encouragement is needed to promote this exercise, therefore on behalf of those interested in swimming and of the public in general, may I suggest that the swimming race be revived at the coming Regatta.

Yours truly,

RUGGER GAME

City May Play Cruiser

It is hoped that a Rugger game will be arranged between a City team and one selected from the Officers and Cadets of H.M.S. Constance, which is due here Monday. The Constance will remain here about four days, and if possible the game will take place on Tuesday evening. She is the crack rugger ship of the North Atlantic and West Indian Squadron, and the game is bound to be a good one. This will be the first exhibition of really first-class rugger seen in St. John's since the Cumberland-City game in 1913, when the ship's crew won by the narrow margin of one point.

An Empty Casket.

The following message was received yesterday by Mr. H. W. LeMessurier from the sub-collector at Trepassey: "Coffin landed here by Captain Power of Maytown was opened in presence of Constable Quinlan, nothing found in it. Coffin was hardwood, lead covered." The casket referred to was picked up in Trepassey Bay on Tuesday by Capt. Power of the schr. Silver Oak.

Official Visits.

Commandant Husu of the Ville D'ys and M. De Beauregard, French Consul, paid an official visit to His Excellency Sir William Allardice at Government House yesterday afternoon. Following this M. Beauregard went aboard the Ville D'ys, returning a visit previously made by the Commandant. As the Consul was leaving a salute was fired from the guns of the warship.

A Lovely Perfume.

Fastidious—distinctive—and fascinating—you will find Three Flowers Face Powder a different toilet aid than any you have ever used. There is a refining influence around this delightful toilet creation that denotes the most supreme and artistic taste. No one can afford to miss the delightful experience that comes from using Three Flowers Face Powder. It is so nice and smooth, so daintily perfumed and so highly suggestive of the natural fragrance of real flowers that people imagine for the moment they are surrounded by the most beautiful natural flowers. To use Three Flowers is a sign of refinement.

Horse Bolts.

A horse owned by Mr. Peter Joy took fright on New Gower Street last evening, and in the beast's mad dash along that thoroughfare, it endangered the lives of many. A young man who made an attempt to stop the animal was knocked down and injured. The frightened beast was eventually stopped near the West End Fire Hall, without doing any further damage.

French Sailor Laid to Rest.

The funeral of M. DaGuerre, supercargo of the ill-fated French banker Bassilour, took place yesterday afternoon. At 2.30 the body of the dead seaman in a coffin draped with the tri-color was taken ashore from the Ville D'ys in the Customs boat and landed at the King's Wharf. The funeral to the R. C. Cathedral was attended by a guard of honor from the warship. Amongst the mourners were Commandant Husu, Lieut. Tiesbaut, Hon. Tasker Cook, Mayor of St. John's, M. D. Beauregard, French Consul; M. Edouard Bidel, a particular friend of the deceased, and also the captain and crew of the banker Ste. Marie. Prayers for the dead were recited at the Cathedral by Rev. Fr. M. J. Kennedy, after which interment took place at Mount Carmel Cemetery.

Lost Overboard From S. S. Arctic.

(Daily News.)
Wilfrid Caron, mentioned in despatches as having been drowned from the C. G. S. Arctic, although quite a young man, has had an extensive career as an Arctic voyager and had a most intimate acquaintance with the polar regions, particularly North Baffin Land. His first voyage was made before the mast with Capt. Bernier, and he was a member of the Canadian Government Expedition of 1919-11. He made subsequent voyages with Capt. Bernier in the S. S. Guide and spent five years in Ponds Inlet acting as agent for Capt. Bernier. During his voyages he learned the Eskimo language, which he could speak as a native. He also spent a year in Baffin Land as agent of a Scottish trader—Capt. Munn, who is

Prospero's Repairs.

The Northern Coastal Steamship Prospero is now on the Dry Dock to receive repairs to her hull. An examination of the ship's bottom was made yesterday. The damages are very extensive, and it will take at least six weeks to put her in A 1 condition. This will be the means of giving to the laborers and mechanics alike considerable employment, while there are numerous other minor jobs to keep a large force of men busy.

At the House.

