WHALING VOYAGE OVER FOR SEASON

The whaler Cabot which with the 'Cachet' had been at work all summer off the Funks with headquarters at Beaverton, gave up the fishery during the week. Both ships secured about 75 whales but would have done much better had they not been handicapped with bad weather for some weeks in the early part of the season.

The herring fishery is now in full swing at Bay of Islands, some 12 American vessels being in the Middle Arm awaiting cargoes while two have already sailed for market. Many buyers are on the spot and offering $2 per barrel from the net and $1.50 per barrel f.o.b. Curling. Owing to the competition it is expected the price will advance in a few days. The waste this season will be smaller than ever, as the fishermen

NEWS OF THE WORLD.

New York, Nov. 14.—Two bandits shot and killed two bank messengers in the subway station at 119th Street and New York Ave., Brooklyn, this morning, and escaped with forty-three thousand dollars.

Canso, Nov. 12.—The Newfoundland schooner Lizzie Divan, from P. S. I. for Newfoundland with produce, struck Cernusca Rock off Archibald and sank to her decks losing practically all her deckload. The steamer Robert G. Cann came along in time to tow the schooner into Archibald and take off her crew of four.

Athens, Nov. 12.—King George will comply with the request made by the military republican faction that he leave Greece for a brief period pending clearing of the general situation.

ITEMS OF NEWS.

We are glad to see Mr. Walter J. Mercer, who has been suffering from a broken leg, out and around again.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel White, who have lived in Allston, Mass., for a number of years, arrived by Thursday night's train.

The St. John's Grand Jury found a True Bill against Laura Pye, of Crocker's Cove, Carbonear, who is charged with the death of her infant child.

The Milton, with 175,000 bushels of wheat left here on November 7th for Queenstown. No further particulars were given.

There was considerable snow on the Gaff Topsails last week, and one day it was up to the draw bar of the engine along the railway track.

Ku Klux Klan

ONE of the strange developments of our day is the growth and spread of the Ku Klux Klan. The Klan first came into being in the Southern States as a protest and protection against the lawlessness and anarchy of reconstruction days following the civil war between the North and the South.

For a time immediately after the close of the war, during what is known as the carpet bag regime in the states which had constituted the Southern Confederacy, not only white supremacy but also property and personal rights were maintained by vigilance bands, on account, partially at least, of the demoralization or absence of recognized law courts. It was during these troubled days that the original Ku Klux Klan was formed.

With the return of more settled conditions, and the reestablishment of legal machinery, the Klan finally disbanded and disappeared except as a subject for writers of fiction. Since the close of the World War, the Klan idea has been revived and enlarged and has spread with surprising rapidity all over the United States, and efforts at least have been made to extend its membership into Canada.

The excuse given for the revival of this secret organization stands as an indictment against civilization. We are told by its advocates that law court methods of obtaining justice are too slow, that justice is perverted by powerful influences, and that democracy is being assailed by invisible agencies that are working from within and threaten to destroy it. PRIME MINISTER'S HONORED.

Word was received from England on Nov. 13th, that Prime Minister Warren was the recipient, with the Canadian Prime Minister, of the degree of "Doctor of Law" from the University of Edinburgh.

The two overseas Dominions, Newfoundland and Canada, have reason to be proud that this honor has been conferred upon their representatives.

London, Nov. 14.—Dissatisfaction with the decision of the government to hold an immediate election is manifest on all sides. The views expressed by press and public today indicate that the idea of an election is extremely unpopular. Disinclination to take a poll of the electorate on the protection question is manifested by all parties. Government supporters reluctantly acquiesce, while their political opponents are disgusted and resentful. Some comments are vicious and Premier Baldwin is charged with unexampled levity, shabby manoeuvring, trickiness and with having lapsed from the tradition, honour and decency of British public life.

There are a number of new buildings being erected in various sections of this town. It is an indication that, despite the depressive gloom which hangs over the land, there are some optimistic enough to see better times ahead.

The Meth. School at Bay Roberts East has been divided into a Primary and Superior Department school. The Superior Dept. is in charge of Mr. Fred Hilliard, while Miss Clara Badcock has been recently appointed to the Primary Dept.

32ND ANNIVERSARY OF

C. L. B. CADETS

Last Sunday, November 11th, St. Martin's Day, the Church Lads' Brigade celebrated its 32nd birthday.

It was founded by Lieut.-Col. Gee on this date in 1891. Today its Companies are at work throughout the whole British Empire.

The object of the Brigade is as follows:—The advancement of all classes, the promotion of reverence discipline and self-respect and all that tends to imbue true Christian manliness.

