

The Evening Times and Star

ST. JOHN, N. B., OCTOBER 15, 1912.

The St. John Evening Times is printed at 27 and 29 Canterbury Street every evening (Sunday excepted) by the St. John Times Printing and Publishing Co., Ltd., a company incorporated under the Companies Act.

IT'S UP TO ST. JOHN
St. John people should be especially interested in the following extract from a statement made by Mr. Hugh Bancroft, chairman of the Board of Directors of the port of Boston:

"From conversations we have had, I may say that Mr. Clapp feels that the Canadian export trade is one of the most important phases of the problem that confronts Boston's port development and that we should obtain much more of this portion of export business. The fact that Montreal is a closed port for several months of the year should greatly assist us. The grain shipments from Canada are enormous and it would seem Boston should logically get a large share."

Mr. Edwin J. Clapp, who was referred to by Mr. Bancroft, is an expert whose services have been secured to aid the directors of the port of Boston in solving its development problem. He is instructor in the School of Commerce of New York University, and has been given leave of absence for one year for his work in Boston. He spent two years studying the conditions of the port of Hamburg, and published a book thereon which is regarded as one of the best of its kind. He is a graduate of Yale and of the University of Berlin, and is regarded as one of the best informed men in the United States on the subject of port development.

It will be observed that both Mr. Bancroft and Mr. Clapp expect Boston to secure a large quantity of Canadian export trade in the winter season. This would be done at the expense of the port of St. John. The fact should arouse the business men of this city to a sense of the need of continuous work in the interests of this port. It should have some influence upon the Board of Trade when they come to deal with the question of a secretary. There is no improvement league in this city and the Board of Trade is the organization which should take the lead in boosting St. John. If Boston can afford to have a large staff, as it has, to deal with the problem of port development alone, the city of St. John should have at least one very able man devoting his whole time to the task of boosting this Canadian port.

WELCOME PROPOSALS
As a result of their visit to Halifax and Wolfville Mr. R. B. Emerson, chairman of the St. John School Board, and Dr. H. S. Bridges, Superintendent of Schools, recommend that if it be decided to open evening technical classes in St. John the subjects chosen be mechanical drawing and house construction. Professor Sexton, director of technical education in Nova Scotia, declares this course to be the most desirable for such work as might be attempted in a small way in this city. It may be hoped that the recommendation of the committee will be carried out and a beginning made during the coming winter. There does not seem to be any good reason why more use should not also be made of the manual training school in Waterloo street. The equipment there is probably good enough to enable a teacher to conduct very successful classes in the evenings, and such classes could no doubt easily be formed if it were known that they were available. The committee who visited Halifax have also returned with a conviction that sufficient care is not taken to embellish our school rooms with such ornaments as would stimulate an interest in art, and foster a love for the beautiful, and they suggest that a beginning be made in the St. John High School. They also recommend the use of the retroscop to illustrate lessons in history and geography. All their recommendations are of practical value, and should commend themselves to the full board.

There is another matter which the board should also consider, and that is the use of school buildings as social centres, especially during the winter months. If a beginning were made even in one building the results would prove so satisfactory that the people would favor the use of every building in a similar manner. That has been the experience elsewhere, and since these buildings represent so large an outlay of the money of the people the fullest possible use should be made of them. The fear that general use would destroy the buildings is not borne out by the experience of other cities.

CRANKS AND PISTOLS
The attempt to assassinate Colonel Roosevelt has no political significance. That the would-be assassin is mentally unbalanced is quite evident from what he said. Colonel Roosevelt is nothing if not obstinate, and though a bullet had been lodged in his body he insisted on delivering a speech more than an hour in length before he would permit the physicians to examine his wound. "I will make this speech or die," he is said to have declared. That was a very foolhardy remark entirely uncalculated for the circumstances.

The crank with a pistol has been responsible for some gross tragedies in the United States, and has taught the people of the country that it is not only the occupants of thrones in Europe who are in danger of assassination. The present accidental cannoning has been extraordinary in many ways. It is, perhaps, not surprising that toward the end of it a man of weak mind should become unbalanced and feel that it was his duty to save the country. This incident will have no political effect, and none will rejoice more sincerely that the Colonel is alive and still in fighting trim than Mr. Taft and Mr. Woodrow Wilson.

