"HER FOUNDATIONS ARE UPON THE HOLY HILLS."

STAND YE IN THE WAYS, AND SEE, AND ASK FOR THE OLD PATHS, WHERE IS THE GOOD WAY, AND WALK THEREIN, AND YE SHALL FIND REST FOR YOUR SOULS .- JEREMIAH VI. 16.

VOLUME IV.]

tment ERY,

RE.

ASS,

s. D. S.

D, etary. 2tf

our.

, King tock of

EIVED

.

Thips, in factured le in the 51-tf

47-tf

WSELL,

mail or

England.

TORONTO. UPPER CANADA, SATURDAY, OCTOBER 31, 1840.

[NUMBER 17.

Poetry.

To the Editor of the Church.

SIR,—The idea of the following papers, on the Language of Flowers, is taken from an article in an old number of Blackwood's Magazine. From this article are extracted all the poetical altered so as to suit the character of this paper.

THE LANGUAGE OF FLOWERS.

No. I.

their beauty and fragrance; to others, independently of these acknowledged charms, for the varied pleasurable associations and thoughts they suggest,-and foremost of these is the assurance they afford of the exuberant goodness of God. "The provision which is made of a variety of objects not necessary to life, and ministering only to our pleasures, shows," says an eloquent and learned author, "a farther design than that of giving existence." And who does not feel this when he looks on the hedgerow and

> "Full of fresh verdure and unnumber'd flowers, The negligence of nature."

ordained," till overwhelmed with a sense of littleness, we exclaim, almost with feelings of despondency, "Lord, what is man that thou art mindful of him, and the son of man that thou visitest recalled the mind to its proper tone, and given emphasis to the question, "Are ye not much better than they?"

golden eye-is it not a work magnificent?"

FIELD FLOWERS. Flowers of the field, how meet ye seem, Man's frailty to pourtray, Blooming so fair in morning's beam, Passing at eve away; Teach this, and oh! though brief your reign, Sweet flower, ye shall not live in vain.

Go, form a monitory wreath For youth's unthinking brow; Go, and to busy manhood breathe What most he fears to know; Go, strew the path where age doth tread, And tell him of the silent dead.

But whilst to thoughtless ones and gay Ye breathe these truths severe, To those who droop in pale decay Have ye no word of cheer? And death and life betoken well.

Go, then, where wrapt in fear and gloom, Fond hearts and true are sighing, And deck with emblematic bloom The pillow of the dying; And softly speak, nor speak in vain, Of your long sleep and broken chain.

And say that He, who from the dust Recalls the slumbering flower, Will surely visit those who trust His mercy and His power; Will mark where sleeps their peaceful clay,

And roll, ere long, the stone away. If such be the holy language of Field Flowers, let us see how the "Dew-drop trembling" spake its moral to Andrew Marvell:

THE DROP OF DEW.

See how the orient dew, Shed from the bosom of the morn, Into the blowing roses,
Yet careless of its mansion new, For the clear region where 'twas born And in its little globe's extent, Frames as it can its native element. How it the purple flower does slight! Scarce touching where it lies; But gazing back upon the skies, Shines with a mournful light, Like its own tear, Because so long divided from the sphere. Restless it rolls and insecure, Trembling lest it grow impure, Till the warmer sun pities its pain And to the skies exhales it back again. So the soul, that drop, that ray Of the clear fountain of eternal day,

Could it within the human flower be seen, Remembering still its former height, Shuns the sweet leaves and blossoms green; And recollecting its own light, Does in its pure and circling thoughts express The greater heaven in an heaven less. In how coy a figure wound, So the world excluding round, Yet receiving in the day; Dark beneath, but bright above, Here disdaining, there in love. How loose and easy hence to go; How girt and ready to ascend; Moving but on a point below, It all about does upwards bend; Such did the manna's sacred dew distil,

BIOGRAPHY.

White and entire although congeal'd and chill; Congeal'd on earth; but does dissolving run

THE RIGHT HONOURABLE SIR ROBERT GRANT, GOVERNOR OF BOMBAY.*

Into the glories of the Almighty sun.

The vast responsibility upon Great Britain, as a professedly Christian nation, to extend, as far as her territories may reach, the knowledge of that only name whereby sinners are to be saved, has been frequently referred to in the pages of this work, and the attention of its readers has been in a peculiar manner directed to the religious condition of India. Each succeeding year leads us to contemplate with thankfulness the breaking down of the great barriers which opposed the dissemination of divine truth. Our own church seems at length to have gained, in the vast possessions in the east, a firm footing; and, considering the prejudices of the human heart, attachment to long habits, and, above all, the natural tendency of man to idolatry, and his repugnance to embrace the truth as it is in Jesus, as much has been accomplished as could have been within the time expected. It is almost needless to say that the great object of those devoted ministers of God, who labor in foreign parts, must necessarily be materially furthered by the co-operation of laymen, more especially persons of influence; an individual deeply anxious for the salvation of the mil- bear testimony to his personal kindness and courtesy to the church, of which he is himself so valuable an overlions of benighted heathens around him.

* From the Church of England Magazine.

Sir Robert Grant was the second son of Charles Grant, Esq., of whom a memoir has appeared in this magazine, specimens to which the name of the author is not attached; and who was long distinguished for his thorough practithe prose remarks are, in many cases, abridged from the same, or cal acquaintance with the affairs of India; and—what was of more consequence—his deep spirituality of religious feeling. After the usual course of preparatory study, Robert became a member of Magdalen College, Cambridge, with his brother Charles (Lord Glenelg.)-In 1799 he was appointed Craven scholar, and his name Flowers are a delight to every one, to some, perhaps, merely for appears in the tripos of 1801, as third wrangler, his brother being the fourth. He was also second medallist, honours, added very considerably to his influence. It even more than its share of his attention.' is very true that, of themselves, academical distinctions Nor is this the only lesson they impart; they remind us also of will feel it an incumbent duty to bring to the service of scrupulous anxiety we must say, to examine every thing the superintending providence of the Almighty. After con- God talent, study, and assiduity; and it may be well for for himself, to save the feelings of every individual with templating the more stupendous features of creation, "the heavens, those who despise academical pre-eminence, under the whom he had concern, and to wait till he had the time the work of His fingers, the moon and the stars, which he has plea that it has a tendency to foster pride, to nourish and materials for a rigid and impartial investigation into him!" Has not the sight of a flower, so carefully provided for, so patient labour and unwearied toil, which has proved the proceedings of the Bombay government, in only one or from his love? "A dew-drop trembling in a happy little floweret's turned as member of the Louse of Commons, for the larity on this score, either at home or with the govern-Inverness Burghs, in 1826, for Norwich in 1830, and ment of India, it adds at least to the proof of his zeal for his fellow creatures.

Mr. Grant having been appointed governor of Bompected, but a relapse taking place, the brain became af- pious and valuable stores of information. fected, and he sank in July, ir his 58th year.

You must forgive me if I pause for a moown diocese, when the tidings of the fall of Sir Robert as the Lord Bishop of Bonbay will well remember, a fortnight under his hospitalle roof, when on my primary visitation in the winter of 1835. There I had dous benefit ever vouchsafed by Almighty God to a lost country. I may add in this connexion, that it fell undiscreet method, he fully believed India was intrusted, 1832, Sir Robert's zeal in preparing a bill for the erecalmost miraculously, to the sceptre of the greatest, and tion of two bishoprics, now so happily filled by my right Nor had I omitted to notice his family happiness, his New Charter Act the following year. What share he the public worship of God, and the honour he always more especially for the freest diffusion of Christianity, put on religion in his most ordinary converse.

witnessed at the public meeting (the most numerous vast fund of information on which he could draw. ever recollected at Bombay) at which you presided after "It has pleased, however, the Almighty to remove his death, did not so much surprise me; but I confess him from us. Happy for himself the transition from an I read with no little emotion the simple but affecting tes- earthly to a heavenly kingdom! He has 'served his timony borne by different persons to the efforts he had generation according to the will of God.' Nor did his made to serve India. A whole life seems to have been humble, holy, pious death, his poignant confessions of crowded into his very few years of government (only sin, his fear of himself, his delight in hearing holy scripfor founding medical colleges and native dispensaries, munificence, the rising native youth.

I am certain that I faithfully represent. But his praise diocese.* stood on far higher ground than this on the ground of genuine piety and love to God. The general interests of religion, and of our own church establishment in particular, occupied a large share of his attention; and when I consider the vast amount of correspondence which passed under his eye, as stated by the secretary, all of which he examined for himself, I am quite astonished at the readiness with which all correspondence was an-Charles being first; such honours—truly no paltry ones swered which passed through my department; and I testify that his acquirements could have been of no cannot but feel bound to acknowledge that, amidst his ordinary grade, and the circumstance that he took such various and extensive engagements, the church occupied

"The allusion to which this statement refers, as made are, in reality, valueless, if not accompanied by sound by one of the secretaries of government, to the sources religious principle; still they are not, on that account, of his premature disease and death, is indeed most touchto be regarded as unworthy the aim of the Christian stu- ing. Yes, our noble-minded and lamented friend fell a dent. Perhaps there has been no little error on this sacrifice to his exertions, somewhat increased perhaps point. If a man's heart is really dedicated to God he beyond the strictest necessity, by a scrupulous, an overvanity, and to withdraw the affections from things above, the merits of each case, which carried him far beyond to consider whether, in many cases, it may not be the in- his strength, though it inspired such unlimited love and dulgence of idle habits and an unwillingness to undergo | confidence in those placed under his authority. The exquisitely wrought, and so lavishly endowed with fragrance, stumbling block in the way of their aiming at distinction. two departments, occupied 24,000 folios in the year former education. Having graduated as M. A. in 1806, Mr. Grant was 1837. Embarrassing circumstances may possibly have called to the bar by the Hon. Society of Lincoln's Inn, concurred to harrass his mind. The arrangements of power; then anent the English Reformation. For the first, I which otherwise are unlawful: but know, once for all, that I Each of us may have some especial favourites among flowers:
in 1807. He ultimately became King's sergeant in the bis government with the Supreme Council at Calcutta, bis government with the S flower, as it comes before us, arrayed in a religious light, seems rupts, and a member of the Irivy Council in 1831. He sed to have created, from their novelty, continual imlovely as the last. Who would exclude the meanest of them all was appointed Judge-Advocate in 1832; he was refrom the one grand object of his heart. learned something of his devotion to India, his indefati- ly thirty years thus suddenly snapped asunder, leaves me opinion, who, like you, have a library in their brain. And so I gable application to business, as attention to moral and desolate indeed. I feel as if I had lost a brother. His must leave this particular, until I be furnished with means to put gable application to business, its attention to historia and religious character in his promotions, his love to the naprivate tokens of friendship I dare not, and ought not it to an issue; which had been sooner done, if I could have had my I close up this paper, desiring you to take notice, that there is tive population, his high conception of the capabilities, to particularize. It may, however, interest his friends will. Indeed, your second well proved is most sufficient, which is, in almost every respect, of that fine country, in the gov- to know that his able pen may be traced in the large aid that the English Church-government is not builded upon the ernment of which he had been called to share, his zeal he afforded me in the two sermons on Habit, in my first foundation of Christ and the apostles. But I conceive your to raise its position amongst the nations of the world, his volume of sermons of 7817; in my Defence of the probation of this doubly defective; for first, albeit our archbishops ceaseless activity in diffusing that information, and ex- Church Missionary Society in 1818; and in the Funeral citing that spirit of inquiry and enterprise in commercial discourse for his honoured father in 1823. It is known, pursuits, on which national greatness so materially de- however, that I owe to his honoured father's friendship, continued in the present generation, the appointment "I had witnessed also the transcendant importance which Lord Glenelg, his eldest son, when President of which he attached to Christianity, as the most stupen- the India Board, was pleased to intrust to me in this world, and for the promotion of which, in every safe and der my own notice to witness, before I left England in freest, and most enlightened of the Western nations .- reverend brethren, and which was incorporated into the personal and domestic piety, his prayers daily with his took in the general enactments of that charter, as well household, his attendance twice on the Lord's Day on as of the preceding one of 1813, and in the provisions all acquainted with the detail of those great measures "It is soothing to my feelings to dwell on such Chris- well know. The two large and valuable volumes on the tian excellencies-gratitude demands it of me. The subject, which he published in 1813, testify his powers ebullition of grief and sympathy which your Lordship of mind, his elegance and force in composition, and the three and a half-March 1835 to July 1838.) The ture, his firm but trembling reliance alone on the merits enumeration of 'public measures, which he either origi- of his Saviour, leave any thing to desire to his family nated or carried into effect,' to use the terms of one of and friends in the way of alleviation for his irreparable for founding methed congregative dispensaries, and for encouraging, by public employment and private the pen of one who had, for a long series of years, had you will not pretend to say that there was an equality between the pen of one who had, for a long series of years, had you will not pretend to say that there was an equality between the pen of one who had, for a long series of years, had you will not pretend to say that there was an equality between the pen of one who had, for a long series of years, had also rebel against him, and withal against God, who for the "Nor was it the least affecting to me to read the de- with the feelings and views, as well as the conduct of and it was the privilege of those called on to labour in Jeffrey,) towards the close of the meeting:—'For my a candid statement of his mode of conducting the affairs ment quite invalidate these arguments. And if you can say n the presidency of Bombay, to have in their late governor, own part, I should be very ungrateful indeed if I did not of the presidency; and his own zeal for the Stability of more for the Churches of Corinth, Ephesus, Thessalonica, &c., myself; and not only to myself, but to the whole body seer, and his willingness to make personal sacrifice for for St. Jerome, it is well known that he was no great friend to of the clergy of our church establishment, in whose name its welfare, is now more than ever displayed, by his mu-I now speak, and whose unanimous feeling and opinion nificent donation to the cathedral now erecting in his will find that he makes a clear distinction between a bishop and a

*We take the opportunity of cordially recommending to our readers "Sacred Poems, by the late Right Hon. Sir R. Grant, Loudon. Saunders and Otley. 1839." Lately edited by Lord

CORRESPONDENCE BETWEEN HIS MAJESTY KING CHARLES I. AND MR. ALEXANDER HENDERSON.

(Continued from our last.)

For Mr. Abxander Henderson. HIS MAJESTI'S THIRD PAPER.

1. It were arrogance, besdes loss of time, in me to vie preambles with you; for it is truth I seek, and neither praise nor victory; wherefore I shall only insist upon those things which are merely necessary to my own satisfaction, in order to which I desired the assistance of some divines; whereupon I will insist no it to be a begging of the question; as likewise those great disfurther, save only to wish that you may not, as I have known many men do, lose time, by leing mistaken in the way to save it; wherein I have only sought to disburden myself, but to lay no and for your Roman authors, it is no great wonder for them to blame upon you; and so I leve it.

