Saskatchewan's Premier Resigned Yesterday As a Result Of Recent Disclosures—Cushing To Form Ministry.

JUDICIAL INQUIRY TO
BE INAUGURATED

BE INAUGURATED

Special to The Standard.

Edmonton, March 11.—The Rutherford administration is believed to have no more. Premier Rutherford again resigned as a result of last night's Liberal caucus and placed it in the hands of the Lieutenant Governor this morning, together with those of his two remaining ministers, Duncan, Marshall and P. E. Lessard, which were written out yesterday. It was even reported from reliable sources that the Lieutenant Governor had requested the resignation of the premier.

W. H. Cushing will, it is almost certain, be called upon to form the ministry. He has several times indicated he will be prepared to carry on the business of the session as soon as the bye-elections for his ministers can be carried through. After the prorogation of the house it is believed he will call for a general election and his supporters and members of the cabinet to make a clean sweep of the Rutherford

Senator Talbot.

Senator Talbot was wiled to come from Ottawa by several of the members, who will ask him, it is understood. He will be the leadership of the party. He will be generally accepted, however, it is stated, that the majority of the members are for the present body. Cushing, it is confidentially believed, is unable to secure a substantial following in the house.

Upon the formation of the new Government a judicial inquiry is said to be already arranged for, will be initiated into the entire question of the Alberta and the Canadian Pacific Railway, including not only the legislation, but also the sale of bonds. The members, including the new members, have very extensive powers, and will be able to subpoena anybody from anywhere and to call for any documents or telegrams.

The following is from the House proceedings:

Mr. Bennett—"When may we expect something; tomorrow?"

The Premier—"I do not say that His Honor intends doing."

Mr. Bennett—"Oh, yes, you are advising His Honor must do what his first minister says?"

The Premier—"I cannot say no more than I have said."

Mr. Bennett—"I will not say what I think now, but I will later for another day."

Resolutions Shelved.
Resolutions both for and against the Government were shelved until next week, as was a great deal of the legislation on the order sheet. The session lasted scarcely more than half an hour.

The Rutherford ministry was first formed September 2, 1905, the following being the members of the cabinet: Hon. Alex. Rutherford, Premier, president of the executive council, provincial treasurer and minister of education; Hon. Charles W. Cross, attorney general, Sept. 6; Hon. T. Finlay, provincial secretary and minister of agriculture; Hon. William H. Cushing, minister of public works; Hon. L. G. DeVeber, without portfolio, resigned his place in the cabinet on receiving elevation to the Senate of Canada Mar,

At the first election in 1905 the Liberals had 25 members and the Conservatives 2. They also won the four intervening by-elections between 1905 and 1909 when another general election took place. This election resulted in the returning of 38 Liberals and 3 more Conservatives.

FREIGHT HANDLERS GET THE STRIKE FEVER

Dismissal Of Two Employees on
G. T. R. At Toronto Affects
250—Agitating For 40 Per Cent. Raise.

Toronto, March 11.—As a protest against the discharge of two of their slow moving ships, which were released last evening, 250 freight haulers, organized by the G. T. Railway, went on noon today. Later in the afternoon the men presented a committee to wait on the G. T. R. agent, Mr. Gordon, and asked the men's reinstatement. Pending a reply from Mr. Gordon, the men returned to work, and will give the company half day off until they come to a decision. The company officials claim the two men were discharged for incompetency, but the men say the real cause was that they were prominent in a movement for increased wages. The G. T. R. has 100 trainmen in Montreal for some time negotiating for an increase of wages, made their formal demand on officials today. The G. T. R. men are asking for an increase of from 25 per cent to 35 per cent, and the C. P. R. for twenty per cent.

1200 HOUSES ARE MENACE TO PUBLIC HEALTH

Board of Health to Wage War On Premises Lacking Modern Sanitation—Market Regulations Not Being Observed.

At a meeting of the Board of Health yesterday afternoon, it was decided to take legal action against all citizens who are not complying with the law regarding the installation of modern sanitary improvements on their premises. The board dealt with 44 cases of alleged violation of the law in this connection, and ordered prosecutions instituted against all the offenders. Other cases will be dealt with at a special meeting of the board next Wednesday afternoon.

The board will issue notices to all persons reported for failing to come up to the requirements of modern sanitation, and will make a determined effort to abolish the evil. It is said that there are about 1200 houses of this kind in this respect in St. John, and that they were to a large extent responsible for the typhoid epidemic last year.

The board instructed the secretary to prosecute J. J. Hudson for interfering with one of the health officers in the discharge of his duty. Complaints were made that sections 31 and 32 of the public health regulations were being violated, and the secretary was instructed to have copies of the regulations printed and posted in the market.

These regulations prohibit any person offering for sale the meat of calves killed when less than four weeks old, or pigs less than five weeks old, or lambs less than eight weeks old. They also forbid the sale between April and November of any fresh halibut, cod or pollock, unless cleaned of entrails or refuse parts.

The chairman of the board, Mr. Thos. Gorman, presided, and there were present Mr. John Kelly, and Dr. Chas. M. Pratt, with Mr. T. M. Burns, secretary and inspectors Howard and McConnell.

ST. JOHN'S CRESCENTS 2

Triumph in Final Game
Senior Hockey Season—ants Reach Out for Junior le.

Senior hockey season was closed with a blaze of glory last evening at the rink, when "Halley" Clavens defeated the Crescenta with the score of 5 to 2. It was easily the fastest game season. The game was fast from the start and during the first half the Crescenta were in the lead, but the Halley boys, who played a hard game in goal, saved the situation by scoring 4 goals in the second half. The Crescenta showed more speed and attack handling qualities in the second half than in the first. Time and again they carried the puck into the Halley net, but the "Wizard" Clavens, who played a hard game in goal, saved the situation by scoring 4 goals in the second half. Goal. All-St. Johns.

Having defeated the fastest amateur team in the Maritime Provinces during the past season, losing but two matches during the entire series of games, the All-St. Johns have won the title of amateur champions of the Maritime Provinces and will represent the province in the All-Canada hockey tournament to be held in Montreal in 1910.

The Standard presents herewith for its readers a short sketch of each of the players.

"Wizard" Gribbs.
Bernard Gribbs, the clever goal tender, is the youngest member on the team. Gribbs who is familiarly known as "Wizard," first learned the game on a handful of ice in a back yard in Chatham in 1904. He displayed such good abilities that he was chosen as goal tender for the Chatham team which won the championship of the Maritime hockey league in 1906-7. He came to St. John last October and joined the locals. He has figured in every game and his defense work and ability in staying off what looked like sure defeat. Gribbs is an all-around athlete, having won several long distance races during the past year. He played on the Chatham baseball team, champions of North Shore, and is a member of the Exmouth Y.M.A. second basketball team.

H. H. Tully.
H. H. Tully, the speedy point, is one of the fastest men on the team. Tully learned the game at the rink of St. Francis Xavier College, Antigonish, first appearing with the Crescenta in 1906. He played on the team for three years, during which time they won every game played with one exception, and won the inter-collegiate championship of the province for three consecutive years. He came here last year and joined the Crescenta.

Lawrence McQuarrie.
Lawrence McQuarrie whose clever work in the position of rover, was a tower of strength to the team, made his initial bow in the game in Prince Edward Island, in the St. John's of Charlottetown. In 1908 he played in the Prince of Wales College team of Charlottetown and also lined up with the intermediate All-St. Johns in the P. E. I. league. He came here last June and when the season opened was given a tryout with the All-St. Johns.

Don Macaulay.
Don Macaulay, who did good work as spare man, played in two games this season, and delivered the goods in each. He is a regular tryout player. He will undoubtedly be chosen for a permanent position on the team next season.

Percy McAvity.
Percy McAvity who also acted as spare man, played in two games this season, and delivered the goods in each. He is a regular tryout player. He will undoubtedly be chosen for a permanent position on the team next season.

Ralph Parker.
Ralph Parker, who holds down right wing with the air of a veteran, has been playing senior hockey for 14 years, making his first appearance in the ice with the Centenary intermediate septette. He has played successfully with High School, Trinity, Y. M. C. A., Neptune, Marathons and for the last three seasons for the All-St. Johns, delivering the goods every time. To his stellar playing and coaching, he has been a manager of the team, is due in a large measure to his wonderful success of the past season.

NOTIONS OF THE ATHLETES

Selection of Emeryville Ends
Big Fight Wrangle—Scene of Fight is Not Far From Frisco.

New York, March 11.—The selection of the Emeryville racetrack near Oakland, Cal., which is across the bay from San Francisco, for the Jeffries-Johnson fight on July 4 is the result of some fine pulling by Rickard and Gleason, the promoters, who have refused to be held up in road agent style by certain individuals in Emeryville. It is understood that Rickard was informed ten days ago that he could have a permit to hold the fight in Frisco for $5,000 cash and 20 per cent of the money in excess of the purse and expenses. Rickard refused to be held up in this manner, with the result that when Thomas H. Williams, owner of the Emeryville track, received a hint that he could get the fight, he jumped at a chance to recover the losses incurred by the race meeting which has been running at Oakland all winter.