Newfoundland had the honor of enrolling the first Overseas Company in 1892. This was due to Sergeant Harold R. Blackler, whose regimental number was 101.

The Content Company was organized August 10th, 1920, known officially as St. Mary's Company No. 2904.

The first drill master was Sergeant George Cockshott, of the Nfld. Constabulary. The first entertainment was organized by Lady Bowering, in April 1893, and among the performers were Captain Melville, the late James Smith, organist of the Mission Church, Misses McKay, Mary Bremner and Mrs. West and Messrs C. McKenzie Harvey, W. H. Rennie, Fred L. Marriott, and W. H. Green.

Captain N. Snow, now of Bowering Brothers, organized the Band. The first permanent Armoury headquarters was on Kings Road, now Parson's garage. This was secured for the Brigade by Sir Joseph Outerbridge the Brigade's first Colonel.

The Armoury on Harvey Road was built by Lieut.-Col. R. G. Rendell, who also established the C.L.B. Savings Bank. This building is valued at $40,000 today.

Mr. Bernard G. Mercer, of the Bank of Nova Scotia, St. John's, spent the week-end here with his parents Mr. and Mrs. H. N. Mercer.

Mrs. Alex Gordon and family, who have been residing in Canso, N.S., for some time, arrived during the week and will spend the winter months here.

Miss Essie Parsons spent the week-end here with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Parsons. She returned to St. John's by Monday evening's train.

Mrs. William Parsons, who has been receiving treatment at the Hospital, St. John's, returned home by Tuesday's noon train and is very much improved.

Mrs. P. J. O'Leary and family left here recently for New York, where they will join Mr. O'Leary, who has severed his connections with the Western Union Telegraph Co. to take a position there. The good wishes of many friends follow them to their new home.

The lazy bent of his mind, which prevented him from thinking of half a dozen things at a time, and not thinking thoroughly of any one of them, as is the manner of your more energetic people, made him remarkably clear-sighted upon any point to which he ever gave his serious attention.

Indeed, after all, though solemn benches laughed at him, and rising barristers shrugged their shoulders under rustling silk gowns, when people spoke of Robert Audley, I doubt if, had he ever taken the trouble to get a brief, he might not have rather surprised the magnates who underrated his abilities.

CHAPTER XII.

STILL MISSING

THE September sunlight sparkled upon the fountain in the Temple Gardens when Robert Audley returned to Figue Court early the following morning.

He found the canaries singing in the pretty little room in which George had slept, but the apartment was in the same prim order in which the landress had arranged in after the departure of the two young men—not a chair displaced, or as much as the lid of a cigar-box lifted, to bespeak the presence of George Talboys. With a last lingering hope, he searched upon the mantelpiece and tables of his rooms, on the chance of finding some letter left by George.

"He may have slept here last night, and started for Southampton early this morning," he thought. "Mrs. Maloney has been here, very likely, to make everything tidy after him."

But as he sat looking lazily around the room, now and then whistling to his delighted canaries, a slipshod foot upon the staircase without bespoke the advent of that very Mrs. Maloney who waited upon the two young men.

No Mr. Talboys had not come home, she had looked in as early as six o'clock that morning, and found the chambers empty.

"Had anything happened to the poor, dear gentleman?" she asked, seeing Robert Audley's pale face.

He turned around upon her quite savagely at this question.

Happened to him! What should happen to him? They had only parted at two o'clock the day before.

Mrs. Maloney would have related to him the history of a poor dear young engine driver, who had once lodged with her, and who went out after eating a hearty dinner in the best of spirits, to meet with his death from the concussion of an express and a luggage train; but Robert put on his hat again, and walked straight out of the house before the honest Irishwoman could begin her pitiful story.

It was growing dusk when he reached Southampton. He knew his way to the poor little terrace of houses, in a full street leading down to the water, where George's father-in-law lived. Little Georgy was playing at the open parlor window as the young man walked down the street.

Perhaps it was this fact, and the dull and silent aspect of the house, which filled Robert Audley's mind with a vague conviction that the man he came to look for was not there. The old man himself opened the door, and the child peeped out of the parlor to see the strange gentleman.

He was a handsome boy, with his father's brown eyes and dark waving hair, and with some faint expression which was not his father's and which pervaded his whole face so that although each feature of the child resembled the same feature in George Talboys, the boy was not actually like him.

Mr. Malton was delighted to see Robert Audley; he remembered having had the pleasure of meeting him at Ventnor, on the melancholy occasion of— He wiped his watery old eyes by way of conclusion to sentence. Would Mr. Audley walk in? Robert strode into the parlor.

