Hendershott and Welter Hanged at St. Thomas for the Murder of the Former's Nephew-Prisoners Make a Confession Which the Confidante Will Not Make Public-Welter's Wonderful Nerve on the Scaffold—Hendershott Died Praying—Buried in One Box in the Jail Yard.

WELTER'S STATEMENT CONSID-ERED.

Ottawa, June 17.—The statement of Welter's telegraphed from St. Thomas | yard, led to a rapid exchange of cipher telegrams between his Excellency, who is in Quebec, and Premier Bowell. Lord Aberdeen doubtless heard of the statement before signing the order in council sent down to him from Ottawa on Saturday, and which he would not receive before today. At a late hour this evening telegrams were still passing between Quebec and Ottawa, all at the instance of his Excellency, but finally the sanction of his Excellency was received. As the Cabinet decided not to interfere with the sentence, the action or inaction of the Governor-General could not affect the fate of the convicts who are to be hanged tomorrow. THEIR LAST NIGHT.

(Special to the "Advertiser.") St. Thomas, June 17.—The city of St. Thomas was invaded by newspaper men tonight, and it is a question whether all will be admitted to the execution in the morning. The rumor has gone forth that only a limited number will be admitted, and there is more or less speculation as to who the fortunate ones will be. Dr. Chamberlain, Toronto, inspector of prisons, arrived tonight. He went straight to the jail. The jail officials place no reliance whatever on the statement made by Welter, exonerating Hendershott, implicatingi a respectable aged farmer in the neighborhood of where the crime was committed. Today several enterprising newspaper men drove out to the place indicated, and although they made diligent inquiry, they utterly failed to find the slightest trace of suspicion against the man's name. He is over 70 years of age, and has a son in a

"The statement made by Welter has been greatly exaggerated by the press," said Governor Moore to the 'Advertiser" representative tonight. "There was just enough said to give it a foundation. None who were present placed any reliance upon it whatever; in fact, we gave it hardly a second thought. When he made the statement it was in a semi-coherent way, like a man in a position of trust in a London drygoods

A curious instance of the morbidness of St. Thomas people, and particularly the women, was witnessed tonight, when the jailer was obliged to order and drive away almost by force a couple of hundred women and girls, and a number of boys, who were crowding the lawn that encircled the jail on the side where the prisoners were confined. It was to catch a glimpse in the distance of one or the other of the condemned men as they came to the window to see the sun set for the last time in their lives that the curious crowd hung about. And still they lingered, even after the sun had gone down, and they could see no longer.

It is said that David Hendershott, brother of the condemned man of that name, and father of the murdered young man, will witness the execution. Tonight the men have completely broken down, and at times their cries and sobs can be heard outside the jail

It is asserted on good authority that a written confession has been made by the prisoners, and intrusted to Rev. D. Spencer, to make public after their exe-

The inspector of prisons since his arrival tonight granted an interview, which had previously been denied to Mary Lilly Hendershott, the daughter of the older prisoner, and the sweetheart of the younger man. The interview lasted over an hour, and was almost heartrending in the intensity of anguish that was displayed. A photograph of the young lady has been Welter's solace during his confinement. He has made the request that it be buried with him. The general impression is that Hendershott will have to be carried to the scaffold.

THE EXECUTION.

How the Condemned Men Spent the Night.

(Special from our own reporter.) St. Thomas, June 18.-With prayers, without a single protestation of innocence, Welter and Hendershott met death on the scaffold at 8:12 this morning. Death was instantaneous, though there were pulsations in the bodies for several minutes after the drop fell. The two prisoners passed a very fair night, considering the terrible load on their minds, waking or steeping. Towards morning they slept heavily. Their death watches say they snored just as hard as many in very different circumstances. They were up at 6 o'clock, and dressed in their best clothes, when Rev. D. Spencer, who has been their spir-Itual adviser all the way through, arrived at the jail. Shortly afterwards, Rev. Mr. McIntrye and Rev. Dr. Hannon also arrived, and the three remained with the men until the end came. It was a morning of expectation to newspaper men who had not the coveted invitations. They were there from Montreal on the east, Detroit on the west, from Buffalo and several other New York cities. Bright and early they hurried to the neat-looking grey stone court house at the head of Queen street and stood at the portals while the deputy sheriff heard their requests. It was finally decided to let them all in with the exception of those who had two representatives; in that case one had to suffice. At 7:30 the crowd, which numbered about 50, and including enough spectators to em-men's yard. Here they waited until 8 o'clock, when they were allowed into the still smaller inclousre of the women's yard. While waiting in the men's RADCLIFFE, THE HANGMAN, came in with a large black valise and a grandiloquent "good morning, gentlemen." He started to snake hands, and had grasped that of one scribe, when the others were almost without exception suddenly taken up with a view of a man away up on the jail cupola. No-body else took the proffered hand, and the hangman and the bag disappeared through the door leading to the fateful yard. It was the loveliest of June mornings-a morning with all nature smiling radiant, a light mist being over Kettle Creek in the pretty valley to the west of the jail, over which the condemned men saw the sun go down on their misspent lives. The birds were singing, the sun was shining, the air was balmy and the trees were dressed in their beautiful summer foliagea morning when the veriest hypochrondiac might wish to live. Meanwhile, the men in the jail yard united in saying that it was hot, and of putting souvenirs of the scaffold, in the shape of chips and blocks, into their pockets.

IN THE JAIL YARD. When the door did open, they crowded in with a rush. The first sight that met their eyes was a rude bench on two trusses. This was to hold the bodies during the post mortem. In the northeast corner of the yard the ghastly engine of death reared itself with its dangling ropes and levers. The platform was about seven feet from the ground and surrounded by a railing. In the center at the east and west sides two stout upright beams were in position, while another beam of a corresponding thickness passed between them and was braced. It was from this that two ominous-looking noosed ropes dangled and swayed in the slight breeze that was stirring. The bottom part of the scaffold was boarded up so that the contortions of the bodies would not be visible to those in the yard. The drop extended five feet into the ground and the steps leading up into the scaffold legan just where the steps leading down from the jail door left off. Thus procession had not fai to walk. While waiting for the final act in the painfully realistic tragedy, one man thought the time opportune to circulate a number of tracts on matters relating to the final judgment. A telephone lineman climbed a telegraph pole and threw his leg over a crossbar, while a number of bare heads began to bob up and down on the high jail wall. "Get down or you will find yourself inde!" said a burly constable, and the eads disappeared from sight. It was just 8:09 when the sound of footsteps were heard descending the stairway inside the jail door. The sound increased