Emeryville is a township which includes the racetrack property. It has its own mayor and police force and enjoys the favor of the officials of Alameda county. The track can be reached by large boats running from Frisco in twenty-five minutes, the battlement being about as far from the Emeryville City as Staten Island is from the Battery. The boats are equipped with dining rooms and trap cars, many passengers. The grand stand on the track has room for 3,500 spectators, but new stands will be constructed to accommodate 30,000 more at least, Rickard says. The ring will be pitched in the infield not far away from the judges' stand and the crowd will surround it on all sides. As the track is outside the city limits the law permits a forty-five round fight without a chance for a hitch.

Charles Eylon, of Los Angeles, Jack Welsh, of Frisco and Eddie Smith, who judged the Nelson-Volgaist and Murphy-Moran fights, are the four candidates for the position of third man in the ring. It is well understood that the referee must be a "native son," and as Johnson is strong in favor of Welsh, he may be the man. It is conceded that Frisco failed to get the fight because of the attitude of John L. Herget, one of the race supervisors. It is a well known fact that Herget tried to dictate to Rickard and Gleason by insisting that the club managed by Sam Fitzpatrick should stage the fight. As Rickard did not care to have outsiders cut into the affair he decided in favor of Tom Donahue, who is reported to be a "native son."

So, after months of senseless wrangling the battlement has been fixed and it looks as if no further obstacles can be thrown in the way of the big fight for the heavyweight championship of the world.

If Hoyt Driscoll could hit with power he would be a formidable pugilist, but like other fighters hailing from Great Britain he is strictly a scientific boxer. Knockout Brown, a tough little customer, who beat him at the Fairmont A. C. Tuesday night, is far more aggressive and a heavier hitter. If Brown had been kept under a mill instead of forcing the issue there would have been very little action in the bout with Driscoll, so that on work alone the little slugger had a clean advantage and would probably have received a verdict if one had been rendered. Brown will meet Willie Beecher, also a hard hitter, at the Seaside Sporting Club tomorrow night in a bout that should be a clincher.

Jeffries and Johnson when notified yesterday that the battlement had been selected expressed satisfaction with the plans. Jeffries who is in Los Angeles, said he would have refused to fight outside of California. He confirmed the report that he had chosen a place in the mountains near Santa Cruz for his regular training camp and said he would begin active work there on April 1. Johnson has already engaged quarters near San Francisco and will begin training on May 15. The Jim Sullivan, the permanent stakeholder, received a telegram yesterday from Rickard stating that Emeryville had been finally chosen and that the work on the big arena would be as soon as the winter race meeting ends, early in April. Rickard also declared there was nothing left to be done except the posting of the entire $100,000 purse and the selection of a referee.

IS BOWLING LEGITIMATE ATHLETICS

Montreal, Mar. 11.—The time-worn question, "Is bowling an athletic exercise or a pastime?" came up before the M. A. A. A. directors for earnest discussion and settlement last night. Through the desire of certain members of the Bowling Club to compete in a competition at which money prizes were given.

Under the definition of the amateur as adopted by the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada and the M. A. A. A. no member had any right to compete where cash prizes were given as long as bowling was considered to be in the category of athletic sports.

However, the M. A. A. A. directors failing any action on the part of the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada have taken the matter into their own hands and decided that bowling is not an athletic sport, but goes into the same class as rifle shooting and trap shooting, in which competition for money prizes by amateurs is allowed.

The resolution embodying the decision of the M. A. A. A. directors is as follows:

"That in view of the fact that the A. A. U. of Canada at its organization meeting held in Toronto last November decided not to include indoor bowling in the list of athletic sports governed by that union and inasmuch as members of other teams constituting the Canadian Amateur Bowling Association are taking part in tournaments in which cash prizes are given, be it resolved:

"That this board is in favor of granting to the members of this association permission to compete in bowling tournaments in which cash prizes are offered and to accept the same until such time as the governing body for bowling in Canada shall have been formed and an amendment to the by-law governing bowling submitted to the members of this association."

KETCHEL AND LANGFORD MAY BE MATCHED

San Francisco, March 11.—A 20-round bout in this city between Stanley Ketchel and Sam Langford for the middleweight championship of the world two days before the Johnson-Jeffries battle, is the attraction that Promoter Griffin, who has a San Francisco permit for the month of July, plans to arrange as a sort of preliminary to the big event for the many sport-loving visitors expected in San Francisco at that time.

Griffin plans to stage his fight on Saturday afternoon, July 2. If he cannot get Ketchel and Langford, he will try to induce Freddie Welsh to come across from England to meet Wolgast for the lightweight championship.

The promoter of the Broadway club telegraphed to Ketchel at Pittsburgh today, and says that he already has the word of Joe Woodman, manager of Langford, that Sam will be ready to meet Ketchel any time.

"No one is more pleased than I am that the big fight, long regarded as to be at Emeryville," said Griffin, "I am glad they did not accept my offer to sell the July permit for $5,000, as I know that it will be worth more than that to me. I only agreed to sell it because I wanted to see the big fight come here. But Emeryville is a good place for the same thing, and everyone seems satisfied."

STRENUOUS HOCKEY AT NEW GLASGOW

Halifax, March 11.—The sixth and last game of the series between the New Glasgow and North Sydney professional hockey teams which was played in North Sydney tonight ended in a draw, the score being 1-1. The ice in the middle of the second half.

The action arose over a disputed goal scored by North Sydney. New Glasgow claiming Stuart kicked it in the net. North Sydney agreed to disallow the goal but several of the New Glasgow players refused to proceed under any circumstances.

Jimmy Williams met with an accident in the first half when his left arm was broken just below the elbow by an accidental crack from Stuart's stick. The score when New Glasgow left the ice was 10 to 3 in favor of North Sydney.

Handicappers, as usual, is the largest individual nominator, with King James, Dainin, Restigouche, Firestone, Joe Madden and Fayette, but Keene has a string with Ballou, Hilarious, Mackie and Affiliation, and C. L. Harrison and August Belmont have both sent entries.

The Empire City Handicap at a mile and a furlong is for $60,000, and the weights are to be announced ten days before the running.

FALLING STARS, COME IN YE
HIS FRIENDS WEARY ONES

The Discoverers, a New Society Founded in New York---
No Dues, No Meetings and Free Strawberries

New York, March 4.—People suffering from a vague discomfort among the victims of ordinary annual elections are eligible for membership in a new society which was formed in this town at 10 o'clock on Saturday night last. The society is to be known as The Discoverers. All you have to do is to walk into Bob Herring's food house on Park row just north of the bridge and ask for a dish of strawberries.

Bill McCarthy of the Oak street police station will be informed at once and you will be enrolled in detectable places.

The new society holds no meetings. There are no dues. When you feel restless you visit Bob Herring's. You order strawberries. Some one you have never seen walks over and sits facing you. The waiter brings ham sandwiches and coffee. You eat, forgetting. You visit the Restaurant de Tre Stella. Coenties slip with the sea. The shaped paths become lateral and you are home.

Only a Hint.

The new society had no original lowly or otherwise. It sprang full fledged from the brain of Lieut. Bul McCarthy. That melancholly, mal was displeased because the only arrest he had entered in the blotter was "Kidd." "It used to be in the old days," said himself, as he consulted the Greek pho-netically, "that a man would be in the blotter; 'It used to be that you had to search for facts. Nowadays you have to search for names." "That is the secret of the intellectual unrest which has spread from the East to the West," he said to the common people. "We are just trying to understand that Capt. Kidd was not a man to say married. He was hung that afternoon after his name had been pleurably married."

The new thought against which several men of letters were beginning and that opposite for the adventure start enjoy it. Adventure cannot be enjoyed while it is going on. It is too full of discomfort."

Three dejected Greeks were led in. They had been seeking adventure at cards in the Kaphpheneion Tou Narechou (coffee house of the Admiral). A man, presumably the Admiral, bailed them out before they capsized into tears.

"They will enjoy their adventure after they have each paid $1 or so in

"court," said Bull. "At present they are uncomfortable in the midst of it. I have no doubt they will be glad to leave it. While a remedy is impossible something may be done to alleviate the suffering of the adventurous man. I do not see how I can help him. I can become a member of the Discoverers. Only old things will be discovered. The Discoverers will constitute the nucleus of the future of our research. Each member will be plenipotentiary. Imaginations reared in the path they should go. An advanced knowledge of the world is necessary in how to be happy though discontented. Tablets to be placed in the sawdust road at Bob Herring's in honor of members of the Discoverers. Let Kid, offer their lives to adventure for the enrichments of ours. Do you believe?"

They had come unexpectedly and had caught them at Terrapin Neck at an unearthing hour of the night—engaged in their work of digging for the "South" a miserable negro whom the courts had declared to be free.

Fear Does The Work.

