CHAPTER XXXVI.
IN GOOD COMPANY.

LADY HEATHERDENE'S drawing-room was full. Three nights had elapsed since Stephen Rawdon, utterly cowed and enslaved, had slunk out of Hastley Derrick's chambers in Grafton Street. There had been a great dinner in Grosvenor Square, and the gentlemen had just risen from their wine and joined the ladies. It was not the first dinner by many which Lord Heatherdene had given during the season, but this one was chiefly notable in consequence of Lord Livermore's presence.

For the first time for many years the old earl had left the castle and paid a visit to town.

Hitherto all attempts at persuading him to emerge from his retreat had been made in vain. To one and all he had given the same refusal, based on the same grounds. He was too old to leave his hermitage, too much the subject of the great tyrant, gout, to appear again in the gay world in which he had been so prominent a figure; he had even pooh-poohed the idea when it had been suggested by Lord Charles himself; but when Lady Heatherdene had made a point of his coming, the old earl had given in, and had suffered his people to bring out the traveling chest and "drag him," so he said, up to London. But, in truth, he did not need much dragging. During the few short months of his daughter-in-law's stay at the castle, he had tasted for the first time for many years the delights of domestic life. Her presence had brightened the ducement could be strong enough to overcome it.

And the Worst is Yet to Come

Lately, Katrine had felt, by intuition rather than by any logical reasoning, that the one woman she loved had need of her.

No actual words had passed between them, nothing approaching an explanation; but Katrine, who knew Olive's every expression by heart, was conscious of an indefinable shadow, an inexplicable weakness, in the beautiful woman whom she had rescued and cherished years ago in her bitter need; and Katrine Haldine was not the woman to forsake her.

It will create richer blood to establish body-warmth and fortify his lungs and throat. Thousands of soldiers all over the world take Scott's Emulsion. It is exactly what they need.

Scott & Bowne, Toronto, Ont. 17-30

Scarcely a day passed without Katrine's presence at Grosvenor Square, and whenever she came Olive greeted her with a sense of relief that was palpable to the keen eyes of the actress. The nature of the secret, trouble, fear, apprehension, whatever it was, that lay hidden like a canker in the life of the beautiful Viscountess, Katrine could not conjecture. She knew only that the wistful, watchful, restless light in the dark eyes, and the sad droop of the mobile lips were not caused by ill health, and surmised that something was preying on the mind and heart of the young wife, who, surrounded by everything that should make life joyous, was not happy.

So Katrine was ever by her side, protecting her friend from she knew not what, ever watchful and on the alert, while seeming to be ignorant that there was anything to be watchful and concerned about.

One other woman watched also. Not with a loving anxiety to avert harm and unhappiness, but with a jealous, malicious eagerness for the revenge which she had been assured should be hers.

If Katrine Haldine did not betray her affectionate anxiety, neither did Lady Florence her jealous, envious impatience. Both were playing a part, while Olive, unconscious of their scrutiny, was absorbed by her own.

But to-night there was little or nothing of the wearied, wistful apprehension in her manner or face. They say that the condemned wretch will invariably eat a hearty breakfast on the morning of his execution, and to-night Lady Heatherdene seemed to revive all her old witchery, youthfulness, and spirits.

Magnificently dressed, wearing the Livermore diamonds, she sat at the end of the table, serene and smiling. The old earl by her side looked at her from time to time, and tapped his snuffbox approvingly; while from the head of the table Charlie glanced down with loving pride, at the wife, who, in beauty and grace, outshone even the noblest woman in the land.

"Adrienne is looking well to-night," said the old earl, as he passed into the drawing-room, leaning on his son's arm—"very well. She is one of the few women who can stand the magnificent in color. I never saw her look better."

Charlie smiled with glowing pride. "Yes, Addy comes out well anywhere, sir," he said. "You think she is looking particularly well to-night? She has been rather pale of late, and I thought of taking her out of it, somewhere on the Continent—"

"Hang the Continent!" said the earl. "Bring her down to Livermore. What an absurd fashion this is of rushing off to some stuffy villa on a stagnant Italian lake; there is nothing like English country; you can breathe there. Bring her down to Livermore, Charlie."

Charlie laughed. "I believe she would rather go there than anywhere else," he said, laughing at the old man's eagerness. "Very well, bring her then," said the earl. "God, I'll ask her myself. That is, if I can get near her," he added, with a grim smile as he looked across the room where Olive was surrounded. "It looks as if only a body of horse could get at her."

Charlie laughed. "She is always surrounded like that," he said, with pardonable pride. "What she manages to say to them all, I can't conceive."

"I don't suppose they want her to say much," rejoined the earl, and he made his way across the room to the little group in which Olive was the center.

She was sitting, with Katrine by her side, on a low ottoman, and was, as Charlie had said, completely surrounded by men, old and young, who, with their tacepans in their hands, were paying that court which always

The Home Dressmaker should keep a Catalogue Scrap Book of our Pattern Outlets. These will be found very useful to refer to from time to time.

This illustration calls for TWO separate patterns which will be mailed to any address on receipt of 10 cents FOR EACH pattern, in silver or stamps.

THE GERMAN LOSSES.
LONDON, April 2. (Via Reuter's Ottawa Agency) Telegraphing from British headquarters in France to-day, Reuter's correspondent says: A local attack on the south of Hebrurton improved the position amongst the quarries, and besides the prisoners and machine guns quoted officially, the enemy's killed and wounded number over a hundred. Our dashing attack, which won the wood southwest of Hangard, in which two German battalions were penetrated, resulted in our capturing fifty men and thirty machine guns—a hand-to-hand fight. The general situation at the moment is that the main advance of fresh enemy divisions continue towards the zone between the Somme and Mont Didon, whilst north of the Somme we have succeeded in establishing our lines. Figures which are available give further insight into the extent of the German losses. It is estimated that the 208th division has lost seventy per cent. of its effectives. The 83rd division lost thirty per cent. the first day of the attack, and forty per cent. in the Mezieres attack of March 29th. The attack by the 4th division to the north of the Scarpe collapsed on account of casualties. One prisoner says definitely that his battalion lost eleven officers. The 62nd infantry of the 12th division attacking along the Arras-Cambrai road lost over 800 men and had to be withdrawn. The Guard Ersatz division lost twenty-five per cent. of its strength. The average company state of the 119th division was down to forty of all ranks on March 28th. The 40th division lost 45 per cent. on the 23rd; the 5th division 50 per cent. in taking Ham, and further losses in forcing a passage of the Somme. In a recent attack north of the Scarpe one regiment lost 24 officers. A considerable increase in artillery activity against Passchendaele and Guldberg spur has taken place, but the enemy is so heavily committed to the present battle that it is not easy to believe they will try an offensive elsewhere.