2. Nor will I say more of the second than this, that I am glad | As for Church-ambition, it doth not at all terminate in seeking to you have so well approved if what I have said concerning my be pope; for I take it to be no point of humility to endeavour to education and reason; but then remember, that another man's be independent of kings, it being possible that papacy in a multiwill is at least as weak a ground to build my faith upon as my tude may be as dangerous as in one.

confess you now speak clearly, which before you did but darkly esteem nothing the better because it is done by such a particular mention, wherein I shall mainly differ with you, until you shall | Church, though it were by the Church of England, which I avow shew me better reason; yet thus far I will go along with you, that, most to reverence; but I esteem that Church most which comes when a general council cannot be had, several kingdoms may nearest to the purity of the primitive doctrine and discipline, as I reform themselves (which is learnedly and fully proved by the late | believe this doth. Now, concerning ordination, I bade you prove Arcibishop of Canterbury, in his disputation against Fisher); but | that presbyters without a bishop might lawfully ordain, which yet for Finsbury in 1834. It would be entirely foreign from his own presidency. The secret of all this distinguished that the inferior magistrates and other people, take it which way I conceive you have not done; for (2 Tim. i. 6) it is evident that the design of this memoir temake any allusion to Mr. reputation and success was not so much his fine talents, ya will, hath this power, I utterly deny; for which, by your St. Paul was at Timothy's ordination: and albeit that all the Grant's parliamentary conduct, or any comment on his nor his diligent habits of public business, nor his zeal fivour, you have made no sufficient proof, to my judgment.— seventy had their power immediately from Christ, yet it is as political views; my object is to bring him under the and perseverance, as his thorough knowledge of India, Indeed, if you could have brought, or can bring, authority of evident that our Saviour made a clear distinction between the reader's notice in a still higher character—that of a and the high and elevated principles which directed his Scripture for this opinion, I would, and will yet, with all reverence twelve apostles and the rest of the disciples, which is set down by Christian, and the various insitutions which he support- whole conduct. He had not to acquire as other gover- submit; but as for your examples out of the Old Testament, in three of the evangelists, whereof St. Mark calls it an ordination, ed and zealously advocated, he object of which was the nors; he brought to his chair an acquaintance with the my mind they rather make for than against me, all those reforma- (Mark iii. 15); and St. Luke says, "and of them he chose advancement of religion, are proofs that his mind was most minute affairs of his Presidency. He inherited tions being made by kings; and it is a good probable, though I twelve," &c. (Luke vi. 13): only St. Matthew doth but barely occupied with a deep concen for the best interests of from his eminent father (the late Charles Grant, Esq., will not say convincing, argument, that if God would have enumerate them by their name of distinction (Matt. x. 1), I whose life and character are far too little known—what approved of a popular reforming way, there were kings of Judah suppose out of modesty, himself being one; and the other two, he accomplished for the religious interests of India duand Israel sufficiently negligent and ill to have made such examples being none, are more particular. For the administration of bay, in 1834, and received he honour of knighthood, ring a period of fifty years, will only be fully disclosed by; but, by the contrair, the sixteenth chapter of Numbers shews baptism, giving, but not granting, what you say, it makes more for proceeded to that presidency. He was not destined, at the last great day,) an inextinguishable love for the clearly how God disapproves of such courses. But I forget this me than you: but I will not engage upon new questions, not however, to retain long the rens of government. In the country which he left at the age of nine, to return to it assertion is to be proved by you; yet I may put you in the way; necessary for my purpose. summer of 1838, having left the presidency for the hills, as governor after a lapse of forty-seven years; having wherefore, let me tell you that this pretended power in the people he rode out in heavy rains, andin consequence was seized not wholly lost the language of Hindostan during the must, as all others, either be directly, or else declaratorily, by with fever. The disorder abated, and recovery was ex- long interval, whilst he had been collecting the most co- approbation, given by God; which, how soon you can do, I submit; otherwise you prove nothing. For the citing of private answer out of the last section; and for your argument, though the "Such a governor soon becomes known, especially in men's opinions, more than as they concur with the general consent intention of my oath be for the good of the Church collective, The efficiency of Sir Robert's Government—the im- our Eastern empire. When it is once understood that of the Church in their time, weighs little with me, it being too The efficiency of Sir Robert's Government—the lim-mense load of business he was compelled to transact, are there is a zeal and promptitude in the head of the state well known that "rebels never wanted writers to maintain their tive body? Certainly no more than the people can dispense with so fully set forth in the appendix to the last charge of equal to the most ardent wishes of every applicant—a unjust actions;" and though I much reverence Bishop Jewel's me for them oaths I took in their favours without the two houses the Bishop of Calcutta, that r may be well to extract passion for India—a determination to promote, not primemory, I never thought him infallible; for Bilson, I remember of Parliament; as for future reformations, I will only tell you that the whole passage referring to tlem, as much more valua- vate objects, nor the aggrandizement of a family, nor the well what opinion the king my father had of him for those opinions, ble than any that the writer o' this memoir could give. accumulation of wealth, nor even the ordinary ends of and how he shewed him some favour in hope of his recantation, operates like a charm; it penetrates the remotest rami- than rebellions; for I hold that no authority is lawful but that sion of the death of two of the leading personages in my in his life. The period of peace during which his government fell, afforded him the fairest field for his bene- government you say I take no notice of. Now, I thought it was own diocese, when the tiding of the fall of Sir Robert Grant struck a coldness to my very heart I had passed, ficent labours. Unlike some of his most eminent predediverted government you say I take no notice, yea, and answer too, when I told you a negative, this pretends to answer; for my question was not concerning force cessors, his attention and resources were not diverted as I conceived, could not be proved, and that it was for me to of arguments, for I never doubted the lawfulness of it, but force of prove the affirmative; which I shall either do, or yield the argu-"For myself I can only say, that a friendship of near- ment, as soon as I shall be assisted with books, or such men of my and bishops should have professed Church-government to be mutable and ambulatory, I conceive it not sufficient to prove your assertion; and, secondly, I am confident you cannot prove that most of them maintained this walking position (for some particulars must not conclide the general), for which you must find much better argumen's than their being content with the constitution of the Churci, and the authority and munificence of

and also between the different towns and provinces of for it is the confession of all who can best judge of the when I see it; for your former paper affirms that those times were the presidency, and advancing its commercial and general case, that for capacity and variety of talent, for sincerity very dark for matter of fact, and will be so still for me, if there be prosperity, had scarcely been made by one public funcand singleness of purpose, for purity of private life, for no clearer arguments to prove it than those you mention: for subjects to be shedient and singleness of purpose, for purity of private life, for no clearer arguments to prove it than those you mention: for subjects to be shedient and singleness of purpose, for purity of private life, for no clearer arguments to prove it than those you mention: for subjects to be shedient and singleness of purpose, for purity of private life, for no clearer arguments to prove it than those you mention: prosperity, had scarcely been made by one public functionary, when a similar series of proceedings was detailed by another distinguished person for his putting himself gious principle, for calmness and impartiality in his degree as a husband and parent, for deep reliberance tionary, when a similar series of proceedings was detailed bright example as a husband and parent, for deep reliberance tionary, when a similar series of proceedings was detailed bright example as a husband and parent, for deep reliberance tionary, when a similar series of proceedings was detailed bright example as a husband and parent, for deep reliberance tionary, when a similar series of proceedings was detailed bright example as a husband and parent, for deep reliberance tionary, when a similar series of proceedings was detailed bright example as a husband and parent, for deep reliberance tionary, when a similar series of proceedings was detailed bright example as a husband and parent, for deep reliberance tionary, when a similar series of proceedings was detailed bright example as a husband and parent, for deep reliberance tionary, when a similar series of proceedings was detailed bright example as a husband and parent, for deep reliberance tionary, when a similar series of proceedings was detailed bright example as a husband and parent, for deep reliberance tionary transfer and singleties of proceedings was detailed bright example as a husband and parent, for deep reliberance tionary transfer and singleties of proceedings was detailed bright example as a husband and parent, for deep reliberance tionary transfer and singleties of proceedings was detailed bright example as a husband and parent, for deep reliberance to the proceedings was detailed bright example as a husband and parent, for deep reliberance to the proceedings was detailed bright example as a husband and parent, for deep reliberance to the proceedings was detailed bright example as a husband and parent, for deep reliberance to the proceeding was detailed bright example as in communication with individuals of all classes, and eliciting information on the subject of education; for esfor a statesmanlike knowledge of India, no governor has answer but as one argument); and because the apostles met with the prince that it of the worst prince than the worst prince the worst prince than the worst pr tablishing schools and promoting the interests of science; surpassed, and few have equalled, Sir Robert Grant." even so, in these times, does the deans and chapters, and many This testimony is the more valuable, as coming from times those of the inferior elergy, assist the bishops: but I hope Shall the subjects both by their wickedness provoke God for their constant opportunities of being intimately conversant apostles and other presbyters; which not being, doth in my judgclaration of the Archdeacon of Bombay (the Rev. H. Sir Robert; who from personal observation could give * This stands in the original as a marginal addition.

than you have for Jerusalem, it will gain no ground on me. As presbyter, as yourself confesses; but the truth is, he was angry with those who maintained deacons to be equal to presbyters.

5. I am well satisfied with the explanation of your meaning cerning the word fallacy, though I think to have had reason for saying what I did; but, by your favour, I do not conceive that you have answered the strength of my argument; for when you and I differ upon the interpretation of Scripture, and I appeal to the practice of the primitive Church, and the universal consent of the Fathers, to be judge between us, methinks you should either find a fitter, or submit to what I offer; neither of which, to my understanding, you have yet done; nor have you shewn how, waving those judges I appeal unto, the mischief of the interpretation by private spirits can be prevented. Indeed, if I cannot prove by antiquity that jurisdiction belongs to bishops, thereby clearly distinguishing them from other presbyters, I shall then begin to misdoubt many of my former foundations. As for Bishop Davenant, he is none of those to whom I have appealed, or will submit unto. But for the exception you take to Fathers, I take coveries of secrets, not known to former ages, I shall call newinvented fancies, until particularly you shall prove the contrary; seek shifts whereby to maintain novelties, as well as the puritans.

6. As I am no judge over the reformed Churches, so neither do 3. In this there are two points: first, concerning the reforming | I censure them: for many things may be allowable upon necessity,

> 7. For my oath, you do well not to enter upon those questions you mention; and you would have done as well to have omitted your instance; but out of discretion, I desire you to collect your therefore can I be dispensed withal by others than the representanodum non solvit argumentum.

8. For the king my father's opinion, if it were not to spend "One instance has just taxen place, and thrown all government only, but the good of the prostrate millions (as his good nature made him do many things of that kind); but time, (as I believe needlessly), I could prove, by living and written India, and especially the heart of my dear brother of committed to his care—and especially when this is seen whether he did or not, I cannot say. To conclude this point; testimonies, all and more than I have said of him, for his persua-Bombay, into the deepest dejection—the sudden death of his and my mutual friend, the late governor of that of his and my mutual friend, the late governor of the his and my mutual friend, the late governor of the his and my mutual friend, the late governor of the his and my mutual friend, the late governor of the his and my mutual friend his and my mutual friend his and my mutual friend his and presidency. You must forgree me if I pause for a moment on the loss of so distinguished a person. I had fications of the administration. It elicits and rewards which is either directly given, or at least approven, by God.—

which is either directly given, or at least approven, by God.—

preference whatsoever, to make war, though defensive, against their ment on the loss of so distinguished a person. I had individual enterprise of every kind. Sir Robert Grant's hardly given utterance to these expressions which you individual enterprise of every kind. Sir Robert Grant's Secondly, concerning the English Reformation: the first reason lawful sovereign; against which no less proofs will make me yield will find in the commencement of the charge, on occa-

9. Lastly, you mistake the query in my first paper, to which arms, to which, I conceive, it says little or nothing, unless, (after my example), you refer me to the former section: that which it doth is merely the asking of the question, after a fine discourse of the several ways of persuading, rather than forcing, of conscience. none of these sections but I could have enlarged to many more lines, some to whole pages; yet I chose to be thus brief, knowing you will understand more by a word than others by a long discourse; trusting likewise to your ingenuity, that reason epitomised will weigh as much with you as if it were at large. Newcastle, June 22, 1646.

For His Majesty.

MR. ALEX. HENDERSON'S THIRD PAPER. Having in my former papers pressed the steps of your Majesty's propositions, and finding, by your Majesty's last paper, controverprinces, or you will fall extremely short. As for the retaining of sies to be multiplied, I believe beyond your Majesty's intentions the "Roman leaven," you must prove it as well as say it, else you in the beginning—as concerning the reforming power; the reforsay little: but that the conforming of the Church-discipline to the mation of the Church of England; the difference betwixt a bishop civil policy should be a depraving of it, I absolutely deny; for I and a presbyter; the warrants of presbyterian government; the ver, that without it the Church can neither flourish nor be happy. authority of interpreting Scripture; the taking and keeping of And for your last instance, you shall do well to shew the prohibi- public oaths; the forcing of conscience; and many other inferior tion of our Saviour against the addition of more officers in the and subordinate questions, which are branches of those main con-Church than he named; and yet, in one sense, I do not conceive troversies;-all which in a satisfactory manner to determine in a that the Church of England hath added any; for an archbishop is few words, I leave to more presuming spirits, who either see no only a distinction for order of government, not a new officer; and knots of difficulties or can find a way rather to cut them asunder so of the rest: and of this kind I believe there are divers now in than to unloose them: yet will I not use any tergiversation; nor Scotland which you will not condemn, as the moderators of do I decline to offer my humble opinion, with the reasons thereof, in the own time concerning each of them; which, in obedience to 4. Where you find a bishop and presbyter in Scripture to be your Majesty's command, I have began to do already. Only, sir, one and the same, which I deny to be always so, it is in the by your Majesty's favourable permission, for the greater expediapostles' time. Now, I think to prove the order of bishops suc- tion, and that the present velitations may be brought to some ceeded that of the apostles, and that the name was chiefly altered issue, I am bold to intreat that the method may be a little altered, in reverence to those who were immediately chosen by our and I may have leave now to begin at a principle, and that which Saviour, albeit in their time they caused divers to be called so, as should have been inter pracognita; I mean the rule by which we Barnabas, and others—so that I believe this argument makes are to proceed and to determine the present controversy of Churchlittle for you. As for your proof of the antiquity of Presbyterian policy; without which we will be led into a labyrinth, and want a the resolutions, 'for improving the agricultural resources loss. Irreparable to them it undoubtedly is; nor can government, it is well that the Assembly of Divines at West- thread to wind us out again. In your Majesty's first paper, the of the country, facilitating communication with Europe, it be soon even partially supplied as to his public station; minster can do more than Eusebius could—and I shall believe universal custom of the primitive Church is conceived to be the

> * "If servants ought to obey their masters, not only being all men's eyes that he is so? I ask again, what if it belong of the wickedness of the subjects, that the prince is undiscreet and evil? punishment of their sins did give them such a prince?"—An Homily against Disobedience and Wilful Rebellion. First Part.

rule. In your second paper, section fifth, the practice of the primitive Church, and the universal consent of the Fathers, is made a convincing argument, when the interpretation of Scripture is doubtful: in your third paper, section fifth, the practice of the primitive Church, and the universal consent of the Fathers, is made judge; and I know that nothing is more ordinary in this question than to allege antiquity, perpetual succession, universal consent of the Fathers, and the universal practice of the primitive Church, according to the rule of Augustine, quod universa tenet ecclesia, nec a concilio institutum, sed semper retentum est, non nis authoritate apostolica traditum rectissime creditur. There is in this argument, at the first view, so much appearance of reason that it may much work upon a modest mind; yet being well examined and rightly weighed, it will be found to be of no great weight; for, besides that the minor will never be made good in behalf of a diocesan bishop having sole power of ordination and jurisdiction, there being a multitude of Fathers who maintain that bishop and presbyter are of one and the same order, I shall humbly offer some few considerations about the major, because it hath been an inlet to many dangerous errors, and hath proved a mighty hinderance and obstruction to reformation of religion.

1. First, I desire it may be considered, that while some make two rules for defining of controversies, the Word of God and antiquity, which they will have to be received with equal veneration, or, as the papists call them, canonical authority and catholic tradition: and others make Scripture to be the only rule, and antiquity the authentic interpreter, the latter of the two seems to me to be the greater error; because the first setteth up a parallel in the same degree with Scripture, but this would create a superior in a higher degree above Scripture; for the interpretation of the Fathers shall be the διότι, and accounted the very cause and reason for which we conceive and believe such a place of Scripture to have such a sense; and thus men shall have dominion over our faith, against 2 Cor. i. 24; our faith shall stand in the wisdom of man, and not in the power of God, (1 Cor. ii. 5); and Scripture shall be of private interpretation; for the prophecy came not of old by the will of man, (2 Pet. i. 20-22). Nisi homini Deus placuerit, Deus non erit, homo jam Deo propitius esse debebit, saith Tertullian.

2. That the Scripture cannot be authentically interpreted but by Scripture is manifest from Scripture: the Levites gave the sense of the law by no other means but by Scripture itself (Neh. viii. 1). Our Saviour, for example to us, gave the true sense of Scripture against the depravations of Satan, by comparing Scripture with Scripture, and not by alleging any testimonies out of the rabbins (Matt. iv); and the apostles, in their epistles, used no other help but the diligent comparing of prophetical writings; like as the apostle Peter will have us to compare the clearer light of the apostles with the more obscure light of the prophets (2 Pet. i. 19); and when we betake ourselves to the Fathers, we have need to take heed that, with the papists, we accuse not the Scriptures of obscurity or imperfection.

4. The Fathers themselves, as they are cited by Protestant writers, hold this conclusion, that Scripture is not to be interpreted but by Scripture itself. To this purpose, amongst many other testimonies, they bring the saying of Tertullian, surge veritas ipsa Scripturas tuas interpretare, quam consuetudo non novit, nam si noscet, non esset-if it knew Scripture, it would be ashamed of itself, and cease to be any more.

4. That some errors have been received, and continued for a Justin Martyr, continued till the time of Reformation, although it was rejected by Augustine, as the divine right of episcopacy was opposed by others; the error about the vision of God, that the souls of the saints departed see not the face of God till the judgment of the great day, was held by universal consent; the same may be said of the error of the millenaries; and, which more nearly toucheth upon the present question, the ancients erred begin to work in the days of the apostles. Many other instances might be brought to prove the universal practice of the Church, as were not warranted by the apostles, as in the rites of baptism and prayer; and the forming up and drawing together the article of that creed that is called symbolum apostolicum; the observation of many feasts and fasts, both anniversary and weekly.

