BYNG'S TRIUMPHANT TROOPS CROWD CLOSE ON CAMBRAI

Flushed With Victory, British Push on Toward the Next Objective TAKE 8000 CAPTIVES Score of Towns and Villages Fell Also in Advance

By Courier Leased Wire. Triumphant in their brilliant stroke against the Hindenburg line, British troops are pushing on Cambrai, now only three miles away. In two days the British have gained almost as much ground as in the first four months of the Battle of the Somme.

As it was unlike any previous operation on the western front, so was the success of General Byng's smash. Without artillery preparation, with only tanks to cut the wire entanglements, British infantry tore such holes in the German defenses that British cavalry is now taking part in the drive toward Cambrai and the Belgian border beyond. Surprised by the suddenness of the thrust Tuesday, the Germans fought back Wednesday, but the British pushed steadily toward the immediate goal. Nearly a score of towns and villages have been taken and more than eight thousand prisoners have been captured. The Germans have been driven from the high ground west-southwest and south of Cambrai, this city, formerly German main headquarters in the west, and one of the main links in the German supply system. While the British attacked on a front of 32 miles between St. Quentin and the Scarpe, their main effort was on a fifteen mile front west and southwest of Cambrai, where an advance of more than five miles has been made. At Cantain and Noyelles the British are within three miles of Cambrai and on the south they are at Crevecoeur, four miles away. The Scheldt canal has been gained, as well as the Scheldt and the Escaut River, whose valley extends northeast through Belgium to Antwerp.

In England the victory of General Byng is hailed as the greatest on the western front, and it is looked upon as the forerunner of still greater achievements against the supposedly impregnable Hindenburg line. The new tactics of the British apparently overwhelmed the Germans, and in the view of military critics, hold out great possibilities for the future, especially as to its efficacy without the usual preliminary artillery fire.

The Germans had only five airplanes on the front and eleven British airmen, by flying at a height of fifty feet because of the mist, wind and rain, sacrificed themselves during the first stages of the offensive. What effect the British drive will have on the Austro-German invasion of Italy is not yet apparent, but the Italians are holding their position and the invaders have not been able to make a marked gain in two days. Around Asiago the Italians have repulsed strong attacks while on the important sector between the Brenta and the Piave, the Austro-Germans have ceased their attacks, apparently worn out by fruitless efforts against Monte Tomba and the nearby defenses. The Piave line is still unbroken.

French troops have carried out a successful attack on a front of two thirds of a mile between Craonne and Berry-au-Bac. German defenses were captured and 175 prisoners fell into French hands.

LONDON BELLS PEAL FOR BRITISH VICTORY

First Time During the War That Such Rejoicing Has Been Made in Britain's Capital

By Courier Leased Wire. London, Nov. 22.—The bells of London will probably peal today for General Byng's victory, and if the proposal is adopted, it will be the first time since the war began that the bells have rung for any rejoicing. The Times says it has questioned the authorities concerning the proposed ringing and has found all favorable. The Bishop of London highly approved of the idea and already has notified the clergy of the diocese. The lord mayor is especially enthusiastic.

The Earl of Derby, as minister of war, favors the idea though he suggested it would be better to await detailed official statements with a tally of prisoners and guns. His statement, however, apparently was made before Field Marshal Haig's night communique was received, and it seems certain that London will get a rousing bell chorus to-day. The provinces doubtless will follow the capital's example.

CALLEJA CONVICTED; WILL HANG ON JAN. 3

Jury Returned Verdict of Guilty Against Maltese Charged With Murder of Fellow-Countryman—The Prisoner's Failure to Establish Alibi Was Fatal Link in Chain

Guilty of murder was the verdict of the jury after three hours and a half absence from the court room deciding upon the case of Carmelo Calleja the latter charged with the murder of Gio Battista Bonello, a fellow Maltese, on Monday, July 30th. Twice after retiring, the jury, undecided upon technicalities in the evidence, fled back into the court room and consulted His Lordship. The date of execution was set by the Honorable Mr. Justice Masten, presiding judge, for Thursday, January the 3rd. The decisive factor in the evidence finally proved to be the prisoner's statement on the night of his arrest, given in the police station to Chief Slemm, when through an interpreter he was questioned regarding his whereabouts on the fatal day. That cross examination had commenced between eleven o'clock and had continued until three o'clock the following morning. When asked by the Chief regarding his whereabouts on the morning of July the 30th, accused had stated that he was with Paul Sant in Victoria Park and that he had not seen Bonello since the previous Sunday evening. These statements were contradicted during the trial, Paul Sant denied that he had been with the prisoner on that morning, and another witness testified to seeing Bonello and Calleja together in Victoria Park that morning.

will be confined until the day of execution, Calleja protested his innocence. When told by his son-in-law that the jury had found him guilty, he replied quietly but tersely: "I am not guilty." Throughout the three days in which the trial has been in progress, he has sat motionless in the prisoner's box, looking scarcely to the right nor left, with no expression on his face and no movement of his body except when he occasionally shifted to a more comfortable position. Yesterday, after sitting from 9 o'clock in the morning until nearly 11 o'clock at night, with only two intermissions for meal hours when the court adjourned, the prisoner, who is fifty years or more of age, could scarcely walk so stiff had he become from sitting in a cramped position. When brought into the court room yesterday morning, he showed evidences of the strain under which he was laboring, and although he could understand little English, carefully watched the lawyers, judge and jury throughout the proceedings. As he was taken to the prisoner's box on the last day of the trial, his eyes filled with unshed tears. Later in the morning, he began to finger his chain furtively and continually moved from one side to the other of

EXEMPTION TRIBUNALS

The Manner in Which Members Were Appointed Only Three Named by W. F. Cockshutt, and two Represent Labor Interests

As there is very considerable misunderstanding among the public as to how the members of the different exemption tribunals were appointed and as the opponents of the Union Government are taking advantage of this fact and misleading the people by stating that the members of the local tribunals were all appointed on the recommendation of Senator Fisher and W. F. Cockshutt, it is well to clear up the matter.

The following are the true facts in connection with the appointment of said tribunals.

One half of the members were nominated by the County Judge, one fourth by the Union Government and one fourth by the leader of the Opposition.

These gentlemen on the tribunals in the County of Brant were appointed on the recommendation of the following:

- By the County Judge: His Honor Judge Hardy, Police Magistrate Livingston.

- W. A. Hollinrake, Local Registrar. Jas. Harley, K.C. Paul Wickson. D. G. Hamner.

- Dr. Wilson, (Hamilton). Dr. J. L. Addison. Chief J. L. Johnson.

The balance, as before related, were chosen upon the Liberal and Conservative recommendations alike.

The only three recommended by Mr. Cockshutt were:

- F. Calbeck, Harvey Clement and Edward Lavery, the last two chosen as labor men.

Mr. Cockshutt especially asked that farmers have a tribunal of their own and not be forced to come to the city, for his part of the Riding.

The military representatives in attendance at the various boards were appointed by the head of the Military District.

German Admiralty Claims Having Put Pursuers to Flight and Damaged a Number of Vessels

By Courier Leased Wire. Berlin, Nov. 22.—(British admiralty per Wireless Press)—The German admiralty has issued the following statement on the recent engagement near Heligoland: "During the British advance into the German Bight Saturday, three participated on the English side in addition to a large number of small cruisers and destroyers, according to reliable observations by German naval forces and airplanes, six large fighting vessels—ships of the line or battle cruisers.

"The advance of the British was opposed quickly by the Germans with adequate forces, which caused the enemy to retire. According to reliable observations by German forces, a number of hits on enemy ships and destroyers were obtained. German airplanes also took part in the fight and bombarded the large English warships."

ARMISTICE DESIRED BUT NO SEPARATE PEACE

Russ Revolutionary Army Would Continue War With Vigor Against German Imperialism, Until the Foe Demands Peace

Petrograd, Nov. 21.—The formal offer of an armistice to all the belligerents, which the Council of Peoples Commissaries of the Russian Workmen's and Soldiers' Congress proposes to make shortly is not intended to forestall any effort toward a separate peace. On the contrary, it is declared definitely here, that not only is a separate peace not desired, but the rejection of the armistice proposal by Germany, even should it be acceptable to the allies, would mean a continuation of the war by the new revolutionary army with vigor, against German imperialism, until the German people "inspired by Russian democratic ideas, overthrow their rulers and demand peace."

Confidence is expressed here, however, that Russia's initiative will bring the desired result, if not with the allied governments, then through the insistence of the people of the allied countries, who, it is predicted will bring pressure to bear on their governments.

According to the Maximalist Government's plan, an armistice would be entered upon first, and, if it were successful for three months, it is proposed to resemble a peace conference at which an attempt would be made to negotiate a policy of a peace without annexations or indemnities and the self-determination of the nations.

Eluff Failed. London, Nov. 22.—A body of troops and Red Guards, under command of Commissary Meninsky and Col. Mouraviev, commander of the Petrograd Garrison, appeared before the State Bank in Petrograd yesterday, according to a Reuters despatch and demanded that 10,000 rubles be handed over within ten minutes. Meninsky declared that anyone who opposed the execution of the order would be treated as a traitor. Officers of the bank and delegates of the town council, and the Peasants' Union, assembled in a room in which the doors and principal safes were guarded by sentries from the Semenovskiy regiment, and refused obstinately to meet the demand whatever the consequences.

