Disgrace

(Times Special Correspondence)

London, Jan. 15.—P. Amarty Talbot, a famous and plucky British district commissioner in Southern Nigeria, surely must bear a charmed life, or else, as some of the natives believe, be under the special protection of a powerful juju, for he is back in England again, safe and sound, with the exception of an old "football-knee" that has required expert medical attention, in spite of twenty or more deliberate and ingenious attempts to kill him in the strange land of which he is overlord. Meanwhile he proves to have had a lot more adventures, and made a lot more discoveries than those which already stand to his credit.

Mr. Talbot, who is thirty-six and still looks the mighty football player that he used to be, now in charge of the Eket District of Southern Nigeria where he has to keep something like a quarter of a million natives, many of whose towns had never been seen by white man until Mr. Talbot first visited them, in something like order, with only fourteen native policemen to help him.

This region is one of those which were drawn on most heavily to supply slaves for the United States, and the Ibibios, who inhabit it are said to be the most expert poisoners on earth, as well as expert magicians, torturers and the practitioners of perhaps the most hideous blood rites known in Africa. They value human life, apparently, about as highly as we do that of the fly and until comparatively recently offered up some hundreds of their own children to appease their great juju deities.

Three Yams for Murder
In the Eket district the professional rate for committing a murder is three yams, a tuber much like a giant potato—though one man who was brought before Mr. Talbot charged with killing somebody at the instance of a chief, was proved to have been stuck out for four yams before he would take on the job. On being assured of the higher remuneration (which in this case meant about twelve yams) he invited his predestined victim to go hunting with him. This invitation was accepted, and the pair were about to enter the thick bush, the proposer of the excursion politely made way for his guest to enter first, and when he did so, shot him dead.

Since they are in Eket, ten months ago, Mr. Talbot and his plucky wife and her sister, who accompany him on all his travels, have been exploring almost constantly and have covered something like 4,800 miles. Risking their lives at nearly every turn, they have seen sights such as no white person ever has seen before, and some of their discoveries have caused real excitement among British scientists.

"Some theatrical folk think themselves in hard luck," said the explorer, dryly, "if they rehearse a few weeks without pay, and then find themselves figuring in a short-lived frost." This is why the imitators never get very far.

In 1902, Mrs. Eugene Her, King street, Truro, N. S., wrote as follows: "From an infant one of my children was troubled with bronchitis, and the least cold would aggravate the trouble. We could not get anything to help him, and were often greatly alarmed. Hearing of Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine we used it, and are glad to state that it effected a complete cure. If any of the children take a cold or cough I give this medicine, and have never known it to fail to bring relief."

Mrs. Her now writes that she has since proven this medicine to be the best for whooping cough, and would not be without it in the house.

"mortal" which is used may have a false bottom, and the baby not injured at all, but it is difficult to resist an uneasy suspicion that a second baby, obtained in some fashion, is substituted for the first one and actually beaten up, and then the first child made to reappear.

Fearful Tortures

Throughout his new domain, the District Commissioner apparently is loved and hated with equal fervor. Those who esteem him include many native women whom he has saved from death or torture at the hand of chiefs who have better-halves to spare, and who are adepts at the refinements of torture. Sometimes they impale their victims, frequently they leave them to be devoured by ants, occasionally they break both thighs of their own children in order to cause grief to the mothers, and, in milder cases, fill their wives' eyes with pepper and anoint them nearly to death. Others who have reason to be kindly disposed to Mr. Talbot are those he has saved from being sacrificed to the various gods, and it is to the gratitude of these rescued wives and natives that the commissioner in turn, frequently has owed his escape from death.

Twice elaborate plans have been made to shoot Mr. Talbot from behind ambushes. Attempts to poison him literally have been legion. Not long before his departure for Europe, the commissioner was warned by a grateful native that one of his most trusted servants who had been bribed to poison him some months before had refused to do this, but had agreed to do so on his last day at Eket, and the informer indicated where the poison was kept.

"Many of these professional native poisoners wear the nail of their third finger of their left hand and always carry a little poison therein. On account of the all-prevailing dread of being made away with in this fashion, it always is etiquette in Eket for a host to drink first, but if he has designs on his guest it is quite easy for him to drink first and then, as he passes the loving cup along, to dip his third finger into it, and the trick is done."

Asked how, with only a handful of native policemen to assist him, he managed to govern these hundreds of thousands of savage natives, Mr. Talbot replied, "By white prestige, in other words, sheer bluff! In case of need, there are native troops to be had from Calabar, three days away, and the Ibibios know this. Thanks to my escape from various hot corners, however—as when I passed, a full day before I was expected, an ambushade that would have blown me to bits, and another time when I whizzed by on my motor-cycle, with my wife in the side-car, before the intending murderers could take aim—the natives generally take I have a powerful juju watching over me, and this belief of their often stands me well in hand."

Twins a Disgrace
To be the father of twins, Mr. Talbot states, is considered a disgrace in his region, in spite of the fact that large families are a national ideal. One of a pair of twins, the natives think, must be a devil's child, and outside of the sphere of British influence both infants generally are killed at birth. The husband then forsakes the wife, and she must spend at least a year in a "twintown," isolated with other women in like case, and take part in "purifying rites," after which she may possibly be permitted to rejoin her appeased lord.

CHILD HAD BRONCHITIS

Once people get acquainted with the wonderful cough which Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine exerts over bronchitis, whooping cough, croup and colds it is not easy to persuade them that anything else is "just as good." This is why the imitators never get very far.

In 1902, Mrs. Eugene Her, King street, Truro, N. S., wrote as follows: "From an infant one of my children was troubled with bronchitis, and the least cold would aggravate the trouble. We could not get anything to help him, and were often greatly alarmed. Hearing of Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine as treatment for bronchitis, we used it, and are glad to state that it effected a complete cure. If any of the children take a cold or cough I give this medicine, and have never known it to fail to bring relief."

Mrs. Her now writes that she has since proven this medicine to be the best for whooping cough, and would not be without it in the house.

ROMANCE IN SOCIETY LIFE

The Love Story of the Popular
Earl and Countess of Dalhousie

(London Saturday Journal.)

Few people in society are more liked and envied than the handsome, wealthy Earl of Dalhousie and his charming countess, yet few people have attained to happiness by paths more strewn with thorns and sorrows. Tragedy of a very poignant character marked the youth of each; tragedy which threatened, in her case, wholly to blight and blast her life; tragedy, which in his case, left him, at just the present age of the little son, her heart-broken orphan. Fate, whose decrees are ever inscrutable, never moved by more mysterious courses than to the accomplishment of the felicity of this now happily wedded pair.

Lady Dalhousie is the youngest daughter of the late Earl of Ancaster. Her mother was a very lovely woman, and she, the Hon. Mary Adelaide, the youngest child, inherited all her mother's charms. While she was a heart-broken orphan, a romping beauty of the school-room, there came to her parents' country house a young nobleman, Viscount Molyneux, heir to the Seton earldom. He fell desperately in love with her, and obtained her parents' permission to pay his addresses to her.

By the time she was seventeen all the world knew that the young people were affianced, and that to the house of Heathcote-Drummond-Wiloughby, rich in hereditary distinctions—the Earl being Joint Hereditary Great Chamberlain of England, would be added the wealth of the Molyneuxs. In due course, would own half Liverpool. Such at any rate, was the prospect. But before the wedding could take place there came a sinister bolt from a clear sky.

