The Maple Leaf Base Ball club, of Guelph, have entered for the tournament at Watertown, N.Y., next month.
 The Tecumseh of London defeated the

Horse Notes.

SINGULAR FOAL.—A short time since a horse colt was dropped in Ulster County, N. Y., which had not a shadow of a tail, in fact, where the tail should be is a perfect blank, smooth as any other portion of the animal. He makes a very laughable appearance, and what he will do in fly time remains a mystery.

TEN BROCK.—The rumor that Mr. Frank Harper purposed sending East his fine four-year-old Ten Brock, to be trained by Davis Prior for his engagements at Long Branch and Saratoga, is contra fectio; Mr. Harper declining to send the horse East this season.

Lon Morris, of Boston, sold the gray gelding George A. Ayer to John W. Morrow, of Boston, for $5,000, Thursday afternoon, after the races. Mr. Morris also sold Camora to the same gentleman five years ago for $11,000, during a race at Boston. Morris thinks Ayer equally as good, if not a better horse than Camora.

RED CLOUD.—At the conclusion of the prong race at the late meeting at Peru, Ind., Red Cloud was brought upon the course and driven a half mile in 1:12. This, considering the heavy state of the track, and the fact that there was no other horse going with him to urge him forward, was regarded as fully equal to his best time. When he came in the ladies who were present decorated the gallant horse with a handsome wreath of flowers. Red Cloud is still a little weak in the tendon of the leg, which went lame two years ago, but his owner is confident that by the time the Fall races (for which he is entered) commence, he will be as sound as ever.

WINNING SIRE.—The list of winning stallions at Jerome Park is headed by Lexington, whose produce won altogether $18,290. Of this amount Saisana is credited with $6,150; Tom Ochiltree, $5,120; Fiddlestick, $3,900; and Chesapeake, $1,960. The balance was won by Acrobat, Shylock, Invoice, and Brother to Bassett. Abd-el-Kader ranks next with $3,900, won by Algerine; Glenelg third with $2,600, the winnings of Idalla and Orion; and Leamington fourth, with $2,115, won by Ollitpa, James A. Kildare, Hibernia, Le-laps, Pera, Leamington 2nd, and Ithadamanthus. Vauxhall comes next, with $2,000, won by Viator; and Australian is indebted to Ambush, Australind, Madge, and Ascension for $1,700 he is credited with. Bonnie Scotland's sons, Spindrift and Paper Maker won $1,600; and the dead Planet with $1,500, won by Sunburst and Egypt.

CRUELTY TO ANIMALS.—On Saturday morning a lad named James McMahon, in the employ of Mr. Peter Curran, the trainer, was charged with cruelty to a mare belonging to Mr. Curran. It appears that the lad, who is about 17 or 18 years of age, had got drunk yesterday, and after exercising St. Patrick, took out a mare belonging to Curran. He had been, as it seems, visiting some taverns, and when he got on the course was drunk, and drove the mare round at a fearful rate, treating her badly with the buckle end of the lines. Messrs. Stinson and Callahan both gave evidence in support of this. Mr. Callahan applied the mare and jerked the driver out of the stable and very properly administered to her.

The score in the match between the Tecumseh and the Fort Wayne, Ind., players on Saturday was 3 to 2 in favor of the Tecumseh.

The Maple Leaf Base Ball club, of Guelph, have entered for the tournament at Watertown, N.Y., next month.
The Tecumseh of London defeated the Fins of Detroit, Tuesday of last week, in a six in nine game by 12 to 3; and on Wednesday took the Mutuals of Jackson, Mich., into camp on the latter's grounds, by a score of 14 to 5.

QUOITING.
GALT vs. SCARBORO.

This is the third match that has taken place between the Scarboro' and Galt Quoiting Clubs, the first of which was won by Scarboro' and the second by Galt, both played last year. The present match was for a medal awarded by Mr. Robert Malcolm, of this city, and took place on the 22nd inst., in the Mutual Street grounds, resulting in a victory for the Scarboro' club, as will be seen by the annexed score, viz:—

It makes a very laughable app at one, and what he will do in the time remains a mystery.

TEX BROCK.—The rumor that Mr. Frank Harper purposed sending East his five four-year-old Ten Brock, to be trained by Davis Prior for his engagements at Long Branch and Saratoga, is contra fact; Mr. Harper declining to send the horse East this season.

Lon Morris, of Boston, sold the gray gelding George A. Ayer to John W. Morrow, of Boston, for $5,000, Thursday afternoon, after the race. Mr. Morris also sold Camora to the same gentleman five years ago for $11,000, during a race at Boston. Morris thinks Ayer equally as good, if not a better horse than Camora.

RED CLOUD.—At the conclusion of the pacing race at the late meeting at Peru, Ind., Red Cloud was brought upon the course and driven a half mile in 1:12. This, considering the heavy state of the track, and the fact that there was no other horse going with him to urge him forward, was regarded as fully equal to his best time. When he came in the ladies who were present decorated the gallant horse with a handsome wreath of flowers. Red Cloud is still a little weak in the tendon of the leg, which went lame two years ago, but his owner is confident that by the time the Fall races (for which he is entered) commence, he will be as sound as ever.

WINNING STREES AT JEROME PARK.—The list of winning stallions at Jerome Park is headed by Lexington, whose produce won altogether $18,290. Of this amount, Sultana is credited with $6,150; Tom Ochiltree, $5,120; Fiddlestick, $3,900; and Chesapeake, $1,960. The balance was won by Acrobat, Shylock, Invoice, and Brother to Bassett. Abd-el-Kader ranks next with $3,800, won by Algine; Glenelg third with $2,600, the winnings of Idalia and Orion; and Leamington fourth, with $2,115, won by Ollitips, James A. Kildare, Hibernia, Leopold, Pera, Leamington 2nd, and Rhadamanthus. Vauxhall comes next, with $2,000, won by Viator; and Australian is indebted to Ambush, Australind, Madge, and Ascension for $1,700 he is credited with. Bonnie Scotland's son, Spindrift and Paper Maker won $1,600; and the dead Planet with $1,600, won by Sunburst and Egypt.

CRUELTY TO ANIMALS.—On Saturday morning a lad named James McMahon, in the employ of Mr. Peter Curran, the trainer, was charged with cruelty to a mare belonging to Mr. Curran. It appears that the lad, who is about 17 or 18 years of age, had got drunk yesterday, and after exercising St. Patrick, took out a mare belonging to Curran. He had been, as it seems, visiting some taverns, and when he got on the course was drunk, and drove the mare round at a fearful rate, treating her badly with the buckle end of the lines. Messrs. Stinson and Callahan both gave evidence in support of this. Mr. Callahan stopped the mare and jerked the driver out of the sulky and very properly administered a good thrashing to the boy. That gentleman further testified that there are one hundred marks and cuts on the mare. The magistrate fined the prisoner to the full extent of the law, namely, $10 with cost or 30 days.—Hamilton Times.

CAMPBELL'S QUININE WINE.—Report from Dr. J. Baker Edwards, Ph. D. D.C.L. F.C.S. Professor of Chemistry and Microscopy. I hereby certify that I have carefully analysed the samples of "Quinine Wine" submitted to me by Messrs. Kenneth Campbell & Co., with the following result:
No. 1—Dark in color and turbid, deposits a muddy sediment on standing, has a sweet and acid taste, Orange Flavor and scarcely bitter, yields on evaporation a thick syrup of inverted sugar, contains only a microscopic trace of Quinine and Quinidine. Is made with Orange Wine.
Sample X—Dark color, with dark muddy deposit on standing, has an acid and slightly bitter taste, contains Cinchonine but no Quinine. Is made with an acid wine, not sherry.
No. 3—Campbell's—Light color, clear, with no deposit, contains Disulphate of Quinine in the proportion of 1 grain to two fluid ounces. Is made with sound sherry wine.
N.B.—The latter (Campbell's), is the only genuine "Quinine Wine" of the three samples examined.—Signed, JOHN BAKER EDWARDS, Ph. D. D.C.L. F.C.S. Prof. of Chemistry and Microscopy, Bishop's College and College of Industry, Montreal.

THE BLACK MARE.

A Story of Punctestown Races.

CHAPTER XXVI.

AFTERNOON TEA.

The General had gone to look for his lady love's carriage. They were alone in Mr. Lushington's snug room, converted (though not innocent of tobacco-smoke) into a cloak room for the occasion.

"So good of you to come, dear Blanche, and to bring him," (with a meaning smile.) "I wanted to pounce on you here. I've got such a piece of news for you!"

Miss Douglas looked as if nothing above, upon, or under the earth could afford her the slightest interest, but she was obliged to profess a polite curiosity.

"Who do you think is going to be married? Immediately next week, I believe. Who but our friend Daisy?"

The shot told. Though Miss Douglas received it with this self-command of a practised duelist, so keen an observer as her friend did not fail to mark a quiver of the eye-lids, a tightening of the lips, and a grey hue creeping gradually over the whole face.

"Our kinko friend Daisy, or all people in the world!" continued Mrs. Lushington. "It only shows how we poor women can be deceived. I sometimes fancied he admired me, and I never doubted but he cared for you whereas he has gone and fallen a victim that wild Irish girl of Ludy Mary Macormac's—the pretty one—that was such a friend of yours."

"I always thought he admired her," answered Miss Douglas in a very feeble voice. "I ought to write and wish Norah joy. Are you quite sure it's true?"

"Quite!" was the reply. "My authority is his own best man."

Instantly the General appeared at this juncture, with tidings of the carriage, while through a vista of footmen might be seen at the open door a brougham-horse on his hind legs, impatient of delay.

"Good-bye, dear Blanche! You look so tired. I hope you haven't done too much."

"Good-bye, dear Clara! I've had such a pleasant afternoon."

Putting her into the carriage, the General's kind heart melted within him. She looked so pale and worn. She clung so confidently, so dejectedly to his arm. She pressed his hand so affectionately when he bade her good-bye, and seemed so loth to let it go that, but for the eyes of all England, which every man believes are fixed on himself alone, he would have sprung in too, and driven off with her then and there.

But he consoled himself with the certainty of seeing her next day. That comfort accompanied him to his bachelor lodgings, where he dressed, and lasted all through a regimental dinner at the London Tavern.

While a distinguished leader proposed his health, alluding in flattering terms to the services he had rendered, and the dangers he had faced, General St. Joseph was thinking far less of his short soldier-like reply than of the pale face and the dark eyes that would so surely greet him on the morrow; of the future about to open before him at last, that should make amends for a life of war and turmoil, with its gentle solace of love, and confidence, and repose.

CHAPTER XXVII.

A HARD MORSEL.

Like the feasts of Apicius, that dinner at the London Tavern was protracted to an unconscionable length. Its dishes were rich, various, and indigestible, nothing being served au naturel and without "garnish" out the brave simplicity of the guests.

"Wines too there were, that would have slain young Ammon."

and old comrades seldom part under such conditions without the consumption of much tobacco in the small hours. Nevertheless, St. Joseph rose next morning fresh and hopeful as a boy. He ordered his horse for an early canter in the Park, and shared the Row with divers young ladies of tender years but dauntless courage, who crammed their ponies along at a pace that caused manes, and tails, and golden hair to float horizontal in the breeze, defiant even of that mounted spectator, whose heart though professionally tolerant of "furious riding," softened to a piny with snub nose and rosy cheeks, on a grey quadruped as round, as fat, and as looking as itself. St. Joseph felt in clarity with all manner, and returned to breakfast so light of heart that he ought to have known, under the law of compensation, some

"Miss Douglas b'aint here," was the startling answer to his inquiries. "She be gone away for good. Off this morning, I shouldn't wonder, afore you was out of bed."

"Gone!" he gasped. "This mornin' did she leave no message?"

"None that I knows of. The servants didn't say nothink about it; leastways, to me."

"But she's coming back?"

"Not likely! The maid did suppose they was a-going for good and all. It's no business of mine. I'm not Miss Douglas's servant. I'm a taking care of the house for the landlord, I am. It's time I was a-tidy-ing of it up now."

With this broad hint, she proceeded to shut the door in his face, when the General, recovering his presence of mind, made use of the only argument his experience had taught him was universal and conclusive.

Her frown relaxed with the touch of money on her palm. "You're a gentleman, you are," she observed approvingly. "Won't ye step in, sir? It's bad talking with the door in your hand."

He complied, and sat down on one of the bare hall-chairs, feeling as he had felt once before, when lady kit, in the Punjab.

She went on with her dusting, talking all the time. "You see they sent round for me first thing in the morning; and I says to Mrs. Jones—that's my land-lady, sir,—(dropping a courtesy), 'Mrs. Jones, says I, whatever they can be up to,' says I, 'making such an early fitting?' says I—"

"But do you mean they've left no letter?" he interrupted, starting from his seat; "no directions—no address? Are all the servants gone? Has Miss Douglas taken much luggage with her. Did she go away in a cab? Oh, woman! woman! tell me all you know! It's a matter of life and death!"

She looked at him askance, privately opining that, early as it was, the gentleman had been drinking, and sympathising with him none the less for that impression.

"They're off," said she stubbornly; "and they've took everything along with them—bags boxes, and what not. There was a man round after the keys—not half an hour gone. I should say as they wasn't coming back, none of 'em, no more."

This redundancy of negatives forcibly expressed her hopelessness of their return, and the General's good sense told him it was time wasted to cross-question his informant any further. Summoning his energies, he reflected that the post office would be the best place whereto to prosecute inquiries, so he bade the old woman farewell, with all the fortitude he could muster, leaving her much impressed by his manners, bearing, and profuse liberality.

At the post-office, however (an Italian warehouse round the corner), they knew nothing. The General, at his wife's end, thought him of those livery-stables where Satarella kept her namesake, the redoubtable black mare.

Here his plight excited the utmost interest and commiseration. "Certainly. The General should have all the assistance in their power. Of course, the lady had forgotten to leave her address, no doubt. Ladies was careless, sometimes, in such matters. A beautiful 'orse-woman," the livery-stable keeper understood, "an' kep' two remarkably clever ones for her own riding. Had an idea they went away this very morning. Might be mistaken. John could tell. John was the head-ostler. It was John's business to know." So a bell rang, and John, in a long-sleeved waistcoat, sleeking a close-cropped head, appeared forthwith.

"Black mare and chestnut 'oss," said John decidedly. "Gone this morning; groom took with him saddles, clothing, and everything. Paid up to the end of their week. Looked like travelling—had their knuce-caps on. Groom a close chap; wouldn't say where. Wish he (John) could find out. Left a setting-muzzle behind, and would like to send it after him."

There seemed nothing to be done here, and the General was fain to retrace his steps, hurt, anxious, angry, and more puzzled when he reached home than he had ever been in his life.

For an hour or two, the whole thing seemed so impossible, and the absurdity of the situation struck him as so ridiculous, that he sat idly in his chair to wait for tidings. In this nineteenth century, he told himself, people could not disappear from the surface of society, and leave no sign. Rather, like the sea-bird diving in the waves, if they go down in one place, they must come up in another. There were no kidnappings now, no sendings off to the Plantations, no forcible abductions of ladies young or old. Then his heart turned sick, and his blood ran cold, while he recalled more than one instance in his own experience, where individuals had suddenly vanished from their homes and never been heard of again.

Stung to action by such thoughts, he collected his ideas to organize a comprehensive system of pursuit, that should embrace enquiries at all the railway stations, cab-stands and turupikes in and about the metropolis.

There several pages, some of them crossed. He retired to the strangers' room, and sat down to peruse the death-warrant of his happiness.