ONLY AIR WORK.
LONDON, April 2. (Via Reuter's Ottawa Agency) Telegraphing from the British headquarters in France this evening, Reuter's correspondent says: This has been the quietest day since the offensive began, excepting for the tireless activity of our airmen, who continue to harass the enemy along the front and miles to the rearward. It should be remembered that in consequence of the salient the enemy have extended their front about thirty miles, and protection against counter attacks means drawing largely on their reserves. in the battle zone in considerable numbers. The quality of the reinforcements which have arrived from England is highly praised. The comparative rest of the last few days has recuperated our troops, who are ready for further eventualities. The most trying feature of sustained operations is want of sleep. Incidentally our airmen are curtailing to the utmost the slumber of the Huns.

DOINGS IN RUSSIA.

LONDON, April 2. Former Grand Duke Michael Alexandrovitch, brother of the former Emperor, has been arrested and imprisoned at Perna by order of the Council of Workmen's and Soldiers' delegates, says an Exchange Telegraph despatch from Petrograd. Rear-Admiral Sablin has been elected Commander-in-Chief of the Black Sea fleet. General Payeff, who has been appointed Commander of the Moscow military district, says a Reuter despatch, announced that he expects to form an army of one million men within two months.

A FEW WILL DO.

LISBON, April 2. Benito Casire, a Portuguese engineer, is said by the Secule to have invented a gun which will throw a shell 90 miles.

WHAT'S THE CAUSE?

WASHINGTON, April 2. Only fourteen million of the one hundred million bushels of American 1917 corn crop needed by the Allies has gone forward as shown in export figures to-day by the food administration. Last year at this time 64,000,000 bushels had been shipped.

SPIES BUSY.

WASHINGTON, April 2. Charges that German spies are interfering with gas masks intended for use in France, were made in the Senate to-day by Senator Thomas, of Colorado, who declared that in one factory 2,900 out of 5,000 masks were found defective. Even after the defective ones had been discarded, a number of the latter were found packed with those that had been passed by inspectors, he said. Senator Thomas declared the masks had been damaged by small perforations, and asserted the work was done by persons in the factory. He said this was only a sample of the work being done by German agents in this country. Senator Thomas declared that the United States now faces a serious situation.

WINS V.C.

LONDON, April 2. (Via Reuter's Ottawa Agency.)—The King has approved the award of the Victoria Cross to Second Lieutenant and Temporary Captain James Byford McCudden, of the Royal Flying Corps, who had previously been awarded the Distinguished Services Order and the Military Cross and Bar and the Military Medal. The Victoria Cross has been awarded for most conspicuous bravery, exceptional perseverance and keenness and very high devotion to duty. McCudden had previously accounted for 54 enemy airplanes, of which 42 were definitely destroyed, including 19 in our lines. Only 12 out of the 54 were driven down out of control. McCudden twice totally destroyed 4 two-seater enemy machines in the same day, and on the last occasion all four machines were destroyed in ninety minutes. In Reuter's account of the King's visit to the front it was stated his Majesty announced the award while visiting the Flying Corps, and it was received with cheers from the birdmen.

AUSTRALIANS MUST RESPOND.

MELBOURNE, Aus., April 2. (Via Reuter's Ottawa Agency.)—Federal Minister Ingeve, regarding Premier Lloyd George's appeal for reinforcements, declare it a magnificent and imperative call, to which Australia must respond.

DUTCH MAKE FORMAL PROTEST.

WASHINGTON, April 2. Formal protest against the taking over of the Dutch ships was made to the State Department to-day by the Netherlands Minister, August Philipp, acting under instructions from the Hague. The note of protest is similar to that recently published in the official Gazette.

SOMETHING FOR DISCUSSION.

OTTAWA, April 2. There was much suppressed excitement around the House of Commons this morning, over the serious developments of last night at Quebec. The members who have returned to participate in the resumed deliberations of the House this afternoon, anticipated a statement from the Premier when the House meets. It is understood that an effort is being made to confine any discussion which may take place in the House to a moderate and deliberate review of the events of the past few days, members fully realizing that it is a time when calmness should prevail. It is said to be not unlikely that some opposition members will express the opinion, should the opportunity afford, that the situation at Quebec could have been handled without the use of military force, and they may urge the withdrawal of the soldiers as the best cure for the serious situation that has developed.

STILL SINKING.

BOSTON, Mass., April 2. The sinking of the British steamer Carlisle Castle, presumably by a German submarine, while on a voyage from this country for a foreign port, was reported in shipping circles here to-day. Exporters notified the marine underwriters that they had been advised of the loss of the vessel, but had no information regarding the fate of the crew. The ship was under charter to the Cunard Line, and carried war supplies.

LOANS TO ALLIES.

WASHINGTON, April 2. Credits to the Allies in the last year were raised to more than $5,000,000,000 by a loan of $200,000,000 to Great Britain. That nations total credits from the United States now are $2,720,000,000, and all the Allies $5,160,000,000.

MAY SAVE CELTIC.

NEW YORK, April 2. The steamship Celtic, one of the big White Star Liners, was attacked and torpedoed by a German submarine, according to reliable information received here to-day in marine circles, during a voyage from England to America. Efforts are being made to save the vessel which it is believed carried no passengers. The Celtic had a gross tonnage of 20,904, and has for many years been one of the largest steamers in the trans-Atlantic service. She was built at Belfast in 1901 and was the British flag.

FRENCH OFFICIAL.

PARIS, April 2. (Official.)—The battle continued with extreme violence last night in the sector north of Mont Didier, large bodies of troops being thrown in by the Germans. The French and British troops broke up the assaulting waves. Further south the fighting was no less violent, the Germans making incessant attacks in an effort to capture Guisnes. The French retained possession of the town and inflicted heavy losses on the Germans.

GERMANS ADVANCE.

British Army Headquarters in France, April 1. (By Associated Press.)—Last evening the Germans made two attacks in quick succession against the British lines west of the town of Albert, but on both occasions the enemy was thrown back. At 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon the Germans made a heavy attack between Moreuil and Demuin. Fierce fighting followed. The attacking troops gradually forced their way forward until they penetrated the large forest lying northeast of Moreuil. A little later the Germans were reported to be entering Hangard and to be moving westward along the Luce River.

SWELLING CASUALTIES.

British Army Headquarters in France, April 2.—The German attack along the Scarpe River on March 28 had as its objective the city of Arras and the formidable Vimy Ridge. Units of at least eleven German divisions were employed here. It may be seen, therefore, that the German plans were far-reaching, but the main result they achieved was to swell the already great total of their casualties. At about three o'clock on the morning of the 28th, German artillery of all calibres opened a terrific bombardment against the British positions. It was obvious the enemy intended to attack and at 8:40 o'clock the British gunners unleashed an avalanche of steel against every known place of assembly the Germans might be using. Shortly after 7 the enemy advanced. They came forward slowly and deliberately, in full marching order. Each infantryman carried rations for six days, two blankets and an extra pair of boots. The company commanders were mounted and the infantry was followed closely by the artillery. On the extreme north the storm centre lay between Carrelle and Oppy, the Germans pivoting on Oppy. The Germans lost terribly in the heavy fighting which lasted a day, during which the British fell back to a line between Ratillon and Willerval. The German attacks against the positions were futile elsewhere. North of the River the British stood their ground and pushed forward slightly Friday and Saturday. South of the Scarpe the Germans were held up for a long time by a division which had been engaged against them for the previous week.