5. That it is not a matter so incredible or impossible as som would have it appear to be, for the primitive Church to have made a sudden defection from the apostolic purity. The people of Israel, in the short time of Moses his absence on the mount, turned aside quickly, and fell into horrible idolatry (Exod. xxxii): soon after the death of Joshua, and the elders that had seen the great works which the Lord had done for Israel, there arose another generation after them, which did evil in the sight of the settling of religion by David and Solomon, the worship of God was stances, absent, Chron. xii. 2): and the apostle says to the Galatians (Gal. i. 6), "I marvel that you are so soon removed unto another Gospel."begun in the time of the apostles? I know it is a common opinion but I believe there be no strong reason for it, that the Church which was nearest the times of the apostles was the most pure and

6. That it is impossible to come to the knowledge of the universal consent and practice of the primitive Church, for many of the Fathers wrote nothing at all; many of their writings are perished (it may be that both of these have dissented from the rest); many of the writings which we have under their names are supposititious and counterfeit, especially about episcopacy, which was the foundation of papal primacy. The rule of Augustine afore mentioned doth too much favour traditions, and is not to be admitted without cautions and exceptions.

Many the like considerations might be admitted; but these may be sufficient to prove that the unanimous consent of the Fathers, and the universal practice of the primitive Church, is no sure ground of authentical interpretation of Scripture. I remember of a grave divine in Scotland, much honoured by King James of happy memory, who did often profess that he did learn more of one page of John Calvin than of a whole treatise of Augustine: nor can there be any good reason (many there be against it), why the ancients should be so preferred to the modern doctors of the reformed Churches, and the one in a manner deffied, and the other vilified. It is but a poor reason that some give, fama miratrix senioris ævi, and is abundantly answered by the apologist for Divine providence. If your Majesty be still unsatisfied concerning the rule, I know not to what purpose I should proceed or trouble your Majesty any more.

Newcastle, July 2, 1646. (To be concluded.)

AUSTRIAN LOYALTY.

This day (November 3d) is the day known in the Romish Calendar as that of "la Fête des Morts," or, as the Germans call it, "Poor Souls' Day." The churches are all hung with black; no music is heard within them, but masses for the dead are solemnly murmured before every altar throughout the city. It is in vain that innumerable waxen tapers, of all sizes, colours, and shapes, expend their votive light around a hundred shrines; the and solemn sadness is universal. Every shop is shut, and the The churches in all parts of the city have been crowded during the cemeteries without the town, to visit the graves of friends recently rendered of none effect by the traditions of men,- selves at this receptacle of the royal dead, and for that of watching truth can be zealously pursued without the slightest the use made of this annual privilege by the people.

Seventy-three bronze coffins are ranged in solemn array around the walls. Some of these are extremely simple, and others in the highest style of magnificence. That of the Emperor Francis the First of Germany, and his consort, Maria Theresa, (for one sarcophagus contains them both), was erected by the illustrious voman whose bones rest within it, and is, I think, the most splendid of the collection. But the crowd of pilgrims who came, upon this day, to gaze upon the coffin that contains their idol the late Emperor, Francis the First of Austria, was too numerous to permit any very accurate examination of them.

Were I simply and fully to describe to you the strong emotion nanifested by the throng, still passing on, but still renewed, when at length they had won their way across the imperial sepulchre to the paling which gave them a sight of the Emperor Francis' coffin, you would hardly give credence to the truth of my tale. You would not think it false, but you would suspect that it was exaggerated; and as, on the other hand, I feel sure of falling short of the truth from mere want of power to do justice to a scene so singular and so affecting, I think I must leave you without any decription of it at all.

And yet, perhaps of all the spectacles I have ever witnessed, it was the most striking. The old and the young, the rich and the poor, passed on together to the tomb of their common Father ;neither age, sex, nor condition, were observed in this unparalleled melee of general emotion; and I believe truly, that of all the multitude who thronged that dismal vault, we alone profited by the torches, which made its gloom visible, for the purpose of looking on as mere spectators of the scene. We watched tears stealing down many a manly cheek, from eyes that seemed little used to weeping, and listened to sobs that spoke of hearts bursting with sorrow and remembered love, beside the tomb of one who had already lain there above two years, -and that one an Emperor!-Between him and the people that this freshly weep for him, there must have been a tie more closely drawn than we, in our land of freedom, can easily understand. Does not all this seem to you like something more than the simple truth? Yet, so far from having painted the scene too strongly, I am quite sure that what I have said, can convey to you no acequate idea of its solemn interest, its deep pathos, and its strange sublimity.

We have passed this evening at a party, where I mentioned to several persons how greatly the strong emotion we had witnessed in the royal catacombs surprised me. The answer was the same from all: "Had you known the Emperor, it would have caused you no astonishment." "Would it sarprise you," said a lady of the party, "to see children weeping upon the grave of their father? Our Emperor was more than a father to us."

All this is so new, and so strange to me, that I feel as if I had got into a new planet. The only sentiment with which I have been hitherto acquainted (and this has been only by tradition) that at all approaches to that which I hear expressed by the people of this country for their Sovereign, is the feeling of love and devotion borne by the brave Scottish clans of yore to their chiefains. I have often lamented that the changes which time has wrought in the ancient framework of our social relations, should have swept away a sentiment so generous, so useful, and, as I think, so natiral. But here I find it again in perfection, only upon a far nobler scale; and the indications of it are so genuine, and its influence so evidently tending to ennoble the nature of the social compact long time, in the Church: the error of free will, beginning at which binds men together for their common safety and advantage. that -..... But I must not go on. If I pursue this theme I shall run a risk of uttering treason, even against the beautiful constitution of our glorious England as it stood before those stabs and thrusts were made which have of late so grievously disfigured it; but all that has happened to us since, has so mystified and obscured the features of this once worshipped but now mouldering idol of all English hearts, that it is no great wonder if, seeing grossly about the antichrist and mystery of iniquity, which did elsewhere what is good, we should almost forget that the time has been when we possessed what was better still .- Mrs. Trollope.

THE OHUBOH.

TORONTO, SATURDAY, OCTOBER 31, 1840.

We have had the gratification of attending the fourteenth Session of the MIDLAND CLERICAL ASSOCIA-TION, which was held at Kingston last week,-a gratification, combined as it is with the means of so much improvement, which we are at all times unwilling to forego. The proceedings of the meeting were commenced with Divine Service in St. George's Church, on the evening of the 20th instant, on which occasion, as Lord (Judges ii. vii.): soon after the building of the temple and the appointed preacher was, from incontrollable circumthe duties of the pulpit were assumed defiled with idolatry: when Rehoboam had established the king- by the Rev. R. D. Cartwright, the Assistant Minister of dom, he forsook the law of the Lord, and all Israel with him, (2 the parish. The lateness of the season, and the peculiar unfavourableness of the weather, prevented the attendance of many of the brethren who reside at a distance; Why, then, shall we think it strange, that in the matter of and by those who did attend from the parishes more discipline there should be a sudden defection, especially it being remote from the appointed place of meeting, the journey was undertaken with no inconsiderable sacrifice of comfort. This circumstance gave rise to a proposition, -not however very formally put or very elaborately discussed,-that the Association should be divided, the clergy of the Newcastle District forming one, and those of the Midland, Prince Edward, and Hastings Districts another. The project of division was entertained also upon another ground,-the difficulty, from the increasing number of the members of the Association, of meeting without inconvenience at one place, especially when all are happily allowed to be present. For to this circumstance is mainly ascribable the necessity which has sometimes existed of appointing the church or the vestry as the place of meeting, instead of what, with the character and objects of these Associations, we cannot but deem the more appropriate place, the study or the drawing-room of the Rectory. Objections to this proposal were, however, started,—as serving to separate those who had long been united in this affectionate intercourse, and to diminish the benefit and the pleasure which, in its aggregate and undivided capacity, the Association had ever been the means of affording. This objection was met at once in the spirit with which it was proposed, and the project of a division was cheerfully laid aside, until circumstances of a more pressing nature than at present existed should arise to induce its adoption

On Wednesday, the 21st, only six members of the Association were present; but the discussions entered upon were pursued with great earnestness and with much satisfaction to all who shared in them. A long conversation was held upon the doctrine of Justification by Faith, in opposition to the Romish views of that important that the watchmen of Israel should be furnished with the means of giving to every man a more than wonted boldness, and are flinging the challenge gloomy hangings seem too mighty for them, and the air of dark to their opponents with a defiance and a hardihood that could scarcely have been anticipated so soon, even by entire population appear to have given up their spirits to mourning. those who augured the most gloomily of the fatal concession of 1826. It is right, therefore, that the whole day; yet, nevertheless, multitudes have wandered to the Protestant defenders of the truth,-in so many cases should look to their armour and steadily watch the The great point of general interest, however, is the crypt of the advances of the foe. To expose the delusions of compromise of the gentle charities of life. We may manifest to the sight of a frequently misjudging world that we love the Romanist, while we abhor and do our best to break down the delusions by which the Romanist is blinded. There can be no legitimate compromise between truth and error; and if a gentle disposition, a shrinking from publicity, or a love of quiet should prompt to an inactive and unresisting contemplation of the progress of error, the minister of the Church should be reminded of the inconsistency and the sinfulness of this to God's word."

The exercises of Wednesday were concluded with Divine Service in St. George's Church, when a very Missionary exertion was preached by the Rev. J. Shortt, from Matt. xix. 19, "Thou shalt love thy neighbour as how important it is, in all publications emanating from thyself." The weather, however, at the close of this the late editor of the Christian Guardian, to suspend day proved so extremely unfavourable, that very few judgment upon the merits of the questions he discusses forcible exposition of the duty, in its widest sense, thus can be seen and weighed. We have often had cause, in laid down by our Lord.

of this day, the following very pleasing and touching letter from the Rev. A. F. Atkinson was read:-"To the Members of the Midland Clerical Association.

"My dear Brethren,—Having been appointed to the charge of a Parish beyond the bounds of this Association, it ecomes my duty to resign into your hands the office of secretary to which I was nominated by your unanimous suffrages at the commencement of the Society.

"But I feel that I have a much more painful task to perform in bidding you all farewell! I can truly say that I leave you with the sincerest regret; for amongst you I was always happy, and towards you all I bear, and shall ever bear the most frequency. pear, the most affectionate regard. But though 'absent from ou in body,' I trust I shall ever be 'present with you in pirit.' 1 am still one with you in Christian affection in holy brotherhood,—one in earnest desire for the glory of our Divine Master, and the prosperity of His Church; and f circumstances permit, I may ye again have the happiness of being one amongst you. But should this be denied, I ook forward with humble hope to the privilege of sitting down with you at the heavenly lanquet in the kingdom of

'And now, my dear brethren, I bid you once more farewell! May the blessing of God rest upon you in public and in private, in your families and in your parishes; and may He at last bring us all, through the merits of his beloved Son, to the glories of His everlasting kingdom!

"So prays always "Your affectionate brother, "A. F. ATKINSON."

Bath, October 12, 1840. This letter having been read, the Rev. S. Givins was unanimously elected Secretary to the Association, and the following resolution was passed in reference to the resignation of the Rev. A. F. Atkinson: "Resolved,-That the members of this Association deeply regret the removal from among them of their late Secretary, the Rev. A. F. Atkinson, with whom they have so often taken 'sweet counsel,' and in whose society their spirits were often so refreshed. Believing, however, that he has been called by Providence to labour in a more extensive field of usefulness, and in the firm conviction that the interests of the church will be best promoted by the change they desire to subdue every personal feeling occasioned the loss of the society of their esteemed brother, and to regard only the general welfare of the Church. Heartily reciprocating the prayers and kind wishes contained in Mr. Atkinson's letter of resignation, they bid him affectionately 'God speed,' and they fervently beseech the great Head of the Church to bless his pastoral labours in his new sphere of duty with abundant success.

The recent trials of the Church in the loss of so many of her valued ministers during the past summer, strife that has arisen; butwe cannot refrain from saying naturally engaged the deep and painful attention of the assembled members of the Association, and the following resolution in reference to these great calamities was unanimously agreed to:-

" Resolved-That whereas it has pleased Almighty God, in His inscrutable wisdom, to remove from this world in the brief interval of a quarter of a year, no less than three of our brethren of our Clergy of the Diocese of Toronto, the members of this Association desire to humble themselves beneath the afflicting hand of their heavenly Father,—be-seeching Him to enable them to hear so loud a call to greater diligence in 'working the works of Him that sent them while it is day. They desire likewise to express their cor-dial sympathy and Christian condolence with the congregations and families who have been so deeply and painfully

On the morning of Thursday, the 22d, the Association were favoured with the presence of another member, and the discussions were renewed which had chiefly occupied their attention on the preceding day. At seven in the evening they repaired to St. George's Church, to participate in the proceedings of a meeting to be there held in furtherance of Missionary objects .-The chair was taken by the Assistant Minister of the parish, and a series of resolutions were moved and seconded by gentlemen present, laymen as well as clergy, and several animated addresses were delivered, illustrating the advantages of this combined action for so holy and important an object. The resolutions, unanimously passed, embraced a statement of the vigorous efforts made of late years by the Church of England to advance the cause of Christian Knowledge, and to promote the diffusion of the Gospel not only within the kingdom but in the Colonial possessions of the Empire. Upon this was grounded a very natural appeal to members of the Church in the Colonies themselves, to exert their energies and bestow a liberal share of their substance for the advancement of the same holy work. The result of the present meeting was the formation of a new Committee at Kingston in connexion with the venerable and excellent Society for Promoting Christian Knowledge, and combining with that object the Propagation of the Gospel amongst the Destitute Settlers of the District by one or more Travelling Missionaries.

The annexing a public meeting of this nature to the usual business of the Clerical Associations, is an important feature in their character and objects, -the adoption of which we feel to be a cause of sincere congratulation. It is absolutely necessary that the attention of the Christian public should be powerfully drawn to these objects, if we would have them no longer ignorant of their value and importance; and no better occasion can possibly be employed with this intent than those periods in which so many of the clergy are drawn together by the usual business of their Associations. A liveliness essential tenet as contained in their formularies of and spirit is always imparted by this public advocacy of worship, and especially as promulgated in the decision a good cause; and if its success, under the Divine of the Council of Trent. At the present day it is blessing, is mainly dependent upon enlisting the warm sympathies of the laity in its behalf, there can be no better means devised of awakening and perpetuating reason of the hope that is in him; more particularly, as those sympathies than by calling them thus together, the advocates of Romish error have latterly assumed a and after an earnest exposition of the benefits to be achieved from the success of the good work in hand, by soliciting their hearty and Christian co-operation in

With every abatement for the disadvantages attendant upon the first commencement of a plan like the present, ve cannot but regard the late Missionary meeting at Kingston as highly interesting in itself and the harbinger of great and blessed results to our Church, if the system thus auspiciously begun be zealously persevered church belonging to the convent of the Capucins, for there lie Romanism by reflecting upon them the bright light of in. It will add another and a very material benefit to interred the imperial family of Austria. The vaults are on this truth, is a duty to which, at the present moment, the public advantages which, designed as they more day open to the public; and we have spent a considerable time Protestant ministers are not allowed to be insensible; immediately are for private edification, the Clerical within their gloomy recesses, both for the purpose of looking our- while, it is scarcely necessary to add, this advocacy of Associations have already been found to produce.

evening of Tuesday, the 2d of February, 1841, it being designed to appropriate the evening of the succeeding Thursday to the holding of a Missionary meeting, as was done at Kingston.

Rev. M. Richey for its transmission to us, the receipt of a copy of a pamphlet lately put forth by that gentleman and the Rev. J. Stinson, in refutation of the statement journey to Quebec, for the purpose of giving evidence apathy as often as he re-peruses his Ordination vow to published by Messrs. W. and E. Ryerson, on the causes be ready, with all faithful diligence, to banish and which have led to the recent dissolution of the Union deepest grief a large circle of attached friends, and drive away all erroneous and strange doctrines contrary heretofore existing between the British and the Canadian Wesleyan Conferences. We have not as yet been able to give to this publication a very attentive perusal; but the examination we have had the opportunity of giving excellent sermon on the duty of co-operating with it, satisfies us of the propriety of the step which has just been taken by Messrs. Stinson and Richey, and shews persons were present to be benefitted by this clear and until the views of the opposing side of such questions the course of our editorial career, to offer a gentle check In the course of the deliberations during the morning to the rampant spirit of that individual, and to expose his unfortunate propensity to mystify, if we must not be so harsh as to accuse him of directly violating, the truth. It might possibly be thought that with different views of Church Government and of State Policy, which would necessarily beget a wide difference in the public promulgation of our respective opinions, we were actuated by some degree of prejudice in so earnestly controverting some of the principles of the Christian Guardian; but when we find our own opinions of that journal corroborated to the letter by such impartial judges as Messrs. Stinson and Richey, and not by them alone but by the whole body of the British Wesleyan Conference, we shall no longer be suspected of having acted otherwise than dispassionately and fairly in the course we have pursued with respect to that paper. At the period of the Union, it was a positive stipulation, "That the Christian Guardian shall not be the medium of discussing political questions, nor the merits of political parties, as it is injurious to the interests of religion, and derogatory to our character as a religious body, to have our [the Methodist] Church amalgated or identified with any political party." Not only was this stipulation cordially assented to by the Canadian Conference, but by the editor of the Guardian also; as is manifest not only from the fact that the terms of the contract were drawn up by himself, but from their sibsequent repetition by the editor in the journal he corducted, accompanied with his solemn declaration to abile by them to the letter .-How far this promise has been kept, is best told in the words of Messrs. Stinson and Richey: "We feel, we confess, humiliated, and dmost shudder to reflect how soon-how recklessly-hov remorselessly and how incessantly a Resolution, recorded in the Journals of the Conference, and by its direction published to the world, was subsequently violated from week to week, and from month to month." The recklessness which is thus feelingly exposed, will scarely allow us to wonder at the multiplied evidences of mis-statement which are pointed out in the pamphlet beore us, as contained in the attempted exculpatory explanations of the Messrs.

