"No game," said he, assuming the necessary jauntiness, "should be a pleasure to forget." They drove to the Cafe Royal.

"It was just as I tell you," she explained in the cab, driving later to Chelsea. "I never saw one morsel of a paper until that last day, when the certificates dropped out of the picture, and then I wouldn't give you because of the tiff. I'm awfully sorry now that I didn't, she glanced down at the river on her palm; "but there, it's done, and can't be undone—nature of the beast, I suppose."

"And you really think Jenny has them? Are you sure, now? Are you sure?" asked Van Hupfeldt, earnestly.

"That's my honest belief," she answered. "I think I remember tossing them to Jenny, and as Jenny knew that I had gone into the flat specially to search for papers, she must have said to herself: 'These papers may be just what have been wanted, and they'll be worth their weight in gold to me, if I can find Mr. Strauss.' No doubt, she's been looking for you ever since, or waiting for you to turn up. When I said to her yesterday: 'What about those two papers that dropped out of the picture at Eldridge Mansions?' she turned funny, and couldn't catch her breath. 'Which two papers, miss?' she says. 'Oh, you go on, I said to her, 'you know very well. Those that dropped out of the picture that fell down.'—'Yes, said she, 'now I remember. I wonder what could have come of them? Didn't you throw them into the fireplace, Miss L'Estrange?' 'No, I didn't, Jenny. I said to her, 'and a woman should be a man, and not another woman: for it takes a liar to catch a liar.' 'But what am I telling, Miss L'Estrange?' says she. 'I am not sure, I said, 'but I know that you ought to tell your nose with string whenever you're telling a lie, for your nostrils keep opening and shutting, same as they're doing now.' 'I didn't know that, I'm sure,' says she. 'That's queer, too, if my nostrils are opening and shutting.' 'It's the truth, I said to her: 'your mouth is accustomed to uttering falsehood, and it doesn't mind, but when you're doing small the lie coming out, they get excited, my girl.' 'Fancy!' says she. 'That's funny!' So whenever you give me your address, or you can come yourself tomorrow—

"Ah, don't be hard on me," he pleaded down to me, if I can't go up."

"Go on, the poor girl's asleep," she answered. "Where's the use in carrying on like a loony? Can't you take it?"

In the end he had to go without seeing Jenny, having left his card on the under-stand, and he was with him in the morning, and Miss L'Estrange should keep his address an inviolable secret.

The moment he was gone from her, Emlyn L'Estrange dashed up the stairs, turned on the light, threw off her cloak, and put on the necklace before her mirror. It was a fine affair, and no mistake, all lights and colors playing bo-peep in the inspected herself on every side, slipping cock, loony, enjoying the gift, till the novelty of possessing it was gone stale. But at no time did she feel any gratitude to the giver, or she felt any connection with it—just the fact of having it occupied her mind, it didn't matter, when.

And the mere knowledge that it was a valuable proved it to be a bribe, pointing to a weakness in the giver. Some gifts do not only no gratitude, but a certain hardness of heart, contempt, and touch of enmity. Perhaps there is a feeling of "I ought to be grateful," but being too happy of fault, and for this reason the giver with the opposite of gratitude.

At all events, by the time Miss L'Estrange had taken off the string of gems, a memory had grown up within her mind, feeling of partisanship and liking for David Harcourt, and with it came a mild dislike against Strauss. It was a wayward machine, that she bore out the bodice of Miss Emlyn L'Estrange—wayward without motive, subtle without thought, treacherous without malice.

As a matter of fact, before waking Jenny, it came into her head to "give a friendly tip" to David on the ground that he was "not a bad sort," and she actually went out of her way to send him a post-card, telling him that she had expected him to call on Jenny that day, and that, if he meant business, he must see her not later than half-past nine the next morning, or he would be too late.

What a web, this, which was being spun around the young adventurer from Wyoming!

CHAPTER X.

THE MARRIAGE LINES.

David had not gone to interview Jenny the day before in obedience to Miss L'Estrange's first note, because of the sudden humor to which he relapsed after his experiences at three in the morning in the streets of London. He resented the visit of the glimmer of the moon, by a young lady who donned rubber overboots before re-entering her house, and he said to himself: "The day's work, and ship the violet."

Effective braiding is what is known as a costume model, being made along the lines of the bodice to the dressy afternoon costume, with fully boned lining and attached girle to be worn over the skirt band. The materials are in new colored Landowna and the trimmings rose velvet and broad crean Venice lace. The Venice lace forms the collar and neck piece to the tunic, which is almost entirely covered with soutache braiding applied in Byzantine design. The soutache is posed both flat and on the side. Dresden buttons complementing the color of the material are set on the shoulders and down the fronts in clusters of two; likewise on the sleeves where the pointed turnback cuffs are secured to the lace. The girle is of panne velvet crushed over the boned lining and trimmed with two buttons in the back.

The Magic Cap

By ANNIE JAMES.

Once there lived in a pretty village a family by the name of Corbin. There was the father, Jacob Corbin, the mother, Nancy Corbin, the son, Andy Corbin, and the daughter, Rachel Corbin. Jacob Corbin was a smith, making armor and weapons, and his son Andy assisted him. It was known far and wide throughout the land that the armor and shields made by Jacob Corbin were the very best and that the weapons of his make were the strongest and surest. No sword blade ever broke that the smith Corbin had passed over from his work-shop, and no shield was ever pierced that bore the print of Jacob Corbin's hammer. And so it was that he and his young son were kept very busy from morning till night filling many orders that poured into them for weapons and armor.

And so it came to pass that the country in which Jacob Corbin lived was strong on account of its warriors and their splendid equipments for battle. And no country adjoining ever dared to engage it in warfare, for all knew that to do so was to mean sure defeat.

Now the name of the country was Goodland, and the inhabitants were true to their own name. They were a peaceful people, and they lived in harmony with their own domain. But they knew that they were surrounded by warlike people who coveted their rich valleys and uplands and therefore they kept themselves well prepared to repel the invasion of the enemy. Every day the warriors—fighters in armor—were drilled in the use of their arms only, for they lived in peace with all who would contain peace—would go out into the open country and practice with arms. Also they would try their strength at wrestling, boxing, running and leaping. So they became a powerful people in strength and endurance. Thus they were safe from their covetous neighbors who feared to invade Goodland territory.

But one small country lying alongside Goodland became so envious of the thrifty people that desired to employ and old assist them in taking possession of the much coveted country.

You must get rid of Jacob Corbin, the smith," declared the old witch. "He it is who makes the armor and weapons by which you are held in check. So long as you cannot get together an army that can stand against the Goodlanders." But how shall we go about the business of ridding this country of Jacob Corbin?" asked the leader of the band of men who had gone to enlist the aid of the witch in their wicked enterprise.

"Leave that to me," said the old witch, grinning cunningly. "I'll attend to that part of the work."