At the expiration of the ten minutes, further parleying disclosed that neither Meninsky nor Mouraviev had any order of requisition from the Council of Commissaries. Delegates from the front who accompanied the soldiers joined in the protest against the invasion of the bank. Mouraviev eventually withdrew his troops.

After a conference with the Council of Commissaries, Mouraviev returned with a message that the council recognized that the demand in the despatch to the bank and the form in which it was made, was not in accordance with the law. He expressed regret for his share in the incident.

The Maximalist newspaper, Pravda, the despatch adds, announces that fighting has begun between the Red and White Guards of Finland, near Viborg, and that the railway has been torn up.

Marked Victory. Petrograd, Nov. 22.—The Russian plan, Caucasus armies have won a marked success against the enemy along the River Dyal, according to information reaching the army and the Workmen's and Soldiers' Delegates. The Russians initiated an attack and overcame the enemy, capturing 1,600 of them, of whom 134 were officers. The morale of the troops is said to be excellent. Bolsheviks in Control.

The wife of Premier Kerensky is reported to have been arrested by members of the Red Guard, while tearing down Bolshevik posters in which Kerensky was referred to in uncomplimentary terms. The revolutionary committee at Moscow, are forming special guards for the protection of foreign subjects and have organized a bureau of registration. It is reported from Viborg, Finland, that the general strike has been resumed after a two-day truce because the workmen failed to receive satisfaction for their demands. Haig's Judgment in Retaining Mounted Forces Is Vindicated

OLD STYLE FIGHTING

British Army Headquarters in France, Nov. 21.—(By the Associated Press)—The present battle more than any other in the western theatre, has taken on the savor of fighting in other wars when men struggled in the open and cavalry made thrilling charges against enemy guns. Many military critics have long contended that cavalry was a thing of the past, but the mounted men have refuted this claim.

Field Marshal Haig has clung to his horse troops throughout the weary months of trench fighting. He believed that some day he would have a chance to use them and his judgment has been vindicated.

Field Marshal Haig's blow against the Cambrai front represents true strategy. He had hammered at the enemy in Flanders until they were worn out completely. He had driven them back as far as the mud would permit and had compelled them to call on every ounce of strength they had to maintain themselves. They had suddenly prepared for a surprise attack in an unexpected quarter.

The Hindenburg lines on the Cambrai front were the strongest the Germans had laid out in the west. The enemy considered them impregnable. Not only were they strongly fortified, but they were protected by a very deep belt of barbed wire, which it was thought that only a protracted bombardment of sufficient concentration of guns would cut sufficiently to allow the infantry to go through.

British tanks never have been called upon for such extensive work before, but they did in a few hours what the artillery would have required days to accomplish. The Hindenburg line was pierced absolutely on a wide front and a greater depth than ever before.

The correspondent to-day inspected for the first time the Hindenburg line, near Havrincourt and saw the amazing work done by the iron monsters. In some places they had no trouble either in tearing through the wire or in crossing trenches. There were gaps in the wire entanglements a rod in width where not one vestige of wire was left standing and by following the tracks of the tanks one could see where they had tramped across the trenches as though they were merely scratches in the ground instead of wide, deep ditches.

The tanks of course, went through No Man's Land under the full observation of the German artillery and while the gunfire was weak, some fire was directed on the tanks as they advanced. It was interesting to follow the trail of the tanks and to see where shells had struck all about apparently without doing any damage, for in this whole section the correspondent did not see one tank which had been knocked out.

The condition of the German trenches showed plainly that the occupants had abandoned them in a hurry. All sorts of equipment and personal belongings strewn the ground.

Since the beginning of the attack the gunfire had been extremely weak. No Man's Land showed comparatively few shell craters to-day and this morning the British guns were doing virtually all the firing along most of the front involved. This is a striking contrast to the Flanders region, which has been in a state of artillery fire for weeks.

The Germans have attempted very few counter-attacks thus far and all of them have been smashed. The latest counter-attack reported was made last night near Demicourt and was dealt with promptly.

The Germans who at the first yesterday retreated or surrendered in dismay were fighting desperately to-day to regain a hold on their rear position. A particularly hard hand-to-hand engagement occurred this morning at Flequieres when the infantry, accompanied by tanks storm

HINDENBURG LINE SHATTERED SUPREME EFFORT OF BRITISH FORCES

Yesterday's Offensive Was Probably Most Notable Blow of War; British Advance Was Irresistible and Number of Villages Fell

Field Marshal Haig has sprung a surprise on the Germans in Northern France, attacking suddenly on a front of more than 30 miles and breaking the famous Hindenburg line to a maximum depth of nearly five miles. His troops are still fighting their way forward in the most spectacular offensive of war on the western front since the trench lines were established. The blow was struck without warning, no artillery preparation preceding it. The British tanks in great numbers smashed through the formidable German wire entanglements, plunging a road for the infantry, which swarmed irresistibly forward. Village after village fell into British hands, as Haig's troops pressed on, units at Marcoing and Anneu, on the Bapaume-Cambrai road they were but three and three quarter miles from Cambrai, the important German base and important railway junction which apparently is the British objective. Several thousand prisoners have been taken by the British, as well as large quantities of war material. The attack was carried out in unfavorable atmospheric conditions, and the weather has since grown stormy. Berlin admits important advances by the British, conceding the capture of Marcoing and Graincourt, in the field of Haig's thrust, but says the attackers were checked after ground had been gained.

FIVE THOUSAND TAKEN London, Nov. 21.—The number of prisoners taken by the British thus far is given at about 5,000 in a despatch filed at British headquarters by Reuters.

PERSHING A WITNESS British Army Headquarters in France, Nov. 21.—(By the Associated Press)—General Pershing, commander of the American forces in France, was present at the British headquarters as the Field Marshal Haig to witness the British offensive, and followed the battle with deepest interest.

The British Juggermash British headquarters in France, Tuesday, November 20.—(By the Associated Press)—The redoubtable Hindenburg line in the Cambrai sector was broken in many places by the great force of the British tanks and this afternoon the infantry which went through the gaps was still battling its way forward. The surprise attack was launched at dawn over a wide front. In the first few hours its progress was marked with evident success. The resistance offered by the dazed Germans this morning was negligible and by noon British pioneers already were at work laying roads across the old front line trenches, while prisoners in considerable numbers had commenced to come back from various positions.

The casualties of the attacking forces thus far have been light. Great numbers of German dead lie before the main Hindenburg trench where the heaviest fighting taken unawares, made a half-hearted attempt to stem the onrushing Britons.

The battle was an innovation for the western front for it was begun without any preliminary artillery work. Upon the army tanks rested the responsibility for victory or defeat and they fulfilled all expectations. The iron giants went through the tremendous line of barbed wire entanglements in front of the main Hindenburg positions and on over the trenches as though they were on parade.

The tanks started forward at 6.20 o'clock and by 11.30 the British infantry which had swarmed into the holes made by the mighty engines was engaging the enemy in open fighting along the Hindenburg support line back of the main defenses at many points. Up to noon there had been no hard fighting and the German artillery fire had been very weak.

The Germans surrendered freely in numerous places and several hundred were brought during the first few hours of fighting.

Two attempted counter attacks were smashed by the British infantry in the early hours, one in the trench near Buncourt and the other at Havrincourt Park where a company of Germans essayed an advance.

The tanks this afternoon followed the infantry in continuing their journey into Germany territory. Prisoners admit ruefully that the attack was a surprise to them and caught them in their sloups. The loss is announced of Marcoing, Graincourt and portions of the permanently established works.

"Between Arras and St. Quentin, the German statement says, a strong artillery battle heralded the English advance."

Huns Admit Losses Berlin, Nov. 21.—Via London.—German reserves checked the British in the rear positions after ground had been gained by the attackers, says today's official communication. The loss is announced of Marcoing, Graincourt and portions of the permanently established works.

METHODIST NIGHT AT THE TABERNACLE

But Large Gathering There Embraced Those of all Religions

The copious downpourings of Jupiter Pluvius availed little against the ardor and fire of the disciples of John Wesley, who gathered last night at the Tabernacle. Nor were they disappointed, for in some respects the meeting was unequalled. Presbyterians, Baptists, Congregationalists and others also came along to enjoy the company of the Methodists. The choir was in full force and sang with an abandon that was most inspiring. The wonderful mastery of Earl Voyley and the mastery of Mr. Fisher were never heard and seen to better advantage. In the rendition by the choir of "Jesus Will Save You," the audience was stirred with the beauty and power of the music.

A happy touch was given when Rev. Dr. Henderson marshalled the congregation in the good old Methodist hymn, "O Happy Day," wreathed radiance rested on faces worn with care and a light burn out of land or sea. The melody rolled sweetly forth.

Dr. Hanley in reviewing the day's work, stated that Miss Robertson had addressed the large group of young ladies at 10 a.m. in her experience. At the same hour in the Y.M.C.A. he himself had spoken to a group of ministers in a meeting long ago.