THE PROCESSION OF DEATH drew nearer, and Sheriff Brown oppeared at the door. The men walked in ile, and following the sheriff came Dr. Chamberlain, inspector of prisons, Rev. D. Spencer, Rev. Dr. Hanon, Rev. Mr. McIntyre, Jailer Moore and Hangman Radcliffe. Deputy Sheriff Brown followed, and then came Welter walking unassisted. Turnkey Langdon came next, supporting the elder prisoner Hendershott. As the clergymen and other officials reached the platform they ranged themselves about. The faces of the prisoners as they walked up the steps were STUDIES OF INTENSE MISERY. Their eyes were sunken, and lines underneath told of the sufferings they had undergone. Both were a ghastly white color, and Welter's ashen countenance was rendered more conspicuous by his black mustache and jet black hair, and the elder man's hair and heavy drooping mustache of same color as his face. When the two men saw the ropes nanging in front of them, Welter quickly placed himself in position under the one nearest the wall. Hendershott started back when he caught sight of the rope and muttered, "Lord, have mercy upon me," and as he started back Radcliffe placed Welter, who got under the rope intended for Hendershott, directly in front of the latter, and then the older man was gently forced forward and to the left on to the trap door. He was still muttering in an audible voice the prayer, "Oh, Lord, have mercy upon me," and his hands were clasped before him, as if in the attitude of prayer. The arms of both men were pinioned at the elbows, but Welter's hands hung limp, nad so white that the blue veins could

THEY SAID "GOOD-BYE!" His eyes traveled over the men in the yard, and as he caught sight of Dr Edmunds, of St. Thomas, who was brought up on an adjoining farm, he said in a firm voice, though his speech was thick, "How are you, Doc? Good-bye." The doctor was moved to tears. Turning to Doctor Hannon, Welter shook hands with him, saying, "Good-bye; God knows my heart." He also shook hands with, and said "Good-bye," to Rev. Mr. Spencer and to the hangman. Then he said "Good-bye, everybody," closing his eyes and bending his head to receive the black cap that Radcliffe produced from a pocket in his Prince Albert coat. The legs of both had meanwhile been pinioned by the hangman, and as he put the cap over Welter's face and adjusted the noose with knot behind the left ear, the latter said, "Not too tight-too tight." Radcliffe immediately eased. tention to Hendershott, whose body plied for admission.
was swaying from the knees upward in A REMIN an ominous manner. He said "Goodbye" to those around him, but never once released the clasp of his hands, or discontinued entirely his prayer. As the black cap was drawn over his eyes and the noose was adjusted, the clear, ringing tones of Mr. Spencer were heard uttering the Lord's Prayer, and as the words were spoken fast Rad- came in contact with him. cliffe had just time to take a cursory glance over his work when the minister arrived at the words, "Deliver us from evil," the hangman's hand was changed his Prince Albert for a sack on the lever of death, and the last of coat the prayer was drowned in the crash sound as the bodies reached the end of the drop. Radcliffe had pulled the lever, and John Hendershott and William David Welter had dropped out of sight and into eternity. Both men Welter was pinioned immediately after, as they felt the floor giving way be-neath them drew themselves up at the knees and elbows. Welter's rope re-mained stationary, but Hendershott's swayed backwards and forwards until it was steadied by Radcliffe.

DEATH INSTANTANEOUS. Then Mr. Spencer leaned over the rail, and said that he wished to see all the press representatives in the corridor as soon as was convenient. By this time there was a distinct murmur outside, and the cause became apparent, as a large black flag was hauled halfway up the court house flagstaff and suspended there. It told the waiting crowd that the condemned men had paid the extreme penalty of the law. Dr. Vanbuskirk, Dr. Luton, Dr. Harris, Dr. Chamberlain and Dr. Smith went into the room under the gallows and examined the bodies. They agreed that death was instantaneous, the necks of both men being broken. However, their hearts did not cease beating for seven minutes.

ABOUT CONFESSIONS.

The small party of newspaper men crowded upstairs to where Rev. Mr. Spencer and Rev. Mr. McIntyre were in waiting. "Well, gentlemen," said Mr. Spencer, "I think it is my duty to say to you that the confession made by Welter respecting a West Elgin farmer is not true in any particular whatever, and that it was made in my opinion in a paroxysm of grief and despair and disappointment, and I think, also, temporary insanity, with the hope that the neck of one, if not both, might be saved. The particulars of that statement have not been made public. The items that did appear are but few, and it is not about that. The prisoner Welter has assured me that the story was false. "With regard to anything else they have said to me I can say nothing beyond this, that I believe they have confessed themselves to God and made their peace with him. I have great hopes that at the eleventh hour they had found a true and better way. I am not at liberty to say anything more, but think that the country should have the contradiction in respect to the story told to several. With reference to their spirits and composure, they appeared to have had a fair night, and ate some WELTER'S SWEETHEART. "I want to say also that Mary Lilly Hendershott is not deserving of and aspersions with respect to the matter for which these men were hanged. Her statement at the trial was true, and her conduct above reproach. The prisoners both assured me that she told all she knew and spoke the truth. Wm. Welter was desperately fond of her and she of him, and there was no bad feeling of any kind between the two prisoners. They had always been friends, and died in that spirit. Both of them were very grateful to Gov. Moore, Edward Langan and son, and Mr. Dennear for their kindness and attention They said "Good-bye" to these men weeping their thanks and expressing themselves most grateful to them, and also to myself, Rev. Dr. McIntyre and Rev. Dr. Hannon. I think they made the impression on our minds-certainly on mine-that they died at peace with Mr. Spencer paused at thi juncture, and a whispered conversation occurred between Rev. McIntyre and THEY "MADE THEIR CONFESSION."

Finally, after some consideration, Mr. Spencer dictated the following paragraph, which is held by newspaper mer to be the most important of all the declarations. It was: "They made their confession to me sincerely and honestly the particulars of which I give to no

An "Advertiser" reporter afterwards asked Mr. Spencer if it was so that the men had left a sealed confession. hope you will not press the question,' was the reply given.

AFTER THE EXECUTION. When the newspaper delegation filed out again into the jail yard the two bodies were lying on the rough bench, their white faces turned towards the They had been cut down and lifted out of the pit by the turnkeys. The skin on the necks of both men was slightly abrased, where the ropes had chafed. Welter was dressed in black cloth trousers with a stripe, and wore a sack coat and vest of navy blue material. He had on a white shirt and celluloid collar, and wore a white necktie, dotted with red. Hendershott also work dark, striped trousers, but his coat and vest were black, as was his tie. Both men had on slippers

A jury was polled, with Dr. Linton acting as coroner. W. H. Murch was elected foreman. The names of the jury are as follows: W. H. Murch (foreman), Edward Holden, John Campbell, Thos. Johnston, Wm. Elliott, Chas. Edmunds, R. H. McConnell, Aquilla Pierce, Reuben Harris, Wm. Oill, Wm. Cochrane, Stephen Haight and John Cambridge Clerk Fairbrother asked in the name of the Queen if any evidence could be given as to the death of Welter and Hendershott. The coroner asked the jury if they wished to look at the bodies. None acquiesced, as the majority had wandered over while the polling was in progress and looked at the bodies. N. W. Moore, governor of the jail, Ald. McCully and Lachlan Campbell, high constable, gave the usual evidence.