It is not our province to enter minutely into the differences which have gisen between two religious bodies, with neither of which have we ourselves any connexion: we shall be ne party, on either side, to the that, under the circumstances of the case, it was utterly impossible for the British Wesleyan Conference any longer consistently to mantain that union. That the violations of plighted duy should have been so long overlooked, and that the most objectionable course of the Christian Guardian, luring the perilous season of the autumn of 1838 and the winter of 1839, was not checked by some effective interposition on the part of those who were the legitmate censors of its irregularities, is a mark of forbearance—to say the least of itwhich to dispassionate anl fair-judging people must afford evidence that the condemnation of its career has been no hasty act, but painfully and reluctantly arrrived

For the sake of political quiet, and the benefit of For the sake of political quiet, and the benefit of those Conservative principles which Wesleyans in the in the attempt one of the soldiers had a rib broken by a stone flung in the attempt one of the soldiers had a rib broken by a stone flung. Mother country have usually manifested so laudable a from the crowd. On the people's side one man was seriously zeal in upholding, the present dissolution of what experience has proved a very unequal connexion is not perhaps to be regretted. But we are painfully reminded by these constantly recurring dissentions in the great Christian body, of the necessity of resorting to some more stable principle of union and concord than Proestants seem hitherto to have adopted. While the ealousies and oppositions of Christians are often acompanied with a collateral benefit,—a vigilant watchng over, and careful preservation of, the purity of the Word of God,-we cannot but be distressed at the rapidly multiplying divisions of those who bear the Protestant name. Sects and parties, instead of carrying on a vigorous warfare against Satan's kingdom and bear ing the standard of the cross beyond the walls of Zion, have full employment in standing their own ground, and maintaining against professed brethren the peculiar position they have assumed. While they are affected by a perpetual rivalry, and its concomitant heart-burnings and dissentions, it is not to be expected that the cause of vital religion can be very rapidly advancing. Our own persuasion is, on the principles which the heavenly wisdom has laid down, and the early Christian church uniformly acted upon, as well as from the bitter experience of the last three centuries, that the only guarantee against this disunion and strife, is a general return to one apostolic model of church government, and a general conviction that separation from that divinely constituted platform of the Christian church, is not only inexpedient but sinful. In the pathetic words of CLEMENT of Rome, co-adjutor of the apostles, we say, "Why do we rend and tear in pieces the members of Christ, and raise seditions against our own body? Your schism has perverted many, has discouraged many. It has caused diffidence in many, and grief in us all."

On Sunday last, the 25th instant, the Lord Bishop of Toronto held his ordination in the Cathedral Church of this City. The following gentlemen were admitted to the order of DEACON:-

Mr. Thomas Earle Welby, Student of Divinity, whose destination is not yet fixed.

Mr. George Mortimer Armstrong, late of King's College, London: appointed to the mission of Lowth, in the District of Niagara.

To the order of PRIEST was admitted:

The Rev. Ebenezer Morris. This gentleman returns, for the present, to the duties of Travelling Mis-His Lordship was assisted in the ceremony by his Chaplains, the Rev. H. J. Grasett, the Rev. H. Scadding, and the Rev. G. Williams.

officer in the army he was buried with military honours, parties involved in it."

The next meeting of this Association is to be held at and with that impressive solemnity which forms a Darlington, to commence with Divine Service, on the peculiar characteristic of the soldier's funeral. This excellent young man, whose amiable qualities elicited the esteem of all who knew him, has fallen a victim to protracted illness, occasioned chiefly by assiduous application to business. The arduous duties of his situation he discharged with energy and untiring perseverance, We have to acknowledge, with many thanks to the and-as the mournful result too plainly demonstrateswith too little regard to his own health. His feeble constitution was, we understand, further impaired by a at Captain Drew's trial. His loss has plunged into the indeed has cast over the whole of Toronto the gloom of sorrow and regret. The government, in him, has been deprived of a faithful and efficient officer, and the province of one who well deserves—though departed from this vale of tears—to be had in affectionate remembrance.

We are sorry that we are likewise compelled to record the sudden death of Mr. Dalton, the Editor of the

FURTHER EXTRACTS FROM OUR FILES BY THE PRESIDENT AND ACADIA.

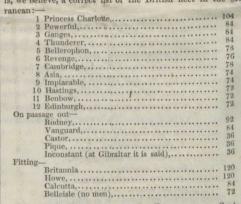

To the Editor of the Morning Chronicle.

SIR,-The flag of the Victory was carried in procession by the rew at Nelson's funeral, in 1806. When the body was lowered the enthusiasm in St. Paul's was so great that the visitors of all classes rushed forward and tore it to atoms as relics of the hero. The writer of this statement had a large fragment for years, therefore the flag burnt in the dockyard at Devonport was not the flag of Nelson at Trafalgar, or if a flag of Nelson's, was not the flag at that battle.

One of the oakum boys of the dockyard, named Fouracre, was detected on Monday evening coming out of the St. George, with some tools in his possession. He was confined during the night, and the case was brought before the Queen's solicitor on Tuesday, when he was sentenced to the treadmill for three months.

A distinguished naval officer states to us that the sailors have no doubt that the Talavera was burnt by the painters cleaning their brushes in oakum, tow, and old canvas, which, having been left in the ship, spontaneously ignited; for it appears that the new work done in that vessel had been primed when the shipwrights left it about a week before the accident happened .- Morning is, we believe, a correct list of the British fleet in the Medite

DREADFUL EARTHQUAKE-ST. PETERSBURG, Sept. 11. The Abeille du Nord of yesterday, published the following letter from Tiflis, Aug. 13:—You have, doubtless, heard of the terrible earthquake of Mount Ararat, which has totally destroyed the own of Makitcheman, damaged all the buildings at Erivan, and devastated the two districts of Sharoute and Sourmate, in Armenia. All the villages in those districts have been destroyed. The earth rent in such a manner, that all the cotton and rice plantations have perished for want of water. But the most awful event has taken place in the neighbourhood of Ararat. A considerable mass ned from the mountain, and destroyed every thing in its way for the distance of seven wersts, (nearly five English miles.)-Among others, the great village of Akhouli has had the fate of Herculaneum and Pompeii. Above one thousand inhabitants were buried under heaps of rocks. A thick fluid, which afterwards became a river, ran from the interior of the mountain, which was opened, and following the same direction over the contraction. vas opened, and following the same direction, swept over the ruins and carried with it the corpses of the unfortunate Akhouli, the dead animals, &c. The shock continued to be felt every day in the above-mentioned districts and entirely laid them waste; then the shocks became less frequent. Ararat is not yet uiet; the day before yesterday I was awakened by two vio subterranean commotions.—Journal de St. Petersburg, Sept. 12.

Advices from St. Petersburgh, of the 2d instant, estimates about one hundred the number of lives lost in consequence of the catastrophe which occurred on the 25th ultimo, on the Czarsko-

DISTURBANCES IN ROME.—Letters from Rome, bearing date the 17th September, announce that a serious affray took place in that city a few days before. Some of the lower classes having assembled at the Piazza Barberina, began to sing re wounded by a sabre in the breast. On the following day an assemblage of the same description took place at the Piazza Pasquina, so celebrated for popular gatherings and political manifestos, at Rome; and this time the Carabineers, assailed by a shower of stones, were obliged to disperse. It was said that no fewer than 2,000 inhabitants of Rome were about to set out for Monte Cavallo, to bear their remonstrances on the subject to the Pope himself.

Omnibus Accident.—The Rev. Dr. Solomon Herschel, the Chief Priest or Rabbi of the Jews, met with a severe accident one day last week in stepping out of an omnibus in the Poultry. He was in the act of alighting, when, before he had time to put his feet to the ground, the omnibus conductor, as is too usually the practice, called out "All right," and the doctor was thrown with great force into the road. It has since been ascertained that he has put his hip-bone out of joint, and the medical gentleman who attends him is of opinion that he will never be able to use his right leg again. Dr. Herschel had paid the conductor of the vehicle his eg again. Dr. Herschel had paid the conductor of the vehicle his fare before he got out, and to that circumstance may be attributed the unfortunate occurrence. The police succeeded, we believe, in taking the conductor's number.

On last Friday evening, as the Rev. Mr. Crotty, of Birr, was officiating in the Presbyterian church of this town, and descanting upon the dangerous tendency of Popery as a religious system, mob suddenly attacked the meeting-house, demolished the windows with stones, and created such an alarm that Mr. Crotty was obliged to make his escape through a back-window, and Dr. Grey and several of the congregation effected their escape by swimming across the river.—Galway Paper.

MEHEMET ALI .- The malady under which Mehemet Ali was suffering at the end of last month, and which prevented him from receiving Sir R. Stopford at dinner, is stated to have been a boil of a virulent nature on the back, which required the use of the lancet. The Viceroy was perfectly well again on the 7th ult.

PRINCE LOUIS NAPOLEON.—The nineteen political prisoners, says the Capitole, who are to be arraigned before the Court of Peers on Monday, were yesterday allowed, for the first time, to have intercourse with each other. Hitherto they have been kept carefully apart, although nothing in the ordinary practice or the Napoleon alone has only once been allowed to see General Montholon, with whom, as well as with the Montholon, with whom, as well as with the other prisoners, every other communication has been strictly interdicted. This first neeting between the Prince and his companions was very affecting Misfortune has not broken down the courage and devotion of the men who followed the nephew of Napoleon in his hazardous attempt. As they were on the shore of Boulogne, such are they when assembled in the walled court of the Conciergerie. We are informed that they will be transferred on Sunday night to the prison of the Luxembourg .- Galignani's Messenger

The Echo de Perigueux says-"Madame Laffarge is destined for ome time to keep alive public curiosity. It is said that there are cleven grounds for calling for the annulling the verdict of the Court of Assizes of the Correge. One of the principal, and which appears to be analagous to several cases in which the Court of Cassation have reversed decisions, is that the oath of Madame Laffarge, the mother of M. Laffarge, was dispensed with on the ground of her relationship with the prisoner, whereas all ties of relationship had ceased by the death of Laffarge without issue. sionary in the Johnstown and Bathurst Districts. We are assured that if the verdiet which condemns Madame Laffarge be annulled, the affair will be tried before the Court of Assizes of Perigueux, on account of our proximity to Tulle, which would save expense, our dependence on another Cour-Royale, and of our vast Palais de Justice, which offers at once security and accommodation. The affair of the diamonds will be The funeral of the late much-lamented Colonel Halkett took place last Tuesday. Having been an officer in the army he was buried with military bonours. FUNERAL OF HER LATE ROYAL HIGHNESS THE PRINCESS AUGUSTA.

to

on

Abridged from the St. James's Chronic Yesterday (Friday) being the day appointed for the solemn obsequies of the Princess Augusta, Windsor presented a scene of unusual stillness and solemnity. The bells tolled, the shops were closed, and all business suspended. There was a considerable concourse of visitors, amongst whom, as well as amongst the towns-eople, mourning garments were universal.

The body lay in state at Frogmore during the day, and the pubwere admitted to see it between the hours of twelve and for A large number of persons availed themselves of the opportunity and by the excellent arrangement of successive barriers, all inco enient pressure from the too great crowding was avoided. On of the drawing-rooms had been fitted up to receive the body, and the public were admitted by a side entrance into a passage which led to this apartment. The passage was hung with black cloth and dimly lighted with a row of wax candles in sconces. The state room was also hung with black cloth, the walls being adorned with a row of escutcheons. The whole was lighted by two rows of candles in sconces, one being above and one below the escutcheons. The public were permitted to pass through a part of the room, which was railed off, and were allowed a full view of the coffin. The coffin was placed on a raised platform within, and covered with a rich black pall, which was turned up at the foot so as to expose the end of the coffin and show its great height—two feet four inches. The sides of the pall showed the armoria earings of the deceased Princess. On the head of the coffin wa a black velvet cushion trimmed with gold, which supported a Roya coronet studded with precious stones. Three large wax candles in massive gold candlesticks, were burning at each side of the cof-A chair was placed at the head, which was occupied succes sively by different ladies in waiting of her late Royal Highness.— At each side of the coffin stood a lady in the deepest mourning the face being perfectly hidden by a veil of black crape. It was to detect the slightest motion in those figures, of ny sign that they possessed more animation than the corpse b At the foot of the coffin stood two herald nd subsequently two kings at arms, in the same motionless atti ides, their rich tabards presenting a striking contrast with the lack everywhere around.

Divine Service was performed in St. John's Church, Frogmor in the morning; the church was crowded. The prayers were read by the Rev. Mr. Selwyn. The Rev. Isaac Gossett, Private Chap-lain at Windsor Castle, and also to her late Royal Highness, preached a most eloquent and appropriate sermon from part of the 17th verse of the 7th chapter of Revelation:—"And God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes," The numerous congregation were deeply affected at the very feeling and affectionate manner in which this eminent divine alluded to the many excellent virtue ossessed by the amiable Princess.

Between seven and eight o'clock in the evening, the remains of er late Royal Highness were removed from Frogmore to St.

The whole of the procession was flanked by the 9th Lancers and 1st Regiment of Life Guards, on duty at Windsor, every third

The procession went forwards at a slow and solemn pace; th silence of the gazing spectator, the wailings of the funeral music, intermingled with the knells that now frequently smote upon the ear, and the glare of the flambeaux upon the whole scene, made it at once interesting and affecting, especially to those amongst the multifude—and it was said that they were not few—who had experienced the bids. erienced the kindness or who esteemed the character of the illu-

Upon the arrival of the funeral cortege at Windsor Castle, the cavalry filed off, and the procession was then flanked by the 60th (the King's Royal Rifle corps) Regiment of Foot, every man bearing a flambean, from the guard-room to the guard of honour at the entrance of St. George's Chapel, where the drums and trumpets of the Royal Household, and the footmen and grooms of the Royal Family, filed off without the door.

The procession was attended by a considerable number of per sons. The weather was favourable, and the might being and glit-effect of the flambeaux flashing on the brilliant uniforms and glit-The weather was favourable, and the night being dark, the tering arms of the soldiers was singularly picturesque. The scen-within the chapel was still more striking. For a long time befor the arrival of the procession, the south aisle and the nave had been ined with files of Life Guardsmen, holding a flambeaux. Their line forms and erect attitudes were fully exhibited by the position of the lights, which also, at every slight change of posture, produced the most striking effects by their reflection from the armour At a quarter before nine the attention of all was aroused by the first sound of the trumpets of the procession, which, on its ap roach to the Castle, gave forth a strain of singular wildness a

The official personages immediately began to marshal themselves in procession; and the clergy, with the Dean of Windsor a their head, all carrying lighted tapers, took their station at th gates of the chapel to receive the corpse. The long, deep wail o he trumpet was repeated at intervals, and its thrilling effect was continued by the low rumbling murmurs of the kettle drums which succeeded it. The Portuguese hymn, "Adeste fideles," was also played by an octave flute to the accompaniment of the iffled drums of the Rifle Brigade. At eight minutes before nine the coffin, containing the corpse, entered the chapel, and the procession began to move onwards to the grave. At the same moment the notes of the organ pealed forth, and the choristers of the Chapel Royal chanted in the most touching and impressive maner the commencement of the burial service. The procession graually entered the choir, and as it moved, the service y the choir singing, "I am the resurrection and the life." When procession had entered the choir, the doors communicatin with the nave were closed, and only a very few persons were ad-nitted who had special tickets from the Lord Chamberlain. The rvice was read by the Dean of Windsor, in a loud and impres-Voice. The Knights of the Garter who were present, occ ed their several stalls, and the banners of the order, which hung Overhead, added much to the pomp and solemnity of the scene.

The sentences sung of the burial service were the composition of Dr. Croft and H. Purcell. The psalm was chaunted to Purcell. cell's chaunt. The two anthems were the quartet, "When the car heard her, then it blessed her;" and chorus, "She delivered the poor that cried;" and the quartet, "Her body is buried in peace;" and the chorus, "But her name hveth evermore." Dr

Elvey presided at the organ.