The furniture was shabby and dingy and the place reeked with the smell of stale tobacco and brandy and water. The boy's broken playthings and the old man's broken clay pipes and torn, brand and water-stained newspapers were scattered upon the dirty carpet. Little Georgy crept toward the visitor, watching him furtively out of his big, brown eyes. Robert took the boy on his knee, and gave him his watch chain to play with while he talked to the old man.

"I need scarcely ask the question that I came to ask," he said; "I was in hopes I should have found your son-in-law here."

"What! you knew that he was coming to Southampton?"

"Knew that he was coming?" cried Robert, brightening up. "He is here, then?"

"No he is not here now, but he has been here."

"When?"

"Late last night; he came by mail."

"And left it immediately?"

"No, he stayed here."

"Good Heaven!" said Robert, "what useless anxiety that man has given me! What can be the meaning of all this?"

"You knew nothing of his intention then?"

"Of what intention?"

"I mean of his determination to go to Australia."

"I know that it was always in his mind more or less, but not more just now than usual."

"He sails tonight from Liverpool. He came here at one o'clock this morning to have a look at the boy, he said, before he left England, perhaps never to return. He told me he was sick of the world, and that the rough life out there was the only thing to suit him. He stayed an hour, kissed the boy without awaking him, and left Southampton by mail that starts at a quarter-past two."

CARTWRIGHT, LABRADOR

Wednesday, Mar. 12th.

Fine again after a very stormy night. Holy Communion, 7.30. Willie Shiwak took me up on the narrows, so that I was able to rest my team for a day. First call at Mulloox. Had a very welcome feed of seal-meat. Service, 12.0. Ran on to Cul de Sac to visit the Shiwaks, and here Willie left me. I arranged with Wilfrid Shiwak to join my service for twelve months. Ever since the sickness, I have felt the need of a man, and have made up my mind to try and keep one. Wilfrid is a strong young chap of nineteen, and like all the Esquimaux round these parts, loyal and contented. Fixed up for him to meet me at North West River at the beginning of April, and drive me home to Cartwright with his father's team. I intend to keep a small team of my own. For the night, I went on to Carawalla, the headquarters of the Esquimaux. At Evensong, I baptised a little baby. Willie tells me we ran a great risk crossing the run yesterday

Thursday, Mar. 13th.

Bitterly cold morning. Vapour flying along the run in clouds. The boys ran me and my sleeping bag as far as Cul de Sac. Our turnout consisted of three tiny puppies, barely three months old, and one old and one old dog. The little fellows galloped along with their tails stuck straight up. Our run was barely a mile. I bargained with one of the boys for two of the pups, a little white bitch named Leader and a dog named Speed. With old Turk, my team now numbers three. I left the pups until I returned from North. Wilfrid took me on to Rigolet, where I rejoined Dick about noon. After dinner we drove on to Double Mer. I put up for the night, with George Goudie. Evensong, 7.30.

Friday, Mar. 14th.

Holy Communion, 7.30. Very cold morning, wind N.W. Slow going out of Double Mer. Met a half-frozen party thawing out by a fire at the side of the woods near Jewel's Pt. Reached Ticooralak about 1.0. Here I met our Northern catechist-teacher, Isaac Batten, who has had a terrible winter with the sickness. He was in fine spirits about it all, but one knew that he had suffered greatly. The people spoke very highly of his work. Evensong, 7.30.

Saturday, Mar. 15th.

Another stormy, cold day. Set off about 8.0, and made first call at Fox Cove. Left again about 1.0, and made our destination at Rocky Cove about 3.0. One always has a most entertaining host in old Arthur Rich. It just happened that this our bring up for a week-end last year.

Sunday, Mar. 16th.

A windy morning. Mattins, 10.0. About noon, young Arthur arrived from Rigolet, in company with two other teams. After dinner had a children's service at Joe Rich's. The weather cleared up in the evening and a beautiful night resulted. Tomorrow is St. Patrick's day. Will he take the cold stone out of the water?

Monday, Mar. 17th.

Much milder. Paddy has done it! A fine day. Left Rocky Cove about 8.0 and ran out to Bluff Head. Spent a couple of hours here. Poor Tom Oliver dying of consumption. Prayers, 12.0. Took some very bad going across the land to Rattler's Bight. Charlie Allen told me all about the death of his wife. The old chap looks very lonely. Evensong, 7.30. Sky clouding over, and looking weatherish.

Tuesday, Mar. 18th.