The theme for the evening to which Dr. Hanley addressed himself was "The Disappointed Christ." With eloquence and tenderness Dr. Hanley appealed to his audience to take a personal interest in the Great Saviour. "The disciples of Jesus called Him in the time of His awful agony in the Garden of Gethsemane. There he was the lonely man of sorrow, praying this was the hour when Christ needed the disciples most they were fast asleep. 'What could ye not watch one hour,' said He, and again 'Sleest thou? If thou canst watch with Me one hour, thou shalt be with Me forever. The Devil never won a pitched battle, but he vanquishes his victims when they are morally and spiritually asleep."

Christ had a longing for friendship and he will actually see new hair—fine and downy at first—yes, but really new hair growing all over the scalp. If you care for pretty soft hair and lots of it, surely invest a few cents in a bottle of Knowlton's Danderine at any drug store or toilet counter, and just try it.

Save your hair! Beauty! You will say this was the best money you ever spent.

and was closed by a touching appeal to all to not disappoint Christ, but to make Him glad.

The personal workers were then invited to remain after which Dr. Hanley offered a closing prayer.

Miss Robertson then gave to the personal workers a most practical, earnest and helpful ten minute talk on the importance of private and public work and service for the Master.

Lemons Whiten and Beautify the Skin! Make Cheap Lotion

The juice of two fresh lemons strained into a bottle containing three ounces of orchard white makes a whole quarter pint of the most remarkable lemon skin beautifier at about the cost one must pay for a small jar of the ordinary cold cream. Care should be taken to strain the lemon juice through a fine cloth so no lemon pulp gets in, then this lotion will keep fresh for months. Every woman knows that lemon juice is used to bleach and remove such blemishes as freckles, sallowness and tan, and is the ideal skin softener, smoothener and beautifier.

Just try it! Make up a quarter pint of this sweetly fragrant lemon lotion and massage it daily into the face, neck, arms and hands. It should naturally be put on white, soft, freshen, and bring out the hidden roses and beauty of any skin. It is wonderful for rough, red hands, and in crossing a track, he was struck by a train and killed. Said Dr. Hanley, "He is the only man I am afraid to lose at the judgment."

The address was one of great power.

THE SITUATION

The news of the magnificent success of the British on the Western front has naturally thrilled the whole Empire, and also the other allies. The fact that there had been none of the artillery preparation, usually the prelude of a big drive, added still further to the surprise of the achievement, a surprise also, without any doubt, shared in by the Huns, who were not anticipating any such program. In lieu of big guns, the tanks performed the battering down process with marvellous effect, and their great usefulness has once more been thoroughly demonstrated. As the outcome of the fierce onslaught, the Hindenburg line, supposed to be impregnable, was shattered and broken, and as this is written, Haig's men are still going strong. The bag of prisoners and of material, both alike proved to be enormous. If the British can bring forward their big guns with any degree of celerity, the fate of the Germans in the Cambrai region can be sealed. The French have co-operated by an attack north of Craonne, carrying their objectives on a front of two thirds of a mile to a depth of four hundred yards. It is probable that both of these operations will teach the Hohenzollern outfit to realize that it is fatal for them to in any sense withdraw western troops for the Italian or any other front. They have all of the job they can attend to right there, and in the long run they will find that this also is beyond their powers.

In Palestine, British forces are closing on Jerusalem, and the Italians are still holding their main lines, although the enemy pressure is increasing.

The assertion is frequently made, and was openly stated at the convention of Laurier supporters in this city, that the Liberals had not been given a fair share of portfolios in the Union Government—that the whole scheme of Sir Robert Borden was to hoodwink the members of that party in order to hang on to the reins of office.

Anyone who knows the high character of Sir Robert will abundantly realize that he is not that kind of a man and will not for one moment question the assertion, which he made at Halifax, that even had he been positive that his own side would win in the approaching contest, he would still have formed a Union Administration.

Leaving that aside, however, Liberal Unionists are to have half of the present cabinet positions, and they have already been given the following:

- Hon. N. W. Rowell, President of the Privy Council, one of the most important of all the positions. Major-General Newburn, Minister of Militia and Defence, in many respects the most onerous portfolio in these times. Hon. F. B. Carvell, Minister of Public Works, the great spending department. Hon. A. L. Sifton, Minister of Customs, also a leading post. Hon. J. A. Calder, Minister of Immigration and Colonization. Hon. Hugh Guthrie, Solicitor-General. Hon. A. T. Crerar also has a portfolio and at the big demonstration in Massey Hall last evening the Premier announced that other Liberals and Labor men would be added.

It will thus be seen that the Union Administration is of a thoroughly genuine article and that Laurier Liberals who seek to pretend otherwise are perpetrating an arrant falsehood.

THE DENOMINATED CANDIDATES

In the Riding of Brantford, Mr. W. F. Cockshutt has received government endorsement and in that of Brant, Mr. J. Harold.

The decision was undoubtedly reached on the basis of fifty-fifty, which Sir Robert Borden is so insistently following in connection with the Union Administration.

The choice in the case of W. F. Cockshutt was plain enough from the start; in fact the general feeling is quite marked in this community that with such a record he should have been accorded an acclamation. In the matter of the Northern Riding the final decision must have been reached only after considerable deliberation for Harry Cockshutt's war efforts have been exceptional. Not only that, but he went to the generous extent of offering to withdraw from the contest in favor of Hon. Mr. Rowell, if Mr. Harold would do the same thing.

However he will accept the decision rendered in the good spirit which he has throughout manifested, and will push his "win the war" tenets with an even freer hand when he gets to Ottawa. That he will be chosen to go there, reports from all portions of the Riding conclusively demonstrate, and as for the soldier vote overseas, well the boys also know his record in the raising and financing of the 215th Battalion and in other directions, and there can be little doubt as to how they will mark their ballots.

BLUNDERING TRIBUNALS

The following editorial under the above heading is taken from The Toronto News: "The Perth demonstration of Lanark farmers against the local working out of the selective draft may have been organized in the interests of the Laurier candidate, Mr. Boyd A. C. Caldwell. It is nevertheless a fact that complaints are being received from other counties in the manner in which the Military Service Act is being applied. Here and there it is alleged that the local tribunals are refusing to exempt men necessary to food production."

If any of the tribunals are stripping the farms of needed hands they are injuring the cause of Union Government and the Canadian army. They are helping to defeat the very purpose for which Liberals and Conservatives all over the country are burying party differences. Consciously or unconsciously, they are playing into Sir Wilfrid Laurier's hands. They are misinterpreting the Military Service Act and running counter to its whole spirit. The purpose and intention of the Act is to apply the selective draft in an intelligent manner that will make at once for the strengthening of the Canadian Expeditionary Force and for the stimulation of vital war-time industries at home. The public authorities have power under the Act to divert labor from unnecessary industries to such vitally important work as the production of food and munitions.

Hon. T. A. Crerar, Minister of Agriculture in the Union Government, has been quoted as saying that the Military Service Act would increase the supply of labor available for the farm. It is obvious that some of the Ontario tribunals neither understand the measure nor the purpose behind it. The remedy probably lies with the appeal tribunals, which will begin to sit almost immediately. The Union Government is intent upon reinforcing the Canadian army in the shortest possible time, but it also emphasizes the need of assisting agriculturists in the production of foodstuffs."

BORDEN IN TORONTO

In a characteristically powerful speech Sir Robert Borden at Massey Hall last night made his opening address of the Ontario campaign. He emphasized in a most clear manner the fact that the issue to be settled in the approaching contest was that of Canada's effective continuance in the struggle and announced that Union Liberals and Labor were to have still further representation in the Cabinet. In the latter respect he said:

"The government and the people owe it to the Labor population of the country. These pledges will be carried out or I shall not remain head of the government."

Mr. Rowell was also in excellent and patriotic form. After enumerating the important posts held by Liberals in the Union Cabinet he exclaimed some Conservatives might query, "What have we got left?" He would reply:

"You have got Sir Robert Borden the most important asset of your party."

As to the claim that Liberals had left their party he would make answer: "It was not so. The Liberals had taken the best of their party with them."

NOTES AND COMMENTS

Can you do otherwise than give a vote to help the boys at the front? Mr. F. E. Leonard a prominent Liberal announced that he must forsake Laurier on the conscription issue. In constraining the proposed referendum he says:

- (1) It would signify hesitation on Canada's part to proceed farther with the war.
- (2) It would take nine or ten months to assemble a new Government, pass a recruiting bill, and get the men.
- (3) It would be a severe setback for those at the front to see that reinforcements could not be forthcoming, perhaps until next fall.
- (4) Sir Wilfrid Laurier's government sent soldiers to South Africa without a referendum, and (5) The North and the South engaged in civil war without a referendum.

And there are thousands of other Liberals who feel just as Mr. Leonard does.

An order-in-Council has been passed at Ottawa allowing soldiers to participate in election meetings.

The decision is an eminently proper one. What class of men have a bigger right to take part in the approaching contest than those heroes who have risked life itself in the cause of Empire and human liberty.

Reports from all over the Dominion show that subscriptions to the Victory Loan total to date $134,000,000. The $300,000,000 is evidently going to be reached and on top of that the endorsement of the Union Government will complete the job.

