My Mother's Faith

The fire upon the hearth is low,
And the wind whistles everywhere,
And the shadows round me creep,
The freight shadows entering
And as the shadows round me creep,
A childish trouble breaks the gloom,
And softly from a farther room
Comes, 'Now I lay me down to sleep,
And thus I'll sweetly doze away,
My thoughts goe back to days ago,
And lingers with a dear one there;
And as I hear my child's amen,
My mother's faith comes back to me,
And mother, holds my hands again,
Oh for an hour in that dear home,
On the rug by the fire-side,
Oh for a glimpse of mother's face,
Yes, as the shadows round me creep,
I do not seem to be alone—
Sweet magic of that noble tone,
And 'Now I lay me down to sleep'

Price of Sugar and Fruit.

The rise in the cost of sugar is taken by some to mean that fever-housewives will put up fruit this year. It should mean just the opposite. Fewer wives should buy expensive canned goods this year and do more of their own canning. It cannot be said that factory canned goods are not so good as home canned fruits, because, in many cases, the factory goods are better. A first-class factory is an excellent one, the quality of tin that goes into its cans as many a housewife is to have the best plate and glassware for her table. Added to this item (which comparatively few of the public ever notice) is the care bestowed on the selection of fruits and vegetables.

Before planting time comes round the large, first-class canneries have the ground for miles around engaged. They go farther and supply the seed to the growers. In this way they are perfectly certain of a uniform stand, and in size, flavor and ripening season. That is why certain brands remain the same season after season. The finest equipment is used in the best factories, every sanitary rule is insisted upon and every worker is required to be in fit condition both as to health and clothing. Few private kitchens, even those of the model housewife, are so perfectly equipped and conducted as a first-class cannery. So much so, that by an examination of three days, that it is literally true that hands never touch the product. This is the case with peas. The grower pulls the plants by the roots, loads them like hay, hauls them to the cannery and dumps them into a trough. Here a machine six or eight feet in diameter separates out in an almost uncanny way the pods from the vines. The latter travel off to one part of the plant and are picked for ensilage. The pods are opened by machinery and also carried away. The peas go riding off on a large belt, out of the vine building into another and then begin to descend. On the way the various sizes fall through certain holes into cans which travel along like people. At a certain place each can is filled with a weak brine, at another it receives a cover, at another is soiled and the cover driven on. At the next station the cans are inspected, and if one little thing is wrong the can is removed.

After passing the inspector the great kettle is packed with fifty or more cans, and the top fastened down all by machinery. The steam turned on the peas and cooked. Hand work begins when the labels are put on and the packing begins. No one can complain of either quality or taste in first-class goods. But such extra quality means an extra price and this the housewife can economize by doing her own canning even though sugar is dear.

The Drawback.

Recently two corks meet along the boulevard on an afternoon off, and during the interchange of confidence that followed it developed that one of them had left what seemed a very desirable place.

'It was a very nice place,' said the party referred to in explanation, 'and I would have been fairly comfortable but for the fact that the boss was an amateur photographer.'

'An amateur photographer?' returned the other wondering. 'What had that to do with it?'

'Everything,' answered the first with a deep sigh. 'At the dinner-table he used to photograph the joints before they were moved to the kitchen.'

Some of the students of Blackburn College in Carlisle, Ill., have novel dormitories. Two Pullman coaches were obtained by Dr. William M. Hudson, president of the college, and 40 or 50 students have taken up their quarters in them. The scheme was planned to give relief to the congestion in the student quarters.

The penniless German nobleman was courted as an American heiress. Well, he is going to buy you? asked a friend.

'Some times I think she is,' replied, but sometimes I think she is only shopping.

Restraint That Pays.

One of the most interesting things of the longevity tables just published by the Census Bureau is the increase in the number of women with which they show that they live longer than men. Very few of these are hard working women; they may be inclined to question the value of the statistic, but the man did not marry a woman, 'they don't'; it is a woman longer. But the figures are not to be questioned for themselves. A woman's life expectancy is 49 years. At the age of 18 she has 36 years to live. A man's life expectancy is 47 years. At the age of 18 he has 34 years to live. It is a little of the difference may be owing to such boyish habits as trying to see whether the ice is thick enough to bear; but that accounts for only a small part of the discrepancy.