During the examination those spectators who had remained wandered around the bodies and gazed at the resigned features of both. Radcliffe stepped to the table and undid both collars, taking the collar buttons and handing them to a jail official. He also examined all the pockets and felt the bodies. Shortly after, an attendant brought out a sheet and covered the remains. The table was close to the scaffold. One by one the spectators left. Rev. Messrs. Spencer and McIntyre leaving together. The jury rendered the customary verdict and were dismissed, and the bodies were afterwards buried together in a rough box in the male inclosure of the jail yard. It was impossible, according to law, to allow the relatives to claim the bodies. None the pressure, and then turned his at- of the latter were at the hanging or ap-

> A REMINISCENCE. Mackinaw Island, June 18.—William Welter who was hanged at St. Thomas this morning, was a resident of this place three or four years ago. He was prominent in social and church circles, a worker in the Sunday school, and a singer in the choir. He was a general favorite with those who Welter was pinioned immediately after, and a pause was made to give the men a chance to recover their composure. Welter's drop was 2 feet 8 inches, Hendershott's 3 feet.

There is the best of grounds for the asser-tion that the prisoners confessed. Both St. Thomas papers head their bulletins "Welter and Hendershott confess."

Sheriff Brown is justly entitled to praise for the order, decorous and solemn manner in which the awful sentence was carried out. Hendershott was 44 and Welter 25 years of age.

The procession entered the yard at 8:09, the drop fell at 8:12, and the men were pronounced dead at 8:17. The bodies were allowed to hang for 35 minutes. Hendershott's father and mother, who belong to Walsingham Center, were in St. Thomas at the time of the hanging.

The morning "Advertiser" was the only paper to publish before the execution the fact that the prisoners had made a confession to the Rev. D. Spencer.

Walter Wardell, who was at the eleventh hour most unfairly accused by Welter of committing the murder, is one of the most respectable farmers in Elgin. It was in the woods owned by him and leased by Hendershott that the crime was committed. Mr. Wardell was one of the most important witnesses at the trial against the accused. It was undoubtedly in order to get even with Wardell that Welter concocted the yarn he told County Crown Attorney Donahue and Rev. Mr. Spencer, his spiritual adviser.

STORY OF THE CRIME. On Friday afternoon, Dec. 14, word was brought to St. Thomas that Wm. Henry Hendershott, a young man, 23 years of age, son of David Hendershott, Walsingham Center, who was living with his uncle, John Hendershott, at Middlemarch, had been killed in Wardell's woods by a tree falling upon him. His only companion in the woods was said to be Wm. David Welter, and his story about the tree having fallen on Hendershott while the latter was running to save his watch is still fresh in the minds of all who have followed this remarkable case. Charles E. Welter, Middlemarch, and uncle of the dead man, was informed of the occurrence at the Court House, St. Thomas, where he was attending the sessions. From the story told to him, Dr. Gustin, the coroner, having no reason to suspect foul play, gave permission to remove the body. Suspicions of foul play were aroused by the finding of blood spots by Messrs. E. Wardell, R. Stevenson, R. Curtis, R. Sanders, E. Pierce and George Craig, when they went to the woods, some of them for the purpose of removing the body. Patches of blood were noticed on leaves and stumps in different places.

THE MATTER OF INSURANCE. Next day it was noised abroad that the dead man was insured for $11.000 in two policies, one for $6,000 and one for $5,000, and both payable to the uncle John Hendershott. The fallen tree gave no evidence of having inflicted the eleven horrible, sharp cuts on Hendershott's head, and various suspicious circumstances so aroused public opinion that Coroner Gustin deemed it advisable to hold an inquest on Monday. The post mortem strengthened the suspicions of foul play already in existence The story of Welter, who, by the way, was keeping company with John Hendershott's daughter, appeared to add strength to the web that was weaving around the two men. It came out that he was very intimate with Hendershott, and had slept with him for several months. Hendershott left for Eden on the day of the affair, and it was the fact that there he told exactly the same story about the tragedy as did Welter that told most heavily against him. He remarked when told of Hendershott's death, that the tree must have fallen on him when he was running to get his watch. This was the strongest point against him at the trial, and, coupled with the insurance of the victim, seemed to point to murder most horrible and deliberate. It also transpired that Hendershott had tried to place a policy on the life of a drinking character called "Pat the Driver," or Patrick Fitzgerald. The jury found them guilty, and Chief Justice Meredith passed his maiden death sentence.

OTHER ELGIN CRIMES. The double hanging this morning was the first hanging in Elgin county. first murder in the memory of Jailer Moore was that of a Dutchman, by a man named Wright, in Southwold in 1858. He was sentenced to death, but the sentence was commuted to imprisonment for life. Over a quarter of a century went by before Elgin's court blotter again held the dread charge of murder. Then, in 1885, there were four prisoners in Elgin county jail at the same time on the charge of murder. A Bayham man named Stillwell was shot, and two boys named Forbes and Thomas were arrested for the crime, and Stillwell's wife was arrested as an accessory. Thomas was made a Crown witness against the other two, but all were acquitted. On the third trial, the Crown gave up the case for lack of evidence, and they went free. A couple of years ago a young farmer named Young had a dispute with a neighbor named Glover over a turkey, and in a rage shot him. He got off with a light sentence by pleading guilty to manslaughter. Today's execution was the first double execution in Western On-

In 1887 a Malahide man named Pigott was missing. His weighted body was subsequently found in Lake Erie, near Long Point. Havelock Smith, Malahide, was charged with the crime, and twice the jury disagreed. At the same time a St. Thomas man named Mitchell got ten years for shooting a man named

PRISONERS AT LARGE.

Chief Scirvin of Woodstock police is in the city looking after two prisoners who broke jail there yesterday. The men are John McNeill and John Henderson (colored) who were found guilty last week of robbing Christopher's liquor store at Ingersoll. The former was sentenced to three years in the Penitentiary and the latter to eighteen months in the Central Prison. They escaped during the temporary absence of the turnkey by way of the kitchen and then scaled the walls by means of some planks. At the time of going to press Chief Scirvin has not captured them.

PRESBY ? ER!AN ASSEMBLY. In reference to the appeal of Mr. James Munroe, of London, it is understood the report of the judicial committee is that the appeal be dismissed, but the matter is referred back for final action to the St. Andrew's Church with the recommendation that they favorably consider his application

London, June 14. ANS.-A young man able to make calls is undoubtedly able-bodied enough to remove his overcoat and to don it, without help. He is also probably intelligent enough to do so. It is not customary for a young woman to speed the parting guests to the very threshold. She receives the adieux of her callers in the "parlor." and does not accompany them to the front door. Why do you use the expression "gentleman friend"? Am I to infer that some of your friends of the opposite sex are not gentlemen? Pardon this harangue, but I sincerely wish I could do something to limit an everlasting and indiscriminate use of the words "lady" and "gentleman."

The dread of being thought queer is a most powerful motive for some minds. The fear of the comments or thoughts of others governs, or at least restrains, such people all their lives. They marry and bring up their children, bury their relatives, and conduct themselves in each and every crisis exactly as they suppose these people expect them to do.

