FOOD RIOTS IN HAMBURG, ANGRY WOMEN RAID SHOPS

"Down With the Junkers!" "Down With People's Torturers!" Cried the Mob.

An Amsterdam despatch to the Exchange Telegraph Company, London, Says:

"Serious food riots occurred at Hamburg Saturday evening. According to Berlin reports, a mob of angry women raided shops which had been closed owing to a shortage of meat and vegetables, while another crowd demonstrated before the Town Hall shouting: 'Down with the people's torturers!'

"Thirty-seven women were arrestigured by stones thrown from windows."

WITHDRAWAL TO IN NER LINE OF DOUAL, CAMBRAI AND LAON

German "Straightening of the Front" in Western Theatre Expected to be Forced at Once.

A despatch from Paris says: By its victories last week the French offensive has achieved what the Germans asserted was impossible. It has driven a wedge right through the original German front, has definitely "broken the line" of boasted impregnable fortifications stretching across France from beyond the north-western frontier to the limits of Switzer-

The village of Bouchavesnes and l'Abbe Wood farm beyond it were clearly behind the rows of trenches which aerial observation showed to be barring the French advance when the end. Somme offensive began. That under Somme offensive began. That under the menace of the onrushing French tide the Germans have hastily constructed other lines still further in the rear of the lost positions does not detract from the moral value of the achievement that filled the battleweary troops with enthusiasm.

France from beyond the north-west-ern frontier to the limits of Switzerto consider seriously the necessity of a withdrawal to the inner line, Douai,

> TAKE NO PRISONERS ORDER TO GERMANS

> Soldiers Instructed to Despatch Them With Bayonet.

A despatch to New York says: From official British sources The New York Times received on Tuesday the translation of a letter found on German prisoner captured in the batfle of the Somme. The prisoner, writing to his family in Stuttgart, said that the Germans had received ders "to take no prisoners, but to despatch them with the bayonet. With the translation came a photograph of the original letter, which was addressed to "Karl Koch and family, Kaltenal, near Stuttgart."

A part of the letter, as officially translated, follows:

"And now we had three days' rest, and I could get nothing at all to drink except costly wine. It is very agreeable to us that we are oblin to go through it once again; you not conceive it. So many of our contrades are missing, who have fallen were wounded during the week, now we are obliged to go through once more. Oh dear! Here we have proper Englishmen against us, and have orders to take no prhoners, but to despatch them all with the bayonet, which I would not be sorry to do. But they are always getting more prisoners from us, and what do they do with them?"

Early for him, on the following morning he was aroused by a loud knocking at his front door. Now thoroughly sobered, he hurriedly dressed, stumbled down the rickety staircase, and opened the door, to find himself confronted by Miss Ada Lester. Her face was flushed, and the angry light Jasper Vermont had called up by his sneers at her vulgarity the previous evening still shone in dark eyes.

"Where is the gal?" she asked ab-

"Yes-Jessica!" retorted Miss Lester, her jewels flashing in a chance ray of sunlight which had found its way through the dingy court. "Where Miss Letter appeared convinced. She breathed more freely, as if a weight had been taken off her mind.

"Here," she said, putting some gold coins in his hand, "is something to make up for my troubling you. But I was real anxious to know if every-thing was right with the gal."

She turned on him with a fierceness that made him recoil.

"If anything happens to that gal," she shouted, "I'll turn the police on For, mind my words-I mean them-I shouldn't have cared yesterday very much, if I had learnt she was dead, but now I want her. Do you I want her, and you take care she's alive and ready when I come for

Then, without vouchsafing any further information, she flounced away, leaving Mr. Wilfer staring blankly after her, and wishing for once that he had stayed his hand, instead of driving the girl into the miseries and dangers of the streets.

Little did Wilfer or Mics Lesber imagine that Jessica had found safety and refuge in Adrien Leroy's

CHAPTER VI

Love is the universal epidemio, effectual in al climes and conditions; there is no inoculation that will secure exemption from its influence; only given a warm human heart, and there is the natural susceptibility.

All she knew was that she loved, was conscious only that for kind word from the lips of the man who had befriended her, for a glance from those dark eyes, she would have gladiy given up all the other glories of her arrival, absent, engaged business concerning the sale of the faked picture to Mr. Harker, and Martha was still away; so Jessica, pausing at the door of the livingom to ascertain that it was empty, softly ascended the stairs leading to the garret which served as her special It was as small and as squalid as in one respect—it was clean.

