TEACHERS WANTED for High School, Curling—Principal, A.A. Grade, Male, and Assistant, 1st Grade, Female; also Male Teacher for Mead-

For Love of a Woman;

OR, New Romeo and Juliet.

CHAPTER X. FOR HIM ALONE.

The other box remained screened, and the occupant visible.

The play proceeded, and then came the showers of bouquets.

Now, Barton is not a doral town by any means, so that the bouquets which fell at the feet of the girlish Juliet must have been procured at some pains and trouble. The Romeo filled his arms with them, and one only remained lying on the stage.

It was a magnificent bouquet of white and purple violets; and as it fell, Doris, Doris, looking up, saw the handsome face of Lord Neville close to the stage in the orchestra stalls.

She stooped and raised the bouquet, and glanced at him, but this time she did not lift the flowers to her lips.

As she passed, off the manager touched her arm.

"I've found out who it is that's got the box on the prompt side," he said; "It's Lady Grace Peyton, the great London beauty. She's staying at Barton Towers—the Marquis of Stoyles's place, you know."

"At Barton Towers!" said Doris. Then she went to the side of the procession and looked at the box in which Lady Grace's face was just visible. "How beautiful she is!" she murmured.

"Yes, I should think so," said the manager. "Why, she's the professional beauty of the season. It's an honour to have her in the theatre. And who else do you think is here?" he added, exultingly.

"I don't know," said Doris, moving away.

"Why, Lord Cecil Neville, the marquis's nephew; and he was here last night. What do you think of that? It isn't only the pit and gallery that have gone mad over you, Miss Marlowe, but the gentry, too. Just as I said last night. Lord Cecil Neville! I daresay you have heard of him; but he's the best-known man in London. I wish I knew who was in the other box, but I can't find out."

"Perhaps it's the marquis himself," said Doris, with an absent smile.

"Oh, no!" said the manager; "he'd be with Lord Neville or Lady Grace No, it's not the marquis."

She went and dressed for the last and great scene, and when she came out found Jeffrey pacing up and down.

"Better than last night, Doris," he said, nodding, and glancing at her under his thick, frowning brows. "You have made all the points to-night; that's right. Keep cool. Don't let your head be turned by the applause and the bouquets! What! Violets again to-night? Very kind, very characteristic! Let me hold them for you," and he held out his hand for the bouquet, which, unthinkingly, she had brought out with her.

She extended them to him, when, her eyes dwelling on them, she saw a mark of white amongst the purple blossoms.

Then she gave them to him, saying, hurriedly, "Take care of them; they smell so sweet," and went and took her place at the wing, crushing the piece of paper into the bosom of her dress.

She had to wait some few minutes, and with a quickly throbbing heart she took out the paper and glanced at it.

A scribble in pencil ran across it: "Will you meet me in the fields to-morrow! I must speak to you."

CECIL NEVILLE.
That was all. She replaced the paper in her bosom, where it seemed to burn like a living thing, and went on the stage.

If her performance in this scene on the preceding night was good, to-night, was much in advance of it. Her voice seemed to thrill the vast audience, and, with her face, moved them to tears.

But Doris was conscious of only one spectator and auditor—the one who leant forward in the centre box, with the rapt attention of a devotee at a shrine.

The curtain fell amidst a thunder of applause, and, pale and quivering, she was led on by the Romeo to receive the enthusiastic expression of approbation and delight.

"Wonderful, Miss Marlowe!" said the Romeo. "Miles ahead of last night, and that was good enough."

She was about to acknowledge the frank and generous compliment, when she felt her arm seized, and saw Jeffrey standing beside her.

His face was white and brown, the sunken eyes blazing with passion. "Doris! Doris!" he gasped.

"Jeffrey!" she said, half-frightened. "What is the matter?"

Doris looked and saw a fair, pleasant-looking man standing in the front row of the box. He was watching the dispersing audience with a gentle smile, and his fat, white hand was softly smoothing his long, fair hair from his forehead. He looked benevolent enough to be a bishop, and Doris stared from him to the white, ashen face of Jeffrey.

"What is it, dear Jeffrey?" she asked.

"Look! look!" he repeated, hoarsely. "There, stands your greatest enemy—save one! Your greatest enemy in the world! Look at him, Doris! Look at him and remember him!"

She turned her eyes to the box.

"That fair gentleman with the long hair, do you mean, Jeffrey?"

"Yes, that is him! Curse him! Curse him!" he muttered. Then suddenly he seemed to recover himself. "Come away!" he said, brokenly. "Don't pay any attention to what I have said. It—it is nothing!" and he let the edge of the curtain fall.

CHAPTER XI. LOVE'S SUBTLE SPELL.

At any other time Doris would have been alarmed at Jeffrey's sudden outburst of rage, occasioned by the sight of the amiable-looking stranger in the box; but she could think of nothing but the little white note lying hidden in the bunch of violets which Lord Cecil Neville had thrown to her.

It was the first note she had received in that way, and she felt guilty and unhappy.

If she had only told Jeffrey on the first of her acquaintance with Lord Neville! She would have taken the note to him, if she had done so; but she felt that to place it in his hands now would be to call forth one of his fierce outbursts of rage, in which it was quite possible he might seek Lord Neville and force a quarrel on him.

What should she do? The question haunted her all the way home. Should she write and tell Lord Neville that she could not meet him, and request him not to write to her again! This seemed the easiest thing to do; but she shrank from it for two reasons: one, because Jeffrey had often warned her against writing to strangers, and the other, because it seemed so stern a rebuke for so slight an offence.

For, after all, his sin was not so great. He had asked permission to call upon her, asked it respectfully; and with all the deference of a gentleman addressing a lady his equal in position, and she had refused to grant him the permission. If he wanted to see her, what else could he do than write and ask her to meet him?