PREMIER CLEMENCEAU AT THE FRONT.

PARIS, April 2. Premier Clemenceau when making his daily visit to the front yesterday, ventured so near the first line that his automobile was shelled vigorously by the Germans. All the windows were broken, but he was not hurt. He returned to Paris enthusiastic and full of confidence in the favorable issue of the present great battle.

ALLIES ADVANCE.

PARIS, April 2. (Official.)—French and British troops advanced last night between the Somme and Demuin. Over most of the front between the Somme and the Oise the night was relatively calm. Heavy artillery fighting occurred at some points.

THE EIGHTH BOMBARDMENT.

PARIS, April 2. The eighth long range bombardment of Paris began at 10 o'clock to-day, when a projectile exploded in the region of the city.

THE QUEBEC TROUBLE.

QUEBEC, April 2. Fighting between the rioting element in Quebec and the military forces here continued into the night. After midnight the firing died down to a very great extent, but men on house tops sniped the soldiers for hours. The guards placed on the public building in the area where the fighting took place were maintained all night. The holiday season ended with last night and it is thought by the military that with the men returning to work the tendency to get together will be diminished. However, no relaxation of the stern methods which the military have inaugurated to crush the rioting will be seen. So far the killed and wounded appear to be innocent citizens who were not connected with the disturbances in any way. The soldiers used every care to protect the lives of civilians but with thousands in the region where the sniping was being carried out, they could not fire without a chance of hitting some innocent person.

STOP QUEBEC RIOTS.

OTTAWA, April 2. The military authorities under the command of General Lessard, Inspector General for Eastern Canada, acting with the Quebec City police, took steps to-day and drew up plans to checkmate the rioting element here and also to round up the ring-leaders.

Official Proof of Son's Death.

Mrs. Thomas D. Adams, of 34 LeMarchant Road, has recently received from the War Office official proof of the death of her son, Pte. O. H. Adams, which was reported by Lieut. Massey, 50th Division Burial Officer, B. E. F., who said that Private Adams was either killed in action or died of wounds received in action. Pte. Adams was reported as missing on the 9th of October, 1917, and Lieut. Massey's report of burial was made on the 18th December, over two months afterwards. The official notice to Mrs. Adams adds "There can be little doubt that it was your son's body which was buried." At present the exact location of his resting place is unknown but it is hoped that it will be found later when a cross will be placed at the head of the grave. The statement concludes with an intimation that the personal effects of the deceased are being forwarded to Newfoundland. To the sorrowing mother and relatives of Pte. Adams general sympathy is extended, in which the Telegram joins.

quencing an illegal assembly. This morning General Lessard consulted with the civil authorities as to their prosecution.

WILL OPOSE THE TURKS.

PETROGRAD, April 2. Fierce fighting has broken out in the districts of Batoum, Kars and Ardahan, in Caucasia. The Armenians and Georgians have formed a large army for the defence of the territory against the Turks, who have begun military occupation of the three districts by virtue of the Brest-Litovsk peace treaty. The Georgians have seized most of the Russian warships in the harbor of Batoum and have taken them into the Black Sea. The entire population of Georgia has been notified to oppose the invaders.

BRITISH OFFICIAL.

LONDON, April 2. (Official.)—In the course of the fighting yesterday in the area between the Avre and the Luce Rivers, we captured fifty prisoners and thirteen machine guns. A large number of German dead were found on the ground in this locality by us, and two counter attacks attempted by the enemy later in the day were broken up with heavy losses by our artillery. A German battery in action in this area was successfully engaged at short range by our machine guns. A successful local enterprise cleared out by us near Hebuterne resulted in the capture of 73 prisoners and three machine guns. Many Germans were killed in this operation also, and a hostile counter attack during the afternoon was completely repulsed. On the remainder of the front successful raids, in which we secured several prisoners and killed numbers of the enemy, were carried out near Chevillon and Holtebec.

THE POPE'S CONCERN.

ROME, April 2. Pope Benedict expressed deep concern on receiving reports to-day of the loss of life in a Paris church, which was struck by a German shell. The Pope visited Cardinal Gasparri, Papal Secretary of State, who is confined to his room with a cold, and discussed with him the attitude which the Vatican would take, it being felt that the situation has assumed a new aspect inasmuch as shells from guns instead of bombs from airplanes are being used to bombard Paris.

WILL FIGHT CONSCRIPTION.

LONDON, April 2. Speaking at a meeting at East Tyng on Sunday, Joseph Devlin, Nationalist M.P. for the West Division of Belfast, declared that as long as his members had breath in their bodies the Irish Party would never permit the application of Conscription to Ireland.

N. I. W. A. Strike.

There was no change in the strike situation up to noon to-day. A special meeting of the strikers was held last night and the strike situation discussed, but no further action was taken as to calling out steamboats and train workers. The Secretary read a reply from the Government saying that they had forwarded the Association's objections to the Reid Company in a second conference. No action will be taken till a reply is received. The members of the Association not out on strike have promised to support those affected.

WHAT MADAME GINGRAS SAYS OF DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS.

Morigeau, Montmagny Co., Que., April 2nd.—(Special.)—"Dodd's Kidney Pills made me well, and I am still well."

It would be hard to put into words the relief that came to me after I had used Dodd's Kidney Pills in fewer or stronger words. Yet these are the exact words of Madame Philippe Gingras, a resident of this place, who is both well known and highly respected.

These words speak volumes to women who suffer. For women all over Canada are fast learning that nintenths of the suffering to which their sex is heir come from sick kidneys. Weak, worn women who carry a burden of pain to their daily duties now realize that the way to relief lies in finding the best kidney remedy. And the fact that Dodd's Kidney Pills have been in use in Canada for over a quarter of a century, and are more popular to-day than they ever were before, is proof that they are the best kidney remedy. Hundreds of women in Canada say with Madame Gingras: "Dodd's Kidney Pills made me well, and I am still well."

Christoffer Hannevig.