The Bridegroom Elect
Lord Molyneux, like all the members of his house, was an ardent lover of manly, open-air exercises. One day, soon after his engagement, he was enjoying the ride of a wild gallop, when his horse suddenly seemed to crumple up under him. The rider was flung with fearful violence to the ground, and he picked up senseless. His fine constitution at first appeared likely to pull him through. He seemed to recover, and all hoped that nothing worse than the effect of a shaking would have to be combated. But by and by it became manifest that a deep-seated injury had been done to the brain, and the bridegroom-elect became a hopeless invalid. In that one moment of terrible violence reason was assailed, and she never regained her throne.

It was a pathetic position. Here was the happy, generous, and young bride, betrothed to one of the loveliest girls in England, a chronic invalid, unable even to recognize his bride-elect, as helpless and dependent upon others as an invalid child. With merciful justice, the parents on both sides quietly declared that the young bride was to be withdrawn from the world to nourish her grief with the peace of a secluded life. But she remained in, though not of, the world, loyal and steadfast to the unconscious sufferer to whom she had pledged her troth.

Princely Revenue
The fresh young beauty of the school-room, the despair of a hundred hearts, but she looked neither to right nor left; her affections were centred with magnificent devotion upon the unhappy young man stricken in that shadowed sick-room. The Earl of Seton died, and the young invalid succeeded, without knowing it, to his princely revenues. His brother, the present Earl, was installed, with his young bride, as owner, with an allowance of £8,000 a year.

All the skill of medical science that the affection of the mother and brother-in-law could command was summoned to his aid, and after some years a surprising thing happened. The invalid rallied. Reason was making its last effort to regain her lost stronghold, and seemed destined to conquer. The younger brother, with noble disregard of his own interests, was delighted at the prospect, and made preparations for the immediate surrender of the ancestral home to his elder brother.

But it all proved a false hope. The injury was found to be too terrible. The return of reason to the tortured brain was barred by nature, too sadly formidable, and at last the injured man was released from suffering. The tragic life closed in 1901, when the devoted wife, by her actions, nobly refused to accept her freedom, was three-and-twenty. All unknown to her, descendants.

The Lucky Peer
Now, all the fairies having amiably conspired thus to bring felicity out of tragedy, they must necessarily bequeath to the young couple some relic of their art. And it is there Lord and Lady Dalhousie have in their keeping the famous Coulston Pearl, around which cluster the legends of seven hundred years.

Nearly seven centuries ago Hugo de Gifford, lord of Yester Castle, lived and flourished, as the result, his descendants were named by Satan, from whom he derived all manner of wizardry, so that he was known as the Warlock (a magician) of Gifford. The Warlock was the happy father of a daughter, and at her marriage he plucked a pearl, and gave it to her as dowry, decreeing that so long as the fruit remained intact the posterity of the young couple should prosper.

The present owners respect the Warlock's stipulations; they at least will not brave an age-old tradition by emulating the temerity of the first mother of us all. The Coulston Pearl is in safe keeping today with Lord and Lady Dalhousie.

PEPS

They had been leading, by parallel paths, another sorrow-darkened life to meet her own. The man who was to die and gain her love had been passing through the scorching fires of affliction.

Died of a Broken Heart
The late Earl and Countess of Dalhousie were an intensely devoted couple. Like their successors, they were both favorites of royalty. He was a lord-in-waiting to the ground, and equerry to her son, the late Duke of Edinburgh. They were spared once too often from royal service, and together took a long and, as it proved, their last sea voyage. On the way back Lady Dalhousie was suddenly seized with enteric fever, and died almost before her death occurred at sea, less than ten years after marriage.

Doctors tell us that broken hearts do not kill, but a broken heart killed the thirteenth Earl of Dalhousie. He was perfectly well when his wife died, but so intense and overwhelming was his grief that in a few hours he lay dead beside her. Thus, in the course of a single day the five little sons of the home were bereaved of both parents. The eldest boy, the present Lord Dalhousie, was only nine years of age at the time; the youngest members of the little family were twins, the sons of two years, one of whom was destined, soon after his eldest brother's marriage, to meet a melancholy end at sea, where both his parents had perished.

The Orphaned Nobleman
So at nine years of age the then Lord Ramsay became Earl of Dalhousie, head of an ancient noble line, whose ancestors were among the foremost in Scotland six centuries ago, so that one of them fought under Bruce and signed the historic letter to the Pope declaring Scotland's independence. The youthful earl became, at the age of the present Lord Ramsay, chief of the Ramsays, and, to a certain extent, guardian of his lesser brothers. But the real fairy godfather of the house was the Hon. Charles Maule Ramsay, M. P., the boy's beloved "Uncle Charlie," who became their second father, and, in due course, a daughter of the new world, their second mother.

The young lord of 188,000 acres and a rent-roll of £40,000 was brought up like his ancestors, not to a life of slothful luxury but to military exercise. The tragic fate of his parents so early bereaved of both parents, and the orphaned nobleman, and tinged his early years with a melancholy which the rigor of a military career was meant by his wise guardian to dispel.

His coming of age was made the occasion by his tenants of a demonstration such as rare old Brechin Castle, his famous seat in Perthshire, has seldom witnessed. At that time his future wife was keeping her sad-eyed vigil in respect of the life whose light she had seen fade into the unending darkness.

They were fated to meet and to wed, for grief to end in gladness, and the happy union made the lovely Mary Adelaide Countess of the fourteenth Earl of Dalhousie.

The Glenwood Ash Chute

No more ashes to carry; no clumsy ash-pan to spill dust or dirt on the kitchen floor.
The GLENWOOD ash chute solves the problem. It is situated just beneath the grate and connected by a sheet iron pipe, straight down through the kitchen floor to the ash barrel in the cellar. No dust can escape—just slide the damper once each day and drop the ashes directly into the ash barrel.

This is only one of the splendid improvements of the plain CABINET GLENWOOD—the range without ornamental or fancy nickel.
At least one-half of all GLENWOODS are sold through the enthusiastic recommendation of a satisfied user.

The Poet Laureate and His Brother

MRS. SHREINER VEXED

The Sale of English Authors Works on This Side of the Atlantic—An Italian Poet Who is 102 Years Old

(Times Special Correspondence)

London, Jan. 7.—Dr. Robert Bridges, England's new Poet Laureate, must be feeling more than a little annoyed just at present. It is not a happy New Year for him, not so far, anyway. To begin with, his first official ode, which dealt with Christmas, has been pretty generally criticized. It is said to have been sent to King George to begin with and to have been published at His Majesty's express wish, because he was so delighted with it, but this has not prevented frank criticism from describing the poem as even worse, if possible, than the famous epic about the "Girls in the Gold Reef City" with which the late Alfred Austin began his career as Laureate.