Once she nearly summoned up courage to tell Jeffrey everything; but, as she looked up at him as he leant back in the corner of the fly, with bent head and folded arms, she saw so stern and moody an expression on his face that her courage failed her; he was just in the humour to consider the note an insult, and seek to avenge it.

And somehow Doris could not regard it in this way. As she read the words, she seemed to hear Lord Neville's deep, musical voice pronouncing them, pleadingly, respectfully, with reverence rather than insult.

Doris was a great actress, but she was as ignorant of the world outside the theatre as a child; she had only her instinct to guide her, and that seemed to say that it was impossible Lord Neville could have meant to insult her.

But the result of all her thinking was this: that her acquaintance with him must cease. She must have no friends save those of the theatre; least of all, a young nobleman who tossed her bouquets of violets and begged her to meet him in the meadows.

Jeffrey's mood clung to him during the remainder of the night. As a rule, after their supper, which was an exceedingly simple one, he grew cheerful and talkative; but to-night he sat with bent head and frowning brows, apparently brooding over the past.

Once or twice she saw him look up at her with a half-troubled glance; then, as his eyes met hers, he compressed his lips and sighed; and after awhile he said, suddenly:

"You are happy, Doris?"

She started slightly and the colour rushed to her face. It almost seemed as if he knew something was troubling her.

"Happy, Jeffrey? Yes," she said, and went and sat at his feet and folded her hands on his knee.

He looked down into her beautiful face—not into her eyes, for they were downcast.

"Yes," he said, moodily and absently, as if he were communing with his own thoughts rather than addressing her, "yes, you are happy. How could it be otherwise? All that I have wished for has come to pass. You are a great actress; you will be famous. The world will be at your feet—even as you are now at mine. It will hang upon your voice, watch with breathless interest your face, pour its gold into your lap. Great, famous; you are—you must be—happy."

"Yes, Jeffrey," she said, "and I owe it all to you."

"To me?" he said. "Yes. But if you do, it is a debt that I myself owed. To you—to her—"

"To her?" she murmured, wonderingly.

"To Lucy—to your mother," he said, still absently.

"To my mother?" said Doris, with bated breath.

He was silent for a moment, then he seemed as if awakening from a dream.

"Doris," he said, gravely, and with visible emotion, "there is something I must tell you. I ought to have told you before this; but I put it off. I would put it off now—his lips quivered—"for I hate the thought of it. But to-night my conscience has been roused. That man—" He stopped, and his teeth clicked. "Doris!" he exclaimed, with a catch in his breath. "Tell me, have I not been as a father to you? Could any father have loved you better, and lived for you more solely and entirely than I have done?"

"No, Jeffrey, none," he said, in a low voice, and laying her soft, white hand upon his rugged and gnarled one, soothingly.

"I call Heaven to witness that I have only one thought—your welfare. When you lay, a little child, in my arms, I devoted my life to you. Every hour of the day I have thought of you, and planned out your future. It was not my own happiness I sought, not my own ambition, but yours—yours! I have lived and striven for one end—your success and your happiness. And I have won. You are a great actress, Doris, and it is I—I who have taught and trained and made you what you are!"

"Yes, Jeffrey," she murmured, "I know it; and I am grateful—grateful!"

"But are you happy? Are you happy, child?" he demanded, and his voice sounded almost stern in its intensity.

The colour came and went in her face.

"How could I be, otherwise, Jeffrey?" she said. "Yes, I am happy!"

He drew a long breath, as of relief, but went on:

"Compare your lot with others. I don't mean the poor and common-place; but those others, the rich, the well-born, the titled. Would you have been happier, for instance, if you had been—let me say—the daughter of a nobleman—"

She smiled at the question, earnestly as it was put.

"I don't know any daughters of noblemen, Jeffrey," she said; "but I don't think I would exchange places with any of them."

He nodded, and laid his hand upon her head.

"No, no," he said, moodily.

"No," she said, with a faint laugh. "I would not exchange places with the highest lady in the land. To be able to move a theatre full of people to tears or laughter, that is better than being an earl's daughter, is it not, Jeffrey?"

He started.

"Yes, yes," he said, eagerly; "that is what I wanted you to feel. Anyone can be an earl's daughter; but few—how few!—the Doris Marlowes who wrought an audience to enthusiasm to-night."

She smiled up at him.

"And what is this you are going to tell me, Jeffrey?"

He started, and his hand fell from her head.

A Very Gallant Lady.

What is the secret of the cool courage and splendid optimism shown by Mrs. Hawker at the time when everyone else believed that her husband, the super-airman, had met a tragic fate?

One explanation is that she possesses what is generally called the sixth sense—that sensitive telepathy which has often been manifested between two people devoted to each other.

Husband and baby have been everything to her, "but," she says, "I am more proud of the man I married than ever."

Mrs. Hawker has always taken the keenest interest in aviation, and often accompanied her husband on aerial trips. She also spends hours with him in his workshop learning about motors and motor-engineering.

Promotion by Merit.

TAXICAB DRIVER BECAME GENERAL IN BRITISH ARMY.

In his last despatch—one of the most remarkable historical documents ever published, says the Manchester Guardian, Sir Douglas Haig pays a great tribute to the qualities which won the war for Britain, and which, as he indicates, were displayed by men of all ranks of society, from the humblest to the highest.

"The life of the British Empire generally," he says, "has proved sound under the severest tests, and, while giving men whom it is an honor for any officer to command, has furnished officers of the highest standard from all ranks of society and all quarters of the world." "Promotion," he continues "has been entirely by merit, and the highest appointments were open to the humblest, provided he had the necessary qualifications of character, skill and knowledge.

"Many instances could be quoted of men who from civil or comparatively humble occupations have risen to important commands.

"A schoolmaster, a lawyer, a taxicab driver and an ex-sergeant-major have commanded brigades.

"One editor has commanded a division and another held successfully the position of senior staff officer to a regular division.

