Committee of the Emin Relief Expedition: SIR -As you will see by Major Barttelot's letter, Assad Faran, the dismissed Arabic interpreter, has written the most false and cruel statements about me after leaving Yambuya camp. As an officer of this expedition it is my bounden duty to you to clear my character from such statements. I will tell you now the simple narrative of the whole matter, which, much as it shocked me at the time, I little dreamed could be turned to such use against me. My whole time since my arrival here has been taken up with the affairs of the expedition and I have not had a moment to get the necessary papers signed by the witnesses of everything mentioned by Assad Faran before a Belgian officer, as I mean to do, and forward them to you. The facts of the case are these: On my return journey from Kasongo, the day after our arrival at Raba, the chief sent for me.

BUTTER. — The demand for butter is not very active, but a fair amount is being sold. The receipts are smaller, and the supply of choice table grades here is not large. Full outside prices are obtained for all choice lots, and each day's receipts clean up well. While these top grades are in a very firm position, the lower grades are also affected to some extent, and the general market is in a good, healthy position. We quote: Extra to fancy Western creamery, soft wood, 27 to 28c; hard wood, 22 to 25c; firsts and extra firsts, 18 to 20c; extra to choice Northern creamery, 28 to 28½c; firsts and extra firsts, 22 to 25c; Eastern creamery, fair to good, 20 to 25c; extra imitation creamery, 18 to 21c; common, 14 to 16c; June creamery, 20 to 22c; ladle-packed, I3 to 15c: Northern dairy, choice, 20 to 24c; common, 14 to 18c. These quotations are receivers' prices for wholesale lots. Eggs. - The market remains in about the same position as last reported. The supply of held eggs is large and causes more or less of an easy feeling. Choice fresh laid eggs are in small supply and sell at full prices. We quote: Canadian, 24 to 25c; Islands, 25 to 26c; Nova Scotia and New Brunswick, 25 to 26; held eggs, 19 to 22c: limed 18 to 20c. POULTRY. — The receipts of western icepacked lots are falling off, while dry packed lots from that section are a little larger. The arrivals are in poor condition and have a slow sale at low prices. Northern and eastern lots are steady and have a fair sale. We quote: Fresh-killed northern and eastern chickens, choice, 16 to 17c; fair to good, 10 to 15c; turkeys, 18 to 20c; fowls, 13 to 14c; green ducks, 10 to 12c; dry packed turkeys, 12 to 16c; chickens, 10 to 12c; Kentucky turkeys.

10 to 13c; fowls, 10 to 12c; old cocks, 6 POTATOES. - The market is well supplied with potatoes and there are some umulations at the roads. Trade is dull, with prices in the buyers favor. A HIGH-PRIZED VIOLIN.

Every lover of the violin seeks to be the happy owner of as fine a toned instrument as he can secure. Enthusiasts often known as the proud possessor of an Amati, a Guarverius or a Stradivarius, all three great fiddle makers, but the latter is acknowledged by the musical world to be the greatest. His workmanship has tones never been surpassed to this day. The drawn from one of his fiddles by a master hand approaches nearer that of the human voice than any other musical instrument in existence. Some of Niccolo Amati's fiddles are excellent in tone, and his instruments come next to his pupil's, Stradivarius, in popular estimation. It has always been understood by experts that the best violins of Stradivarius were made between the years 1700 and 1725, and to-day it is said there only exists one of that period as perfect as the day it was made. This one is known as "Le Messil," otherwise "The Messiah," and has after many changes of fortune found its way into the possession of Robert Crawford, of the firm of Bernard & Co., of Leith, Scotland. This violin has had a remarkable history from its very beginning. It was begun in 1716 and when finished Stradivarius was so pleased with it that he refused to sell it, and kept it until he died at the age of 93. His sons, like the father retained this precious art treasure for some years when the whole of Stradivarius' violins were sold to the Cremona collector, Count Cozio di Salabue, and among them Stradivarius' favourite and best.' It passed from the Count to one Tarisio, a travelling collector, who kept it until he died in 1854, when the whole of his collection of fiddles were sold to the celebrated modern violin-maker, Vaillaume. During the Franco-German war it was buried to preserve it from the Teutons. great French violinist and son-in-law of Vaillaume, and from Alard's heirs it has been purchased by Mr. Crawford for the sum of £2000. This is the largest sum ever paid for a Stradivarius. Some say fine specimens have brought £1000, and that was the limit a few years ago, but now dealers, finding genuine specimens scarce, have increased their figures one