Coincident with the demand for ocean tonnage and the expansion of our maritime trade, many new shipbuilding and ship operating firms have come into existence. Foremost among these has been the corporation of Christoffer Hannevig, Inc., of 139 Broadway, this city. Organized by Christoffer Hannevig, head of the firm of Christoffer Hannevig, A-S, of Christiania, Norway, this company has become a very important factor in the American shipping world. It has built up not only a shipbuilding and operating business, but has also established a regular banking institution under the laws of the State of New York. Among its other activities, the company represents the Baltimore and South America Navigation Company, and contemplates the extension of its service from New York to West Indies, and New York to Liverpool. For this service two 4,000 ton steamships now building in the Pusey & Jones yards, Wilmington, Del., and two 2,500-tonners being built on the Great Lakes will be used by the line to the West Indies. For the Liverpool service four steamships of from 7,500 to 12,500 tons are being built by the Pennsylvania Shipbuilding Company, Gloucester, Pt. M. Hannevig, though but thirty-four years of age, has become financially interested in other enterprises, and is one of the country's leading shipbuilders. He is president of the Pusey & Jones Company, of Wilmington, Del., one of the oldest concerns engaged in shipbuilding in this country, which has just consolidated with the Pennsylvania Shipbuilding Company, and the New Jersey Shipbuilding Company, both located on the Delaware River at Gloucester, N.J. These plants have a combined capital stock of $20,000,000 ($10,000,000 preference stock and $10,000,000 common stock), and are known respectively as the Pusey & Jones Company, Wilmington plant, Pennsylvania plant, and New Jersey plant. He is also the controller of the Newfoundland Shipbuilding Company, Ltd., located at Harbor Grace, N.F., the Dominion Shipbuilding Company, Ltd.

of Toronto, Canada; Rice Brothers Shippard, of Booth Bay, Maine, and is also interested in the Thor Iron Works, Ltd., Toronto. In addition to the above, Mr. Hannevig is financially interested in the Jefferson Insurance Company, and the North Atlantic Insurance Company, of this city. Mr. Hannevig still retains his interest in the house of Christoffer Hannevig, A-S, of Christiania, Norway, and divides his time between his American and Scandinavian interests. He also maintains offices in Philadelphia, Baltimore, and London, England. Mr. Hannevig, who recently returned from Norway, brought with him commissions for the placing of tonnage orders that will run into millions of dollars.

Recently he placed at the disposal of the well-known sculptor, Gustav Vigeland, funds sufficient to complete the handsome fountain designed for the city of Christiania, Norway, which was held up on account of lack of money. In addition to this, he made a further gift to that city of the site of an opera house, and the necessary funds for the construction thereof. These sums amounted to about $2,575,000. Associated in the firm of Christoffer Hannevig, Inc., with Mr. Hannevig are: Finn Hannevig, vice-president; R. M. J. Bullowa, as treasurer; and J. B. Simpson, secretary.—The Nautical Gazette, N.Y.

Wanton Destruction of Valuable Food.

The agitation for the placing of seal meat on the market as an article of food has, so far as this year is concerned, fallen to the ground. As no united action was taken to carry this through, no success could be expected, and the subject therefore must be relegated to the land of forgotten things.

On land we have more valuable food than we are able to utilize. The word wantonly is used in its sense meaning without restraint, for the news comes from Bonne Bay that the inhabitants there have been driven to the necessity of petitioning the Government to prevent the catching of rabbits for food.

Mr. Blackwood pointed out that the present Commission as constituted was limited to an inquiry into the causes of the loss of the ship or things pertaining thereto, but so far as his associates, Commander MacDermott, Capt. English and Capt. Spracklin, were concerned, they were only too pleased to be of any service to the public in that respect.

PRESIDENT WILSON THANKED.
WASHINGTON, April 2. Lord Reading, the British Ambassador, today sent President Wilson a message of thanks on behalf of the British Government for "the instant comprehensive measures" which the President took in response to the request that American troops be used to reinforce the Allied armies in France. An Embassy statement announced that the message had been sent through the State Department, and that the knowledge that owing to the President's prompt co-operation the Allies will receive the strong reinforcements necessary during the next few months is most welcome to the British Government and people.

HAGUE JURIST DEAD.

THE HAGUE, To-day. W. P. Debeaufort, former Dutch Minister of Foreign Affairs, is dead. He took a prominent part in the international peace conference here. He was 72 years old.

A QUIET DAY.

LONDON, April 2. The War Office in the announcement this evening says: "The day passed quietly on the British front, and there was no serious fighting on the French front."

OPERATIONS IN THE HOLY LAND.

LONDON, April 2. An official statement, issued today at the War Office, regarding British operations in Palestine, says: Seven hundred prisoners, four guns, several machine guns and a number of motor lorries were captured east of the River Jordan, between March 25th and April 1st. On March 30th, raiding operations against the Nejev Railway having been successfully accomplished, our troops commenced a retirement towards Esalat.

BRITISH IMPROVE POSITIONS.

WITH THE BRITISH ARMIES IN FRANCE, April 2.—(By A. P.)—The British counter-attacks today improved their position by an attack south of Hangard, and later repulsed two German counter attacks which essayed to restore the situation. South of Hebutte, the British conducted a successful local attack and repulsed a counter assault.

EXCHANGE OF INSTRUMENTS.

LONDON, April 2. An exchange of the instruments of the ratification of the Peace Treaty, concluded at Brest-Litovsk between the Central Powers and Russia, took place on March 30th, according to a Reuters despatch from Moscow.

FROM BERLIN.

BERLIN, via London, To-day. Ballein.—Enemy counter-attacks near Hebuterne, and against the heights captured by us, between the Luce and the Avre, says the report from general headquarters, broke down with heavy losses. The text of the statement follows: In the western theatre the position on the battlefield is unchanged and counter-attacks by the enemy near Hebuterne, with special stubbornness, against the heights captured by us between the Luce and the Avre, broke down with heavy losses. Minor infantry engagements took place between the Luce and the Oise. The enemy continued to shell Laon, where numerous inhabitants have fallen victims. Reconnoitering engagements occurred on the eastern bank of the Meuse, near Haudumont, and south-west of Thann some prisoners were brought in. Twenty-two enemy aircraft carrying out of a long distance observation from the coast. South of the Somme aerial detachments under Lieut. Frelich, rendered extraordinary service. In the other theatres there is nothing new.

MONTREAL'S MAYOR, MARTIN.

MONTREAL, April 2. Three hundred polls out of 987 give Mayor Martin a majority of 2,386, which looks like the re-election of Martin.

SPIRITED FIGHTING.

PARIS, April 2. The War Office announced tonight that the day was marked by particularly spirited artillery fighting, particularly between Mont-Didier and Languey, where our batteries caught their fire an enemy concentration east of Cantigny. A strong German reconnaissance, attacked by our southwest of the left bank of the Oise, near Servais, was repulsed. In the Woerthe and Upper Alsace enemy attacks were without result.

SEVERE PENALTIES.