What must have given even a worse jar to Doctor Bridges, however, is the sudden appearance on the literary scene of his brother, the Rev. John A. Bridges, who, it appears, is also a poet, and who promises to be something of a thorn in the side of his distinguished relative. The Rev. John Bridges, who is described as a "tall, clerical man, with the appearance of an ex-army officer," and who has just contributed some poor political verses to a London newspaper, is, it appears, the Rector of Ruiswick, in Sussex. Incidentally he is the author of three poetic works which have been published—one of them is called "Wet Days" and another "The Lost Parson"—not to mention a volume of "Reminiscences," and he is said to be engaged upon a volume on the land question. Sad to relate, the clerical Bridges is anything but an admirer of the work of a poet of the Laureate Bridges. Nor has the Rev. Mr. Bridges a lofty opinion of Mr. Asquith who appointed his brother to his present high and historic post, for, in his poem, he refers to Mr. Asquith as "poor, foolish!" What sort the reverend gentleman's verses, which is called "The New Year Press," is may be judged by its opening verse, which runs as follows:

A calamitous year has now run to its close; What the next one may bring only Providence knows; Against odds she oft helps honest people to win; So the "Ins" may be out, and the "Outs" may be in.

If this is a fair sample of his muse it does not seem probable that the Rev. Mr. Bridges will succeed his brother as Poet Laureate. It will be annoying to Doctor Bridges, however, if his poetic kinsman comes out with a new composition whenever he himself perpetrates an official lay—something one would say that is quite likely to happen.

Mrs. Olive Schreiner, who wrote "The Story of an African Farm" and who is now in England for reasons connected with her health, is worth about a story that refuses to die, often as she has tried to kill it with contradictions. Published more in the ultra-literary "Westminster Gazette" a few days ago, it is to the effect that George Meredith, as reader for Chapman and Hall, suggested certain changes in "The Story of an African Farm," which she accepted.

"I first denied the truth of that story four years ago," said Mrs. Schreiner to me, "and it is more than annoying to have it circulated again. It is true that I met George Meredith at Chapman and Hall's, but I was an ignorant girl from the African wilds, and his name conveyed nothing to me. His face did, though. It was a fine, noble face and it rather haunted me. Some time later I learned all about him, and heard that he had been reader for my publishers. We never mentioned my book in our brief talk, and I cannot imagine how the incident ever came to be so twisted."

Some time ago I mentioned that Maurice Drake who wrote "Wrack" and "The Salving of a Derelict," was by no means the original author of the story.

DOAN'S KIDNEY PILLS The Original Pill For The Cure of Backache, Lame Back, Weakness Or Any Other Kidney Trouble.

The fact that Doan's Kidney Pills are the original Kidney Pills never patented the placing of other preparations in pill form upon the market, under the name Kidney Pills. It is necessary, therefore, that all wishing to secure the native effects which have made Doan's Kidney Pills so popular everywhere, should see that the trade mark, the apple leaf, appears on the wrapper. About this trade mark you are not getting the genuine Kidney Pills as originally placed before the people by Dr. James Doan, as shown by the following declaration: DOMINION OF CANADA, PROVINCE OF ONTARIO, TO WIT: a matter of Doan's Kidney Pills, I, James Doan, of Kingsville, in the County of Essex, District, do solemnly declare that Doan's Kidney Pills were first manufactured and sold by me on the 14th day of February, A.D., 1885. And I make this solemn declaration conscientiously believing the same to be true, and knowing it is of the same force of effect as if made under oath and by virtue of "The Canada Evidence Act, 1893," declared before me at Kingsville, in the County of Essex, this 27th day of January, A.D., 1896. ession an artist in stained glass and I now find that he designed the memorial window that has just been placed in Westward Ho! church in North Devon, to the memory of the late Cornell Price, M. A., formerly headmaster of the United Service College, at which Rudyard Kipling was a student. Cornell Price was the original of "The Froston Bates," in "Stalky & Co."

Although America has practically stopped buying the work of these three rates, and lower second-rate, English novelists yet the fiction of the better sort of English writers apparently goes stronger than ever across the water. One hears, for example that Mrs. J. H. Skrine (they pronounce it "screen") has just been discovered by an American publisher, and that her "Bedesman 4" is about to be brought out there and later on her just-completed novel, "Billie's Mother." This author, who has only just begun to be well known here, is the wife of Rev. John Huntly Skrine, Doctor of Divinity in the University of Oxford, vicar of the ancient and beautiful church of St. Peter's in the East in that city, and author of various theological works. Mrs. Skrine writes mostly of the Somerset peasants whom she has known and loved since her childhood in a country village. "I have written all my life," she says, "but White Lilly Brand and sold in 10c packages at your grocer's."

RECENT DEATHS Mrs. Eliza Winter, widow of the late Samuel Winter, of Moncton, died in this city at the residence of Mrs. H. Fletcher, 121 St. James street, on Sunday morning while on a visit in this city, where she has been for the last two months, during which time she was taken ill. Her husband, Samuel Winter, who died last June, was in business in Moncton, where he had lived for many years.

Mrs. Winter leaves two nieces, Mrs. Steves, of Moncton, and Mrs. Alfred Pearson, of this city.

Miss Georgina Hannah, a resident of St. Stephen, died in the Evangeline Hospital yesterday, aged twenty-nine years. The body was taken to St. Stephen today.

The death of Horace E. Wannamaker occurred on Saturday at the residence of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harley S. Wannamaker, 47 Elliott Row. He was four years of age.

The Changing Age Girls and boys from 14 to 19 years of age undergo physical changes which tax their strength to the utmost and the strain is always apparent from pale cheeks, colorless lips, and tired bodies—sometimes eruptions of the skin and the utter lack of the ambition and animation with which their younger years were filled.

Budding into womanhood and manhood, with the duties of school or business, demands concentrated nourishment which is readily convertible into red blood corpuscles, energy and strength. The very best thing for this changing age is the medical nutriment in Scott's Emulsion—it possesses the rare blood-making properties of cod liver oil in a predigested form; hypophosphites for the nervous system, with the healing, soothing qualities of pure glycerine.

Its nourishing force promotes assimilation, yields direct returns in abundant, red blood, fills hollow cheeks, tones the nerves, makes all good food do good, and does it in a natural easy manner. The sustaining nutriment in Scott's Emulsion is so helpful to this changing age that it should never be neglected—every druggist has it.

FOR ST. JOSEPH'S UNIVERSITY In the pulpits of the Catholic churches throughout the city on Sunday morning special reference was made to the celebration of the golden jubilee of the University of St. Joseph during the present year, and to the educational evening to be held in the Nickel Theatre. The parish priests reviewed the development of the institution and its relations to the educational life of this diocese. A worthy appreciation was given to its founders and supporters. The increase in attendance at the university, the increase in its courses and efficiency with the addition of buildings and equipment costing in the vicinity of $100,000, were dealt with. An appeal was made to all the Catholic people to avail themselves of the opportunity to hear the lectures on higher education in New Brunswick and especially as regards their own university. In addition to a lecture by Rev. L. Guerin, C. S. C., Ph. D., D. D., there will be a large number of pictures thrown on a screen to show the facilities, environments and life at the University of St. Joseph.

TEMPERANCE Rev. Wilfred Gaetz gave a very impressive temperance address at a meeting held by Thorne Lodge, I. O. G. T., in Clayton's Hall, on Sunday afternoon. George Chamberlain was in the chair. The speaker said it was better to have saloons in shady places and dark alleys where liquor was sold illegally than to have the bars wide open as they were today for the public would see them at their worst and soon close up even those places. The speaker gave illustrations in which he pointed out very forcefully how a drinking man loses his moral character.

For the principle of "Noblesse Oblige" is your guarantee of excellence in Advertised Goods.