A woman of this sort said to a friend: "Mrs. L— is the queerest woman I ever saw. Why, if you tell her anything about yourself or your own affairs, and ask her opinion, she tells you just what she thinks!"

DUAL METHODIST PASTORATE. Ottawa, June 17.-An arrangement has been effected by which the Dominion Methodist Church will secure Rev. Mr. Sparling as joint pastor with Rev. Dr. Saunders. It will be remembered that the stationing committee at the recent meeting of the Montreal Conference would not give the church the minister they had asked for, Rev. Mr. Sparling, but assigned Dr. Saunders to the Dominion pulpit. By arrangement with the chairman of the Ottawa district, the church is to have a dual pastorate, which, while taxing the congregation a little more than would have been the case with one minister, yet will tend to remove any discontent that may have arisen.

INNOCENT MEN PUNISHED. Innocent men have been hanged. Men have been sent to jail for crimes which they never committed. Innocent men have been almost at the foot of the scaffold, convicted on circumstantial evidence, when the real culprit has been discovered, and they have been set free,

But the other day two brothers named Habron were convicted at Manchester, England, of murdering a policeman, and condemned to death. Doubts of their guilt having arisen, they were reprieved. Before the expiration of their reprieve, another man was arrested for the crime and confessed that he committed it. As a result, the Habrons have been released, and in compensation for the blunder by the law courts. they have each received $5,000 from the British treasury.

Ten months ago William Ackerson, a New York fish dealer, swore positively to the identity of two young men-Patrick Shannon and John Henry-as being robbers of his establishment. They swore as positively that they were in Philadelphia at the time of the burglary, but as they had no direct means of proving an alibi, they were sent to the penitentiary for a year. As their term was nearing completion, there came the information that two other men, who had been arrested on suspicion because of remarks which they had made, had confessed the crime, and had been as "positively identified" by Mr. Ackerson, whose act, in view of their confession, was in this case useless. His taken identity," but it is probable that an action for damages for false arrest will be taken against both him and the State. A similar case is that of the man who was convicted in Brooklyn of a burglary which he did not commit, who served two years in Sing Sing, and who is now suing the State for damages. No monetary solatium can fully atone to sensitive men for treatment such as is here set forth. Yet we suppose that until courts become infallible, these failures of justice are liable to occur in any country.

It may be asked why, in view of these illustrations of how innocent men have been made to suffer, no heed was paid by the authorities to the eleventh hour statement of young Welter, the associate of Hendershott in the Elgin county murder. Welter explained to his spiritual adviser that neither he nor Hendershott committed the deed; he blamed a third party. But Welter waited till almost his last minute before he made this statement-he waited until all hope of a commutation of sentence was passed-and he then supplied this explanation. The authorities, therefore, refused to place any reliance upon It If it were well founded, they argue, Welter would not have waited until now to make it. In this respect, the "confession" cannot be ranked in the same category of defensive evidence as a sworn statement made by a prisoner at the time of his trial.

TECUMSEH.

Mr. Casey has done well in these times of monument building to call the attention of Parliament to the neglect of raising a memorial stone to that brave warrior and ally, Tecumseh, who laid down his life in the defense of Canada at Moraviantown more than 80 years ago. But Mr. Casey represents a gerrymandered constituency, and he has not yet learned the geography of it. It is true that Moraviantown is in West Elgin for Dominion election purposes, but the batle in which Tecumseh fell was not fought in that town, nor yet in the township which contains it. Orford is on the south side of the Thames, and it is one of the banner Liberal townships of the Province. But the battle was fought on the north side of the river, in the constituency of Hon. David Mills. The old Watts farm, on the Longwoods road, is supposed to occupy the site of it; and the field of black loam by the roadside is believed to have been the black-ash swamp from which Tecumseh and his warriors made their attack upon the flank of the enemy. Higher up the river the traveler on the Longwoods road will notice many small pits by the way, where it is said men still continue to search for buried treasure, left behind by the fleeing Proctor.

ON TRIAL ALL ALONG THE LINE. The system of appointing pastors of congregations is on trial in most of the denominations. In the Anglican Synod of Toronto, a lay delegate last week proposed that in future appointments to rectories, parishes and missions lanse at the end of five years. We are told that this proposition, looking to the establishment of an itineracy led to an animated discussion, and that finally an amendment was adopted appointing a committee to consider the legal rights of the clergy and the transference of the clergy, to report next year. This incident reminds us of the statement made by a leading Presbyterian clergyman some time ago, when discussing the vacant congregation and unsettled preacher question, so far as it affected his Church. He said that an itineracy would make little change for many congregations, inasmuch as a very large number of them change pastors once every few years anyway. But as supporters of the itineracy have their grave difficulties. The problem is yet

On general principles he viewed the movement It should set many people seriously to be in the right direction. He quoted other opinions to show that the liquor traffic had done more to retard progdiscontent than any other single evil. As to the alleged difficulty of raising a revenue and the question of compensation, Mr. Flint quoted from Sir A. T. Galts financial statement and from speeches by Sir L. Tilley and Hon. G. E. The object of the resolution was to ascerin favor of prohibition, and for this purpose it was a fair resolution. The temperance people did not expect if the resolution was adopted that a bill should be introduced this session. The new law might be made to take effect in one, two, three or four years, in order to enable the country to settle down to the new order of things. Mr. Craig proceeded to deal with the various objections urged against a prohibitory law, which he enumerated and replied to as he went along. The objections dealt with included that the time was not ripe, that enforcement was impossible, that the Scott Act was not enforced, and the loss of revenue. He then turned to the undoubted benefits which would flow from a prohibitory liquor law. There would be a saving of the $35,000,000 now spent annually in intoxicating liquors. It would decrease crime. 60 per cent of which was said to be due to this traffic. It would decrease the number of accidents and minimize the number of paupers. It would protect women and boys and weak men. The open saloon was a continual temptation. It would give a welcome response to the thousands of women in Canada who had appealed to Parliament for this legislation. Liquor was the greatest enemy to religion and morality. They wanted their boys to grow up without forming this habit. He did not blame any one for fanaticism on this subject, for it was a question of great moment. He hoped to see the day when a prohibitory law would be passed by both parties in politics, and then it would be enforced.

> Mr. Christie, of Argenteuil, made an earnest appeal for the passage of this resolution. He believed the time had come for it. The excuse of late years for delay-the Royal Commission-did not now exist, and in his opinion the happiness and well-being of the Dominion required legislation of this char-

Sir James Grant, M.D., dwelt on the deleterous effect of alcoholic beverages on the system, and said the public were coming more and more to this view. He would continue to show them the evil effects of alcohol. He opposed coercive legislation. Education would accomplish more than legislation. They should make it unpopular to drink. At the present time he was not prepared to vote for prohibition.