"You will forgive me," it began, "because you are the kindest, the best, the most generous of men; but I should never forgive myself the blow I feel I am now inflicting, were it not that I regard your pride, your character, your high sense of honor, before your happiness. General, I am unfit to be your wife; not because my antecedents are somewhat obscure—you know my history, and that I have my reason to be ashamed of it; not because I undervalue the happiness of so high and enviable a lot—any woman, as I have told you more than once, would be proud of your choice; but because you deserve, and could so well appreciate, the unalloyed affection, the utter devotion, that are not mine to give. Your wife should have no thought but for you, no hopes independent of you, no memories in which you do not form a part. She should be wrapped up in your existence, identified with you body and soul. All this I am not. I never have been—I never can be now. Had I entertained a lower opinion of your merits, admired and cared for you less, I would have kept my promise faithfully, and we might have jogged on like many another couple, comfortably enough. But you ought to win more than mere comfort in married life. You merit, and would expect, happiness. How could I bear to see my hero disappointed? For you are my hero—my beau-ideal of a gentleman—and my standard is a very high one, or you and I had never been so unhappy as I firmly believe we both are at this moment. It is in vain to regret, and murmur, and speculate on what might have been, if everything, including one's own identity, were different. There is but one line to take now, even at the eleventh hour. Some day you will acknowledge that I was right. We must never meet again. I have taken such precautions as can baffle, I do believe, even your energy and resource. You have often said nobody was so determined when I had made up my mind. I am resolved that you shall never find out what has become of me; and I entreat you—I adjure you—if you love me—nay, as you love me—not to try! So now, farewell—a long farewell, that it pains me sore to say. I shall never forget you. In all my conflict of feelings, in all my self-reproach and bitter sorrow, when I think of your pain, I cannot bring myself to wish we had never met. I am proud of your notice and your regard—proud to remain under obligations to you—proud to have loved you so far as my false, wicked nature had the power. Even now I can say, though you put me out of your heart, do not let me pass entirely from your memory. Think sometimes, and not unkindly, of your wilful, wayward—"

"BLANCHE."

So it was all over.

"It's a good letter," murmured the General; "but I prefer the one Julia wrote to Juan." Then he read it through again, and found, as is usually the case, that the second perusal reversed his impression of the first. Did she really mean he was to abstain from all attempt to follow her? He examined the envelope; it bore the stamp of the General Post Office; the contents certainly afforded him no clue, yet, judging by analogy, he argued that no woman would lay such stress on the precautions she had taken if she did not wish their efficacy to be proved. When he found, however, that nothing short of police-detectives and newspaper advertisements would avail him, he took a juster view of her intentions, and in the chivalry of his nature resolved that under this great affliction, as in every other condition of their acquaintance, he would yield implicitly to her wish.

So he went back into the world, grave, kindly, and courteous as before. There were a few more grey hairs in his whiskers, and he avoided ladies' society altogether; otherwise, to the unobservant eye, he was little altered: but a dear old friend whom he had nursed through cholera at Varna, and dragged from under a dead horse at Lucknow, took him into a bay-window of the club-library, and thus addressed him—

"My good fellow, you're looking shamefully sedy. Idleness never suited you. Nothing like work to keep old horses sound. Why don't you apply for employment? There's always something to do in the East."

CHAPTER XXVIII.

"SEEKING REST AND FINDING NONE."

But great nations do not plunge recklessly into war, nor even do mountain tribes rise suddenly in rebellion because an elderly gentleman is suffering like some sentimental school-girl from a disappointment of the heart. General St. Joseph's extorted, indeed, from a great personage the promise that if anything turned up he would not be forgotten, and was fain to content himself for the time, with a pledge in which he knew he could place implicit trust. So the weary, hot tortured him. He pitied the wild old cock, flapping his life out on its own purple heather, fifty yards off, mowed down by his deadly barrel, even as it rose. When he had stalked the "mucklo red hart" with antlered front of royalty, and three inches of fat on those portly sides, up the burn, and under the waterfall, and through the huge grey boulders of eternal rock, to sight the noble beast fairly from a leeward ambush, and bring it down, pierced through the heart with a long and "kittle" shot, his triumph was all merged in sorrow for the dead monarch lying so calm and stately in the quiet glen, not perhaps without a smothering of envy, for a creature thus insensible, and at rest for evermore.

The foresters wondered to see him in no way triumphant, and when they heard next morning he was gone, shook their heads, opining that "It was a petty! She was a pratty shot, and a fery tight shentlemans on a hill."

It was work the general required, not amusement; so he journeyed sadly back, to await in London the command he hoped would ere long recall him to a profession he had always loved, that seemed now to offer the sympathy and solace of a home.

Sometimes, but this only in moments of which he was ashamed, he would speculate on the possibility of meeting Miss Douglas by accident in the great city, and it soothed him to fancy the explanations that would ensue. He never dreamed of their resuming their old sooting; for the General's forbearance hitherto had sprung from the strength, not the weakness of his character, and the same stubborn gallantry that held his position available to cover his defeat; but it would be a keen pleasure, he thought, though a sad one, to look in her face just once more. After that he might turn contentedly Eastward, go back into harness, and never come to England again.

In the meantime, the days that dragged so wearily with St. Joseph, danced like waves in the sunshine through many of those other lives with which he had been associated in his history. Amongst all gregarious animals, it is the custom for a sick or wounded beast to withdraw from the herd, who in no way concern themselves about its fate, but continue their browsings, baskings, croppings, waterings, and friskings, with a well-bred resignation to another's plight worthy of the human race. If the General's friends and acquaintances asked each other what had become of him, and waited for an answer, they were satisfied with the conventional surmise—

"Gone to Scotland, I fancy. They tell me it's a wonderful year for grouse!"

Mrs. Lushington, yachting at Cowes, and remaining a good deal at anchor, because it was "blowing fresh outside," thought of him perhaps more than anybody else. Not that she felt the least remorseful for the break-up she believed to have originated solely in her own manoeuvres. She was persuaded that her information conveyed through the anonymous letter had aroused suspicions which, becoming certainties on inquiry, detached him from Satarella, and, completely mistaking his character, considered it impossible, but that their dissolution of partnership originated with the gentleman. How the lady fared interested her but little, and in conversation with other dearest friends, she usually summed up the fate of this one by explaining—

"It was impossible to keep poor Blanche straight. Always excitable, and unlike other people, you know. Latterly, I am afraid, more than flighty, my dear, and more than odd."

Besides, Mrs. Lushington, as usual had a great deal of business on hand. For herself and her set Cowes was nothing in the world but London gone down to the sea. Shorter petticoats, and hats instead of bonnets, made the whole difference. There were the same attractions, the same interests, the same intrigues. Ever the same horses went to and fro, and bored, as they breathed, more freely in the soft, Channel air. Altogether, it was fresher and quieter, but, if possible, stupider than Pall Mall.

Nevertheless, Mrs. Lushington being in her natural element, exercised her natural functions. She was hard at work, trying to mate Bessie Gordon, nothing loth, with a crafty widower, who seemed as shy of the bait as an old grudgeon under Kew Bridge. She had undertaken, in conspiracy with other frisky matrons, to spoil poor Rosie Barton's game with young Wideacres, the catch of the season; and they liked each other so well that this job alone kept her in constant employment. She had picnics to organize, yachting parties to arrange, and Frank to keep in good humor; the latter no easy task, for Cowes bored him extremely, and, to use his own words, "he wished the whole place at the devil!" She felt also vexed and disappointed that the General had withdrawn himself so entirely from the sphere of her attractions, reflecting that she saw a great deal more of him before he was free. Added to her other troubles was the unpardonable defection of Soldier Bill. That volatile light dragoon had never been near her since Daisy's marriage—a ceremony in pressed intention of turning over a new leaf, found no reason to be dissatisfied with his lot. You might search Ireland through, and it is saying a good deal, without finding a more joyous couple than Captain and Mrs. Walters. The looked for promotion arrived at last, and the bridegroom had the satisfaction of seeing himself gazetted to a troop on the very morning that provided him with a wife. Old Macormac was pleased, Lady Mary was pleased, everybody was pleased. The Castle blazed with light and revelry, the tenants drank, danced, and shouted. The "boys" burnt the mountain with a score of bonfires, consuming whisky, and breaking each other's heads to their own unbounded satisfaction. In short, to use the words of Peter Corrigan, the oldest solvent tenant on the estate, "The masher's wedding was a fool to't! May I never see glory av' it wasn't better diversion than a wake!"

But Norah's gentle heart, even in her own new-found happiness, had a thought for the beautiful and stately Englishwoman, whom, if she somewhat feared her as a rival, she yet loved dearly as a friend.

"What's gone with her, Daisy?" she asked her young husband, before they had been married a fortnight. "Sure she would never take up with the nice old gentleman, a general he was, that marked the race-cards for us at Punctestown. Oh, Daisy! how I cried that night because you didn't win!"

They were walking by the river-side, where they landed the big fish at an early period of their acquaintance, and Norah brought the gaff to bear in more ways than she suspected; where they parted so hopelessly, when, because of his very desolation, the true and generous girl had consented to plight him her troth; and where they had hardly dared to hope they would meet again in such a glow of happiness as shone round them to-day. It was bright spring weather when they wished each other that sorrowful good-bye. Now, the dead leaves were falling thick and fast in the grey autumn gloom. Nevertheless, this was the real vernal season of joy and promise for both those loving hearts.

"What a goose you were to back me!" observed Daisy, with a pressure of the arm that clung so tight round his own. "It served you right, and I hope cured you of betting once for all!"

"That's no answer to my question," persisted Mrs. Walters. "I'm asking you to tell me about my beautiful Blanche Douglas, and why wouldn't the old General marry her if she'd have him?"

"That's it, dear!" replied her husband. "She wouldn't have him! She—she accepted him, I know, and then she threw him over."

"What a shame!" exclaimed Norah. "Though, to be sure, he might have been her father." Then a shadow passed over her fair young brow, and she added wistfully, "Ah, Daisy! I'm thinking I know who she wanted all the time."

"Meaning me?" said Daisy, with a frank, saucy smile, that brought the mirth back to her face, and the sunshine to her heart.

"Meaning you, sir!" she repeated playfully. "But it's very conceited of you to think it, and very wrong to let it out. It's not so wonderful, after all," she added, looking proudly in his handsome young face. "I suppose I'm not the only girl that's liked you, dear, by a many. I oughtn't to expect it!"

"The only one that's landed the fish," laughed Daisy, stopping in the most effectual manner a little with which she was about to conclude her peroration. "You're mistaken about Miss Douglas, though," he added, "I give you my word. She hadn't your good taste, my dear, and didn't see it! Look, Norah, there's the very place I left Sullivan's fishing-rod. He'll never get it again, so it's lucky I bought his little brown horse. I wonder who found it. What a day that was! Norah do you remember?"

"Remember!"

So the conversation turned on that most interesting of topics—themselves, and did not revert to Satarella nor her doing. If Norah was satisfied, Daisy felt no wish to pursue this subject. However indiscreet concerning his successes, I think when a man has been refused by another lady, he says nothing about it to his wife.

CHAPTER XXIX.

UNDIVIDED.

The late autumn was merging into early winter, that pleasantest of all seasons for those sportsmen who exult in the stride of a good horse, and the stirring music of the hound. Even in Pall Mall true lovers of the chase felt stealing over them the annual epidemic, which winter after rages with unabated virulence, incurable by any known remedy. A sufferer—it would be a misnomer to call him a patient—from this November malady was gaping at a print-shop

...tant by the General appeared at this
...ture, with tidings of the carriage, while
...ugh a vista of the night might be seen at
...open door a thoroughbred horse on his
...and legs, impatient of delay.

"Good-bye, dear Blanche! You look so tired. I hope you haven't done too much."
"Good-bye, dear Clara! I've had such a pleasant afternoon."

Putting her into the carriage, the General's kind heart melted within him. She looked so pale and worn. She clung so confidently, so dejectedly to his arm. She pressed his hand so affectionately when he bade her
good-bye, and seemed so loth to let it go that, but for the eyes of all England, which every man believes are fixed on himself
alone, he would have sprung in too, and driven off with her then and there.

But he consoled himself with the certainty
of seeing her next day. That comfort accompanied him to his bachelor lodgings,
where he dressed, and lasted all through a regimental dinner at the London Tavern.

While a distinguished leader proposed his health, alluding in flattering terms to the services he had rendered, and the dangers
he had faced, General St. Joseph was thinking far less of his short soldier-like reply
than of the pale face and the dark eyes that would so surely greet him on the morrow;
of the future about to open before him at
last, that should make amends for a life of war and turmoil, with its gentle solace of love, and confidence, and repose.

CHAPTER XXVII.

A HARD MORSEL.

Like the feasts of Apicius, that dinner at the London Tavern was protracted to an unconscionable length. Its dishes were rich, various, and indigestible, nothing being
served au naturel and without "garnish"
but the brave simplicity of the guests.

"Wines too there were, that would have slain
young Ammon."

and old comrades seldom part under such conditions without the consumption of much tobacco in the small hours. Nevertheless, St. Joseph rose next morning fresh and hopeful as a boy. He ordered his horse for an early canter in the Park, and shared the flow with divers young ladies of tender years
but dauntless courage, who crammed their
ponies along at a pace that caused manes,
and tails, and golden hair to float horizontal
on the breeze, defiant even of that mounted
inspector, whose heart though professionally
intolerant of "furious riding," softened to a pugny with snub nose and rosy cheeks, on a tiny quadruped as round, as fat, and as saucy-looking as itself.

St. Joseph felt in charity with all mankind, and returned to breakfast so light of heart that he ought to have known, under the invariable law of compensation, some evil at misfortune was in store.

He had little appetite; happiness, like
sorrow, when excessive, never wants to eat;
but he dressed himself again with the utmost care, and after exhausting every expedient to whistle away the dragging hours, started
at half-past eleven for the abode of his lady-love.

Do what he would, it was scarcely twelve
when he arrived at her door, where his summons remained so long unanswered, that he had leisure to speculate on the possibility of Miss Douglas being indisposed and not yet awake. So he rang next time stealthily, and as it wore, under protest, but in vain.

The General then applied himself to the area bell. "They'll come directly, now," he argued; "they'll think it's the beer!" And sure enough the street-door was quickly un-
fastened, with more turning of keys, clanking
of chains, and withdrawing of bolts than is usual during the middle of the season, in the middle of the day.

A very grumpy old woman met him on the threshold, and peering suspiciously out of her keen, deep-set eyes, demanded his business in a hoarse voice, suggestive of gin.

gone. I should say as they wa'n't coming back, none of 'em, no more."

This redundancy of negatives forcibly expressed her hopefulness of their return, and
the General's good sense told him it was time wasted to cross-question his informant any further. Summoning his energies, he reflected that the post office would be the best place whereto to prosecute inquiries, so
he bade the old woman farewell, with all the fortitude he could muster, leaving her much impressed by his manners, bearing, and pro-fusional reality.

At the post-office, however (an Italian warehouse round the corner), they knew nothing. The General, at his wits' end, bethought him of those livery-stables where Satanella kept her namesake, the redoubtable
black mare.

Here his plight excited the utmost interest
and commiseration. "Certainly. The General should have all the assistance in their power. Of course, the lady had forgotten to leave her address, no doubt. Ladies was careless, sometimes, in such matters. A beautiful 'orse-woman," the livery-stable
keeper understood, "an' kep' two remarkably clever ones for her own riding. Had an idea
th' y went away this very morning. Might be mistaken. John could tell. John was the head-ostler. It was John's business to know." So a bell rang, and John, in a longsleeved waistcoat, sleeking a close-cropped
head, appeared forthwith.

"Black mare and chestnut 'oss," said
John decidedly. "Gone this morning;
groom took with him saddles, clothing, and everything. Paid up to the end of their week. Looked like travelling—had their knee-caps on. Groom a close chap; wouldn't say where. Wish he (John) could find out.
Left a setting-muzzle behind, and would like
to send it after him."

There seemed nothing to be done here,
and the General was fain to retrace his steps,
hurt, anxious, angry, and more puzzled
when he reached home than he had ever been in his life.

For an hour or two, the whole thing seemed so impossible, and the absurdity of the situation struck him as so ridiculous, that he sat idly in his chair to wait for tidings. In this nineteenth century, he told himself,
people could not disappear from the surface of society, and leave no sign. Rather, like
the sea-bird diving in the waves,
if they go down in one place, they must come up in another. There were no kidnappings now, no sendings off to the Plantations, no forcible abductions of ladies
young or old. Then his heart turned sick,
and his blood ran cold, while he recalled more than one instance in his own experience,
where individuals had suddenly vanished
from their homes and never been heard of again.