The official report for last week shows an increase in the number of British vessels sunk by submarines. The total is ten or over 1,600 tons and seven under that figure. The menace is still a difficult one to handle.

They talk about a woman's sphere as if it had a limit. There's not a thing in all the world without a woman in it, and that is going to be proved once again by the fair sex in both Brants on behalf of winning the war.

Sir Robert Borden in his Massey Hall speech made the distinct intimation that the wholesale exemption by the military boards in Quebec would not be tolerated. That's the ink. These French-Canadian dogs must be brought to a sense of their duty.

Women's dresses are to be made skimpier. Then it will take an extremely attenuated man in body, as well as in mind to hide behind them.

Man Was Buried Alive in Sand

Death from suffocation was narrowly averted by the timely action of his friends, shortly before noon today when William Burrell, 158 Terrace Hill street, was buried in sand from a cave-in, while he was engaged in digging a sewer adjacent to his home.

Assisted by a companion, Mr. Burrell was digging a sewer between his residence and the house adjacent. The victim of the accident was down in the sewer about two feet from the surface of the ground, when the sandy soil gave way, caved in and buried him. Assistance was immediately procured and the man's head extracted as far as possible from the sandy covering. He was enabled to breathe until further assistance could be procured.

An alarm was telephoned in to the police station about fifteen minutes to twelve. The firemen were notified, and Chief Lewis, Firemen Hartley and Ribbey and Chief Slemin rushed immediately to the scene of the accident. With the aid of spectators, the firemen, by means of shovels, worked their way down to the shoulders of the imbedded man and placed ropes under his armpits. He was thus supported by those above while the remainder of the sand was removed from the pit, and the man brought to the surface.

Mr. Burrell was badly exhausted from the first shock of the cave in and from the weight of the heavy soil, but was fortunate in escaping from the predicament with his life.

SAGE TEA DARKENS HAIR ANY TO SHADE

Don't stay gray! Here's a simple recipe that anybody can apply with a hair brush.

The use of Sage and Sulphur for restoring faded, gray hair to its natural color dates back to grandmother's time. She used it to keep her hair beautifully dark, glossy and attractive. Whenever her hair took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect.

But brewing at home is messy and out-of-date. Nowadays by asking at any drug store for a bottle of "Wynth's Sage and Sulphur Compound" you will get this famous old preparation, improved by the addition of other ingredients, which can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair.

A well-known down-town druggist says it darkens the hair so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two it becomes beautifully dark and glossy.

Wynth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is a delightful toilet requisite for those who desire a more youthful appearance. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

CATTEGAT SKIRMISH WAS A STRATEGIC BRITISH VICTORY

Careful Planning Which Lies Behind Every Move on Naval Chart Exemplified by Recent Naval Activity—Huns as Barbarous as Usual

Base of British Grand Fleet, Nov. 9.—(Correspondence of the Associated Press).—The recent naval action in the Cattegat, where the British sank a German cruiser and ten armed patrol ships is an example of the careful planning which lies behind every move on the naval chart. A comparatively insignificant force of British destroyers and light cruisers were the actual stage performers in the morning and the action was over three hours later. The German fleet behind its fortifications received the calls for help, but dared not take a chance—probably well knowing that any attempt to aid out help would be confronted with enemies closing out of the sea from all directions.

A fog lay over the entire Cattegat throughout the action and the British destroyers attacked their victims one by one and sank them. The German auxiliary cruiser Marie, which was leading the fleet of patrol boats, was a ship of 3,000 tons. Her captain, Herr Lauterbach was wounded, but reached the Danish shore safely. His ship, which had four guns and a crew of 90, was "suddenly attacked," he said, in an interview with a Danish newspaperman afterward, "by a fleet of British destroyers and the shells fired by them descended with such rapidity that the men on the Marie were almost unable to use the guns. Only a few shots were fired before the ship was a mass of flames.

His unpopularity extended even to his own men and in the Cattegat battle the first remark made by a German sailor was that the British were making her way towards the Danish shore safely.

Moreover the Germans ruthlessly and unnecessarily sacrificed scores of innocent neutrals. The return of the British squadron to its base was quiet and unostentatious. By nightfall they were off again on their business of sweeping the sea. The crew of the fleet into the trade route between Norway and Scotland in hopes of repeating the German attack on the British convoy on October 17. The British commander concentrated his first of all on the Marie and then detached his fastest vessels to round up the escorting patrol vessels. This was thoroughly done after a hunt lasting nearly three hours. This report that he fired his guns as long as possible in the direction of the Marie was declared by a German sailor who declared that Lauterbach was "sailed with sunk as soon as the enemy appeared and that not a single shot was fired from the Marie's guns. Presumably the Marie was making her way towards the Danish shore safely.

The fighting about Flequaires began last night, but it was not until about 8 o'clock to-day that the British made an organized assault on the town. The tanks went ahead and were engaged immediately by seven heavy German guns, which began to fire at them point blank at short range. It was a critical moment for while the tanks will withstand heavy fire, they cannot be expected to stand up long under big shells hurled from guns only a short distance away.

The British infantry which swarmed through behind the tanks saw the predicament of their iron friends and deliberately charged the enemy artillery with rifles and hand grenades. All the guns were captured and their crews were killed.

A similar incident occurred at Fremy Cappelle, northwest of Maroing, where three guns were stormed and their crews annihilated. The mounted troops got into Maroing and Masieres last night, and in the latter town engaged in sanguinary battle with German infantry. An enemy battery there was giving trouble, and a squad of horsemen charged the position, shooting or sabering the entire gun crew. Another battery at Rumilly was taken in similar fashion.

Graincourt was carried by storm, cavalry, tanks and infantry working together. The British forces at the latest reports have carried their line in this section northward to the Bapaume-Cambrai road.

The Germans ran from Ribecourt with the British close at their heels. This town is a mass of ruins, partly on account of shell fire and partly from lack of repairs. The German dugouts were left intact.

The occupation of Maroing and Masieres was a great stroke for the British, as it gave them much needed crossings for the Escalut River and canal, which forms a natural barrier to the advance from this direction. Cavalry, infantry and tanks were poured immediately across these passages and proceeded to work northward.

Military necessity precluded the mention of cavalry in the first dispatches regarding the present offensive, but it may now be said that the mounted men went into action at 11.30 o'clock yesterday morning after the tanks had opened the way through the barbed wire. This was one of the features of the battle in which General Pershing appeared to take deep interest while he was at the front yesterday. It has been a wonderful two days for the horsemen, who have been relegated to rear areas of the western front with a few exceptions since early in the war. Thousands of them have been operating over a wide area beyond the Hindenburg line.

action, it should be remembered, occurred in waters which the Germans regarded as practically one of their "inland seas." The Cattegat is the gateway to the Baltic. The scene of the fight is 600 miles from the nearest British coast, but less than 200 miles from Kiel. The Germans held their favorite "inland line" while the British forces had to cross the North Sea, go up through the Skagerrak and then around the Skaw. The Germans had every chance to execute a coup, cutting off the retreat of the British forces by bringing superior units up the coast to the entrance of the Skagerrak. That they did not dare to attempt this is evidence of their appreciation of the initiative and resource of the British navy.

An interesting comparison might be made between this clean victory by the British destroyers and the hit-and-run raid by the German light cruisers on a British convoy on October 17. On the occasion of the raid one of their fastest cruisers in the darkness, struck their blows in nervous haste in the early morning hours, not even pausing to recite a single life of hundreds of combatants and non-combatants, then ran away northward to spend the remaining hours of daylight in hiding, and when night fell dashed down the Norwegian coast and thus returned home without being intercepted.

On the occasion of the British victory, the fight occurred not in the North Sea, but on German's doorstep, not at night, but in daylight; not hurriedly or nervously, for 64 prisoners were taken, drowning men rescued from the water, thus proving the great contrast between German and British methods of warfare.

Moreover the Germans ruthlessly and unnecessarily sacrificed scores of innocent neutrals.

The return of the British squadron to its base was quiet and unostentatious. By nightfall they were off again on their business of sweeping the sea. The crew of the fleet into the trade route between Norway and Scotland in hopes of repeating the German attack on the British convoy on October 17. This report that he fired his guns as long as possible in the direction of the Marie was declared by a German sailor who declared that Lauterbach was "sailed with sunk as soon as the enemy appeared and that not a single shot was fired from the Marie's guns. Presumably the Marie was making her way towards the Danish shore safely.

LOCAL NEWS ITEMS

IS MISSING. Pte. J. A. McLeod of this city is officially reported missing in this afternoon's casualty list.

NO ANSWERS AFTER SATURDAY. Questions sent to The Courier office after Friday noon, for "Cunning, the Man Who Knows," will not be answered. As Cunning makes his final appearance at the Grand on Saturday evening, it will be impossible for The Courier to secure answers after to-morrow evening. Any questions sent in by noon are the only ones which can be considered.

MAY ATTEND MEETINGS. By reason of a change in the King's regulations through an order in council at Ottawa, officers and soldiers will now be able to attend political meetings. Hitherto the King's regulations forbade any officer or soldier instituting or taking part in any meetings, demonstrations or processions for party or political purposes in barracks, quarters, camps or their vicinity, and under no circumstances could either attend such meetings, wherever held, if in uniform.