"The undercook of a Cambridge college, a clerk to the Metropolitan Water Board, an insurance clerk, an architect's assistant and a police inspector became efficient general staff officers.

"A mess sergeant, a railway signaller, a coal miner, a market gardener, an assistant secretary to a haberdasher's company, a quartermaster sergeant and many private soldiers have risen to command battalions.

"Clerks have commanded batteries. "A schoolmaster, a collier, the son of a blacksmith, an iron moulder, an instructor in tailoring, an assistant gas engineer, a grocer's assistant, as well as policemen, clerks and privates have commanded companies and acted as adjutants."

These remarkable facts show that no handicaps of birth or social environment can in the end prevent a man going forward and winning promotion, provided he develops those qualities which fit him to control others, to carry out responsible duties, and to fill efficiently positions of authority and command.

At the outset of the war, as Sir Douglas Haig states, our new troops, drawn as they were "from every sphere of life, from every profession, department, and industry of the British Empire and thrust suddenly into a totally new situation 'full of unknown difficulties,' were placed at a disadvantage "compared with the methodically trained enemy." "This disadvantage, however, was 'overcome,' and 'young officers, whatever their previous education may have been,' 'learned their duties with enthusiasm and speed,' and 'accepted their responsibilities unflinchingly.'"

Points of Dishonour.

SIR PERCY SCOTT'S FOURTEEN THRUSTS.

Admiral Sir Percy Scott, reviewing the peace terms, says:—The whole civilized world is I think, in agreement that the peace terms are fair and equitable; in reviewing them I have no doubt that the whole civilized world will agree on the following points:—

1. That the Germans deliberately brought about the war.
 2. That all the statements made by the Kaiser and his high officials to the effect that the war was forced upon them were lies.
 3. That in the future neither the words nor the signatures of Germans can be trusted.
 4. That as regards the German national character, the war showed that when victorious against Belgium they conducted war on ruthless, remorseless, and relentless principles, and committed every crime that savagery can compass.
 5. That they were encouraged in these crimes by their officers and high officials.
 6. That as liars, from the Kaiser downward, they are unparalleled; they lied to their own nation, they lied to their allies, they lied to the world.
 7. As thieves and wanton destroyers of property they have outdone the savage race of Huns that they are descended from; their wholesale thieving was not the acts of individuals; it was organized and controlled by high officials.
 8. That in defeat their true character is revealed; it is despicable, for they are now squealing like whipped curs.
 9. That the statement made by Hun officials to the effect that they could have carried the war to a victorious end, but that internal troubles forced them to ask for an armistice, is a lie.
 10. That in the war the Huns were fairly and thoroughly beaten on the sea, under the sea, on the land, and in the air.
 11. That the war has practically been a triumph of civilization over barbarism.
 12. That probably the most contemptible character of the war was the man known as Kaiser William II.; he sanctioned the crimes committed by his barbaric subjects; he lied to his Army and to his people; his speeches were mostly blasphemous.
 13. The Kaiser prolonged the war and the consequent shedding of blood for three years, for he knew that he was beaten at the Marne.
 14. When in November, 1918, the end had to come, the Kaiser, instead of facing it like an Emperor and a man, ran away.
- Their last act in sinking the ships at Scapa Flow teaches the world that the Huns have no honour, and that the world has been foolish in treating them as a civilized race; they are barbarians.

Vile Woman Spy.

Said to Have Worn Uniform to See Men Shot.

One of the most terrible monsters revealed by the war is Alice Aubert, one of the "twenty-five informers of Laon" now being tried in Paris by court-martial for treason during the German occupation. She is a woman of extraordinarily hard appearance, but with the remains of a sort of savage beauty. Her lover, a young man named Reselle, is in the dock with her. "You have the deaths of at least five Frenchmen on your conscience," the president of the court told her. She denounced several French soldiers who were in hiding in the Laon district. The Huns shot them, and Alice Aubert is alleged to have borrowed a German soldier's uniform to attend the execution. After this the Mayor of Anguilcourt and his deputy and several other people were shot. One of Alice Aubert's victims was Mme. Daubenton, who was sentenced to ten years' imprisonment for giving the French soldiers a piece of bread. Alice Aubert twice visited Paris on spying missions. On the first occasion she spent a fortnight in the capital to collect information for the enemy. In a whispering voice she told the court that Lieut. von Heeringen, with whom she had an intrigue, compelled her to carry out these missions by horsewhipping her. The most monstrous crime alleged against her is denunciation of the Mayor of Assis-sur-Serre, named Bauge. Even the Hun military judges were revolted by her infamy. According to her story Reselle, her lover, said to her one day, "Bauge must die. Tassot and I have sworn it." Tassot was Bauge's unsuccessful opponent at the municipal elections. In revenge a charge against Bauge of harboring French spies dropped by aeroplanes was trumped up, and Tassot swore that he had seen them at the Mayor's house. Bauge was sentenced to death, but his wife succeeded in proving his innocence and saving him, and the Germans shot Tassot instead for bearing false witness. Reselle, a low-browed brute, vehemently denied his mistress's version of the story.

Why Bread Gets Stale.

The Warmer It's Kept the Longer it Will Keep New.

The Government Committee which has been sitting recently on the evil of night baking have spent a large part of their time listening to evidence on how and stale bread. Dr. Robertson, one of the witnesses, stated that bread was at its best from twelve to twenty-four hours old, and it was suggested that the best way to keep bread was in an earthenware pan. It took scientists quite a long time to find out why bread went stale, and it was thought for many years that it was because the moisture had dried out of it, till it was noticed that even a damp loaf went stale as quickly as a dry one.

The real thing which makes bread go stale is cold. Loaves become staler much more quickly in winter than they do in summer, and new bread keeps new much longer if kept in a pantry which is kept warm. As most pantries are especially chosen because of their coldness it's no wonder the bread goes stale so quickly. Putting them in big earthenware pans keeps them warm, and, therefore, newer for a long time.