BUDGET WILL BE PRESENTED ON TUESDAY—NO BUSINESS DONE YESTERDAY—OPPOSITION ARE PROMISED REQUESTED INFORMATION AT THE NEXT SITTING.

House met at 3.15 p.m. In answer to a question the Prime Minister stated that the $5,000 paid him in 1921-22 was in connection with his service and travelling expenses in the raising of the loan of that year. Asked to explain the amount of $2750.00 paid to the late Speaker W. F. Penny for the 1922 session, the Prime Minister stated the session was long and other officials were given extra allowances. Mr. Penny's total amount was as follows:—
Speaker . . . . . $1500.00
Member . . . . . 1000.00
Extra . . . . . 250.00
Commenting on this, Mr. Higgins expressed himself as astonished that the vote of $750.00 should be doubled without any legal sanction whatever and another $250.00 added by way of bonus. It was little use to ask the Opposition to consider estimates if exposures such as this were to be given the House in answer to questions asked.

ANOTHER $5,000 THIS YEAR.

The Prime Minister also admitted that he had drawn another cheque for $5,000 this year on account of the Labrador boundary which he received during April month a short while previous to election day. The House then went into committee of the whole on supply when some information was tabled but insufficient to permit the assembly to discuss intelligently the estimates. The Prime Minister agreed to an adjournment until Tuesday next when he hoped to table the answers to the many questions which have been on the order papers for some time. In order better to facilitate the progress of the session Mr. Higgins suggested the advisability of the Finance Minister tabling his Budget for the coming year which would help materially in a proper discussion of the estimates. The Prime Minister and Finance Minister agreed with Mr. Higgins and promised to present the Budget on Tuesday afternoon. The Committee rose and reported progress. On the motion to adjourn, Mr. Sullivan said he heard many rumors to the effect that the Government had ### allocated certain amounts for fishery supplies which, if correct, he would demand his proportional share for his district.

The Prime Minister replied that there was no foundation in the report that the Government had not given any supplies this year. Mr. Sullivan also referred to a question of Mr. Walsh's a day or two ago re the road being built at Badger. It was said that the road being built was only four miles at a cost of $7,500.00 per mile. He believed that other roads had been started since on which he demanded full information. He thought that members on the Government side had been sending men out lately and he wanted to know from what grant the money was coming. We wished also to state that in any work being paid for by the country his District had to share proportionately. He wanted full information as he demanded that his District participate. The following questions were tabled:—
Mr. P. J. Cashin to ask the Minister of Justice for a detailed statement of the amount of $6049.25 paid by his department on account Imperial Expenses 1918-19.
To ask Hon. the Prime Minister to table a statement showing for what services D. J. Davies was paid the sum of $1000.00 in addition to his regular salary.
To ask Hon. the Prime Minister to table in detail statement of vouchers, etc., of $375.00 paid to Dr. H. M. Mosdell respecting copies 5,000 Facts of Newfoundland. Also to state the total sum that has been paid for 5,000 Facts and handbooks issued by Dr. Mosdell including printing of same.
To ask Hon. the Prime Minister for a detailed statement of the $2500.00 paid the Tariff Commission.
Mr. Walsh to ask Hon. the Prime Minister to table a detailed statement of the vouchers, etc., filed by Leslie R. Curtis for which he was paid the sum of $2,500.00, also to table his report purporting to be the result of his enquiry into railway matters during the past four years.
To ask Hon. the Prime Minister to lay on the table of the House copies of the cablegrams for which the Commercial Cable Company was paid the sum of $4297.99 on account of the Prime Minister.
Mr. P. F. Moore to ask the Hon. the Prime Minister for detailed statements of amounts paid to R. Cramm from 1920 to date and to state for what the several payments were made and date of last payment.
To ask the Hon. the Prime Minister for a detailed statement of $221.55 ### on account of Motor supplies to Dodd's Garage as listed in public accounts 1921-22 under heading Motor Farm, also state where supplies were used.