When the time came for lowering the coffin, it was let down
When the time came for lowering the Royal vault. The pal nto the entrance to the passage to the Royal vault. The pa was taken off, and the coronet and cushion were replaced on the coffin. The service was then concluded, and the Garter King of Arms proclaimed the style and titles of the deceased Princess.

The procession then left the chapel, but not either in the same ler or by the same path by which it entered. The Duke of Cam idge, who appeared much affected during the ceremony, left by he door immediately under the Royal closet, which opens into he cloisters, as did also the Duchess of Bedford and her two sup-In the space of a few minutes the whole of the funera ortege had dispersed. The spectators were then admitted inthe choir to see the coffin and the splendid ornaments by which i was decorated. It was then lying at the depth of a yard from the jurface of the floor of the chapel. It was to be lowered to the ottom of the passage in the course of the night, and will be de-

We understand that in the course of yesterday his Royal Highess the Duke of Cambridge, and his son Prince George, descende nto the Royal vault, and stayed there some time contemplatin he remains of their deceased relatives. It was also stated Windsor, that it was severe indisposition alone which prevented is Royal Highness the Duke of Sussex from being present at the lelancholy ceremonial of yesterday.

THE PRINCESS AUGUSTA.

From the Morning Herald. Her Royal Highness was in her 72d year, having been born on 8th November, 1768. She was the sixth child and second ghter of George III. and Queen Charlotte. The event of the Princess Augusta's birth gave the corporation The event of the Princess Augusta's pirin gave the corporate of the City of London an opportunity of approaching his Majesty George III., which they did with a better grace than on some preceding occasions, steering clear of political animadversions, and confidence in the basic agent, mingled nfining themselves to gratulations on the happy event, mingled with becoming loyalty—a circumstance which afforded the King great satisfaction, as was marked by the manner in which he re-

The sweet temper and amiable disposition of her Royal High-ess both in childhood and after life, made her at all times a favourite with the various branches of the Royal family; and during the unhappy differences which existed between George IV. and Queen

are

the nce l be

Caroline, when the Princess Royal was married to the King of Wittemberg, the Princess Augusta was called upon to preside with his Majesty at the Levees and Drawing-rooms.

Within a few weeks of her death she presented all her domestics, who were much attached to her Royal Highness, with a copy of her portrait, as the last acknowledgement which she should make of their attentions.

The high respect and affectionate regard in which the late Prinss Augusta was held by all classes throughout Windsor and its ourhood, is evident from the manifestation of regret at her Asyal Highness's decease which are visible at every turn. The whole of the shops in the town are partially closed, and all the Private houses, both in Windsor and its immediate locality, display similar respectful attachment towards the memory of the illu

Hundreds in this town, who have long looked up to the Princes Augusta for the principal means of support in their afflictions and eccessities, will deeply have to deplore the loss of one, whose

"Generous pride of virtue
Disdain'd to weigh too nicely the returns
Her bounty met with. Like the liberal gods, From her own gracious nature she bestow'd, Nor stopp'd to ask reward."

Her Royal Highness's charity was as unbounded as it was unos ntatious; her means, upon many occasions I could refer to, painfully lling the illustrious Princess to restrain her benevolence in The doors of Frogmore House were der to be just to herself. open to the hungered and the weary" (who were never "turned om the wicket unfed") as the heart of the amiable deceased to the wants and necessities of her less fortunate fellow-creatures. Of Frogmore it may truly be said with Goldsmith, in his "Deserted

"Her house was known to all the vagrant train; She chid their wand'rings, but relieved their pain." "Careless their merits or their faults to scan.

Her pity gave, ere charity began." In consequence of the death of the Princess there will be no musical ervice nor chanting at St. George's Chapel until after the funeral.

DOINGS OF THE LATE SESSION.

From the Times.

The ecstasy of the ministerialists at having got safely to ne end of this session of parliament exceeds all their forme fits of exultation. The re-action from despair to rejoicing fairly throws them off their equilibrium. In questions however, concerning parliamentary strength—its increase or diminution on either side—the whole point at issue must be expressed by figures. We have taken the trouble to note down the progress of the Whigs, since their complete, and upparently permanent, settlement in power, by the first elec-ion under the Reform Bill. The history of these seven years, exhibiting the gradual decline of Whiggism, and contant rise of the opponent principle, will furnish the best eply to the boastings of the ministerial journals.

The years 1831 and 1832 were years of transition. After the election in the spring of 1831 the Whigs had, indeed, a temporary ascendancy; but they were well aware that their and was not secure. Their majority was only gained by popular excitement, and might be expected, on the ebb of hat feeling, to dwindle away. The Reform Bill, therefore, ecame the one great point at which they aimed, and they ept that point in view until complete success had crowned heir exertions.

By the secession of the opponents in the House of Lords, the Whigs were enabled to carry their own plan of repre-sentation intact. They obtained "the bill, the whole bill, and nothing but the bill." They thus insured themselves a and nothing but the bill. They thus instruct themselves,
House of Commons planned and constructed by themselves.
The first election fully answered all their expectations It formed a House of Commons in which only about 150 Conservatives were found. Five hundred of its members ofessedly supported "the Reform ministry," and of these willy 400 were stanch and obsequious adherents.

When had any administration that England or the world yer saw commenced its career under circumstances so fa-orable? "We shall be too strong?" was Lord Brougham's vell-known exclamation. Strong, indeed, in every ite for useful action that administration was. The vas heartily with the Cabinet; the people had just shown heir confidence by their electoral returns; the lower house was theirs by a majority altogether overwhelming; the peers cowered and waited, not in friendship, but almost in fear.

What has become of that state of things? Will the most xultant of the ministerialists of 1840 venture to deny that he seven years which have elapsed have made a woful change, or that few things can offer a more striking contrast than the palmy estate of Whiggism in 1833, and its droop-ing and despairing plight in 1840? Let us, however, de-scend from generalities to particulars, and observe the gradual progress of this decline, which has brought Whiggism t last to be the crawling, clinging, supplicating, manœu-ring, and after all, expiring thing, it now is.

In 1833, as we have already said, the Whig ministry enoyed a complete ascendancy in Parliament. The chief divisions of that year were these:-

The second secon	For	A	gainst
On the Irish Church Bill	317		78
On the Vote of Confidence (Affairs of Portugal)	361		93
On the Irish Church Bill
In each of these three discussions Sir and spoke; yet he had not so many a	as 100	foll	owers in either of them. The working majority	of th	e min	nistry in that session may be safely put down as at In 1834 the appropriation clause first be and here we trace the beginning of declen well as in principle The only two greet	t divi	sione	of this ror Against Admission of Dissenters to Universities 321 147

Irish Tithe Bill 235 171
The ministerial majority at the opening of this session was about 200. Before the close it had tallen to 150.
The year 1835 opened with a new parliament; and now it began to be seen how wofully the Whigs had already lost the confidence of the people. Their majority was almost gone. With difficulty they defeated Si Robert Peel by a majority of 33, and even with the added influence of government they scarcely reached a majority of 50. The great divisions of 1735 were—divisions of 1700 were	Tor	1	Against

On the Irish Church Bill (Ap-			0
propriation clause)	322		289
On the Irish Church Bill (Appropriation clause)	317		282
On the Irish Corporation Bill	267		176
On the Irish Corporation Bill	262		234
The Whig majority of this year ma	y be	state	d at fro	m
10 to 50

In 1836 they opened with more courage. Continua n office had added somewhat to their s	trengt	h. The chie	1

livisions of this year were these:-	For	Against
On the Address	234	243
On the Irish Corporation Bill	307	243
On the Irish Corporation Bill	260	199
On the Irish Tithe Bill	300	261
Their average majority seemed to hav	e now	risen to some thing above 50.
In 1927 the cossion began in a still m	ore m	omising man	ă ner, but it declined towards the close.

The great divisions were these.
	For	A	gainst
On the Irish Corporation Bill			242
On the Church-rates Bill			250
On the Irish Corporation Bill			247
On the Order in Council	278	v	242
On the Church-rate Bill	287		282
On the Commission of Church
Leases	319
Thus twice the majority had risen as	high a	as 80,	but on	c

In 1838 the Whigs had again a Parliament of their own -a House of Commons elected under Whig influence. But neir strength was rapidly fading away. The main divisions f the session were these:-

On Foreign Policy (Lord Sandon)	316		287
On Church Leases	277		241
On Church Instruction			254
On the Irish Tithe Bill	317		298
On the Irish Corporation Bill	286
Thus it became manifest that the st	anding	g m	ajority i	co
ministers had fallen to about 30 votes.	DATE L	27/2
In 1839 matters became still worse.	b and a
The divisions of this session were as i	follow	-
	For		Against
On the Irish Policy	318		296
On the Jamaica Bill	294		289
On the Jamaica Bill	267		257
On National Education			275
0 37 1 1 171 6	OPE		The barrier

The ministerial majority, then, seemed, for all practical ourposes, to have fallen down to about 5, 10, or 15 votes. Still, however, they were not actually left in a minority on

The session of 1840 opened with an evident increase of The session of 1840 opened mere and courage on the part of the Conservatives, and a roportionate falling off in the strength of the Whigs. The proportionate failing on in the strength of the Whigs. The strongest of all proceedings, a vote of "want of confidence," was at once proposed. This measure, seldom indeed ventured upon, and which Lord John Russell himself, in 1835, wen at the head of an ascertained majority, did not dare to lirect against Sir Robert Peel—this proposition was barely lefeated by a majority of 21. On their Chinese policy milestead by a majority of 21. isters had only the smaller majority of 10. In almost every other encounter they were defeated. The chief conests of the session were these (reckoning the vote on Prince Albert's pension as nothing, inasmuch as Radicals and Conservatives were mingled in that majority):

valives were mines	4 /
	For	Against	1
On Sir J. Y. Buller's motion	308	287	1
On Mr Herries' motion	172	182	1
On Mr Liddell's motion	215	240	1
On Sir I Graham's motion	271	261	1
On the Ludlow writ	215	226	I
On Lord Stanley's Bill	234	250	1
On Lard Stanley's Bill	298	301	1
On Lord Stanley's Bill	195	206
On Lord Stanley's Bill	296	289	F
On Lord Stanley's Bill	271		1
OH TOTA	-	275

So that on these 10 great divisions ministers could muster only 2472 votes, or 247 in each, on an average; while the opposition brought forward 2517, or 251 in each, on an

Can anything be more clear than that, to all practical purposes, the Whig majority is wholly annihilated?

There is, however, one view of the question which cannot be forgotten. It is this—their progress downwards has been unceasing. Year by year their majorities have declined.

as stan	ds th	e acc	count	-
1833				Majority				300
1834				Majority				150
1835				Majority				50
1836				Majority				50
1837				Majority				30
1838				Majority				30
1839				Majority			•••	. 10
1840				Majority				0

Now, every man of business will naturally ask himself, what is the next step in this progress? Clearly, it is towards an absolute minority. But what follows then? We wards an assonite minority. But what follows then? We cannot tell with any precision, considering the extraordinary character and doings of the persons in question; but, at all events, there is every probability that the incubus which has so long oppressed the country must shortly drop off by its own weight.

EMIGRATION. PLAN ADOPTED BY THE UPPER CANADA COMPANY. (From Mr. S. O'Brien's Speech.)

I cannot present to the House a more satisfactory illustration of the improvement which has taken place in the condition of the labouring classes who have emigrated to Upper Canada, than by stating the general recapitulation of a statistical return, with respect to the condition of certain settlers in Upper Canada, which has been placed in my hands by the governor of the Canada Company. This company allows the purchasers of its lands to pay for them by five instalments, and, with a view to ascertain the solutions of the canada Company. vency of those whose instalments are in arrear, they directed vency of those whose instantists are in arrear, they directed their agents to send home a statement of the exact condition of each of these settlers. I hold in my hand the return relating to the district of Guelph. The name of each settler is given, as well as all the particulars respecting his conditions. The general summary which this return presents is as follows:—Out of 156 settlers, to whom the report relates, it appears that 129 had no capital whatever upon their arrival in Canada, beyond the labour of their arms and the clothing which they carried with them. These 129 families consis of 436 persons. They are now in possession of 100 houses; they have cleared 2820 acres; they possess 438 head of cattle, 41 sheep, 9 horses, and the aggregate value of their property was found, in the spring of 1840, to be £22,658, giving an average of little short of £200 to each family.— Now, it is to be remembered that this report presents the least favourable view of Canadian emigration ecount has been taken of the property of those who have regularly paid their instalments to the company; and it may therefore be inferred that if such be the condition of those who are in arrear, much more satisfactory must be the state their liabilities to the company. In reply to an inquiry addressed by me to the secretary of the Canada Company, with respect to the number of labourers who would find employment on the company's lands during the present year, the secretary writes to the following effect:-

I feel some difficulty in stating the precise number of emigrants who might probably find employment in the company's lands, in on tract, or in other parts of the province, this season. feel confident that many thousands might readily find such employment. The opinion I have heard from Upper Canada is, that nothing is so much required to promote the prosperity of that country as an abundant supply of labour.

He adds .-

The current wages in the company's lands, vary from 3s. 9d. to 7s. 6d. per day, and frequently board and lodging in addition.

The most recent instance of emigration to Upper Canada of which we have an official account, fully confirms these statements. Colonel Wyndham sent out, from the county of Clare, during the last summer, 181 emigrants. They were placed under the superintendence of Lieutenant Rubidge, gentleman much experienced in Canadian colonisation, who accompanied them as far as Cobourg, in Upper Canada. They had not been there more than three days when the whole party were engaged,—the men at 2l. 10s. per month, with board and lodging, the women at 1l. The official account states, that there were applications, in that district alone, for four times the number actually carried out. I have, now, only to detain the House with one more quotation respecting the demand for labour in British America. It is from Sir John Harvey's address to the Legislature of New Brunswick, upon opening the last session in that province. Speaking in reference to some proposals which had been made to the Government by a land company, he savs.

The high price of labour, owing to the insufficiency of its labour-In high price of labour, owing to the insumciency of its labour-ing population, which prevails throughout the province, is confess-edly cramping the enterprise and exertions, and otherwise operating most injuriously upon its commercial and agricultural interests; and this consideration would, alone, appear to me to offer sufficiinclined, to settle upon lands of good quality.

ENGLAND AND FRANCE-ANOTHER GROUND OF DISPUTE. [From the Morning Chronicle—Ministerial paper.]—The French papers in Ministerial confidence have all asserted that the English fluence in Spain, and had well nigh dragged down the Queen with them, is a proof of the generous and disinterested spirit with which the British government would act towards France.

What has been the reply of France to this frank offer? It has liberated Cabrera. It has let loose the champion of Absolution and the Inquisition-the firebrand and the assassin-and sends him to Marseilles to be ready to escape back to Valencia, and resume the civil war. If this prove true, we hope that an English government will never make another ofer of amity or alliance to a ministry so regardless of its past principle as to commit such an act as that which we understand it has lone.

For our own part, we have been censuring the Madrid Junta, commending the Liberals to conciliate the Moderates, and even satisfy, as far as might be done consistently with honour and with freedom, the susceptibilities of France; but we must say, that the liberation, or demi-liberation, of Cabreia, at this particular moment, altogether alters our opinion. We know what a pernicious ment, attogether areas a separation we know what a permicious effect it will have on the Spanish people. They can see nothing else than a new Carlist league raised against them—a league in else than a new Carist league raised against them—a league in which France, the Queen Regent, and the Carlists of the Basque provinces would join. The moment this becomes manifest to the people of Madrid, they will inevitably withdraw the confidence people of Madrid, they will intertably withdraw the confidence which they were again about to repose in the Regent; and the fatal scheme of appointing another Regent, averse to French and Carlist influence, will be resumed. The French are taking the best course to cause themselves to be execrated in the Peninsula, and deservedly so. They are putting the last stroke to the ruin and deserved so the Regent; and are again, not sowing the seeds of civil war, but transplanting it, full grown and blown, back again into the soil of Spain.

UPPER CANADA.

From the Cobourg Star. We noticed briefly in our last that an address to the Reverend Rector of this parish was in course of signature among the men bers of his congregation, and would be presented on Saturday last. hers of his congregation between the presented on Saturday has.

We have now the pleasure of laying the same before our readers, together with the resolutions of the meeting at which it was together with the resolutions of the meeting at which it was adopted, and the eloquent and impressive reply it elicited. The weather, on Saturday, having unfortunately proved most unfavourable, the attendance was less numerous than it otherwise. would have been, and the ceremony perhaps lost something in effect by being necessarily conducted within the house of the Reverend gentleman, instead of on the lawn as first intended the The deputation, nevertheless, including as it did several of the most influential inhabitants of the town, and many from the surmost influentary, with the Sheriff of the district at its head (who read the address) was more than sufficiently impressive, and must read the address) was more than sumciently impressive, and must have been highly gratifying to the feelings of Mr. Bethune, as its object was creditable to the character of his congregation.