A miserable chair-oedstead of the chespest kind, covered with a threadbare quilt; a chair with the back broken off; a washstand on three legs, and a triangular piece of silvered glass, the remains of a cheap mirror, omposed the furniture.

This peculiarly-shaped piece common glass reflected the girl's beautiful face in all manner of distorted forms. The quilt just kept her from perishing with the cold. But yet the mirror, the bed, and the room itself were precious to her, for they were her own. Beyond its sacred threshold Johann or Martha never passed. She had a key to it; and to enter now she unlocked the door.

After the luxury of Adrien's rooms the mean quality of her own apartment struck the girl more forcibly than usual, and sinking upon the bed, she covered her face with her hands and gave way to a flood of tears. But the weakness did not last long; and after a moment or two, with a sudren gesture, almost Italian in its intensity, she flung back her head and rose from her crouching position.

smelling, and teeming with children. Bidding the chauffeur wait at the entrance to the court, Adrien, to whom dust, noises, and evil smells were things of absolute pain, entered one of the dens and asked for Mr. Wilfer.

"There he is," said another urchin; and Leroy turned to face that individual, who was leaning against an open door. "Am I speaking to Mr. Johann Wilfer?" he asked courteously. "You are,' returned Wilfer, taking the begrimed pipe from his mouth, and staring with bloodshot eyes at the handsome, high-bred face before him. "Can you tell me if a young girl named Jessica returned to you safely this morning?" Leroy inquired.

Importance of Good Feeding.

To the man who looks after his live stock nothing is more remarkable than the cumulative effects of good feeding. All of the grand pedigree herds have been built up quite as much by foods as by selection, and yet a well-bred animal will thrive on "I will not think of the beautiful the food which will scarcely maintain

> The fact that an animal has never been poor from its birth transmits to its descendants a greater aptitude towards fattening. When that has been continued for several generations the results become very marked. In feeding cattle there is no one dietary that is superior to all others. countries like England feeding is different matter to what it is in this country, where animals have to forage very much for themselves. It is possible to get an animal fat on a dietary where carbonohydrates predominate, and equally so where proteins are in excess Animals fed with a preponderance of albuminoids are firmer and weight heavier in proportion to measurement than when fed largely on carbohy-The great art of feeding is to fetch up the albuminoids at the lowest cost, remembering always that the bulky farm foods-hay, straw and roots—are always defici-ent in abuminoids and are not economically fed alone.

There must be sufficient bulk to fill the animal, as well as the more con-centrated food to furnish the highest For this purpose any sound clean fodder will do, and wheat straw chaff is far better than inferr mouldy hay.

While good feeding is the only way to success, the particular foods used must always be decided upon by the individual, and their selection is one of those fine problems, the solving of which makes the business of the farmer so attractive, and on which de-pends a successfu! year or other-

The root crop has done much for sheep, providing winter food, but is a strong prejudice against roots for breeding ewes. This is not altogether warranted, for, under certain conditions where grass land is scarce, a very high percentage lambs is obtained from ewes which are very largely maintained on roots, particularly on swedes. It is quite possible that the prejudice arises for want of a better system of manage-

Naturally, a ewe cannot maintain herself and develop her lamb on swedes alone. She should have plenty of dry food. It is very important where sheep are put almost entirely on roots that dry food should be given at once. It is not necssary to give very rich dry food early. A1most any dry food will do so long as the sheep will eat it, and it is helpful and not expensive.

As a rule, the more nitrogenous matter the food contains the better. In cold weather there should be no sparing of food, especially to sheep in exposed places. If the sheep are in good condition at lambing all the better, but good condition docs not imply flabby fat. The ewes should be in hard muscular condition and the blood strong from nitrogenuous

The horse that is not thoroughly cleaned to remove dirt and perspiration from the skin soon begins to show the effects of Lack of proper attention to the horse's comfort it responsible for more thin horses than is feeding too small an oat ration. If a horse comes to the stable wet with sweat very little cleaning can be done with the comb and brush though the use of the curry comb aids in opening the pores of the skin. All harness marks should be sponged off and some horsemen go over the whole animal with a damp sponge to remove as much dirt as possible. It is not advisable to wash a horse at the colt, and the third horse, having night although some drivers do so Many stables are so hot during the summer months that a horse sweats if left in them at night, and under these circumstances cannot well stand the next day's heat. After being fed and cleaned the horse is fresher the next morning if turned on pasture at nights throughout the summer. However, it is not always possible to do so, and when the stable is hot the next best thing to do is to tie the horse outside with some bedding under him. The hay can be fed in the open as well as in the stable. To keep up with the farm work the teams must be kept as efficient as possible and in condition to do a fully day's work.