Very mild with some rain. Holy Communion, 8.0. Went out to Tilt Brook Pond, and very nearly missed finding the house. It was only by chance that Dick spotted the top of the stove-pipes poking up out of the snow. How these folk manage to live in such a bleak spot always mystifies me. Steve Newall was gone North with the mail, so that I had no one to pilot me over the 30 miles of snow desert to Bob's Brook, which is my terminus in this direction. Leaving after dinner we retraced our steps to Pottle's Bay, and put up here for the night. At Evensong, I received a girl of sixteen. Proceedings were considerably embarrassed by a puppy hauling off my stole and a cat licking up the water in the basin. All the men from this place and the last mentioned were (after many years of practice) found guilty last summer of robbery. Little or no punishment was laid upon them, and they received in the fall a full winter's diet direct from the government in Newfoundland.

Wednesday, Mar. 19th.

Still mild. Going vastly improved. Left Pottle's Bay and ran very quickly to Rocky Cove. Here I heard that the doctor was on his way outside, and was hourly expected. A few minutes after leaving we met his team on the bay, and thus were only able to exchange greetings. Reached Ticooralak about 2.0, and unharassed for the night. Was unable to have any service as I was suffering from a touch of snow blindness. Our wholeboise is now of great value, and slips along without and effort on the part of the dogs.

Misses Ellie Shea and Kitty Kenally, of the Avalon Telephone Co., Carbonear, spent a few days here recently.

Hard Work Means Success

There never was a goal worth getting but you must work to attain. You must suffer and bleed for it, cling to your creed for it. Fall and go at it again.

Success is no whim of the moment, no crown for the indolent brow. You must battle and try for it, offer to die for it; Lose it yet win it somehow.

The Pathway to glory is rugged, and many the heart-aches you'll know. He who seeks to be master must rise from disaster. Must take as he giveth the blow.

There's no royal highway to splendour, no short cut to fortune or fame. You must fearlessly fight for it, dare to be right for it, Failing, yet playing the game.

The test of man's merit is trouble, the proof of his work is distress. Much as you long for it, man must be strong for it, Work is the door to success.

NOTICE

To Owners and Masters of British Ships

The attention of Owners and Masters of British Ships is called to the 74th Section of the "Merchant Shipping Act, 1894."

75.—(1) A Ship belonging to a British Subject shall hoist the proper national colors—
 (a) on a signal made to her by one of His Majesty's ships, including any vessel under the command of an officer of His Majesty's navy or full pay, and
 (b) on entering or leaving any foreign port and
 (c) if of fifty tons gross tonnage or upwards, on entering or leaving any British Port.

(2) If default is made on board any ship in complying with this section the master of the ship shall for each offence be liable to a fine not exceeding one hundred pounds.

At time of war it is necessary for every British Ship to hoist the colours and heave to if signalled by a British Warship; if a vessel hoists no colours and runs away, it is liable to be fired upon.

RULES FOR Making Cod Liver Oil For the Guidance of Manufacturers

- 1st. The manager in charge of factory must see that the livers are fresh; that all brown or poor livers are thrown out; that there is no gall bladder attached to any livers.
 - 2nd. The good livers must then be washed in a tub of clean fresh water.
 - 3rd. The pan in which the livers are boiled must be perfectly clean inside, before any livers are placed in it.
 - 4th. Before you start to boil any livers, you must have sufficient steam.
 - 5th. Turn on the steam, and use as much as you need to have for the quantity of livers you have in your pan. Boil until the white scum floats off (which will take about thirty minutes.) Don't forget to stir the livers, and see that those in the bottom and those around the sides are brought into direct contact with the steam all the time.
 - 6th. Turn the steam off, and allow all to settle, not exceeding five minutes, according to capacity of liver boiler.
 - 7th. Then you dip all the oil you can get, which is the finest white oil. Put this oil in a cooling tank made of galvanized iron, and let the oil remain there till next morning. Don't forget to put a straining cloth over the cooling tank before you put any oil in, so that it will catch any bits of blubber; allow to remain 12 or 14 hours or longer if possible, then dip from cooling tank and strain through double calico bag, inside bag to be one inch smaller all around; then strain into a tin shut under the bags, the cask to be at the end of the shut with a funnel, to lead oil into casks, which funnel to be covered with cheese cloth.
 - 8th. When you have dipped the finest oil from the top of the liver boiler pan, take all the blubber from the pan while it is warm. The oil from this blubber is not fit for medicinal purposes.
 - 9th. Then clean your liver pan with warm water and washing powder. Have it bright and clean for the next boiling.
 - 10th. Every bag, cloth, tank, funnel and pan, must be washed only with warm water, soap and water. Soda must not be used.
- The best results for medical oil can only be obtained by the use of tin barrels. Wooden packages generally make the oil dark, and destroy its fine flavor. Keep all oil in barrels in a cool place, and covered from the sun.