EVERYBODY BUYING. With the victory war loan campaign over half over, officials estimate that the number of applications is already nearly triple those for the last loan, which was distributed amongst forty-two thousand subscribers. This is regarded as one of the most gratifying features of the campaign. Reports received at Ottawa show that the farmers and employees of industrial establishments are responding even more readily than was anticipated.

BROTHERS WOUNDED. Ptes. Charles and Norman McInnis, nephews of Mr. Fred W. Kerr of this city, have been wounded together while serving in the trenches, according to word received here. The two young men, whose parents reside at Medora, Manitoba, enlisted in the West and went overseas with the 79th battalion.

MILITARY WEDDING. A cablegram was received in the city to-day announcing that the marriage took place in Willey church on Tuesday of Lieut. Hugh D. Livingston, second son of P. M. and Mrs. Livingston, to Florence Alexander, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Alexander, Toronto. Brantford friends will join in hearty congratulations and best wishes.

LANDED SAFELY. It is officially announced through the chief press censor's office that the following troops have arrived in England: 236th battalion, Montreal; Drafts—Royal Canadian Regiment from Halifax; Fifth Royal Highlanders, Montreal; C. M. R. depot, Hamilton; A. M. C. Montreal; Quebec; Artillery, Petawawa; Forestry, Aldershot; Royal flying corps, pilots, Toronto; details.

NO CHANGE IN LINE-UP. With reports in from all constituencies where nominations occurred, the clerk of the crown in chancery, at Ottawa, says there is no change in the political line-up. The list of acclamations remains at twenty—twelve Laurier Liberals in Quebec and eight Unionists in the other provinces.

POLICE COURT. Apparently convinced by the United States' entry into the war, that the currency of that country had risen in value, Pietro Rocco, an Italian recently attempted to pass off a $1 bill for five times its face value. He was arraigned in the police court yesterday afternoon on a charge of false pretences and was remanded until to-day. Three drunks paid the customary $10 and costs. Adam Aird paid $10 and costs for cruelly treating a horse. Frederick John Walters was remanded for one week on a charge of false pretences. A charge against Archie Anderson of non-support was settled and the charge dropped.

NOT ANOTHER CALL YET. Reports that the second class of men under the Military Service Act are to be called out in February are officially declared to be absolutely without foundation. E. L. Newcombe, Ottawa, chairman of the Military Service Council, was shown the statement alleged to have been made by Judge Winchester of Toronto, as to such rumors being current. "The calling out of the second class," Mr. Newcombe said, "has not been discussed and there is nothing in the present situation to make it necessary to consider the question." The second class comprises: "Those who have attained the age of 20 years and were born not earlier than 1885 and are married, or widowers who have a child or children."

DIED OF WOUNDS. By the death of Pte. Chas. Long, who died of wounds, Brantford has lost a valued citizen. He was born in London, Eng., and was 45 years of age, served 18 years in the First Bedfordshires, went through the Boer war, and obtained a chartered medal in 1916. He came to Canada five years ago, and enlisted in the 126th battalion early in 1916. Prior to enlistment he was employed at the Adams Wagon Works, where he was considered a valuable employee and a friend to all. Pte. Long went through many battles, including Vimy Ridge. On Nov. 11 he was reported wounded and made the supreme sacrifice a few days later in Rouen hospital. Much sympathy is extended to Mrs. Long.

WON'T ASK EXEMPTION. The executive officers of the Canadian Northern Railway System will not apply for exemption for any employee in Class 1, regardless of the capacity in which he is employed, according to an official circular signed by D. B. Hanna, third vice-president. The policy of the company is that, while it is essential that the railway be maintained and operated, the question of whether an employee should be retained in the service, or released for military duty is for the tribunals to decide. Heads of departments have been instructed that employees who are eligible for service in Class 1 and who have not reported for service or applied for exemption, must not be continued in the company's employ.

FLIGHT LIEUTENANT PATERSON

Is in Hospital—Case Not Considered Serious

Mrs. W. M. Paterson, 304 William Street, to-day received the following cablegram: "Lieut. W. M. Paterson, Royal Flying Corps, 23rd Squadron, was admitted Nov. 19th to 24th General Hospital, Etaples. His case has not been diagnosed, but was considered slight. Further report sent immediately received."

The above refers to Lieut. Morton Paterson, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Paterson, and grandson of the late Hon. William Paterson. He has been in the thick of the aerial fighting on the western front for some time and has had more than one close call. Many friends will sincerely hope that he may have a speedy recovery.

Wedding Bells
BROUND—ROBERTS. (Sydney Record.) The Jubilee Methodist Church was the scene of a quiet but very pretty wedding on Sunday afternoon at half-past five when the marriage of Annie Mousdale, daughter of Sgt. and Mrs. Harry C. Roberts, to Mr. Ernest Mather Bround, R.N.C.V.R., took place, Rev. J. W. Bartlett officiating. The bride, who was given away by her father, looked charming in a travelling costume of navy blue with large white hat and black fox furs, the latter the gift of the groom, and carried a sheaf of white carnations. Miss Gladys Marshall, in a costume of brown cloth with hat to match, and carrying a bouquet of pink carnations, was bridesmaid and Mr. Harry Everett, R.N.C.V.R., was groomsmen. After the ceremony the bridal party went to the home of the bride's parents, where only the immediate family and friends were present. Mr. and Mrs. Bround left on the evening train for a short honeymoon at the groom's home in Brantford. Only after which Mr. Bround will rejoin his ship. The bride was the recipient of a great number of very beautiful gifts. The groom's gift to the bridesmaid was a coin purse and to the groomsmen a pipe.

BORDEN AND ROWELL RECEIVE A GREAT OVATION IN MASSEY HALL

Premier Opens Ontario Campaign With Vigorous Speech—More Liberals and Labor Men to be Added to the Cabinet Montreal Wholesale Exemptions Will Not be Allowed to Stand

Toronto, Nov. 22.—"I want this to sink into the heart and mind of every man and woman in this country: it will matter little to us if we are successful or not. For it is to our children after us that what happens to the fortunes of any individual or any political party, but it will mean much to us whether the effort which we have made in this war is to be successful or not. For it is the people of the enemy nations are not taught that war is not a profitable enterprise then we will have fought in vain, and more than thirty thousand Canadians who lie beneath the soil in France and Flanders will have died in vain. I firmly believe that the purpose of the Canadian people as expressed by their vote on the 17th of December next will affirm in uncertain tones that that sacrifice has not been and shall not be in vain."

In these words, ringing out like a challenge to the great audience facing him, Sir Robert Borden, speaking in Massey Hall last night, wound up a masterly declaration of Government policy. And from every corner of the great auditorium in a tremendous burst of applause came the assurance that the Prime Minister had truly gauged the sentiment and the determination of the Canadian people. The opening of the Ontario campaign in Toronto last night must have given comfort and inspiration to Sir Robert Borden and his colleagues. The weather could hardly have been worse, the rain pelting down steadily all evening, but long before the opening of the meeting a cordon of police were busy turning away the hundreds of people who had to be denied admission. Inside the hall every seat right to the last row in the top gallery was occupied. The place of honor was given to some two hundred returned soldiers, who held the front rows on the ground floor, and the crowd showed its temper by standing and cheering while some of the khaki-clad heroes, arriving late, hobbled in on crutches.

Upon the platform were many of the leading men of all ranks of life, both Conservatives and Liberals, and the strongly represented Sir William Hearst and practically the whole Ontario Cabinet were present. Representatives of the city council, the churches and the bench rubbed shoulders and mingled freely. Among them were scores of returned soldiers.

To Sir Robert Borden was accorded such a reception as he never received in Toronto in the old days—and the Prime Minister has had more than one roaring welcome from his supporters in the first city of the province. When he entered the building the thousands in the hall stood up and cheered him time and again. The women, of whom there were hundreds present, waved their handkerchiefs with an enthusiasm that rivalled that of their men-folks.

A Convincing Address
The Prime Minister's address was a characteristic effort. It was a measured, convincing recital of events leading up to conscription and the formation of a Union Government. There was no appeal to passion, no attempt to stir up racial feeling, no set one part of the Dominion against another. His references to conscription were couched in reassuring terms, but beneath them could be felt an unwavering determination to see that come what may the men at the front will not be left without support. Sir Robert repeated his earlier statement that there was no thought of calling out the married men or single men except those in categories A. He held out to those who feel that just claims for exemption have been refused the opportunity of having their cases reviewed and investigated removed, but at the same time he declared with considerable emphasis that the Government will not tolerate exemptions en masse.

"The Government," he said, "is taking good care to see that appeals are taken out on its behalf against those who may be honest upon wholesale or indiscriminate exemption."

The Prime Minister did not mention Quebec, but the crowd apparently interpreted his words as an assurance that the wholesale exemption Quebec centres would not be permitted to stand, for the declaration was received with enthusiastic applause.