Physicians have long known that women were much more susceptible to disease, and by 'better' they mean not merely with greater courage but with less injurious after-effects. The scholars who prepared the longevity figures think that women also have stronger constitutions; that is, are naturally less susceptible to disease, and more resistant to it when once contracted. It is not even to that, however, that they attribute woman's longer life, but to the fact that a great majority of the men slowly poison themselves to death by over-eating and by using alcohol and tobacco.

As a rule, women are much lighter eaters than men, as many a man may discover by going to a restaurant that caters chiefly to women, and trying to get a 'square' meal. But it is evident from the figures that it is the woman who is the wiser. Doubtless she eats all she needs. Over-eating with men is a relative matter. What was reasonable when they were young and had plenty of exercise is too much when age has cut the exercise. With women that condition does not hold good, for there is no great difference between the amount of exercise they get in youth and the amount they get in middle life. In fact, many a woman does more hard work after she is twenty-five than before that time. With her the amount of food to which she has become accustomed is all a reasonable amount. Youth's comparison.

A Weak Heart.

When the heart is weak or irregular in action, when the blood is thin and watery, remember the blood-forming quality of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and by its use flood the system with rich, vitalizing blood. This is Nature's way of driving weakness and disease. It is the only way to ensure lasting benefits.

Chinese Punishment.

Chinese law gives are not troubled with any sentimental scruples on the subject of flogging. Even a criminal condemned to death is given a preliminary thrashing instead of, as with us, being treated with sympathy and consideration until the hour of doom. Another feature of Chinese justice, so far as the law is concerned, is a strict impartiality.

Highborn offenders are flogged as ruthlessly as criminals of the lower order. The back of many a silk-clad dignitary has been scored with the leather thong of the whip wielded by sturdy Chinese officials, whose duty it has been to lay on the lash heavily, regardless of the rank of the victim, or pain of being flogged themselves.

The Chinese legal code prescribes for many offenses so trivial that in Europe they would be quite outside the scope of the law. Not all of the punishments are enforced nowadays but we may quote two of them as quaint examples. Fifty lashes were ordered to be given to any merchant or tradesman offering for sale goods not of the quality they are represented. Another while all gunlocks are discovered by a law that any military man who raises a monument to himself for deeds of heroism which he has never performed is to receive 100 lashes. —Pearson's Weekly.

A Year Indoors.

'For thirteen months I was so bad with my indigestion that I could not go out of doors. Nerves were unstrung, the heart bad and smothering feelings came on till I thought I would choke. Doctor treatments failed me, so I began the use of Dr. Chase's Kindney-Liver Pills, which I think for my present good health I am now doing my housework and have a family of ten.'

'My wife gave a reception yesterday.'

'Did you attend?'

'Yes, I played a practical joke on her. I got in love when she was receiving and, before she knew it, she was smiling and saying she was glad to see me.'

Fatal Reminder.

'Do you think, my darling,' he gurgled, as he buried his manly mouth in his charmer's silk soft neck, that your father will consent to our marriage?'

'Well, Popkins,' she replied, 'of course, papa will be sorry to lose me. —'—

...interrupted the prudent one. I will remind him that instead of using a daughter he will gain a son. A deadly pallor overspread her dark cheek.

'Careless, she cried, 'if you really want me I'll propose to say nothing so foolish. Papa has three or four living with him now, and he's a very ordinary touchy on the subject.'

David L. ... the 'Walt of Wall Street,' New York, has gone to the United States penitentiary to serve a two years sentence for impersonating a Congressman. Among other of the 'Walt's' many crimes was that of acting as paymaster of funds that the spy von Ruten planned to distribute to those who aided him in carrying out neutral acts in the United States, such as blowing up munition plants, blowing up bridges in Canada, and other base crimes in the grip with Boche methods and the 'Walt's' nature.

Jones was a kind hearted butcher. One day he was going home with a block of ice in his cart, but being called to dinner he left it in his shop.

On coming into the shop after dinner he was surprised to see a small boy sitting on the ice.

'Get off! You will be frozen,' roared Jones.

The boy did not get off, so Jones shouted at him a second time.

'Have you ever been a boy?' was the pitiful answer.

'Why, yes,' said Jones.

'Did you have a father?'

'Yes, returned Jones.