And so the envious people of the country called Envydom left the matter of doing away with Jacob Corbin in the hands of the old witch. And the following day she went down into the beautiful valley of Goodland, directing her steps to the smith's shop at the very outskirts of the village. But as she went along she changed her appearance so that no one would know her, and when she stepped aside to about the making of a chain of armor that he begged her not to tarry to rest, but be off with you as soon as you could manage to accompany me."

Being a good man and having no suspicions in his heart, Jacob Corbin told his son to go on with the work that was on hand, and he himself gave the newcomer of his journey to the wife and daughter when he should go home at noon for his dinner. "And say that I may not return till night," he added as he left the shop in company with the old witch, who appeared to be a good and honest woman of the power class.

All that afternoon Jacob Corbin traveled on foot in the company of the disguised witch. At nightfall they stopped at

WHERE DOES THE PAPER GO?

The first question asked by a general advertiser. The Telegraph and Times reach that class of people who subscribe and agree to pay for the reading privilege. These papers go first hand from the publishers by carrier and not through street boys to be left in office or store by purchaser after reading. Common sense teaches that every paper passed into homes direct will be read. The Telegraph and Times are home papers. Do they contain your advertisement?

A little isolated house whose roof of thatch was falling in, and whose windows were broken out, "Here we are, my good smith," said the witch. And she led Jacob into the miserable shack where a musty smell hung over everything. "Sit you on the floor, my good smith for you'll find nothing else to sit upon."

But as she said these words the old witch resumed her own horrible appearance, and Jacob Corbin realized suddenly that he had fallen into a trap. He turned into the arms of several strong armed men. "Ah, ha, we've got you, Master armor! And now, before we kill you we want you to forge some weapons and armor for us." The speaker was one of the armed force that surrounded him.

"You belong to the country of Envydom," said Jacob, recognizing the men. "You guess right," laughed several of the number. "And what's more, we'll soon own your own pretty country of Goodland."

son and daughter. "It is very strange," said I think we should go in search of him. Suppose he should have fallen into the hands of the Envydomites."

"This thought made Andy and Rachel tremble with fear for their kind father whom they loved so dearly. So, when the hour-glass told them that it was past bed time they decided to go in the direction their husband and father had gone, hoping to meet him on route homeward. But as a precaution against Jacob's anxiety on their account, should he return alone by another route and find them all missing, it was decided to have Rachel remain at home and wait for her father, or never of him.

After her mother and brother, with lantern in hand, had departed on their way Rachel sat a long time by the window watching the two roadways that passed their cottage in the hope of seeing her father's form approaching. But being a little girl, and unused to being up late at

THEY WERE SURPRISED WHEN RACHEL APPROACHED THEM IN THE COMPANY OF A FAIRY.

We now intend to put you to work making swords and battle axes for us to use in the war we shall soon wage against your countrymen. And as soon as we are through with your services we shall put you out of the way, for you are too skillful a man to let live—so long as you belong to the enemy."

All that night Jacob Corbin paced in the tumble-down old shanty, a strong armed guard stationed about him. He did not sleep a wink and sat wondering what course to pursue on the morrow.

And while Jacob was thus suffering captivity his wife and children were up and doing at their own village. They had hastily waited till nightfall for his return, but as the hours passed and the village lights went out one by one they became very uneasy about his prolonged stay.

"Why, your father has had time to get to and return from the very border of our country," said Nancy Corbin to her night, she soon fell into a light sleep from which she was aroused by a gentle touch on the shoulder. Quickly opening her eyes she saw standing just outside the open window a beautiful fair-haired maiden, probably fifteen years of age. "I'm a fairy," said the maiden, putting her hand on Rachel's head, "and I know that your father is in trouble. An old witch, one whom I know very well to be a most wicked one, has lured him from his home into the arms of an old and ruined cottage which stands just over the border of Envydom. I can lend my assistance to you to rescue your father, but I am helpless alone."

"Oh, help me, gracious fairy," cried Rachel eagerly. "Tell me how I may assist in rescuing my dear father from the clutches of the wicked Envydomites."

"Come with me," said the fairy. Rachel hurriedly did as she was bidden, and soon the two were off down the same road before. After a long walk they overtook Rachel's mother and brother, for they had given out, foot-sore from the brambles, and had paused by the roadside to rest a bit. You may believe the good woman and the anxious boy were surprised when Rachel approached them in the company of a fairy.

Rachel soon told her story, and Nancy and Andy promised the fairy that they would go home and await developments, not fearing to trust Rachel with so good an escort as a fairy. So, after resting a little longer they turned their faces homeward. Rachel and the fairy pursuing their journey.

As soon as they came within sight of the old house where Jacob was held a prisoner the fairy took from the end of her wand a tiny cap which she blew into a large-sized one. Then handing it to Rachel she said: "You must now go forward to the house, wearing this cap. As you for your great kindness."

"No, my dear child, I do not want work for thanks. Besides, I am fully aware of your father's good heart, and know beforehand how grateful you will be. I also read the generous thoughts within your noble little heart. So, I must say farewell and be going. If you follow my instructions you'll be safe."

"But the magic cap?" said Rachel.

"Keep it for future use," said the fairy. "If you or yours are ever in distress or need you will find it a great help to you. But you must use it with discretion—never except when in real need of it must you dare to put it on."

And then the fairy was gone and Rachel, in the guise of the old witch rescued her father just as the fairy had instructed her to do.

And the following day an army of the wicked Envydomites, putting them all to flight, and they have never been seen near the boundaries of Goodland since that day.

And the Magic Cap is still a valued possession in the Corbin family, it being the special property of Rachel, the little favorite of the village.

FINANCIAL and COMMERCIAL

FAILURES MAY RESULT FROM MONEY STRINGENCY

Toronto Merchants Said to be Distrustful of the Future—Much Depends on the Banks—People Living Too Fast.

(Toronto World)

The failures in Canada during the first nine months of the present year amount to $70, against $67 for the same period in 1906, but the liabilities total $8,000,128 for this first nine months, against $6,236,389 in 1906.

In Toronto the feeling among commercial houses is distrustful of the future, but none are prepared to make predictions. Large wholesale houses are exercising unusual discretion in giving credits and are scrutinizing accounts as they have not done for years.

The incentive for this cautiousness is assigned to two causes—first, the decision of the banks to restrain credits, and second, the belief that this season's crops in the Dominion will not warrant any draft on the future.

The large commercial houses are averse to making statements, for obvious reasons, but from an accountant who is in close connection with many of them The World was informed that payments are not coming forward in a satisfactory way.

This authority said: "I know that extraordinary care is being exercised by the large trading concerns. They are of the opinion that the small dealers have overstocked at high prices, and as the consumer is not able or willing to buy as fast as was anticipated. Besides this, there is the knowledge that the recent boom in business has brought many new small concerns into existence without any backing except that supplied by the wholesale houses. Many small men who have been able to finance hitherto through the banks are now shut out because the financial institutions have withdrawn credits except where there exists a plentiful supply of assets. When there is added to this the belief that the farmer will have but little credit this year on account of the lean crops, I think the wholesalers have reasonable grounds to curtail their credits. As far as I can learn, all the actions are purely tentative until the outlook is clearer, but in the meantime this may cause embarrassment to many who are unprepared to meet the situation."