1st. Moved by Mr. Chatterton, seconded by Mr. Burnham:

*Resolved—That it is the bounden duty of every religious community, upon all proper occasions, to mark by an united testimony, their sense of the value of the ministrations of their spiritual

2d. Moved by Mr. Benjamin Clark, seconded by Mr. Charles ark:

Resolved—That the Rev. A. N. Bethune, Rector of Cobourg, Resolved—That the Beth A. Bethune, Rector of Cobourg, is no less entitled to the gratitude of the whole community for the bright example of his walk as a Christian man, than for the zealous,

3d. Moved by Mr. J. V. Boswell, seconded by Mr. Stiles: Resolved-That it is with equal surprise and regret this meetin learns that an attempt has been made, by impugning his motives, to destroy the influence of his precepts on Sunday last, in adverting in his sermon to certain gross irregularities and nightly depreda-tions committed by thoughtless and dissolute persons, and which have for a long time been patiently borne by a number of the inhabitants of this town. 4th. Moved by Mr. Jackson, seconded by Mr. D. McKyes: Resolved—That we should be wanting in our duty as Christians, did we not by our hearty support upon this occasion no less shield him from insult than the cause of morality in general from so gross an outrage.

5th. Moved by Mr. Asa Burnham, seconded by Dr. Goldstone Resolved—That the faithful and fearless discharge of his duty upon the occasion referred to, as well as at all other times in which the Revd. Gentleman has not shunned to stem the onward course of vice, by a well-timed and fearless reference to the growing sins of the town, demand our unqualified approbation his meeting begs to tender its assurance, that he may rely upon the most earnest and zealous support from his congregati every man of right feeling, upon all future occasions when he may think it necessary in the discharge of his duty to reprove and 6th. Unanimously moved and carried:

Resolved—That as an acknowledgment on the part of his congregation of the unwearied labours and exertions of the Rev. A. N. Bethune amongst us for 13 years, a testimonial of respect be pre-

7th. Unanimously moved and carried: Resolved—That the Honourable Zacheus Burnham, the Honourable Walter Boswell, G. S. Boulton, Benjamin Clark, Benjamin Throop, R. D. Chatterton, and Henry Ruttan, Esqrs., be a Committee to approve of the design and obtain subscriptions for

To the Rev. A. N. Bethune, Rector of Cobourg, &c. &c. &c. REVEREND SIR,

We, the members of the Church of England, residing in the Town of Cobourg and its vicinity, beg to offer you the meed of our unfeigned respect for the uniform exemplary walk as a Christian man and a Minister of the Gospel which, during so many years, has marked your course amongst us.

We regret that an occasion should have offered to render this address necessary, and whilst we are sure that we rightly estimate your character in believing that you would willingly forego the prominence which this public manifestation of your parishioners vill give to your conduct as a Minister of the Gospel of Peace, yet we are no less assured that you will readily appreciate the essity of it, and accord to us the sincerity of the motive by

We do not approach you, Reverend Sir, in strains of adulation and praise, knowing that your "Reward" is from a higher source, but we deem it an imperative duty to support you in the faithful and fearless course, which, as our watchman, you find it necessary vice, the independent and unconquerable spirit of a true reformer.

Whilst we villingly drop any further allusion to the painful cause of this address, we beg to assure you, Keverend Sir, that you may not only rely upon our supplying that shield against detraction and insult, of which you are deprived by your calling, but also upon our best efforts by example and christian forbearance. to aid and further your exertions in the cause of religion and mo rality. And that you may have wisdom from above to guide and direct you, and strength to persevere in the faithful and zealous discharge of the arduous and painful duties of your holy office, is the fervent prayer of your affectionate parishioners. [Signed by 220 persons, chiefly heads of families.]

To the Members of the Congregation of St. Peter's Church, Co-bourg, and other Members of the Church of England in its vi-

CHRISTIAN BRETHREN:

I thank you very cordially for the kind manner in which I find myself, at the present moment, surrounded,—by so many of the oldest and most respected members of my congregation,—and for the very gratifying Address (a compliment as unexpected as it is undeserved) which has just been presented to me.

Although, as you delicately observe, a clergyman in the exercise of his duty, should not be influenced by the praise, any more than he should be discouraged by the fear of man, it is always gratifying to discover that his honest efforts are appreciated, and that, in the humble discharge of his sacred office, a reverence is manifested for the message from God that he delivers, and a concern evinced for the prosperity of the holy cause in which he is

It is scarcely possible that after a residence among you of more than thirteen years, my motives and intentions in the exercise of public duty should fail to be understood; and the present Address affords me pleasing evidence, that in whatsoever manner some may attords me pleasing evidence, that in whatsoever manner some may be disposed to regard the uncompromising exercise of what is oftentimes a painful duty, the congregation amongst whom I have the satisfaction to labour, place it to the right account,—to a jealousy for the cause of truth and the glory of God, and to an unfeigned and anxious desire for the present and future welfare of immortal

During the long period of my residence among you, conscience bears me witness that "I have not shunned to declare unto you most injuriously upon its commercial and agricultural interests; and this consideration would, alone, appear to me to offer sufficient inducement for entertaining a proposition which I understand to go to the extent of insuring a regular and adequate supply of that valuable class of our fellow-subjects to whom encouragement to would, as at the best been feebly and ineffectually delivered; and I feel, as sensibly as can the humblest of my hearers, the ex-tent of those short-comings and misdoings with which, during our imperfect and probationary state, man's best services and exertions will always be accompanied.

The ambassador of the Lord would manifestly be wanting in his duty, if he did not endeavour to adapt his public discourses and [From the Morning Chronicle—Ministerial paper.]—The French papers in Ministerial confidence have all asserted that the English his private monitions to the correction of any prevailing vice or government made an offer to the Cabinet of the Tuileries to come to an understanding with respect to the affairs of Spain, and to act in concert at Madrid. Such an offer, made at this moment, when the blunders of the French had utterly destroyed their invalidation of the times; and he would be more culpable still, if any worldly consideration should cause him to shrink from the bold and faithful discharge of this duty. Nor can I here avoid the expression of my conviction, that the rebuked sinner will, at the appalling hour of approaching dissolution, confide most in the consolations as well as in the instructions of that spiritual counsellor who has most faithfully pourtrayed the enormity of his offences against God, and the terrors of a wretched eternity which those unrepented transgressions are provoking. It would ill befit him then, by any present compromise with the friendship or the enthen, by any present compromise with the friendship or the en-mity of the world, to withhold reproof where it is needed, or to prophesy deceit" to the perishing soul.

I repeat it, brethren, that I rejoice at the present expression of your approbation of such a course; and I hesitate not to declare that in receiving this evidence of your cordial and unsolicited support, I "thank God and take coarage."

The growing prevalence amongst those whom you have termed the "thoughtless and dissolute" of our community, of those vices and irregularities which have led to outrages so serious upon the quiet and the decencies of society, has made me feel it a solemn duty to lift up my voice against them. And how much the soberminded and well-principled of the community have been shocked by the fact, that a renewal of outrages and indecencies, grosser and more injurious than ever, almost immediately followed this public rebuke in the house of God, the present assemblage and the Address with which you have honoured me, affords the fullest evidence. Although the laws are the proper avengers of these aggravated injuries to society, it is refreshing to perceive that you have come forward in your character of Christian citizens, to express your abhorrence of these violations of moral purity and of Gospel principle, and to support by your encouraging voice the servant of the sanctuary who dares publicly and solemnly to denounce them.

To one conviction, brethren, I feel that we must all, more powerfully than ever, be forced by such occurrences,—that there can be no such thing as stable moral virtue or even moral propriety, which is not based upon the great principle of faith in the Redcemer .-This is the only enduring principle upon which human excellence or the social good can be built; and if we forsake that foundation, we shall soon discover a wreck of the most showy superstructure that can be raised. Our example, then, must be conjoined with our precepts to live as becometh the Gospel of Jesus Christ,-to do honour to our profession as believers in his adorable Name,— and, in dependence upon Divine grace, to "let our light so shine before men that they may see our good works and glorify our Father which is in Heaven." Manifesting to the world that we are influenced by the truth as it is in Jesus, and evincing to all around us that our conduct and conversation are regulated by Christian principle, we shall, believe me, adopt the only course of rendering vice detestable and virtue desirable. No artificial means, built up upon mere human devices,-not all the recreations and amus ments, usually deemed innocent, which may be furnished, in a spirit of kindness, to divert the youthful mind from more dangerous employments, and lure them away from the grosser indulgences of passion,—none of these things, let me solemnly assure you, can permanently or adequately effect the object intended, apart from what I must term the germinating principle of Christian faith. We may, by such artifices, decorate and gild the se-pulchre, and render it less repulsive to the passing observer, but the inward depravity remains uncorrected and undisturbed.

It must certainly, brethren, be a source of regret and pain to us all, that the good name of our town, long so peaceful and orderly, should be in danger of detraction from the occurrences to which we have alluded: and it is but a very slight diminution of the distress we feel, that the alleged perpetrators of these evil deeds are, tian duty will, with the Divine blessing, have a salutary influence not upon our neighbourhood alone, but upon the moral condition of the country at large. Vice and indecorum are by no means confined to a corner of the land; and the virtuous and the christian-minded every where will thank you for bearing this testimony against the errors and the waywardness of an unsanctified dispo-

I have again, brethren, to thank you for the present manifestation of your confidence in the rectitude of my intentions in the discharge of ministerial duty: and nothing more forcibly than the present occasion could convince me that you regard my many and acknowledged deficiencies and imperfections with an indulgent eye. In so long a course of service amongst you, I necessarily miss from the assemblage around me many, both old and young, who were endeared to us all by the brightness of their Christia example, and whose mortal remains are resting in the adjacent habitation of the dead; yet I earnestly express my hope and prayers that you, brethren, by whose presence I am now strengthened and encouraged, may long be spared by a merciful God to be a blessing to this community and a support to His Church. And while I pray that the Father of Mercies may take you and yours into his holy keeping, I feel a deep conviction that for "all who have erred and are deceived," your supplications to the Throne of Grace will be united with mine, that God would have compassion upon them and turn their hearts.

A. N. BETHUNE. Rectory, Cobourg, Oct. 17th, 1840.

THE EPISCOPAL CHURCH OF ST. GEORGE.

The undersigned, forming the Committee for the building of this Church, take the present opportunity of acquainting the public that it is their intention, as soon as sufficient funds shall be raised, by donation and ubscription, to proceed to the erection of the Church on the site on the north-east corner of the block belonging to Andrew Mercer, Esq., on King Street, opposite the Hospital, which that gentleman, with a truly christian liberality, has agreed to vest in the Lord Bishop of Toronto, his honor the Vice Chancellor, and the Honorable John Henry Dunn, as Trustees urgent need which exists, that the Committee should execute the trust reposed in them with all the promptitude which the means to be placed at their disposal may enable them to use. Of the population of this city and its vicinity, about six thousand belong to the Episcopal communic of whom about one thousand five hundred only can be accommodated at Divine worship at the Cathedral of St. James, thus leaving so large a proportion as upwards of four thousand of their brethren virtually excluded from a participation in the rites and ordinances of their Church-

To remedy in some degree an evil so deeply to be lamented, by provid deprived of the public ministrations of the Church, the duty and inclina-tion of the Committee alike call upon them now to devote their most strenuous efforts. Pursuant to public advertisement, several plans have been submitted to the Committee, and they have adopted that proposed o execute at a sum not exceeding £3.500. This amount the Committee ow purpose to raise by means of donations, and 150 shares of £25 each, for which interest, not exceeding six per cent, will be payable out of the pew-rents, after defraying the Minister's stipend; and, in subjoining a list of the present donors and subscribers, with the amount con'ributed all the urgency which the important nature of the object demands to come immediately forward and co-operate in the present undertaking, by means, and which, it is hoped, may at the same time prove in a great degree, if not altogether, commensurate with the wants of the population desirous of enjoying the privileges of our Church communion.

Persons desirous of making donations or taking shares, will be good nough to signify their intention, and the amount for which they may become donors or subscribers, to F. T. Billings, Esq., at the Court House, or to any member of the Committee

H. J. GRASETT, Chairman ROBERT S. JAMESON. F. T. BILLINGS. H. BOYS. HENRY ROWSELL.

Rectory, Toronto, 22d October, 1840.

LIST OF PRESENT DONORS AND SUBSCRIBERS. Messrs. Gilmour & Coulson, Andrew Merser, Esq., The Vice Chancellor,..... The Hon. John H. Dunn,... Mr. Robert E. Burns,..... The Hent. Judge Hagerman,

Earthen, China, and Glassware Establishment, No. 10, New City Buildings NEARLY OPPO ITE THE ENGLISH CHURCH,

KING STREET. THE Subscribers are now receiving, at the above premises, an extensive and choice assortment of every description of WARE in their line, among which are handsome China, Tea. Breakfast, Dinner and Dessert Sets; Japan and fine Printed Earthenware Sets of ditto, fine Cut and Common Glassware, and a large supply of Ware suitable for Country Stores. Persons wishing to purchase will find it their interest to call.

JOHN MULHOLLAND & Co. Toronto, October 30, 1840.

A LADY accustomed to Tuition (lately arrived from the old counable family, has no objection to the country.—Letters post paid, addressed F. M., Box 150 Post Office, Toronto.

October 17, 1840.

NOTICE is hereby given, that the Partnership heretofore existing between the undersigned is this day dissolved by mutual consent. All persons indebted to the firm are requested to pay the amount of their accounts forthwith to W. M. Westmacott, by whom the business will be continued, and who is duly authorised to receive and discharge the same. And all persons to whom the said firm are indebted, will please present their accounts for payment to the said W. M. Westmacott, at Waterloo House, King Street.

(Signed) W. M. WESTMACOTT.

(Signed) FRANCIS LEWIS.

30th September, 1840.

THE Subscriber begs to inform the Ladies and Gentlemen of Torontot and its vicinity, that he will receive during this month his supply of isting of French and English Merinos, plain and figured Mousseline de Laines and Chalys, Hosiery, French Kid and Lace Gloves, Prints, 13-tf

THE undersigned begs to return thanks to his friends, and the public generally, for the favors conferred upon him while in the firm of Westmacort & Lewis, and te inform them that (having withdrawn from that firm) he is now about commencing business as a COMMISSION AGENT, and he flatters himself that, from the long experience he had in business generally in the colonies, he will be enabled to afforce satisfaction to those with whom he may have any transactions.

FRANCIS LEWIS.

Toronto, 1st October, 1840.

 Office, for the present, at Mr. Henry Rowsell's, Stationer and Bookseller, King Street.

NOTICE. THE STEAMBOAT ST. GEORGE,

W ILL leave this Port, during the remainder of the season—Mondays at 9 o'clock, a M. for Kingston, touching at Port Hope, Cobourg, and Oswego.

She will leave Kingston, at 10 o'clock, A. M. on Wednesday, for Niagara, touching at Oswego, Cobourg, Port Hope, Toronto, and Hamilton.

Toronto, Sept. 29, 1840. HAT, CAP, AND FUR MART.

CLARKE & BOYD, grateful for past favors, respectfully announce the arrival of their Fall and Winter Stock of LONDON HATS, from the most approved makers, and of the very latest London and Paris fashions, with a choice stock of FURS, suitable for the climate.

King Street, Toronto, 18th Sept., 1840.

BIRTH.

At Cornwall, U. C., on the 10th instant, Mrs. Trew, of a son. In Hamilton, on Monday, 19th inst., the lady of the Rev. J. Flanagan, of a daughter.

At his residence in Graves Street, on Sunday the 25th instant, in the twenty-eighth year of his age, Captain Frederick Halkett of the Coldstream Guards, Assistant Military Secretary, and olonel of the Militia, Upper Canada. At her residence, in Toronto, on the evening of the 22nd inst., Mary, widow of the late Hon. Thomas Ridout, Surveyor General of this Province, after an illness of seven days, in the 76th year of

In this city, on Monday, the 26th instant, Mr. Thomas Dalton, Editor of the Patriot, aged 59 years.

LETTERS received during the week ending Friday, Oct. 30:-Revd. Thos. Greene, add. sub: Revd. John Flood, add. sub: A. T. Newbury, Esq.; (we have not acopy of 27, vol. 3, the others are sent;) M. W. Brown, Esq., rem. in full vol. 4: Revd. A. N. Bethune, rem: A. Davidson, Esq., add. sub.

The following have been received by the Editor:-

Rev. S. Givins, rem. in full all subs. on vol. 3; Rev. R. D.

CHURCH CALENDAR.

Nov. 1 .- 20th Sunday after Trinity and All Saints. 8 .- 21st Sunday after Trinity. do. do. —— 15.—22d do. - 22.-23d do.

ALBAN, A TALE OF VERULAM.* CHAPTER X .- THE MARTYRDOM.