WASHINGTON, To-day. In favorably reporting a bill to impose drastic penalties on disloyal acts, the Senate Judiciary Committee today adopted an amendment prescribing imprisonment for twenty years, and $10,000 fine for "whoever shall by word or act support or aid the cause of the German Empire or its Allies, in the present war, or by word or act oppose the cause of the United States therein." The Committee also approved the same penalties for persons obstructing Government War Bond issues, and for willfully attempting, as well as actual attempts, to obstruct recruiting or enlistment in the army.

ARCHBISHOP OF YORK PRAYS IN U. S. SENATE.

WASHINGTON, April 2. A prayer for victory for the Allied arms, (a lasting and righteous peace) and for the men, (defending the cause of truth and freedom in the awful battle being waged across the seas) was made today in the Senate by the Right Rev. Cosmo Gordon Lang, Archbishop of York. The invocation closed with the Lord's Prayer in which the Senators and spectators joined. 11.30 a.m.

OPERATIONS REVIEWED—GREAT HEROISM OF BRITISH.

WITH THE BRITISH ARMY IN FRANCE, April 2.—(By A. P.)—Some interesting facts are now available from captured documents and prisoners' statements, regarding the result thus far achieved by the enemy. To sum up the situation briefly, the Germans had expected to reach the line of the Somme on the first days of the drive. On that date the weather greatly favored the attacking troops, for a heavy mist shrouded the whole country, and made it impossible for the British machine gunners to engage the enemy at long range. Despite this drawback for the defenders, they inflicted such heavy casualties on the enemy at close quarters, that the Germans progressed only one quarter of the distance that they had expected to make the first day. The attack, made on March 28th, was executed in all the particulars as had been the assault on the evening of the 27th. However, there were no mists to assist the onrushing hordes, and they came under such a grilling punishment from the artillery, machine guns and rifles, that their progress was checked after they had made only comparatively small gains. The reports regarding the operations show that the Germans suffered most heavily along the whole front of their attack. The objects which the German high command had set for the attack on the 28th, were ambitious: they were the City of Arras and Vimy Ridge. Arras was to be taken by the Second Guards division, one of the Emperor's units, and special assault divisions were to go through the front line divisions after the British battle line had been stormed. But these assaulting divisions never came into action, because the front line division could not push their way into the British defenses. The heavy preliminary bombardment blotted out all the British outposts, excepting one just opposite Gavrelle. This single post with a comparatively small number of men turned its machine guns northward and enfiladed the Germans heavily. The assaulting troops however got in on both sides of this post, and the British fell back fighting their way out. Fierce fighting continued all day, but despite their gallant defense, the British found it advisable to fall back to a line between Bailleul and Willerval, which furnished particularly good positions for machine guns. Subsequent attacks by the Germans against Bailleul and Willerval, failed to swing the line further back. Just to the south, near Fampoux, the British holding the line sent back word that they would fight to the last and this was virtually what happened, for they gallantly stood their ground. On Friday and Saturday nights the British pushed their lines forward here again somewhat. Toward the Scarpe, the Germans were finally held up by a division which had been in the line for sixty-one days, up to the time of the Arras attack, and made a most spectacular fight in holding off the enemy from March 21st to March 28th. This division had originally held a sector of the line lying between the Arras-Cambrai Road and Fontaine Wood to the south. Because of the falling back of the line below them, they had gradually been forced to give way but continued fighting desperately until they reached the line between Walcourt and Hain. Here they were holding firmly on the morning of March 28th.

ENEMY AIRMEN RAID PARIS.

PARIS, To-day. Enemy airmen unsuccessfully attempted early this A.M. to bombard Paris but unable to penetrate the defensive barrage. Some bombs were dropped on the suburbs, but there were no casualties. An official communication issued this afternoon, says the work of the Canadian airmen crossed the lines, flying towards Paris this morning but they did not penetrate the Paris barrage defence, but made a half turn dropping bombs in the suburbs. There were no casualties.

CANADIAN RAILWAY TROOPS IN ACTION.

OTTAWA, To-day. Sir Robert Borden, to-day read to the House of Commons, three cables from War Headquarters in London, taken by Canadian troops in the last great battle. The first which told of the Canadian railway troops, stated that a majority of the battalions were in the battle area and close to the British line. One railway battalion, the cable said, had been heavily howitzers and loaded the big guns on trucks, while the British infantry were holding back the Germans only a few hundred yards away. In the Peronne section, another battalion after getting all its equipment and rolling stock away, organized ambulance trains on what trucks were left and carried out the wounded. A great fight to save a big railway howitzers was carried on by a company of Canadian railway troops, which after hauling it for a hundred and fifty yards towards safety, were forced to destroy the weapon. Cables state that in place where Canadian Railway troops had to retire were the lines and bridges left intact. All the first day, from Arras to Ham, the battalions were running back rolling stock and blowing up the line in many places, they were working with American engineers.

MARTIN ELECTED.

MONTREAL, To-day. Mayor Meticord Martin is re-elected and his majority will probably be about 2,000. Full returns are not available for some time yet. Hon. Chas. Macell, Speaker of the House of Commons, was elected Alderman for Notre Dame de Grace Ward.

GENERAL SUMMARY.

With the passing of the birthday of the new battle of the Somme, there came increasing evidence that the great German machine, with which it was intended to crush the Allied line, has almost utterly spent its force, and where previously the Germans had thrown men into the fray not counting the prodigious waste in killed and wounded, Tuesday saw them decline anywhere to give battle. On the contrary, in what little fighting occurred, the British and French troops took the initiative, and it seems apparent with the reserve forces of the Entente virtually intact, and with the added weight which General Pershing's troops will give them, the turn in the tide of the battle is at hand. Admittedly both the French and British armies have suffered rather severe casualties, as they stood valiantly to their task of impeding the Germans, and making them pay an unheard of price for every foot of ground gained. The reserves have been conserved with the utmost care behind the line for the fateful time when the withering fire of the Allied guns and machine guns should be brought to bear. The British and French commanders have not left outside their calculations that army of brave Americans, exceeding one hundred thousand men, who are fully trained and equipped and anxious to lend their aid in the task of defeating the Germans. Daily, the German losses in men killed or wounded continue to augment as details are obtained from the German dead, and the British and French machine guns and riflesmen, and companies withdrew from the fighting with their combative strength reduced to forty. The last accounts of the fighting from the various war chancelleries show no important new change in the battle front. Only minor operations took place on that portion of the front south of Arras, held by the British, and little aside from artillery actions occurred between the French and the Germans on the lower end of the line.

COUNT CZERNIN'S CANT.

LONDON, To-day. A despatch to the Exchange Telegraph Co. from Amsterdam says Count Czernin, the Austro-Hungarian Foreign Minister, addressing the Vienna Municipal Council on Tuesday, said that with the signing of peace with Rumania an important part of the war has ended. Regarding President Wilson's address, where the President really desired to separate Vienna from Berlin, that he, Czernin, had too good an opinion of President Wilson's statesmanship for that. Wilson knew, Count Czernin continued, that such a separation was impossible and he probably saw that Vienna was the more favourable ground for sowing the seeds of international peace than Berlin. Austria was fortunate in the possession of a ruler who was attached to the ideals of peace and behind him were 55,000,000 persons sharing the view that peace was also devoting his activities.