Mr. Sullivan to ask the Prime Minister in the absence of the Minister of Agriculture and Mines from the House, to lay on the table a copy of all contracts made by the Government, with one Mr. Rogers, or persons for the sale of Government pulp wood and or pit props.
Mr. Sullivan to ask the Minister of Finance and Customs to inform Mr. W. J. Blandford (b) what position J. Blandford held in the Civil Service (c) How many years he was in Civil Service, (d) When he was appointed.
Mr. Sullivan to ask the Minister of Finance and Customs to lay on the table of this House a detailed statement of the $2500.00 which was paid the Trinity Bay Mining and Drilling Company, charged in Contingent account 1922 and 1923.
In answer to Sir Michael Cashin Prime Minister stated that the amounts $637.00 and $1580.00 by his Department under Minister Council were distributed to employees for work done that it was impossible to get outside help to do in to do on account of the smallness of the wages offered.
The House adjourned at 4.30 p.m. until 3.15 p.m. Tuesday next.

SIDETALKS.

By Ruth Cameron.

HOW TO MAKE YOUR CHILDREN RICH.

If I were asked to name the traits of character which should be developed early in the lives of children, I should include the following:—
Simplicity in all its beauty and dignity and nobility.
It will enrich their lives and the lives of those around them if you teach them in their childhood to know and appreciate such common, every-day blessings as Theodosia Garrison has beautified in verse:
The little simple joys that we forget
Till we lose them; the lamp that lights
The pages of the books I love the best,
The hearth's red welcoming on winter nights,
The kindly jest
That moves within its circle, and the near companionship of those the heart holds dear."
— A Rich Bequest.

No Corns

The simplest way to end a corn is Blue-jay. Stops the pain instantly. Then the corn loosens and comes out. Made in clear liquid and in this plaster. The action is the same.
At your druggist.

moon, and the train of the milky way to wonder at."

And then there is the dignity of simplicity—the unconscious poise and charm that is born of simple unpretentiousness. It will save them from false pride and the grinding necessity for keeping up appearances if they learn early in life that bluff and sham and pretense are but a silly waste of energy and that no one need ever be ashamed of honest work.

"The Scientific Agriculturist."

An acquaintance of mine is engaged to be married to a young fellow who is stationed at a nearby army camp. He gets his discharge in June and they will go to his southern home where she informed me, "he will practice his former profession of scientific agriculturist." Not for worlds would she have said that she was marrying a farmer.

"I thought of another young couple whom we met at an evening gathering recently. "Thank you, but this is spring planting season," said the wife in refusing an invitation. "This evening's fun is stolen time. The crops have to be put in and my strawberry bed gives promise of doubling last year's profits." I learned later that they are both college graduates. Yet far from attempting apologetically to dress up an honest but oft-times disdained occupation with pompous titles, they, by their very artlessness, invested it with a rugged dignity of its own.

MINARD'S LINIMENT FOR RHEUMATISM

The True Patent of Nobility.

And then there is the simplicity that is noble.

In the little town where I spent a few weeks last fall a concert was given by the townfolk to raise funds for a public library. Among the singers who responded to the public invitation for rehearsals was a young Italian girl who was employed as dish washer in the town bakery. She had a beautiful soprano voice. "If that girl is invited to sing in this chorus," declared Mrs. Verritch, at the first rehearsal, "you may count me out."

Her remark was quite audible. Doubtless she intended it to be. And then, in the embarrassed silence that followed the remark, the soloist for the concert, a singer of renown outside her village home, went and sat beside the distressed young girl. "There seems to be a shortage of music," she said pleasantly. "Will you spare my copy?"

It is simple-hearted kindness like this that the world has need of. And it was this sort of thing that I meant when I spoke of the nobility of simplicity. Women like that singer are

Fight for Fortune.

NEW YORK CAPITALIST SUED BY FORMER WIFE — DIVORCE SEQUEL.

Mrs. Edith Kelly Gould, the divorced wife of Mr. Frank J. Gould, the New York capitalist, has served papers for an action which will be tried in the Versailles courts, in which she claims one-half of Mr. Gould's fortune as community property of his real estate in France.

This estate is valued at about $4,200,000, and she claims that the proceeds of the sale be divided between her and Mr. Gould.