It took but an instant for fear and remorse to combine to lead out the result. They struck the negro from the negro's limbs and told him to go, being determined at least not to let the negro go. The negro went as fast one way as the other. He knew every "possible" path in Terrapin Neck, and the exultant feeling of freedom overcame his freight.

The next heard of him he was with Marney and Hicks in the first of the "express" boats. He was aboard with them and the last known of him was that he had married a Mexican woman and was the wealthiest negro in the city. The next day, when they found that earth and sky were still intact and that the stars didn't really fall, that the white man told the story about which their friends never ceased to twist them.

There was in another part of this relation that fermented neither happily nor humorously. Solomon Reavis, another brother, living at Old Point, was the present site of Sella—called Sella—of the original family, and, under the decision, they were likewise obtained it. The man, but they never at the trial in Columbia, and the minute the verdict was brought in, a bunch to the cotton fields of the South.

As and Squire Reavis declared that he would not take the man, doing no wrong. "It shows," he said, "how the institution of slavery is deadened our moral sensibilities."

The Juggler

What might be called the financial uplift of the stage, or possibly the domestic uplift of finance is seen in the remarkable number of marriages of actresses to multimillionaires. Just 22 Americans of great wealth have been married to actresses in the past five years. The most notorious of these marriages was that of Ellis Belmont, a $50,000,000 banker. In the near future Cavalliere, the prima donna, will wed Robt. W. Chanler, one of the Astor family millionaires.

WARNING TO SUFFRAGETTES

Miss Ethel M. Arnold of London Tells Boston Audience That Militant Methods are Unsuccessful.

New York, March 11.—An emphatic warning against the militant attitude of suffragettes was sounded by Miss Ethel M. Arnold of London, a sister of Mrs. Humphry Ward, and a niece of Matthew Arnold of Oxford, before the Brookline Equal Suffrage Association at the home of Mrs. Benjamin F. Pittman in Brookline yesterday afternoon. The speaker declared that if it had not been for the militant methods in England the suffrage bill now before Parliament would have passed and the deadlock between the two parties would have been inevitable. She said that the militant attitude of a new body of voters, Miss Arnold is known as a leader of the "peaceable" Suffragettes of London.

Miss Arnold said that she had the highest personal regard for Mrs. Pankhurst, but she believed that the militant method was a misjudgment of the sentiment of the country, and in consequence has impaired the cause of suffrage.

"If there is anything that the Englishwoman does not like it is the noisy and the sensational," said Miss Arnold.

In answer to the statement quoted from Louis Post, the editor of the Chicago Public, to the effect that the suffragettes had lost practically all their influence a month before the general elections, she said that she was longer term previous to the elections. The split in the party is one which has handicapped us, and which the reaction against the militancy is now at its height, a time when we could have achieved a very great deal if the men had not been antagonized.

The speaker declared that the club movement in America was an astonishing factor. I do not think that such a well organized organization and coordinated effort would be possible anywhere in England. I am astonished at the power and the quality of your women's clubs. As for the American men, they are absolutely charming when you find them at their best.

In regard to the way in which American women would attain the suffrage she said: "I think that the probable course will be the achievement of the franchise through grants in the State Legislatures.

"I think that your American women are quite as capable of winning the franchise intelligently as are your American men. I also believe that they should have the vote in order to offset the great leverage which your political things have in so many of your cities."

When told that a woman was admitted to run for governorship in Vermont, Miss Arnold declared that she was very sorry, as she thought such measures overt and as likely to produce the same effect that the militant, dominating attitude had wrought.

Miss Arnold further expressed herself as very much opposed to the suffrage bill for suffrage now before Parliament, the one which has been so ably championed by Mrs. Pankhurst, because of the "undoubted fact" that it would shut a great many working girls out of the privilege, while admitting many wealthy women to the vote. She declared that the merits of the bill had been argued up and down the land without effect, but that Mrs. Pankhurst and her supporters believed it the this edge of the wedge all the necessary first step.

A POOR MAN SAYS MARTIANS ARE NOT HUMAN

The Attitude of Other Students Toward Poor Work- ingman at Famous Seat of Learning, a Surprise.

The son of a poor English workman recently worked his way into and through Oxford and learned while doing it some things which surprised him greatly. He was almost 30 before he got there, for he had starned the money with painful slowness by teaching at the usual pittance paid minor teachers in England.

At first the traditional cat in a strange garret was cosy and comfortable compared with him. He was embarrassed by having servants wait on him. He was struck dumb at being presented with the English gentleman's cold preprandial tub. He thought it was barbarous to expect him "to springle himself with cold water before breakfast" on a chill October morn.

He was depressed by the wasteful extravagance of having silver forks and spoons. And a clean napkin every night! Also he was not at home with a four or five course dinner. But he must have been game and better.

"I have been amused, astounded, even provoked," he writes, "to find that in my own college were men, who gave me sort of halo and approached me with the diffidence I confess I had felt toward them, merely because I was supposed to be a real live work- ingman who had seen life and had struggled up to Oxford just as the story book young man does."

"One modest youth, expressing to a friend of mine his desire to know me, said: 'But don't suppose he'll care to talk to me. I'm so ignorant of things.' Thus before long I was actually being sought as the man who knew a good deal at first hand of social problems and the life of the poor. At debating societies I was soon embarrassed in request for a characteristic of Oxford to-day is the extraordinary interest taken in all sorts of social questions, unemployment, poverty and housing, education, the right to work, slum life, conditions of labor, sweated industries."

"Such subjects have occupied a very large proportion of the debates both at the Union and at the various college societies. It was this keen interest in social reforms which first showed me my greatest misconception with regard to the 'upper classes.' Like most loyal members of the proletariat, I had preached of the callousness, the indifference, of the rich to the sufferings of the poor. I had honestly believed that the rich were more responsible for the evil of poverty and unemployment, rack renting and sweated labor. But now that I was thrown among these ravening beasts like a slave among wolves for their delectation I found that quite a large number of these wolves were watchdogs."

Professor Lowell believes that the Martians are an intelligent race of beings, he said, although he does not believe that they are men. They are certainly brainy and busy, for the two great canals, so-called, which are really tracks of irrigated territory, in the opinion of the distinguished scientist, appeared to him within six weeks. Professor Lowell declared that he hardly thought the Creator would be guilty of such improvidence as not to people the planets, and that it was only in recent years that any great doubt had been expressed as to the possibility of such tenancy.

He is willing to admit that Venus and Mercury are not so blessed, but he asserts that not only may Mars have denizens but there is actual evidence to that effect.

"The steps in the proof he found to be the artificiality of the canals, the finding of their purpose and finally the signs of recent construction."

"We call them canals," continued Professor Lowell, "although in reality they are probably irrigated strips of country, many of which are one thousand miles long and twenty miles wide. The actual canal is not a great trench like the Panama or Suez canals but is possibly a conduit with numerous branches from which the surrounding country is enriched."

The lecturer, by means of the spectroscopic, demonstrated the presence of water vapor on the planet, thus proving, he declared, that the so-called snow is not such as might be derived from the freezing of carbonic acid gas, which would be fatal to life.

Perhaps there may have been a gala day some time last August and a mighty statesman might have made a speech which thundered all through Syria Major telling of the blessings of conserving the water of the planet rather than permitting it to evaporate for the benefit of other worlds, said Professor Lowell. As soon as the water was turned on the desert must have blossomed as the rose, so that late last September the Professor was able to get this initial glimpse of the canal.

UNIQUE MONUMENT TO CHRIST OF ANDES

On the mountain frontier between the Argentine Republic and Chile, nearly 13,000 feet above the level of the sea, at Cumbre Pass, is a piece of statuary absolutely unique in history. "The Christ of the Andes."

Cast in the bronze from the cannon of opposing Chileans and Argentines, it was placed on the boundary line of the two nations in March, 1904, says the Bulletin of the Argentine Republic.

HATS, BIG AND LITTLE

All Shapes Periods and Materials, Also Models --- New Lines in the Turbans --- Floral Outburst.

New York, March 11.—Big hats, little hats, hats of all periods, hats of all materials, hats of multitudinous shapes—all these are included in the new millinery and everything points to a season of variety, originality and charm in the hat world. They are models which can by no stretch of the imagination be classified as beautiful, models which push originality to the point of eccentricity and absurdity, but there are always women who unerringly gravitate toward hats of this type and the milliners cannot be blamed for preparing to meet the demand, particularly when these same milliners supply delightful and moderately conservative hats as plentifully as they are supplying them now.

The turban has not run its course during the winter and comes to the front in shapes which are more or less radical modifications of lines popular during the winter, but in sum they are merely variations of them. The winter turbans, are posed low upon the head and the size ranges from the close clinging little bowl shaped affair of reous straw simply trimmed by a cluster of flowers, a chou or an ornament of some kind to the elaborate creation with huge draped crown of tulle satin.

Medium Shapes.