Stung to action by such thoughts, he collected his ideas to organize a comprehensive system of pursuit, that should embrace enquiries at all the railway stations, cab-stands
and turnpikes in and about the metropolis,
with the assistance of Scotland Yard in the background. Then he remembered how an old brother-officer had told him, only the other day, of a similar search made by himself, and attended with success. So he resolved to consult that comrade without delay.
It was now two o'clock. He would find him eating luncheon at his club. In five minutes the General was in a hansom cab, and in less than ten, leaped out on the steps of that military resort.

Had he gone there an hour ago, it would
have spared him a good deal of mental agitation, though perhaps any amount of anxiety
would have been preferable to the dull, sickening resignation which succeeded a blow
that could no longer be modified, parried,
nor escaped. In after-times, the General
looked back to those ten minutes in the hansom cab as the close of an era in his life.
Henceforth, every object in nature seemed to have lost something of its coloring, and
the sun never shone so bright again.

In the hall an obsequious porter handed him a letter. He staggered when he recognized the familiar hand-writing on the envelope, and drew his breath hard for the effort before he tore it open.

may, as you love me—not to try! So now,
farewell—a long farewell, that it pains me
sore to say. I shall never forget you. In all my conflict of feelings, in all my self-reproach and bitter sorrow, when I think of your pain, I cannot bring myself to wish we had never met. I am proud of your notice and your regard—proud to remain under obligations to you—proud to have loved you
so far as my false, wicked nature had the power. Even now I can say, though you put me out of your heart, do not let me pass entirely from your memory. Think sometimes, and not unkindly, of your wilful, wayward—

"BLANCHE."

So it was all over.
"It's a good letter," murmured the General; "but I prefer the one Julia wrote to Juan." Then he read it through again, and found, as is usually the case, that the second perusal reversed his impression of the first.
Did she really mean he was to abstain from all attempt to follow her? He examined the envelope; it bore the stamp of the General Post Office; the contents certainly afforded
him no clue, yet, judging by analogy, he argued that no woman would lay such stress
on the precautions she had taken if she did not wish their efficacy to be proved. When he found, however, that nothing short of police-detectives and newspaper advertisements would avail him, he took a juster view
of her intentions, and in the chivalry of his
nature resolved that under this great afflic-tion, as in every other condition of their acquaintance, he would yield implicitly to her wish.

So he went back into the world, grave,
kindly, and courteous as before. There were a few more grey hairs in his whiskers,
and he avoided ladies' society altogether;
otherwise, to the unobservant eye, he was little altered: but a dear old friend whom he had nursed through cholera at Varna, and dragged from under a dead horse at Luck-
now, took him into a bay-window of the club-
library, and thus addressed him—

"My good fellow, you're looking shamefully sedy. Idleness never suited you.
Nothing like work to keep old horses sound.
Why don't you apply for employment?
There's always something to do in the East."

London, solitary, silent, pre-occupied, wandering about the scenes of his former happiness, like a ghost. He went yachting, indeed, with one friend, and agreed on a pedestrian excursion through Switzerland
with another; but the "sad sea waves"
were too sad for him to endure, and the energy that should have taken him over a mountain, or up a glacier, seemed to fail
with the purchase of a knapsack and the perusal of a foreign Bradshaw, so the walking tour was abandoned, and the friend
rather congratulated himself on escaping
such a mournful companion.

When autumn came round with its many temptations to Scotland, where the mair-
fowl were crowing about their heathery
knolls, and the red-deer sunning their fat
backs on the leeward side of the corrie, he did indeed avail himself of certain invitations
to the hospitable North; and the General,
who could level rifle or fowling-piece, breast
a hill, or plunge through a moss with his juniors by twenty years, strove hard in fatigue of body to earn repose for the mind.
But he did not stay long; the grand, grave
beauty of those silent hills oppressed and

concern themselves about its fate, but continue their browings, baskings, croppings,
waterings, and friskings, with a well-bred resignation to another's plight worthy of the human race. If the General's friends and acquaintances asked each other what had become of him, and waited for an answer,
they were satisfied with the conventional
surmise—

"Gone to Scotland, I fancy. They tell me
it's a wonderful year for grouse!"

Mrs. Lushington, yachting at Cowes, and remaining a good deal at anchor, because it
was "blowing fresh outside," thought of him perhaps more than anybody else. Not that she felt the least remorseful for the break-up
she believed to have originated solely in her own manoeuvres. She was persuaded that her information conveyed through the anonymous letter had aroused suspicions
which, becoming certainties on inquiry, detached him from Satanella, and, completely mistaking his character, considered it impossible, but that their dissolution of partnership originated with the gentleman. How, the lady fared interested her but little, and in conversation with other dearest friends, she usually summed up the fate of this one by explaining—

"It was impossible to keep poor Blanche straight. Always excitable, and unlike other people, you know. Latterly, I am afraid, more than flighty, my dear, and more than odd."

Besides, Mrs. Lushington, as usual had a great deal of business on hand. For herself
and her set Cowes was nothing in the world
but London gone down to the sea. Shorter petticoats, and hats instead of bonnets, made the whole difference. There were the same attractions, the same interests, the same intelligences. Even the same horses went to and fro, and bored, as they breathed, more freely
in the soft, Channel air. Altogether, it was fresher and quieter, but, if possible, stupider
than Pall Mall.

Nevertheless, Mrs. Lushington being in her natural element, exercised her natural functions. She was hard at work, trying to mate Bessie Gordon, nothing loth, with a crafty widower, who seemed as shy of the bait as an old grudgeon under Kew Bridge.
She had undertaken, in conspiracy with other frisky matrons, to spoil poor Rosie Barton's game with young Wideacres, the catch of the season; and they liked each other so well that this job alone kept her in constant employment. She had picnics to organise, yachting parties to arrange, and Frank to keep in good humor; the latter
no easy task, for Cowes bored him extremely,
and, to use his own words, "he wished the whole place at the devil!" She felt also vexed and disappointed that the General had withdrawn himself so entirely from the sphere of her attractions, reflecting that she saw a great deal more of him before he was free. Added to her other troubles was the unpardonable defection of Soldier Bill. That volatile light dragoon had never been near her since Daisy's marriage—a ceremony in which he took the most lively interest,
comporting himself as "best man," with an unparalleled audacity, and a joyous flow of spirits, that possessed, for a gathering composed of Hibernians, the greatest attractions.
People said, indeed, that Bill had shown himself not entirely unaffected by the of a lovel-
ly bridesmaid, the eldest of Lady Mary's daughters; and it was impossible to over-estimate the danger of his position under such suggestive circumstances as must arise
from a wedding in the house.

Then a grey hair or two had lately shown
themselves in her abundant brown locks;
while of the people she chose to flirt with,
some neglected her society for a cruise,
others afforded her more of the excitement
produced by rivalry than she relished, none
paid her the devoted attention she had learned to consider her due. Altogether, Mrs.
Lushington began to find life less coloré de
rose than she could wish, and to suspect the career she had adopted was not conducive to happiness, or even comfort. Many people make the same discovery when it is too late to abandon the groove in which they have elected to run.

Daisy, in the meantime, true to his ex-

hearts.
"What a goose you were to back me!"
observed Daisy, with a pressure of the arm
that clung so tight round his own. "It served you right, and I hope cured you of betting once for all!"

"That's no answer to my question," persisted Mrs. Walters. "I'm asking you to tell me about my beautiful Blanche Douglas,
and why wouldn't the old General marry her
if she'd have him?"

"That's it, dear!" replied her husband.
"She wouldn't have him! She—she accepted him, I know, and then she threw him
over."

"What a shame!" exclaimed Norah.
"Though, to be sure, he might have been her father." Then a shadow passed over her fair young brow, and she added wistfully,
"Ah, Daisy! I'm thinking I know who she wanted all the time."

"Meaning me?" said Daisy, with a frank,
saucy smile, that brought the mirth back to
her face, and the sunshine to her heart.

"Meaning you, sir!" she repeated playfully. "But it's very conceited of you to think it, and very wrong to let it out. It's not so wonderful, after all," she added, looking proudly in his handsome young face. "I suppose I'm not the only girl that's liked
you, dear, by a many. I oughtn't to expect it!"

"The only one that's landed the fish,"
laughed Daisy, stopping in the most effectual manner a little side with which she was about to conclude her peroration. "You're mistaken about Miss Douglas, though," he added, "I give you my word. She hadn't your good taste, my dear, and didn't see it!
Look, Norah, there's the very place I left Sullivan's fishing-rod. He'll never get it again, so it's lucky I bought his little brown horse. I wonder who found it. What a day that was! Norah do you remember?"

"Remember!"
So the conversation turned on that most interesting of topics—themselves, and did not revert to Satanella nor her doings. If Norah was satisfied, Daisy felt no wish to pursue this subject. However indiscreet concerning his successes, I think when a man
has been refused by another lady, he says
nothing about it to his wife.

CHAPTER XXIX.

UNDIVIDED.

The late autumn was merging into early winter, that pleasantest of all seasons for those sportsmen who exult in the stride of a good horse, and the stirring music of the hound. Even in Pall Mall true lovers of the chase felt stealing over them the annual epidemic, which winter after rages with unabated virulence, incurable by any known remedy. A sufferer—it would be a misnomer to call him a patient—from this November malady was gaping at a print-shop window, near the bottom of St. James's Street wholly engrossed in the performances
of a very bright bay horse, with a high-
colored rider, flying an impossible fence,
surrounded by happy huntig-grounds,
where perspective seemed unknown.

"D'ye think he'll get over, Bill?" said a familiar voice, that could only belong to Daisy Walters, who had stolen unperceived
behind his friend.

"Not if the fool on his back can pull him
into it," answered the other indignantly.
And these comrades, linking arms, turned
eastward, in the direction of their club.

"How's the Missis?" said Bill, whose boast it was that he never forgot his manners.

"Fit as a fiddle," replied the happy husband. Had a long letter from Molly this morning. Sent her best love—no, scratched
that out, and desired to be kindly remembered to you."

Molly, called after Lady Mary, was the eldest and, in Bill's opinion, the handsomest daughter, so he changed the subject with rather a red face.

Judge Fullerton—His Training, Feeding, and Shoeing—Three Years of his Career on the Turf.

(From the Spirit of The Times.)

At this meeting I beat Lucy and Goldsmith Maid a second heat, with American Girl, in 2:17 1/2, which was her fastest record. August 23, we were at Springfield, and Fullerton won the 2:24 purse of $2,500, best time 2:25 1/2. After the first heat there was a shower, and the last heat was in 2:36 1/2, owing to a heavy track. At Prospect Park, Sept. 19, Fullerton was beaten by Camors, best time 2:21 3/4. Sept. 26, at Point Breeze, Fullerton beat Hotspur, W. H. Allen, and Camors, who was distanced; best time 2:23 1/4. October 3, at Fleetwood, Fullerton won the $4,000 purse, $2,100 to winner, beating Allen, Camors and Whiteman; best time 2:21 1/2, Camors winning the first heat in 2:25 1/2. October 22, Gazelle beat Fullerton over the Prospect, for the free for all purse of $4,000 (American Girl, Lucy, and Goldsmith Maid were barred); Fullerton made a dead heat of the third, with Gazelle, in 2:22 1/2, and won the fourth in 2:23 1/2; the race, on account of darkness, was then postponed, and Gazelle won the deciding heat next day in 2:23 1/2. This was a hot race, George Palmer and Blossland were in it, and there was great excitement during the trotting. Fullerton then went into winter quarters.

In 1873 Fullerton trotted some twenty races, winning fourteen. June 6, 1873, he beat Gazelle and Camors over the Beacon Park, Boston, for $3,500 purse for 2:21 horses, in three heats; best time 2:23. Gazelle kept pacing all the time, and Fullerton had an easy race. June 27, at Fleetwood Park, Fullerton beat Gazelle and Huntress for the $5,500 purse, for 2:31 horses; in the first heat I drove him a half in 1:08 1/2, and could have distanced both of them the second heat; the best time was 2:22, and he had never trotted so fast before. July 18, he won a race at Erie, Pa., and on the 30th he beat Camors, at Cleveland; this was a close and exciting race; best time 2:23 1/2. August 6 we were at Buffalo; I was very sick and unable to give Fullerton proper work; I would go out the track thinking I should be able to drive him, and when I got there my strength was gone, and I had to lay down, so he was very short of work; the purse we trotted for was $20,000, and Sensation, Camors, Fullerton, Gloster, and Jim Irving were the starters. The winning horse got $10,000, and we were all anxious to take it in. We never thought of Sensation in the race, and were principally afraid of Gloster and Camors, but I thought Fullerton would about win it. We went off for the first heat, and it was shot one, Gloster, Camors, and Fullerton trotting a 2:30 gait all the way, like a team, nearly head and head. Camors won the heat in 2:20 1/2, and it had taken the starch out of Fullerton, as his want of work told on him. Jim Irving had broken his martingale by the quarter-pole, and acting badly in consequence, was distanced. In the second heat Gloster broke badly, and Camors won it in 2:21 1/2, I was second. Camors was now thought to be certain of the race, and it was four to one on him. In the third heat I went for Camors, and we had a fight which lasted into the home stretch, where Sensation closed up on us, and being fresher than either, beat us out in 2:24. Fullerton was tired, and not in fix to stay up to his work, and Sensation won the next two heats in spite of all Camors or Fullerton could do, in 2:26 1/2, 2:28. August 15, we trotted for a purse of $6,000, at Utica, and Fullerton won it. This was a terrific race, Sensation, Camors, and Lucille Goldst started. Fullerton wouldn't score up now at all; something fretted him, but he won the first two heats in 2:22, 2:23 1/2. The third heat he acted badly; he went all to pieces on the score, and got ten lengths behind the others. I got him up to speed at the half-mile pole, and he trotted to the three-quarter pole in 32 1/2 sec.; then, at the head of the homestretch, Lucille Goldst swerved across the track, and I almost went into Sensation, who kept on and won the heat in 2:29 1/2. The fourth heat I won, although Fullerton acted badly, and kept breaking in scoring, and when the word was given he broke again, and got ten lengths behind before he would strike a trot; but, although they were all ahead of me at the half-mile pole when I got into the stretch, I beat them home, and won the heat and race in 2:25 1/2. At Hampden Park, Springfield, Mass., August 30, Fullerton got distanced. He was in bad humor that day, and would not keep on his feet; he kept dancing about and cutting up, and after a great deal of scoring we got away, but before the turn he broke, and fell off a long distance. I got him to trotting again, and he closed up the gap, but breaking again the flag fell in his face, and he was "shut out." We examined his feet after this race, and found the reason why he cut up so; his feet had troubled him a good deal, owing to their having very thin walls; the shoes had shifted perhaps the thickness of a knife blade, and rested on the soles, and they were as tender as one's eyeballs, and almost bleeding from partially separating from the walls. FEMALE EQUESTRIANISM IN PHILADELPHIA.

June 12 was a gala day at the Belmont Park, where an immense concourse of visitors were treated to some surpassing feats of female equestrianism. The occasion was an exhibition of Chas. Beticker's California troupe in their novel, thrilling and daring feats, horse racing, lassoing, &c.

The opening performance of the troupe commenced about half-past 8 o'clock with a grand parade by the whole company, presenting a handsome and interesting sight. Then a restive mustang, known as the 'bucker,' was brought out and ridden by Mr. Faulkner. The animal was a superior bucker, and no mistake. He would arch his back and spring into the air, head down and all his feet off the ground at one time. Then he would let his hind feet go up at an angle of 45 degrees, and down again in a minute, double himself up, lunge, rear, pitch, endeavor to kick his rider's feet out of the stirrup, and by every means try to unseat Faulkner, who, however, kept a firm and easy seat throughout, and showed his complete mastery over the fiery mustang.