The world has seldom seen a finer exhibition of sheer pluck and endurance than that of the leader of the Progressives, as the story is told in today's Times. While the wound in itself is not dangerous, there is the possibility of blood poisoning, and there will be universal anxiety until the physicians are able to announce that Colonel Roosevelt is on the road to full recovery.

PRICES STILL RISING
Saturday's issue of Bradstreet's showed that commodity prices in the United States had further advanced. While certain prices are easier the tendency of the great majority is upward. An index number of prices compiled by Bradstreet's shows that a new high record was set up on October 1, the figure being 84.515. This, it says, represents the most noteworthy upward jump that has occurred in any recent month, the ratio of advance over the preceding month being 2.5 per cent, while as compared with the previous high point touched on May last, the gain is 1.9 per cent. That is to say the index number months ago and is also higher than that for the high point of January 1, 1910 and March 1, 1907. There is an increase of 7.3 per cent over October 1, 1911.

An analysis of commodities shows that during October forty-one articles advanced and twenty declined, while forty-four remained unchanged. Comparing prices of October 1 with those of October 1 of the year before, sixty-four articles are higher, twenty-six declined and sixteen show no change.

The index number by years is given below, with comparisons back to 1892:

Table with 3 columns: Year, Index Number, Comparison. Rows include 1892, 1893, 1894, 1895, 1896, 1897, 1898, 1899, 1900, 1901, 1902, 1903, 1904, 1905, 1906, 1907, 1908, 1909, 1910, 1911, 1912.

It is interesting to note at the present time that Bradstreet's report shows the price of anthracite coal, stove sizes, per ton, New York, on October 1 to have been $6.25, which was exactly the same as the price the 1st of September, and 55c lower than it was on the 1st of May.

STILL ANOTHER HERPICIDE ENTHUSIAST
Thousands of Them
I am always grateful for real blessings, and I know of nothing that I need to be more thankful for than Newbro's Herpicide. Thousands of ladies not only in the United States but all over the world feel the same way about it. To this wonderful scalp and hair remedy they owe their soft, long, beautiful hair.

Mary J. Terry, of Lorejoy, Ill., writes: "My hair came out until there was just a scanty cover for the scalp. I tried everything I ever heard of or read about until I finally used Herpicide. There is nothing like it. My head is now covered with new hair. I shall forever praise Herpicide."

Most hair troubles come from dandruff. Newbro's Herpicide removes this dandruff by killing the germ which causes it. It also stimulates a flow of blood which nourishes the follicles. The scalp being healthy, the hair does not come out and the new hair is allowed to grow.

There are other preparations which they say are "just as good" as Herpicide. It is not advisable to try them. Instead of doing any good they may do positive harm.

No one is ever disappointed in Newbro's Herpicide. The results are always the same, always satisfactory as is indicated by the fact that Herpicide has been sold for years and has thousands of satisfied friends. It is the only genuine original dandruff germ destroyer. There is nothing "just as good."

Newbro's Herpicide in 50c. and $1.00 sizes is sold by all dealers who guarantee it to do all that is claimed. If you are not satisfied your money will be refunded.

Superintendent Frost, Who Worked up Crippen Case, Is Retiring

HAS HAD LIVELY CAREER

Thirty-Four Years Ago Joined London Police and Now Regarded as England's Greatest Living Detective—Some Captures

(Times Special Correspondence.)

London, Oct. 15.—"I can tell you this," said 'Big Bill' Pinkerton, raising a heavy forefinger to emphasize his words, "that the whole tribe of crooks—big and little—will breathe easier when they hear that that man has quit the detective business for good."

Superintendent Frank Frost, of Scotland Yard, the "man" in question, smiled benignly.

We sat, Frost, W. A. Pinkerton and the writer of these lines, in the big office at Scotland Yard, which Frost has occupied for the last seven years as superintendent of the criminal investigation department of the Majesty's police, but which now will know him no more. As head of the "C. I. D.," as it is called, he has been commander-in-chief of the most famous army of rogue-catchers in the world, which he joined thirty-four years ago in the capacity of an ordinary "cop."