REGULATIONS For Salting Scotch Pack Herring

One barrel salt to five and a half barrels herring—Large Fulls
One barrel salt to six barrels herring—Medium Fulls.
One barrel salt to six and a half barrels herring—Matt Fulls.
This amount of salt is for dredging and laying on rows only. It does not take into account that put on the herring before gibbing. All salt falling off herring in rousing tubs is put on rows as you pack, unless very dirty or scaly; in that case, you have to make good the same amount, or otherwise you could not have any fixed rule on salt.

Matt Fulls..... 10 1/2 inches long..... Milt or roe
Medium Fulls..... 11 1/2 inches long..... Milt or roe
Large Fulls..... 12 1/2 inches long and upwards..... Milt or roe
Medium Filling..... 11 1/2 inches long and upward
Large Filling..... 12 1/2 inches long and upwards
Filling Fish may be branded as Scotch Cure without the Crown Brand

No downed, stale, or scaleless herring can be used as Scotch Pack, nor herring in half frozen state.

The root cause of light salting is to come as near as possible to the pleasing of the palate of the consumer; and if we bear in mind that over three-fourths of all Scotch-Pack Herring are consumed as a tonic before the mid-day meal, just as they come out of the barrel, without any fire cooking, we can see the reason at a glance for the right salting. The herring is dressed by the head and the tail being cut off, the main bone taken out. It is then cut into squares of about one inch, and is served with vinegar and other condiments. This gives power to the stomach to digest the following meal and keeps the consumer in the best of health.

People with bad stomachs please note that the art of cooking and eating right is just as essential as the art of curing; and based on the best medical directions, and with the chemical analysis of the constituent parts of herring as a food ever kept before the consumer, we need not be surprised that the people who eat most herring are the most healthy and efficient.

BIG WORLD EVENTS: THEIR SIGNIFICANCE.

by William Banks.

In some quarters there is a disposition to defend the decision of France against beginning the liquidation of her war debt, on the ground that she cannot do so until Germany meets her reparations obligations. This would be an almost unanswerable argument were it not for the fact that France has loaned some three hundred and ten million dollars to a number of countries in Central Europe, and proposes to add ninety million dollars to that amount. Such countries as Czechoslovakia, Jugoslavia, Roumania, Poland and a number of the new Russian States have been all beneficiaries of the open purse which France maintains for them, but not for the Allies who made such enormous sacrifices on her behalf in the Great War. These loans are made in pursuance of a policy which France describes as "preparing for the national defence of France abroad." In other words, France will look to these countries to assist her in the event of her becoming engaged in another European war. In every instance the loans have been made conditional upon the countries named spending the money in purchases from France, and for the greater part the money has been spent for war material. Nevertheless, French military experts are of opinion that very few of these countries and states will be one hundred per cent. efficient in a military sense for a number of years, and that expenditures must continue.

There is this much to be said in favor of the French policy of making loans to Central European nations with the proviso that they make their purchases in France: there is no unemployment in the country. All able-bodied French workers have something to do. Naturally, any opposition or criticism of Premier Poincaré's policy, either on German reparations or on the question of payment of external debt, is dulled. Poincaré, who has been described as a single-track mind man, is obviously sincere in his belief that France is pursuing the right policy with respect to Germany. There is little hope that the French Government will be persuaded to accept any other attitude than that it has now adopted. Therefore the inter-allied Conference idea will not start out with rosy prospects for any settlement which would show to Germany that the other powers are united in policy. Germany must pay, and the conviction of that nation that their interests in her does not mean that she is to be allowed to escape the penalty of her sins. It is increasingly evident that while France might enjoy the spectacle of a broken Germany, the rest of the world would suffer materially.

The expected has taken place in Turkey where the National Assembly has voted for the establishment of a Republic, with Kemal Pasha as the first president. His election was unanimous. In any event there would have been very little opposition to him on account of the thoroughness of his victories over the Greeks, and also, no doubt, because opponents of the militaristic policy in Turkey have a way of disappearing and never coming back. The real task confronting Kemal Pasha, who has another soldier, Ismet Pasha, as Premier, and their government, is the restoration of Turkey within itself as a trading country. A very bad start to the attainment of this essential of national life has been made by the deportation of such Armenians, Greeks, Syrians and other Nationals who have survived the systematic massacres. These were the workers and traders to whom Turkey owes and prospers by which she has.