And now the interesting feature of the programme commenced. Five ladies, equipped in riding habit and jockey caps, next appeared upon the track, mounted on spirited horses. These were Miss Bella Cook, on the chestnut gelding Elmo; Miss Nellie Cook, the youngest, on the chestnut mare Maria; Miss Julia Cook, on the bay mare Little Breed; Miss Mabel Cook, on the gray gelding Charlie, and Miss Annie Rich, on the sorrel gelding Tom Moore. The Misses Cook are all sisters, from lower California, and for splendor and daring equestrianism surpass our family probably in the world. Young Indian war dances were next in order. After which Capt. Chan Reticker appeared before the judges' stand, disguised as an Indian woman, and mounted a side saddle on a little roan pony. At a fast hand gallop he then made the circuit of the track, and while going around divested himself of his woman's habit, and disposed of the bridle and saddle, coming in as an Indian chief, riding bareback.

The other act was called "Chase for a Wife." Reticker and Miss Nellie Cook started off on separate horses and galloped around the track. As they came up the home-stretch, Reticker took his horse close to the lady, and, seizing her around the waist, lifted her clear from her horse and placed her behind him on his own horse. This was neatly and skillfully executed, and elicited great applause. This brought the performance to a close.

THE LATE WM. T. PORTER.

We clip the following earnest tribute to the late William T. Porter, formerly Editor of this paper, from a letter of Genio C. Scott published in the last number of the Rod and Gun:—

"I am surprised that some effort has not been made by the field sportsmen of America to do honor to the memory of the late Wm. T. Porter, one of the most pure-minded and self-denying men that ever advocated coursing, hunting, improving sporting dogs, encouraged and practised shooting and fishing, wrote and spent his means and gave the efforts of very many years to the advocacy of all laudable out-of-door recreations; the man who, as Editor, gave to The Spirit of the Times a lofty position among the journals of the world which advocate field sports; a man whom even to know was to love; a man of polished manners and gentle mien, tall and handsome above most men; a man who wore his heart upon his sleeve for every daw to peck at, yet never returned evil for evil, but was the same gentle, genial spirit, and friend throughout his life. As the first American editor of a sporting serial, and a man who commanded love and respect wherever he was known; a true-hearted American, of fine attainments, and a lover of American institutions, William T. Porter endeared himself to all true sportsmen, and the field sportsmen of America owe to his name a deeper debt of gratitude than to any other name. If there is to be a monument raised by field sportsmen to commemorate the deeds of any one of the great departed American field sportsmen, that is first due to the memory of the late gifted and honorable William T. Porter."—Spirit of the Times.

ACROSS THE OCEAN IN A DORY.

Mr. Alfred Johnston will start from Gloucester, Mass., July 6th or 7th for a trip to Liverpool, England, in a center-board dory. The dory has been built expressly for the trip by Messrs. Higgins & Gifford, and has attracted the attention of hundreds of persons who have visited their premises the present week. It is built of pine and extra timbered with oak, is sixteen feet in length, twenty on top, five and a half feet in width and two in depth. She is decked over with the exception of standing room and hatchway, has three water-tight compartments, and the water and provisions for a cruise of ninety days will be carried in quarter barrels and in tin cans. She is provided with a mast and mainsail, two jibs and a square sail. His accommodations for sleeping are in the hatchway, and the dory is provided with a drag to be used in a gale. Mr. Johnson is one of our fishermen, and is perfectly confident that he will make the trip in safety, and will occasionally, when not having spoken with any vessel, throw over a bottle securely sealed, giving his experience and whereabouts.

HOW TO MAKE WHIST ENJOYABLE.

There are a few maxims for whist playing which I commend to those who are fond of the game. The moment you receive your cards declare they are abominably bad; thus, if you will, you can claim credit for your play no matter what your opponents say. Hold your cards that they may not be seen by your adversary, and take every opportunity of looking over the hands of your enemies. Never lead from your strongest suit, you only weaken your hand. First play out the miserable little cards, which are simply eyesores to you, and then if you happen to have any court cards or trumps your adversaries will be completely puzzled to know what has become of them. Always keep you aces and kings and good trumps till the end, and when your partner, as astonished as your adversaries at seeing them all come out with a rush, says, "What on earth could have induced you not to play those cards before?" give him a Lord Burleigh nod and say, "Allow me to play my from the gods her just reward. Her body was buried in the most beautiful portion of the ground, and the association at once determined to erect a monument to her honor. On Tuesday, the opening day of the Spring Meeting, the monument, a life-size and life-like bronze statue of American Girl, was unveiled to the public in the presence of an immense concourse of people. The statue rests upon a base of grey granite, containing on each side the following inscriptions, engraved upon polished panels: "American Girl, record 2:10 1/2. Winner of 180 heats in 2:30 or better. Monumentum aere perennius." On the opposite side: "American Girl, owned by William Lovell, of New York. Foaled in 1862. Dropped dead in the 'free-for-all' race, on this track, October 2, 1876." The statue stands upon a beautifully terraced elevation, and over it waves a large hickory tree. The cost of the monument was $2,500, raised by voluntary subscription. Before unveiling the statue, the President of the Association made the following appropriate remarks:—

"Ladies and gentlemen, the statue which we unveil to-day has been erected on the grounds of the Elmira Driving Park Association, to the memory of American Girl, on the spot where her remains are buried. Mr. Lovell, who owned the great horse, pronounces the statue exact in size and life-like characteristics to the horse it is designed to commemorate. We do not propose to make an equine cemetery of our grounds, but we deemed it fit and proper that the career of the great mare should be permanently recorded on the spot where she met her death. The statue will now be unveiled."

The covering was then removed amid the cheers of the thousands assembled. Mr. Alden Goldsmith closed the ceremonies by speaking of the advancement made in trotting and running, and the increasing interest manifested in these sports by all classes of the community, closing with a glowing tribute to the generosity of the members of the Driving Park Association, which had led them to erect this magnificent memorial statue to as perfect a horse as ever sped over the turf. At the close of these exercises the regular programme of the day's trotting was successfully carried out.—Wilkes.

Billiards.

THE NEW-YORK BILLIARD TOURNAMENT.

SLOSSON MAKES THE LARGEST RUN ON RECORD. The concluding game of the billiard tournament at Irving Hall was played last night between Albert Garnier and George Slosson. The contest, although not belonging to the tournament proper, was a play-off on the tie for third place, Rudolphe having won the first and Sexton the second prize respectively. By the result of the game last night the third money goes to Garnier, who beat Slosson by fifty-nine points.

The game commenced at 8 1/2. Garnier on his fourth hand rolled up a pretty break of 27, and missing an easy carom gave Slosson a set up, which he utilized for thirty by steady play, when the balls froze and had to be spotted. He, however, succeeded in scoring, and after a couple of shots got the ivories into position at the bottom cushion and nursed them along to the left hand side cushion, up which he travelled until he brought them to the top, when he carried them along that cushion and down part of the fourth cushion on the way back to the original place of starting, scarcely separating the balls until he had scored 285 points, when by a careless shot they became slightly scattered, and he had to make a succession of all-round play to get the balls into position, which he finally did at the centre of the top cushion, where he held them. On scoring his 250th point he was given a perfect ovation, the cheering and applause being long and continued. He, however, still worked steadily on, and when he reached 287 points, the highest score ever made in a three-ball game (by Sexton in the Philadelphia tournament,) the applause was something deafening, and when he added yet another point the same thing was repeated. Garnier in the meantime was exhibiting the greatest good temper, and although astonished at the great run Slosson was making, could not but admire the play and smile good humoredly as every ten was added to his opponent's string. Slosson, however, nothing excited by the applause of the audience, played steadily on until he had rolled up a total of 311 points.

THE GREATEST RUN EVER MADE.

when he slipped up on a not very difficult carom. The audience by their applause prevented the game being continued, for they literally shook the building. Garnier, on Slosson finishing his break, rose from his chair, and shaking hands with him heartily, congratulated him on his brilliant play and good fortune. As soon as quiet was restored Garnier went to the cue, and by dint of sheer in correspondence therewith will be the distance traversed by the case before bursting, so that by increasing or diminishing the number of cords a longer or shorter range will be obtained. As it is intended that the case should not burst until within some twenty-five yards of the target, it is, of course, necessary to the best success of the sportsman that he exercise good judgment in calculating distance; for if he shoot a cartridge marked seventy-two yards at an object only fifty yards away, it would be nearly equivalent to a rifle shot. But if he calculate his range with tolerable accuracy, he may rely upon success, as the case will not fail to burst at its appointed time and place.

A FREAK OF NATURE.

Last week Mr. Wm. Johnson, of Cliff Villa, Mountain Lake, Ont., had a colt born with two legs only. The two front legs were entirely absent. The animal was strong and hearty, but Mr. Johnson was so scared at the singular appearance of the monstrosity that he took an axe and killed it. I and some friends went up a day or two after to see it. On inspection we came to the conclusion that when alive it must have been rather a pretty animal. It was a well formed and developed beast, but with no front legs; the body was of a dark brown with yellow spots similar to a deer; a long mane, very massive head, and the lower jaws were covered with a thick beard about five inches long. Where the fore legs should have been there hung on each side a skin pouch, four inches in length, at the end of which was long hair. There was no appearance of shoulders, and when the animal was placed in a sitting position it had a very graceful appearance. The hot weather had partly destroyed the hide, therefore we could not skin it. This is to be regretted, as had the owner not acted so hastily, but preserved the animal for a short time, some museum might have been furnished with one of the most remarkable and graceful wonders of nature ever produced, or otherwise the fortune of some enterprising showman might have been made.

FIGHTING RATTLESNAKES.

MILFORD, PA., June 1.—John Quick, David Angle, George R. Bosler, and Frank Quick, quarrymen, a few days ago started into the woods in search of a new stone quarry. On reaching Red Ridge, six miles north from Milford, they were suddenly startled by a loud and continuous noise, caused by rattlesnakes. Being aware that they were in the vicinity of a den of these reptiles, but not knowing the exact locality, they concluded to follow up the sound, and, if possible, find the den. After walking through the thicket for a few rods they found themselves on the verge of a huge mass of loose shale rock, at the extreme north end of which they discovered a black moving mass of rattlesnakes basking in the sunshine. A stone dropped among them by one of the party caused them to rattle fiercely, and the buzz that followed was almost deafening. Each quarryman then procured a long, heavy stick, and approaching cautiously to within reaching distance, began the battle. The rock upon which the reptiles lay was surrounded and rapid blows were brought to bear upon them. John Quick, a tall, powerful man, by bringing his huge club to bear across the top of the rock, killed fifteen of the snakes at one blow. The combat continued for nearly half an hour, when the snakes that were not killed managed to escape by crawling into the surrounding rocks. The party counted nearly three hundred dead reptiles, some of them measuring nearly five feet in length, and having from fifteen to twenty rattles. This den is within about six miles of the famous Ball Hill den, in Shohola township, where thousands have been killed during the past ten years.

HORSE DISEASE.

Two valuable horses have been lost by a peculiar disease in the neighborhood of Paris, Ont., lately. The Star says one animal belonged to Messrs. Bonham, near Glenora, died of a rather rare complaint, viz., what is known as Purpura Haemorrhagica. It generally follows fevers, such as influenza. The symptoms are, swellings appear on the body, especially the head and extremities, out of which slowly exude blood, which is the most characteristic symptom present. The circulation is feeble, and as the disease advances the swellings enlarge to a frightful extent. The usual remedies were tried by Dr. Fasken, V.S., but the animal succumbed after a week a terrible suffring. Messrs. C. & A. Capron lost a fine four year old colt Saturday night by malignant purpura haemorrhagica. The animal was about 10 years old and was very valuable.

for 3,000 paces for 2:21 horses, in three heats; best time 2:23. Gazelle kept pacing all the time, and Fullerton had an easy race. June 27, at Fleetwood Park, Fullerton beat Gazelle and Huntress for the $3,500 purse, for 2:21 horses; in the first heat I drove him a half in 1:08½, and could have distanced both of them the second heat; the best time was 2:22, and he had never trotted so fast before. July 18, he won a race at Erie, Pa., and on the 30th he beat Camors, at Cleveland; this was a close and exciting race; best time 2:23½. August 6 we were at Buffalo; I was very sick and unable to give Fullerton proper work; I would go out on the track thinking I should be able to drive him, and when I got there my strength was gone, and I had to lay down, so he was very short of work; the purse we trotted for was $20,000, and Sensation, Camors, Fullerton, Gloster, and Jim Irving were the starters. The winning horse got $10,000, and we were all anxious to take it in. We never thought of Sensation in the race, and were principally afraid of Gloster and Camors, but I thought Fullerton would about win it. We went off for the first heat, and it was a hot one, Gloster, Camors, and Fullerton trotting a 2:30 gait all the way, like a team, nearly head and head. Camors won the heat in 2:20½, and it had taken the starch out of Fullerton, as his want of work told on him. Jim Irving had broken his martingale by the quarter-pole, and, acting badly in consequence, was distanced. In the second heat Gloster broke badly, and Camors won it in 2:21½, I was second. Camors was now thought to be certain of the race, and it was four to one on him. In the third heat I went for Camors, and we had a fight which lasted into the home-stretch, where Sensation closed up on us, and being fresher than either, beat us out in 2:24. Fullerton was tired, and not in fix to stay up to his work, and Sensation won the next two heats in spite of all Camors or Fullerton could do, in 2:26½, 2:28. August 15, we trotted for a purse of $6,000, at Ulica, and Fullerton won it. This was a terrific race, Sensation, Camors, and Lucille Goldust started. Fullerton wouldn't score up now at all; something fretted him, but he won the first two heats in 2:22, 2:23½. The third heat he acted badly; he went all to pieces on the score, and got ten lengths behind the others. I got him up to speed at the half-mile pole, and he trotted to the three-quarter pole in 32½ sec.; then, at the head of the homestretch, Lucille Goldust swerved across the track, and I almost went into Sensation, who kept on and won the heat in 2:23½. The fourth heat I won, although Fullerton acted badly, and kept breaking in scoring, and when the word was given he broke again, and got ten lengths behind before he would strike a trot; but, although they were all ahead of me at the half-mile pole when I got into the stretch, I beat them home, and won the heat and race in 2:25½. At Hampden Park, Springfield, Mass., August 20, Fullerton got distanced. He was in bad humor that day, and would not keep on his feet; he kept dancing about and cutting up, and after a great deal of scoring we got away, but before the turn he broke, and fell of a long distance. I got him to trotting again, and he closed up the gap, but breaking again the flag fell in his face, and he was "shut out." We examined his feet after this race, and found the season why he cut up so; his feet had troubled him a good deal, owing to their having very thin walls; the shoes had shifted perhaps the thickness of a knife blade, and rested on the soles, and they were as tender as one's eyeballs, and almost bleeding from partially separating from the walls. At Buffalo his feet were bad, but were still worse at Springfield. This is what made him cut up so. We then put bar shoes on him, and gave him frog pressure, which relieved him greatly. At Hampden Park Fullerton trotted against Goldsmith Maid, American Girl, and Lula, and got second money, the Maid winning the race in straight heats, in 2:21, 2:22, 2:19½. August 31, at Beacon Park, Boston, Fullerton beat Camors and Sensation. This was one of his best races. Sensation won the first heat in 2:22½. The second heat was a hot one, and Fullerton won it in 2:19½. Sensation distanced. Camors won the third heat, as Fullerton acted badly, 2:26½. The fourth and fifth heats Fullerton acted well, and won after a hot contest in 2:22 and 2:22½. September 6, he beat the same horses over the Beacon again. After this he won a race at Plainville, Conn., two at Fleetwood, one at Sandy Hill, one at Goshen, and one at Prospect Park, and lost one to American Girl, at Prospect Park, and one to Goldsmith Maid, at Philadelphia. This closed his trotting for 1873. In 1874 he went to California, and trotted to a wagon in 2:20½, 2:22½, 2:21½, and last year he trotted at Cleveland, in 2:18, which shows an improving horse. He never was in better fix than he is now, and will be likely to trot faster this year than ever before.