Around the Toronto assignees' offices the impression prevails that there will be no security of business this fall and winter, but this sentiment is qualified by the way in which the banks decide to act in regard to outstanding accommodations from now on.

PEOPLE LIVING TOO FAST.

W. H. Cross of Clarkson & Cross, when spoken to on the question, said:

"Over-spending and over-indebtedness has caused the financial conditions to lose an equilibrium. I think that is, however, the worst of it."

Another well known assignee, who did not wish to be quoted, said: "The reason why there have been so many failures in Ontario is because the banks at present are making more renewals in Manitoba at the expense of this province. Bankers sympathize with the northwest merchants and have in consequence dealt more freely with them than those in Ontario. I do not expect to see the whole sale houses here ship so much this year. Credits for the future will be much curtailed."

J. S. BACHE & CO.'S WEEKLY FINANCIAL REVIEW

The Recession Becoming Apparent—Vagaries of the Market—The Bond Situation at the Present Time.

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—Evidence of the decline in the volume of trade and the accumulation of a debt week, without any special item to prove it except the reported laying off of 2,000 men by the Electric Company, the conviction has become more settled that we must look forward to a recession in business extended over at least a year. How far this recession may go is merely a matter of conjecture. If unaccompanied by heavy failure during the autumn months, the year may be before us, and if the ebbs of business is as gradual as it has been in the last three or four months, we may look for little real damage. A reasonable decrease in the price of money and the price of labor should result in allowing the supply of both these commodities to overtake the demand. An excessive cheapening of money and labor means hard times. If the recession goes no further than indicated above, we may look forward with equanimity, to the development of the coming year, but for conserving resources, and for security holders who still have on hand stocks bought at much higher prices, a time to raise their voices, but by no means, if the stocks are good, and they can afford to hold, them to let them go at the prevailing low prices.

VAGARIES OF THE MARKET.

The stock market, during these days of uncertain trend either way, reflects merely the operations of speculative hands bandied together around one stock or another, with no actual business in the market except such as is listlessly drawn in by interest in watching the play. The proceeding of these nomadic bands of speculators give to each day's movements the only character which they seem to possess, and which is that of vagaries. These daily stock and market betrays every symptom of extreme weakness, and the thing doing these things is, in charge, namely, genuine liquidation, fails to appear, then these liquidations hurried off to recover the losses sustained by the speculators at the day's end and of no moment."

BONDS A YEAR AGO.

The bond market shows some little increase in activity, but a reasonable decrease in the price of money and the price of labor should result in allowing the supply of both these commodities to overtake the demand. An excessive cheapening of money and labor means hard times. If the recession goes no further than indicated above, we may look forward with equanimity, to the development of the coming year, but for conserving resources, and for security holders who still have on hand stocks bought at much higher prices, a time to raise their voices, but by no means, if the stocks are good, and they can afford to hold, them to let them go at the prevailing low prices.

ON THE MONTREAL STOCK MARKET

(Montreal Witness, Friday.)

Since a week ago today, the market proceedings were enlivened by another of those sensational movements for which the Canadian Pacific stock is now notorious. The closing price, last Friday, was 133 1/4 on the Montreal market; the following day a bear raid took the stock down three points, the decline being continued on Monday, showing a net loss of five points before those supporting the stock could recover from their surprise at the sudden turn of events. Just as quickly as the stock declined, there was a movement in the opposite direction, and, in the space of only a few hours, it was carried away up to 138, or a net advance of ten points from the lowest price of the movement. The bears were caught "red-handed," and the high price recovery is sufficient demonstration to the extent of the "squeezing," as applied to their banking accounts. Since the highest, the stock has been very quiet and the market under normal transactions to around 130 to 132. Apart from Canadian Pacific, there was little business in the local list of securities. There was only a small recovery from the recent low level of Lake of the Woods common stock, notwithstanding the very excellent statement of earnings as presented at the annual meeting. Montreal Street also made a poor showing after the publication of the gross receipts for the past fiscal year. For the year ended Sept. 30, the gross was $3,473,992, an increase of about twelve per cent.

THE BORDER CITY TIMES

News of the St. Croix Valley Gleaned by Times Correspondents.

Calais, Oct. 5.

The new Calais water supply has now been in operation just a week and has proved adequate for all demands. The people of the four towns are using an average of 1500 gallons a day, and it has been found necessary to run the pumps 12 hours daily in order to keep the reservoir at a proper height, instead of eight hours as the contract with the company installing the plant called for. The St. Stephen authorities have not accepted the pumping plant which was installed by the Calais Water Co., claiming that the equipment is not doing the work for which the contract calls. The company claims, it is said, that the pumps are raising every hour the number of gallons which their capacity calls for, and that the towns served by the St. Stephen system are using considerably more water than they were expected to use. The plant has cost the town of St. Stephen considerably more money than was expected, and the members of the council do not feel inclined to accept any portion of the system that is not up to contract conditions.

BLAMES TIGHT MONEY.

N. L. Martin of N. L. Martin & Co., being interviewed regarding the number of Ontario failures, said: "The tightness of the money market is the contributing cause. The country's banks have been cut by the banks are determined not to renew there is only one sequence—failure. There are lots of business accounts that have been cut almost entirely out. This helps, too, to aggravate the situation, but the outlook appears to be clearing and there is no reason for so much pessimistic talk. As to Manitoba, the business is not so sanguine. The manager of one of Toronto's largest wholesale houses—the house that does probably the largest business of any house in the west—told me the other day that on Sept. 3 last about 90 per cent. of the paper under count had to be renewed. A great deal of credit had to be renewed in the western crop. The manager of our Winnipeg office assures me that after extensive travel in the wheat district he believes the grain crop will be 33 per cent. less than last year."

Another well known assignee, who did not wish to be quoted, said: "The reason why there have been so many failures in Ontario is because the banks at present are making more renewals in Manitoba at the expense of this province. Bankers sympathize with the northwest merchants and have in consequence dealt more freely with them than those in Ontario. I do not expect to see the whole sale houses here ship so much this year. Credits for the future will be much curtailed."

PREDICTS A TWO DAY STEAMER TO EUROPE

(N. Y. American.)

Mr. Peter Cooper Hewitt, in the current issue of the Technical World Magazine, makes a prophecy that a two-day steamer will be in operation in two days by a ship capable of traveling one hundred miles an hour.

While a four-day boat is within the range of possibility, it is scarcely likely that Mr. Hewitt's two-day dream will ever be fulfilled.

The power limitation of a screw in water or would seem to be far this side of one hundred miles an hour. Indeed, it is doubtful, according to many scientific authorities, whether fifty miles an hour will ever be attained.

The fault will not be found in the ever-increasing power of the machinery, but in the water, which, beyond a certain point, ceases to act as a "kicker" for the screw.