The suit is being brought under the principle of "community" in French law, whereby, unless previous to marriage a contract specifying otherwise has been made, in the event of a separation, one-half of the property goes to the wife and the other half becomes the husband's.

Mrs. Gould was divorced at Versailles in 1919, and under the decree she received no alimony. This decision was confirmed last month by the New York courts.
Mr. Gould is now living in Paris with his third wife, formerly Miss Florence Lacaze, whom he married last February.

THE LIGHT OF FAITH.

When the dark days come and the clouds grow gray
All men must brave them as best they may,
With never too much repining;
And bravest is he, when the shadows fall,
Who sees in the gloom of his darkened hall
The light of his faith still shining;

In those lonely days when his heart shall ache
And it seems that soon shall his courage break,
There is only one place to borrow,
One place to go for the strength he needs;
He must bind with his faith every wound that bleeds,
And cling to his faith through sorrow.

For a man forlorn is the man who weeps
Though his dead lie buried in floral heaps
And friends his path are lining;
And a pitiful creature he's doomed to die
If he cannot look through the gloom
The light of his faith still shining.

Inventions Suggested by Insects and Animals.

Apart from the principle of aeroplane-making, which we learnt from the flight of birds, the latter are responsible for several other inventions which man has adopted to his own use.

The weaver-bird of South Africa which builds a wonderful nest, gave us the idea of thatching. The woodpecker and the nuthatch are really living pickaxes. If you watch these birds, you will see that they cling to the tree-trunk with their claws and swing the body backwards and forwards in order to bring the beak down with greater force. This is just the position we adopt when using a pick.

Animals, and insects too, possess features upon which we have improved and adapted for ourselves.

What is more thorough than the way in which beavers build dams, so that their homes may not be overwhelmed by floods? The main principle is the same as that adopted by the engineers of all the most wonderful dams in the world.

Have you ever examined the claws of a mole? Do so if you get the chance, and you will see that they are similar in shape to a miner's shovel. And there is a good deal of resemblance in the work which both have to perform.

Hooks and eyes are one of the features of the wings of the bee. You may not know it, but bees have two wings on each side of the body. When in flight, these are hooked together and become one.

Saws are possessed by both flies and beetles. By means of its saw, the saw-fly cuts grooves in the back of trees, to make hiding-places for its eggs. The principle of the circular saw is employed by the sawyer-beetle of South America. This insect's jaws are curved and toothed, enabling it to sever branches with ease by swinging itself round them, and cutting through the wood in a similar way to a circular saw.

The jaws of the leaf-cutter bee gave us the idea of scissors, while from the earwig we got the suggestion for pincers.

Examine the feet of a spider under a microscope, and you will see a very possible imitation of the brush and comb you have in daily use.

Another comb will be found on the bill of the toucan, that dandy amongst birds.

To the sea we might naturally go for a filter, and we find it in the throat of the whale, which lives on what it strains from the water through its specially constructed mouth.

Compare the tail of the lobster with a flexible metal pipe, and you will see where the idea for the latter comes from. The pincers used by a shoemaker are made on the same principle as the lobster's claws.

South African Budget.

(Empire Review.)

In a recent number I examined the expenditure estimates of the Union of South Africa for 1923-24, the total of which amounted to £23½ millions in round figures. Allowing for a supplementary estimate of £90,000, Mr. Burton, the Finance Minister, faced a deficit of £386,000. This was less than the deficit actually realised in the year just passed, namely, £1,353,000. But Mr. Burton proposes economics and no taxation sufficient to bring the estimated deficit down to £436,000, while some of his critics believe that he has under-estimated the buoyancy of the revenue, and that the deficit will in actual fact be far smaller still. It is to be hoped that the critics are right, for the Union of South Africa seems of late years, like so many other nations, to have acquired the habit of accumulating deficits. The real deficit in the past three years in the Union's accounts has been over £4½ millions. The railways have an accumulated deficit of £2,300,000, and the Provinces, following the example of the Central Administration, also fall to balance their annual accounts. Large and thinly populated territories and backward industrial development make these budget problems difficult. To return to the Union estimates for 1923-24, Mr. Burton proposes to raise £130,000 by doubling the duty on watches and re-introducing the old Cape duties on patent medicines. In addition, he courts obvious criticism by introducing a series of increases in import duties on goods ranging from boots to plywood, and from confectionery to acetylene lamps. The net revenue expected from these tariff expedients is only £110,000, and one would have thought that the goal of a budget balance might have been pursued more wisely and effectively by concentration upon speeding up those economies through which, as he explains, Mr. Burton hopes to save £850,000 in the course of a few years.