'Did your father have a strap?' asked the boy.

Then the light of understanding came to Jones, so he replied, softly 'Say there my lad, stay there.'

A witty young doctor, being called to attend a very pretty lady, and finding little the matter with her, humorously suggested marriage as the only cure.

'You are single, are you not?' she asked.

'Yes, madam, but doctors only prescribe remedies, they do not take them,' was the reply.

In a case where a Tennessee justice of the law was made fun of the other's grammar. The justice at once rose and said, 'Mr. Perkins, if you are one of them what thinks grammar runs in this Court you're barking up the wrong tree. If I hear any more such remarks as you have just made I'll fine you ten dollars.'

How to Win.

A young man from the country on going to a great city asked a noted editor how he could win fame and fortune and received the following reply:

First, get rid of all 'excellent' nonsense, stay down below and let the glacier and mountain peaks take care of themselves.

Second, do your work well no matter what it is. Study your business. Make yourself master of it by putting your head and heart into it. If it is bookkeeping, then keep books in such a fashion that the Angel Gabriel will want to lend you his crown as token of his approval. If you are a musician, artisan or farmer be proud of yourself and the rest of the world will soon be proud of you. Nothing is needed so much in this generation as a man with skilled fingers. You may have a long pull, but the clock will strike at an unexpected hour and the opportunity—which comes to everybody in turn, but which most people miss—will present itself. Study the building and when you get your teeth in a big thing let them stay there.

Third, save money. The coward runs in debt the brave man has a $500 surplus in his pocket. The world may laugh at you because you can't have a four-in-hand necktie. All right, let it laugh. You are your own word and the people who sneer are simply outside barbarians. When they see that $500 bill growing bigger they will want to shake hands with you and send you to parliament.

Keep within your income and you will save your self from skulking around the corner like a kicked dog when the dun is on your track. The hardest thing on the planet is the penny laid up for a rainy day.

Now, young sir, get rid of the nonsense that you are a genius, settle down to the conclusion that you are just an average boy and then start it. Keep yourself alert, look after your digestive apparatus, don't smoke cigarettes, get to bed early, be square-toed in all your dealings, and you will have a look backward for those who began the race when you did. Are you ready? Then go.

The head of the house glanced at a bill from his wife's dressmaker.

'When I proposed to you less than two years ago, my dear, I was rather wild, and you said you considered it your duty to marry me for the purpose of making something of me, did you not?'

'Yes, Henry,' answered his wife.

'Well,' he continued, 'your efforts have not been very successful. You have succeeded.'

'I'm so glad,' she said, 'What have I made of you dear?'

Once more he glanced at the bill.

'A bankrupt,' he replied with a deep sigh.

The proprietor of a little military shop who had voted for the winning candidate in a northern borough, admitted that he had changed sides out of compliment to the candidate's wife.

'Ah, I see,' someone said to him. 'Her flowers of eloquence converted you, eh?'

'Flowers of eloquence!' the milliner scoffed. 'It was the flowers in her bonnet that did the trick. She bought 'em at my shop and gave three times more for 'em than the other candidate's wife did!'

Children,' said the Sunday-school superintendent, 'this picture illustrates to-day's lesson: Lot was warned to take his wife and daughters and flee out of Sodom. Here are Lot and his daughters, with his wife just behind them, and there is Sodom in the background. Now, has any girl or boy a question before we take up the study of the lesson? Well, Satie?'

'Pleasure, this,' insisted the latest graduate from the infant class, where with the best? —Harper's Monthly.

Use "Corona" Dry Arsenate of Lead For Spraying Orchards and Potato Plants. "Corona" dry, is not an experiment, it has been used by many of our leading farmers for years. One pound of "Corona" will do the work of from two to three pounds of Arsenate of Lead and be more effective, because:— It is a perfect, dry, fine, white powder, and does not contain 50 per cent water. It is pure and contains nothing but lead oxide and arsenic oxide, the only two chemicals essential to an Arsenate of Lead. It gives an even application, covers more thoroughly, and sticks to foliage longer. It mixes easily and readily in water, no working up to prepare for the spray tank, no straining. It is only necessary to shake the proportional amount into the spray tank. By using the same weight each time you spray your mixture is always the same strength. No sediments, no lumps, no waste. Never clogs spray nozzles. Blue Vitrol. Lump Sulphur. Paris Green.