Mr. Rowell in Fine Form
Hon. N. W. Rowell roused the audience with a fighting speech, in which he made short work of the attempts of the Laurier-Liberal element to pillory Unionist Liberals as deserters and renegades. "We are the real Liberals," said Mr. Rowell. The former Liberal leader in Ontario did not attempt to make a defence on behalf of the Liberals who had joined Sir Robert Borden's Government. None was necessary. Mr. Rowell declared that the men who had joined Sir Robert Borden in a Union Government were the very men who would have formed a government had the Liberals been returned to power prior to the present crisis. The mass meeting last night not only endorsed Union Government by its enthusiastic applause, but it went definitely upon record. With a striking demonstration of approval, the great audience accepted a resolution moved by Sir William Hearst and seconded by ex-Major Thomas Urquhart, a life-long Liberal, expressing full confidence in Union Government under the leadership of Sir Robert Borden, and calling upon patriotic citizens everywhere to rise above party considerations in order that the country might do its full duty to the men at the front.

Norman Sommerville was the first speaker of the evening, and he made an eloquent and effective appeal on behalf of the Victory Loan. In introducing the Prime Minister of Canada, J. R. L. Starr, who presided, said that if at this time last year, anyone had told him he would stand on a platform with so many Liberals, he would not have believed him. "The Liberals on the platform," he said "are just as loyal to Canada and the British flag as are the Conservatives, and as solid behind Sir Robert Borden as are the members of Sir Robert's own party." "The man who brought this union about is on the platform," he said, and the audience again wildly applauded Premier Borden. "He has succeeded in uniting the forces of Canada in the war," said Mr. Starr, and again Sir Robert was cheered. The chairman referred to the patience with which Sir Robert had negotiated for Union, and declared that if a modern nation were to rewrite the Book of Job he would be proud to refer to the great and patient figure who for years had directed the destiny of Canada.

Boxing Coming to Own, Says Fighting Parson

"Kid" Wedge, Now Sky Pilot, Tells Why Boxing is Greatest Sport—Believes That Game is Gradually Becoming More Respected

Chicago, Nov. 20.—Here's a boost for boxing, and who do you suppose springs it?

None other than the Rev. Fred R. Wedge, the "fighting parson" of Chicago. Interest in boxing is even more predominant to-day with the Rev. Wedge than it was in the days when Kid Wedge climbed through the ropes to do battle for the glory and money that went with it.

A good many years ago Kid Wedge was a professional prizefighter. That was before he had decided on a "lasting" career. He was fairly successful as a fighter, but when his days as a scrapper came to an end, he finally took up theology and became a minister. For several years the Rev. Wedge was pastor of the Rhinecland, Wis., Presbyterian Church. While there he formed a boxing club of the boys of the church. He called them "the boys who could pray as well as fight."

But perhaps it would be best to let the Rev. Wedge give his own views. Here's what he has to say:

"The interest of our soldier boys in the boxing game has given me much pleasure. Since I led the prize ring for the work of the ministry, fifteen years ago, I have always been a friend of the sport, and have advocated that boxing teaches a man to fight at his best without getting angry. No one can fight a great fight when blinded by anger, with his judgment weakened by the fury of madness."

"The best way to defeat the 'kaiser devil' will be to encourage boxing along with military training, producing cool fighting humans able to beat the kaiser's army without personal animosity toward the Fritz of Germany. For years I have been trying to co-operate with the sporting writers of the newspapers to help the public see the benefits of boxing when conducted by incorporated, bonded and licensed clubs, holding contests under rules and regulations of efficient state boxing commissions such as the Wisconsin state law permits.

"Much unkind criticism from many good, religious but misinformed members of some church has been directed toward me. Boxing is coming to its own now. In this hour of our nation's need, when manhood is a premium and our country has need of every ounce of her man-power, boxing is helping train our soldier boys to become more efficient fighters, that Prussianism and kaiserism may be crushed forever and the world made safe for democracy."

Boxers of the Great Lakes Naval Training Station have been invited by Kid Howard to see members of the Arcade gymnasium perform in an amateur tournament at the gym Saturday afternoon. Johnny Moran and George Sulages, rival middleweights, will box three rounds for the gymnasium championship. Moran and Sulages are two of the best boys developed in the 158-pound division in some years, according to Sam Lauffer, who has been working with both men. Howard is grooming a team of amateurs to take to Cleveland and Pittsburg within the next month.

Is it any Wonder That Ball-Players Feel They Deserve Silly Salaries

Secretary of St. Louis Browns Tells Some Interesting Facts Concerning Life of Pastimers During Season

Willis Johnson, traveling secretary of the St. Louis Browns, who associates with ball players daily seven months in the year, catering to the needs and wants of their August majesties read the story of Jack Glasscock's 1885 contact with a St. Louis club and the comparisons made with present day conditions in connection with it, and then offered a few interesting comments of his own based on the experiences of a major league club secretary, showing how the player of modern times has to be waited on and catered to.

"The story about Glasscock was very good, but even it fails of explaining the true conditions under which the player of to-day is ushered through what has been called his 'slavery' said Secretary Johnson.

"It's wonderful what a change has taken place in the player's conditions in 25 years. Knowing the present ball playing temperament, it is difficult indeed to believe that ball players as set forth in Glasscock's contract, once stood a tap of 50 cents a day as a contribution to the club for their board while traveling. The present day player is treated with as much deference as a high-salaried opera singer.

"There is little the ball player ever wants that he does not get. Lower berths on the Pullman, suites of outside rooms at the best hotels in the country and other incidents too numerous to mention.

"The player of to-day really has no expense save while he is playing in his home town. When on the road his grip is taken to and from the hotel to station for him, his trunk is also looked after in the same manner, all of which costs the club owner a neat little total. In every city where American league teams play there is a club house boy who only 'suffers' the player in placing them in the lockers upon arrival of trunks at the end of the series.

"This club boy is paid $10 by the visiting club for each series of games. Towels are sent to the park by the hotels and for this service the club pays the hotel."

It's a fairly interesting lot of detail and expense that the player has taken off his mind. And while Secretary Johnson's purpose in telling the story may be to exploit the magnate's magnanimity, he none the less makes it clear the "eiderdown" is a hard place to fall into, when compared to a pall player's berth.

PROFITEERING BY ENEMY MINISTERS

German Government Officials May be Involved in Big Scandal

Copenhagen, Nov. 21.—The makings of a German Government scandal are contained in an article written by Dr. Heim, leader of the Bavarian Peasant party, attacking high officials of the Government purchasing and distributing agencies for private profiteering at the public expense. Discussing the sale of the Danube mercantile fleet, established by the Central Purchasing Society for transporting grain and food products from Roumania and Hungary to the Bavarian Lord, a provisional shipping concern, Dr. Heim shows that the Bavarian Lord was given an extraordinary bargain. He charges also that Privy Councillor Frisch, managing director of the Central Purchasing Society, who negotiated the sale, has become a director of the steamship concern as has a high Bavarian official.

Dr. Heim declares that six other high officials of the Government purchasing agency are in the pay of alleged private concerns. The Central Purchasing Society is a Government monopoly established to purchase and import foodstuffs from abroad. The Bavarian Lord is a Danube shipping concern in which the Hamburg-American line and the Bavarian royal house are interested.

Dr. Heim, who is president of the so-called Peasants' League, long has waged war against the various Governmental food and raw material monopolies.

High School Club Meeting

The first meeting of the High School club was held Tuesday night when fifty boys sat down to supper in the Y. M. C. A. In the absence of the President-elect, and the Vice-President, the chair was taken by last year's President, Mr. Harry Waddington.

A most pleasing feature of the programme was the playing of Mr. Voyles, who kindly responded to two enclosures. Mr. T. H. Jones gave a most appropriate recitation "The Old Man and Jim," and two minute addresses were given by Messrs. G. H. Williamson and A. W. Geddes, of the Y. M. C. A., Mr. A. W. Burt, Hon. President of the club, and Messrs. S. F. Passmore, R. W. McEadden and W. H. Green of the Collegiate, and Rev. J. W. Gordon, the three latter being members of the club.

The Rev. G. A. Woodside then gave a stirring address on the responsibility resting on High School boys in view of present conditions, and future possibilities.

The "Possibilities" or "Old Boys" of the school were represented by seven members last night, and it is expected that this group will be one of the strong features of the club.

The supper, pronounced by the boys to be "some supper" was provided by the following committee of ladies: Mrs. H. V. Hutton, convener, Mrs. (Rev.) Logan, Mrs. H. Crayston, Mrs. Dr. Amos, Mrs. Chas. Ludlow, and Mrs. J. A. Pearce. The depth of the appreciation felt by the boys was shown by the heartiness with which they responded to the customary "three cheers for the ladies."

The High School club will now meet every Tuesday, holding Bible study and vocational evenings alternately after their regular supper.

PAID TO GET IN SHAPE

In the spring of the year, say along about March 1, the player receives notice to report for training. If he happens to belong to the St. Louis club, we'll say that he is over in Indiana or Ohio, he reports to the manager from his home town at a first class hotel until the time for the start some in the winter, together with that of his coming to St. Louis from his home is paid by the club.