Heidelberg to Receive Help From Abroad.

HEIDELBERG—Faculty and students of Heidelberg University are rejoicing over the announcement that the institution will receive 50,000 English pounds from the estate of the late Dr. Mond, who founded one of the leading chemical houses in England and is the father of Sir Alfred Mond, who was a member of the Lloyd George Cabinet. Dr. Mond was born in Germany, but became a British subject.

Heidelberg is one of the most international of the German institutions of higher education. It had 2,500 students during the term which recently closed, about ten per cent. of whom were foreigners.

Of these, Switzerland led with 45 students, a majority of whom were taking law courses. North and South America sent six students. England had 13, Greece 11, Bulgaria 13 and Japan 16. 13 of whom were studying philosophy.

Origin of Familiar Phrases.

The expression "a pig in a poke," originated in Northampton Market, when some wags put a cat in a bag or poke, and sold it as a pig to a countryman. When the buyer opened the bag, out jumped the cat. This also gave rise to the expression, "letting the cat out of the bag."

"Kicking the bucket" is a phrase that owes its conception to the days of the great gold rush to California and Australia in 1849-51. Many unfortunate seekers after gold, losing their all in an unavailing effort to find the precious "dust," committed suicide. The suicide tied a rope to a beam in his hut. Then, standing on an unturned bucket, he would adjust the other end of the rope round his neck. When all was ready he simply kicked the bucket from under his feet.

"Worth a Jew's eye" probably came from the fact that King John extorted large sums of money from Jews under threats of mutilation. All the teeth of one Jew in Bristol were extracted to satisfy the King's rapacity.

From a corruption of the Anglo-Saxon we get the phrase, "as mad as a hatter." It has nothing to do with a "hatter," really. The word "mad" in Anglo-Saxon meant "angry, or even venomous, and "atter" meant an "adder or viper." Thus the whole expression really means "as venomous as an adder."

Etiquette for Anglers.

Hunting, shooting, yachting, fishing—all sports have their code of etiquette, but of them all none is more generally recognized than that of angling. Anglers are one great fraternity, all of them ready to be kind and helpful to one another, but all bound by the same code of rules.

It is a very simple code, and below is a short list of these rules, which will very easily be remembered:—

1. When you see anyone fishing on the same stretch of water that you are going to fish, do not begin fishing close above him. Everyone, remember, fishes up stream, not down. Therefore begin some way below, and keep well behind.
2. If it is necessary for you to pass another fisherman when working up stream, keep well away from the bank. Remember that even your shadow on the water may frighten the fish. Trout are especially timid, but all fish are easily alarmed when the water is clear.
3. Never walk heavily near the bank where anyone else is fishing. Heavy footsteps on a bank will drive all fish to cover.
4. Never take a dog out with you when fishing. A dog will infallibly start hunting rats on the bank and so spoil both your own fishing and that of others.
5. When you are boat fishing, either on a river, a lake, or the sea, a wide berth to any other boat is largely occupied. Above all, never anchor close to another anchored boat.
6. If you are out with anyone else fishing, keep well to his left, you stand on his right hand or behind him the chances are that his boat will catch you, not the fish.
7. Men's Tan Low Shoes, with rubber heels for $5.00 and $6.00 at SMALLWOOD'S—June 20, 1923.

Municipal Council.