FEMALE EQUESTRIANISM IN PHILADELPHIA.

June 12 was a gala day at the Belmont Park, where an immense concourse of visitors were treated to some surpassing feats of female equestrianism. The occasion was an exhibition of Chas. Beticker's California troupe in their novel, thrilling and daring feats, horse racing, lassoing, &c.
The opening performance of the troupe commenced about half-past 8 o'clock with a grand parade by the whole company, presenting a handsome and interesting sight. Then a restive mustang, known as the 'bucker,' was brought out and ridden by Mr. Faulkner. The animal was a superior bucker, and no mistake. He would arch his back and spring into the air, head down and all his feet off the ground at one time. Then he would let his hind feet go up at an angle of 45 degrees, and down again in a minute, double himself up, lunge, rear, pitch, endeavor to kick his rider's feet out of the stirrup, and by every means try to unseat Faulkner, who, however, kept a firm and easy seat throughout, and showed his complete mastery over the fiery mustang.
And now the interesting feature of the programme commenced. Five ladies, equipped in riding habit and jockey caps, next appeared upon the track, mounted on spirited horses. These were Miss Bella Cook, on the chestnut gelding Elmo; Miss Nellie Cook, the youngest, on the chestnut mare Maria; Miss Julia Cook, on the bay mare Little Breed; Miss Mabel Cook, on the gray gelding Charlie, and Miss Annie Rich, on the sorrel gelding Tom Moore. The Misses Cook are all sisters, from lower California, and for splendid and daring equestrianism surpass any family probably in the world. Young, graceful, pretty, with Hebe-like forms, and with limbs as willow as birch twigs.
Four hurdles, erected on the home-stretch, were provided, and the five ladies were started from the half-mile pole. Elmo and Maria got off in front, and made a head-and-head race to the wire, both horses clearing the hurdles in capital style, almost simultaneously, and finishing so close together that a dead heat was the unanimous opinion of the spectators, and it was so decided by the judges, the half mile being made in 1:03½, quite a high rate of speed.
Lassoing buffaloes was the next performance, in which one Mexican and three Californians were engaged, all exhibiting great skill in the use of the lariat.
Miss Bella Cook and Miss Julia Cook then mounted two bare-back mustangs, beautifully spotted, and by long odds the best looking mustangs I ever saw, called Turk and Arab, said to be full brothers. They rode them a half mile, without saddles, and riding ladies' style, sideways. After a close and exciting struggle, Miss Julia Cook was proclaimed the winner by about a yard; time, 1:04½.
This was followed by a bare-back race between Miss Nellie Cook and one of the Indian squaws, both riding astraddle, the American winning by about a neck.

evil, but was the same gentle, genial spirit, and friend throughout his life. As the first American editor of a sporting serial, and a man who commanded love and respect wherever he was known; a true-hearted American, of fine attainments, and a lover of American institutions, William T. Porter endeared himself to all true sportsmen, and the field sportsmen of America owes to his name a deeper debt of gratitude than to any other name. If there is to be a monument raised by field sportsmen to commemorate the deeds of any one of the great departed American field sportsmen, that is first due to the memory of the late gifted and honorable William T. Porter."—Spirit of the Times.

ACROSS THE OCEAN IN A DORY.

Mr. Alfred Johnston will start from Gloucester, Mass., July 6th or 7th for a trip to Liverpool, England, in a center-board dory. The dory has been built expressly for the trip by Messrs. Higgins & Gifford, and has attracted the attention of Lundereds of persons who have visited their premises the present week. It is built of pine and extra timbered with oak, is sixteen feet in length, twenty on top, five and a half feet in width and two in depth. She is decked over with the exception of standing room and hatchway, has three water-tight compartments, and the water and provisions for a cruise of ninety days will be carried in quarter barrels and in tin cans. She is provided with a mast and mainsail, two jibs and a square sail. His accommodations for sleeping are in the hatchway, and the dory is provided with a drag to be used in a gale. Mr. Johnson is one of our fishermen, and is perfectly confident that he will make the trip in safety, and will occasionally, when not having spoken with any vessel, throw over a bottle securely sealed, giving his experience and whereabouts.

HOW TO MAKE WHIST ENJOYABLE.

There are a few maxims for whist playing which I commend to those who are fond of the game. The moment you receive your cards declare they are abominably bad; thus, if you will, you can claim credit for your play no matter what your opponents say. Hold your cards that they may not be seen by your adversary, and take every opportunity of looking over the hands of your enemies. Never lead from your strongest suit, you only weaken your hand. First play out the miserable little cards, which are simply eyesores to you, and then if you happen to have any court cards or trumps your adversaries will be completely puzzled to know what has become of them. Always keep your aces and kings and good trumps till the end, and when your partner, as astonished as your adversaries at seeing them all come out with a rush, says, "What on earth could have induced you not to play those cards before?" give him a Lord Burleigh nod and say, "Allow me to play my own game; I know what I'm about." That will probably irritate him, upon which you should remark blandly that you never lose your temper at whist. Always claim honors—the other side may forget—and pocket any stray cash lying on the table. With that these hints must end for the present.—London Court Circular.

ELMIRA (N.Y.) DRIVING PARK.

The entire trotting world will remember the feeling of universal regret which was felt by every one in October last, when the electric wire flashed over the country the sad news that the queenly trotter, American Girl, had been stricken with death, on the track of the Elmira Driving Park Association, while in the full flush of a hotly-contested race. All who were present on that day remember equally well that beautiful sight which for a moment entranced them. The great mare, winner of a host of trotting victories, lay dead on the track: suddenly a magnificent rainbow spanned the heavens, one end resting on the inanimate form, whereas the other was lost in the blue vault above. Who knows but the royal mare's spirit, if horses have spirits, took this primed path to a lysium where, in ever-verdant pastures, she received status as perfect a horse as ever sped over the turf. At the close of these exercises the regular programme of the day's trotting was successfully carried out.—Wilkes.

Billiards.

THE NEW-YORK BILLIARD TOURNAMENT.

SLOSSON MAKES THE LARGEST RUN ON RECORD
The concluding game of the billiard tournament at Irving Hall was played last night between Albert Garnier and George Slosson. The contest, although not belonging to the tournament proper, was a play-off on the tie for third place, Rudolphe having won the first and Sexton the second prize respectively. By the result of the game last night the third money goes to Garnier, who beat Slosson by fifty-nine points.
The game commenced at 8h. 10m. Garnier on his fourth hand rolled up a pretty break of 27, and missing an easy carom gave Slosson a set up, which he utilized for thirty by steady play, when the balls froze and had to be spotted. He, however, succeeded in scoring, and after a couple of shots got the ivories into position at the bottom cushion and nursed them along to the left hand side cushion, up which he travelled them until he brought them to the top, when he carried them along that cushion and down part of the fourth cushion on the way back to the original place of starting, scarcely separating the balls until he had scored 235 points, when by a careless shot they became slightly scattered, and he had to make a succession of all-round play to get the balls into position, which he finally did at the centre of the top cushion, where he held them. On scoring his 250th point he was given a perfect ovation, the cheering and applause being long and continued. He, however, still worked steadily on, and when he reached 287 points, the highest score ever made in a three-ball game (by Sexton in the Philadelphia tournament,) the applause was something deafening, and when he added yet another point the same thing was repeated. Garnier in the meantime was exhibiting the greatest good temper, and although astonished at the great run Slosson was making, could not but admire the play and smile good humoredly as every ten was added to his opponent's string. Slosson, however, nothing excited by the applause of the audience, played steadily on until he had rolled up a total of 311 points.
THE GREATEST RUN EVER MADE,
when he slipped up on a not very difficult carom. The audience by their applause prevented the game being continued, for they literally shook the building. Garnier, on Slosson finishing his break, rose from his chair, and, shaking hands with him heartily, congratulated him on his brilliant play and good fortune. As soon as quiet was restored Garnier went to the cue, and by dint of sheer good play, captured 22 points and retired after missing a long shot. The game was continued, Garnier gradually creeping ahead and finally winning by the following score:
Garnier—10 1 0 27 22 0 1 109 80 3 2
38 24 2 111 2 1 0 88 0 0 10 28 83 12 0 1.

18 2 0 1 35 9 20 1 0 0 89 1 2 13.
Average, 20 21-26.

A NEW CARTRIDGE.

Experiments have been made at Hamilton with a new "long range shot cartridge." It consists principally in combining the two halves of a longitudinally divided shot case of zinc by a confining cord wound around the same. Upon leaving the gun the cord will be unwound by the current of air caused by the rapid motion of the case, after which it will burst and its several parts fall to the ground, leaving the charges of shot free to perform their office. The cord being wound upon the case in short sections so as to come off at equal intervals, it will be seen that upon the number of pieces will depend the length of time consumed in unwinding the same and liberating the charge of shot; and some of a short time, as they may have been furnished with one of the remarkable and graceful wonders of nature ever produced, or otherwise the fortune of some enterprising showman might have been made.

The animal was valued at $100, but was intrinsically worth more to the owners, as being one of a fine matched team.

A GEORGIA DECISION REGARDING TURF BETS.

On the evidence the Court assumes this to have been a "turf race," and holds, that although money won on a turf race cannot be recovered back by the loser, as in cases of common betting, it does not follow that money won on a turf race can be covered by the winner, in an action, either from the bettor or the stakeholder. As wager contracts, on any sport or pastime, turf races included, are void. Money lost gaming may generally be recovered after paid. It is in this respect only that racing is made an exception. The law leaves the parties as they are. At common law betting contracts are not, as such, illegal. But there has been a strong determination in the courts of this country to discourage and refuse to enforce them, even in the absence of statutes. Huffman was entitled to his own money back, but he refused to take it, and had no right of action against the stakeholder.

REVISION REQUIRED.

In the match between St. Patrick and Tempest at Hamilton, which was trotted last week, a question came up for which no provision has been made by either the Dominion or National Association Rules. The circumstances are as follows:—At the time of the deposit of the forfeit money and the agreement of the race was made, no stipulation was provided what the distance should be, although it is quite possible to believe that both parties tacitly understood it would be usual distance in such contests, mile heats, 3 in 5, in harness. But when the time came for making the balance of the money good, a dispute occurred between the principals as to the race to be trotted, one insisting upon the orthodox race, while the other contended for three mile heats, 2 in 3. The law of the Dominion Association bearing on the point is in Article 31 of the Trotting and Pacing Rules, which is as follows:—

When a race is made and no distance specified, it shall be restricted to the following distances, viz:—One mile and repeat; mile heats, best three in five; two miles and repeat, or three miles and repeat; and may be performed in harness, to waggon or under the saddle."

In case of disagreement the rules are silent upon who shall fill the position of arbitrator. Under the provisions of the above article, he who advanced the three miles and repeat for his choice had as much right as his opponent who claimed the mile heats, 3 in 5, and could have further embarrassed the proceedings by insisting upon going to waggon or under saddle, as he would elect. This objection can, of course, be obviated by carefully drawing up the agreement under which the contest is to take place, but as matches are frequently made in hot blood and under

A GOOD CERTIFICATE.

We have received several communications from Guelph and vicinity making enquiries respecting the horse St. Joe, imported last Spring from Kentucky. Reports were spread, no doubt by parties interested in other stallions, that St. Joe was not what he was represented, in fact, that he was a fraud of the first water. To such queries as were addressed to us replies were given to the effect that the horse was all right, and no doubt could be entertained of the genuineness of the representations made by his owner. To those who received our answers, they were satisfactory; but the libel on the horse was circulated with such persistency, that its effects were very widely spread, and resulted in very serious loss to his enterprising owner. However, now the question may be considered fairly settled, as from the last number of the Lexington, Ky., Live Stock Record we clip the following questions and answers. This will hardly do St. Joe much good at this late date in the season, but should be of great assistance to him if he should stay another year in Canada.

"L. M., Canada—Many parties here think that the trotting horse St. Joe, by Blackwood, dam by Mark Time, imported into Canada last spring, is a fraud; also think that he never won any races. Will you please answer in your next issue whether the pedigree of the horse is correct, and whether he ever started in any races."
"Answer—1. Mr John Hetherington took from this place last spring to Guelph, Ontario, Canada, St. Joe, a black horse, foaled 1870, bred by Robert Tucker, of this county, by Blackwood, dam by Mark Time, grand dam by Woodford, great grand dam by Grey Eagle. 2. In 1878, when two years old, then known as Oakwood, he trotted and won a race in 2:52 over a half-mile track, at the Fair Grounds, at Lexington, and the fall of 1875 trotted in the hands of Dr. Hirsch, at Lexington in 2:39. The horse is bred as stated, and the pedigree is true and reliable."

THE ROCHESTER, N.Y., ENTRIES CLOSE ON JULY 1.

A FINE COLT.

One day early this week while at Woodbine Park, Mr. Joseph Duggan invited us to his stable to take a look at a fine yearling colt he has recently imported from York State. Mr. D. was rather enthusiastic in his flattery of the youngster, but when the stall was opened it was easily to be seen his praises were not misplaced. He is a nice chestnut, fully 14:3, with a small white blaze in face and two white hind ankles. In appearance he would quite easily pass for a two-year old, being so well developed. Country Gentleman, by Rysdyk's Hambletonian, has the credit of being his sire, and it is doubtful if among the large number of fine colts by this horse, he has ever produced one to equal this. He is fine enough for a thoroughbred, for which he could be easily mistaken, small head and ears, graceful neck, full eyes and broad forehead, strong quarters, stands square on his pins, with plenty of bone and substance, short back well ribbed up, and is already gaited like a 40 horse. His dam must have been an extraordinary mare, and although Mr. D. had not her pedigree to hand, we were given to understand she was a Bellfounder mare of high breeding. By the time this youth has had two or three Canadian winters pass over his head we expect to see him develop into Long Branch Races commence on Saturday.

The trotting stallion Chas. Douglas has been removed from the half-mile track to Mr. Harry Church's, Brockton.

Mr. Harry Giddings will take his green horse Silas Rich to Aurora Races for the purpose of exhibiting him.

The entries for the Detroit races, to take place at the Hamtramck Park, July 4 to the 7th, number 98.

A week or so ago Mr. Gage, of Hamilton, lost a valuable Highland Boy filly by its falling into a ravine and breaking its back.

They had a little race at Prescott last week, of which we have not obtained the particulars. Mr. H. Ford's horse, Frank Swift, was too swift for Maitland Girl.

Thomas Martin and Maurice Wren had a pedestrian spin at Hamilton on Thursday of last week for an X, one hundred yards. The Wren proved to be the faster bird.

For some time it was considered hardly fashionable for ladies to visit races at Washington, D.C. Now, however, it is the thing to do the turf.

They had a lot of scrub races at Gowans-town last week. A local paper says the racing was splendid and the sport capital. The day's proceeding passed off favorably.

Mr. J. Forbes' horses Bill Bruce and Vicksburgh were, we are informed, shipped to Chicago last week, where they will take part in the meeting commencing this week.

Goldsmith Maid in her trial last week at Philadelphia equalled her best record. She had a running horse to accompany her, and stopped the ticker at 2:14 in the second heat.

The Montreal Horse Market last week did not show much sign of business. Some few transactions took place, but in most cases the figures were quite moderate. Eastern American buyers were the principal purchasers.

Messrs. Burgess & Forbes have the pool business at Hamilton; Mr. S. D. Page goes to Aurora for the summer meeting; Messrs. Quimby & Forbes have the selling at the big Chicago gathering.

The yacht Madelene has been chosen by the Regatta Committee of the New York Yacht Club to sail against the Canadian yacht Countess of Dufferin for the Queen's Cup on the 10th, 12th, and 14th July.

It will be impossible for us to be present at all the race meetings on the 1st of July, therefore we are compelled to ask the kind assistance of the various Secretaries in furnishing us with the summaries of the races over their tracks for publication in the Sporting Times.

The Hamilton Times explains in a late issue what it meant by saying the Dundas Driving Park was a miserable half-mile track. The explanation is that it, in common with all half-mile tracks, was miserable for making fast time; and then eulogizes the track and its surroundings to the skies.