As a boy in the West Country, he read Gabriel and about Allan Pinkerton and made up his mind to be a detective, and now 'Frost of the Yard' is renowned all over Europe, as well as in South America and Australia, where he has bagged one of the criminal variety, and at the Cape, whence he went to bring Dr. Jameson to England after the Boer war.

Possibly you already have seen a bare announcement that the captor of Jameson, of Tom O'Brien, the king of American bunco-men of his day, of William Lord Moore, the Tennessee next-of-kin swindler, and more other international rogues than can be kept in any memory but his own, is about to retire, and with whom I found Frost, on my second and last visit to the superintendent's famous den at the Yard.

His Story Thrilling

It was just a bit thrilling to sit there in the heart of the great city, whose tentacles stretch out to the ends of the earth, and listen to those two master-words, who have with their pen and pencil, on both sides of the herring-pond, recalled the details of crimes and the personalities of their perpetrators, apart from the fact that, in their surroundings, too, very a study in themselves. Everywhere there were telephone, speaking tubes and electric bells, while on the walls "Vanities" cartoons of celebrities beamed down in their hand, each with six notches in the handle, each of which meant a murder—which things Frost took from three of the "deadest" men that ever quitted the United States in a hurry for these shores.

The superintendent is most famous as the man who tracked Jameson, of "Liberator" fame, to the Argentine, and after nearly a year's hard work finally succeeded in luring him on board a British vessel and there arresting him, but perhaps his biggest "coups" apart from this have been made against American crooks and bad men who, as William Pinkerton observed, will not bawl his passing. No man outside the United States has been an American brand of criminal better, or has been up against him oftener. Frost has fought the Yankee thug hand to hand and brain against brain, and generally he has beaten him.

A Dandy Dresser

You may have seen with your mind's eye the "Sherlock Holmes" type of sleuth, or the typical "Scotland Yard" man saluted by Holmes' creator; the like of M. Lecocq or Hawkehaw or even poor Jacques Futrelle's "Thinking Machine," but you are not likely to have pictured in your mind's eye the man who has been called Frost as the last word in dandyism. He is a very Beau Brummel of sleuths, whose silk hat, (for he has sported a "topper" and the accompanying frock coat since he became head of the "C. I. D.") is ironed to absolute perfection, whose "vest slip," glossy patent leathers and suede spats make the king's look dowdy when, is frequently happens, His Majesty and the superintendent sit on view simultaneously, and who is said to be able to roll up the king sent for Frost, about hands with him and voiced his regret at his coming retirement. The royal favour had been manifested in a more substantial way, for on New Year's Day last, simultaneously with the conferment of certain decorations, knighthoods and other honors, the much-coveted Distinguished Service Order was conferred on Frost, whose decorations for one thing and another would make a double row across even his broad chest if he cared to wear them all at one time.

"Debonair" is the word that best describes the superintendent. The strength and bulging grip that have carried him—not without some nasty stabs and slashes—through life and death tussles with thieves, murderers and maniacs are masked behind the sleek, well-fed appearance of a jovial clubman, and this effect his dancing blue eyes, which, however, can harden pitilessly, his cocky little moustache, and his close-shaven cranium combine to heighten. His hands are manicured so carefully as those of a Fifth Avenue dandy, but they are as deceptive as the rest of his appearance of careless bonhomie, for the strength of steel is in them and they can bend a spruce or tear a pack of cards in two. Yet it is wrong to say that "Frankie" Frost's air of an out-and-out "good son" is deceptive, except as appearing to indicate a soft-living man of whom it would be easy to get the upper hand, for even the big, bad men who have landed in "quod" will tell you that he is one of the best.

His Hardest Fight

The fight the man has had! The tough customers who have had to knock under to his Porthos-like strength! He finally put the bracelets on one man after a tussle that lasted all over a first class compartment of an express train, and even after he was handcuffed, this thug managed to raise an iron footwarmer between his manacled wrists and tried to brain the detective with it. Perhaps the liveliest fight of Frost's whole life, however, was against an American cowboy who already had six murders against him, and who did his level best to make the killing of Frost constitute a seventh.