If you are doing a local business talk over your advertising problems with the Advertising Department of this newspaper. If you are doing a provincial or national business it would be well for you to have the counsel and assistance of a good advertising agency. A list of these will be furnished, without cost or obligation, by the Secretary of Canadian Press Association, Room 503, Leclaire Building, Toronto.

Noblesse Oblige Rank imposes obligations— or—as the French put it—"Noblesse Oblige." It is a very natural and right principle that those who by their position in life command the respect of others should deserve it and be worthy of maintaining their position. "Much is expected of those in high station." But this principle is not confined to persons of noble birth—it has a hundred applications. It applies, for example, to those manufacturers of reputation and prestige who make goods of high quality and who advertise them constantly in the newspapers of the land. By their advertising they have attained an eminence where the very best in quality and good service is expected of them. They have set a standard and their very business life depends on the constant maintenance of it. So that when you buy advertised articles you rest assured that you are getting the best value that money can buy. Well may you place your faith in advertised goods. Well may you give them preference over articles which you can only hope may prove satisfactory.

FOR DISARMAMENT

With the rising tide of popular feeling in Great Britain against the arms race, and for a reduction instead of an expansion in that direction, the government may have some difficulty in carrying through the plans of Mr. Winston Churchill.

UNEMPLOYMENT CHIEF CAUSE OF POVERTY

W. Frank Hatheway Addresses Centenary Brotherhood — Suggestion That City Build Houses

Addressing the Centenary Brotherhood yesterday afternoon W. Frank Hatheway quoted figures from the report of the New York Association of Charities to show that in the case of 5,000 dependent families the condition of 60 per cent of them was found on enquiry to be due to unemployment, and only 17 per cent to drink. Mr. Hatheway quoted these figures to prove that the statement that drunkenness is the chief cause of poverty is incorrect.

He said the secretary of the Associated Charities in St. John told him that at least seventy per cent of those applying to her wanted work.

Mr. Hatheway urged a minimum wage, and in a reference to the saloons asked what the citizens had ever done to provide an antidote in the form of clean and cheap and attractive places where men could get any kind of drink except strong drink, and could there find the fellowship they now seek in the saloons.

The speaker said that, according to the last census there was more illiteracy in New Brunswick than in the other eastern provinces, and the average wage paid to factory workers was much lower.

Was there any relation between low wages and illiteracy? He made a strong plea for technical education, and after telling of the housing policy in German cities urged that the St. John city council should erect work houses at $800 to $1,000 on its own land and sell them on long terms to workmen.

Such matters as these, he said, should be taken up by the brotherhoods of the city in the effort to promote a higher citizenship.

R. G. Murray presided, T. H. Bullock made a brief plea for increased membership, and Rev. Messrs. Barralough and Berrie took part in the devotional exercises.

TRIBUTES TO STRATHCONA

There was a large attendance at the Seaman's Institute last night when Archdeacon W. O. Raymond gave an address on the life and work of the late Lord Strathcona. The choir of St. Mary's Sunday school, in charge of J. N. Rogers, led in the singing, and one of the young ladies of the church sang a sacred solo, "Far From My Heavenly Home."

Dr. Raymond gave an interesting account of the life of Lord Strathcona and referred to his recent visit to England at the time of the Pan-Anglican congress when he was presented to Lord Strathcona who dwelt on the character of the man as a devout Christian and as one who was always ready to do all in his power to Canada.

Rev. F. S. Porter also spoke of the life and work of Lord Strathcona in the German street Baptist church last evening.

THE UNEMPLOYED

The Editor of the Times-Star.

Sir:—Owing to the lack of employment in the city at the present time, it would be a great boon to many persons if the city would undertake to provide work for the unfortunate non-possessors of jobs who are only too anxious to get the wherewithal to eke out a mere existence.

It would also be a great boon to the unemployed if the city commissioners would open a labor bureau for men to register for work so that employers who need men would know where to obtain any help they might require.

This is done in many cities and in view of the fact that St. John has been over-burdened thus inducing more men to come here, than there are jobs for, it should be up to the Board of Trade and others to help right these matters.

In the columns of your paper you admit things are bad, but not as bad as other places, in proportion to population there are as many persons out of work here as elsewhere.

As far as organized labor is concerned I have taken pains to gather a few facts which I know are understated rather than overstated, which I will give for the enlightenment of your readers.

The state of trade as reported by the following organizations is far from good, the other trades and men unorganized and unskilled labor must necessarily be far worse.

Bricklayers and Masons, dull, 40 unemployed; Typographical Union, good, 2 unemployed; Carpenters, dull, 80 unemployed; Printing Pressmen, fair, 1 unemployed; Marine Checkers, poor, 60 per cent unemployed; Coal Handlers, poor, 60 per cent unemployed; Machinists, poor, 6 per cent unemployed; Plumbers, poor, 12 unemployed; General Longshore Workers, poor, about 300 unemployed; Dock Freighthandlers, fair, 33 per cent unemployed; Molders, fair, 20 unemployed; Tug Boat Firemen, fair, 10 unemployed; Cigar Makers, good, none unemployed; Barbers, fair, none unemployed; Painters, dull, 35 unemployed.

It must be borne in mind that the above only refers to union men, and one can take it for certain that the percentage amongst the non-union men will be higher in those trades where the open shop prevails.

Talking to men who ought to know and who are natives of St. John, they readily admit that this is the poorest winter as far as unemployment is concerned since the winterport began.

A very prominent labor official in Halifax has stated that 60 per cent of the winterport workers are unemployed, so this state of affairs is not confined to St. John alone, for Portland and Boston are complaining that the panic is playing havoc with the working class there.

It appears that things are going to be worse before they get better but what is the city administration going to do about it?

Toronto has set aside $25,000 to make work for those in need and it is time something was done here, surely some work can be started, even to clean up the streets in the city for they are badly in need of it especially in the working class districts. If those unemployed will only make their wants known the city is bound to take notice; if they choose to starve into silence, that is their affair; but any person with a grain of human sympathy if he keeps his eyes open can discern a whole lot of distress amongst the working class and should therefore insist that something should be done for them temporarily. Not that this help will abolish poverty, it does not go deep enough; but it would do away with detestable charity which is not required by most persons who are able to work if such could be obtained.

F. HYATT.

Our Sale, the Sale of All the Sales, Starts Tomorrow

We are closed today to get ready to give the people in St. John and surrounding country the biggest values ever offered here of our entire stock of Men's and Boys' Clothing and Furnishings, made by the most prominent manufacturers at home and abroad; bought for cash at the lowest prices possible that money could buy.

We are going to give you something out of the ordinary in values—merchandise that will astonish the keenest buyer. It is now up to you. Will you stand silent, or are you coming forward to get your share of the greatest clothing bargains offered in the city? Enough said.

Seeing is believing. Come and see for yourself. If you cannot come send your friends. ILLY DISPUTE IS 200 YEARS OLD e Sam Has Been Asked to Unravel Tangled Skin ington, Jan. 26.—The romance of rich old German, who some 200 ago married a young wife in a led to a family dispute over the man's fortune, which Solicitor P. State Department, has been asked to settle.

innocent, but aged, possessor of "spotted fortune," was Rudolph Ferdinand, Freiherr von Silberstein Pilsnikan, and when he died in early in the 18th century, he left a fortune of 700,000 marks, according to present reckoning.

en he was eighty-three years old and led a life in Silesia. He lived four years more, and at his death a considerable portion of his estate went to a daughter, who married a young man, and one three score other heirs of the family residing in the United States, Canada and Mexico, has asked the department to take steps to them into their rightful inheritance.