MILITARY AGE ADVANCED.

NEW YORK, To-day. The Allies are so terribly in need of men that in Great Britain the military age will probably be advanced after the present German offensive, according to a statement made here yesterday, by Sir George Adam Smith, Principal and Vice-Chancellor of Aberdeen University, who has just arrived here from England as a representative of the Department of Public Information of the British Foreign Office, to deliver a series of lectures. "What we need from America is ships and men, but aside from the material aid, I must say that the moral stimulus given by the entrance of America in the war is as tremendous as man power. However goes the vital issue we are now facing a very serious crisis but we will hold our own until you are ready."

WONT STAND DELAY.

WASHINGTON, To-day. American shipbuilders were called upon last night by Chairman Hurley of the Shipping Board, and General Manager Pletz, to explain why their output for March is behind schedule. The keynote of the present situation is now management and leadership. Money, material and men have been supplied without stint by the nation, and the American people want ships, not excuses. In discussing the situation Chairman Hurley said it was his intention to find out exactly where the fault lay.

BRITISH BIRD MEN BUSY.

LONDON, To-day. British aviators were very active on Monday on the battlefield in France, dropping bombs and bringing down sixteen German airplanes and two balloons. They dropped bombs on railway stations in the area behind the German lines.

TROTZKY AS A RANGER.

LONDON, To-day. The Bolshevik Government has crushed all its enemies, but cannot consider its power lasting, owing to the disorganization of the country. Leon Trotsky declared in a speech at Moscow, a Reuter despatch from Petrograd said.

MORE RUSSIAN SURPRISES.

LONDON, To-day. The Bolshevik Government has resolved to introduce compulsory military service, according to an Exchange Telegram despatch from Petrograd, and has agreed to discuss a proposal for the exclusion of peace from the Treaty of Peace. It is reported that the Germans and Ukrainians will attempt a fresh advance on Kharkev from Poltava.

ALLIES PERFECTING PLANS.

WITH THE BRITISH ARMY IN FRANCE, To-day.—(By A. P.)—The British armies were waiting yesterday for the next move along the extended battle front. Possibly the enemy also was waiting for the British to take their hand, but the probabilities are that the Germans were not quite ready to begin the struggle. The British have been such bitter fighting, there was a lull also. From the French sector to the south communications between the army and the front would break up with great violence, and further activity is expected at any hour. Meantime the day is working to the advantage of the Allies who are rapidly perfecting their plans to meet the next onslaught.

Can It Be?

By RUTH CAMERON.

RUTH CAMERON

What a lot we can learn from people, — if we will! And not only out of what they know, but out of what they don't know. Long, long ago (I wonder if there is a reader friend who still remembers it) I wrote a little talk on the value of a bad example.

One learns as much, I stated, from the bad example as from the good. I have revised that opinion. I think one learns more,—at least about small faults.

Of course, a good example is a wonderful influence. It gives us large ideals of character building. It fires us with high enthusiasm. But to help us detect small faults, unpleasant mannerisms, offenses against good taste, I think there is no force so powerful as the bad example.

Hitch This Force Up.

Of course this force has to be hitched up to the habit of self-analysis. Otherwise it is as useless as a pulley without a belt.

But once get the power transmitted to the right place, and what a lot of good it can do! In almost all the people you know, no matter how much you like them, you are apt to find some small faults.

Now, which of these faults do others see in you?

You Feel As If You Should Scream.

This friend, talks too much. Most of what she says is interesting, but there is too much of it. You feel as if you should scream, sometimes, if she doesn't keep still.

(Sometimes people have seemed unresponsive when you have been saying things you were sure were interesting. Can it be they were wanted to scream?)

That one, has a way of nagging you to do things. Usually things you ought to do,—and probably would do, in your own good time. But her importunities create an extraordinary obstinacy in you.

(Sometimes you have found people obstinate and unreasonable about simple things. Can it be—?)

Is This The Answer?

Another antagonizes by a self opinionatedness that obscures her excellent qualities of mind and heart. (You have wondered why, in spite of your excellent qualities of mind and heart, people are not always quick to take to you. Is this the answer?)

To be sure, self analysis can be carried too far and become in its excess a fault. But to one person who abuses his bad example, there are ninety-nine who could use them to better advantage.

To whom it may concern: This is to certify that I have used MINARD'S LINIMENT myself as well as prescribed it in my practice where a liniment was required and have never failed to get the desired effect.

C. A. KING, M.D.

Your Boys and Girls.

There are parents and many of them so bent on liberating their children, as they call it, that they go to extremes in the matter. "I would rather have my children honest than well mannered," says one of these. "If my little boy dislikes a guest in my house," says another mother, "he is at perfect liberty to show that dislike."

This has always seemed to me a strange and narrow conception of truth, namely that truth consists in showing and expressing one's feelings and one's likings and dislikes. Surely this is to take a very small and egotistical view of truth. One might as well say that beauty consists of what we think is beautiful in a particular instance, or that justice is of necessity what we think is just in a certain circumstance.

Surely a real love of truth is not a mere love of our particular truth. Surely to be truthful is not merely to express our opinions and feelings in a perfectly downright manner, whether it happens to be just or kind or appropriate or just that we should do so or not. Surely a real love of truth

THE FEET IN WARM WEATHER.

Your feet should be bathed twice a day in warm weather and as summer comes on, three times a day is not too often. Fresh hosiery should be donned every day. There is no excuse for excessive perspiration of the feet for at small cost one may purchase powders or a prescription that will cure the annoyance. One of the best things is one grain of permanganate of potash and one ounce of distilled water, applied with a soft gauze after the foot bath night and morning.

When you are bathing your feet you should bear in mind that you must relax all the muscles and blood vessels, and for that reason you must not subject the feet to great or sudden changes of temperature. A splendid tonic bath for tired and aching feet may be taken by adding to the usual foot bath of hot water, one ounce of green soap. Dip your feet up and down in the water until free from soap. In drying be sure to dry thoroughly in between the toes, as it is moisture between the toes that causes soft corns.

Callouses of the sole and heel are often painful and sometimes really cripple the sufferer. Frequent bathing and rubbing often suffices to keep these formations from being troublesome. A smooth piece of pumice stone may be used to shave off the thickened skin. Before applying either of these remedies it is well to apply cold cream to the sore spots.

Daylight Saving.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir,—I was pleased to see the stand taken by you on the subject of Daylight Saving, and I trust the Government will give us all the benefit of this most excellent measure at an early date.