Try keeping your loaves in a warm place, if you like fresh bread.

True Generosity.

The response with which St. John's answered the appeal to assist in swelling the Grampian-Isleberg Disaster Fund yesterday, was truly magnificent, and the thousands of spectators who assembled to witness the sports on St. George's Field not only enjoyed a highly pleasing exhibition of athletics, but also had the satisfaction of knowing that the individual patronage multiplied by that of the number present, made a total, which is perhaps a record one even for such a liberal-giving population as that of this city.

The weather god smiled on the gathering and the warm and cheering rays of old Sol, added to the comfort of the numerous spectators, and contributed much toward the success of the various numbers.

To the gentlemen of the city, who assisted the promoters of the Fund, in putting on such a fine programme, the warmest praise is due, and we would that we could express the thanks of all, given spontaneously, in such a way as would add to the tribute of gratitude which has already been accorded them. The need of their reward is, however, in the knowledge of having performed a great part in that spirit of love and sympathy, which is characteristic of people who have their homes by the sea. The gentlemen from the Grampian to whom may be attributed the inauguration of the fund for the widows of the men killed, will too have their reward in the thanks of the women and children for whose benefit, the games of yesterday were organized and so sportingly carried out.

Grampian's Passengers Honor Captain.

At ten o'clock this morning, representative passengers of the C.P.O.S. Liner Grampian, now in port, assembled in the main saloon, and presented Capt. Turnbull with a very handsome silver shield as a mark of the esteem in which he is held. The deputation consisted of Mr. J. A. Robb, Victoria, B.C., who performed the actual presentation, Mrs. Florence Beck, of Vancouver, B.C., and Dr. Monroe Horne, Shanghai, China. In replying Capt. Turnbull affirmed that he had done nothing more than his duty but that he felt very highly honored in being the recipient of such a valuable present. He concluded by stating that he would always keep it with him as long as he was at sea. The shield, which was the work of R. H. Trappell, was of solid silver, mounted on a mahogany back of the same shape, and bore the following inscription beautifully engraved:

R. M. S. GRAMPIAN. Presented to Captain James Turnbull, C.B.E., R.D., R.N.R., by the Passengers in admiration of his safely navigating the ship back to St. John's, N.F.L.D., after collision with an iceberg, causing serious damage to her bows, 9th July, 1919.

When you want Sausages, why—get ELLIS'; they're the best.

Released Under Bonds.

The trial of the men of Flat Island, B.E., has been postponed until Nov. 10th next, and the prisoners left for their homes yesterday to engage in the summer's fishery. They were obliged to furnish bonds to the amount of $600.00 each.

C. L. B. Field Day.

The C. L. B. held a field day at Oxen Pond yesterday, and those taking part enjoyed themselves immensely. Under command of Lieut. Col. R. F. Goodridge, A and F Companies and the recruits, with the bugle band, left the Armoury early in the afternoon and marched to the grounds, where they engaged in skirmishing, the winners of the engagement being No. 1. Section of A Company which succeeded in surrounding the "enemy". Tea was partaken on the field, after which return was made to town, the Battalion being met on the road and played to the Armoury by the Battalion Band.

Garden Party at Littledale.

The annual Garden Party at Littledale yesterday afternoon, was a success in every way. The weather was ideal, the attendance large and the attractions many. His Grace Archbishop Roche, His Lordship Bishop Power, of St. George's, and His Lordship Bishop March, of Harbor Grace; with many of the Clergy and Christian Brothers were present during the afternoon. At night a concert was held in which some of the best city talent took part. The days events were most enjoyable, lasting until 9 o'clock when the gathering broke up, and many expressions of pleasure testified to all having spent a delightful function.

Five Arrests Made.

Sgt. O'Neil wired yesterday from Battle Harbor that Edward Morgan, Reuben Ralph, Aaron Ralph, Lewis Ralph, and Thomas Butt, five Flat Islanders, had been arrested, and were on board the S.S. Ingraham, which was going North for the other accused. Dense fog prevailed, and there was loose ice on the coast.

Sailor Drowned.

Henry Corkum, a sailor belonging to the schooner L. B. Mowlen, was drowned at Carboneau yesterday, by the sinking of his dory which was overloaded with ice. The body has been recovered. The unfortunate man was a native of Lunenburg.

Rumoured Another V.C. Won by Newfoundland.

For the last day or two a rumour to the effect that another Victoria Cross had been won by a Newfoundland has been going around town. The winner, it was stated, was Royal Naval Reservist Henry George Rideout of Pilley's Island, N.D.E. Neither the Briton, Militia Dept. nor Government House had any information to give and up to press hour nothing official has been received. If the rumour be true then the heartiest congratulations of the entire country go out to Reservist Rideout, the one and only Victoria Cross man of the Naval division of this country.

ALFRED SHRUBB. English Marathon Runner.

In conversation with the Telegram reporter aboard the Grampian this morning, Alfred Shrubb, the champion marathon runner of the world, gave many interesting facts concerning his life of racing and sports. In appearance, he is dark complexioned, very slight in stature, light and exceptionally wiry, while his legs are very long as compared with his height. He has written several books, an autographed copy of which, entitled "Long Distance Running," he presented to the Telegram reporter.