THE HOLY FAMILY. The church, in North End, was held last evening at a reception of the Holy Family. About 200 new members were enrolled. The service was conducted by Rev. Charles H. C.S.S.R., with Rev. S. J. Holland, C.S.S.R., as sub-deacon. The sermon was delivered by Rev. Hagan, C.S.S.R., on "The Model Family." After benediction the services closed with the congregational singing of "God We Praise Thy Name."

AN INTERDICT CASE

Some Unusual Features in Police Court Matter

A woman may say too much and yet not be telling an untruth was the decision of Magistrate Ritchie in a case against Robert Ross, an interdict which was charged by his wife with having entered the saloon of Michael Harley on the evening of January 18. Mrs. Ross and her sister, Mrs. Harriett McDonald, were witnesses.

Mrs. Ross said her husband had made all his property over to her several months ago and a short time after that she turned him out. She said she had him put on the interdict list in last August. When asked by A. A. Wilson who appeared in the interests of Mr. Ross, she said she was sure it was her husband who had gone into the bar on the day in question for she said she would know her husband anywhere by a peculiar "waddle" in his walk.

The evidence of Mrs. McDonald corroborated that of her sister. The saloon keeper said Ross had not been in his bar since August 1. The defendant also said he had not been there. Fred Cunningham, an employee of Mr. Ross, said he had gone into the bar room on that evening to get some money changed from that he wore Mr. Ross' meat coat at the time and it was contended by Mr. Wilson that possibly the ladies had been mistaken in the identity of the man.

Ross was fined $5 or thirty days in jail.

THIS RELIGIOUS REMEDY

A correspondent, writing to the Times on the subject of road houses, makes a plea for more care in training young men and women in the true knowledge of right and wrong and appears to argue that not enough of this kind of training is given by the ministers in the churches, who, this correspondent thinks, deal too largely with "sent and dried sermons."

The writer also contends that there should be a revival of the good old time prayer meeting.

FORD BRANCH FOR THE MARITIME PROVINCES

The Recently Established Plant Here—Plan is to Make it Assembling Place

(Ford Times for January.) The growth of Ford business in the maritime provinces has been so great that a new factory branch has been established at St. John, N. B. This territory was formerly handled by the Montreal branch. Included in the St. John territory will be Prince Edward Island, where the ban on automobiles has recently been partly lifted.

The maritime provinces is one of the richest districts in the dominion, and the development around the Bay of Fundy of farming lands, manufacturing plants, coal mines and steel mills is responsible for the rapid development of the past few years.

W. C. Warburton, formerly assistant manager of the Toronto branch, will be in charge at St. John. For the present the branch will simply be a distributing point, where a large stock of cars and trucks will be kept on hand. The volume of business warrants, it will be converted into an assembling plant for which the building has been selected. Our youngest branch is starting life in the commodious quarters of a modern factory built for the manufacture of automobiles. The plant, three miles out from the center of the city in Robb's avenue, and consists of two parallel brick buildings, each 180 feet long by 71 feet wide, and well lighted and ventilated.

Both buildings are protected by a complete fire extinguisher system, part of which is a water tank carrying 300,000 gallons, supported on a steel tower sixty feet high.

Running the entire width of each building is a fifteen foot platform factory, which has a capacity for fifteen cars, and which connects with the main line of the Intercolonial Railway.

The birth of a new branch is an event in the life of the company, and the entire staff of the officials of the Montreal branch, who are the friends of Ford, join in wishing it success.

"THE GRACE OF THE I. C. R."

Why The Suburban Trains Were Ordered Off

The reason for the surprising attempt of the I. C. R. management to cancel the sub-suburban trains has leaked out. It was known that the excuse could not be that the trains were not paying their way, because the large amount of traffic carried was sufficient answer to this. That the trains were not only useful but also well known. It was also known that the arrangements were made to take these trains simply because the extra freight arising from the large amount of traffic was being handled by the I. C. R. P. R. agreement has been cancelled. The I. C. R. has had the utmost difficulty in handling it, and the suburban traffic was being sacrificed for the benefit of the C. P. R.

During the last few years the policy of excessive economy which has dominated the I. C. R. management has resulted in sufficient new motive power and rolling stock to do more than barely handle the regular business, and when the extra business had to be handled the road was in danger of being swamped. This danger was aggravated by the fact that the I. C. R. has not sufficient sidings along the road to take care of heavy freight traffic, and it was found that the suburban trains were sometimes in the way of the specials carrying C. P. R. freight between St. John and Halifax.

The mainly announced intention of cutting off these trains for the advantage of the C. P. R. seems to indicate the desire to take care of the I. C. R. P. R. railway regarding the identity of their real bosses.

HALIFAX PAPER SAYS FEW "LONGSHOREMEN WORKING"

(Halifax Chronicle) There are today 200 men on the waterfront of Halifax not receiving sufficient weekly wages providing for a fair standard of living. Eighty of these men have found employment at the wharves, but the remainder of the longshoremen, and does not include a large number of other laborers who could have found profitable employment.

Although the Royal boats only brought about 1000 tons of cargo each, their cargo was much heavier in proportion than the cargo brought to this port by other steamers. The reason for this was that cargo coming from Bristol consisted mostly of heavy metalware, which required a much greater amount of labor to handle, proportionately, than any cargo brought to the port by any other steamer.

Just what the longshoremen of Halifax lost by the "switching" of the Royal liners can be seen by the following figures, estimated for nine ships: Total inward cargoes, 10,900 tons. Total outward cargoes, 5,000 tons. Loading at 1,500 tons a trip, 18,000 tons for season.

Or a total loss of 83,000 tons of cargo to the longshoremen of Halifax. This estimate is a very conservative one, and can be relied upon as authoritative. It does not include the provision of ships, and the amount of labor required in the handling of coal brought to Halifax preparatory for bunkering the ships.

The fact remains, however, that there are fewer men employed in Halifax this year than for several seasons past. Fewer men have this year come to the city to augment the number of longshoremen than ever before, but worse than that, even the local men are not fully employed.

There are today about 500 men in the Halifax Longshoremen's Association. Last year there were 840 men on the roll, and 600 men at work continuously. Today there are not more than 425 men employed as longshoremen. The total figure is considered to be, if anything, in excess of the facts. In this number must be included about 100 men steadily employed by the C. P. R. and Allan lines which have now one ship a week in port. Had the Royal liners been permitted to make Halifax their terminal port, of this city, it is estimated that there would have been added to this number, and to that very considerable extent assisted in ameliorating conditions.

LORD STRATHCONA'S HOME IN LABARADOR

The new editor of THE MARITIME BAPTIST CONDENSED DESPATCHES

A despatch from Ottawa says that Rev. Dr. J. H. McDonald, pastor of the McPhillip Memorial Baptist church, of that city, last night asked his congregation to release him from the pastorate, as he had been appointed editor of the Maritime Baptist, published here. Although the position was offered to Dr. McDonald some time ago, his formal acceptance has not yet been received here.

Mr. McDonald has been in Ottawa about a year, going there from the Brunswick street Baptist church, Fredericton, where he was pastor for eleven years. He was for five years secretary of the Maritime Baptist convention. Rev. Dr. McDonald is well known throughout the province and his return will be hailed with delight by many friends. He has journalistic ability and is considered an excellent man to fill the position to which he has been appointed.