Thus a screw revolving above a certain number of revolutions per minute causes "cavitation" or the forming of a vacuum behind the blades. Up to the point of cavitation the speed will increase. Afterward it remains stationary. Therefore if a screw is ever built it would seem that it will have to be constructed with propellers large enough to avoid cavitation, or that something will be done to solve the problem in a new and startling way.

CRY OF HARD TIMES IN NEW YORK UNWARRANTED

(N. Y. American.)

The prophetic disaster which set up a howl about "hard times," the "destruction of public confidence" and a "death blow to investment" because of the exposure of the practical methods of a few freebooters of finance ought to read the last quarterly report of the secretary of state of New York.

For the three dull months in the year, July, August and September, the banks of the state have shown a strength and liveliness and expansion all without a precedent.

In the three months reported on 1,397 new business concerns were incorporated, which is an increase of more than 100 over last year's corresponding returns, and 150 corporations increased their capital stock nearly $88,000,000.

Secretary Wadsworth from a study of these and other figures declares that the business prosperity of the state, instead of ebbing, is on the flood; that business, instead of contracting, is expanding most vigorously, and that, instead of there being a scarcity of capital, it is most abundant.

AGREES WITH SIR FREDERICK

(Ottawa Journal.)

The efforts of Sir Frederick Borden to promote the practice of physical exercises in the schools of the country have been quite properly applauded. The value of Sir Frederick's plan needs no arguing. It has been conceded since the beginning of the century that the sound mind is impossible without the sound body, no matter what the record of the mind. The public seeks to endorse the plan, and the public would make their general marks in the militia. And this in itself would mark the plan for commendation since every citizen of a country should be a soldier, and every soldier a citizen.

Whoever fathers the idea should get the credit. There is now a wide open opportunity for a member or a group of members to associate themselves with a winning cause, and to do it in a day when there are not so many shouting for it that their voices will be lost in the general clamor.

SIGNS OF WEAKNESS

Some time has elapsed since Premier Robinson announced that he would presently have something to say which would make the opponents of the government sit up and take notice. The aforesaid opponent, and the premier's friends as well, still have an ear to the ground.

It was expected that the announcement to be made would be that of a completed cabinet, but the cabinet is not yet completed. Indeed the latest rumor is that it may be patched up with the assistance of Mr. McKewen, for whom a constituency may be found by giving Dr. Ruddick a post which by the rules of the game should go to another. It is intimated that Dr. Ruddick is much less popular with his constituents than he was at the last elections, and the scheme is said to be provided for him and for Mr. McKewen and the weakened government at the same time.

The premier's halting policy has been a great disappointment to his friends. Had he accepted the advice of the St. John Globe, cut loose from all entanglements, completed his cabinet at the outset, and boldly appealed to the people, he would have been in a stronger position than he is today. The tide has been setting against the government, and it is a fact that today the people are talking more about what Dr. Pugsley may be able to do with the influence of two federal departments to save the provincial government than what it may be able to do for itself.

FOR MORE PLAYGROUNDS

That the supervised playground idea is making headway in Toronto is clear from the following extract from the Toronto World of last Friday:

"The latest propositions are that the city should take over the St. Andrew's and St. Patrick's market properties for the carrying out of the supervised playground idea. The park commissioner reported to the civic parks committee yesterday strongly in favor of supervised playgrounds, particularly in congested districts. Experience in other large cities had shown their usefulness and worth, and it was important that initial steps be taken to purchase land in suitable localities. He had already recommended the acquisition of a block of land in ward two, bounded by Arnold avenue, Sutton avenue, Blair street and Wilton crescent, and would also recommend the acquisition of the north portion of the block of land bounded by Armory street, Agass street, Chestnut street and Centre avenue. He had also in mind the possible conversion of the land now occupied by St. Andrew's market into a supervised playground. Controller Harrison suggested that the St. Patrick's market property might make a good playground site, particularly as the civic bath-house and swimming pool would be located in the rear and could be used in conjunction. The committee decided to get a report from the city solicitor and park commissioner."

A MILD PROTEST

The C. P. R. Telegraph Company has increased the press rates to western newspapers from 100 to 114 per cent, and if ever a corporation received full and fearless consideration at the hands of the press it appears to be this same company at the present time. The Winnipeg Free Press, for example, in an article headed "Censor Redivivus," describes the company's peculiarities as follows:—"Its cohesiveness, its zest in petty tyrannies, its piquant meannesses, its hopeless and notorious inefficiency," and adds that:—"Nothing the little tin gods of this machine can do will surprise the people any more."

The Free Press, after a reference to the happy condition of a state-chartered monopoly that could take its patrons by the throat whenever it felt like it, and oblige them, at will, to double their contributions, observes that the railways used to be able to do this sort of thing but can do it no more, and that the telephone companies tried it but were checked by the parliament of Canada. Then it proceeds:

"The C. P. R. Telegraph Company appears to be the only licensed freebooter left. This Dick Turpin still swaggers along the highways, spoiling the wayfarer with the insolent nonchalance of the knight of the road. Let him enjoy his license while he may, for even now the shackles are being forged that will and forever his career of plunder!"

The Free Press charges that once before the company increased its rates, and not only did so but tried to make them retroactive, and actually sent out the bills for the increase from a date in the past. Those bills were not collected. For, says the Free Press:

"By some unaccountable oversight the courts of the land are not in the possession of the Canadian Pacific corporation. Joshua commanded the sun to stand still for a day while he trimmed the Amorites; but they (the C. P. R. Telegraph Company) are greater than Joshua. They turned the universe back for more than a week while they spoiled the publishers. The thanks, the hearty thanks, of the public are due to these gentlemen for establishing, by their conduct, the case for extending the authority of the Railway Commission over the Telegraph Companies. The case is all ready strong, but we are not without hopes that they will make it overwhelming by some crowning act of autocratic imbecility."

From all of which it may be inferred that in the golden west the people do not regard corporations with that degree of humble reverence which obtains in some communities; and further, that, when vigorous expression seems called for, the newspaper men are not unmindful of their opportunity nor wholly unfitted for their task.

TWO LEADERS COMPARED

The special correspondent of the Toronto News, writing from Victoria, B. C., concerning Mr. Borden's addresses to the Canadian Clubs of Victoria and Vancouver, makes an interesting comparison between Mr. Borden and Sir Wilfrid Laurier, and adds a cynical observation on the subject of public indifference to public duty. We quote:

"Mr. Borden is the one man in Federal politics who devotes serious and deliberate study to the higher aspects of political institutions, to what might be styled up-to-date imperialism, and the consideration of the development of methods of popular government and administration into which up-to-date imperialism blends. Sir Wilfrid Laurier discusses these subjects only when specific cases come up for handling; his utterances are marked by great shrewdness, by his inimitable dexterity, and occasionally by much practical wisdom; he further has the inestimable advantage of close personal experience, from the inside, of what Mr. Gladstone was wont to style the working of our institutions; still, he never shows any evidence of the systematic and conscious study of the late developments which marks Mr. Borden's attitude. It is a contrast between the consummate, practical workman and the thoughtful student. To both clubs Mr. Borden spoke of the astonishing increase of the power of the premier, the transfer of all real and effective debate from the house of commons to the ministerial caucus, and the possibility that, thanks to the indifference of the upper classes to their political duties, our representative institutions may wear down into a new autocracy. He would greatly prefer a man to be an active Liberal than a political drone, and he spoke of the difficulty in inducing men of real importance in the community to be candidates. The audience listened intently, applauded warmly, and went away and neglected their public duties as much as ever."