From the Spirit of the Times we learn the "Old Tramer" is so busily engaged in his professional duties as to be reluctantly compelled to discontinue his popular articles on the "Training of the Thoroughbred." He will resume his labors with the quill in a few weeks.

Small money will buy him. Favorites are cropping out already for the Sporting Times Stallion Race. Western horsemen go for Capt. Tom; the Niagara district favors Fulton; Frank Allison and Erin Chief are fancied by the Northerners; the St. Lawrence country hold up its hands for Young Harry Clay; and the metropolitans are divided in their allegiance between Chas. Douglas, Toronto Chief, and Whirlwind. And who knows but Douglass, Warr Hulett, or Matt Cameron may win it; being less known they are less spoken of, but that will not make them trot any slower.

THE RELATION OF THE LARVÆ OF THE CESTRUS EQUINUS (OR BOTS) TO THE SYSTEM OF THE HORSE.

BY S. G. TATTERSALL, V. S., (LONDON, ENG.) AILSA CRAIG, ONT.

(Concluded.)

This juice is immensely powerful in its solvent strength. During life, the stomach has, through its vitality, a sufficiency of resistance to annul the corrosive effects of the gastric juice upon its coats, but, death having taken place, that vital power of resistance has of course passed away with the life of the animal. Still, though the animal is dead, the secretory organs continue for a short time to act, and a certain amount of gastric juice having accumulated is discharged into the stomach, which, as I have before said, being in point of fact dead flesh, is eaten into by the gastric juice, not by the Bots.

The Bots either feel the corrosive effects of the juice, and instinctively letting go their hold are precipitated into the abdominal cavity, or, the part of the stomach to which they are attached is corroded by the action of the acid, and they are with that part dropped into that cavity.

Lastly—Are any medicines, (supposing for the sake of argument, that a diseased condition may exist through the action of these Bots), competent to reach these larvæ? I believe not, for I think that any medicine sufficiently strong to reach them and effectually remove them would be more likely by its action on the stomach to remove the horse from the scene of all its troubles and hard work.

The facts to be deduced from these four articles on this subject, if I am, as I believe, correct in theory, arg these, that it behoves us in any case of sickness which may be brought to us to treat and which may be considered by the owner to be caused by Bots is, I say, to put the idea of this supposition disease out of our minds and to look for symptoms of some disease which is a possibility and not an absurdity.

TIME MADE AT THE OAKS.—The time in which the Oaks (one and a half miles) was run in 1876 was 2:50. In 1875 it was won by Spinaway in 2:49, and in 1874 by Apology in 2:48. In the United States Glenelg ran the same distance in 1870, at Long Branch, in 2:37. In 1874, Tom Bowling, at Lexington, Ky., ran one mile and a half in 2:38, and in 1875 Aristides ran the same distance at Louisville, Ky., in 2:37. Other American horses of note have also run the distance in less than Apology's time. The difference, however, may be said to be very trifling, when the weights of the English and American horses are compared.

TROTTING AT HAMILTON.

The Hamilton Times furnishes us with the following account of the match trot on Thursday last:—

On Thursday afternoon the great match trot between Owen Nowlan's bay colt, St. Patrick, 5 years old, and Mr. Wilson's ch. m. Tempest, aged, which has created a tremendous amount of interest in sporting circles, was trotted at the Driving Park. The match was originally for $2,000 a side, but we believe the sum really trotted for was $400 a side. The conditions were mile heats, best three in five, in harness. There was a very large attendance, much larger in fact than we have seen at many regular racemeetings. The trot was set for 2:30, but it was nearly four o'clock before the first heat was started, owing to there being some difficulty in selecting judges. Three gentlemen were ultimately selected, who gave satisfaction to all parties. There was a large number of sporting men from a distance, all watching with keen interest the performance of the colt. The track, though not fast, was in fair order. Pete Curran drove St. Patrick and Cope Stinson Tempest. For the first heat pools sold: St. Patrick, $5; Tempest, $3. At about a quarter to four the horses were rung up to the score.

First Heat.—Tempest had the pole, and at the third attempt the word "Go!" was given. The mare had a trifle the best of the send-off and led round the turn. The colt, however, who was trotting very fast and had settled down splendidly, was fast overhauling her, and at the quarter pole was on even terms. Going along the back stretch he rapidly forged ahead and got the pole. At the half mile the mare broke badly but settled down again, and was not far behind at the three quarters. Coming into the straight, however, she broke again, and St. Patrick came along at a rattling gait and won the first heat in 2:36.

Second Heat.—There was scarcely any betting on this heat. What little there was, was at the odds of 5 to 1 on the colt. The horses got away at the first attempt, the colt with the pole. While rounding the first turn, the mare broke, and the colt who was trotting magnificently, went right away, and never again gave her a chance. All the way along the back stretch, the mare broke, while St. Patrick never made a skip and trotted home an easy winner in 2:39.

Third Heat.—No betting. The colt with the pole got off with a slight advantage, and trotting very finely went right away, the mare running nearly all the way round. In this heat the overdraw of the mare's bit got broken. Time—2:44.

St. Patrick and his driver were loudly applauded at the conclusion of the race, and Mr. Nowlan was congratulated on possessing such a magnificent colt. The breeder of St. Patrick, Mr. Bamfylde Capron, of Paris, was on the track, and was highly delighted at his performance.

HAMILTON, June 22.—$400. Match Trot. Mile heats, 3 in 5, in harness. Owen Nowlan, b g St Patrick.... Curran 1 1 1 R T Wilson, ch m Tempest.... C Stinson 2 2 2 Time—2:36, 2:39, 2:43.

HAMILTON RIDING AND DRIVING PARK.

We have been favored with the following list of entries for the forthcoming meeting at the above Park, and from their number and names a more than ordinarily successful meeting may be expected:—St Patrick, Tempest, Little Wonder, Black Mack, J H Boyle, Fulton, Barlow, Welland Girl, John A, Grey Eddie, Lilian, Bay Tom, Mixture, Nelson Chief, Lady Rydyk, Henrietta, Woodruff, Ballymena, Comet, Model, Lady Hill, Quaker Boy, Passion, Inspiration, Warrior, Gil D Boy, Mary L, Islander, Boney, Sunnyside, Hermit, Battle Cry, Hiley, and Magnet.

TROTTING AT WATFORD.

A five mile trot came off on the Watford Driving Park on Monday between two mares owned in Forest. The attendance was not very extensive; and the time of the race not sufficiently fast to attract any attention.

Watford, Ont, June 26, 1876.—$200. Match Trot. Five mile dash, in harness.

Billiards.

RUSSELL vs. CAPRON.

The match announced last week between the above exports has been declared off, and we have returned the forfeit money. Mr. Russell, we have understood, received $25 for consenting to a draw.

GOOD WORDS ARE WORTH MUCH.

We clip from the Billiard Journal for June the following: "The clergy are all coming out 'square toed' on the side of the devotees of billiards. A few weeks ago the Rev. David Swing, the eloquent pulpit orator of Chicago, published an article in a religious paper in which he highly commended billiards as an innocent, healthful, and in every sense proper amusement. And still later, the Rev. Edwd. Sullivan, D.D., in a sermon preached from the pulpit of Trinity Episcopal Church, Chicago, refers to billiards in the following appreciative words: 'Here is a game at once attractive, and within certain limits invigorating, and in itself harmless morally. So little of evil belongs to it that I have tried to learn it myself in the houses of several of my congregation; and to-morrow, had I space, and could I afford it, I would place a billiard-table in my own house, and invite all who would come and make free use of it.'"

FROM BRANTFORD.

DEATH OF LITTLE WONDER—SINGULAR CIRCUMSTANCE.

BRANTFORD, June 24, 1876.

To the Editor of the Sporting Times.

Sir—Mr. B. G. Tisdale of this town met with a severe loss the latter part of May in the death of his brood mare Little Wonder. It was his custom to gradually reduce his mares previous to their foaling, and it feared the mare had not been properly attended to after foaling in this respect, which is assumed to have been the primary cause of the disease—acute indigestion—that carried her off. Little Wonder was a sister to Mollie Morris, and had a record of 2:47.

And now I have to relate a singular circumstance. His mare Fannie on April 29, had a bay colt by Clear Grit; Little Wonder foaled a chestnut colt by same horse on May 17. When Little Wonder died her colt was about a week old; Mr. T. being away from home at the time, Mr. T.'s father at once decided to turn the young orphan in with Fannie and her colt, who willingly accepted of him. She paid more attention to the stranger than her own son, and would drive her colt away to give Little Wonder's a chance. However, Fannie and the two colts are doing well. This is said by old horsemen to be a rare case, not occurring once in a hundred times. It goes to show the amiability of Fannie's disposition.

Your stallion race creates considerable talk here, and I congratulate you upon the number of entries you have received. The friends of Capt. Tom fancy the horse that beats him will about win the race. Yours, DIXIE.

DEATH OF MR. H. H. SADLEIR.

It is with the deepest regret that we announce to-day the death of Mr. H. H. Saddleir, the eldest son of Mr. Charles Saddleir, barrister, of Hamilton, at the early age of 25. We are sure that all classes will hear of the early demise of one so popular as Mr. Saddleir with unfeigned regret. His loss to the young men of the city is almost irreparable, as he was the most forward and active in promoting athletic sports. Brought up at Upper Canada College, and inheriting a love of all out-door sports, he stroved to make Hamilton first in whatever manly exercise it went in for. As Treasurer of the Cricket club for many years he was invaluable, and it was to a great extent owing to his exertions the new ground was completed. In him, too, the Football club have lost a true friend and a valuable secretary. Mr. Saddleir was also one of the most prominent members who assisted in starting the Burlington Yacht Club. Mr. Saddleir was but just entering on a profession in which he was doubtless destined to be an ornament, and was also the agent for the Equitable Life Assurance Company of New York.—Times.

THE WIMBLEDON TEAM.

The Wimbledon team embarked on board the Polynesian at Quebec at nine o'clock Saturday morning, en route for England. They mustered at 8-15, and shortly afterwards his Excellency Lord Dufferin went on board and inspected them. He said that he could not allow them to leave the shores of Canada without coming down to bid them farewell. He trusted that the billows of the Atlantic would not unsettle their nerves so as to mar their shooting abilities, and he hoped that they would bring back with them similar trophies to those which have already embellished the table at Government House on festive occasions. After pointing out the utility of such meetings as they were about to take part in, he referred to the hearty welcome which they would doubtless receive at the hands of their fellow volunteers in Great Britain, and commended to them Lieut.-Col. Kirkpatrick, a gentleman who was certain of making his mark in the old country. He concluded by wishing them a pleasant voyage and unbounded success. Three hearty cheers were given for his Excellency, after which he left the ship, and the Polynesian steamed out into the harbor.

DOMINION RIFLE MATCHES.

The following is the list of matches arranged by the Council of the Dominion Rifle Association at Ottawa, on the 21st, as well as the sums which will be divided into prizes for each match:—All-comers' Match, $360; Dominion of Canada Match, $425; Battalion Match, $340; Macdougall Challenge Cup, value $200; Provincial Match, each prize $150, London Merchants' Cup, value $1,000; Affiliated Associations' Match, $290; Governor General's prizes, gold, silver, and bronze medals. Prizes to the highest aggregate scores, $155, with the medal of the National Association, and two filed glasses. Wimbledon matches in two stages, $1,265—making an aggregate value of prizes in kind and cash of about $4,500.

A SHOOT AT BUFFALO.

A number of sportsmen held a shooting carnival at George Smith's, Buffalo, on June 17. The first match, at 5 single rises, had nine entries. Cook, Franklin, and Roberts made a clean score of 5; Rafferty, Tabor, and Heriz, 4; Remington, Smith and Franklin, 3. A sweepstakes, at 5 rises, followed. Door, Cook, Marsh, Suckon and Roberts killed all their birds, 5; Smith, Boyer, Green, and Downs, 4; Renowalt, Fisher, Diggins, Rafferty, Taber, Huber, Staub, Harlow, and Franklin, 3; Boyer, 2. Marsh won first money, Smith second.

WARD TO BOGARDUS.

TORONTO, June 20, 1876.

EDITORS TURF, FIELD AND FARM—I read in your last issue that Bogardus has barred me from shooting in the Tournament at Philadelphia. My reply to Bogardus is, that he does not want to shoot against me; not because he could not get the stakes, but he well knows he might have to lower his colors. Now, as he is the champion shot of the world, I will name a match to shoot against him which would require more skill to make a good score than any match he has ever shot before. I hold the champion sterling silver cup of Canada for single and double bird shooting. I held it for one year against all-comers. The weight of the cup is 75 ounces. I will put that up against the same amount of Bogardus' prizes and shoot, and let the winner take the lot, and I will bet him $100 that I win the match. If gate money is charged the winner to take it. Each to shoot at twenty-five pair of double rises marsh or rice birds and twenty-five pair of wild pigeons each, all from ground traps, twenty-one yards rise; the two traps to be placed ten yards apart; one ounce and quarter shot. Excepting this agreement, the match to be governed by the new rules of Canada for pigeon shooting. I will shoot the match any time by receiving four weeks' notice through your paper. The match to be shot at Buffalo, N.Y. The Editor of Turf, Field and Farm to name a referee and be stakeholder, or Bogardus may name any good man in Buffalo as stakeholder. The value of the prizes that Bogardus puts up against my cup he can get any responsible jeweller in Buffalo to decide, so as to make it about equal. I will furnish all the small birds free for the match, Bogardus to furnish all the wild pigeons, and I will allow him thirty cents each for all I shoot at. Now, Bogardus, instead of shooting at glass balls with shot, when I can break forty out of fifty for money in the air with a rifle ball, make this match, and if you beat me I will forever hold my peace.

JAMES WARD, Champion Shot of Canada.

SHOOTING AT KEMPTVILLE.

A pigeon shooting match took place at Kemptville, on the morning of the 27th, between Mr. F. Jones and Mr. B. Kerr, at eight birds each, twenty-one yards rise. The shooting of either party was not what might be called first class. Messrs. John Kidson and A. Kennedy were umpires, and Mr. Geo. Taylor, referee. The following is the score:—

B Kerr..... 1 1 0 0 1 1 1—5 F Jones..... 0 1 0 0 0 0 0—1

Mrs. Morrison has been successful in effecting an engagement with the celebrated Vokes family who will make their first appearance in this city in their eccentric dramas and sketches on Monday, July 17, continuing for one week. They will be supported by the principal members of the Grand Opera House Company.

Mr. Ben. G. Rogers, the veteran comedian, not unknown to Toronto play-goers, has been secured by Mrs. Morrison for the Grand Opera House next season. He will occupy the positions of first comedian and stage manager.

The "Speculation" company, under the management of Messrs. Grismor and Curtis, did not turn out much of a speculation for either the managers or the people engaged. The senior partner returned quite unexpectedly to the city and as suddenly took his departure, and is now supposed to be enjoying all the liberties of citizenship under the American flag. Stories, in connection with his departure, which are current on the street, would form quite a sensational chapter in city life.

The Queen's still continues its efforts to please. A number of new faces put in its appearance on Monday evening, and fresh features are announced for next week. The entertainment, as now given, is quite pleasing and of good tone for a variety theatre. Miss Van Zandt in her ballads is a strong feature. The arrivals this week are Miss Jenny Jerome, a pleasing serio comic; M'He Rosetta, serio comic; Miss Nelly Stanley, ballads; and Messrs. Roberts and McClain, acceptable end men and comedians.

Cole's Mammoth Hippodrome, Caravan and Circus will show on the Grenville St. lot to-day and to-morrow. It is very highly spoken of by our correspondents and contemporaries.

GENERAL.

Mr. G. F. Rowe concluded his engagement at the Academy of Music, Montreal, on Saturday evening, and was followed by Miss Lucille Western on Monday night for one week in a round of other popular characters. She opened in East Lynn, and created quite a favorable impression in the dual part. During her engagement she will appear as The Child Stealer.