Mr. Guillet admitted the evils of the traffic, but doubted their ability to en-force such a law. He believed that the Provincial legislatures should have the power of passing such a law, and they would then be in a position to enforce it He would defer consideration of this matter until they had passed judgment of the Imperial Privy Council on the jurisdiction of the Provincial legislatures, and he moved an amendment to that affect. No one would second it for some moments, and finally Mr. Belley (Conservative) seconded it.

.... Mr. George Taylor said they had spent a good deal of money on the Royal Commission, whose report he, for one, had not seen, and he would therefore move "That this House, while reaffirming the position taken in 1884 and 1887 upon the question of prohibition, is of opinion that it is inadvisable at the present time, until the results of the commission which had recently report-

IMPORTANT ANNOUNCEMENT.

The most important announcement of the session has been made privately to the Opposition by Mr. Foster, to the effect that nothing further would be brought down this session. In other words, the Government do not intend to propose any remedial school legislation and do not intend to ratify their own order-in-council engaging to loan $2,-500,000 to the Hudson Bay Railway. This announcement ought to mean prorogation by July 10.

NOTES. Mr. Mulock will inquire of the Government on Wednesday whether the officer commanding the militia in Canada was consulted in regard to the appointment of Mr. Sutton to the Royal Canadian dragoons. If so, did such officer recommend Mr. Sutton for such ap-pointment or express any opinion either in favor of or against Mr. Sutton being appointed. If so, what is the nature of such opinion?

Mr. Gillies, of Richmond, will inquire on Wednesday, "Have the commissioners of the joint conventions of the Governments of Canada and the United States completed their investigation into the subjects submitted to them to report upon? If so, does their report suggest that an arrangement be entered into between both Governments preventing purse seining, seining and trawing beyond the three-mile limit upon the Atlantic coast. Aerial Truck and Road Roller Decided Upon.

Date Set for the South London Aldermanic Election.

Neminations June 26, Polling July 3-A Lownright Falsehood Nailed.

The City Council had a three-hour session last night, when it was decided to purchase a Preston aerial truck and a Harrisburg road roller, and the date and polling places for the aldermanic elections in South London were named. The purchase of the two machines, however, were not finally pushed through without a lengthy tussle. No. 2 committee gained its previous desire put in. on the road roller question by a vote of 10 to 7. At the last meeting of the council the committee recommended a Harrisburg roller, but the council threw the matter overboard, some of the aldermen suspecting that the company had acted unfairly. New tenders were called for, and prior to last night's session the Board of Works met and Graydon if he had received any word accepted a fresh tender from the same firm for $3,200, or $3,000 and Jumbo. This was considerably lower than their force the purchase of a chemical engine this year. As to a combination chemical and hose wagon, Ald. Powell stated that it was impracticable to greatly increase the weight on the hose truck at the central station. The committee also submitted its report on the aerial truck, recommending the purchase of a Preston, manufactured by the Waterous Company, of Brantford.

Chief Roe claimed that the Hayes truck was the most suitable for Lon-Protests were received from Messrs. John M. Parsons, city, and John D. Ronald, Brussels, against the choice of the committee. They had not been given a fair chance. Tenders were called for a 75-foot truck, but the committee had turned around and called for tenders for a 60-foot truck without notifying them of the change.

Ald. Jones complimented No. 3 or the thorough way in which they went into the matter, but it seemed to him that it would have been better had the best truck on the market, and he

Ald. Powell explained what he considered were the advantages of the Preston. Among others, it cost $565 less than the Hayes. 'Ald. O'Meara took up the case of Messrs. Parsons and Ronald.

Mr. Parsons was heard. He stated that his 60-foot truck was as good as the next, and very much lower in price. After Chief Roe had stated his reasons for preferring the Hayes truck and some talk about referring the whole question back, a motion by Ald. Gar-ratt to read the tenders and take the vote was carried. The Pretson was $2,935; Hayes, $3,500; Babcock, $3,967 50 On the Hayes truck the price at the factory was $2,900, but duty amounted to $1.015 and freight to $52. Ald. Armstrong moved that the repurchased. Carried, ten aldermen voting yea. The balance of the report dealt with the street watering question. One hundred feet of new hose will be secured. THE ROAD ROLLER. Ald. Wm. Heaman presented the report of No. 2 committee, one clause of which recommended the acceptance of a tender from Frank Johnston to supply a Harrisburg road roller for $3,-200, and to take Jumbo in part payment and deduct $200. The Pitt roller was $3,000. Ald. Garratt moved the acceptance of the Pitt as the only bona fide tender

Ald. Jones defended his course at the last council meeting in wanting new tenders. He thought it very strange that the Harrisburg roller should be worth $3,900 two weeks ago, and only worth $3,200 now. It looked as if the company had been trying to extort money from the city.

Ald. Parnell, as a question was about to be put by the chair, asked Engineer regarding a supposed competition at West Point between the Harrisburg, Pitt, and Aveling & Porter rollers. Engineer Graydon said the Pitt agent had represented to him that such a competition was held and his roller had

Ald. Parnell, however, produced a telegram from a civil engineer at West Point to the effect that such a statement was a deliberate falsehood. The vote was then taken, and an amendment by Ald. Armstrong to pur-

the amendment. "I will vote against the Pitt Company now that I have heard the telegram,' said Ald. J. W. Jones, as he made the tenth alderman to vote in favor of the Harrisburg offer.

wheat ought to be a purchase. Corn and oats have been comparatively firm. East of the Missouri River, where the crop will be short, the sharp advance in hay, which is selling at $16 to $20 per ton in parts of Ohio, Indiana and Illinois, will naturally affect oats, which will advance if the drought is not broken very soon.

Provision still maintain their strength. There is very little speculation in them, but they are evidently en strong hands and will probably work higher later in the season.

Was the Death of Mr. George McNab.

Thrown From His Horse and Received a Fractured Skull.

Struck a Tree and Expired Instantly-A Leading Lendon Lawver and Highly Respected.

Sad and sudden indeed was the death which befell Mr. George McNab, barrister, at an early hour this morning.

About 6 o'clock, or a little earlier, Mr. McNab arose, and as he was an ardent horseman, decided to go for a ride. He saddled his favorite horse, and leaving his residence at the corner of Central avenue and Wellington street, proceeded south on the latter thoroughfare to Mr. R. C. Struthers' residence, immediately opposite Victoria Park. Mr. Struthers was awaiting the arrival of Dr. Abbott, and Mr. McNab, to save time, rode to Dr. Abbott's. while Mr. Struthers got his horse ready. In a few minutes he returned alone, and the two gentlemen decided to go. To the southerly and easterly limits of the city the roads are soft, and horseback riding on them is extremely pleasant. So by way of several streets Messrs. McNab and Struthers proceeded to the Hamilton road and then eastward. When they reached the sideroad running north, and which the old race course faces on the east, the riders turned north, and took a path on the west side. Mr. Struthers was in the lead, and as he proceeded he chatted and laughed with Mr. McNab. The latter was in the very best of spirits and was heartily enjoying his ride. About three-quarters of the way between the Hamilton and Governor's roads a large tree stood about six feet from the fence, and between it and the fence Mr. Struthers rode safely. He had hardly done so, however, before he heard a dull noise, and turning around saw Mr. McNab stretched on the ground. He had been thrown from his horse. Mr. Struthers was greatly startled, and sprang to assist Mr. McNab. Calling to some men near by, Mr. Struthers ordered one to summon a doctor as soon as possible, and while this was being done, everything possible was accomplished for Mr. McNab. He breathed heavily for a few minutes, and then expired without regaining consciousness. Dr. Gardiner was on the scene in a very short time, and found that Mr. McNab had been thrown heavily against the tree, and received a severe fracture at the base of the skull and behind the right ear, sufficient in itself to cause immediate unconsciousness and to prove fatal in a few minutes. The only other injuries received were scratches on the right arm from the elbow to the wrist, indicating that Mr. McNab, when his horse lunged or shied, had put up his arm to save his striking the tree, but the force of the throw was too much.