BUILDING A TOWN TO ORDER (Engineering News.) A new town is being established by C. S. Peabody and Samuel Insull, of Chicago, mainly as a place of residence for the miners of a coal-mining property recently placed in operation near the townsite and a large electric power station. They represent the Peabody Coal Company and the Central Illinois Public Service Company.

While the purpose of the enterprise is commercial, it is being carried out for the modern lines in regard to planning, public utilities, housing and sociological conditions. At the same time care has been taken to avoid mere beautification and to keep the practical purposes and limitations of the project strictly in mind. For this purpose, frequent consultation is being had with John Mitchell, of the miners' union.

This new town, which has been named Kincaid, is in the southwestern part of the state, about twenty miles south of Springfield (or 200 miles south of Chicago) and 100 miles north of St. Louis, Mo. The distinct and interesting features of this enterprise is the application of practical town-planning ideas in an average population in a coal-mining district.

The minister of a parish in Scotland was called to effect a reconciliation between a father and a son who had quarrelled and his wife. After using all the arguments in his power to convince the offending husband that it was unmanly of him, to say the least, to strike Polly with his fist, the minister concluded: "David, you know that the wife is the weaker vessel, and you should have pity on her."

"Well, then," said David, sulkily, "she's the weaker vessel she should carry the less sail!"

RADIUM SUPPLY FOR WORLD IN COLORADO

Company in Field Offers to Deliver at $80,000 a Gramme

Washington, Jan. 24.—Vigorous opposition to the proposal to withdraw radium lands from entry was made before the house mines committee by Thomas R. Hennchen, state mining commissioner of Colorado, who declared such action would ruin the radium mining industry.

"All we want is to be let alone," he declared. "We are getting out the radium. If you tie up these lands, prospectors will not go into them."

Joseph M. Flannery, president of the Standard Chemical Company, of Pittsburgh said his company had spent in three years $650,000 to produce two grammes of radium. The effort had been inspired by the fact that a close relative was afflicted with cancer. He said the grammes cost $480,000 to produce, he estimated, and brought in $240,000. In April, he said, the company would be producing one gramme a month.

"There is enough radium ore in Colorado to supply the world five times over," said Flannery. "Only 200 grammes are needed for the United States. I will undertake to deliver to the government in five years from January 1, 1915 200 grammes of radium at a maximum price of $80,000 a gramme."

Flannery's experiments showed that radium was valuable for treatment for other diseases than cancer.

"We have 100 physicians working with it for other diseases with as great results," he added.

WILL MAKE FOR SOLIDITY

Saskatchewan Commission to Control Municipal Finance in Province

Regina, Jan. 26.—The Saskatchewan commission to control municipal finance has now entered on its duties. This board supervises all municipal bond issues, and its stamp of approval means much to the individual municipality in floating its debenture issues.

The Saskatchewan government is the first in Canada to take this very important step. While it has been generally conceded that such a commission would be of enormous value to municipalities, nothing has been done outside of Saskatchewan.

The commission gives advice on the best forms of raising money for improvement works, as to the advisability of the works contemplated, and the class of work most suitable. What this means to the investor in the old country or the United States, who seeks to purchase western debentures, can readily be recognized. He is assured that unless the works are justifiable the commission will not approve of them and this will have a tendency to trim expenditure of improvement works which are sometimes outlined by over optimistic municipal councils. The best money has been secured to act on this commission, and their appointment is for ten years.

DAMAGE TO TEA STOCK BY WINNIPEG FIRE

Winnipeg, Man., Jan. 26.—The $80,000 stock of the Blue Ribbon Tea Company, was seriously damaged by fire late last night in their warehouse here. The loss is fully covered. The greater part of the damage was done by smoke and water.

SEE HOW WANTS WOMEN TO SWEEP THE STREETS Dr. Anna H. Shaw Tells Suffragists That Men Fall

New York, Jan. 26.—The science of sweeping as applied to the streets occupied the attention of 1,000 suffragists at the Hitz-Carlson. Street-cleaning was not put on the program, but Dr. Anna Howard Shaw took exception to Bourke Cockran's assertion that women would be of service in all departments of city government except the heavy sweeping of the streets.

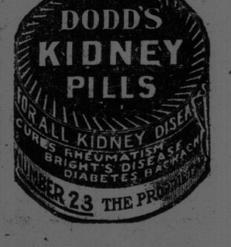

"I maintain that woman could sweep the streets much better than men," said Doctor Shaw. "As a matter of fact, the cleanest streets in the world, those of Paris, are cleaned by women. They are washed as we wipe up our kitchen floors. Here they sweep our streets and by scattering their impurities in the air we supply patients for the tuberculosis hospitals, which we are taxed to build."

GOVERNMENT MAY PURCHASE OIL FIELDS Washington, Jan. 26.—In view of the world-wide scramble for oil, the United States government has begun an investigation looking to the purchase of oil fields in Oklahoma, the construction of pipe lines to the Gulf of Mexico and the erection of a great refining plant wholly for the use of the United States navy.

A commission is directed under a resolution passed by the senate, to investigate and report, "as to the feasibility, expense and desirability of the government constructing and operating a pipe line for the transportation of oil from the mid-continent fields to some port on the gulf, together with the storage and other necessary facilities."

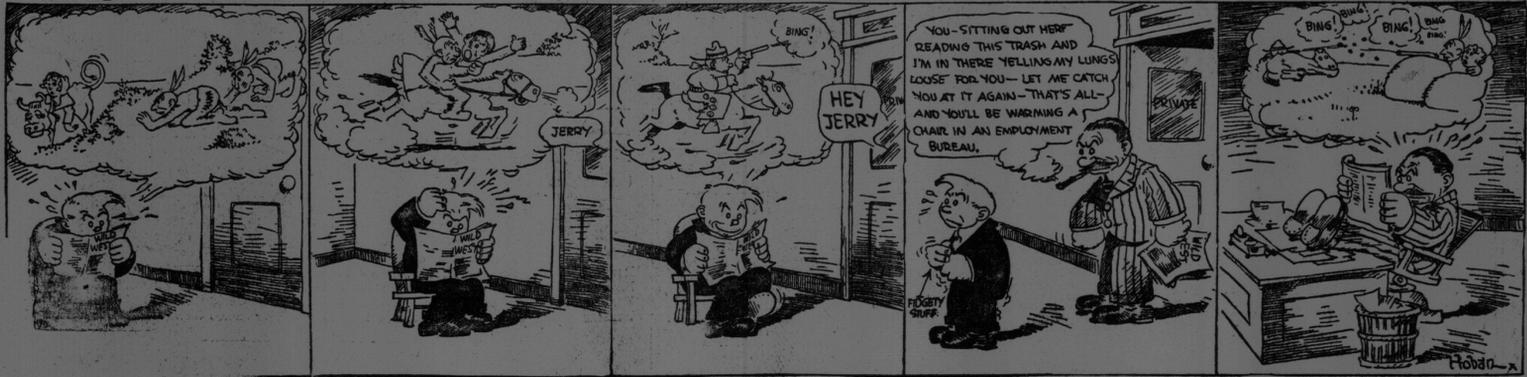

Snake as Aid in Robbery Munich, Jan. 26.—Two international crooks were arrested at a hotel here for a peculiar attempt at robbery. The men had a half-strapped python with which, it is alleged, they intended to stampede the guests by turning it loose in the corridor. They figured that the excitement which would follow would enable them to ransack the rooms of guests.