Some of the smartest turban models of the conservative sort are medium sized draped shapes of the fine supple tulle straws with merely an aligrette of cluster of flowers or a chou posed well toward the back for trimming. In these turbans the cleverness with which the straw is handled and the resulting lines tell the story, and consequently the best of these models command a price quite out of proportion to their air of chaste simplicity, for they have passed through artist hands and artists in millinery come high. We have seen most attractive little draped turbans of this class in white with a touch of black and one good model in white-yella has a drapery of black velvet running from the right front across the top to the left back where it ends under a full feather tuft.

The draped turban made entirely from tulle appears in some very attractive forms and either in one tone or in several shades of one color. Often the tulle is used in soft full folds interwoven and one shade may veil another. A handsome ornament of some sort, usually holding a soaring aligrette or plume is likely to be the only trimming for one of these tulle turbans, which in their swaying and in several shades of one color. The Oriental turban which is fashioned from an interminable fold of tulle, through artist hands and artists in millinery come high. We have seen many of the turbans of straw and satin, straw and tulle, etc., the soft straw being folded closely around the head while the crown is softly draped. A good model has the soft maize color straw drawn low around the head as you might swathe a wide textile fold, in front the straw is one disc, appearing, the other running back on the left side of the crown where its fullness flares to fan or ring shape. The draped turban, which is a kind of a jeweled ornament holds the straw drapery in the front.

Black Satin.

More fantastic turban effects are draped of black satin with close low set brim and high full crown and are trimmed with a wide band of white or colored yella posed around the brim with the drapery emerging from beneath them.

Then there are the velvet turbans, always lovely, and the turbans with brims of straw and entire crowns of flowers. In the latter class the new turban shapes are for all trimming, a brim of straw, out of which the flowers seem to be growing, a flower pot effect which is slightly absurd and yet thanks to the beauty of coloring and materials, often quaintly charming.

A creation in the deep blue and purplish violet coloring which is a fancy of the season is the brim of a fine soft dark blue straw, which was draped slightly, and from this brim rose thickly massed violets of the deep purple kind, California kind, forming the whole top of the crown. Another model with dark blue brim had a crown of pinkish lavender primroses.

Whole turbans of flowers lightly veiled in drapery of tulle or lace and with big full bows of the tulle or lace on the left side well toward the back or quite in the back are offered in lovely materials and colorings. La France roses seem well liked for such turbans as for all trimming, a fresh looking turban in white roses veiled with green tulle and trimmed in airy bows of the same tulle will be refreshing looking things for summer days.

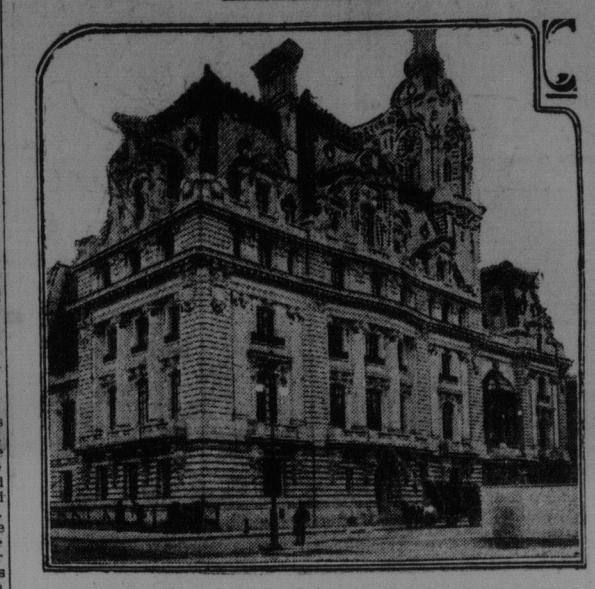

Of the close fitting bowl shape we have already spoken. It is trying, but where it can be worn has a certain absurd attractiveness. Fancy a deep bowl of flat bottom and rounded edge, but with no flare at the top, turned upside down and fitted closely around the head, descending almost to the nape of the neck in the back, covering the top of the ears and just escaping the eyebrows! Make it of some of the light soft braids in attractive color, trim it with a cluster of flowers low on the left side, and you have a head covering ridiculous on the average woman, trying even to the piquant, pretty face but comfortable for auto wear and with undeniable smartness if coloring and materials have the proper French stamp.

Other Variations.

And while we are talking of inverted bowls it may be noted that other variations upon this idea—shapes with rounded crown and narrow, drooping brim flaring a trifle at the end, are not to be left out of this season's calculations. The shapes are dubbed mushroom by many saleswomen, but they are more accurately described as bowl shape, and slight differences in the flare of the tiny brim or its width in back and front respectively supply variety.

This little shape is most often seen in the quaint printed cottons, striped cottons, etc., which have entered the military field and which, though by SENATOR CLARK'S $7,000,000 MANSION ON FIFTH AVENUE.

New York, March 11.—Eight years ago the construction of former Senator W. A. Clark's mansion in Fifth avenue was begun. Though workmen are still toiling at interior decorations, Senator Clark has moved into his suite of 12 rooms. Mrs. Clark, who has the baby in Paris, will shortly settle down in her suite of 15 rooms. The mansion cost $7,000,000. It is the highest assessed dwelling in the world. The yearly taxes will be $60,000, or more than the salary of the President of the United States.

The suites of Mr. and Mrs. Clark are connected by a short corridor. His rooms are ponderously decorated in mahogany and hung with dark tapestries. Mrs. Clark's suite is all brightness. Her parlor is decorated in satinwood panels, with wood from Ceylon. Each petal of the flowers carved in this wood is perfect. No tapestries of pictures will be used. For each panel is a rare decoration. Birdseye maple is the wood used in her boudoir.

Some features of W. A. Clark's mansion:

- Thirty baths, one Turkish.
- Three elevators.
- Telephone system.
- One hundred and twenty-one rooms.
- Three 275-h. p. steam boilers.
- Two roof gardens.
- One of the biggest organs in the world.
- One six-ton ice plant.
- One Chinese lounging room for oriental guests.
- One gigantic reception hall and ball room.
- Seven pianos.
- Million dollars worth of rugs.
- Twenty-two bedrooms.
- Six sun rooms.

HORRORS OF ACTRESS LIFE

German Girls get Small Pay May not Marry and Find it Difficult to Keep Themselves Straight.

Berlin, March 11.—Until three hours after midnight this morning a great audience in Philharmonic Hall listened to accounts of the slavery to which it was alleged thousands of young German women in the theatrical profession were condemned by their employers. The occasion was a meeting of the Parliament of Actresses to discuss grievances and demand relief.

One of the causes of complaint was the compulsory provision of costumes the cost of which was far beyond the incomes of the actresses. The speakers said it was not uncommon for actresses earning from 80 to 240 marks monthly to have ten costumes. Many worked all night making their own clothes, being obliged to become seamstresses in order to remain actresses.

Rosa Bertens, a well known actress, said the overcrowding of the profession was the main cause of the miserable salaries. A girl disappointed in love formerly entered a theatrical troupe, she went on the stage. Many girls too offered to act gratuitously.

Another speaker raised a storm of indignation by describing the system under which actresses were discharged if they marry.

Herr Rickell, an actor at the Lesing Theatre, showed contracts under which actresses and singers received from 25 to 35 marks monthly. "Was agers, actresses with their own trunks?" he asked, "that many men attend to their trunks?" There was a shout of "Yes" from the actresses.

Herr Rickell said that society ought to enshrine with a halo of glory the actresses who remained virtuous under prevailing conditions.

Stage Manager Wauer, in closing the debate, said that the artistic life was necessarily martyrdom. If the word "want" disappeared from the stage vocabulary art would cease to exist. One only became a great artist through suffering.

A resolution was adopted demanding laws to compel managers to supply costumes and to allow actresses to marry.

no means invariably pretty, are being shown by all the fashionable milliners. The printed designs and colorings in the printed cotton stuffs are favored for this purpose and the material is softly pulled over crown and brim and simply trimmed with a scarf or some odd little cluster of flowers in the colors of the cotton. Other designs following the antique printed cotton and linen ideas are used and dainty looking hats for a summer morning are covered with cool buff and white, rose and white, green and white or lavender and white cotton stuff.

Satin covered crowns combined with straw brims are another of the somewhat freakish ideas exploited by authoritative makers, not the delightful turbans of which we have already spoken, with draped crown of black satin and straw brim, but with brimmed shapes whose crown is covered smoothly with satin, while the drooping or rolling brim is of Leshorn or other braid.

THIS CHURCH BIG AND BUSY

Records Set by the Rev. Dr. Matthews of Seattle --- Ten Thousand Worshipers of a Sunday.

Seattle, March 11.—It is believed that the Rev. M. A. Matthews of Seattle has the largest congregation of any Presbyterian in the world, and his church, the First Presbyterian, has the second largest membership of any denomination in Christendom.

It requires fifty ushers to seat the people at the various services and twenty men to take up the collection. The church seats over 2,000 persons. For about eight months in the year close to 4,000 persons attend service in the morning, and at the evening service every seat is occupied, and several hundred extra chairs are used. The stairways are used to the extent that the fire marshal will permit and the walls are lined with men and women and usually they are three or four deep all around the auditorium.