A man in Toronto read an advertisement in which the expression "a million dollars for a healthy stomach" was used, and then purchased an electric belt to cure himself of stomach trouble. Now he declares his stomach is worse, and has sued the doctor for fifty dollars, the cost of an operation which he says he had to undergo as a result of using the belt. There is an obvious lesson in this man's experience, but the craze for experiments is not likely to be diminished.

The liquidators of the York Loan Co. announce that the assets are being realized to the best advantage, but no dividend to creditors can be paid for a year or more. The company in question absorbed a portion of the earnings of some people in the lower provinces, who could ill afford the loss.

The statement that Mr. Hazen has no constructive policy is, as he observes, used against every opposition leader. It carries no weight.

The crisis at Springhill mines confronts the government of Nova Scotia with the knottiest problem it has faced for many a day. The end may be government control and operation of a coal mine.

HEART OF THE LAKES

(William Wilfrid Campbell.)

There are crags that loom like spectres
Half under the sun and the mist
There are beaches that gleam and glisten,
There are cars that open to listen,
And lips held up to be kissed.

There are miles and miles of waters
That throbb like a woman's breast,
With a glad, harmonious motion,
Like happiness caught at rest.
As if a heart beat under
In love with its own glad rest,
Beating and beating for ever
Outward to east and west.

There are forests that kneel for ever
Robed in the dreamiest haze
That God sends down in summer
To mantle the gold of its days
Kneeling and leaning for ever
In winding and sinuous bays.

There are birds that like smoke-drift hover
With a strange and bodiless cry,
Into the dream and the distance
Of the marshes that southward lie,
With their lonely lagoon and rivers,
Far under the reeling sky.

IN LIGHTER VEIN
HE KEPT HER BUSY.

Lulu—Have you had any proposals this summer?

Evelyn—Seventeen.

Lulu—Good gracious! I haven't met as many men as that.

Evelyn—No? They were all from the same man—London Opinion.

A SOLEMN JOKE.

The sculptor was working on a statue of Melancholy.

"May I ask what you are doing?" inquired the visitor.

"Cutting a sorry figure," said the sculptor, scowling at him.—Chicago Tribune.

DOUBTFUL CONSOLATION.

The wife of a civil servant in France died and her husband was inconsolable.

He preserved a great presence of mind, however, to be able to look after his own interests, and demanded that his wife should be interred at the expense of the province.

"I am afraid that is impossible," said the deputy to him. "Now if it had been your own wife, you should have been only too pleased."—Rire.

HE KNEW WHAT HE WANTED.

A city man had a friend from a farm up on a business matter the other day, and they lunched together at a restaurant.

The visitor ate his meal entirely with his knife. When he was near the end he discovered that he had no fork.

"Look here," he said to the city man. "That waiter didn't give me a fork."

"Well, you don't need one," replied the city man seriously.

"The deuce I don't!" came from the farmer. "What am I going to stir my coffee with?"—London Opinion.

A WISE COUNSELLOR.

Jeweller—You say you want some name engraved on this ring?

Young man—Yes, I want the words "George, to his dearest Alice," engraved on the inside of the ring.

"Is the young lady your sister?"

"No; she is the young lady to whom I am engaged."

"Well, if I were you I would not have 'George, to his dearest Alice,' engraved on the ring. If Alice changes her mind you can't use the ring again."

"What would you suggest?"

"I would suggest that the words be 'George, to his first and only love.' You see, with that inscription you can use the ring half a dozen times. I have had experience in such matters myself."—Philadelphia Inquirer.

WHERE IS EDWARD CURRIE?

Douglas York County Man Given up for Lost—News From Fredericton.

Fredericton, N. B., Oct. 6.—Mystery surrounding the disappearance of Edward Currie, of Douglas, has not yet been solved. He has not been seen alive since Saturday evening, Sept. 28, and the general impression is that he lost his life by falling into the river. As he had been drinking when last seen, this circumstance strengthens the drowning theory. This afternoon a number of his friends exploded dynamite in the river opposite the city, with the hope that it might bring his body to the surface, but it failed. His wife and family have given him up for lost.

A party of St. John people, composed of J. Royden Thomson, Captain Ferris, K. J. MacRae, H. D. Forbes, F. W. Thomson, R. Skinner, D. Skinner and J. S. White, arrived here last evening in two automobiles and registered at the Queen. They left for St. John this morning.

Rev. Canon Cowie occupied the pulpit in the cathedral this morning, and in the course of an able sermon spoke of the great number of young girls allowed to roam the streets of the city after dark. He denounced this condition of affairs in strong terms, and was inclined to hold the parents responsible. Such laxity was not likely to promote the moral welfare of the community, he said, and the time had arrived when a change should be brought about. He suggested as a means of doing this that the homes should be made more attractive for the young people.

The death of Mrs. Ann Mitchell, widow of William Mitchell, and mother of the late Hon. James Mitchell, at one time premier of New Brunswick, occurred at her home at Kewick Ridge Saturday morning. She had reached the advanced age of ninety-two years and was in the enjoyment of excellent health until a fortnight ago, when she suffered a stroke of paralysis. Although everything possible was done for her she failed to rally from the effects of the stroke, and members of the family were quite prepared for the announcement of her death.

T. H. Wilson, of Fairville, H. N. Coates, D. J. Purdy, T. A. Linton and T. Albert Linton, of this city, who are seeking incorporation as The Purdy Chemical Company with a capital of $25,000, have secured the rights to some important proprietary remedies which they will manufacture.

An event looked forward to with much interest is the lecture to be given by Mrs. J. K. Barney for the auspices of the North End W. C. T. U. in Portland Methodist church on Friday evening, Oct. 11.

MISS LULU GLASER
"Lola From Berlin" Poor.
In "Lola From Berlin," a comedy with music, by Mosses, John J. McNally, William Jerome and John Schwartz, produced in the Liberty Theatre, New York, Miss Lulu Glaser scored a personal success in a play that is not worthy of her. If it had been labelled a musical comedy, or had the authors written it as such, there would have been no fault to find with the book, for nowadays no one expects much of a story in a musical comedy. But in "Lola from Berlin" Mr. McNally, who has written many successful musical comedies, has digressed. He has tried to delve into heroics. If the play had been a musical comedy, it would have been a success. When they were absent there was gloom, and plenty of it.