Channel Tunnel Cost. "Trains could be running through the channel tunnel by about Christmas, 1920," said Arthur Fell in a lecture at the Royal Society of Arts, London, England, last night. The cost of the tunnel could be completed at a cost estimated at $16,000,000 to be raised over about six or eight years, one-half to be found by England, one-half by France. The $8,000,000 to be raised by England would probably be in $4,000,000 of debentures and $4,000,000 in shares. If the same figures which are now charged by the tunnel company," he added, "the shares should pay very large dividends."

A FINE SHOW OF HEREFORDS

The 115th show of the Smithfield Club was held at Islington, Eng., during the week of December 7. The visitors, lay and expert, can be seen examining the Herefords, which made a good show. In the younger steer class the first prize went to Sir J. R. Cotterell's steer, the second went to the Hon. F. G. Wynn's Brian Marble that was reared at Birmingham, and J. G. Cooke's Shelsley Ivor, the leader at the midland counties meeting was third.

The second prize winner scaled 12 cwt. 2 gr. 14 lb. at one year nine months and two weeks old, and the third 13 cwt. 1 gr. 26 lb. at one year ten months and two weeks. Hon. F. G. Wynn's Brian leader took reserve. His weight at two years and seven months is 18 cwt. 3 gr. 16 lb., and he won the breed cup as he did at Birmingham. Reserve for this distinction was Sir John Cotterell's winner in the young class.

cost the New York club more than half a million dollars. Ebbets is said to have spent a million and a half to purchase and equip his Brooklyn club, and he has not had a first division team since the days of Ned Hanlon. Shrewd club owners are not making these improvements without realizing what the future of baseball is. And in many cases, stadiums less than five years old have been found inadequate for the crowds that desire to attend certain big games. Even the gigantic Polo Grounds stands were not capacious enough to accommodate all who desired to see certain contests last season.

Many fans do not understand how a tall end club or even a second division team makes big money. But they do. Take the Cincinnati team, for instance, which finished almost at the bottom of the league last season, and which, in the year previous, opened an expensive plant at Redland Field. How does the club make money? In each city where a team plays, the visiting club gets half of the admissions. New York is what is known in baseball as a fifty cent town, because admission to the bleachers costs fifty cents. When a fan buys a grand stand ticket, it is considered in the division of spoils that he has paid his fifty cents admission and twenty-five more for the privilege of sitting in the grand stand. The home club gets the extra quarter, while it divides the fifty cents evenly with the visitors. Ever since I was given my automobile by the New York fans I have always carried the money taken in at the game at the Polo Grounds up for deposit as soon as the contests were over.

I merely do the driving. Two tellers guarded by special officers, assume charge of the bank roll. I insert this information so that no get-rich-quick gentleman can think he might risk me in the race. The Giants played a double header with Cincinnati one Saturday afternoon in 1912 when the outcome of the race was very precarious. The Giants needed both those games. The Reds had flopped after "Hank" O'Day's fine sprint at the beginning of the season. There was no interest in the Reds as a team, but the Polo Grounds were packed. When the Cincinnati club was paid off for its share of the services, Frank Bancroft, the oldest baseball secretary in captivity, was handed a check for more than $7,000, more than $8,000 of this amount coming from the one afternoon. "I almost dropped dead when I received it," said "Bennie."

Of course, this was one big afternoon of a season, but it does not take so many at this rate to make a bank roll. And now that the Federals have started a fight, the ball players are profiting. They tell me that 100,000 spectators have attended football matches in England. I believe I will live to see the day when that number will be present at baseball games and when the present seating capacities will look very small in comparison to the stadiums of the future. Games have been played within the last two years where there would have been 100,000 spectators if room could have been found for that number.

Since I have been with the Giants, Charles W. Murphy, the president of the Chicago Nationals, was the team's press agent. He came to New York from the sporting department of a Cincinnati newspaper. He saw a chance to get hold of the Chicago club when John R. Walsh, the former owner, needed money badly because the Chicago National Bank, of which he was the president, failed. Murphy went to Cincinnati, where he found his old employer of newspaper days, C. P. Taft.

"I need $100,000," he said to Mr. Taft. "I would like to borrow it from you." Murphy bought the Chicago Cubs for a little more than $100,000, and he paid back his loan to Mr. Taft within two years except for some small interest which Mr. Taft is still supposed to retain in the club. Murphy is now rated to be worth more than a million dollars in his own right. The story is that Frank Chance took a tenth interest in the club when he assumed its management, paying for it with nothing but his note, and, at the end of the season, he received $9,850 as his share of the profits for the first year under his management. Murphy and Chance were good friends then, so the owner dug down in his pocket and produced a $50 bill.

"Here, Frank," said Murphy, "is fifty more. That makes it an even $100,000." "Let's go to dinner," replied the manager, "the extra fifty just about covered the meal check." Murphy's career is one of the wonder

There is no more frequent source of illness than that arising from bad blood, for when the blood becomes impure, it is only natural that boils, pimples or some other indication of bad blood should break out of the system.

Boils in themselves are not a dangerous trouble, but still at the same time are very painful, and the only way to get rid of them is to cleanse the blood of the impurities. Cleanse it thoroughly by the use of Burdock Blood Bitters, that old and reliable blood medicine that has been on the market for nearly forty years.

Mr. James Wilds, Plaster Rock, N.B., writes: "I was greatly troubled, a few years ago, with boils and carbuncles, and the doctor told me I was in a bad condition. My appetite failed me, I began to lose strength, and was pretty well run down when one of my friends recommended Burdock Blood Bitters. After using three bottles I began to feel like another man. My troubles soon left me, and to-day I can certainly give Burdock Blood Bitters a high recommendation to my friends."

Brennan to Follow Tinker
Kansas City, Jan. 25--"I'm going to stick with Tinker," said Ad. Brennan, a Philadelphia National League pitcher. Brennan added that since he signed with the Chicago Federals, the Philadelphia Club had offered him a salary in excess of that to be paid him by Chicago.

Royals Almost Lose Carlstrom
Montreal Herald--According to information received today by President Sam E. Lichtenhein, of the Royal Baseball Club, he has had a narrow escape from losing the services of his crack first-baseman and infielder, Albin Carlstrom. The ex-Red Sox, it was reported to the local baseball office today, has just turned down an offer to play with the Pittsburgh Club, of the out-law Federal League.

Secretary William McCullough, who had been Carlstrom perform on several occasions, was of the opinion that the long Royal would fit nicely with the fast outfit which will represent the Smoky City in the new league if the circuit remains intact. There is no denying that the Pittsburgh promoter baited his hook for a live one when he went after Albin, but he will have to get his first sacker some place else.

Carlstrom is well pleased with his prospective berth at Montreal, and he is at present awaiting notification of when and where to report to Manager Bransfield.

MATTY'S BIG LEAGUE GOSSIP
BY CHRISTY MATHEWSON
THE GIANTS' STAR PITCHER

Copyright, 1914, by the Wheeler Syndicate, Inc.

With the rapid developments of this winter in baseball, with a new league apparently heavily upholstered with coin trying to steal the stars of organized baseball away from the older organizations in an effort to establish a third major league, and with professional ball players being offered bigger salaries than ever before, these questions are being asked all over the country: "What is baseball coming to? Is this recent, rapid growth an artificial one, or will it continue? What is the game's future? where will it all end?"