"I FEEL LIKE A NEW BEING"

"FRUIT-A-LIVES" Brought The Joy Of Health After Two Years' Suffering

MADAM LAPLANTE
25 St. Rose St., Montreal, April 14th.
"For over two years I was sick and miserable. I suffered from constant headaches, and had palpitation of the heart so badly that I feared I would die. There seemed to be a lump in my stomach and the constipation was dreadful. I suffered from Pain in the Back and Kidney Disease."
I was treated by a physician for a year and a half and he did me no good at all. I tried "Fruit-a-lives" as a last resort. After using three boxes, I was greatly improved and twelve boxes made me well. Now I can work all day and there are no headaches, no palpitation, no Pain or Kidney Trouble and I feel like a new being—and it was "Fruit-a-lives" that gave me back my health."

Point of View

"Oh, life has nothing to give,"
Cried the cynic, with a wail,
"We live to work, or work to live,
And Fate stands hard by with his flail."
Heigho, heigho; a world of woe!
That's the burden of my tale."
"Oh, life is bright and glad,"
Sang the lover-joyously;
"Glorious rapture, passion mad,
Make a world of ecstasy."
Heigho, heigho, and on I go,
Carolling continually.
"Oh, life is empty quite,"
Said the woman, with a sneer;
"I am bored by doing right,
Wrong I daren't do, for I fear."
Heigho, heigh, the world I know,
And count the knowledge dear."
"Oh, life's a fragrant flower,"
Thus the maiden, with a smile;
"Opening more and more each hour,
Blooming, scattering all the while,
Heigho, heigh. Unhappily? No!
I'm a stranger yet to guile."
"Oh, life is good, though hard,"
Said the worker. "Hear this code:
Earth still has its spikenard,
Courage lightens any load!
All the way I tread with God!
Christ Himself this path has trod!"

A Total Abstinatar.

The Hon. Ben B. Lindsey, the famous "boys' judge" of the Juvenile Court of Denver, makes the following declaration of his own present practise and belief:
"I am a Total Abstinatar."
On occasions I have taken wine after hard work; but I think that was one of the most dangerous and most foolish things I ever did.
It is only within recent years that I have determined to be a total abstinatar, because I think it best for my physical and moral health, and because I wish to set a good example to others.
I believe that every boy and girl should be taught to avoid liquor in any form, as he would be taught to avoid poison in any form. The consumption of liquor, no matter in how small a quantity, when taken in the form of beer, wine or whiskey, etc., is simply another form of slowly poisoning the body.
I wish every boy in America would keep the pledge to refrain from intoxicating liquor of any kind of character.

RHEUMATISM ARRESTED

Many people suffer the tortures of lame muscles and stiffened joints because of impurities in the blood, and each succeeding attack seems more acute until rheumatism has invaded the whole system.
To arrest rheumatism it is quite as important to improve your general health as to purify your blood, and the cod liver oil in Scott's Emulsion is nature's grand blood-maker, while its medicinal strengthening the organs to expel the impurities and upbuild your strength.
Scott's Emulsion is helping thousands every day who could not find other relief. Refuse the alcoholic substitutes.

as a beverage, to dwell in his power to end the fatal habit and the liquor traffic, and to abstain from the use of tobacco in any form.
I have been in the Juvenile Court ten years, and in that time I have had to deal with thousands and thousands of boys who have disgraced themselves and their parents, and who have brought sorrow and misery into the lives, and I do not know of any habit that is more responsible for the troubles of these boys than the vile cigarette habit. No pure minded, honest, manly, brave, genteel boy will smoke cigarettes.—Ben B. Lindsey.

A Movement Against the Liquor Canteen.

At the annual meeting of the officers of the 20th Regiment, Lorne K. H. recently held in the town of Milton, Ont., the question of liquor canteens at camps of military instruction was discussed and a strong resolution was recorded against the establishment of such. After a number of the officers had expressed their desire to see the removal of all unnecessary temptation from camps, which change they believed would lead to the enlistment of a better class of men, the following resolution was adopted with practically no dissenting votes—
"That we, the officers of the 20th Regt. here assembled, do strongly disapprove of the liquor canteen system now in vogue at camps of military training, and it is hereby resolved that we take such steps as are possible towards the abolishing of the canteens in the 20th Regt. and also strongly approve of the abolishing of all strong drink canteens at all military training camps in Canada."