Comics.
Although Miss Victoria is back in New York with a new crop of songs, including several that bid fair to become as prevalent and pervasive as some of the earlier ones, her audience at the New York Theatre still demand "Poor John." And the good natured English comedienne smiles and responds, although to do so means her fifth change of costume in fifteen minutes.

THE NICKEL'S NEW SHOW
New Pictures to be Shown Today—Some Splendid Films.
Saturday was almost a record breaker in attendance at this popular resort, and the programmes now in sight for this week augur well for a repeat every day of the great success.
Commencing at noon today the following new views will be shown until Tuesday night: A Visit to Seville, one of Spain's most beautiful places, an interesting feature of this film is the Holy Week procession; Tommy Atkins' Dilemma introduces a new line of comedy—a mix-up of babies, while Dot Lettice Germar Band will be made all the funnier by the introduction of the "Fountain of Youth" shows how an old couple are rejuvenated, and also the other fellow in the long delayed match-making. Altogether it is a strong programme, and with another illustrated song, Good-Bye Mamie, complete change of orchestra music, the actual realistic effects, patrons of the Nickel can settle back for the usual fund of wholesome amusement.

Montreal Man Shoots Himself
Because Girl He Loves is Too Young to Marry.
Montreal, Oct. 6—Dramatically terminating a conversation during which the girl he loved had refused to marry him, Victor Hane, of 170 Joliette street, shot himself through the heart in front of his sweetheart on Saturday afternoon. The couple boarded in the same house, and she was only sixteen years old, while Miss Mary Hane was the sole witness and cause of the young man's deed. The girl had returned Hane's affection, but she was only sixteen years old, and her relatives on this account would not consent to marriage. During the last appeal the young man was standing in his bedroom holding the door open, while Miss Hane was in the passage. Exactly what passed between them is not known, as the girl has been prostrated ever since the tragedy, and yesterday had to be removed to a hospital. The man's fatal deed, however, demonstrates that in their last talk the girl could have given him no hope.

VICE-PRES'S WON
The annual match for teams captained by the president and vice-president took place on the local links Saturday afternoon, and was won by the vice-president's team by 13 points after a most enjoyable game. George McAvity, the president, and Dr. J. M. Magee, vice-president, captained the players who numbered twenty on each side.
The game consisted of 18 holes match play, and being less strenuous than the usual run of matches, proved one of the best and most interesting contests of the season. The prize—a picture on a golfing subject—will be hung in the clubhouse, suitably inscribed with the names of those who took part in the contest.
Corner W. F. Roberts having decided an inquest to be unnecessary, the body of Edward McGonnell, who was found dead on the floor of his father's house on Friday, was interred yesterday afternoon. The funeral was held from his father's home, 621 Main street, and burial was in the Catholic cemetery.

ROOSEVELT IS BLAMED FOR KILLING FAIRBANKS

Methodist Pastor in Letter Says President Caused Trouble by Calling for a "Fairbanks Cocktail."

BALTIMORE, Md., Oct. 4.—In a remarkably blunt letter which he has sent to President Roosevelt, the Rev. Dr. Charles S. Jones, pastor of the Monroe Street Methodist church in this city, places the blame for the defeat of Vice-President Fairbanks as a lay delegate to the Methodist Episcopal conference squarely on the President. When asked to tell why he had written the letter, the Rev. Dr. Jones declined to make any statement.

"My dear Mr. President—A despatch from Columbus, Ind., states that Charles W. Fairbanks, vice-president of the United States, was defeated for delegate to the quadrennial conference of the Methodist Episcopal church, after one of the most bitter contests ever waged in a religious assembly.
"That Mr. Fairbanks is no longer a presidential candidate, or even a vice-presidential possibility, can no longer be doubted. The laymen's convention of his own state and conference have refused to send him to the general conference to be held here in Baltimore next May, which kills all of his prospects of said nomination.
"Whether he is guilty or not of the gross-impropriety of using intoxicants as a beverage, so objectionable to our church, may be an open question, but Methodists largely believe the report. Mr. Fairbanks sowed the wind and he reaped the whirlwind.
"The cause of his defeat, Mr. Fairbanks' dinner was given in your honor. You are reported as ordering what was called the "Fairbanks Cocktail." Mr. Fairbanks had the ingredients in his home and granted your wish. This incident retires him to private life.
"Get into line, Mr. President. Be on time for the next tidal wave of prohibition that will sweep down upon this Messianic land and break through all barriers that stand in the way of its onward rush to victory.
"The cause! The cause! If it is to be restored as formerly, when our boys in blue were made bartenders, then, by the grace of God, the Republican and Democratic parties will meet their Waterloo and a Prohibition candidate sit in your chair."

OYSTERS WILL BE HIGH IN PRICE

It is Stated That the P. E. Island Catch Will be Short This Season.

(Montreal Star)
The first shipment of Malpeque oysters from Prince Edward Island reached Montreal last night on the I. C. R. by express. Owing to the bad weather, which prevailed on the coast on the opening day, the supply was very limited, and not more than half the quantity was received in Montreal this season on the opening day in comparison with the first shipment which came to this city last year.
A. H. Brittain, speaking with a representative of the Star, stated that the oyster season opened up in Canada. It may not be generally known, but a large industry in clams is carried on in Prince Edward Island, most of which are shipped to the United States. The season for clams opened September 1st, and closed September 31st, and the following day the oyster season opened up in Canada. It is difficult to estimate at the present time what this season's catch of oysters will be, but the indications are that the catch will not be more than half of the previous year. Malpeque oysters are becoming more popular than ever, and there is always a great demand for any surplus stock to go to the United States at very high prices.

Rev. Franklin P. Jolly, of Joliet (Ill.), preached a powerful sermon in Carmarthen street Methodist church last evening to a large congregation. Taking Faith for his subject the preacher contended that it enters largely into the making of business life, the affairs of which are conducted to a great extent on that basis alone. As the business man by exercising discriminating faith in his fellows, increases the scope of his business connections, said Rev. Mr. Jolly, so the soul that comes into communion with God through faith necessarily enlarges and the whole life of the man or woman becomes enlarged and ennobled. Rev. Mr. Jolly will lecture in the church tonight on the Jolly Side of Life.

WILL ASK GOVERNMENT TO RUN MINES AND SAVE TOWN
Manager Cowans, of Springhill Mines Will Make No More Concessions—Citizens, Fearing Ruin, Ask Nova Scotia Government to Take Action.