It is not an uncommon thing to see 200 or 300 persons turned away from the church because of the lack of room at the evening service, when perhaps Dr. Matthews has preached to nearly 4,000 in the morning and the same number at 3 p. m. There have been as many as 10,000 persons at worship in the church on one Sunday.

There is seldom a night that some service is not held in the auditorium. The pastor last year preached 124 sermons, delivered 78 addresses, 63 lectures and 57 speeches, took charge of 51 Bible classes, conducted 36 funerals, married 220 couples, baptized 170 infants and 80 adults and served 16 communions, attended 343 cabinet meetings, 334 consultation sessions and interviewed 9,174 persons.

1209 Visits.

He made 1209 visits to his parishioners, took in over five hundred new members last year, attended 118 committee meetings and 113 public devotional meetings and assisted 61 other churches and lodges to conduct their services. He attended 111 social meetings in connection with his church work and delivered 64 informal talks.

Dr. Matthews is a physician to the body as well as to the soul, is an attorney at law, a doctor of divinity and an orator. He is in charge of a church, which expends more than fifty thousand dollars every year and which is worth close to half a million dollars.

There are more Presbyterians connected with Dr. Matthews's church, it is estimated, than there are in the entire San Francisco Bay country, including San Francisco, Oakland, Berkeley and other cities.

There were 355,000 persons who worshipped in this church last year. There are 10,000 persons connected with the church in one way or another and it has 5,000 communicants and 1,000 non-communicants. In 1909 Dr. Matthews, with his coworkers, organized three new churches, and as each one of these took a few of his old members this showing is more remarkable.

During 1909 Dr. Matthews added 791 to the roll members or workers or communicants. There are connected with the church fifteen Bible clubs, seven young people's societies, a debating club, two young men's clubs and a brotherhood.

The entire city of Seattle is divided up and each section is in charge of a "knight," who reports to the captain of a larger section, and the captain reports to Dr. Matthews.

The pastor is Dr. Matthews. He is a member of the church fifteen Bible clubs, seven young people's societies, a debating club, two young men's clubs and a brotherhood.

The budget for next year shows a need of $35,000 for the running expenses. In the past year the church has a large library and four small ones, a swimming pool, a running track, a gymnasium, fifty telephones and several ranges large enough to cook dinner for 500 men and women. Many small gas ranges are scattered all over the church for the use of the women at their committee meetings in heating tea etc.

The appearance of the interior of Dr. Matthews's public office suggests the President's office on a busy day. It contains three typewriters, several mimeographs, six telephones and one gramophone for the use of the pastor in dictating his sermons and lectures. The church is interested in anti-tuberculosis work and in prison reform work and numerous committees are at work helping to better conditions in this city of Seattle. Dr. Matthews has two paid assistants, and one of these, Dr. Lee, made 2,256 calls last year and the other, Dr. Forbes, made 2,254.

The loose basket collections amount to about $12,000 a year on an average, the average pledged collections amount to about $15,000 in round numbers and the special musical collections bring in about $2,000 a year.

Finally, behind this second flock of kites there is installed a wireless with its rollers adjusted to the principal rope, but made fast itself to the second rope. From this wireless hang the basket.

Finally, they are safe, little though you might think it. The ropes have eight times the resistance actually required. Russian officers have more than once tried the experiment of breaking the ropes off short with dynamite, yet, if there are seven kites in the flock, the apparatus comes down so slowly that the aeronaut's life is not endangered.

Side By Side.

After 150 feet of rope have been released kites are hitched on side by side at intervals of forty or fifty feet, till there are five of them. As we have already shown, the faster the wind is blowing the fewer kites are required. The first flock in the "carrying train" and it is allowed to ascend to an altitude of something like 1500 feet.

Then a second flock is let loose, to form the "towing train"—a little less powerful than the other, and differently equipped.

Separately by intervals of from thirty to forty-five feet and attached to the principal rope by sliding rings, these other kites are bound fast to a second rope, whose end is attached down to the first member of the second life is not endangered.

Power of a Trust is Written In Blood in Philadelphia

Caught Between Promises to Stockholders and Employees it Breaks the Latter.

And Then Under Cloak of a Civil War Compels aid of Law—An iniquitous System.

Philadelphia, March 11.—Here is an estimate of the power of a trust that has swallowed a city government:

To wrench from the people enough money to keep its watered securities afloat, to pay to guaranteed stockholders enormous profits, to resist the fair demands of labor, an American trust, as is shown by the action of the Philadelphia Rapid Transit contracts, throw 3,000 men out of employment, force 1,500,000 people to walk, put murderous weapons into the hands of every policeman, fireman and militiaman with orders to "shoot to kill"—can bring into the streets the cossacks of a trust-owned state, make puppets of the mayor, city judges and many newspapers, and convert a peaceable community into a bloody field of battle.

All this has happened here. The company and the city government it created and seated is responsible for every death in riots, every drop of spilled blood, every broken limb or blackened eye in the carnage of the strike. It forced the strike. It brazenly encouraged violence to turn public opinion against the strikers. It precipitated this civil war for dollars and nothing else. Its judges sent children to prison, its mayor sneered at a militia captain who refused in so many words to "murder women and children," its troops shot right and left for dollars and nothing else.

Honestly, as have gone over this city and picked up the history of this civil war, I have wondered that the men of Philadelphia are not actually in the streets with muskets on their shoulders. Listen to this brief summary:

All the traction companies of Philadelphia were rolled into a merger with millions of watered stock.

Service was intolerably had and fares were unreasonably high. The cost of living was going up. It was a matter of common knowledge that the traction magnates were making huge profits and that their greatest assets were the rich franchises they had secured from politicians.

The men struck for better hours and pay and treatment. They wanted their share of the prize.

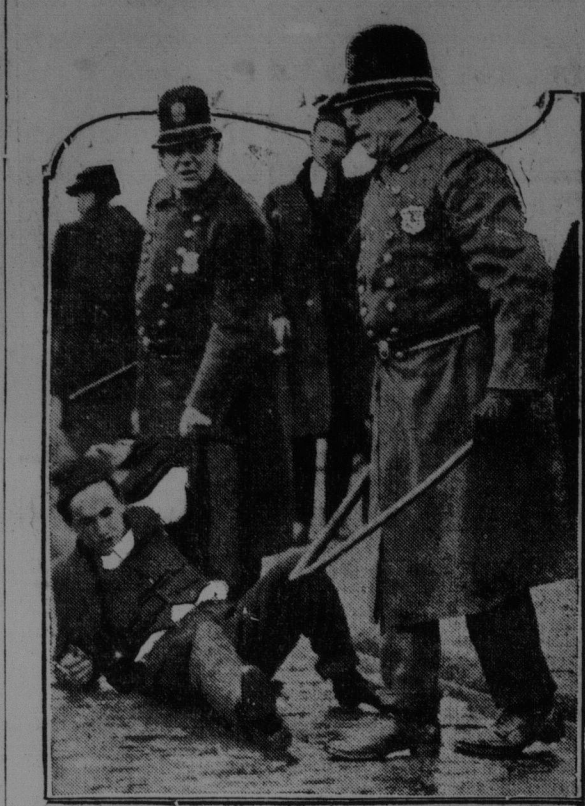

The public sympathized with the strikers and because elections were coming on the company treated with its men, and an agreement was made. Election over, the company deliberately broke that agreement.

The officers of the company plainly say that they cannot keep the agreement and pay the millions of dividends they have guaranteed to the merged companies. Such failure means a receivership.

For Dollars. So this blood is shed for dollars. The question is shall the trust keep its word to the companies it fought or to the men it hired. It says it can't do both. It chooses to break its word to the men.

The first warning came to the men, when Tim O'Leary, assistant superintendent of the company, announced to the newspapers that a supply of rifles and ammunition had been purchased for riot and strike use.

Now the company began to discharge its men in violation of its agreement. Hundreds of men were discharged and the men knew that was a case of strike or get fired, so they struck.

There is a hell of viciousness in the administration of Philadelphia which just now is making Americans in blue shoot down their brothers in drab.

Commissioner of Public Safety Clay, who does not deny when charged that he is a big traction stockholder, took hold. He armed 2000 firemen with rifles and clubs. 3000 "specials" were sent out on the water front. A troop of state constabulary galloped into town with carbines, 44s and riot clubs. Society youth, rifle in hand, responded to the order for militia.

Clarence O. Pratt, national organizer of the car men, saw the danger: "They are trying to provoke you. If you hit a hand in violence your cause is lost."

How well the men understood it is shown by the fact that out of a thousand arrested, less than a dozen are strikers.

An Ugly Spirit. But the people of Philadelphia hate the company that has looted their city and prostituted their officials and courts. There was an ugly spirit. The first little outbreaks were met by bullet and club. And this is what has maddened the people of Philadelphia.