The news reached the city in a very few nutes, and spread like wildfire. It was bulletined by the "Advertiser" and soon was one of the chief topics of conversation. None, however, were more effected than Mr. Struthers himself. "I tell you," he stated to an "Advertiser" reporter, "it was a great shock to me. We were just enjoying our ride immensely, and when I turned and saw his body stretched on the ground, I could hardly realize that Georgegood rider as he was-could have been thrown. But it proved only too true. When I reached him I put my arm under his head and tried to get him to speak. It was of no avail." But while the death of Mr. McNab was passing from mouth to mouth on the street it was unknown in the happy home, where two hours or so before he had left his wife and children. Who would break the terrible news to Mrs. McNab? That was a question which some close friends considered for a time, until it was finally decided to leave the task with Dr. Moorehouse. It was an exceedingly delicate one, and after its performance the scene at the home was a heartrending one. Mrs. Mc-Nab was wholly unaware of the sad end of her husband, and when the news was imparted she suffered great mental prestration.

SUCCESSFUL CAREER. The career of the late Mr. McNab was both a busy and a successful one. He was born in township of London, of well-to-do parents, and after remaining on the farm until a young man he came to the city. His great desire was to study law and he accordingly entered the office of Harris, Magee & Campbell. He studied with the firm for a number of years, and after passing his examination had his name placed as a partner. A few years later the deceased joined the firm of MacMahon & Gibbons, comprised of Judge MacMahon and Geo. C. Gibbons, but dissolution followed in 1885 by the withdrawal of the senior member. Gibbons, McNab & Mulkern was next formed, and this has been one of the leading firms in the Western Peninsula. The loss of Mr. McNab will be severe on them. Mr. McNab married Miss McMartin, of London township, and a sister of Mr. John McMartin, of the City Hotel. By the union are four children two sons and two daughters. His health during the last few years has not been very good, and he spent last summer in the old country, returning much benefited. Mr. Gibbons went to Galt this morning and steps were taken to notify him of the accident by wire.

AN UNFOUNDED REPORT. The first report that reached the civic authorities was sent from the East London fire station. By some means, the person communicating it, caught the wrong name, and it was telephoned, "Lawyer McCann killed; send ambulance." The police were communicated with, and an "Advertiser" reporter had the statement bulletined. Judge of his surprise when a few minutes later, Mr. B. C. McCann, barrister, walked down the street and began reading the announcement of his own death. Then it was fully confirmed that it was Mr. McNab who had been killed.

Dr. John Murray, the Great Scien tist, Formerly of this City.

Has His Merits Further Recognized at Cambridge University.

Sketch of His Remarkable Work in Con nection With the Challenger Expedition.

A few days ago the "Advertiser" announced that Mr. Robert Reid, collector of customs and chairman of the London Free Library Board, had received for presentation to the new library the entire record of the famous Challenger expedition, embracing many handsome volumes. The books are the gift of Dr. John Murray, whose work in connection with that research is now known and recognized by scientists the world over. Dr. Murray was at one time assistant to Mr. Reid in the book business in this city, and he has ever since been a warm friend of the chairman of the Free Library Board. The Cambridge Review, devoted to the interests of the noted university, thus refers to the most recent honors conferred upon Dr. Murray, and to his great services to his country: At the Congregation to be held at 12:30 today, Dr. John Murray, one of the naturalists of the famous "Challenger" expedition, will be presented by the public orator for the honorary degree of doctor in science. Dr. Murray, who is a native of Canada, was educated at the University of Edinburgh. The "Challenger," it may be remembered, set sail in December, 1872, and during the following year made four voyages across the Atlantic, the distance traversed being nearly 20,000 miles. In 1874 she penetrated to the Antarctic regions. and afterwards, passing through the seas of Australia and New Zealand and the Malay Archipelago, reached Hong Kong after a course of nearly 17,000 miles. The year 1875 was devoted to the examination of the Pacific Ocean, in making which upwards of 20,000 miles were traversed. On her homeward route the Atlantic was crossed for the fifth time. Altogether her cruise extended to about 68,000 miles. After an absence of nearly three years and a half she reached England on May 27, 1876: and on the 27th of the following month Prof. Charles Wyville Thomson (who was at the head of the scientific department of the expedition) received the honor of knighthood. Dr. Murray was associated with Sir Wyville Thomson in editing the results of the expedition, and, owing to his chief's long illness, which ended in his death in 1882, the work devolved almost entirely on Dr. Murray. The results are embodied in 50 large quarto volumes, including 82 different memoirs by 76 leading scientific specialists, English and foreign, and forming no less than 29,500 pages, with 3,000 illustrations. The narrative of the voyage (in two additional volumes) was partly, and the summary (in two more) entirely written by him. He was also joint author of the Report on Deep Sea Deposit, and is the foremost living authority on the subject of the ocean floor. The spirit in which he has gone through his arduous labors may be inferred from the following extract from the "Editorial Notes," in the first part of his sum-mary: "During the past 23 years my time has been wholly taken up with work of the expedition, and in the study of those subjects which the expedition was organized to investigate. It has been my earnest endeavor to complete the publication (of the results) in a manner worthy of the naval position and scientific reputation of this great empire. Notwithstanding the troubles, personal sacrifices and regrets necessarily connected with the work, it has been a pleasure and an honor to have taken part in explorations which mark the greatest advance in the knowledge of our planet since the celebrated geo-graphical discoveries of the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries." Dr. Murray has also carried out a large number of bathymetric observations in the lochs of Scotland, and has taken an active part in the establishmen of the Ben Nevis Observatory and the Granton Marine Biological Station. His important and long-continued services to science have already been partially recognized by his receiving the honorary degree of LL.D. from his own university and that of "doctor of philosophy" from Jena, as well as the Culver medal from France, the Humboldt medal from Prussia, and the medal of the Royal Geographical Society.