Alfred Shrubb's record has been one continuous round of success. He has competed in many countries, and has met more rivals than any other pedestrian alive or dead. His victories exceed in proportion those of any man who ever lived, and to his credit, he is said, in a period of jobbery he has never had the finger of suspicion pointed at him. Space will not permit a thorough review of his wonderful achievements. He has been called the incomparable, the unconquerable, the little wonder, and been given many other titles significant of his remarkable career. Not alone is he the champion distance runner of the world up to fifteen miles, but he has also gained fame as a cross-country runner, and for several years has held the title of cross-country champion of Great Britain. He has been on the track for approaching a dozen years, and is still unbeatable and unbeaten at his favorite distances. Britishers, Canadians, Australians, Americans and Europeans have all gone down before this slim-built, slight and light little fellow. It must not be supposed, however, that Alfred Shrubb is a mere midget. He is neither a Sandow giant in stature nor a Daniel Lambert in build, but he is a mass of whipcord and muscle, stands 5 ft. 6 ins. in height, and weighs ordinarily, when stripped, 126 lbs. Dark in complexion, he has a face which distinguishes him from the ordinary man, and which would at once attract attention, as possessing bright intelligence and power of achievement beyond the common. As another writer of a sketch of the champion says, it is the upper portion of this wonderful bundle of nerve force and determination that puzzles one. True it is, in proportion to his lower limbs, but the mystery is the difficulty of discovering where he packs all his lung power. Although the Marathon has not proven his special forte, his lung power must be prodigious or he could not have successfully performed all the extraordinary feats which are recorded to his credit. As T. S. Simont says, the only conclusion that can be come to is that he is the most scientific, most judicious, most systematically trained runner who has ever put on a shoe. His head work must contribute considerably to his success as well as an indomitable will. His action is not graceful, but it is telling, and that is of more importance. It was that recognized authority, William Hanlan, who, when he refereed Hanlan in one of his races, declared that his style was entirely foreign to all preconceived notions of method. It is the same with Alfred Shrubb's movements. They are effective, but hardly in accordance with recognized principles. However, in the case of striking performances, providing only they are fairly executed, we rarely stop to consider particular niceties of method. W. G. George, in writing of Shrubb when he beat his two-mile record five or six years ago, in predicting still further accomplishments for the subject of his sketch, said: "Still, I do not think he can stay much over ten miles. His style is peculiar. He does not appear to run from the thigh, but rather from the knee, and to an onlooker he seems to have a short stride, but in reality this is not the case, for his feet glide over the ground close to the surface for quite a distance before finally planting themselves. This is the ideal style for long-distance running, but is rarely adopted by good athletes for lesser distances than ten miles. W. Saook ran in much the same way as Shrubb, with his legs, though his body and arm action was far less artistic."

Born at Slinfold, in Sussex, England, on the 12th of December, 1878, he first discovered his ability as a runner by beating a fire engine which was travelling as fast as horses could draw it to a fire three or four miles away. His companion in this incident was one F. J. Spencer, the then champion of the Horseshoe Blue Star Harriers, to which body he became attached in 1898, and in connection with which he ran his first race, a mile handicap, in which he beat the said Spencer, who was conceding 55 yards, by 80 yards. Shrubb winning the race in 4 min. 38 sec. That the victory was well achieved is proven by the fact that in another mile race three weeks later, Shrubb was called upon to give Spencer 50 yards, and beat him by 25 yards. This was the beginning of a career as a member of that well-known club, the South London Harriers, that for success on the running path stands unequalled. One of the chief characteristics of Alfred Shrubb is the quiet confidence that he always exhibits. He never permits himself to be flustered, nor does he ever indulge in bluster or boast of his achievements. Indeed, he is one of the most modest of men, and can rarely be induced to speak of what he has done. He has beaten all the most famous runners, both amateur and professional, during the last dozen years, and has run in all parts of the world against all sorts of athletes and in all sorts of races. At Wimbledon he competed against a trotting horse known as Patsy, and was only beaten fifteen yards in ten miles, Shrubb covering the distance in 52 min. 20 sec. He has run relay races, taking on five men, and has beaten them not only easily but handsomely.

It is hardly necessary here to refer to his recent achievements wherein he has defeated at his own distance of fifteen miles all the famous runners of the day, including the Canadian champion, Thomas Longboat; the Greek Marathon victor, William Sherring; the French champion, St. Yves; the Italian champion, Dorando; and the American champion Hayes. He has not, it is true, succeeded in winning premier laurels at the full Marathon distance of 26 miles, 385 yards, but he has proven himself, even at the distances outside his special forte, one of the gamest, pluckiest and most honorable runners who ever donned a shoe. He has won innumerable cups, pianos, gold watches, clocks, medals and prizes of every description, and of an infinite variety of value. Many of the challenge cups have had to be won three times consecutively, but Alfred Shrubb has succeeded in annexing them. He is temperate in his habits, neither over-drinking nor over-eating, still he takes whatever he feels he needs or is best for him, and indulges freely in fruits and vegetables. He made a prolonged tour of Australia and New Zealand with A. F. Duffey, and everywhere earned the respect and confidence of the public. In short, no athlete has ever borne himself more worthily than Alfred Shrubb, from a little town in the English county of Sussex.

Mr. Shrubb has been in Canada for seven years, while he spent five years as a coacher at Harvard University. During his amateur running days he won 106 medals, and more cups, silverware and cutlery than he can count. He is now going to Paris, France, where he will run Deschamps, the professional ten mile champion of France, at the end of August. Thence he will go to Glasgow, Scotland, running against McRae, the Scotch 10 mile professional champion. That he will lick these champions is the hope of all St. John's people.

C. of E. Educational Campaign.

The preparatory work if the campaign has now progressed so far that we are able to publish the complete list of the names of the officials of the drive, with the exception of the teams which are themselves nearly completed and will be published shortly. The greatest enthusiasm has been manifested from the beginning by every member of every branch of the organization. The success of the drive seems assured. No question has anywhere been raised of the greatness of the need or of the willingness of all to fill it. The spirit of all the workers and of the people generally seems to express itself thus: "Sink all minor differences and give with one accord to the one great object. Help the children and the future. Give your sons and your daughters what you missed yourself. Lift social, civic and state life to a higher level and lay the enduring foundations of a better state of things. Make Newfoundland a country 'or other countries to look up to, not down upon.'"

Wedding Bells.