The player is taken to some southern training camp, where he is housed six weeks. His expenses while getting himself in condition to earn his salary, are paid and he is allowed to draw advance money. The player is allowed to look after the camp in the morning about 8 and practice twice a day, when the weather permits. A trainer is carried for the purpose of looking after the players, attending chiefly to sore muscles. Some players have their arms rubbed very frequently.

When the team returns from the South the players are allowed to remain at a first-class hotel until such time as the season is officially opened. They are compelled to pay their own expenses while playing in their own "home town" in the winter. ALLOWED $3.50 DAILY FOR EATS "As soon as the team begins a

A C.V.B. FOR XMAS.

There is no better Christmas present than a Victory Bond of whatever denomination you can afford.

A lot of Christmas presents—some quite costly, too—are broken or worn out inside of a few months. Very few last five years, and some last ten or twenty years. And still fewer are worth as much at the end of five, ten or twenty years as they were originally.

But consider the Victory Bond. It can be bought to last for either one of the periods mentioned, and at the end of its period it is absolutely as good as new. That is beyond dispute. For at the end of the period Canada pays the holder in gold the amount which was originally paid for the bond. Moreover, this payment will be made promptly in one lump sum, while the original buyer is allowed to spread his purchase of the bond over a period of five months.

So the Victory Bond is an ideal present. It does not "wear out." It is never forgotten. Every six months there comes a reminder of it in the shape of interest at five and a half per cent. per annum.

The Victory Loan is in keeping with the spirit of Christmastide. It is a loan for the liberation of the world. It will be Canada's Christmas gift to the Allied cause. It is a contribution to the birth of a new era in which oppression shall no longer be able to stalk abroad under the guise of Prussianism.

Viewed practically or viewed sentimentally, there is no Christmas present like a Victory Bond.

REFUSED TO FIGHT.

Ottawa, Nov. 21.—Harold Morris, clerk in the interior department, was arraigned in police court to-day charged with refusing to comply with the terms of the Military Service Act. He pleaded guilty and was remanded for a week. Morris refused absolutely to retract from the stand he took when he was arraigned last week, claiming that his utter lack of sympathy with the war aims of the belligerent government precluded the possibility of his submitting his case to the arbitration of a military tribunal.

Rippling Rhymes

I hate the winter; then my aunts fill all the house with potted plants, which lately grew outdoors; there are begonias, palms and ferns which were a fellow turf, on window-sills and floors. It makes me sad to plant my feet in boxes of nasturtiums sweet, when hunting for a book; it makes a weary toiler hot to bump his head against a pot suspended from a hook. I have to pack big pots of flowers from place to place, at divers hours, so they will get the sun; I pack them all around the coop, and now I set them on the stoop, the worst is never done. Oh, there are pots upon the shelves where stood the works of Richard Realf, and pots upon the stairs; and there are pots of silly greens where I would keep my magazines, and pots upon the wall, I have to drop my clanging lyre, and go to tend the furnace fire, so some blamed plants won't freeze; I have to leave my downy cot to see that some old swinging pot escapes the winter breeze. I have to water foolish plants and keep them free from bugs, and ants and worms and grubs and bots; and till the long, long winter goes, I'll bump my brow and bust my nose against the hanging pots.

SIDE TALKS

Isn't it an astonishing thing the way people who have been having a hard struggle to make their incomes cover their standards of living, and hating that struggle bitterly, will act when their incomes are enlarged? One would think their first feeling would be—here at last is freedom from this bitter struggle. I can pay my bills and stop worrying.

But no, nine times out of ten their first thought appears to be, now I can buy a piano, or a music box, or some more expensive clothes, or an automobile or have a telephone. And to the margin that would have meant freedom from struggle disappears, and the struggle goes on, dealing with larger sums to be sure, but just as bitter, just as harassing just as peace destroying as ever. That is, naturally such people must spend their increases.

Mind you I do not speak now of people who are below the dead line of a decent living wage. Naturally they spend any increase they get. Or rather they don't do anything as active as spend it, they simply see it gobbled up by the necessities of existence. I mean people living in decency and comfort.

Not long ago I was visiting a woman who with her husband has been waging a hand to hand fight for some years with narrow means. Life had grown a little smoother for them the last few months, the business her husband has been struggling to establish is at last beginning to show signs of life and activity. She told me that he had made twice as much in the last six months' as in the six months before that.

"Isn't that splendid," I said, "and what are you going to do with all that money?"

As we talked she was picking up her bedroom and at that question she suddenly swooped down and picked up a worn pair of bedroom slippers. She held them towards me. "I'm going to buy myself a new decent pair of slippers without feeling extravagant," she said, "or without thinking I ought to wait until Christmas and see if someone doesn't give them to me."

I supposed I looked astonished for she went on.

Money to Replace Things That Wear Out

"I mean that's the sort of thing I'm going to do, not try to get a lot more things or nicer things, but just have enough money to replace little things when they wear out without wondering where the money will come from and if I can afford it. That's enough luxury for me."

In other words the money was not to mean more possessions to her but more peace.

Peace of mind is one of the most blessed things in the world.

Why we continually pass it up for the sake of more "things" and still more things, is one of the riddles of existence.

U. S. TO DECLARE WAR ON AUSTRIA

Relations to be Broken Off at the Next Allied Conference

Rome, Nov. 21.—Prevailing opinion here in well-informed circles is that declaration of war between the United States and Austria will follow immediately upon the allied conference in Paris.

Our correspondent has been given assurance that whether or not Venice is defended, if menaced with immediate invasion, will depend upon special circumstances connected with developments in the military situation.

The Austrian Empress in reply to a telegram sent to her by the Geneva Press Association asking her to take Venice and its treasures under her protection, says: "It is understood that an open town which makes no attempt to defend itself has certainly the right to every indulgence. Nevertheless, the fate of Venice depends entirely upon the action of the Italian Government."

The Official Report. The Italian War Office report said: "Yesterday there was intense artillery activity on the whole front of the coastal zone. The national navy and British monitors lent effective co-operation."

In the afternoon the enemy three times made violent attacks on Monte Bertica, north-west of Monte Grappa. He was repulsed each time with severe losses. On Monte Tomba and Monte Montebelluna the infantry actions were not renewed.

Our aircraft carried out effective bombardment operations, and engaged in several duels with hostile aeroplanes, as a result of which two enemy machines were downed.

The war correspondent of the Berlin Lokal Anzeiger says the Teutonic allied movement for turning the Italian left flank is now being executed in the face of great Italian superiority.

The Frankfurter Zeitung asserts that the Italians, reinforced with strong defenses on the lower Piave River.

Hot Water Each Morning Puts Roses in Your Cheeks

To look one's best and feel one's best is to enjoy an inside bath each morning to flush from the system the previous day's waste, our fermentations and poisonous toxins before it is absorbed into the blood. Just as coal, when it burns, leaves behind a certain amount of incalculable material in the form of ashes, so the food and drink taken each day leave in the alimentary organs a certain amount of indigestible material, which, if not eliminated, form toxins and poisons which are then sucked into the blood through the very ducts which are intended to suck in only nourishment to sustain the body.

The American troops are getting extensive instruction in modern war methods and they are efficient soldiers when they get as far as the trenches.

POULTRY SHOW ON

Fine Exhibits of All Classes of Feathered Stock to Be Seen

A record entry list and exhibits of record quality, feature this year's Brantford and Brant County Poultry and Pet Stock Show, which is now open in the Empire Building on Colborne street, where the first poultry show ever conducted in Ontario was held in 1870.

The entries now on exhibit at the show exceed the eight hundred mark, and officials deplore the number of entries which were made when too late to be placed on exhibit, which if put in sooner, would have probably increased the list by half. Despite this fact, the entries are the largest in the history of the association, and are moreover, probably of record high quality. Leghorns constitute the majority of the exhibits, with Wyandottes, Rocks, second and third respectively. Other classes are represented, turkeys, ducks, geese, pigeons, rabbits and cats. Despite the large entry list, the judges have completed their exacting task, and all the prizes have been awarded.

The officials and directors of the association are desirous of pointing out that the show is open to school children from four to five o'clock, with a view to encouraging poultry production at a time when it becomes at once a need and a patriotic duty.

MUTINY AMONG RUSS TROOPS ON WEST FRONT

Revolt Among Maximalist Followers Was Soon Suppressed

By Courier Leased Wire. London, Nov. 21.—Official report of a mutiny of 10,000 Russian troops in France has been published by the provisional government in the Russian press. Soon after the revolution had broken out in Russia, there appeared in Paris a number of newspapers of the most extreme views. These papers reached the Russian troops in France, and there began a mutiny broke out. Drastring measures were adopted by the French military authorities. Food was shut off, but the mutiny went on. Finally the artillery was turned on the rebels and they surrendered.

The Russian losses were eight killed and forty wounded. The French casualties were one killed and one wounded. And of the Russian loyal troops one was killed and five wounded.

In the course of disarming the rebels, 81 arrests were made. Then the rest were formed up in battalions, two of which, composed of the most ardent elements, were sent to Bourges, the other to the Isle of Aix. The others will remain at Lacourtine until the end of an inquiry ordered by the provisional government.

Good Night Stories

BOBBY AND DOTTY'S ODD ADVENTURE.