Behind organized baseball are some of the keenest business men in the country, men who have made fortunes out of the game almost as quickly as the successful prospector in a gold rush. You seldom hear of a club owner in organized baseball going broke, in fact, at this moment I cannot recall a single instance where a man has become poor through losses in baseball within the last ten years. But you seldom hear of these same club owners boasting about the money they are making out of the game. Silence is golden in their cases.

When the Federal League came to the front about two months ago, the owners of the old league clubs gave the best indications possible that they like the propositions in which they are interested. Bigger salaries are stipulated in the contracts sent out to players this year than ever before in the history of the game, according to the information that I get out here on the coast, and many players of recognized ability are being offered contracts for periods of from two to five years at figures which they are forced to accept. Still, I do not believe baseball is near its zenith yet.

Within the last five years, several enormous baseball plants have been constructed all over the country, each one costing a large amount of money. The new Polo Grounds stands alone with its out taking into consideration the lease,

STARTLING VALUES IN Paillette Silk Waists

Owing to the slackness of the trade in the west, a Montreal manufacturer had a lot of these Fine Paillette Silk Waists left on his hands. We bought them at a great discount, and they are on sale now at

$2.59 to $2.98

The colors are black, navy, brown and Copenhagen blue. All sizes, high neck, and some are trimmed in the low neck effect with all-over silk lace and button trimmings. These waists are handsomely trimmed, perfect fitting, and the silk alone would cost what we are asking for the finished article.

From the same manufacturer we have a lot of White Pique Waists and White Lawn Waists that we are placing on sale at 98 Cents Each

These waists were intended to be sold at $1.25 and $1.50. All sizes.

COBEQUID BREAKING UP

Brister's tug, Cruiser, Capt. Chapman, returned to Halifax on Friday from the wrecked steamer Cobequid. Captain Chapman reported the wrecked liner to have broken considerably amidships, and the upper portion of her decks had been much broken and washed away. She has also settled on the rock, and at high tide was almost all submerged.

ST. PETER'S Y. M. A.

The question as to who has the better opportunities in life, the young tradesman or the young professional man, was ably discussed yesterday afternoon in the rooms of St. Peter's Y. M. A. The negative arguments were considered the more convincing by the Judge, Arthur Carten, principal of Fairville school. The members upholding the side of the tradesmen were Arthur Howard, Ernest White and Edw. McBratney, while James McIntyre, Louis Donnelly and James McCurdy, championed the negative.

DEATH OF J. GRANT MOWRY

The friends of J. Grant Mowry were greatly shocked on Saturday night to hear of his death. Mr. Mowry was only twenty-three years of age, and conducted a haberdashery at Lee's Point, in the St. John Hotel block. He had been at his work but a week before, and although he was apparently in the best of health, he was falling, no one dreamed the end was so near. On Monday last he went to the sanitarium at River Glade, but was brought home again by a doctor and nurse on Saturday, arriving early in the evening. He walked from the train to a coach and from the coach into his mother's home at the corner of Germain and St. James streets. Immediately after entering the house, however, he collapsed, and within a few minutes after his arrival he was dead.

THE PRACTICAL JOKER WAS

ABROAD IN THE NORTH END

There are to be found most everywhere people who have a well defined sense of humor, while along with them are others who have either no mischievous inclinations, or if any, then such as cannot properly be classified in the same column. One of the last named thought to display his particular brand of wit on Saturday evening, evidently thinking that because of the delightful (?) condition of the streets and the very pleasant (question mark number two) state of the weather, the occasion was rich for the perpetration of what seemed a fine, practical joke—to him. Others have not quite seen the point as yet.

An Indian town greener in the height of the storm received an order for a peck of clams and some other things to be delivered to an address some distance along Main street, from where his store is located. The order was filled out, but the occupants of the house knew nothing about it, and declined to accept delivery. Another man, a meat dealer, had an order for chickens from a customer also in Main street, but again delivery was refused, as nothing was known of the order at the house in question.

Influenced by the same fine spirit of humor, and evidently imbued with more generous ideals, the same individual telephoned to a well known Indian town restaurant an order for a dozen oyster stews, "to be ready for the bunch when they call at 9 o'clock." The order was prepared. Nine o'clock came, nine-thirty, and ten, but there was no sign of "the bunch"—presumably the weather was too much for them. There was not much demand for oyster stews at the regular twenty-five cent price, so they were done away with at a dime—this being probably the only creditable act which can be traced to the alleged "joker" he caused a temporary reduction in the cost of high living, even though it was not appreciated except by the consumers.

What was the real cause of action being taken to investigate the Lake Lattimer measuring apparatus on November 8?

Have you any record in your office whereby the readings of the Venturi meters are less than those of Lake Lattimer?

If not is it a fair assumption that they have always exceeded the Lake Lattimer readings?

If the Venturi meters have always exceeded the readings of Lake Lattimer and the Lattimer readings have been known to be excessive, is it possible that the Venturi meters have followed with regularly the fluctuations of Lattimer?

Were the pitometer observations confined to the three days mentioned in connection with the wood stove pipe?

Having reason to believe that the Venturi meters were not registering correctly, would it have been possible to take pitometer observations at either side of them to determine their correctness?

It has been stated that the Venturi meters have been found to be in excess of the delivery ascertained by the pitometer. Where were the measurements made by which this excess was determined?

As the Lattimer and the Venturi readings have been claimed as being incorrect, from the pitometer observations, what proof have you that the pitometer readings are correct?

As I understand your engineer to say that 8,234,000 gallons would be the correct registration for the Venturi meters will you please furnish me with the manner in which this computation is made?

If the question of a dual system is not a practicable one at present, how long since it became impracticable, in the judgment of your engineer?

If ever was a practicable one, did it always carry with it the necessity for the installation of new mains leading to the city, or even one new main leading to the city, as well as new and larger mains in the city?

If the single system as adopted by the engineers in charge of the installation of the new system from Loch Lomond was loyally adhered to, what reason can be given for the violent fluctuations in pressure in certain portions of the city?

Compared with previous years, the finances show a substantial gain under the commission's management. The receipts were $19,278.98, compared with $16,201.24 in 1912 and $15,970.21 in 1911. A glance at the figures will show that the nice net sum of $3,582.50 remains for the 1914 receipts to be applied to the sinking fund. In 1912 the balance was $2,988.36, and in 1911 it was $3,314.48.

In this connection it may fairly be added that, besides the financial improvement, the market is much better in appearance and general upkeep.

MORE QUESTIONS PRESENTED TO COMMISSIONER WIGMORE ON WATER SUPPLY MATTER

The statement is also made that the leakage in the stove wood pipe was determined by pitometer observations made on the 8th, 10th and 18th days of July, 1912, and the Lake Lattimer readings having been found to be immensely in excess of the pitometer results, this gave the clue to make the examination already referred to when the obstruction was found in the orifice. If this is the case you will please inform me why the clue was not acted upon before Nov. 8, 1912.

What was the real cause of action being taken to investigate the Lake Lattimer measuring apparatus on November 8?

Have you any record in your office whereby the readings of the Venturi meters are less than those of Lake Lattimer?

If not is it a fair assumption that they have always exceeded the Lake Lattimer readings?