President Coolidge of the United States is keeping his eye on election possibilities. One of the greatest elements of dissatisfaction in his own country is the agricultural population. The enormous wheat crop and the low prices for the same have led to many proposals for the tiding of the agriculturists over a disturbing period. The latest plan is that all the exportable surplus of wheat should be handled by the War Finance Corporation and shipped to Europe without loss of time, the farmers being guaranteed a fixed amount in any event with additional sums if the prices realized overseas should exceed that fixed amount. Fear of the Canadian, Argentine and Russian wheat surpluses has added to the influences brought to bear on the Washington administration in favor of the farmers. It is a rather uprising development, however, that Canadian flour is giving American flour sharp competition in the German market. Its quality and the less exacting arrangements for payment being responsible.

South American Republics are not always regarded as models of progress. Bolivia however, has just passed a law which has been long talked of by northern countries, proud of their advancement in civilization. This enacts that parties to intended marriages must produce certificates showing them to be in good health. It also provides penalties for evasion of prohibitory clauses against the marriages of persons suffering from tuberculosis and other contagious diseases. In this, as in other matters, there is always room for debate as to whether education or legislation is the best policy to be pursued. But it is interesting to find increasing evidence of a desire to build up healthy nationalities.

When the despatches announced the death of Bonar Law those who knew of the intense suffering he had undergone during the past two years or so, breathed a prayer of thankful ness. Death is often more merciful than life. Mr. Law, the first man from the overseas Dominions or possessions to be Premier of Britain, was dear to Canadians because he was a native of their country though most of his life had been spent in England. George and the accession of Premier Baldwin, his term of premiership, lasting only seven months, was filled with ability and dignity though all the time he was dying with cancer of the throat. He fought the malady bravely, and with the silent doggedness that was characteristic. He knew for a long time that there was no possible hope for recovery; yet he carried on in a time of great political and international stress believing it to be his duty to do so until the man to succeed him emerged. When Stanley Baldwin was accepted in inner circles as the logical successor, Mr. Law, who had urged him to assume the task, dropped out of public life. His was a life of usefulness and honor.

For several years slave raiders from Abyssinia have been reaping a harvest in the British Sudan and British Somaliland. These are not always Abyssinians. In many cases they are Arabs from various parts of the world who have taken advantage of somewhat chaotic conditions in Abyssinia to establish themselves at border points and defy both British and Abyssinian authority alike. Abyssinia, however, is responsible for allowing them to remain in her territory. They have recently conducted the greatest raid of their career into the Sudan, driving off hundreds of people and doing considerable damage. In past days a British punitive expedition would have dealt with them. Now it rather a matter for the League of Nations, Abyssinia having recently been admitted to that organization. It is not improbable that a joint expedition of Abyssinian and British will eventually deal with the slavers and stamp them out.

It is frequently asserted that Prohibition will not be a factor in the next United States election, as both parties will be anxious to eliminate it from controversy. Time alone will prove the truth of that contention. In the interim Governor Pinchot of Pennsylvania, who is a possibility as the Republican candidate for the presidency, is urging upon President Coolidge aggressive action for the enforcement of the law. Some of the Atlantic and northern border States have given the impression to Canadians and the rest of the world, that the rescinding of the Volstead Act—the prohibitory law—cannot long be delayed. It is, however, the opinion of most competent United States observers that this will never be done, though a number are prepared to admit that there may be some modification in favor of wine and beer. The interior States and the States of the south are represented as being determined for a variety of reasons to keep prohibition on the statute books. It is now certain that Britain will agree to the right of search on the seas within a limit beyond the three-mile limit now recognized by International law and take other steps to aid in the suppression of rum running. She will at the same time take steps to safeguard her three-mile limit rights, to that any modifications to aid in prohibition enforcement will not be a precedent for like action in other instances. The United States in turn will give British vessels the right to go into its ports with liquor under seal, for the use of passengers and crew on return voyages.

The proposition that articles admitted to Australia must contain 75 per cent. of British labor and material, in order to enjoy the preference, would be a rather hard blow against Canadian exports of motor cars, for one thing, if it is pressed Canada sent 17,700 motor cars to Australia in the year ending March last, compared with 4,000 in 1921. These compete with cars of British make. There are many angles to the preference idea.