Springhill, N. S., Oct. 6.—The Nova Scotia government will be formally asked tomorrow afternoon to make the experiment of coal mine operations.
W. L. MacKenzie King left Springhill yesterday morning for Ottawa. Premier Murray asked him to remain till after his conference with a committee of the miners which had been fixed for tomorrow, but the deputy minister of labor found this to be impossible.
MacKenzie King told a correspondent that Premier Murray had asked the Cumberland Railway & Coal Company to submit the whole matter in dispute to a board of arbitration under provincial arbitration, but General Manager Cowans replied that the company were determined to stand on the decision of the first conciliation board. Rather than depart from that position, he said, he would sell his property, leave the province and turn the mines over to the government's charge. It is said the company has intimated the intention of withdrawing its officials from the mines very soon, and that it is in connection with this that the governor is going to Springhill tomorrow.
The government will have another proposition before them at Springhill tomorrow besides that which they will propose regarding the mines. They will be met by a committee of five, appointed by a meeting of citizens, and a request will be straight to Premier Murray that, pending a settlement of the strike, the government take over the Springhill mines and not only keep the pumps going and maintain the property in condition, but that they operate the whole plant, raising coal and filling contracts. The resolution of a citizens' meeting, on which this request will be based, after setting forth that the strike is ruining the town, continues:
"Whereas, the coal areas of Nova Scotia belong to the people of this province and are a valuable asset of the province, from which a large amount of provincial revenue is drawn; and
"Whereas, the government of Nova Scotia is custodian of this, the people's property, and are advised, by law under certain conditions may take possession of and operate any mines or workings opened and worked; may mine, raise and sell coal, employing such workmen as are necessary, and pay for all expenditures incurred thereby out of the provincial treasury; be it therefore
Resolved, that this public meeting of citizens of the town of Springhill, in view of the vital necessity of the case, appoint a committee of five citizens to wait upon the premier and his colleagues on Monday next and present to them the views of this meeting as herein embodied.
The government have a definite interest in this matter beyond a desire to preserve the town, which would be ruined by the closing of a mine like that at Springhill. They collect a royalty of ten cents a ton on all coal mined. This amounts to more than $30,000 annually from Springhill, and the loss in royalty since the strike began is more than $6,000. But there is very little hope in Springhill that the government will make the experiment in coal mine ownership and operation that the citizens now propose.

OCEAN FREIGHT STEAMERS MAY BE TAKEN OFF ROUTE

(Montreal Witness.)
The ocean steamship companies are considerably worried over the outlook for an unprofitable winter's trade, and according to the statements made this morning by prominent officials, it is considered likely that the majority of the lines doing business between Canada and the British Isles, as well as European ports, will withdraw a number of their vessels from the Canadian route during the winter, as present indications point to a slack season.
There appears to be little or no produce in sight for export, while the ocean rates are unprofitably low, especially for this time of the year.
Mr. Robert Reford, president of the Robert Reford Agency, in discussing the situation with a Witness representative today, said that the trade prospects for the coming winter were anything but encouraging; indeed, he felt certain that it would involve a loss to the steamship companies.
"The existing conditions, said Mr. Reford, "are due to the uncertainty of the output of the Canadian and United States harvest, from which Canada draws considerable shipments, and how much of the same is going to be wanted for home consumption. The idea of holders, speculators, farmers and shippers, being above those of buyers in Great Britain and Europe shipments of most commodities are not going on in so great volume as is usual at this season. Great Britain and Europe being seemingly able to supply themselves more cheaply elsewhere. We hope, however, that this condition of affairs will right itself before long, as there should be considerable quantities of the usual exports to go out during the closing weeks of open navigation from Montreal during the winter.
"Ocean rates are exceedingly low, largely due to lack of shipments, grain, lumber and cattle being at present carried without profit to the steamship companies, and even at these low rates full cargoes are not obtainable. There must be considerable stock of nearly everything in the country, but it must be remembered that the home demand is increasing owing to which, in some cases, better prices are obtainable here than in England.
"To the best of my opinion there is no corner in anything, the smallness of exports in grain being in some measure due to farmers expecting unusually high prices for their produce from supposed deficiency in harvest. The harvest as a whole, will, I think, turn out larger than generally expected and higher prices ruling for most cereals should cause large sales and an increase in exports."

OBITUARY
Halifax, Oct. 5.—The death of Joseph Wood, one of the best known of Halifax business men, occurred today. He was a ship broker and steamship agent. His wife and eleven children survive.
Mrs. Mary Jane, wife of George Elder, of Salmon Creek, Chipman, died there last Friday. She was a daughter of the late Charles McDougall, of Kirkland, Carleton county, and is survived by her husband, who is an agent of the Canadian Bible Society; two sons and two daughters, one brother, Allan, in Kirkland, and one sister, Mrs. Andrew Haslam, of Vancouver (B. C.). The late Mrs. Elder was prominent in church work. She was a life member of the Ladies' Foreign Missionary Society, and in every way was a consistent member of the Reformed Presbyterian church. "Bright's" disease was the cause of death.
Nova Scotia schooner Eddie Theriault, Captain Theriault, arrived yesterday from New York with a cargo of phosphorus.

TIE GAME
WITH NO SCORE

That was the Best the Algonquins and St. Peter's Could Make it Saturday in Senior Football Series—The Game a Hard One.

A game with no score was the result of a hard-fought game Saturday on the Victoria grounds between the Algonquins and St. Peter's in the city league. It was almost entirely a forward game, the halves on either side having but few chances. At this style of play the teams were about evenly matched, in spite of the fact that the Indians line was slightly heavier. The first half was in favor of St. Peter's by a small margin but in the second the Indians took a brace and had the best call in the game. For the first few minutes it looked as if the green and white had an easy thing as the redskins were forced to their five-yard line in a bewildered state. They got rid of the attack of stage fright soon, however, and gradually the extreme pressure from one end of the field to the other but as stated previously the St. Peter's had a little better 22nd half. In the second the Algonquins seemed to improve immeasurably. Shortly after the kick the play was in Indian camp grounds but some punting up their halves eased things up and during the latter part of this half the Saints were more on the defensive. The game ended with the ball on their five-yard line. The redskins lost what looked like a fine chance to score when King missed full back McIntyre. The Indians half back was going too fast a clip to stop quickly. The game, to speak plainly, was ragged football and very ragged at that. Of the two teams the Algonquins showed the worst form. Neither forward line let the ball out to any extent. There was plenty too much falling on the ball in the scrums, the players being piled tier high on almost every occasion. There is no excuse for this, except poor form and that is none at all. It can be said that St. Peter's that they were far the quicker in getting down and worked much better together. The green and white team is much stronger than when it played the Marathons Saturday last and had played the Greeks with the same aggressive spirit that they did the Indians 34-0. It is quite unlikely that so large a score would have been registered against them. The Indians on the other hand showed some improvement. When they did get down, however, they were more than equal to the Saints. Both half backs did some back fumbling which probably can be traced to the few if any practices the half line of either team got during the week. The game was a match for McIntyre and Col who also showed up well. The former is "foxy" in the extreme and there were some few things that the referee did not see. The Algonquins have the material for a snappy team which was seen during the period of the game, but the redskins must, if they wish to lick the team into condition, get down to more practice, and when this is done they will be found a dangerous proposition. Probably some allowance should be made for the Indians as it is their first game for the present champs. In their forward line vice-captain Finley, McKinnon and Seely, probably were the most noticeable, though Marks and March were much in evidence. "Curly" Everett made the most of the few opportunities offered and made one or two nice runs. For St. Peter's, Devor and Harrington showed up well on the forward line. Baker, who played the dual position of third quarter and forward played his usual snappy game. Wilson and Goughan made the most of their opportunities on the half line. The St. Peter's, like the Indians, have the stuff for a good team. If both get right down to practice to pick a winner of the "silverware" will be a ticklish proposition. Dr. Matolin was all that could be desired as a referee. He allowed no fooling, was sharp, and did his best to make the teams play good football. The tough judges were, for the Algonquins, J. Starr Tait and for the St. Peter's, Frank Doody. The teams lined up as follows:—

Algonquins full back McIntyre
McMachin

St. Peter's
Devor

THE INDIANS appeared in their new uniforms of red and black and looked nattily. The standing of the teams in the senior league is as follows:—

St. Peter's..... 0 1 1

Chance, accompanied by Picters, Picters and Overall, immediately left the park, and went over to see the Detroit-St. Louis game.