The Shaugran company paid a flying visit to Ottawa last week and presented to their admirers there a programme consisting of three small pieces—Faint Heart never Won Fair Lady; Simpson & Co., and Turn Him Out. Mr. Felix J. Morris created a favorable impression in the farce.

Our St. Catharines correspondent says that Cule's Hippodrome gave a very fine show in that town—or city.

Prof. Linder, the mind reader, is in London.

Van Ambourgh's Circus and Menagerie is being largely billed in the eastern towns.

THE GREENER GUN.

The New York Forest and Stream speaks of the display of Greener guns at the Centennial Exhibition in the following manner:—' Mr. W. W. Greener exhibits a handsome case of guns, not numerically large but of remarkably fine workmanship. Some of them are most elaborate in finish, but as there was no one in charge of the case, we had no opportunity of examining them. Mr. Greener's guns, however, are too well known to require special comment. His choke-bored are now used by many crack pigeon shots, particularly in the Southwest. One of the most striking objects in Mr. Greener's exhibits is the elegant Field cup won by him in the great gun trial of 1875, a reproduction of which also ornaments the stocks of some of the fine guns.' Messrs. McNab & Marsh, 5 Front street east, Toronto, are the Canadian agents for the Greener gun, and any gentleman desirous of purchasing one of these celebrated guns should put himself in communication with the agents here.

been properly attended to after coming to this respect, which is assumed to have been the primary cause of the disease—acute indigestion—that carried her off. Little Wonder was a sister to Mollie Morris, and had a record of 2:47.

And now I have to relate a singular circumstance. His mare Fannie on April 29, had a bay colt by Clear Grit; Little Wonder foaled a chestnut colt by same horse on May 17. When Little Wonder died her colt was about a week old; Mr. T. being away from home at the time, Mr. T.'s father at once decided to turn the young orphan in with Fannie and her colt, who willingly accepted of him. She paid more attention to the stranger than her own son, and would drive her colt away to give Little Wonder's a chance. However, Fannie and the two colts are doing well. This is said by old horsemen to be a rare case, not occurring once in a hundred times. It goes to show the amiability of Fannie's disposition.

Your stallion race creates considerable talk here, and I congratulate you upon the number of entries you have received. The friends of Capt. Tom fancy the horse that beats him will about win the race.

Yours, DEXTER.

DEATH OF MR. H. H. SADLEIR.

It is with the deepest regret that we announce to-day the death of Mr. H. H. Saddleir, the eldest son of Mr. Charles Saddleir, barrister, of Hamilton, at the early age of 25. We are sure that all classes will hear of the early demise of one so popular as Mr. Saddleir with unfeigned regret. His loss to the young men of the city is almost irreparable, as he was the most forward and active in promoting athletic sports. Brought up at Upper Canada College, and inheriting a love of all out-door sports, he strived to make Hamilton first in whatever manly exercise it went in for. As Treasurer of the Cricket club for many years he was invaluable, and it was to a great extent owing to his exertions the new ground was completed. In him, too, the Football club have lost a true friend and a valuable secretary. Mr. Saddleir was also one of the most prominent members who assisted in starting the Burlington Yacht Club. Mr. Saddleir was but just entering on a profession in which he was doubtless destined to be an ornament, and was also the agent for the Equitable Life Assurance Company of New York.—Times.

ALICE.—Mr. W. G. Baldwin, Ticondeoga, N.Y., has sold his fine trotting mare Alice, fifteen years old, by Lambert, for $7,000. She has trotted on the ice in 2:16 and 2:20.

A number of sportsmen held a shooting festival at George Smith's. Buffalo, on June 17. The first match, at 5 single rises, had nine entries. Cook, Franklin, and Roberts made a clean score of 5; Rafferty, Tabor, and Heriz, 4; Romington, Smith and Franklin, 3. A sweepstakes, at 5 rises, followed. Door, Cook, Marsh, Suckon and Roberts killed all their birds, 5; Smith, Boyer, Green, and Downs, 4; Ronewoit, Fisher, Dingens, Rafferty, Tabor, Huber, Staub, Harlow, and Franklin, 3; Boyer, 2. Marsh won first money, Smith second.

WARD TO BOGARDUS.

Toronto, June 20, 1876.

EDITORS TURF, FIELD AND FARM.—I read in your last issue that Bogardus has barred me from shooting in the Tournament at Philadelphia. My reply to Bogardus is, that he does not want to shoot against me; not because he could not get the stakes, but he well knows he might have to lower his colors. Now, as he is the champion shot of the world, I will name a match to shoot against him which would require more skill to make a good score than any match he has ever shot before. I hold the champion sterling silver cup of Canada for single and double bird shooting. I held it for one year against all comers. The weight of the cup is 75 ounces. I will put that up against the same amount of Bogardus' prizes and shoot, and let the winner take the lot, and I will bet him $100 that I win the match. If gate money is charged the winner to take it. Each to shoot at twenty-five pair of double rises marsh or rice birds and twenty-five pair of wild pigeons each, all from ground traps, twenty-one yards rise; the two traps to be placed ten yards apart; one ounce and quarter shot. Excepting this agreement, the match to be governed by the new rules of Canada for pigeon shooting. I will shoot the match any time by receiving four weeks' notice through your paper. The match to be shot at Buffalo, N.Y. The Editor of Turf, Field and Farm to name a referee and be stakeholder, or Bogardus may name any good man in Buffalo as stakeholder. The value of the prizes that Bogardus puts up against my cup he can get any responsible jeweller in Buffalo to decide, so as to make it about equal. I will furnish all the small birds free for the match, Bogardus to furnish all the wild pigeons, and I will allow him thirty cents each for all I shoot at. Now, Bogardus, instead of shooting at glass balls with shot, when I can break forty out of fifty for money in the air with a rifle ball, make this match, and if you beat me I will forever hold my peace.

JAMES WARD, Champion Shot of Canada.

SHOOTING AT KENPTVILLE.

A pigeon shooting match took place at Kemptville, on the morning of the 27th, between Mr. F. Jones and Mr. R. Kerr, at eight birds each, twenty-one yards rise. The shooting of either party was not what might be called first class. Messrs. John Kidson and A. Kennedy were umpires, and Mr. Geo. Taylor, referee. The following is the score:— R Kerr..... 1 1 0 0 1 1 1—5 F Jones..... 0 1 0 0 0 0 0—1

A quiet pigeon shoot took place on the farm of Mr. William Read, near the new city, on Friday afternoon, in which a number of sporting gentlemen from St. Catharines were the participants. They brought down with them 152 wild pigeons, and each man had ten shots. They claim to have bagged 140 out of the 152, which may be considered pretty good shooting.

NOMENCLATURE.

BONNIE BIRD.—The name of Bonnie Bird is claimed for the bay filly, white hind feet, foaled April 21, 1876, by Judge Curtis (Gen. Duke), dam Bonnie Brae, by imported Balrownie; 2nd dam Pasta, by Revenue; 3rd dam Emily Thomas, by imported Priam; 4th dam Nancy Norman, by Tom Tough; 5th dam by imported Sir Harry; 6th dam by imported Spread Eagle.—MAJOR LAYS, London, Ont.

SALE OF JULIUS CESAR.—This colt, the second in the Guineas and third in the Derby, has been sold by Mr. R. Peck, his owner and trainer, to Mr. Thomas Geo, for $25,000; an offer of $30,000 failed to buy Forerunner, his stable companion. Julius Cesar will remain in Mr. Peck's hands at Busby.

GENERAL.

Mr. G. F. Rowe concluded his engagement at the Academy of Music, Montreal, on Saturday evening, and was followed by Miss Lucille Weston on Monday night for one week in a round of her popular characters. She opened in East Lynn, and created quite a favorable impression in the dual part. During her engagement she will appear as The Child Stealer.

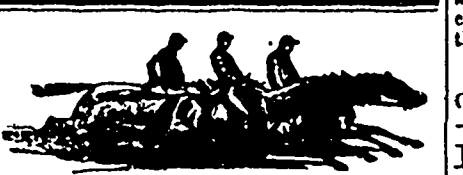

The Shaugran company paid a flying visit to Ottawa last week and presented to their admirers there a programme consisting of three small pieces—Faint Heart never Won Fair Lady; Simpson & Co., and Turu Him Out. Mr. Felix J. Morris created a favorable impression in the farce.

Our St. Catharines correspondent says that Cole's Hippodrome gave a very fine show in that town—or city.

Prof. Linder, the mind reader, is in London.

Van Amburgh's Circus and Menagerie is being largely billed in the eastern towns.

Horse Notes.

CRIBBING HORSES.—A correspondent in the Country Gentleman recommends nailing a sheepskin with the wool on, upon the manger when the horse is in the habit of taking hold, as a remedy for this habit.

A COUNT TO SHANTY.—Shanty, by Selim, the famous trotting gelding, met with a serious, if not fatal, accident, at Logau in Woodford County, week before last. Shanty had received some injury on one ankle during his tour East, last fall, and was being thrown by halters to be operated upon by Dr. Herr, and in the fall his thigh was broken.

A horse which was lately shipped from Pittsfield for Boston got frightened in the car, broke his halter, and jumped out of the door, which was open, the train going at full speed. Strange to say, he was uninjured, but bumped up and ran a couple of miles.

SALE OF MARMADUKE.—Mr. O. J. Dimock, of Rock Island, Ill., sold on June 5th, to Mr. W. C. Duncan, of Detroit, his fine trotting stallion Marmaduke. This horse has shown great speed, and the purchase price was undoubtedly a long one. To guard against accident, Mr. Duncan chartered a car especially furnished for the transportation of his purchase. Marmaduke was sired by Bashaw Ducey, and can trot in 2:20.

The one thousand dollars which was reserved by the Cleveland Club for future disposition at the time the programme was gotten up has been placed as follows: On Tuesday, the first day of the meeting, $500 will be given for a running race of mile heats, and on Friday, the fourth and last day of the gathering, there will be another running race, a dash of two miles, for a purse of $500. This is a good disposition to make of the money, as it gives variety to the programme. The Cleveland meeting will commence July 23 and close on the 28th.

The managers of Mystic Park, Boston, rejected $800 worth of conditional entries and nominations that were not stamped previous to the time of closing entry books for the June meeting. One gentleman in Lowell claimed that his entries were mailed in season, and he produced a sworn affidavit of three persons, with the endorsement of the postmaster, to prove the fact. Mr. Hicks communicated with the secretary of the Board of Appeals, and the decision was that the rule regulating the closing of entries was very explicit. It is not only necessary that the stamp-date must indicate that the entry was mailed before the closing of the books, but also that telegrams announcing entries must be sent before the hour of closing.

DEATH OF BLARNEY STONE.—The chestnut stallion Blarney Stone, by Rhyndyue, dam Roxana, by imp. Chesterfield; 2nd dam Levita, by imp. Trauby, &c., died recently at the farm of Dr. Howard, near Fulton, Mo., aged 10 years. He had previously been severely kicked while serving a mare, and died from the effects of the injury then received. Blarney Stone was a capital racer in his day, and as a stallion is the sire of some very promising youngsters. A remarkable feature connected with the history of this horse is the fact that he was one of the only two foals got by his sire, Rhyndyue; Root, out of Cottage Girl, by imp. Ainderby, foaled the same year, being the other.

LADY RIDERS THROWS.—During the hurdle races at Belmont Park, Philadelphia, in which Miss Rich and the four sisters, Misses Cook, engaged, a fearful scene occurred that was announced on the bills. The five mustangs sprang over all the hurdles almost neck and neck, and after the last one was passed two of the animals got beyond the control of the riders. The mustang ridden by Miss Mabel Cook dashed around the track at a fearful speed, and when near the half-mile pole she was thrown to the ground. Miss Rich maintained her position and passed over the hurdles the second time, but was thrown when opposite the grand stand. Intense excitement attended this scene; but the audience, being informed that neither of the young ladies was injured, responded with applause. Presently the impatient riders appeared in a carriage before the grand stand, and were apparently not the least nervous from the "hair-breadth scrape."

DEATH OF AN EQUINE VETERAN.—In the Spring of 1844 Mr. James F. Stewart, living at Greene Township, Clark County, Ohio, purchased a dark, dappled dun colt, four years old, marked with black points, of fine form and action, rather stylish in appearance, very spirited, yet of a docile disposition. In speed, strength and endurance "Doc" had few equals, but his breeding was unfortunately enveloped in obscurity. Mr. Stewart soon discovered that he had got possession of a valuable animal, and for over twenty-five years he became his inseparable companion and friend. During all of this period Doc was never sick an hour;

We have frequently had occasion to point out in these columns the bad effects resulting from the changing of names, one of which is that an animal may be recorded in the Stud Book under one name (the legitimate one), the index referring to the horse and his pedigree, but the name having been subsequently changed, the search for him under his now name will be in vain. Great confusion must then arise, unless the compiler goes to the expense of publishing an appendix exclusively for altered names. Instances are frequent, also, wherein frauds have been successfully perpetrated through the changing of names. The habit has become chronic and must be checked before it becomes too widespread. Some of the jockey clubs are considering the propriety of excluding all entries of horses the names of which have been changed after having duly claimed. This course would go far to remedy the evil, and we sincerely trust the move will be made by all the clubs.

WAKING UP THE WRONG PASSENGER.

The following extract from an article which appeared in The Brooklyn Eagle of June 12 shows that the skill in the case of nature's weapons early acquired by that gentlemanly expounder of the P.R., and present expounder of the law, Edmund Enoch Price, whose office is in The Clipper Building, has not been lost to him; and that such is the case the persons who were annoyed by the conduct of the hoodlums below alluded to are doubtless very thankful:

"In one of the open cars from Coney Island last evening, where Mr. Price occupied a seat, were a number of young fellows from South Brooklyn, who were just far enough affected by the fumes of the beer they had imbibed to feel ugly. They annoyed the other passengers by their rude jests, coarse songs, and generally disgraceful conduct. The railroad employes made no effort to quiet them, and as the train neared the city the disorderly individuals grew bolder, going so far as to use the most insulting language to those who sat near them. Their conduct finally became so outrageous that Price, who was seated in the next row, remonstrated with them, using such expressions as he thought would serve to pacify them. They turned upon him fiercely, with curses and jeers; used language of the most profane and obscene description, applied many offensive epithets to him, and concluded by threatening to punish him when the cars stopped. Price made up his mind that it would be useless to waste words on them, and he quietly sank back in his seat and awaited developments. When the train drew into the depot at Twentieth street, the gang sprang to the ground, and as Price stepped from the car one of the men attempted to strike him in the face. That they were mistaken in their man they were soon fully convinced, for the lawyer laid about him quite lustily, and the assailants soon began to see myriads of stars under the forcible arguments presented by the clenched fists of the man who knew how to use them so well. After Price had knocked several of the attacking party down, they were about retiring from the contest, when Roundsmen Doyle arrived and arrested two of them, and took them with Price to the station-house. The statements of passengers showed that Price had acted very properly in the matter, and he was, therefore, not placed under arrest. The two men whom the officer captured gave their names as H. P. McDonald and William O. Newman. Price refused to make a complaint against them. They had black eyes and bloody noses; and Captain Mackellar, thinking they had received sufficient punishment, discharged them from custody."

DOMINION RIFLE ASSOCIATION.

A meeting of the Executive Committee of the Dominion Rifle Association took place on 21st, in the Western Departmental Building, Ottawa, to arrange the programme for the annual competition, which will take place in that city on the 5th September next.

The following members of the Council were present:—Col. Gzowski, President D. R. A., Toronto; Lieut. Col. Jackson, D. A. G., Brockville; Lieut. Col. Fletcher, C. M. G., D. A. G., Montreal; and Lieut. Col. Brunel, Ross, Macpherson, Stuart, Major Macdonald and Captain Tilton, Ottawa.

The Association intend offering a Canadian trophy to be competed for annually at the National Rifle Meeting, Wimbledon. The team from Canada will leave about the 24th inst., for England. The programme of matches at the annual meeting here will differ little from that of last year. The prizes will be varied some, however, but will in the aggregate amount to the same sum as last year.