Children were shot down in the street. Catherine Conroy, 11, on her way home from Sunday school, was run down by a policeman's horse. Marie Whelan, 10, was shot in the hip by a policeman.

Viola Bevans, 12, was shot in the head by a policeman. John Hughes, a young business man, was a bystander during a disturbance. A special policeman ordered him to move. He refused and the officer shot him through the breast, killing him instantly.

Alfred Sellers, 14, was crippled by a blow from a policeman's club. The crowd, of which Sellers was one, along with the police, was on the street car track and warned a motorman not to drive over it. When he did the crowd charged the car, but the police drove in, swinging clubs. Their horses bowled people over and several were hurt.

Casualties of this sort reported at hospitals averaged 150 a day. A police officer went to a hospital because of injury. Patrick Kelly was driven by a police cordon between a car and a truck and crushed to death.

All but four of the 28 police magistrates are known as "gang" men. These dealt with prisoners with unheard-of severity. One boy, Carr, who was railroaded to the penitentiary for six years, did not even have a lawyer in court. The cases were heard of severity. One boy, Carr, who was railroaded to the penitentiary for six years, did not even have a lawyer in court. The cases were heard of severity.

So Brutal. Probably never in any American city in strike time have the police been so bold and brutal. The Philadelphia police are the main spoke in the wheel. Imagine a squad of 50 of these bluecoats shooting into the windows of a great factory building to kill workmen who had shown strike sympathy by cheering and throwing missiles at the cars. Imagine mounted men riding into the crowds which contained women and children, shooting and swinging clubs over the heads of the people.

With armed policemen on the platforms of cars run by strike breakers, the city government sought to compel the people to ride these cars. Director of Public Safety Clay issued an order that the hundred of busses and wagons which had been carrying the people to work be cleared from the streets. It was then a case of ride with strike breakers or walk.

Law is law, and violators must pay. Away then, with Carr and the other "reds of other 'anarchists.'" Let Viola Bevans and Marie Whelan clutch their heads. Property must be protected and guaranteed dividends paid up to 100 per cent. on the investment.

J. P. MacNichol, city boss, backs in the rear of the police. He is a partner in the Van Dyke paintings; Mayor Whelan has the largest share of the Van Dyke paintings; Mayor Whelan has the largest share of the Van Dyke paintings.

Boies Penrose, the United States senator; the guaranteed stockholders will get their money; the police and the militia and the "specials" and the Cossacks have earned their pay.

Might makes them right, and weakness and poverty make Viola and Marie wrong.

WHEEL POETS GET FORGOTTEN

All Sorts of Plans to Boom Trade in New York — A Salon or a Back to Nature Meeting.

New York, March 11.—It was with mingled sensations that you were introduced to the fourteenth floor of the Ansonia on Washington's Birthday night to attend the launching of a poetry society. Openly inquisitive you stepped from the elevator into the abode of the music, which chanced to be also the abode of Isaac L. Rice, who tried immediately to shake your thirst for information. Poets, poets everywhere, but not one to help you out. At last you found Edward J. Wheeler, the presiding officer of the evening, who by virtue of his editorship of Current Literature needs must hold considerable authority over the poetic mind.

Mr. Wheeler pleaded guilty to being in part responsible for the starting of the movement, only he did not consider himself very guilty of it on certain auspices, he said, he thought such a movement could be at the least an innocuous pastime, and how high it might lead was a matter of conjecture.

"I," smiled Mr. Wheeler, "am but a drop rope on the balloon, the ballast rope, the aeroplane—if such things be."

So he leads you on to Edwin Markham, the transplanted Californian, who looks so much like a poet that he hardly needs the formal introduction. He had some ideas, though not yet clearly defined, as to what a poetic organization should be.

Poetry Lies Free.

"Such a society," said he, "should be wide in its interpretation, a place where not only original poems should be read, but where the whole matter of poetry lies free; a society, not only for the few flitting snobs who themselves, but for all the lovers of the art, poets, who made it their art; for those who stand and wait as well as those who build their lofty rhymes. Let it be a place for the reading of poetry and for the discussion of what it is that makes poetry."

Mr. Markham would not have it that poetry is in a moribund condition. "Why, poetry is everywhere, right today, right here in this country," he said, "than any one would imagine, and infinitely more written. You could scarcely find a man or woman who does not in the depths of his or her heart does not believe that he or she could write poetry, and most of them try it at some time. Poetry is everywhere, and it is the only way to arrive at the solutions of life, and religion is but poetry in practice."

It is the host, Mr. Rice, who proposed the union scheme, a poet's protective association, as it were. The poets might then with some effect for higher wages, argued Mr. Rice, which considering that a speaker is himself an editor was a statement well worth listening to.

So these and from what they heard and saw, and later on, in the speeches you learned under what happy auspices must a new venture be attempted. You also notice that under a top hat looking man, a solid stratum of seriousness, Young George Sylvester Viereck begged for a poet's association that might make for the proper appreciation of poetry.

Though jealously proposing a poetic stock company which might be able to bring forth to light the mass of poetry hidden away in the closets of stock rooms Mr. Viereck earnestly insisted that what he poetwise termed the "secret flame" must be shown to the world. Look here, he said, in a plea for the poetry which is meant to be heard by the ear and not merely seen by the eye.

"People will read poetry," he said, "but they refuse to listen to it."

A Salon.

Therefore he proposed as a beginning a sort of salon—a place furnishing auditorium and library, where the secret flame might be trotted out. Hermann Scheffauer, the California poet, in his turn told of the encampments of San Francisco's Bohemian Club in the famous forest of giant redwoods and advocated above all else the necessity on the part of those who really enjoy poetry of removing in a body to some rural surroundings away from the cold, hard and stony city.

This first organization of poets drew its members from the four quarters and from widely varied callings. Hudson Maxim, who is supposed to know more about gunpowder than verse, had some startling remarks to make concerning the salon proposition; he tried it in Brooklyn not long ago.

Leon Dabo, the decorative artist who will, in Michigan and elsewhere in Paris, was there too. Mr. Dabo doubted whether such a move as that under contemplation would do much to keep poetry alive. Taking up rules and by-laws would stifle the poet; his endeavors would die of dry rot. The love of life must predominate, with a strong critical and social side. A salon, there had been no worthy leader of such since the days of the Princess Mathilde Buonaparte, he added, turning a critical eye over the room.

Eventually a committee of five was named by Mr. Wheeler, who withdrew to his room to mark the matter. The Poets Reading Society of London, founded by Max Ploughman in 1903, was, it seems, the most direct incentive for the new Poetry Club.

There forthrightly from fifty to seventy-five poets, poets and enthusiasts, met in a chapel in the old Guildhall. The stone pillars and tremendous Gothic arches. It was reported, lend naturally a proper atmosphere, to which the glamour of darkness is added by extinguishing the lights. Concealed from view behind the dark curtains at the front the orchestra ready to read the poetry, whether it be original or that of the old masters. The result is complete enjoyment on the part of the hearers; artistic, esthetic, and aesthetic, quoting from Mr. Scheffauer, who had listened. At times the reading is accompanied by harmonious music, at times there is sufficient light for the listeners to use printed slips of the poem read. All experiments are tried.

Publication No Bar.

The majority of the poems read and enjoyed, it appears are those which are never seen in Print. Publication is not a qualifying attribute, according to the Poets Reading Society.

The Poetry Club of New York, temporarily so called, is entirely aware of its difficulties ahead. It shakes its head tentatively at the salon idea, more decidedly at the "artistic, esthetic and aesthetic" idea of London, and does not even consider the cafe clubs of Paris. Nevertheless it is much in earnest and may surprise every one by originating some plan of procedure all its own with never a bit of imitation. At any rate it would have none of the Flower Festival idea.

For twelve years the Flower Festival has been annually celebrated at Cologne, where prizes have been given for the best original examples of various lines of poetry—love, religious narrative, etc. The poet who gets the prize gets his poem printed in the book which awaits this event every year, and also chooses the flower queen who may sit upon the golden throne; the present Crown Princess

English Common Law Brought To Rescue

Prosecutor Garven Declares He Will Resort to Moss Covered Statue Books.

By W. G. SHEPHERD.

Jersey City, N. J., March 11.—Enter Pierre P. Garven, son of a blacksmith, self-made, self-reliant, into the arena where is fought the battle of the people against privilege.

Uniquely, along new lines, this county prosecutor in New Jersey has brought about the indictment of the best trust ringsters. Bringing up an old point in old English law, in a new way, he has focused upon himself the attention of the country.

"I hope to punish the whole outfit," he told me emphatically in an interview. "What is the new point of law you've brought up against the meat fellows?"

"Why, it's an old point. You see New Jersey is under the old common law of England. That common law says that no two or more men shall band together to conspire to do any mischief to the public or to any individual."

"Of course they didn't have trusts in those days. But sometimes men used to form little bands to conspire against the public. It was conspiracy to form a band for robbery, even if no real robbery was committed. The intent was enough."