MISSIONARY MEETING

On Wednesday night, Nov. 14th, the annual Missionary Meeting was held in St. Matthew's Church. The speakers of the evening were Rev. H. V. Whitehouse of Salmon Cove and E. C. Earp, of St. Thomas's, St. John's. The former gave an eloquent address based on the theme of self-sacrifice, while the latter followed up with a picture of life as is lived on the great Canadian prairie where the Rev. E. M. Bishop and he had been co-workers. He spoke of the time when emigration into Canada totalled 1000 per day and then the work of the Christian ministers of teaching them a true religion and to be new Canadians. To illustrate the work done by these ministers, at a tremendous self-sacrifice, he said that, at one time, the territory of Rev. E. M. Bishop was one thousand miles.

At the close of the service mission boxes were brought forward by the juvenile collectors.

ARMISTICE DAY SERVICE AT ST. MATTHEW'S CHURCH

St. Matthew's Church was the scene of a very impressive service on Armistice Day, November 11th. It happened that the fifth anniversary of the Proclamation of Peace, came on Sunday this year and by order of the Governor in Council, was also proclaimed as Thanksgiving Day.

The various Brigades attended the service in the following order: Church Lad's Brigade Band; Returned Soldiers and Sailors; Girl Guides; Church Lad's Brigade; Boy Scout Band; Boy Scouts.

Despite the inclemency of the weather on that occasion, the Brigades marched along in splendid military order in charge of Sergt. N. French (R. N. Regt.)

The splendid address delivered by Rev. E. M. Bishop was enjoyed and appreciated by a large congregation. Very solemn was the 2 minutes of silence observed at 11 o'clock, when the congregation stood reverently with bowed heads.

The service closed with the singing of the National Anthem, after which the Brigades formed up outside the church and paraded west to the Public Building, where each company broke off, returned to their halls and dismissed. The music was rendered by the C. L. B. and Scout Bands alternately.

Bonus on Codfish

In our last two issues we dealt with the result of our fishermen's operations for the past season, and gave our support to their request or demand for a Bonus to be paid on their catch of Codfish.

We did this because of existing conditions in connection with the catching and marketing of our Codfish. If the buyer and shipper is paying the fishermen all he can possibly afford to pay, and there has been no question of this raised by anybody this season, then the position of the fisherman is that from his standpoint the industry is an unprofitable one and he cannot afford to spend his time in unprofitable ventures.

Can the country then afford to allow this great staple industry to die out or decline in value any further than it has declined? We are certain it cannot.

With Labrador fish netting the fishermen about $3.50 a qtl., and with the cost of the fishing outfit what it is, and his living expenses during the winter what it will be, he contends that he cannot make two ends meet. Is there anything that can be done to help this present situation?

One thing at least can be done, something that was promised by both political leaders during the recent political campaign in anticipation of a situation arising in connection with the fishing industry that has actually come to pass. We refer to the Bonus that so many fishermen are asking the Government to pay in order that the fishery may be encouraged.

Last week we published an extract from Sir Richard Squires' Manifesto relating to this Bonus. This week we publish the extract from Mr. Bennett's Manifesto relating to the Bonus, which is as follows:

A BONUS ON FISH.

"But while ready to support this Humber industry I and my Party are not unmindful that the fisheries are the mainstay of this Island and its people, and that it will need more than a paper making enterprise to make up for the loss which any decline in our fishery will involve for the fifty or sixty thousand people shown by the last census to depend for their support on the pursuit practiced by their forebears for generations. During late years, though the mills at Grand Falls and the mines at Bell Island have helped somewhat to solve our industrial problem, they have been at best only auxiliaries to the fishery. Greater catches of fish were made, and higher prices realized, during the war years than ever before, and a return to those conditions, as far as that can be brought about, is what the country needs most today.

"We propose, therefore, to give those directly engaged in the fishing industry a bonus on their products - not to exceed one dollar a quintal - under conditions to be worked out as soon as possible after taking of fish, if we are elected; and to which the widest publicity will be given as to be available in connection with this season's catch. Other countries have found it feasible to grant bonuses to their fishermen, and I am satisfied that Newfoundland can do the same. I recognize that it will be contended by those against us that this is an impossible plan, but surely it would be better to spend public money in this way than to waste it on the Badger-Halls Bay road, or the Deer Lake-Bonne Bay road, or two years ago, or on any of the other 'wildcat' schemes on which this Government has wasted the substance of the taxpayers the past two or three years. The result of such a bonus, judiciously planned and properly applied, should be to stimulate the production of a better quality of fish, which in turn should mean increased prices for our product in the foreign markets, and this, again, should mean a larger return to the revenue through the purchase made by the fishermen; and as the status of the industry improved and prices advanced, the bonus could be gradually reduced and in time withdrawn altogether."

As we said last week, the promise made by Mr. Bennett of a bonus on their (those directly engaged in the fishing industry) products was "not to exceed one dollar a quintal."