...of conditional entries and ... that were not stamped previous ... time of closing entry books for the ... meeting. One gentleman in Lowell ... that his entries were mailed in season, and he produced a sworn affidavit of three persons, with the endorsement of the postmaster, to prove the fact. Mr. Hicks communicated with the secretary of the Board of Appeals, and the decision was that the rule regulating the closing of entries was very explicit. It is not only necessary that the stamp date must indicate that the entry was mailed before the closing of the books, but also that telegrams announcing entries must be sent before the hour of closing.

DEATH OF BLARNEY STONE.—The chestnut stallion Blarney Stone, by Rhyndyne, dam Roxana, by imp. Chestersfield; 2nd dam L. vta, by imp. Tranby, &c., died recently at the farm of Dr. Howard, near Fulton, Mo., aged 10 years. He had previously been severely kicked while serving a mare, and died from the effects of the injury then received. Blarney Stone was a capital racer in his day, and as a stallion is the sire of some very promising youngsters. A remarkable feature connected with the history of this horse is the fact that he was one of the only two foals got by his sire, Rhyndyne; Rest, out of Cottage Girl, by imp. Ainderby, foaled the same year, being the other.

LADY RIDERS THROWN.—During the hurdle races at Belmont Park, Philadelphia, in which Miss Rich and the four sisters, Misses Cook, engaged, a fearful scene occurred that was announced on the bills. The five mustangs sprang over all the hurdles almost neck and neck, and after the last one was passed two of the animals got beyond the control of the riders. The mustang ridden by Miss Mabel Cook dashed around the track at a fearful speed, and when near the half-mile pole she was thrown to the ground. Miss Rich maintained her position and passed over the hurdles the second time, but was thrown when opposite the grand stand. Intense excitement attended this scene, but the audience, being informed that neither of the young ladies was injured, responded with applause. Presently the intrepid riders appeared in a carriage before the grand stand, and were apparently not the least nervous from the "hair-breadth escape."

DEATH OF AN EQUINE VETERAN.—In the Spring of 1844 Mr. James F. Stewart, living at Greene Township, Clark County, Ohio, purchased a dark, dappled dun colt, four years old, marked with black points, of fine form and action, rather stylish in appearance, very spirited, yet of a docile disposition. In speed, strength and endurance "Doc" had few equals, but his breeding was unfortunately enveloped in obscurity. Mr. Stewart soon discovered that he had got possession of a valuable animal, and for over twenty-five years he became his inseparable companion and friend. During all of this long period Doc was never sick an hour; never missed a feed, and never had a puff on his hump or a blemish of any kind about him up to a few years back, when he was honorably retired from all work, left to roam at his leisure in rich pasture fields, and to occupy a roomy box stall in his master's stable. Old age crept on apace, and the faithful old Doc at length succumbed to the destroyer. On Thursday, the 1st inst., death came to his relief, in his thirty-seventh year. He calmly resigned his long lease of a useful and honorable life, and, with a parting look of affection upon his friend and master, gave up his "spirit." Peaceful to the rest of the noble old Doc, and all honor to the kindly heart of the master who cherished him in his prime, and tenderly cared for him in his declining years.

SALE OF LIZZIE R.—Mr. Charles Reed has purchased the gray filly Lizzie R., 4 years old, by Aster, dam Fairy. Mr. Reed has also changed her name to Grey Nun, why or wherefore no one can tell. He seems to have the faculty of changing the names of all horses which come into his possession. He has purchased four horses within as many months, and changed their names at once. Minstrel changed to Point Blank; Grey Steel to Grey Friar; Satinella, to Herminone, and now Lizzie R., to Grey Nun.

The disorderly individuals grew bold, going so far as to use the most insulting language to those who sat near them. Their conduct finally became so outrageous that Price, who was seated in the next row, remonstrated with them, using such expressions as he thought would serve to pacify them. They turned upon him fiercely, with curses and jeers; used language of the most profane and obscene description, applied many offensive epithets to him, and concluded by threatening to punish him when the cars stopped. Price made up his mind that it would be useless to waste words on them, and he quietly sank back in his seat and awaited developments. When the train drew into the depot at Twentieth street, the gang sprang to the ground, and as Price stepped from the car one of the men attempted to strike him in the face. That they were mistaken in their man they were soon fully convinced, for the lawyer laid about him quite lustily, and the assailants soon began to see myriads of stars under the forcible arguments presented by the clenched fists of the man who knew how to use them so well. After Price had knocked several of the attacking party down, they were about retiring from the contest, when Roundsmen Doyle arrived and arrested two of them, and took them with Price to the station-house. The statements of passengers showed that Price had acted very properly in the matter, and he was, therefore, not placed under arrest. The two men whom the officer captured gave their names as H. P. McDonald and William O. Newman. Price refused to make a complaint against them. They had black eyes and bloody noses, and Captain MacKellar, thinking they had received sufficient punishment, discharged them from custody."

DOMINION RIFLE ASSOCIATION.

A meeting of the Executive Committee of the Dominion Rifle Association took place on 21st, in the Western Departmental Building, Ottawa, to arrange the programme for the annual competition, which will take place in that city on the 5th September next.

The following members of the Council were present:—Col. Gzowski, President D. R. A., Toronto; Lieut. Col. Jackson, D. A. G., Brockville; Lieut. Col. Fletcher, C. M. G., D. A. G., Montreal; and Lieut. Cols. Brunel, Ross, Macpherson, Stuart, Major Macdonald and Captain Tilton, Ottawa.

The Association intend offering a Canadian trophy to be competed for annually at the National Rifle Meeting, Wimbledon. The team from Canada will leave about the 24th inst., for England. The programme of matches at the annual meeting here will differ little from that of last year. The prizes will be varied some, however, but will in the aggregate amount to the same sum as last year.

The Picton Times is authority for the statement that a white fish weighing 13½ lbs was caught by the fishermen at Point Traverse last week.

The steamship Texas, of the Dominion Line, is having pens for 40 head of cattle fitted up, to be shipped to England from Western Ontario.

A Big Fish.—A monstrous sturgeon was brought into Ottawa from Duchesne, which measured 5 feet 8 inches in length and weighed 64 pounds. It had got amongst rocks in rather shallow water, and found difficulty in escaping, when it was espied by a Frenchman, who attempted to pull it out. He had to summon another party to his assistance, and between them they brought the monster ashore, the second party purchasing the Frenchman's half, and bringing his prize to the city.

Athletic.

At a large meeting of law students and members of the legal profession, held last week, it was decided to organize an association for the purpose of encouraging athletics and other outdoor sports.

Will make the season of 1876, at the Thames Valley Stock Farm, one mile north of the town of St. Mary's, Ont. Terms, $25 to insure. Good pasturage and care of mares, but all accidents and escapes at owner's risk.

BASHAW ABDALLAH is a jet black, flowing mane and tail, 15-3; weighs 1,150 lbs., with fine trotting action, good carriage, kind disposition, and great development of muscle. He was sired by Freehold Bashaw, of New Jersey (record of 2:36), he by old Black Bashaw, he by Young Bashaw, and he by the Arabian horse Grand Bashaw. Bashaw Abdallah's dam was Mary Tracy, by New York Rattler, he by Old Abdallah, he by Mambrino, by imported Messenger. Rattler is a half-brother to Rysdyk's Hamble-

THE THOROUGHBRED STALLION
HYDER ALI,

Will make the season of 1876 at Toronto, Cooksville, Oakville, Bronte, Wellington Square, and Hamilton, for a limited number of mares. His book is now open.

Description—Hyder Ali is a beautiful bay, about 16 hands, foaled in 1872, sired by imp. Leamington, dam Lady Duke, by Lexington; 2nd dam, Magdalen by Medoc; 3rd dam, Kepp's dam by Sumpter; 4th dam, by Lewis' Eclipse; 5th dam, Maria by Craig's Alfred; 6th dam, by Tayloe's Bellair; 7th dam, by imp. Medley, &c. (See American Stud Book, vol. I. p. 606, vol. II. p. 4). Leamington by Faugh-a-Ballagh (winner of the St. Leger in 1844), dam by Pantaloon.

It is unnecessary to enlarge on the high breeding of Hyder Ali, as the above pedigree, combining the two most fashionable strains in America—Lexington and Leamington—speaks for itself.

Hyder Ali was considered the crack two and three-year-old of his years as a racehorse.

TERMS—To insure, thoroughbreds, $40; other mares, $25.

By Hambletonian, out of Lady Duke, by Lexington, will make the season of 1876, at the proprietor's stables.

$100 TO INSURE,
$25 to be paid at time of service.

Rysdyk, the "Stud King" of the Stock Farm, is the best bred trotting stallion in America, embracing the best possible cross of Rysdyk's Hambletonian, the highest type of the trotting horse with Lexington, the perfection of the thoroughbred; the unequalled staying qualities of the latter added to the purely gaited trotting action of the former.

Mares kept at moderate charge and well cared for. All accidents and escapes at owner's risk. Communications by letter or telegraph cheerfully attended to by addressing the proprietor or superintendent, H. W. Brown. Mares not proving in foal can be returned next season free of charge. 239-nm

Chestnut Hill,

$15 to be paid at time of service.

For durability, stamina, and gameness, this stallion has no superior. His famous sire, Thomas Jefferson, the Black Whirlwind of the East, is one of the fastest trotting stallions in America, having secured for himself in public trial a record of 3:22, winning the stallion purse at the great Buffalo meeting of 1874.

STORMONT
STOCK FARM
CORNWALL ONT.
RINGWOOD,

Got by Edward Everett; 1st dam by Long Island Black Hawk; 2nd dam by American Star, will stand during the season of 1876, at the Stormont Stock Farm, one mile east of the Town of Cornwall.

Ringwood is, in color, golden chestnut; stands 15½ hands high, and weighs 1,170 lbs. He is a horse of grand presence, of more style, head and tail, than any horse in the country. With his perfect, regular, machine-like action, his wonderful speed, power and substance, and his rare combination, in the closest and most direct lines, of the blood of the three greatest trotting families on the turf, the ABDALLAHS, BASHAWS, and STARS, he is the most desirable horse to breed from in Canada, and not surpassed by any trotting stallion in America. From the appearance of his colts and fillies of 1874 and 1875 (his first get were dropped in 1874), they have his fine size, form and color, it is fair to infer that he will transmit to his stock his own great qualities, the great qualities of style, speed and game that distinguish his Royal ancestry, and place them on the roll of fame, high above all other families of trotters.

Directly descended through his sire, Edward Everett, by Rysdyk's Hambletonian (by Abdallah by Mambrino), from imp. MESSENGER; through his dam, by Long Island Black Hawk (by Andrew Jackson, by Young Bashaw), from imp. ARABIAN GRAND BASHAW; and through his grand dam, by Seely's American Star (by American Star by Duroc), from imp. DIXIE, he is more closely and immediately allied to the great trotting wonders of America, with the exception of Walkhill Chief, Ajax, and Artemus, full brothers, and of Socrates and Norwood, full brothers, than any other horse now at the stud, that we know of, either in Canada or in the United States. Add to this the Royal blood of imported Margrave, deeply inbred to the great Henon, derived through the dam of his sire, and you have a combination of the lightest and purest types that may be equalled possibly, but cannot be excelled by that of any trotting sire in the world. AND BLOOD WILL TELL!!

TERMS—$30 the season, payable 1st Sept. next, or if preferred, $50 to insure. Season will end 31st July.

All mares owned out of the Counties of Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry, must be paid for at the time of service or before removal.

Mares will be pastured or stabled carefully, and fed grain, as the owners may desire, at the most reasonable rates. Every care will be taken of mares, but all accidents and escapes must be at the risk of their owners.

Mares from a distance will be met at the steamer or cars and taken to and from the farm, free of expense, by a careful man. Send for tabulated pedigrees.

All letters to be addressed,

A MAGNIFICENT PRESENT!

The proprietors of the SPORTING TIMES have much pleasure in announcing to their patrons that they have made arrangements to present a magnificent horse picture to their advance paying subscribers for the year 1876-7. Realizing the importance of this undertaking, and being determined to offer our subscribers a picture that should in itself be worthy of the paper it represents, and which should be treasured as a work of art; after culling over the finest productions of the American press, we selected the beautiful chromo of GOLDSMITH'S MARE, printed in nine colors and innumerable shades, size 18 1/2 by 24 inches, believing, as our friends will when they see it, that it is the finest horse picture ever published in America. It is not to be confounded with the miserable pictures hawked around the country by some journals, but is really a work of high art and intrinsically of more value than we receive for our yearly subscription. She is represented standing in a box stall striped, and in this position the picture, from which the chromo is reproduced, was painted by one of the first artists in the profession in America. When varnished and mounted it is impossible to distinguish between the chromo and a very fine oil painting. It is a work of art worthy of a place in the finest collections in the country, and what adds to its value it is the only correct likeness of GOLDSMITH'S MARE ever published. As a memento of the most remarkable trotting equine in the world, shortly to be relegated from the turf, it will be treasured by every horseman in the country, more especially by those who have seen the little mare in any of her races. This picture was sold by subscription only a few months ago for $5 a piece, and copies of it were in great demand. We expect in this liberal gift to more than double our subscription list in the next three months, and if our friends who receive the picture will only show it to their acquaintances and inform them how they may get a copy, we are sure our anticipations will be realized. The picture can be procured in no other way; we do not sell it; and only give it to those who remit Yearly in advance for the SPORTING TIMES.

A MAGNIFICENT PRESENT!

The proprietors of the SPORTING TIMES have much pleasure in announcing to their patrons that they have made arrangements to present a magnificent horse picture to their advance paying subscribers for the year 1876-7. Realizing the importance of this undertaking, and being determined to offer our subscribers a picture that should in itself be worthy of the paper it represents, and which should be treasured as a work of art; after culling over the finest productions of the American press, we selected the beautiful chromo of GOLDSMITH MAID, printed in nine colors and innumerable shades, size 18 1/2 by 24 inches, believing, as our friends will when they see it, that it is the finest horse picture ever published in America. It is not to be confounded with the miserable pictures hawked around the country by some journals, but is really a work of high art and intrinsically of more value than we receive for our yearly subscription. She is represented standing in a box stall stripped, and in this position the picture, from which the chromo is reproduced, was painted by one of the first artists in the profession in America. When varnished and mounted it is impossible to distinguish between the chromo and a very fine oil-painting. It is a work of art worthy of a place in the finest collections in the country, and what adds to its value is the only correct likeness of GOLDSMITH MAID ever published. As a memento of the most remarkable trotting equine in the world, shortly to be relegated from the turf, it will be treasured by every horseman in the country, more especially by those who have seen the little mare in any of her races. This picture was sold by subscription only a few months ago for $5 a piece, and copies of it were in great demand. We expect in this liberal gift to more than double our subscription list in the next three months, and if our friends who receive the picture will only show it to their acquaintances and inform them how they may get a copy, we are sure our anticipations will be realized. The picture can be procured in no other way; we do not sell it; and only give it to those who remit Yearly in advance for the SPORTING TIMES.

To meet the wishes of a number of our patrons who might desire the picture of a horse in action in preference to a still one like our Chromo of GOLDSMITH MAID, as a premium, we have selected the next most remarkable trotting celebrity in the world in her greatest race. We refer to LULA at Rochester, N. Y., October 14th, 1875, in her now noted match against Time. The picture is 22 1/2 by 28 inches, being larger than that of THE MAID, and is a fine specimen of the pictorial art. It is not claimed to possess the high artistic value of the latter, but still on account of being larger and in action, with a portrait of Mr. Chas. Green, the driver of LULA, and a view of the Rochester, N. Y., Driving Park, Judges' Stand, &c., the stables, &c., being seen in the distance, might be preferred by many to the other. We desire to accommodate our patrons to the fullest extent. All advance paying subscribers for the year 1876-7, and none others, are entitled to their choice of those pictures.

All communications and telegrams must be pre-paid.