Our war gardeners are anxious to raise quantities of necessary vegetables to eclipse all previous years' crops, and to do this, men who are working until 6 o'clock or later each evening find it strange that such an excellent measure should be delayed until the spring has well advanced.

The securing of kelp and other manure and fertilizers are necessary, and in order to secure this, men spend weeks of spare time previous to actual planting and sowing, in securing manure, and in many cases in this district the after-noon farmer is limited in his planting to the amount of manure he is able to secure. April 1st to April 10th is late enough for the old time, if the great benefit to production of food is to be realized.

Thanking you in anticipation of space in your most valuable paper.

Yours truly,

WALES IN THE HOUSE OF LORDS.

The Prince of Wales took his seat in the House of Lords on February 19th, and the general impression was that he looked and behaved exactly as a nice, shy, well-bred English boy should. Everybody took a kindly interest in his fair face and smooth-brushed hair as he walked between his sponsors, the Duke of Norfolk and the Duke of Somerset. He spoke in a clear, youthful voice, without mumbling or hesitation, when he took the oath of allegiance to his Royal father. As he put on his cocked hat and took his seat on the Prince of Wales' chair beside the throne it was noted in his favor that he blushed deeply. After sitting there for a moment or two he left the Chamber and went to the Moses Room to get rid of his scarlet robes and smoke a cigarette. After that he came back to the House in his khaki to listen to the debate for a while, and then went out to the tea-room, where he took tea and had a long chat with some Indian officers. The Queen was in the peacemaker's gallery watching this family event with deep interest, and occasionally with signs of amiable nervousness. It may interest your women readers to know that she was dressed in black with a curl-brimmed black hat, trimmed with large black ostrich plumes, and wore a long brown fur stole and a large muff to match. It is of course well known that the Queen does not "follow the fashions."

ABDUL HAMID'S GERMAN INVESTMENTS.

According to information which has reached an authoritative neutral quarter here from Bern the death of the ex-Sultan Abdul Hamid of Turkey has raised the question in Berlin as to what is to be done with, or more correctly, what has become of, the four million pounds ($20,000,000) which was understood to be lying in certain German banks to the credit of the late monarch. After his deposition efforts were made to obtain the money for the successor to the throne, but various legal objections were brought forward by the bankers, and the question was still at issue when the war broke out. If the money be allowed now to go to Constantinople it may be considered certain to be coupled with conditions which would make the hold of Germany on the Porte even stronger than before.

WALLES IN THE HOUSE OF LORDS.

The Prince of Wales took his seat in the House of Lords on February 25th, and the general impression was that he looked and behaved exactly as a staid, shy, well-bred English boy should. Everybody took a kindly interest in his fair face and smooth-brushed hair as he walked between his sponsors, the Duke of Norfolk and the Duke of Somerset. He spoke in a clear, youthful voice, without mummery or hesitation, when he took the oath of allegiance to his Royal father. As he sat on the Prince of Wales' chair beside the throne it was noted in his favor that he blushed deeply. After sitting there for a moment or two he left the Chamber and went to the Mess Room to get rid of his scarlet nose and smoke a cigarette. After that he came back to the House in his khaki to listen to the debate for a while, and then went out to the terrace, where he took tea and had a long chat with some Indian officers. The Queen was in the perches' gallery watching this family event with deep interest, and occasionally with signs of amiable nervousness. It may interest your women readers to know that she was dressed in black with a curl-brimmed black hat, trimmed with large black ostrich plumes, and wore a long brown fur stole and a large mitt to match. It is of course well known that the Queen does not "follow the fashion."

ABDUL HAMID'S GERMAN INVESTMENTS.

According to information which has reached an authoritative neutral quarter here from Bern the death of the ex-Sultan Abdul Hamid of Turkey has raised the question in Berlin as to what is to be done with, or, more correctly, what has become of, the four million pounds ($20,000,000) which was understood to be lying in certain German banks to the credit of the late monarch. After his deposition efforts were made to obtain the money for the successor to the throne, but various legal objections were brought forward by the bankers, and the question was still at issue when the war broke out. If the money be allowed now to go to Constantinople it may be considered certain to be coupled with conditions which would make the hold of Germany on the Porte even stronger than before.

RUSSIAN WIRELESS FOR GERMAN USE.

An authority who is specially qualified to form an opinion has stated that one of the most probable results of the peace the Central Powers have made with Russia, and one against which the Allied Governments should be particularly on their guard, is the use by German agents of the Russian wireless stations. Some of these are known to be of very high power, and it is argued that they could and might be employed by the enemy with the greater advantage to his cause seeing that many of the Russian consular officers who have accepted the existing regime are of German descent or nationality.

THE NEW STYLE.

"Lord Northcliffe has consented to accept the position of Director of Propaganda in Enemy Countries." A great number of people would like very much to know who was responsible for the form of the announcement. I notice that even the London "Times" has printed this semi-official formula in all seriousness. Most other papers, with the due regard to paper shortage and common sense, have shortened it to "has accepted" or "has been appointed." One does not remember any other of the many gentlemen who have given their services to the nation in important capacities having either "consented to accept" or "been pleased to accept" such opportunities for serving their country.

FIRST PRISONERS FROM TURKEY.

Although the Germans have forbidden all civilian journeys across the Dutch frontier, I am glad to learn that the exchange of British and German prisoners continues, and a contingent of British prisoners is on its way now. Even more gratifying is the arrival of some sorely wounded and exhausted British and Indian prisoners from Turkey through Switzerland. These are, so far as I remember, the first men we have recovered from the famine and neglect of the Turkish prison camps, except for one or two local exchanges such as that after the fall of Kut, when we had to redeem sick Englishmen by releasing hale Turks. The prisoners returned from Turkey under an old agreement long ignored by the Turks. That they have chosen to act on it now gives ground for the hope that they will soon ratify the Convention their delegates signed at Bern last autumn, and will carry out a larger exchange in time to save the survivors from Kut now suffering in Anatolia.

I went up to Regent Street (one of the fashionable shopping thoroughfares of London) one afternoon last week to see the splendid gem which the London Diamond Syndicate has given to be sold at Christie's in the coming Red Cross sale. The windows of the Goldsmiths' and Silversmiths' Company are filled with other gems, plate, and diamonds, which well-known people have sent to the sale. To see the big diamond one has to go inside—to be shown a cushion-shaped crystal of pale canary yellow color, which refracts the light so that a beautiful cross is visible on its summit. A Kimberley stone, it weighed, when uncut, nearly 850 carats, and now, after cutting in Amsterdam, 205 carats. The famous Pitt diamond—the only other known to refract a cross of light—weighs only 136 carats. The Red Cross stone is probably the largest yellow diamond known.

THE ENTRY INTO JERUSALEM.