LEWIS-HALL,
 St. George's Church, North River, was the scene of a very pretty wedding on Wednesday, July 16th, when Mr. E. V. Hall, of the Bank of Nova Scotia, Brigus, was united in the bonds of matrimony to Miss Alice Edythe Lewis, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Lewis, of St. John's.

Precisely at noon the bride entered the church leaning on the arm of her father escorted by Mrs. A. H. Seymour, her great-aunt and as matron of honour, with the Misses Claudine and Ellaline Severn as bridesmaids.

The groom was ably supported by Mr. Frank F. Willis, of Harvey & Co. There was a lavish display of bunting and the Sanctuary and chancel of the church were tastefully decorated with flowers by the ladies of the congregation.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Frank Severn, uncle of the bride, and incumbent of the mission.

The bride was exquisitely gowned in Brussels net and white satin, with veil and orange blossoms, and carried a bouquet of carnations and sweet peas. The little bridesmaids looked charming in pale yellow silk.

The matron of honor wore a gown of silver grey, with pearls, the present of the groom.

After the ceremony the bridal party motored to the Parsonage at Salmon Cove where luncheon was served and the bride and groom honoured with the usual toasts.

The bride and groom immediately after luncheon motored to Carbonear where they connected with the train for Old Perlican, where the honeymoon will be spent.

Among the many presents received were very handsome ones from the Cathedral Choir, of which the bride was a member; a beautifully illuminated address and gift from the Sunday School of St. John's; also a gold piece from St. Margaret's Guild. If there is any truth in the adage "happy is the bride that the sun shines on," the present bride's future happiness is assured.

War Marriages of Men Overseas.

The House of Lords has passed the second reading of the Matrimonial Causes (Dominion troops) Bill, the object of which is to enable the High Court in England and Ireland and the court of session in Scotland to entertain matrimonial proceedings in respect of marriages contracted by colonial soldiers in the United Kingdom during the war, although the soldiers are not domiciled in the United Kingdom. The proceedings may be instituted by either party to the marriage. The act is to apply to Canada, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa and Newfoundland, and as from that date is fixed by the legislators of those dominions. It is to be applied to other British possessions and protectorates by order-in-council.

The matrimonial causes which the Bill gives the courts power to entertain are, in England, suits for dissolution of marriage, judicial separation and restitution of conjugal rights; in Scotland, actions for divorce, separation a mensa et thoro, and adherence; and in Ireland, proceedings for divorce a mensa et thoro, restitution of conjugal rights and criminal conversation.

After the Lord Chancellor had moved the second reading of the bill, Lord Phillimore said he thought it went a little further than was intended. He agreed that a colonial soldier who had married an English girl should be answerable to the English courts during their residence in that country, but when the colonial soldier had returned home they ought to settle their differences in their own country.

Viscount Haldane suggested that there should be a time limit. The Lord Chancellor promised that the suggestion should receive consideration before the committee stage.

YESTERDAY'S RESULTS.

By a score of 8 to 3, the Wanderers put it all over the B.I.S. in yesterday afternoon's preliminary game of the Mount Cashel series. Both pitchers—O'Leary and Smith—got in good work, but timely hitting of the Hartnettites and loose fielding of the Harps ran up the score. Fans were pleased to welcome back Larry Doyle the erstwhile Irish utility man who showed that he hasn't forgotten how to play his old-time game.

The second bout between the Cubs and Red Lions was more exciting when the former nosed out the Hiltz crew by 1 run. Hall and his battery mate—Clouston—got in some splendid work. Dan Kielly, who was backstopping for the Lions in place of Hiltz, did well for his initial appearance in this position, but was in rather hard luck with his big stick.

The Wanderers and Cubs will therefore be the contestants for the H. D. Reid Cup on the day of the Mount Cashel Garden Party.

The line-ups were:—
WANDERERS:—Smith, p. Brett, c. Hartnett, 1b. Smith, 2b. Brown, 3b. McCrindle, ss. Knight, rf. Dobbin, cf. Balfour, lf.

B.I.S.—Brazie, c. O'Leary, p. Doyle, 1b. O'Reilly, Delaney, ss. O'Donnell, 2b. Wallace, cf. Conolly, rf. Power, lf.

CUBS:—Hall, p. Clouston, c. Murphy, 1b. Duggan, 2b. Canning, 3b. Manning, ss. Gosse, lf. O'Driscoll, cf. Phalen, rf.

Wedding Bells.

READER-GARLAND.

A pretty wedding was solemnized at George St. Methodist Church last evening by the Rev. D. B. Hemmeon when Mr. Charlie Garland, Methodist teacher, Lower Island Cove, led to the altar Miss Inez S. Reader, of Musgrave town. The bride, who was charmingly attired in crepe de chene and supported by her sister, Miss Winnie Reader, and Miss Mabel Maunder, was given away by Mr. J. King, while Miss Christie King acted as flower girl. The groom was supported by ex-Sergt. U. G. Bursey of the Nfld. Regiment. After the marriage ceremony the bridal party proceeded to Klondyke Farm, the home of Mr. King, where a sumptuous repast was enjoyed by the many guests. The happy couple were the recipients of many presents, testifying to the esteem in which they were held, amongst which were particularly a beautiful silver cutlery set from Messrs. Ayre and Sons, where the bride was employed as bookkeeper for some time; a large silver cake stand and a casserole dish from her associates of the same firm; a valuable and costly present from George St. Sunday School, where she worked as a teacher, and others too numerous to mention. The bride and groom proceeded to Musgrave town where they will spend their honeymoon.

TO-NIGHT'S GAME.

With all four teams equal, the crucial part of the regular league series now begins. The Red Lions and B.I.S. enter the lists to-night at 8.30, and in view of the former defeat at the hands of the French crew when they last met, and considering that their team has been considerably strengthened since, the clash to-night should furnish thrills. The line-up will likely be:—

Brazie	Hiltz
French	Payne
O'Reilly	Callahan
O'Donnely	Cooney

PERMANENT COALITION SUGGESTED.