This was early in the detective's career. This bad man's name was Kuhne, and he hailed from Primrose City, Wisconsin. The murders he was wanted for were particularly brutal ones. After committing them Kuhne signed on a cattle boat bound for Liverpool. At Queenstown, Frost, who then was unknown to fame, put off in a small boat, met the cattle boat and climbed up over her side. There were men on deck and one of them was a giant, inches taller than Frost, who is not much over medium height.

"Is your name Kuhne?" said Frost to the big man, drawing his bow at a venture.

"That?" was the answer. "Oh, no!"

But Frost saw that he had got his man. "I'm a police officer," he snarled, and instantly the giant drew a bowie-knife and jumped at him. Over on the deck they rolled, clamped together, struggling furiously. Up and down they went, the cowboy jabbing his knife through the detective's clothing and trying to grip the throat. But gradually the Scotland Yard man's strength wore down his man, and that is why there is not a seventh notch in the bill of the "stick" that now lies on Frost's mantel-piece.

It was characteristic of him that I had to drag the details of this affair out of him bit by bit. He was much more in his element when describing a picturesque little sequel to the adventure.

"We let them know in Wisconsin that we had Kuhne under lock and key," said Frost, "and the sheriff of his town came over to take him home. Oddly enough, though he came from Primrose City, he declared he never had seen a primrose in his life, and it seemed to be the thing —after Kuhne—that he most wanted to see over here. Well, it wasn't the season for primroses, so I sent him some seeds, which refused to come up. Then I sent him some young plants, but they died en route, so the best I could do was to send the sheriff some dried primroses, and he was pleased almost to pieces."

Telling this story recalled another American sheriff—a Kentucky one, this time, to Frost, and incidentally the history of the Smith & Weston which keeps company with Tom O'Brien's Colt on his mantel-piece.

"I got a man in London for this sheriff," said Frost, ignoring the details of what must have been another exciting capture, "who had killed somebody in a lunatic asylum in Kentucky, and the sheriff gave me his gun as a souvenir. This man was one of the deep, silent kind, and I warned the sheriff and his assistant to look after him carefully when they got to the States. 'If he jumps overboard while you're going across,' I said, 'well, he'll be dead and that's up to him. But look out when you touch land! Well, do you know what in spite of my warning them, he gave them the slip at New York, and when he awoke, got away with two bags belonging to the sheriff, and they never saw him again! The burly superintendent checked at the recollection. "What happened to them when they got home," he asked, "God knows."

THE NEW BRUNSWICK EXPERIMENTAL FARM

(Fredericton, Glanier)

At least twenty acres of the front of the new Dominion Experimental Farm here will be reserved for orchard work, according to the plans of Prof. W. T. MacCoun, the Dominion horticulturist, who was here from Ottawa.

Prof. MacCoun was particularly impressed with the location of the farm for orcharding, and expects that some fine work upon that line will be carried out when operations are in full swing. He also asked that arrangements be made to have an acre put in shape this fall for nursery, for ornamental trees and shrubs.

It is proposed to send 1,000 shrubs of various kinds likely to succeed here and have them tested out in this climate. Those which remain healthy will be used in the ornamental work on the farm, it being the practice to have exceptionally artistic landscape effects worked out on the various farms of the Dominion Experimental Farm system.

Near the grove in the middle of the Quarter property, which now forms part of the farm, boring for a well will soon start. The water supply on the property is really all on the lower levels, and inasmuch as it is felt advisable to have the farm built on the higher ground.

The barn on the Quarter property is now being repaired and will soon be in good shape to house the horses and other livestock of the farm. It is expected that the only building erected this fall will be an office building, which is needed immediately, inasmuch as none of the buildings on the property are fit for carrying on the work which will be getting more extensive and important all the time. The fall ploughing work has been started and is now well under way, and the work of clearing land will be actively followed up as long as weather conditions make it possible for the work to go on.

SPORT NEWS OF A DAY; HOME AND ABROAD

Baseball Now Three to One. The St. Louis Nationals defeated the St. Louis Americans 10 to 6 in the game yesterday. The standing of the series for the city championship is 3 to 1 in favor of the Nationals.

Only One More Needed. The Chicago Nationals won an easy game from the White Sox yesterday by the score of 8 to 1. This is the third game that the Cubs have won in the series for city championship and another win, today will make them champions.