CUTE Inflammatory Rheumatism is pro-A duced by an excess of uric acid in the blood. Paralysis is nearly a dead circulation produced by impure and impoverished blood. So-called neuralgia of the thigh is sciatic rheumatism: scrofulitie rheumatism is hereditary; syphilitic results from syphilis; gout is caused by high living; sluggish circulation affects

"THE KIND THAT CURES"

Thus the whole line of rheumatic diseases owe their being to an affected circulation of impure blood. No person can suffer a rheumatic pain that has a free and equal circulation of pure blood, and this accounts for Scott's Sarsaparilla curing the supposed incurable cases. It eradicates all rheumatic poisons and acids from the blood and equalizes the circulation.

"I can only repeat her words,' re plied the poor mother. 'The very last time I saw her (it was the day before yesterday evening), she looked so fevtrish and acted so unlike herself that girl. I ventured to ask her if she were sure she would not fall sick before her wedlaugh I hear ringing yet, "I have no idea of falling ill, and I shall certainly not do so until after I have married the doctor."

Dr. Cameron's mouth took a grim "There is to be no wedding, then, I see." Then as the other did not answer, he broke out into a harsh laugh and turned towards the window. "I will send and countermand the order for my carriage," he now dryly re-

"If you say I will require it." "I have already said so."
"Wait," cried the other, stepping to-

"A fine ride on my wedding day." "A necessary one." 'And whom am I expected to see "A young woman who has registered herself as Mildred Farley, but who I thinks looks precisely like the orig-

'No; if I did I should not need you. I should take Mrs. Gretoreux with me 'And why don't you do so as it is?"

"For two reasons. First she is a woman and I wish to save her all the suffering I can; secondly, she is a married person, and her appearance in a crowdhotel on the day of her daughter's anticipated marriage might awaken comment. "And mine?"

"You are a doctor; you can go everywhere, at any time, without causing the least scandal."

"And the young lady? Have you thought how very agreeable to her my presence will probably be, if she is, as you surmise, the woman I am expected to marry in four hours?"
"I have thought of everything. The young lady shall not see you. You shall only see her."

"And if I find her the stranger her name implies?" house as fast as you can, confident that your bride will be there to welcome you."

Dr. Cameron no longer hesitated. The carriage was ordered. While they were waiting for it, the doctor asked for the remainder of the story he had before declined to hear. "I can listen, ing and stinging; mostly at night; worse now." he said; "I aiready know the

With an enigmatical bend of the brows the detective continued.
"Mrs. Gretoreux has an unlimited confidence in the police. When she told me that her daughter was missing, that she had gone out of the house without baggage, and showed me the latter she had received, she evidently thought she had given me all the information necessary. But I thought differently. Having but three days in which to accompilsh this task, it was necessary that no time should be lost in pursuing false celws, so after asking for Miss A.'s-Miss Gretoreux's photograph, I put a few further questions, and finding that she could really give me no added information, I followed out my usual course in these matters and asked leave to interrogate the ser-

"'But.' she exclaimed 'they have no notion but that she has gone away with our full knowledge and consent. It would ruin everything to take them into our confidence; girls of that class can never keep a secret.'

"'I thought the lady looked peculiar. Well,' said she, 'the only one who could give you any information has lately left the house. My daughter took a dislike to her and begged that she should be dismissed. Not liking to cross Miss Gretoreux in her present condition, I complied, though I knew nothing against the girl and liked her work new things, I suppose." "I asked for the girl's address. That word prying gave me hope; it was the open sesame perhaps to the mystery before us. The mother gave it without hesitation, but also without any enthusiasm. That a servant should have picked up any information in regard to have proved to be present the servant should have picked up any information in regard to be proved to be present to b gard to her proud daughter of which she herself was ignorant, seemed absolutely incredibly to her. But I know my business," asserted Mr. Gryce, "and after taking such measures as are usual with the police when a person like Miss Gretoreux is missing, I went to see this

"I will not try your patience by re-lating the interview. It was like a ding day. She said with an unnatural thousand others I have had and ended very much as I expected it would. She talked, but was not conscious she talked. She told me all she knew about Miss Gretoreux and considerable that she did not. There was evidently reason for her mistress calling her prying, for she had a great deal to say about a girl who used to come there with sewing; trash which I was obliged to listen to in order to get at the one thing I wanted, which was that she had once surprised the young lady writing a letter she evidently did not wish to be seen, for she blushed with anger at the intrusion, calling the girl names, and threatening her with the dismissal she afterwards received."

"And this letter?" asked Dr. Cameron, in a voice he strove in vain to

"Was but begun. The girl only saw the line, 'My Beloved D-,' a very proper beginning if she were writing to her future husband."

"Very," returned the doctor. But the suppressed sarcasm in his voice told the detective all he wanted to know. "But it looked as if it were not to her future husband," continued that worthy gravely. "And finding that she had no intimate friend whose name began with D-, I began to feel assured that my original surmise was true and that there was a third party in the case to whose influence Miss Gretoreux's disappearance was due. I therefore added to the precautions aiready taken, such others as my own judgment suggested; causing a description of her person and clothing to be sent to many quarters usually omitted by the authorities, Besides this, I had her various haunts searched and her friends examined. A detective was even sent to this office, sir, and conversed with you a halfhour day before yesterday without your suspecting his errand. But this was of Boston no avail till this morning. This morning word was brought to me that a person answering the description I had sent out had taken dinner at a certain restaurant and afterwards gone to the C-hotel, where she was to be found in room 153. In half an hour I was there and in five minutes more I had seen her."
"And was—was she—" stammered the doctor.

BUFALO VS. TORONTO.
Buffalo, N. Y., June 17.—With two out in the first inning of the Buffalo-Toronto game today, Second Baseman Dowse fumbled "Jud" Smith's grounder, which permitted two men to score, otherwise the visitors would have been shut out. Both McGinnis and Shaw were touched up at times, but both men were excellently supported. Bottenus' double, a single by Field and Shearon and a fly out to Meara and Deitrich let in three runs for Buffalo; a scratch hit by Urquhart, two passed balls, and Lewee's out at first in the second added another. The Torontos played with a pleasurable vim, and they kept the spectators on the anxious seat until the game was over. Attendance, 2,200.

Woman a ? Woman is a conundrum most decidedly. Still we do not propose to give her up. Let a woman have her health and spirits and she is the sunshine of the house. But suppose she is sick, what then? Why, then there is a shadow all over the house. Happily, in thousands of homes such shadows have been removed. Thanks to Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, the diseases and weaknesses incident to their sex have been removed, and, with health restored their bright spirits have come back, and the household has passed from the winter of its discontent to a glad summer of comfort. O, suffering women, for your own sakes, and for the sakes of those about you, use these simple means and be healed. The only remedy so effective in nervous and general prostration, "Female Weakness," periodical pains, irregularities and kindrd ailments, that it can be guaranteed or sold on trial.

ADVERTISING OF CHURCHES. Christianity Should Not Hide Her Light

Under a Bushel. Herbert F. Gunnison, business manager of the Brooklyn Eagle, in speaking recently before the Methodist Social Union of New York, said of church advertising:

"The benefits derived from judicious advertising are so apparent that it is not necessary to present arguments in favor of the practice.