A Patriotic Duty.

We are now approaching the close of the second year of the great world struggle into which Canada has entered with the same zeal and loyalty as shown by all other parts of the British Empire. Our brave fellows are daily returning from the front worn out, wounded and scared, many of them disabled for life, but with deep satisfaction that they had done their duty for King and Country. Others again have paid the supreme price and have laid down their lives leaving behind them helpless widows and children. In either case the war is causing intense suffering as the reward of noble sacrifice. How great we can show our appreciation of the bravery and unselfishness of those who are returning from the front has already become one of the serious problems of the war.
The Federal Pension Fund provides pensions as far as possible for these disabled heroes and their families but as the number of returned soldiers increase the fund will be quite inadequate to supply actual needs much less comforts, to those who have given up everything to fight for us. A great deal more than a pension must be given to our men. The feeling of charity in the ordinary sense of the word must not be allowed to warp the spirit of our giving in this matter. We must make up our minds in some way to supplement largely the Government pensions, and if we were to give until we reached the verge of poverty, we should still be deeply in debt to these men and their dependents. A letter recently to the press from Mr. Angus Sinclair draws special attention to the immediate need for help for our wounded soldiers.
In England a movement has been set on foot by the Prince of Wales as Chairman of what is known as the Central Statutory Committee, which is working under the War Pensions Act, to provide adequately for wounded soldiers, and which combines the efforts of the State, of local authorities and of voluntary associations. In Canada steps are being taken to profit by the good example thus set to us in the old land, and just as we have been ready to follow the Mother Country into the lines of battle, so should we hasten to emulate her in our efforts to give every possible comfort to our wounded and disabled soldiers.—Journal of Commerce.

Advertising Axioms.

The following sayings re advertising have been acknowledged as maxims or facts: You cannot deny them. Experience, observation and experiment have removed them from the doubtful class to certain:
1. A business not worth advertising is not worth having.
2. A dollar judiciously spent in advertising will always double itself.
3. No man ever went broke by advertising; but there are thousands who go into bankruptcy annually because they don't advertise.
4. The suburban merchant who blames his neighbors for going into the city, is himself responsible for the exodus.
5. It is a pity that non-advertising merchants cannot see the fact that he is paying the bills of his advertising competitor.

ELECTRICITY and NERVE FORCE

Nerve Force is so much like Electricity, and the latter is so much better understood, that we have used this vivid telephone picture to illustrate what takes place in the human system when the connecting nerve fibres are deranged or something goes wrong at Central.

In the nervous system, the Central where the Nerve Force is created, and whence are issued the orders which control the whole human body. Here is consumed one-fifth of the blood in the human body, and when the blood supply is deficient in quality or quantity, the brain and the nervous system are first to feel the effects.

Neuralgic pains and headaches, inability to rest or sleep or concentrate the mind, dizziness and noises in the ears, are some of the symptoms of a starved nervous system.

Just as machinery lags when the current of electricity fails, so the bodily organs weaken when the supply of nerve force runs low. Digestion is impaired and you lose appetite, the liver, kidneys and bowels are deranged, the heart, lungs, stomach, the heart's action weakens, circulation is slow, hands and feet are cold, you are easily tired, lose ambition and grow downhearted and discouraged.

This describes the condition under which Dr. Chase's Nerve Food can prove of greatest assistance to you. Forming new, rich blood it feeds the starved, exhausted nerve and brain cells back to health and vigor. The new vital, nerve force flows out through the intricate system of nerve fibres to every member and every organ of the body, carrying new vigor, energy and strength and driving out pain, weakness and disease.