The Ring Ketchell and Brown. Chicago, Oct. 14.—Steve Ketchell, local light weight, has been signed up for another battle that should test his merit. His manager, Barney Lichtenstein, has signed articles of agreement for him to meet Knockout Brown of New York in St. Joseph, Mo., on November 7.

Walsh and Kilbane. Boston, Oct. 14.—Another bout is likely to be held in this city between Jimmy Walsh and Johnny Kilbane, bantam weight champion of the world. Kilbane's manager, Jimmy Dunn, has agreed to the bout which will probably be staged on October 30. The last bout at the Elgin A. A. between these boys proved to be the greatest contest ever staged in this city, both boxes having wonderful skill and great speed.

Champion's Good Work. Walter R. Knox, all-round champion of Canada, returned last week after his second trip to the professional games in Scotland. He brings with him seventy-two prizes, of which thirty-nine were firsts, fifteen seconds, seventeen thirds, and one fourth. These he won at twenty-three meets. Last year he won a total of 114 prizes, but completed at seventy meets. He was never unplaced this year, and during his athletic pilgrimage set no less than twenty new field pole vault records and one record with the shot. He wound up his pole vaulting by setting up a new Scotch pole record of eleven feet eight inches. For this latter feat he received from the shot the emblem of the Scottish championship.

Knox created a sensation in Scotland by beating Alex. Cameron, the Scottish champion weight man. He beat him putting the shot at Bridge of Allan games, one of the best meets in Scotland. The feat is all the more wonderful when it is considered that Cameron weighs 200 pounds while Knox tips the scale at 150. Knox tossed the shot forty-four feet to beat Cameron. At the Alva meet, in an exhibition throw he got it forty-six feet five inches.

McKenzie, the Scotch all-round champion, refused to meet Knox in a contest for the title. If he had, Knox would have been a one to five shot, for he can beat McKenzie at everything except the hammer. Knox will return to Scotland in a month to look after four sprinters who are entering for the Powderhall Marathon. He will also have a miller under his care.

UNGRATEFUL BRUTE. It was a very hot day and a picnic had been arranged by the United Society of Lady Vegetarians.

They were comfortably seated and waiting for the kettle to boil, when, horror of horrors! a savage bull appeared on the scene.

Immediately a wild rush was made for safety, while the raging creature bounded after one lady who, unfortunately, had had her parcel. By good fortune she nipped over the stile before it could reach her. Then, regaining her breath, she turned and said, "Oh, you ungrateful creature!" she exclaimed. "There have I been a vegetarian all my life. There's gratitude for you!"

MONCTON PLEA FOR TECHNICAL SCHOOL THERE

(Moncton Transcript) Moncton probably needs the establishment of technical classes in teaching subjects in association with its educational system, more than any other point within this province outside of the city of St. John.

The high school system of our province instead of being merely an institution to fit young people for the professions, should also have allied with it a new curriculum or course of education, fitting the pupils for the commercial and industrial pursuits in life.

The enormous expansion in the use of machinery as applied to the industries of the day, has created an absolutely unmet demand in a growing country like Canada for skilled labor, trained along the scientific and technical side of such employment.

The machinery, which the most ordinary workman to day, is called upon occasionally to use, is becoming so complicated and valuable, that a standing increasing trained intelligence is needed in its operation and management.

A few years ago a blacksmith, for example would use a heavy sledge hammer to weld and fashion the heated iron, but today in many an institution large hammers worked by electricity, are employed, which cost thousands and tens of thousands of dollars each.

Pieces of iron are picked up, weighing thirty tons and over and three or four men will by the aid of machinery, manipulate this huge block and beat it into the shape required.

This requires intelligence, an intellect trained to no small degree, and as human invention advances, so too will the need of technical education increase.

The idea of a technical school is not that the young shall be trained as workmen and turned out as finished workmen, but that they shall have the advantage of their higher education being directed along lines associated with the prospective life's work, and incidentally that they will be cared for during that period when all them would not be eligible for admission in industrial establishments.

A further suggestion, worthy of consideration in this country's judgment, is whether or not a given number of years spent in a technical college or school ought or ought not to be recognized by the organizations as equivalent to a given period of practical apprenticeship.