"As a general thing Protestant churches are not backward in the matter of advertising. When Luther was in prison the devil is said to have come to him and so angered him that Luther threw a bottle of ink at the devil, and to this day the ink mark on the wall of the prison is shown to visitors. Christians have been throwing ink at the devil ever since. In fact, the devil himself has been using ink to pretty good advantage.

"A good Methodist friend of mine remarked to me a few days ago that the titles of many of the sermons were very deceptive, and that instead of hearing something spicy he found as a general thing that a good orthodox sermon was preached. Here are some selections: Should Moral People Waltz, Attend the Theater, or Play Progressive Euchre?: 'Eight Persons Who Died Twice'; 'Tragedy of the Napkin.' "Here is a bit of phrasing that puts into the shade the work of the newspaper headline man: 'Attractions of a count and a bank account.' Another, 'Heaven's perfume, or golden vials full of odors.' 'Where did Cain find his wife, or is there a plurality of races?" 'The foundations of the temple, the most wonderful arch ever constructed, and what befell a poor beggar.' A Presbyterian minister in Brooklyn preached on 'The menace of undisturbed but licentious evil, and in the evening on 'Acquiring a beautiful face.' Another Presbyterian clergyman in the same city preached on 'The beauties of Beautiful Women.' "I doubt very much if we can get to be effective must have specific or definite announcements. To advertise weekly services in this way would be very expensive. "In my judgment the average church paper, whether it is a weekly, monthly or an annual publication appearing with the annual church fair, is a delusion and a snare. "If the churches would utilize the religious advertising columns of the daily press throughout the week it would be, in my judgment, the most effective method they could adopt. Advertising their prayer meetings, Christian Endeavor and Epworth League meetings, entertainments, special meetings, etc., the Saturday announcements are not sufficient. It should be a daily reminder. "The theaters are not satisfied with one day a week advertising. I do not advocate the use of the personal column of a newspaper, but a dignified statement of the activities of a church placed under the proper classification would, I believe, be of great benefit. People of today look to the newspapers for the announcement of the things in which they are most interested.

"It is no longer the custom to hear of deaths and marriages from the pulpit as was formerly the custom. All these things, together with the announcement of amusements, social gatherings, meetings of all kinds, are bulletined in the daily papers. A more liberal practice of this policy on the part of the church would, I think, prove of advantage."

MRS. CLEVELAND AT GRAY GABLES.

Washington, June 17.-A local paper has the following to say about Mrs. Cleveland and her stay at Gray Gables: Mrs. Cleveland is fairly settled for the summer at Gray Gables, where her mother, Mrs. Perrine, will go to visit her in July in order to be present at the great event of interest to which the President is looking forward with such hopeful anticipations that it will result in another voter to the Democratic party of the future. Mrs. Cleveland was urged to remain in the city by the ladies of the Cabinet, who desired that the interesting event of July might take place in the White House. Mrs. Cleveland decided otherwise, however.

Debentures amounting to $20,000, and running for twelve and thirteen years, on which the interest is 6 per cent, will be changed into 5 per cent debentures, thus saving the village some $200 per annum for a number of years. A meeting will be held on Thursday evening, consisting of the reeve, treasurer, collector and chairman of the finance committee, when distress warrants will be issued on all parties who are behind in taxes. ACCIDENTAL DEATH. The adjourned inquest in regard to the death of Lewis Carroll, the asylum patient who was killed on the C. P. R. track on Thursday night, was held at the asylum on Monday night before Coroner Flock. The gist of the verdict, which was a very long one, was "Accidental death." The evidence went to show that a great deal of care was exercised in looking after that crossing and keeping patients away from the rack. Dr. Bucke expressed much satisfaction with the way Mrs. Fixture has attended to that crossing for the last two years. The engineer, fireman and conductor knew nothing of the accident till they reached the city. The C. P. R. train crew and asylum authorities were all exonerated from any blame. Dr. Bucke, in his evidence, stated that in the particular form of insanity from which Carroll was suffering, the patient dreaded death. The manner in which he was found, face downward, and no blood showing on the engine, all went to justify the verdict of accidental death and preclude the idea of suicide.

KIND WORDS FOR PRINCIPAL

MILLER. The following resolution was passed unanimously at the last meeting of the Y. P. S. C. E. of St. George's Church, Christian Endeavor of St. George's Church, having heard with deep regret of the resignation of the principalship of Huron College by Rev. H. G. Miller M.A., desire to express to him our gratitude for the many kindnesses received from him, and our sense of the great loss his removal would be both to the city of London and the Church of England in Canada. With the most un-selfish generosity he ministered to the congregation of which we are members during the prolonged illness of our rector, and we believe that the godly counsels, the deep spiritual lessons we learned from his lips, will never be forgotten, but will bring forth fruit to everlasting life. We know that since he is still the servant of the same Mas ter, the same blessings will accompany his ministrations in any part of the world; yet we earnestly pray that it may please the great Husbandman to make plain the way of his servant to continue his work in this little corner of the vineyard, and that, however great may be his difficulties and discouragements, the whole blessing of the spirit may be his. We ask him to accept the thanks we can but feebly express on behalf of ourselves, our pastor and our congregation."

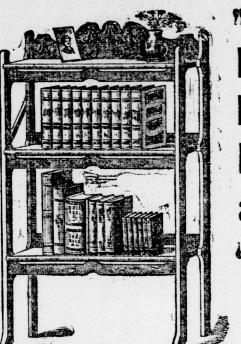

A PROMISING CAREER ENDED. Mr. Wm. A. Mackay, a bright young student of Knox College, Toronto, died from consumption Sunday at the residence of his father, Mr. W. C. Mackay, 390 Adelaide street, this city. The deceased was known to a host of friends in London. He learned the printing trade in the ADVER-TISER composing room, and about four years ago left for Knox College to study for the ministry, which it had long been his sincere wish to enter. He was a devoted student, and his progress at college justified the high hopes of his friends. In fact it is thought his zeal caused him to overtax a constitution which was never robust. Though very young he filled many pulpits in Ontario at ntervals with great acceptance, and two years ago preached during the entire summer in some of the largest churches in Chicago. His promising career, however, was cut short by the dread disease consumption, which manifested itself so seriously in the winter that he went to San Diego, California, in February, in the hope of regaining health. Obtaining no relief he came home a few weeks ago, remaining over in Chicago a short time for treatment. Since his arrival he steadily sank, and though conscious, the end was very happy and peaceful. He will be buried on Wednesday at Kincardine, whither the remains will be conveyed by the morning train. Besides his father, a brother—John C., of Carver, Mackay & Co., tailors, Chicago—and a sister—Mrs. Doyle, of Toronto—wull mourn for him. Mr. Mackay was a young man of exemplary character, amiable disposition and possessed of talents, which, applied in the church's service, would have made him a strong power for good. He was only 23