The Propaganda Department, which is now to be known as the "Ministry of Information" with the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster (Lord Beaverbrook who, by the way, is also practically the owner of the "Daily Express" just as Lord Northcliffe, his eminent helper, is at the head of the great so-called Northcliffe group of newspapers and magazines) at the head of it, has just taken public action for the first time under the new regime. It has released a cinema film to be issued by the War Office topical budget in the national interest, and all profits are to go for patriotic purposes. The only fault of the film, which in other respects is excellent, is that it is very brief, filling the screen for a few minutes only. It gives an extremely interesting glimpse of General Allenby's entry into Jerusalem, followed by the Allied commanders and military attaches. The reading of the proclamation is then shown, and after holding a reception of religious and civic dignitaries the Commander-in-Chief mounts his horse outside the Jaffa Gate and rides through the streets of the suburbs of the city. Not less striking than the presentation of these historic incidents are the sections showing the amazing cosmopolitan crowd in the streets after the ceremony. But for the fact that the principal figures in the film are in uniform there is nothing to suggest that the picture was taken in war time on the heels of a great military exploit. It might have been an episode in an Oriental fair.

FRENCH AT WESTMINSTER.

I noticed that ex-Premier Asquith spoke the other evening of "Versailles" on the occasion of the Versailles debate in the House of Commons, and even at times sounded the final "a," whereas Prime Minister Lloyd George followed the usual pronunciation, which omits both the sounds of "r" and "a." But Mr. Asquith inclines to the old-fashioned pronunciations. On that occasion he, as he always does, "assumed" facts. Upon this question of pronunciation of words some of our leading politicians differ very radically. In fact, all the great speakers, Lloyd George, Asquith, F. E. Smith, Milner, and the rest, have certain words they pronounce in a particular way and no amount of joking in the newspapers will ever induce these gentlemen to adopt what might be called the more regular pronunciations.

A Child Gets Cross, Sick and Feverish When Constipated

Look, Mother! If tongue is coated clean little liver and bowels.

If your little one's tongue is coated, it is a sure sign the stomach, liver and bowels need a gentle, thorough cleansing at once. When your child is cross, peevish, listless, pale, doesn't sleep, eat or act naturally; if breath is bad, stomach sour, system full of cold, throat sore, or if feverish, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the clogged-up, constipated waste, sour bile and undigested food will gently move out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again. Sick children needn't be coaxed to take this harmless "fruit laxative." Millions of mothers keep it handy because they know its action on the stomach, liver and bowels is prompt and sure. They also know a little given to-day saves a sick child to-morrow. Ask your druggist for a bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which contains directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly on the bottle. Beware of counterfeiters sold here. Get the genuine made by "California Fig Syrup Company."

Notification of Son's Death.

Copy of Letter Received from the War Office.
270657 Pte. G. Vickers,
Acting Chaplain,
Genfengenslager, Duimen,
Westf., Jan. 11th, 1918.

Dear Mr. Twiner,—I deeply regret to inform you your son 2030 Corporal H. Twiner, passed away in Launette here on Jan. 7th, 1918. He was wounded in the Cambrai affair, taken prisoner and brought into hospital here about four weeks ago. He was attended by English R.A.M.C. Orderlies and the German Medical Staff, from whom he received every attention. The English help committee here also sent across what invalid comforts we have in hand. We realize the value of life and so work with a will. Our efforts, however, were unavailing. We bid him to rest in a quiet little cemetery outside camp in the sure hope of his final resurrection to eternal life where war and sin will not be known but love be king of all. May the great Father give to you his peace and blessing, and help you to bear this trial, knowing that he died a death, worthy of an Englishman, patient and uncomplaining. God bless you all.
Yours faithfully,
G. W. VICKERS.

LETTER OF SYMPATHY.
94 York Road, New Cut,
Bedminster, Bristol.
6th March, 1918.

Dear Mr. Twiner,—I am an R.A.M.C. just back from Germany. As your son was in my care during his short stay with us, I thought you would like to know some particulars. No doubt you have had news. The camp I was at was Dieren, Westfalen. He came to us with a wound in the spine, also blood poison in the leg. The surgical treatment he received was good. He had practically no pain during his illness. It was impossible to save his life as you may guess by his wounds. He died very peacefully on Jan. 7th, 1918. Kindly accept my deepest sympathy. He was a grand man right to the end. He was buried with military honors. His grave will be well cared for and in the near future you will receive a photograph. If after the war you would like a plan of the cemetery write to Graves Registration Dept., Whitehall, London. I am home for two months, so if you want to know any further particulars, I shall be only too pleased to supply them. No trouble will be too great, so please write.
Believe me, yours sincerely,
ARTHUR J. BASS.

General Maude's Funeral.

THE LAST RITES IN THE DESERT.

Baghdad, Nov. 26.—Within a mile of the outskirts of Baghdad city, on the edge of the desert, on land bare of trees, scrub, or grass, protected on all sides by a low wall of earth, are three cemeteries for soldiers. Beside the cemetery for Hindus, beside the cemetery for Mahomedans, is a space reserved for the bodies of those who have died in the Christian faith. In this space his body now lies, surrounded by the bodies of British soldiers who gave their lives, as he gave his life, for the great cause of liberty; fighting, as he ever fought, for the honour of King and country.

On the morning of November 19 the sun rose on clear, unclouded skies, as are usual to Mesopotamia in the autumn, but as the day passed a dull haze filled the air, the wind died, and, as the hour of the coming ceremony drew near, the sunless sky gave a uniform leaden hue to the dust-coloured air. To us who rode at the front of the procession, the bare plain it seemed that the desert had lost every symptom of freshness and vitality; that the absence of light and shade, the heaviness of the air, and the unwonted stillness gave a feeling of physical oppression in keeping with the cause that brought us to the city.

Sometimes by a soldier's grave the near presence of Death is brought home to the mourners by the thud of bullets and the sound of bursting shells; sometimes it is possible for the burial to be accompanied and its impressiveness enhanced by such music and ceremony as befit the occasion. To-day we stood beyond the sound of enemy guns; but though no drum-beat and no funeral note was sounded, though no gun-carriage bore the coffin, though the mind was not stirred by the most touching of all symbols, the charger carrying the empty saddle, yet the greatness of the man and the honour in which all held him lent more dignity and weight to the ceremony than could any outside suggestion have given. And this scene by the edge of the bare desert, engraved on the mind of every mourner—and none were present but those who had served and loved him—an impression so deep and lasting it can never be effaced nor ever put into words.

Among his last wishes General Maude had asked that men of his old and well-loved division might take part in these last rites. Officers from nearly every brigade in Mesopotamia were present, and all his staff, and among the khaki soldiers stood a group of seamen, yet the figures who seemed most in keeping with the ceremony and most in touch with the General's spirit were the men he had asked might be there; the few private soldiers of his old division, who stood as the procession slowly passed silent and motionless, each leaning over his rifle with bowed head.