Scarcely ten days had elapsed since Alban had passed through the streets of Verulam in a festive procession, and drawn upon him the admiring gaze of the applauding multitude. Again he was going through the same streets, the principal figure in a very different procession. Still as before the balconies and house tops were thronged with spectators, and a vast multitude rolled along in company with him. But very different were now its exclamations. Alban was deeply struck with the contrast. He felt the utter inanity and worthlessness of that applause which had so delighted his unregenerate heart, and saw the unsteady course of the bright and unfading light to which the martyr was hasworld which he was leaving. But above all he acknowledged the unbounded mercy of God, when he remembered that he then rode in a splendid pagan spectacle, the stoutest champion of heathenish abominations. He was now giving all the testimony in his power to the truth and glory of the true and only God. He had been deemed by his heavenly Master worthy to be a witness to his Gospel, and to lay down his life for his sake .-How different was the ineffable peace of mind which he now enjoyed, from the feverish excitement of the vanity exceeding blissfulness.

Thus occupied in his thoughts, he heeded not the execrations of the crowd, he was not even sensible of the ground, and the road to the block had been strown with annoyance. The procession moved but very slowly, owing to the great pressure of the throng, and it was long before they could clear the narrow outlet of the town-gates. When they had emerged, a strange sight presented itself to them. The Vernlamians found them- at him with fixed earnestness, and with a countenance selves but as a drop amid an immense sea of Britons. It seemed an army for numbers; and the foremost line held in their hands tall boughs with their leaves on, and drest moreover with wreaths of many-coloured ribbons. Some alarm seized the Romans at first, and the officer (who was still Lucius) was just about sending for a reinforcement, when the innumerable host, seeing Alban advance from underneath the gateway, all at once dropped on the knee in respectful salutation, while the foremost prostrated their boughs upon the ground. As the procession advanced, these latter completely enclosed Alban and his guard, and seemed to form a guard of honour

Alban thought that he recognized among them several faces which he had seen in the hut; nor was he mistaken; the multitude consisted of British Christians. A report, flying with the swiftness of lightning, had spread in every direction, announcing that Alban, the wealthy and influential Alban, the chief Roman in Verulam, the stout champion of Paganism, was standing for judgment grave, and join in rendering thanks to God who had before the magistrate on the charge of Christianity. Im- given them so encouraging an example. mediately every British follower of the Gospel rose up and hurried towards Verulam. So great was the crowd that flocked to the gates, that the guard thought it pruwaited very patiently without, determined to escort the martyr (should he turn out such) to the place of execution. No sooner therefore did they hear the shouts and execrations of the multitude within the walls, than, certified of the result, they exultingly prepared to conduct him on the road to his coronation.

It did indeed resemble a triumphal procession, except that there was no pomp of war, but only the simple emblems of innocence and peace. Alban seemed the conqueror, Lucius and his guard the captives. In a short time the whole multitude had arrayed itself and accompanied him in most regular order. On they marched in respectful silence, until a stream, crossed by a narrow sung by the bough-bearers, while the chorus was taken up in a deep voice of thunder by the whole multitude. It ran as follows :--

Speed to glory, martyr, speed thee! Haste thy crowned peers to meet; Scraphs flutter down to lead thee, Tracks of brightness bear thy feet.

Vain the heathen's rude despite; From thy blood fresh roses grow, From thy pureness lilies white Spring to deck thy sainted brow.

Angels clothe thy deadly block; Tyre is sham'd before its pall; Sword! thine agonies unlock, Gates that open glory's hall. Speed to glory.

On to glory, martyr, on. Hallelujah! Satan leaves thee; Gone are all his trials—gone:
Hallelujah! Christ receives thee. Speed to glory.

Lucius, the Roman officer, looked surprised at all this rude pomp. Yet he saw no reason to put a stop to it; so far from it he felt himself sensibly affected at the sight of the simple honours which the people were paying to their champion, and by the solemn sound of the 'Glory! and 'Hallelujah!' which rang around him. Thus they slowly proceeded, until they reached the centre of the meadow which has been already mentioned as the place of exercise for the youth of Verulam. This was the appointed place of execution, and here the scaffold and block were awaiting the martyr. After a glance thrown at them, he looked towards his own house, fixed his eyes upon the window whence his dying father had looked out: what a crowd of events had passed since that day. He then turned to his father's monument, which was a conspicuous object hence. The sun was shining most beautifully upon it. "How wondrous are thy ways, O God," Alban inwardly ejaculated; "through what a providential track of events and thoughts hast thou brought me hither! Pleasant has been the journey, and now thou layest me to rest, like a weary babe .-Thankfully do I bless thy holy name for it."

He then addressed himself to the officer: "Lucius! we have been friends; by that friendship I entreat you to receive my last words. You have known me long and well; too long and too well to suppose that I have taken up these opinions lightly. You yourself have often complimented me upon a cool dispassionate judgment, a wary disposition, and enquiring spirit. Can this then be but an idle tale for which I am content to die? Think of this, turn it over in your mind when I am gone. Then, when this hour shall have past away, and I shall live but in your remembrance, perhaps a kindly feeling may revive, and bring back to your mind your friend's have taken. O, may God guide you, and may we meet again in everlasting friendship." Lucius was strongly affected; he put his hand over his eyes and was silent.

Alban then looked round upon the crowd of Britons, which formed an immense circle round the block .- | a load." "Brethren," he cried, "I come to die for the truth as it is in Christ Jesus: recommend my spirit unto him." At these words the whole multitude fell down on their knees, and engaged in prayer. Lucius and his men were left standing in mute astonishment, looking like a no farther. Ben Achmet directed him to drop the last scattering to the winds all that is holy, and venerable, and preciclump of forest trees amid a boundless expanse of copse- stone; and, no sooner had he done this, than he mounted ous in Christianity. I beseech you, therefore, trifle not and wood. It was now the afternoon. The sun, which could only now and then shoot forth a partial gleam through the thick mass of clouds which was coursing rapidly along the face of the sky, at this moment, as if he had reserved himself purposely for it, shed a flood of full radiance upon the assembly. It was greedily received, with upturned faces, as a glad omen of the realms of tening. One deep Alleluia arose, and then all was deathlike silence. The crowd still continued on their knees, and earnestly watched the last motions of Britain's

He now advanced to the block. Having thrown off care by the leader of the bough-bearers. The Presbyters of the Church next came up to him, and gave him the last kiss of peace in the name of the Church of Verulam. Having joined him in his last ejaculations they of that hour. One thing alone did he regret—that his retired to their former stations. The block seemed more in our heavenly course, remembering that "it is easier father had not lived to taste together with him of such like the throne of an eastern king than an engine of for a camel to go through the eye of a needle, than for a than for light to subsist without the sun. His fiat made them, empty around it, the boughs were laid prostrate on the ly Visitor. the cloaks and mantles of the faithful. Alban took his farewell look at this affectionate assembly, and for the first time descried in its foremost rank the wild British boy, the servant of the old Druid. The lad was looking strangely divided between earthly grief and spiritual joy. He seemed to court some notice from Alban, who describable joy, kissed it fervently, and placed it round

> This was Alban's last act; in a few moments the axe descended, and he was crowned with martyrdom.

The faithful guard of bough-bearers stood round the body, which was reverently laid out on a bed formed by their boughs, and covered with the cloaks and mantles. At night they buried him on the spot where he had fallen. Within the ensuing year the grass had grown over wrestled or threw the coit unwittingly over his grave .-But his last and constant friends had not neglected to often at night, when the Verulamians were shut up the glory of the architecture of the day, was reared upon out, we find Macrogan, a titular bishop and vicar of the dent to refuse admission. They did not insist, but the spot. With the customary solemnities it was named Roman Pontiff, issuing an excommunication against all the wild British boy. Reader! I believe in no supernatural virtue of particular spots; but I do think that the mind must be cold indeed, or must violently suppress its natural feelings through a pre-conceived prejudice, which on such a spot can remain unmoved. Go to St. Alban's with a mind fully prepared, by previous information, to admit and entertain the admonitions of the spot, and I am sure songs and supplications of its accustomed offices.

THE DERVISE.

led a life of austerity and devotion. A cave in the rocks part of a neighboring cliff slaked his thirst.

He had formerly been a priest in a magnificent mosque, ommedan faith; but, disgusted with the hypocrisy and justice of those around him, he abandoned the mosque, and his authority as a priest, betaking himself to the desert to spend his days as an anchorite, in sanctity, selfenial, and devotion.

Years rolled over the head of Ben Achmet, and the ame of his sanctity spread abroad. In seasons of drought abode to attend the sick and comfort the dying, in the

with his ill-gotten wealth. The sanctity of Ben Ach- the creed is the symbol. - Bishop Sparrow. met arrested his attention; his conscience smote him on account of his guilt, and he longed to be as famed for his devotion as he had been for his crimes. He sought the abode of the Dervise, and told him his desires .-

tain, "thou thyself couldst not proceed a step with such | ings with an unfading crown of glory .- Seed.

"Let go another stone, then," said Ben Achmet .-Akaba readily dropped another stone, and, with great difficulty, clambered the cliff for a while, till, exhausted which cannot be frittered away by the grinding process of a Gerwith the effort, he again cried out that he could come man neology, without at the same time stamping in the dust and with ease, and soon stood with his conductor on the sum- tamper not with the doctrine of regeneration-are ye changed mit of the cliff.

the stones that lie at its foot, than for him to journey put forth of heaven—try yourselves by this simple criterion—ask onward to a better world, with power, pleasure, and riches, in his possession."

If the words of a Dervise, a blind believer in an erring faith, can command our admiration, how much more bught we to estimate and obey the words of Christ, "Let us lay aside every weight, and the sin which doth I ask you whether it be possible that you can see the kingdom of his cloak, it was received and folded up with reverent so easily beset us, and let us run with patience the race that is set before us, looking unto Jesus, the author and finisher of our faith."-Heb. xii. 1, 2. Whether our possessions consist of power, pleasure, or riches, they must be sacrificed rather than be allowed to hinder us plotting an insurrection against his sovereign Queen loosened his girdle, and with a smile of brotherly recog- He then went to Rome, where, after some time, he ob- in nothing. -Bp. Beveridge. nition flang it to him. He caught it with a look of in- tained from the Pope a pardon for all the bands of robbers who then infested Italy, on condition that they should undertake an expedition to Ireland for the exaltation of the see of Rome. An army thus composed was headed by a titular Bishop of Killaloe in Ireland, and by the Jesuit Sanders; and they landed in Ireland not long after, bringing a bull from Pope Gregory XIII. in which all who should unite in rebellion against Queen plays, and the like, will quickly come to leave his virtues behind Elizabeth were promised a plenary pardon of their sins. the tomb, and the former companions of the saint often | titular Bishop, a few years afterwards, is found introducing supplies of men, money, and arms from Spain, for the incentives of vice into the instruments of virtue; or growing the relief of the insurgents. Another schismatic, assu- holy by a kind of antiperistisis. He who will needs fight the devil set certain marks whereby to distinguish the spot; and ming the title of Archbishop of Armagh, came with or- at his own weapon, must not wonder if he finds him an over-match. ders from the King of Spain, that the Irish should re- _South. within their walls, the faithful would assemble round the volt; and having excited a robellion, he fell in battle with the royal troops. Ohely, called Archbishop of Tuam, was sent afterwards by one of the Irish chief-Thus passed twenty-five years over the martyr's ob- tains to the king of Spain, whom he exhorted to invade scure resting-place, when a splendid Church, rich in all and subdue Ireland. When the next insurrection broke in memory of the saint, and in the procession on the day | who should give quarter to the prisoners taken from the of dedication, were seen walking side by side, in the Queen's army. Macrogan caused all such persons to place of honour, as being among the few witnesses of the be put to death in his presence; and he at last fell in in the other.—Palmer's History of the Church.

POPISH TREASON.

The Garner.

For the manner of using set and prescribed forms, there is no doubt but that wholesome words, being known and fitted to men's that as you stand over the recorded depository of the understandings, are somest received into their hearts, and aptest see in their own rue figure, colour, and proportion, until we have diately, as if according to a plan already arranged, the bones of Britain's protomartyr, you will feel no usual to unite and carry along with them judicious and fervent affect a divine light within to irradiate and shine upon them. Though crowd defiled off to the right and left, leaving the boughbearers only to attend Alban along the bridge. Having the glorious list of God's mighty mercies showered upon of a well composed Liturgy, more than of all other things wherein Gospel set down in words and letters, yet they will be but unyour native island, down from the day of the blood of the constancy abates nothing of the excellency and usefulness. I known to us until we have a living spirit within us that can decipher on the other side. When they had re-arranged their this martyr to the present time; from the day when could never see any reason why any Christian should abhor, or be them,—until the same spirit, by secret whispers in our hearts, do on the other side. When they had re-arranged their ranks, they commenced the song of triumph, which was an obscure extreme corner of the world, forbidden to use the same forms of prayer; since he prays to the comment upon them, which did at first indite them. There be with the light of the Gospel faintly glimmering for the same God, believes in the same Saviour, professes the same truths, many that understand the Greek and Hebrew of the Scripture, first time in it, to this hour when she stands at the head reads the same scriptures, has the same duties upon him, and feels the original language in which the text was written, that never of the civilized world, the bulwark of the pure faith of the same daily wants for the most part, both outward and inward, understood the language of the spirit. There is a flesh and a spirit, Christ, and an abundant fountain of spiritual truth to which are common to the whole Church. Sure we may as well a body and a soul, in all the writings of the Scripture. It is but the heathen; that you will thank the Lord of our Church | beforehand know what we pray as to whom we pray, and in what | the flesh and body of divine truth that is printed upon paper, which for the long roll of names of holy men and mighty hearts words as to what sense. When we desire the same things, what many moths of books and libraries do only feed upon; many walkwhich he hath given to come after this first and venera- hinders we may not use the same words? Our appetite and diges- ing skeletons of knowledge that bury and entomb truths in the ble name, and in the glorious pile, which records his ser- tion, too, may be good, when we use, as we pray for, our daily vices in the cause of our faith, and at the same time so bread .- Some men, I hear, are so impatient not to use in all their anything else but pick at the mere bark and rind of truths, and strongly impresses us with a sense of the mercies which devotions their own inventions and gifts, that they not only disuse we are now so peaceably enjoying, will lift up your hearts (as too many), but wholly cast away and contemn the Lord's truths that could never yet be congealed into ink,—that could in praise and blessing and adoration, in unison with the PRAYER; whose great guilt is, that it is the warrant and original never be blotted upon paper; which, by a secret traduction and pattern of all set liturgies in the Christian Church. I ever thought that the proud ostentation of man's abilities for invention, and the vain affectations of variety for expressions in public prayers, or any It was on the confines of the desert, amid sterile and they call coldness and barrenness. Nor are men in those novelties will best declare and speak itself in actions; as the old manner of almost inaccessible rocks, that Ben Achmet, the Dervise, less subject to formal and superficial tempers (as to their hearts) than in the use of constant forms, where not the words, but men's was his dwelling. Roots and fruits, the scanty product hearts, are to blame. I make no doubt but a man may be very of the inhospitable region he inhabited, satisfied his hun- formal in the most extemporary variety, and very fervently devout ger, and the fountain that bubbled up from the lower in the most wonted expressions. Nor is God more a God of variety than of constancy. Nor are constant forms of prayers more likely to flat and hinder the spirit of prayer and devotion, nd scrupulously conducted the ceremonies of the Ma- than unpremeditated and confused variety to distract and lose it.— King Charles the Martyr.

THE CREED.