LONDON, July 16.

(Via Reuter's Ottawa Agency.)—A sensation has been caused in political circles by the news that Colonel Winston Churchill, Secretary for War, who had just returned from visiting Premier Lloyd George at Cricheth, delivered a speech at a dinner in the West End, at which over a hundred members of the House of Commons were present, at which he urged the necessity of a new and permanent Coalition Party, to be re-christened the Centre Party. The dinner was organized quietly and only became known of when some of the members returned to the House. It appears that Colonel Churchill, speaking as a disciple of Lloyd George, spoke for an hour and reviewed old political differences and emphasized the necessity for a continued combination of the Moderates among the Unionists and Liberals, in order to preserve what had been won in the war. Col. Churchill insisted that co-operation was necessary in order to fight Bolshevism. The supporting speakers included the chief Coalition Liberals and Unionist members. The Lord Chancellor referred sympathetically to the future of the Labor Party, but some speculation exists as to the new party's attitude of alliance or opposition towards the saner elements. The diners gained the impression that Lloyd George would lead the new Centre Party.

Have You Examined the Tyres on Your Car of Late?

Do any of them look as if you had taken a coarse file and used it crosswise or at an angle on the tread?

If they do, the wheels of your car are badly out of alignment and it would be wise to have them attended to at once.

Perhaps the error of alignment is slight and the extra wear on your tyres will not be noticed quickly.

But if it is there, you will notice it on your tyre account. Just a little error may cost you thousands of miles of wear.

To be safe we suggest that you drive around to our garage frequently and let us measure up your wheels for you and see that they are kept straight.

It will take only a few minutes and our work will be free. It's part of our service as a Goodyear Dealer.

Japan Winning California With Women.

WASHINGTON, July 9.—Senator James P. Phelan of California is agitated over the increase in the birth-rate of Japanese in California. He says that if the Japanese women continue to add to the population of his State at the present rate the white race will soon be overwhelmed.

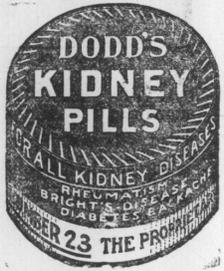

"I am surprised and alarmed to read the official statement," said Mr. Phelan, "that one-third of our births outside of incorporated cities and towns in Los Angeles county were Japanese. That means that one-third of the rural population are substantially Japanese and, as the rural population is the backbone of every country, the gravity of the situation must appeal to all thinking men and women."

The State Board of Health reports that the Japanese births in the last ten years have increased 3,000 per cent, and the white births have decreased about 9 per cent. I do not think we require any further confirmation of the silent invasion of California, directed from Japan, because Japan controls her nationals wherever they go. California is now just as Hawaii has been for some time past, a tributary colony to Japan.

"The rats are in the granary, they have got in under the door and they are breeding with alarming rapidity. We must get rid of them or lose the granary."

"What I mean by saying the rats have got under the door is this: The door is presumably closed against them. The 'Gentleman's agreement' stipulated that no laborers would be given passports from Japan, but women are given passports on the theory that they are the wives of the men who are already here. They, of course, cannot be bona fide wives of the men whom they have never seen, as we understand marriage.

A Debatable Subject.

The "Doctor's Right to Kill" was discussed at the inquest on Wm. L. Feesey, 70, of Battersea, who committed suicide by stabbing himself. Mr. Feesey was suffering from heart disease, which was getting worse. He asked the doctor where his heart was situated, and after he had been situated three times in the region of the heart. The coroner, Mr. S. Ingleby Odde, said he had been informed that Mr. Feesey had remarked that it was a pity doctors had not the power to put incurables out of their misery. He (Mr. Odde) thought the time might come when, with proper safeguards, that might be done, for it seemed a good thing when life became unbearable. We had not got to that period of civilization yet, however, but he had no doubt the time would come when painless anaesthesia would be brought about. Mr. Feesey had come to the conclusion that life was not worth living and that was the motive for his committing suicide. Hopelessness and the prospect of no recovery preyed on his mind so much that it became unendurable. The jury returned a verdict of suicide while of unsound mind.

"The Right to Die."—Mr. Sydney Albert Phillips, a man of thirty-two and a son of Philip Phillips, London, head of one of the biggest tobacco firms in the Kingdom, was found with a bullet wound through his heart. Beside the dead man was a cutting from a newspaper concerning Coroner Odde's remarks in the week as to the "doctor's right to kill." That, indeed furnished the clue to the tragedy, for Sydney Phillips had suffered from bad health since early manhood and had spent many years in South Africa vainly seeking a cure for consumption. He was in the charge of a special nurse who, leaving him the night before, noticed nothing wrong in his manner. In the Putting It to Him.

It was at a certain restaurant noted for its large bills of fare and its small portions of food. The other evening a new arrival ordered, among other dishes, a steak, and it was duly brought. The customer's surprise was quite marked and he called the waiter. "What is this?" he sternly asked. "Steak, sir," answered the waiter. "Look at it," he said, and the waiter did so, and saw a good inch of meat. "Now look at me," continued the stranger, and the waiter looked and saw a man weighing eighteen stone. The contrast between the size of the steak and the man was striking.

morning, when the maid knocked at his door with his early cup of tea, she could get no reply, and the door was locked on the inside. A brother who was called entered by the fanlight over the door, and Sydney Phillips was found in bed with a bullet wound through the heart. A five-chambered revolver, with one cartridge discharged, was in his hand.

Tough Jobs for Air Police.

Can They Catch Air Smugglers? One of the greatest difficulties all governments will be up against shortly is catching the air smugglers. There are so many small things which are extremely valuable and upon which a high duty must be paid which can be carried by aeroplane, that the chances of the smuggler being caught will not be very great. Things like diamonds, sasharin and tobacco can be smuggled in a variety of ways. The tyres of the aeroplane wheels, for example, are hollow, many of the main parts of an aeroplane, like the struts joining the planes, are hollow, while the planes themselves can be packed inside with all sorts of things.