For two or three months during the year flies torment the horses and make it more difficult for them to do their work. Some horses are protected against the pests, but others are left to fight these tormenors themselves. Fly-nets made of heavy cord or leather laces were commonly used at one time and afforded a degree of protection. A light cotton or burlap sheet also serves the purpose of protecting the back and sides against flies, but is more heating than the netting. Some drivers rub a litthe netting. Some drivers rub a little fish oil around their horses' ears, neck less and other parts where dies neck legs and other parts where flies fit.

Work the Colt

Last spring I had three good horses and a two-year-old colt, and decided that the work of the old horse could be made easier with benefit to the colt Early in the winter the colt was broken and used at light work. In the spring when doing my farm work I made a four-horse evener from a piece of 2 x 4-inch elm, the end holes being five feet apart, the centre hole two feet from one end and three feet from the other.

The best team was given the short end of the evener or three-fifths of the load. On the other end was put two-fifths of the pull, but the colt's end of the doubletree was 22 inches long, against 11 inches for the other This gave the colt fourthirtieths against eight-thirtieths for his mate, the other horses each pulling nine-thirtieths of the load.

As the colt became accustomed to the work the doubletrees were changed till he pulled about two-thirds as much as each of the others. This helped the other horses and was not harmful to the colt.-Wm. Hardy, in Farm and Home

I could not help smiling myself at their lack of humor and absurd opinion they had of themselves. Just picture these two German officers anything but smart—in fact, very bedraggled after two days without a shave or wash—one in dark green uniform, the other in a Prussian blue uniform, with his long blue coat looking very dirty and worn and he himself most bedraggled. Then, to crown all, he was wearing a rather light.

I gathered from these officers they were rather surprised that we have done as much as we had, and that our troops were as good as they are our troops were as good as they are our troops were as good as they are and our artillery so accurate. I asked what they thought of the present situation. They said, "Yes, you have won five kilometres, but it is a hundred miles from here to Brussels; but you will get no further." They were you will get no further." They were very much concerned as to whether there was any danger of being torpedoed when they were going over to England, as they heard that very few boats ever got across. I told them they might get across safe, but in all probability they would be sent to the Isle of Man, in which case there was a very good chance of going under. They replied, "Isn't there a signal given on the steamer that it is carrying German prisoners?"
which I thought was rather priceless. BRINGS TIRELESS ENERGY TO Phonograph Fire Alarm.

A fire alarm apparatus that calls "central," telling her in a calm, dispassionate, mechanical voice that the Orchard of 4,000 Trees Planted in factory of Smith, Jones & Co., is flames and to please call the fire brigade immediately is the proposal of an English inventor. A phonograph, with its horn close to the mouthpiece of a telephone, is fitted with a record bearing the fire warning. The phonograph starts when an electro magnet placed near it draws down the releasing lever. The circuit of which the magnet is a part is closed by an automatic switch which is held by a cord. magnet is a part is closed by an auto-matic switch which is held by a cord. A fire burns the cord.

ANGELS UNAWARES.

Women Are Doing Their Share These Trying Times.

Before the war there were five million, five hundred women wage earners in Great Britain; to-day there are said to be over ten million. Five million men have enlisted for active service, and a woman has taken the place of every able-bodied man who might have been engaged in peace-ful occupations. England has never een so busy a manufacturing and industrial country as she is in 1916, but this would never have been possible if women had not stepped into the breach.

In Canada there is not the same supply of surplus available women so that in this respect Canada has not experienced so great a revolution in industrial life, but many new occupations are being to Canadian women, and the mand for women workers in factories and in the great industrial life been established, might of the railways is steadily are been set up at a con- increase If Sir Robert I siderably earlier date.