It seems as if there should be no difficulty in solving this problem if the intelligent men of the head of these organizations would give their thought to solving the problem contingent upon the needs of the future as well as the needs of the present.

Industrial drawing too should form no minor portion of the curriculum on the technical side of the future high school development.

As showing what the Montreal Technical Institute is doing in the commercial metropolitan through evening classes in technical subjects, the following extracts from the list of courses contained in an advertisement, may be of more than passing interest.

1. Preparatory course in English and Arithmetic. 2. Practical Mathematics, as required in Industrial Work. 3. Mechanical Drawing. 4. Architectural Drawing. 5. Freehand Drawing. 6. Industrial Designing. 7. Applied Mechanics. 8. Theory of Structures. 9. Machine Construction. 10. Building Construction. 11. Metal Work. 12. Electrotechnics. 13. Chemistry (with individual laboratory work) Elementary and Advanced. 14. House Carpentry. 15. Pattern Making. 16. Cookery. (In four school centres). 17. Sewing and Dressmaking. 18. Millinery.

CHECK FOR $3,150,000 Payment of the Advance Inheritance Tax on Astor Estate

Albany, Oct. 15.—A check for $3,150,000 has been received by State Comptroller Solmer, in payment of the advance inheritance tax on the estate of Colonel John Jacob Astor who perished on the Titanic. The temporary tax was paid at this time in order to get the 5 per cent rebate allowed by law if payment is made within six months after death. This rebate is equivalent to $150,000.

The temporary tax represents an estate of about $80,000,000, although the final tax will not be fixed until after the entire estate, estimated at $90,000,000, has been appraised. The appraisers expect to complete their work within six weeks, they pay for it.

A well-known lawyer in Vienna went out to post a letter recently and as he was pushing it through the slit of a street letter box a large silver ring on his finger caught and held fast. All efforts to free him were fruitless. In ten minutes a large crowd had gathered and the unfortunate lawyer was the object of considerable chaffing. Policemen were unable to aid him, for they did not dare meddle with a letter box. It was not until authority was obtained from the head of the postoffice that workmen were allowed to unstick the box and take it to pieces, and so release the lawyer.

TELL OF BROTHERS THREATENING TO TAKE THEIR LIVES

Actions of Loch Lomond Man Recounted in Court by Brother and Others

The preliminary hearing in the case against William C. Brothers, charged with threatening lives of people at Loch Lomond, and carrying a loaded revolver, was begun in the police court before Magistrate Ritchie this morning.

James Brothers, a brother of the defendant, said that his brother had threatened to kill him several times, that only a week ago as the witness was driving near his home in Golden Grove, William held him up and, drawing a pistol, said he would shoot him and the horse. He followed the witness to his home, where he forced an entrance. Mr. Brothers was inside and the defendant, with an open knife in his hand, threatened to tear off her clothes. He threatened things apart. The witness said that on frequent occasions during the last three months his life had been threatened by his brother.

Mrs. Brothers told of the defendant calling at the house several times and threatening to kill her. She said that about a week ago he went to the house after following her husband home and went through the house, taking things apart. The same night he called and tried to get into the house. He had his revolver. The people in the house became frightened, so the witness prepared to go to a neighbor's to get assistance. Brothers saw her and said that he would shoot her if she went outside the door.

Catherine Slaven, who was in Mr. Brothers' home this night, told of the defendant's actions, jumping in the air, screaming and trying to tear down the porch. She said she was afraid of Brothers.

During the hearing the defendant sat in a chair, gazing around the room. When asked by the magistrate if he wanted to question any of the witnesses he said that he might make a mistake if he did and said that he would get a lawyer. When one of the prisoners was taken to the court Brothers jumped up and shook hands with him and gave him all sorts of advice. He has been examined by a physician and is now remanded until the first Tuesday in November.

ROSES IN OCTOBER
"Gather ye rosebuds while ye may Old Time is still a-flying." On this fifteenth day of October, in his garden in Elliot Row, George A. Knodell plucked a lovely rose, almost full blown, and brought it to the editorial desk of the Times. In fulness and color it rivals the rose of June, and exudes the same delicious perfume. This is no hothouse flower, but a rose of the garden, blooming in the delightful autumn climate of St. John. And there are still some people who think this is the original home of the iceberg.