"And so I've taken this old law and I hold that the meat trust was formed to keep up prices, make artificial scarcity of food by means of cold storage, and thus do mischief to many citizens of New Jersey."

"Why is the new point you raise any better than the points that are made under the Sherman anti-trust law?"

"Cases under that law are complicated, compared with the cases I have to present. Look here, there is a babe in its mother's arms—all erica is going to watch Garven take his fling at the trusts."

New Magazine For New York Syrians

It is to be Called The World and is to be Dished Out in Perfectly Good Arabic Short Stories Wanted.

New York March 4.—The Syrian quarter heard yesterday that it is to have a magazine of its own. The name of the new monthly is The New World. The first number will appear on Monday. Its contents are diversified and hardly what one would expect. The matter of fact crowds romance on every page.

After a brief account of the purpose of the magazine "to transform the Syrian in America into an intelligent American citizen" comes the naturalization laws of the United States translated into Arabic with literal exactness. N. A. Mokarzel, brother of the editor, contributes a discussion of the duties of magazines and newspapers. Mr. Mokarzel is the editor of Al Hoda, the largest Syrian daily in the world.

There follows in Arabic "Life and Death," by Henryk Sienkiewicz. The story is some account of Nobel prizes and the beginnings of book reviews. An article on the Arabic tongue is followed by "The Wit of Saneah."

A long history of the conservation policy in the United States and the controversy it has excited comes next. One of Guy de Maupassant's stories, "A Vendetta," is printed; there is a translation of Camille Flammarion's speculations on the earth inside and the beginning of a serial story of the Crusaders.

The editor and publisher of The New World is Saloum Mokarzel. He wants contributions in Arabic and is especially anxious to encourage short story writers. Effectively to do so he is offering to pay for stories he accepts, an unheard of thing among the Syrians, with whom the honor of having one's work printed has always sufficed.

and Carmen Sylva have each thus served. Of course if a woman wins the prize she is privileged to occupy the throne herself without making a choice.

The optimistic member of the new Poetry Club who thought the festival might be lifted over to New York soil, or asphalt, had visions of boxes being sold at high prices; of newspapers paying the prizes for the privilege of first printing the successful poem, but others demurred; they had misgivings as to how true art would be nourished in so material an atmosphere.

The club is going to meet again soon—that was the decision at the fourteenth story gathering. Whether it will continue meeting in such lofty altitudes and so be a typical New York salon or whether it will seek out or fit to order some semi-mouldy, dark pillared old chapel and so be a disciple of London, or start on a prairie tour of the cafes of the great city has not yet been decided. As said, before, it may surprise every one by imitative nothing.

A RECENT OF NIPPON

Folk Lore Story That Goes Back to Feudal Days
Mayor Who Arrested a God and Sentenced Him.

Somebody said recently that the detective story is as old as the pyramids and that some of the "Arabian Nights" forecast "The Murders in the Rue Morgue" and "A Study in Scarlet" by a thousand years or more; but no better proof of the catholicity of the detective story can be found than that offered by feudal Japan, which produced the tale of the arrest of the stone god Jizo.

In this folk story of ancient Yezo the hero detective moves with a seeming indirection of Leoq and lock Holmes his marvels to O-o-ka was he, Mayor of Yedo the eighth Shogun and holder of justice and the low over merchants Tokugawa cap.

"This O-o-ka received a salary 000 koku of rice, and Mme. Y. who is the wife of the present of Tokio (old Yedo) renounced it. He is the chronicler of the craft in the Japan Magazine, say old chap earned his salary over. Here is the story.

One day a servant employee proprietor of a big store, Bridge in Yedo was sent a pack of valuable cotton yarn back to a dyer in Honjo dis the store's messenger reached a street he was ready to say what more satisfaction could be offered than the little grov set about the stone statue Jizo, the patron saint of children and defenceless women and children.

Mayor O-o-ka. The somnolent porter awoke map to find that his employer had disappeared. In great distress he went to the storekeeper and ce that he had seen a robber had made off with the goods during slumber. The master would not believe his story, saying that it was have been impossible for a robber make of with so large a bundle broad daylight. Unless the porter should pay for the lost goods he would have to go to prison, said the master. In despair the porter took counsel Mayor O-o-ka.

They are certainly to blame for having fallen asleep," replied the Mayor, "but Jizo is equally to blame, for is a god bound to protect every o trusts in him and in this instance he has betrayed them. When they Jizo is a Buddha I cannot pardon his for neglect of duty. I will have him arrested and brought before me for sentence."

O-o-ka gave immediate orders to court officers to go and arrest Jizo of Yokogawa street and bring him before me. He was to be accompanied by three of the officers departed on mission. They first bound the of the stone god with coils of rope, then they placed him in a firm pedestal into a cart. A crowd assembled before the J. Temperance and the Budget

At least one feature of the Lloyd-George budget will not strike any Canadian as revolutionary or Socialistic. This is the method of taxing the liquor trade, which appeared so objectionable to the Conservative party and monstrous to the Nationalists.

Moderate and reasonable though these proposals will appear to the average Canadian, they are described by even their authors and adherents as drastic. How important a part the liquor tax feature of the budget played in the recent election is a matter of dispute, but it is safe to say that any community that would strongly object to them must be in a very backward state in the matter of temperance sentiment. The bitterness between the Liberal party and the powerful brewing and distilling interests of Great Britain is no secret to the Liberals, and may yet work out in the shape of temperance reform in England.

The Revenge in The Budget. A year or so ago the House of Lords threw out a licensing bill that had passed the Commons by an overwhelming majority. The liquor interests exulted; the Liberal rowed vengeance, and they got their chance in the budget, which proposes to do by taxation what the rejected Licensing bill would have accomplished in another way. It has not been denied that these clauses in the budget were inspired rather by a determination to "get square" with the "poorage" than by necessity of raising money.

Indeed, some of the provisions of the bill, which were only extensions of existing taxes, and therefore became automatically operative when the budget was given its first reading, have been in effect for six months, and the revenue has not been materially increased. This result is partly explained by the fact that large quantities of spirits were withdrawn from bond in anticipation of the increase, but it is also true that there has been a falling off in consumption. So far as taxation is concerned, therefore, these increased duties amount to little or nothing.

Fewer Bars, Less Drinking. As temperance measures, the liquor schedules of the budget are welcomed, for they have reduced the number of drinking places, and so far as seven months' English experience teaches, the reduction of public drinking places means a decrease in the amount of liquor consumed. The duty on spirits has been raised from £2.75 to about £3.68 a gallon. Hitherto the distiller has only had to pay a manufacturer's tax of £52.50, no matter what quantity of spirits he turned out while the brewer only paid £5. In the new scheme of taxation the former will be required to pay £50 on the first 50,000 gallons manufactured, and £50 on each additional 25,000 gallons. The brewer will pay £5 on his first 100 barrels, and £3 on each additional 50 barrels.

Taxing the Retailer. Having thus paid his compliments to the wholesaler, the Chancellor of the Exchequer turned his unwelcome attentions to the retailer. The old scale of taxation ranged from £22.50 a year for places retelling for less than £50 a year, to £200 a year on premises renting at £25.00 and more. One can get a fair idea of some of the drinking dens in England by the fact that large quantities of spirits were withdrawn from bond in anticipation of the in-light duties there will be substituted a tax equal to 50 per cent. of the duty on spirits. These scales apply to the licenses, that are known as full licenses, permitting the sale of wine, beer and spirits. The brewer's license, which was previously paid only £17.50 a year, will in future pay a tax equal to one-third of the rental value.

The Tax on Hotels.

One feature of the liquor clause as originally introduced was amended by the Chancellor of the Exchequer at the request of the hotel proprietors. The original proposal was to tax hotels on the same basis as public houses with full license. The adoption of this law would have closed half the great hotels in London. Their estimated rental value might easily be £100,000 a year, but unlike the hotels in Canada, they do not depend upon the bar for their chief profit. Therefore there was a storm of protest when the budget was first introduced and as a result, hotels and clubs will pay only an ad valorem tax on the liquor they actually sell. The hostility to the liquor taxes of the Scotch and Irish members, regarded with alarm due to the alleged discrimination against the distiller.

The Wrath of the Nationalists. Though the brewer roars vigorously, he is not so heavily taxed as is the distiller. Now, distilling in the British Isles is largely done in Scotland and Ireland. The brewing is done in England. In Scotland and Ireland the manufacture of whisky is an important industry, employing many thousands of hands. Moreover, the Irish and Scotch people are whiskey drinkers rather than beer drinkers. The hostility of the Irish Nationalists to the budget is thus clearly explained, and only the hope of winning Home Rule or crippling the House of Lords restrains them from fierce opposition to it.

Royal Household Flour

The best for Bread and the best for Pastry

"The Little Brother of The Rich"

Now, this is not a talk about money.

It isn't a contrast between the rich and the poor, for in some things we are all equally rich and there are no poor brothers.