We thank a reader for a copy of Mr. Bennett's Manifesto, from which we are enabled to reprint the paragraphs relating to "A Bonus on Fish."

A SAFE RECEPTACLE

Where the Skipper's Knife Was Found after Twelve Months.

(H. F. SHORTIS.)

After I had written an account of how the ring, belonging to one of the passengers of the ill-fated Anglo Saxon was found and restored to the family, through the exertions of the late Mr James H. Watson, owing to the four letters that were engraved thereon, I thought of a similar case as told me by the late Capt. Patrick Delaney of the S.S. Bruce, some years ago. I have every reason to believe that the story told me by Capt. Delaney was true. Few men were better known in Newfoundland than was Capt. Patrick Delaney who for years commanded the first 'Bruce' in her battles with the ice-floes across the Gulf. As has been truly said, Capt. Delaney had the best qualities of a Newfoundland seaman. Brave, persevering, modest, fearless, and with a thorough knowledge of his profession, through snow and sleet, ice and fog, he crossed and recrossed the Cabot Strait with as much regularity as the Mauretania crosses the Atlantic.

Capt. Delaney told me that when his father was a young man, one day he was fishing out of Bay Roberts in a small boat, and through some cause he lost his pocket knife, which disappeared in the waters of the bay. Of course the future famous seal-killer planter and Labrador pilot (Capt. Mark Delaney) gave up his knife as lost and upon his return to Bay Roberts from the fishing ground, he purchased another. In a few weeks he forgot all about the lost knife, and the next year, he went fishing out of Tilton Harbor, Fogo. One day he was out in his boat with his partner, and the fish were very plentiful, and of large size. When he returned with his boat load of fish, his partner and himself commenced operations to split their catch, and in doing so to one of large dimensions, he felt that there was something unusual and hard inside. He investigated, and, incredible as it may appear, he drew forth the knife he had lost the previous year on the fishing ground off Bay Roberts. There was no mistake at all about it, as his name was cut on the handle of the knife, which he valued very much, and was delighted to have it once more in his possession.

I have often heard of such wonderful finds when I was a boy, but as I grew up I thought the old-timers, who related such events were taking a lift out of me, but in this instance, with regard to Capt. Delaney's knife, there is no doubt about it, and I am not endeavoring to take a lift out of any of the readers of the Telegram.

Capt. Mark Delaney became one of the most successful seal-killers - more especially as a hunter of old seals. He commanded several sailing vessels during his long career, but I can only remember a few of them at the moment, viz: the brig R.S.C., Antelope, Orator and Breadalbane. He was also successful in steamers, and commanded the S.S. Walrus and Ranger out of the great firm of J. & W. Stewart for many years, and was successful, particularly as I stated above, with "old fat." It may be that the hardy old veteran found his luck by the unexpected recovery of his pocket knife, after being carried around for over twelve months by the codfish; through the voracious maw, it found a safe receptacle, until recovered by the owner, many miles away from the place he lost it.

I noticed an article in the Telegram a few days ago about several things, such as jewelry, buttons, etc, being found inside sharks, and other species of fish, and it brought to my mind the story of the skipper's knife as related to me by his son, the late Capt. Patrick Delaney.

Mr. and Mrs. John Snow arrived home on Tuesday, having come from Labrador by the S.S. Miegie. Mr. Snow, for the past season, was in charge of the lighthouse at Battle Harbor.

Newfoundland Postal Telegraphs

Foreign Connection

The Commercial Cable Company

and its World-Wide Service

THE POSTAL is the only extensive public telegraph service for Newfoundland, and has connection to all inland places. A ten word message costs only twenty-five cents, the address and signature as well as Postal telephone transmission to destination is free of cost.

THE COMMERCIAL CABLE COMPANY "American Postal Telegraph," "Canadian Pacific Railway Telegraphs," "All American Cables for Central and South America," "Hullfax and Bermuda and Direct West India Cables.

A cheap night, as well as day service, is also given to all points in Canada and the United States of America. The Postal has also direct connection with Great Britain, thence to all European ports. Rates as low as 6c. per word. Stamps to value of ten cents must be affixed by senders to all cable (foreign) messages from Newfoundland.

The Newfoundland revenue benefits largely when you patronize the Postal Telegraphs. Its whole staff (clerical and operators) from Superintendent to Messengers are sworn to secrecy.

Cable business handed to the Postal ensures quick service via New York or Canso to Brazil, Bahia, Pernambuco, Bahamas, Barbadoes and Bermuda. Our connections are as follows:—