A Trip Through the Cariboo Country

ON the main line of the Canadian Pacific Railway, is a little town crowded in between the Thompson River and the tracks of steel that span a continent and a Dominion.
It's time table name is Ashcroft, the southern doorway of a famous British Columbian region known as the Cariboo country. For nearly seven hundred miles northward the route extends, for long years one of the most picturesque stage routes of the continent, a route operated by the "B. C." as the British Columbia Express Company is locally known. For many a long year the stages and freighters climbed the hills, and crept, no, rather galloped down grade, on this unique thoroughfare—ten, eight-horse freight teams and capacious stage coaches drawn by the pick of the stables.
But to-day the automobile has invaded this mountain realm and there are still traditions of what happened and what was said when the Guggenheim copper kings sent in the first motor car and had a fight for the right of way on a narrow bit of road with a huge freighter. It was a battle royal, chiefly in the language of the western type!
I know of no roadway in all Canada that offers a greater variety of human interest. Nature is revealed in an infinite variety of scenery as she exhibits her varied moods. Shacks of the old-timers survive alongside of comfortable modern homesteads. Here a semi-arid hill bears only sparse brush; there an irrigation ditch has turned a desert into a garden. Nearby is a beautiful stream, opening into a series of lakes, while a few miles along the way cascades leap from the upper levels. Indian villages alternate with the white man's town, and the Oriental looks out at you from his shop or laundry or cook place. It is a meeting place of the nations in the Cariboo road.
Every mile is reminiscent of the gold rush of the 'Fifties, when thousands of adventurers, afflicted with "the narrowing lust for gold," penetrated the wilderness from which few ever emerged. Legend and tragedy

(1) An Old Time Coach. (2) Ashcroft, B.C. (3) The Old Cariboo Trail, a hillside. Thriving farms are appearing in fertile pockets in the valley, a large aggregate of business is transacted along the route and the entire region affords an ideal and unique route for the traveller who is looking for new scenes and fresh experiences.
"What is your idea of the way a man ought to propose to a girl, asked a bashful man. "Ought he to get down on his knees?"
"I think so," replied Mrs. Cayenne. "He might as well make himself ridiculous as possible at the outset, so that she won't be so much surprised after they are married."
"Did the deacon die from infirmities of old age?"
"So the clerk said who ran over him. He could not seem to hear, see, or jump."

The Champion Hen.
The Barred Plymouth Rock No. 414 M. which made such a wonderful performance record at the Maine Agricultural Experiment Station in her "pullet year," has begun laying again in her second year, and bids fair to make a record which will equal and possibly surpass that of her pullet year. As the record stands open, the bird is the highest laying hen of the Barred Plymouth Rock breed that has yet been produced. When it is remembered that it was only a dozen years ago that a record of 200 eggs in a year was considered wonderful, the people of Maine may well be proud of the fact that there has been produced within their state a hen capable of laying 298 eggs in 12 months.
In no respect is this bird a freak. It is simply the result of well planned and carefully executed breeding. She is trim and smart in appearance, and of good size, weighing 6.7 pounds at the end of her pullet year's laying. Regarding the breeding of this bird, it may be said that she came from a very high laying ancestor. She represents the bringing together of a number of different blood lines, each of which has been highly bred for egg-producing ability.

We have the finest and tallest police men in London that the world can produce," said an Englishman.

This You Can Do

A gifted Christian writer has undertaken to tell the rest of the story of the prodigal son. He pictures the younger son going out into the city and finding a boy who was just starting for the far country and winning him back by sympathy and love. After he had won him, the younger son of the parable felt that he had nothing to give but the lad replied, "Thou hast given me everything, for all I had need of was a friend." And are there not thousands upon thousands just like him, and is not the finest and fullest opportunity that comes to any of us that opportunity of being a friend to men and women just when the one thing they need is a friend? We should not sigh for a mission when there is this thing we can do, this thing more splendid, and more difficult too, than any we will ever undertake; this thing of helping men and women and boys and girls into the ways of noble and high living through the magic door of friendship. That task is worth spending a life time at, surely.

A man once was talking about hard luck, and his friend was listening with a sour expression. Why, you don't friend, I have always had it. When I was a kid there was such a bunch of us in the family that there had to be three tables at meal times, and I always got the third one.
"What's he d about?" "Why," said his friend, "it was fifteen years before I ever knew a chicken had any thing but a neck."
A prof or none of the local colleges was expostulating with a student for his idleness when the letter said, "It's of no use, I was cut out for a loser."
"Well," declared the professor, surveying the student critically, "whoever cut you out understood his business."

"O James," Mrs. Jones said reproachfully to her husband about the middle of January, "you have broken those good resolutions you made the first of the year!"
"Yes, I know," Jones answered coolly. "I know I have broken them, but I shall make others quite as good next year."