To make a thorough examination of each aeroplane will be an almost impossible task, and probably the only way to stop smuggling in the future will either be by taking the duty off things altogether or making the penalty so heavy that most pilots will not care to risk being caught.

But besides hiding things in the aeroplane itself, a machine may land at some agreed spot at night, drop its goods and fly back to its headquarters or it may drop them by parachutes.

The war showed how difficult it was to find ever a big thing like a Zeppelin in the sky over a limited area like London, and to find a small aeroplane which may be flying anywhere in England will be more a matter of luck than anything else.

His Bad Luck.

Hubby had been celebrating, and arrived home in the small hours feeling rather dubious of his reception.

Absolute stillness reigned, however, and with a load off his mind he hurried shoeless to the cradle and commenced rocking it energetically with the air of a man who had been at his post for hours.

"What are you doing there, James?" queried his strong-minded spouse, awakened.

"I've been sitting here nearly two hours trying to get baby to sleep!" he growled in return.

"That's strange," remarked his wife. "Baby is here in bed with me!"

Yesterday's Sports.

SHRUBB, WORLD'S CHAMPION, GIVES EXHIBITION OF REAL RUNNING.

A great number of people attended yesterday's sports at St. George's Field, and the gate receipts, about $700 were the biggest in the record of the field. Needless to state, Alfred Shrubb, World's Champion Marathon runner, was the big attraction, and the day being delightfully fine, with just enough breeze to keep everybody but the baseball fans cool, the sports lovers turned up in their thousands. The first item was a ball game between the B.L.S. and the Wanderers, the latter winning by 8 runs to 3. The footer game between the City and a team from the Grampian's passengers and crew followed. The Citizens winning by one goal to nil. Now came the event of the day, when Mr. Alfred Shrubb, World's Champion Marathon runner, stepped out onto the course in running shorts and with Atkins and Bright pacing him started off on his five mile run around the field. Thirty five complete circles had to be run, seven making a mile. Shrubb covered the first mile in 4 mts. 55 secs.; the second in 5 mts. 14 secs.; the third in 5 mts. 24 secs.; the fourth in 5 mts. 20 secs.; and the fifth in 5 mts. 12 1-5 seconds, or the entire five miles in 26 mts. 05, 1-5 seconds his own record, being also that of the world, being 25 mts. 58 4-5 seconds, having done this in London, Eng., 1904. For the last mile Mr. J. Kavanagh runner of local repute stepped out to pace Shrubb, so that he would put forth good efforts. Shrubb's running was very pretty to see, his leg action being from the knees down, and as he circled the field in his graceful, easy, stride, the thousands of spectators lining the field cheered and hurraed in real old-time enthusiasm. Altho Atkins had a lap's start, Shrubb gained on him twice in the five mile run. Seen by the Telegram reporter immediately upon finishing the run, Mr. Shrubb told of his efforts. "The field is a good one," he said, "and the weather, despite the rather unfavorably strong breeze, is just nice. Do I feel tired or winded? Not at all. I am as fresh now almost, as when I started. A large crowd closed in on Shrubb as soon as he had finished and it was a minute or so before they could be dissuaded from patting him on the back and shaking hands with him. He is a sporty little man, with unlimited pluck and perseverance and has undoubtedly endeared himself to St. John's, if yesterday's cheering and applause may be taken as a criterion. A ball game between the Cubs and Red Lions, in which the former won by one run to nil, brought to a conclusion the most enjoyable sports day held in the city for a long time.

McMurdo's Store News.

THURSDAY, July 17, 1919. Peroxide Cream has come to stay, without any doubt. We find daily evidence of a success which may fairly be called extraordinary. The reason is, of course, sun-clear. Simply that Peroxide Cream is a good cream, a well made cream, a cream that does not show on the skin, an exquisitely perfumed cream, and that it is withal very moderate in price. A generous sized crock for 40 cents. Our Household Ammonia has a hundred and one uses in the household. When it comes to cleansing, it is right there. Two sizes 30c. and 50c.

George St. Picnic.

The Sunday School Children of George Street Church were given their annual picnic yesterday. The children, numbering 400 accompanied by their teachers, marched to the railway station at 10.30 a.m. and left by special train for Mount Pearl, where they enjoyed themselves until 8 p.m. The usual children's sports were engaged in for which prizes were offered. An excellent dinner was served and the little ones did justice to the good things provided, refreshments were also served during the afternoon. Return to the city was made at 8.30 after a most enjoyable time.

Passed Primary Exams.

Mrs. C. Ellis, Cochrane Street, has received word that her son Frank, had passed his exams in Chartered Accountancy, with honors, held at Toronto University. He holds a good position with the firm of Clarkson, Gordon and Dilworth, Chartered Accountants of Toronto.

Last Night's Concert.

A large audience attended the concert at the College Hall last night. Mr. A. Dodd was chairman, and the affair, which was promoted by the stewards of the Grampian in aid of the steward's who lost their clothing in the ship's collision with an iceberg, and of the dependants of those who lost their lives, proved very enjoyable. Those taking part were Mrs. Workman, Messrs. Hobday, Stevenson, Antroub, Traynor, Lawson, McGowan, Fortune, Robertshaw, Neil and Fletcher.

Breaks Into Store.

About 3 o'clock this morning, Mrs. Darcy, of New Gower St., was attracted by a noise on the opposite side of the street, and on looking across saw three men leave the store of Mr. J. O'Brien. She informed Constables Bruce and Myers of the happening, and on investigating they found the lock broken off the gate at the entrance to the shop and a large pane of glass in the door smashed. The owner of the place was summoned, but after an examination could not say if any goods had been removed.