Faith is rightly called a shield; when we are affrighted, run we to the creed, and say, "I believe in God the Father Almighty;" this will guard your soul from fear. If you be tempted to despair, guard your soul with the creed and say, "I believe in Jesus Christ e supplied the traveller of the desert with water, from his only Son our Lord:" that may secure your soul from despair. his little well. In times of pestilence he left his solitary | If you be tempted to pride, run to the creed, and a sight of Christ hanging upon the cross will humble you. If to lust or uncleanvillages that were scattered around, and often did he ness, run to the creed, and see the wounds of Christ, and the stanch the blood of the wounded Arab, and heal him of remembrance of them, if any thing, will quench that fiery dart. his wounds. His fame was spread abroad. His name If we be tempted to presume and grow careless, take up again this inspired veneration, and the plundering Bedouin gave shield of faith, see Christ in the creed coming to judgment, and up his booty at the command of Ben Achmet, the Dervise. this terror of the Lord's will persuade men. In a word, the creed Akaba was an Arabian robber; he had a band of law- is a guard and defence against all the temptations of the world, all ess men under his command ready to do his bidding; the fiery darts of the devil, all the filthy lusts of the flesh. Therelarge numbers of slaves, and a treasure-house well stored fore, "above all take the shield of faith," saith St. Paul, of which

HUMAN LIFE. Look then upon this world as one wide ocean, where many are shipwrecked and irrecoverably lost-more are tossed and fluc-"Ben Achmet," said he, "I have five hundred cimetars tuating; but none can secure to themselves, for any inconsiderable ready to obey me; numbers of slaves at my command; time, a future undisturbed calm. The ship, however, is still under and a goodly treasure house, filled with riches; tell me sail; and whether the weather be fair or foul, we are every minute how to add to these the hope of a happy immortality?" making nearer approaches to, and must shortly reach the shore, Ben Achmet led him to a neighboring cliff that was and may it be the haven where we would be! Then will it signify steep, rugged, and high; and pointing to three large little or nothing whether we have gone down to the chambers of stones that lay near together, he told him to lift them | death by an easy and gradual descent, or have been violently pushed from the ground, and to follow him up the cliff. Akaba, off the precipice of life; whether we have been tossed by storms or laden with the stones, could scarcely move; to ascend tempests, or had a smooth and easy voyage to the shores of everlastthe cliff with them was impossible. "I cannot follow ing rest. Let us then look forward to that life which is to come.

qualities. Then, perhaps, you may think it worth while thee, Ben Achmet," said he, "with these burdens." Let us consider all the splendid amusements of this world as so to enquire what could induce me to the course which I "Then cast down one of them," replied the Dervise, many gay follies, if they interfere with our preparations for the next. J. 'and hasten after me." Akaba dropped a stone, but Let us repose an unreserved trust in that Being, whose almighty still found himself too heavily encumbered to proceed. power will protect us, whose unerring wisdom will direct our "I tell thee it is impossible," cried the robber chief- goings, and whose infinite goodness will overpay our slight suffer-

Regeneration is a real thing, and a heaven wrought thing, creatures—are ye new creatures—can ye—oh, it is Eternity which "Son," said Ben Achmet, "thou hast three burdens hangs upon the answer-can ye see the kingdom of Goo? I will which hinder thee in thy way to a better world. Dis- hear nothing of the difficulties of answering these interrogationsband thy troop of lawless plunderers; set thy captive difficulties! bear with me yet a moment-I have spoken to you of slaves at liberty, and restore thy ill-gotten wealth to its heaven, of seeing, that is joy and rapture, things to be desired, owners; it is easier for Akaba to ascend this cliff with things to be longed for, in the descriptions which the Bible has your consciences whether you could take delight in beholding Christ, and in serving Christ, and in praising Christ? would such exercises be insipid to you? are they insipid now? and is it weariness to you to join even for a lonely hour in the communion of his people? If such be the case, then I am not your judge-but God, and I send you to your closets with the words of your Saviour ringing in your ears, "Except a man be born again he cannot see the kingdom of GoD."-Rev. H. Melvill.

DEPENDENCY OF CREATION ON GOD.

It is far more impossible for a creature to subsist without God, death. Within the circle, which was respectfully left | rich man to enter into the kingdom of heaven."—Week- and his fiat can unmake them again. Yea, he put his everlasting arms under them, and immediately raised them out of nothing, and holds them up in their beings. If he should take his everlasting arms from under them, they would lose their beings again, and presently drop down to nothing. As take a stone from off In 1575, one of the Irish Lords being engaged in the ground, so long as you hold it, it will keep up; but let go your hold, and of itself it will fall down to the ground again, from Elizabeth, went to Philip II. king of Spain, on whom which you took it. So here, God took us out of nothing: so long Pope Pius V. had conferred the dominions of the Queen, as he preserves us and holds us up, we subsist; but if he let go his and sought assistance from him for the Irish Romanists. hold, alas! in the twinkling of an eye we are where we were at first,

FOLLY OF COURTING TEMPTATION.

It is a saying worthy to be wrote in the heart of every man, with the pen of a diamond, Eccles. iii. 26, That he who loves danger, shall perish by it. And that man who can be so sottishly ignorant of the nature of things, as to think to learn sobriety amongst the debauched, chastity in the stews, modesty at balls and him and to take the shape and impress of that mould, into which This expedition, however, entirely failed; but the same such courses and companies have east him. For there is no such thing as gathering grapes of thorns, or figs of thistles: no turning

DANGER OF TEMPORISING.

"Thy silver is become dross, thy wine mixed with water," says the Prophet Isaiah. How culpable, then, are those preachers who turn the wine of the doctrine of the inspired writings into water, if we may so express ourselves, by mixing with it the suggestions of their own imaginations, to the great injury of souls. To gain the good graces of those who listen to them, they flatter their propensities, and lead them away, by the complaisance with which they discuss their vices. They weaken the holy energy of death of the blessed martyr, and clad in the ensigns of battle against the royal army, leading a troop of horse, the Scriptures, which express so forcibly against every kind of evil: priestly office, Lucius, the Roman officer, and Eineon, with his sword in one hand, and his breviary and beads and, as if they had sworn the destruction of their auditors, they dwell upon nothing but the mercy of God, of which they draw an exaggerated picture, and on similar topics which render more and more careless these whom they ought, with holy jealousy, to bring back, by every argument, to the fear of the Lord .- St. Basil.

TEACHING OF THE SPIRIT.

All the books and writings we converse with can but represent spiritual objects to our understandings; which yet we can never sepulchres of their souls, do only converse with, such as never did crack the shells of them. But there is a soul and spirit of divine conveyance, passeth from one soul unto another, being able to dwell and lodge nowhere but in a spiritual being-in a living thing, because itself is nothing but life and spirit. Neither can it, where sacred ministrations, merits a greater brand of sin than that which indeed it is, express itself sufficiently in words and sounds, but it writing among the Egyptians was not by words, but by things. The life of divine truths is better expressed in actions than words, because actions are more living things than words. Words are nothing but the dead resemblances and pictures of those truths which live and breathe in actions; and the kingdom of God (as the apostle speaketh) consisteth not in word, but in life and power .-Cudworth, [Sermon before the House of Commons.]

Advertisements.

A GENTLEMAN, who has received a Collegiate education, and who has had several years experience in the tuition of youth, is desirous of being employed in some respectable families as Private Tutor, or as Assistant in a Classical School in any part of this Province. Unexceptionable references, from some of the most influential gentlemen of this city, in whose families he has officiated in the above capacity, can be adduced. Address A B., care of H. Rowsell, this office.

Toronto, September 26, 1840.

AXES! AXES! AXES!!

THE Subscriber respectfully informs his friends and the public, that in addition to his former business, he has commenced the manufacturing of CAST STEEL AXES, of a superior quality, which he can recommend with confidence, as they are manufactured under his own inspection, by first rate workmen.

Storekeepers, and others in want of the above article, will please to call and examine for themselves. Every Axe not equal to the guarantee will be exchanged.

SAMUEL SHAW. SAMUEL SHAW, 120, King-Street. 15-tf

Toronto, 10th October, 1840.

PRINTING INK, SUCH as is used in the printing of this Newspaper, imported from London, in kegs, 24 pounds each, and for sale by the keg, at 2s. 6d. per pound, by HENRY ROWSELL, SRY ROWSELL, Stationer and Bookseller, King Street, Toronto.

October 10, 1840.

TORONTO AXE FACTORY, OHN C. CHAMPION begs to inform the dealers in AXES, that he is now conducting the above establishment on his own account, and respectfully solicits a continuance to himself of those orders which have heretofore been so ilberally given for Champions' Axes.

Höspital Street, 22d July, 1840.

TORONTO AXE FACTORY.

JOHN C. CHAMPION, CHAMPION'S CAST STEEL WARRANTED AXES, A CARD.

HEUGHEN begs leave to intimate to visitors to this city, and the public generally, that at the solicitation of several gentlemen in the habit of temporarily residing at the principal Hotels, he has opened a commodious room, in Church Street, adjoining the Ontario House, for SHAVING, HAIR DRESSING, &c.

A select assortment of Perfumery, Stocks, Collars, and every other article in his line, will be kept on hand.

Example of the prizettes, always on hand, or made to order on a short notice.

Toronto, September 17, 1840.

STATIONERY AND SCHOOL BOOKS.

THE Subscribers have always on hand a large and general assortment of PLAIN, FANCY, AND MISCELLANEOUS STATIONERY, onsisting, among other articles, of—FOLIO POST, QUARTO POST, FOOLSCAP, POTT, AND NOTE PAPERS, of every description and quality, Quills, Black Leadsencils, Slates, Slate-pencils, Ink, Ink-powders, Drawing Paper, Drawing sencils, Cards, Wax, Wafers, Memorandum Books, Copy Books, &c. &c. which, as they import direct from the English and Scotch manufacturers, hey can supply to Merchants, Stationers, and others, on advantageous terins.

Their stock of SCHOOL BOOKS is also extensive, having received large supplies of those in general use in Canada, and published cheap editions of Murray's large Grammar, Murray's abridged do., Walkinghame's Arithmetic, Manson's Primer, the Primer, by Peter Parley, jun., and the Canadian School Atlas, containing ten coloured maps.

BLANK ACCOUNT BOOKS of every description for sale, or made to order to any pattern.

ARMOUR & RAMSAY, St. Paul Street. 12-6w

CHINA, CUT GLASS, AND EARTHENWARE.

THE Subscribers are receiving, direct from the first manufactories in England, a very extensive assortment of CHINA, CUT GLASS, AND EARTHENWARE. SHUTER & PATERSON. Toronto, 26th September, 1840.

AMERICA AND THE AMERICAN CHURCH,

BY the Rev. Henry Caswall, price 12s. 6d. for Sale at Henry Rowsell's King Street, Toronto.

JUST PUBLISHED, BY Henry Rowsell, Toronto, CAMERON'S DIGEST, of cases determined in the Court of Queen's Bench, from Michaelmas Term, 10th George IV, to Hilary Term, 3d Victoria. Price—10s.

Toronto, August 27, 1840.

TO SUNDAY SCHOOLS, &c. JUST PUBLISHED, by Henry Rowsell, at "The Church" Office, Toronto, a new edition of THE CATECHISM OF THE CHURCH OF ENGLAND, taken from the Common Prayer Book.—
Price—one penny each, or six shillings per hundred.

8
Toronto, August 27, 1840.

NOTES OF MR. BUCKINGHAM'S LECTURES.

E MBRACING Sketches of the Geography, Antiquities, and present condition of Egypt and Palestine.

A few copies of the above work for sale, price 3s. 9d. each. rk for sale, price 3s. 9d. each. HENRY ROWSELL, BOOKSELLER AND STATIONER, King Street, Toronto

> FAMILY AND INDIVIDUAL PRAYERS. Just published, Second Edition, price 1s. 6d.

PAMILY AND INDIVIDUAL PRAYERS, FOR EVERY DAY
IN THE WEEK, by the Rev. James Thompson, Agent for the British and Foreign Bible Society, sold at the Bible & Tract Depositories in Montreal & Toronto, and in Cobourg by Messrs. Gravely & Jackson.
These prayers are recommended by various Ministers, whose testimonies may be seen prefixed to the book.

43—6m

THE HOME DISTRICT SCHOOL. This School will be re-opened, after the summer recess, on Thursday, the 20th instant. On the re-opening of the School, we classes will be formed in the various English and Commercial unches; in Latin, Greek, Mathematics, &c. A French master is ranged to attend the School.

business of Mrs. Crombie's Seminary will be resumed on the mre day.

Mrs. C. can accommodate three or four additional in-door pupils.

M. C. CROMBIE, P. H. D. S. Toronto, August 11, 1840.

JOHNSTONE DISTRICT SCHOOL

THE SUMMER VACATION of this Institution will terminate as follows:—

Male Department—Tuesday, August 18th.
Female Department—Saturday, August 22d.
Apply to the Rev. H. Caswall, Brockville.
August 1, 1740.

BANK OF BRITISH NORTH AMERICA. THE COURT OF DIRECTORS hereby give notice that a Half Yearly Dividend of Fifteen Shillings, Sterling, per share will be me payable on the shares registered in the Colonies, on and after the hird day of August, during the usual hours of business, at the several ranch Banks, as announced by circular to the respective parties. The Dividend is declared in Sterling money, and will be paid at the to of Exchange current on the third day of August, to be then fixed by e Local Boards. e Local Boards.

The Books will close, preparatory to the Dividend, on the Nineteenth y of July, between which time and the Third day of August no trans-res can take place.

By Order of the Court,
(Signed) G. DE BOSCO ATTWOOD.

London, June 3, 1840,

DR. CAMPBELL will attend to professional calls at the house occupied by the late Dr. Carlile.

Cobourg, June 19th, 1840.

To be Sold or Let in the Township of Seymour. THE South-East half of Lot No. 16, in the seventh Concessioncontaining 100 acres, more or less, of good hard-wood land, 25 of which are cleared and well fenced, with a small house and barn thereonApply to B. Dougal, Esq., Belleville, or to Robert Elliot, CobourgIf by letter, post-paid.
January 1st, 1846.

REMOVAL.

CHAMPION, BROTHERS & Co. IS OF HARDWARE, MANUFACTURERS OF CHAMPION'S WARRANTED AGENTS FOR VANNORMAN'S FOUNDRY,

HAVE removed their business from 22, Yonge Street, to 110A, King Street, where their friends will find a well assorted stock of Hardware, Cutley, &c. &c. suitable for this market.

Toronto, December, 1839.

VANNORMAN'S STOVES.
CHAMPION, BROTHERS & Co. HAVE ALREADY RECEIVED 75 TONS Vannorman's celebrated Cooking and other STOVES, of new patterns, which (with their former stock) are now very complete, to which they beg to call the attention of the trade.

110, King Street, Toronto.

BRITISH SADDLERY WAREHOUSE. Removed to Wellington Buildings, King Street, Toronto. ALEXANDER DIXON,

SADDLER AND HARNESS MANUFACTURER, RESPECTFULLY informs the gentry and public of Upper Canada that he has just received [direct from England] a very extensive that he has just received fashionable assortment of SADDLERY GOODS, Equal in quality to any in the first houses in Britain, which he is resolved at the lowest Cash prices, viz:—

Ladies' Saddles, improved pattern.
Ladies' Fancy Bridles of every description.
Hunting Saddles, improved.
Saddle-trees, with Spring Bars, &c.
Silver mounted Carriage, Tandem, Jockey, and Ladies' Whips, in great variety.

Silver-plated, Brass, and Japanned Single and Double Harness
Furniture, latest pattern.

Furniture, latest patterns.

Horse and Carriage Brushes.

Needham's Silver-plated, Brass and Japanned Spurs.

Horse Clothing and Blankets, of the first quality.

Breaking Bridles, Cavasons, &c. &c. &c.

N.B.—Every description of single and double harness, manufactured with English Leather, constantly for sale, with every other article in the 51-tf

Toronto, August 29, 1839.

OWEN, MILLER & MILLS, Coach Builders, (from London), King Street, City of Toronto. All Carriages built to order warranted twelve months. Old Carriages taken in exchange. N.B.—Sleighs of every description built to order.

Ts published for the Managing Committee, by Henry Rowsell, Toronto, every Saturday.

TERMS:—Fifteen Shillings per annum, when sent by mail or delivered in town. To Post Masters, Ten Shillings per annum. Payment to be made yearly, or, at least, half yearly, in advance.

No subscription received for less than six months; nor the paper

No subscription received for less than six months; nor the paper is continued to any subscriber until arrears are paid, unless at the option of the Publisher. AGENTS.

THE CLERGY OF THE CHURCH OF ENGLAND IN BOTH PROVINCES. Belleville and Seymour. Brantford. Beavis, Esq. -Vm. Gravely, Esq. -D. Goslee, Esq. Dundas.
31, Cheapside, London, Englands
Emily.
Etobicoke.
Fort Erie.
Guelah. J. B. Ewart, Esq.

J. B. Ewart, Esq.

Messrs. S. Rowsell & Son,
Richard Hughes, Esq. D. Perry, Esq. James Stanton, Esq. -Guelph.
Halifax, N. S.
Hamilton.
Huntley.

Henry Pryor, Esq.
J. Ruthven, Esq. Esq. P. M.,
J. Hawkins, Esq.
Wessrs. Swords, Stanford & Co.
A. Davidson, Esq. P. M.
J. G. Armour, Esq.
T. A. Turner, Esq.
John Burwell, Esq.
Charles Hughes, Esq. Druggist,
Mr. Jas. McLaren, Infant School,
A. Javnt Esq. iagara. eterboro'.

Mr. Jas. McLaren, Infant S
A. Joynt, Esq. A. K. Boomer, Esq.
Dr. L. B. Botsford,
H. Smith, Esq. P. M.
Wm. Boswell, Esq. J. White, Esq. P. M. T. S. Shortt, Esq. Rev. S. D. L. Street, Hospital Street, Toronto.

EVERY DESCRIPTION OF EDGE TOOLS MADE AND REPAIRED, AND ORDERS PROMPTLY ATTENDED TO.

Toronto, August 29, 1840.

S-tf

* From "Tales of the Ancient British Church," by the Rev.