Bobby and Dotty started out in search of adventure. Bobby took his puggin along so in case they met a giant he'd be ready for him, and away they trudged toward the woods. They had gone but a short way when Bobby heard a strange voice call from the hill ahead. "Whip-her-will! Whip-her-will!" commanded the voice.

Bobby looked at Dotty. "I bet Will's a giant," he whispered, "and he's going to whip some little girl."

Dotty took hold of her brother's hand. "In the bushes just ahead sounded the pitiful cry of a cat. The children stopped to listen.

"Whip-her-will! Whip-her-will," he called more pitifully than before. "No, it's a bad boy and he's hurting that cat," cried Bobby, and they ran toward the sound.

Bobby picked up the cat, and a startled bird flew away. Again came the cat cry from another clump of bushes, and the children followed the sound, but they couldn't find any cat.

"Whip-her-will!" cried the strange voice from the hills. "I bet he'll not beat that cat if I find him," whispered Bobby, and he put the cork in his puggin, and they started to hurry, but Dotty caught her foot in a twig and fell. Bobby picked her up, but they had to wait for her foot to stop hurting.

"Girls can't go venturing, they get hurt and tired too easy," exclaimed Bobby. "We'd have caught him if you hadn't stumbled."

"Hello," called a happy voice, and Squeedee stood before them. "Hurt your foot? I'll soon fix that," and Squeedee took the cork from his cap and sang some magic words. Bobby's foot stopped hurting, and Dotty was soon dancing around.

"I'm all right now. Maybe Squeedee'll help us punish that bad boy," cried Dotty.

So they told Squeedee about the boy by the name of Will who was certainly hurting a poor little cat. "Did you see him? What's he like?" asked Squeedee.

"That's just it! We can't find him nor the fellow who's making him do it," replied Bobby.

"We can't find the cat, but we can find him crying," added Dotty. Just then there came the cry of the cat from a clump of bushes, and again from the hills the command, "Whip-her-will!"

Squeedee looked from Dotty to Bobby. "Is that your bad boy?" he whispered.

The children nodded, and Squeedee began to laugh.

"Why, that's only a whippoorwill calling to his mate, a dear little bird. And the one in the bushes crying is a bird, too. His cry sounds so much like a cat crying that folks have given him the name of cat-bird," laughed Squeedee.

"Then Squeedee blew on a tiny whistle and the two birds came at his call, and each sang his evening song for Dotty and Bobby.

"That's a good joke on us, for we were sure it was a naughty boy teasing a cat," laughed Bobby. Bidding Squeedee good-bye they ran home to tell mamma of their adventure.

The Sealed Valley

(From Wednesday's Daily.)
 There was the little grassy shelf in the bank where she had lain—the coarse voices of the men above proclaimed the scene horribly.
 Ralph's face as he climbed the bank was serene. His greeting was as bland and offhand as a school-boy's. The four men were sitting on the ground playing "jack-pot."
 As Ralph had pleasantly anticipated, their jaws dropped upon his appearance.

Only Stack answered his greeting.
 Cards in hand, the little man jumped up obsequiously, but Joe Mixer barked at him, and he sat down abruptly.
 Joe scowled at his cards like a hangman.
 The game proceeded as if Ralph were not there.
 Ralph's cheeks began to burn at the implied insult, but he clapped his anger under hatches. He saw clearly enough that Joe was waiting for him to make an opening for a quarrel.
 Drawing closer, he coolly overlooked the game.

They had a folded blanket between them to play the cards upon. In lieu of chips they used matches. The half-breed was winning. He was a fine specimen of physical manhood a year or two younger than Ralph,
 with a bold, conceited face.
 He scarcely took pains to hide his contempt for the three white men of his party, and Ralph observed that even Joe was inclined to truckle to him, like a bully to one whose strength he has not measured.

Stack was obsequious all around.
 In the third white man Ralph recognized Crusoe Campbell, a disreputable character well known up and down the river of that name. He had the reputation of being not quite right in his head, which he traded upon to his advantage.

His wits were good enough to play
 a crafty game of poker.
 So much for Ralph's observations.
 "A run outfit!" he thought grimly.
 When the cards were collected for a fresh deal Ralph asked coolly:
 "What are the stakes?"

"Nickel a match," answered Crusoe Campbell.
 "Give me the worth of that," he said, throwing a five dollar bill on the blanket. "You," he said, indicating the half-breed; "what's your name?"

"Philippe Bolwert," the breed announced swaggeringly.
 Crusoe Campbell and Philippe made room between them, and Ralph sat down. All looked covertly at Joe to see how he would take it. Joe, still scowling, kept his eyes down and said nothing. The game went on.

Ralph's bluff was as yet uncalced.
 Outwardly as cool as the ideal poker-player, Ralph was on the alert for an explosion. Under stress of excitement, his spirits soared like a bird taking wing. The corners of his lips twitched provokingly, and the shine of unhidden fire glowed in his dark eyes.

He bet recklessly; winning and losing with equal good humor.
 His good humor communicated itself to three of the other players. All men love a good gambler. The ill-assorted game became almost jolly.
 Only Joe grew more and more morose.

His face turned an ugly brownish red, and a vein stood out ominously on his forehead.
 When the explosion took place it was not directed at Ralph. Stack carried away by the appearance of general good feeling, during a pause while the cards were being shuffled had the misfortune to say, addressing Joe and Ralph:

"You two ought to shake hands and let bygones be bygones."
 Joe Mixer broke out on him so violently as to be almost comic. "You sneaking little two-faced informer!"
 he shouted with a whole string of oaths.

"Keep your lip out of my affairs, will you? I'll learn you to talk to your betters! You make me sick with your lying palaver! Get out of this game anyway! You ain't man enough to play poker!"
 Stack hastily retreated from the circle. The breed laughed. Crusoe Campbell quietly confiscated Stack's matches.

"Give me another box of cigarettes out of your bag," the breed said curtly.
 "A half-breed issuing orders to a white man and being obeyed!"
 thought Ralph.

"Bring up a pail of water from the river," commanded Crusoe.
 The little man had already become the camp drudge it appeared.

Stack sat down at a little distance from the game with a childish assumption of injured dignity. During the deals Joe alternately chaffed and reviled him coarsely.
 Ralph could not find it in his heart to feel very sorry for the little man.
 "He is a sneak," he thought. He kept his ears open for any word that might throw light on this obscure and curious situation.

After a while Stack said humbly:
 "Dr. Cowdray, if you please, I'd like to have a word with you before you go."
 "I'm damned if you do!" cried
 Joe. "You'd like to play him off against me, wouldn't you, and me against him, and get your private pickings off the both of us! Me and Cowdray we ain't got no use for each other. We don't make no pretences But you! You snide! You want to square yourself with him, don't you? After telling me you trailed him all the way from the coast!"

 "I have nothing to say to you!" cried Stack with a display of childish fury that caused all three of his mates to shout with laughter.
 A light broke on Ralph. Trailing all the way from the coast! To learn this was worth having come for!
 But why anybody should want to trail him was more of a mystery than ever.

He determined to find out.
 Meanwhile the game went on with four players. The fortune of the cards changed, and Joe Mixer began to win, principally from Ralph. His good humor was restored.

This was as good a way to get square as any. As Ralph's pile of matches melted away, Joe triumphed insolently. He doubled and trebled the ante whenever it came to him.
 Finally he said:
 "A dollar to draw and two to play! Does that scare you off, Doc?"
 "Not at all," said Ralph coolly.
 "This is mild beside the play in New York clubs."

"Well, it ain't hard to win all you've got," snarled Joe.
 "Three cards," said Ralph to the dealer. "This is my last hand."
 He had been dealt a pair of aces.
 He drew another ace with a pair of sixes; and a comfortable little satisfaction warmed his breast. His face was like the sphinx's.

Joe Mixer drew two cards. Ralph, watching him narrowly saw a tiny spark of satisfaction light his eye when he looked at them, and guessed that he held three and had drawn a pair. Revenge was as sweet to Ralph as anybody.

Joe bet in a small way, and Ralph raised him modestly. The others had dropped out.
 Joe raised again, and Ralph followed suit. Joe seeing that he was not to be shaken off began to plunge.
 Ralph's matches were exhausted long ago, and he threw the money on the blanket, raising Joe a dollar each time. Joe began to breathe hard and his face became as pale as a butcher's face may, except his ears which remained a furious crimson.

He raised Ralph five, and finally ten dollars at a time, hoping to bluff him out. Ralph covered his bets with a smile, and each time raised him one. A respectable little hill of greenbacks grew on the blanket.

Crusoe and the breed eyed it hungrily. Finally when it came to Joe's turn he stopped. Beads of perspiration had sprung out on his forehead.
 "What's the matter?" asked Ralph innocently. "Are you scared off?"

"No!" cried Joe with an oath.
 "Ain't got no more money," he added sheepishly. "Don't carry it on the trail. Will you take my I.O.U." Ralph shook his head. "A cash game you said. I'll take back my last raise and call you instead."

Joe with a great air of bravado laid down three kings and two queens.
 Ralph made believe to be dumfounded. Joe grinned and reached for the money with a trembling hand; whereupon Ralph counted out his three aces, and his pair of little ones.

"It's a shame to take all you've got," he said softly.