WEEKLY MEETING.
The weekly meeting of the Municipal Council was held yesterday afternoon. Mayor Cook presided and Messrs. Outerbridge, Collier, and Dowden were present. The Minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed. Reference was made to the loss sustained by the Council in the passing of the late Allan Dowden. The Mayor expressed his sympathy for the bereaved relatives of the deceased. Communication was tabled from the Colonial Secretary in which he stated that the Government was prepared to give the Council the guarantee for a loan of $110,000 which will be expended in the erection of new sanitary stables; payment of outstanding claims for work done during 1921; Protection of the dam at Gull Pond, Windsor and $50,000.00 for the erection of a new steel bridge to replace the old structure known as "Job's Bridge". Communication was also read from the Manager of the Royal Bank in which he stated that the Bank was prepared to advance the amount of $100,000.00 for the same purpose. The Minister of Public Works was offered a large quantity of material for the present season, but it will, however, be given consideration and, in the meantime, the Council is asked at what price they are prepared to supply same. The Hon. Mr. Harris of the Newfoundland League, in reply to the Council's communication regarding the "Corner" at junction of New Street and Parade Street, stated that same had been given consideration by the League and they were willing to fall in line with the Council's decision. It was therefore agreed that the City Engineer should replace the board fence with a concrete wall, which will be an improvement and eliminate what has been the past a source of great annoyance to motor and other vehicular traffic. The application of the British Water Supply will be acceded provided the Charge agrees to usual extra charge for same. The Newfoundland Motor Association wrote in regard to the new regulations, particularly those pertaining to the limited time period of motor cars on Water Street. This, together with the petition received at last meeting from the drivers of the East, West and Central Stands, will be taken up at next meeting. Messrs. T. P. Halley, McGrath, McGrath and C. J. Fox asked payment of claims of their respective clients for lands expropriated for widening purposes. These claims are at present under consideration and will be dealt with as soon as possible. The applications of the several owners for permission to hold concerts in the city parks came up for consideration and it was decided that following nights be set apart for such purpose—Tuesday and Thursday—Monday and Friday. The matter of selection of nights for the respective bands will be fixed by the City Clerk. The question of Mobile Water was the subject of considerable discussion. The Engineering Department were now arranging for a survey same. Attention was called to the vacant lot east of C. P. Eagan's Grocery, Duckworth Street, and the owners to be notified to have a fence erected immediately. Reference was made to other vacant lots in the city, and it was ordered that the owners be requested to have the fences erected. The following communications were read:—(1) From Jonas Barter, S.P.C.A., complaining of the situation of Pleasant Street, LeMarchant and Mundy Pond Roads, and Signal Hill Road; (2) From Mrs. Colin Campbell, Ltd., asking for vacant space in front of premises be given attention; (3) T. W. Collinswood, re the construction of sidewalk, Alandale Road; (4) F. R. Emerson asking that work in connection with the Memorial be undertaken by the Council. All of the foregoing matters were referred to the City Engineer for attention. The following plans were passed, subject to the approval of the City Engineer and conditional upon the same conforming to the Municipal Regulations:—Dwelling—A. Payne, 107 Avenue; Garage—H. Outerbridge, Circular Road. The report of the City Health Officer for the week showed 12 new cases of Scarlet Fever and 1 Diphtheria. Permission was granted Mr. Corbett and Kavanagh to erect outhouse

GOOBIE—PIPPY.
A very quiet wedding took place at Wesley Parsonage on Wednesday afternoon, when William G. Pippy, son of the late William Pippy, was united in the bonds of matrimony to Mildred Willard, daughter of Capt. John and Mrs. Gobbie. The bride looked very pretty in a dress of white georgette crepe, with hat to match and carried a bouquet of carnations, sweet peas and fern. The bride was given away by her father, the matron of honour being her sister, Mrs. Roberts while the groom was supported by W. H. Roberts. The groom's present to the bride was a gold wrist watch, to the matron of honour a gold pendant, and to the best man a watch fob. After the ceremony, the bridal party motored to Seal Cove where supper was served. The honeymoon will be spent touring Conception Bay.

CALLED TO ORDER BY M.P.'S FOR BREAKING RULE—"I WILL LET YOU HAVE IT"

Lady Astor was loudly called to order recently by members of the Labour Party for infringing the rules of the House of Commons by reading a supplementary question.
She, however, persisted, but the purport of the question was completely lost in the storm of protests. Looking defiantly at her interrupters, she at last exclaimed: "I will let you have it."
The Speaker reminded her of the rules, whereon she observed: "There are some things I don't want to remember."