VICTORIAS AND MICMACS WINNERS

In Intermediate League Saturday—Both Games Protested.

Two fast games were played in the intermediate league series on the Shamrock grounds. The Victorias defeated the Micmacs, 6-3, and the La Tours won from the Curries by the same score. It is said, however, that both games will be protested, as the Micmacs claim the first touchdown made by the Victorias was not over the line, and the Currie's claim favoritism by the referee and the playing of seniors by Carleton.

J. Gorman refereed the game between the Currie's and La Tours, which commenced at 2:30 o'clock. O'Connor made the only try for the C. B. U., while the Carleton men got over twice. In 5 o'clock the visitors were defeated at Carleton, a senior. They also claim that the referee showed poor judgment.

In the second game R. C. Backin held the whistle. This contest being between the two leading teams in the league, was an exciting one, and feeling ran high. In the first half Sheffield made a touchdown which was allowed by the referee, and Scott got over with the ball in the second. Lynch, for the Micmacs, scored in the first, but at the end of the game, when the Micmacs put up a protest against the referee's decision, the referee claimed that Lynch was out of touch before reaching the goal line, and announced their intention of protesting the game if the Micmacs did so.

It is to be regretted that there is talk of protest, as this is against the interests of true sport. The boys will have to learn to take a beating.

MONCTON GOLFERS DOWNED ST. JOHN

Moncton, Oct. 5.—(Special)—A St. John golf team played four rounds today against the Moncton Golf Club on the latter's links and was beaten quite handsily. Twelve men were expected from St. John but owing to the stormy weather only eight arrived. The day proved fairly good, the afternoon weather being quite agreeable. The course was wet in spots but the play was very keen and some excellent cards were turned in. The visitors were at some disadvantage because they were not familiar with the course, but as a rule they were outplayed. Most of the best and Hooper were the only St. John men to win. The other six finding the odds too desperate. Most of the Moncton players were well and admirably suited and the whole contest was of the most spirited and enjoyable kind. The score:

Kessen..... 0 Maddison..... 3
Jack..... 0 Edmond..... 3
McCreedy..... 0 Thompson..... 3
Hooper..... 4 A. E. Williams..... 7
Barbour..... 0 Simpson..... 0
Baskin..... 0 Doherty..... 0
Pugley..... 0 Wilkinson..... 5

Totals..... 10 23
The ladies of the Moncton club turned out in force and a fine luncheon was served after the first two rounds. At 5 o'clock the visitors were entertained at supper. President Williams of the home club presiding. Rev. Mr. Hooper on behalf of the visitors proposed a vote of thanks to the hosts, making eloquent reference to the kindness of the ladies in providing and serving so hospitable a repast. Mayor White responded happily. President Williams proposed the health of the St. John men in a neat speech, and the ladies of the Moncton club responded by offering a return match, a proposal which the other visiting players very heartily seconded. The visitors left for home at 6 o'clock, delighted with the game and the hospitality they had enjoyed. The Moncton club has developed a large number of golfers, and a return match should prove most interesting.

HINTS FOR PANCAKE MAKING.
A good way to prepare the pancake, fritters and such things, is to put the batter in a clean cloth, and rub the little bundle all over the pan. The heat, of the cloth, will just enough through the cloth to butter evenly and prevent waste. For the pancakes themselves there is an increasing use of Blend Flour, which, good cooks agree, is without an equal for making light, tasty pancakes. It is a scientific blend of Ontario wheat and Manitoba spring wheat. Freed as it is from waste matter, it is much richer in flavor and food value than either of the wheats could give alone. It contains just the proportion of gluten in flour which prevents the food becoming soggy and indigestible.

Blending of flour is an old trick taught good housekeepers by their mothers. It is convenient to have this means of taste shifted from our bread, and the blending of the two wheats, the study of the dustless millers of today, and they should certainly do the blending of flour with all the modern machinery that can be accomplished by the most painstaking work at home.

INTERESTING NEWS BUDGET FROM CARLETON COUNTY

Woodstock, N. B., Oct. 5.—The Opera House was fairly well filled last night with friends of the hospital and graduates when the graduating exercises of the first class of nurses from the Carleton county hospital were held. The following three clever young ladies have taken the entire course and were presented their diplomas: Miss Alice Pearl Mitchell, Miss Rebecca Melbeth Gamble and Miss Annie Isabella Gillis.

On the stage were Mayor Munro, chairman; Revs. Dr. Kierstead, R. G. Fulton, H. G. Alder, A. H. Kearney, Drs. Kierstead, Sprague and Rankin, Judge Carleton, U. S. Consul Denison, W. B. Boyes and others.

Mayor Munro said all were acquainted with the object of the reception which was to fittingly honor the three bright young ladies who were graduating from the hospital. The people of Woodstock are proud and gratified on having such a successful institution. It reflected credit on the citizens. That it had the warm support of the people had been shown by the hearty response given to its every undertaking for its financial assistance. The birth of the hospital was due to the local doctors assisted by the clergy and supported by the people as a whole, not by the wealthy, but many small offerings helped to swell the fund.

He was also in saying that the hospital has been and is being conducted in a successful manner. It has as good physical plant as can be found in the province. It has a most successful matron. The credit is not due to the trustee board but to the matron, Miss Kilburn. He wished to give publicly the credit due that lady. He had conversed with patients and heard from patients and they all spoke highly of Miss Kilburn; of course she was assisted by a most capable staff of nurses.

The people had been called here to tender their nurses their diplomas. Some might think that a diploma from the Woodstock hospital was not of much value, but it was valuable, and it was the best wish of the doctors, the staff and the citizens generally.

After Rev. Dr. Kierstead gave a scripture reading and Rev. R. G. Fulton offered prayer, the following musical programme was rendered during the evening:—

Solo—Mrs. Rankin.
Quartet—Mrs. Geo. W. Gibson, Mrs. E. H. Hooke, Mrs. H. Lockwood, Mrs. Kirkpatrick.