The poorest woman in the land can have just as good bread as the richest. The children who walk can have just as delicious pies and cakes and "goodies" as the children who ride in carriages.

All the money in the world cannot buy better flour than "ROYAL HOUSEHOLD", for there isn't any better.

And the woman who does her own baking can have just as good bread as is served to the Royal Household of England, and that is made from ROYAL HOUSEHOLD FLOUR sent to England from Canada.

"Ogilvie's Book for a Cook"

Comprises 125 pages of splendid Recipes which have been tested and tried. Every woman who is interested in good things to eat should send and get it.

ROYAL HOUSEHOLD FLOUR is made in Canada by the largest millers in the British Empire.

Owing to the illness of Mr. Howes the case has been postponed until Monday.

Fell and Lay Unconscious.

Mrs. John H. Walker, 149 King St. E., is confined in her home as a result of injuries sustained by falling in her yard some days ago. Mrs. Walker was the first to rise in the morning and went into the yard for some reason. Falling she was rendered unconscious and lay for some time before she revived. At length she attracted the attention of her husband who was in the house and medical assistance was at once summoned. It was feared for a time that Mrs. Walker would be paralyzed, but that danger is now past and she is on the road to recovery.

Following up the Campaign.

The service at the Waterloo street Baptist church last evening marked the close of a series of meetings following the evangelistic campaign at this church. On Sunday a number of converts will be baptized. The meetings at the Charlotte street during the week have shown the most successful and a large number of conversions have been reported. Tomorrow the Rev. Dr. W. C. Keirstead, of U. N. B., will occupy the pulpit at both morning and evening. Baptism will be administered at the evening services.

Beal, in a Scott Act violation case before Magistrate Peck, at Albert, received word yesterday that judgment had been entered finding Mr. Beal $50 with $23 costs. In case the fine is not paid before April 9th a sentence of 85 days in jail will be imposed. Dr. Curry said last evening that he had applied for a copy of the evidence and would appeal the case. He would also forward a copy of the evidence to the provincial and dominion governments. If the judgment was sustained by the higher courts, he said it would mean that the exception to the act allowing liquor to be sent to Scott Act counties for private or family use was unlawful.

Sun Retires From Newspaper Field

Last Issue of Journal Started in 1878 Appears Today—For 27 Years Leading Conservative Paper in Province—Turned Liberal in 1906—Death Due to Party Competition.

Readers of the St. John Sun will probably see the final issue of that journal today. It is understood that the Telegraph Company, which has bought the goodwill of the paper, will not publish it after this week.

Thus disappears a journal which, for nearly thirty-two years, has been one of the institutions of this city and province. Today's issue will bear its number volume 34, number 60, indicating that the paper was established at the beginning of January, 1877. A statistical mistake has occurred somewhere. The Sun was established about the middle of the year 1878. It is therefore not quite thirty-two years old.

That was the last year of the MacKenzie regime. Sir Leonard Tilley was lieutenant governor of the province when the paper was established, but he was about to refuse a second term and resume the leadership of his party in the first national party contest. At that time the Conservative party was in somewhat the same position as thirty summers later. All the St. John papers were supporting the government.

Starting The Paper.

It did not require so much money to start a newspaper in those days as it does now. The Sun was at first printed by contract. It was started as a campaign paper, and arrangements to make it permanent were not made until after the election in September. The Conservatives won the city seat, electing Sir Leonard Tilley, who became minister of finance, and set about framing the national policy. His party in New Brunswick formed the Sun Publishing Company, acquired a plant and established themselves in the same building in which the Sun will be printed today.

Among those who were active in the establishment of the paper were Mr. S. P. Tuck, brother of the retired Chief Justice, the late Mr. Stephen King, afterward Post Office Inspector, the late Hon. T. R. Jones, and Mr. W. H. Thorne, whose business connection with the paper continued to 1906. It was expected that the late Dr. James Hannay would be the first editor, but at the last moment he decided to remain with the Telegraph. Mr. J. L. Stewart was the first editor in charge, and shortly after the late Mr. John Livingston became the editorial writer. Mr. Stewart returned to his other work as soon as he could. Mr. Livingston remained through one parliamentary term, and after the election of 1882, became editor of the Montreal Herald. The late Mr. R. A. Payne then became managing editor with Professor George Foster as editorial writer. Mr. Foster was elected to the House of Commons that year.

In 1885, Mr. Foster became a minister, and Mr. S. D. Scott, who had been editor of the Halifax Herald, became editor of the Sun. Mr. Payne remained in charge of the news staff. A few years later, Col. Markham joined the staff as managing director and business manager. In these days Mr. W. H. Thorne was president of the company.

First To Use Linotype.

The Sun was the first paper in the Maritime Provinces to introduce the linotype machine. It was the first to abandon the blanket sheet and adopt the current size.

About the close of 1905, Hon. B. F. Pearson purchased the newspaper property. The transfer took place at the beginning of 1906. Mr. Scott resigned the position of editor two months later, soon afterward the Sun became a supporter of the Laurier government, under the editorial management of Mr. C. F. Crandall, who has recently been business manager also. In 1908 negotiations began for the purchase of the Sun by the Telegraph Company. An option was given, and a large payment made thereon. For some reason the transaction was not completed. Last year the Sun became at times a severe critic of the owners of the Telegraph, and the group whom the Sun described as "the machine." The Standard has frequently republished the terms used, but it would be ungracious to recall them here. Recently negotiations were again taken up, and after several interruptions, have finally succeeded.

NO SUBSIDY FORTHCOMING

Percy Thomson Interviewed Regarding Statement That Munson Line Has Not Complied With Conditions.

Mr. Percy Thomson, who has been on a business trip to Ottawa, returned to the city yesterday. Asked whether the Hon. J. K. Flemming's statement, during the course of his recent budget speech, to the effect that the Federal government intended to refuse payment of the subsidy offered for a steamship service between St. John and Cuba, was correct, he replied that the specifications had not been complied with, applied to the Munson line, Mr. Thomson said that he did not care to discuss the matter at the present time.

"But it applies to your company?" "Well, I've been looking into the subsidy matter for the last ten days. I am not sure that the subsidy is not forthcoming."

"We have not considered that yet. We are still advertising our sailings to Cuba."

"Can the service be carried on without a subsidy?" "I don't think so," said Mr. Thomson. "It's not a profitable class of freight that we handle on that line." The Federal government, when agreeing to give a subsidy for a monthly service from St. John to Cuba, specified that steamers flying the British flag should be employed, that they should have a net tonnage of at least 1000 tons with a speed of 10 knots and accommodation for 20 passengers. It is stated that these conditions have not been complied with and for that reason the subsidy will not be forthcoming.

TALK TO BUSINESS BOYS

T. H. Estabrooks Gives Address at Y.M.C.A. Boys Social—Brains, Energy and Health Necessary to Success.

Mr. T. H. Estabrooks gave an interesting talk to the Business Boys' social at the Y.M.C.A. last evening on the "Opportunities of a business life." In choosing an occupation, he said, personal inclination, education and health should be considered. To succeed honesty was the most important factor. Salary at starting was not to be considered. It was rather the salary which would be received in ten years time. Capital was not essential but brains, energy and health were the qualities which achieved success.

An interesting programme was carried out by the boys. Mr. W. H. Moor, boys' secretary, presiding. Oscar Colwell furnished music and much amusement was provided by a blind boxing match in which the stars were W. Latham, W. Knodell and A. Belyea.

Design For Exhibition Medals. The design for the gold medals to be awarded at the Dominion exhibition has been chosen and is a very striking and appropriate one. One side of the medals bears a reproduction in miniature of coat-of-arms of the nine provinces ranged in a circle about the Dominion emblem on a larger scale. The reverse side bears the legend "Dominion exhibition, St. John, N. B., 1910."

WILL SHIP ORE BY MAY 1

W. H. Parsons, Drummond's Engineer, Brings Favorable Report of Bathurst Mines—Staff To Be Increased.

Mr. W. H. Parsons, engineer of the Steel and Iron Works at Londonderry, N. B., who has been looking after the development of the Drummond mine near Bathurst, arrived in the city last evening. Speaking to a Standard reporter Mr. Parsons said that the work in connection with the development of the mines and the provision of shipping facilities was progressing rapidly.

The railway was now finished right up to the mine and though the track was not fully ballasted, they were able to run cars over it. Work on the wharf at Newcastle was being rushed, and it was expected that it would be ready for shipping ore by May 1. Blasting operations had been started and the mine machinery was being installed as quickly as possible.

Mr. Parsons says that as soon as the company get all their machinery on the spot they will make large additions to their working staff. He hopes that they will be ready to ship ore almost as soon as navigation opens in the Bay.

JOURNALISTS AS GUESTS

Executive of Exhibition Association Give Luncheon to Visitors at Union Club—Speeches and Much Enthusiasm.

A fitting close to the eventful visit of the provincial newspaper men was the afternoon luncheon given yesterday afternoon at the Union Club by the executive of the St. John Exhibition Association. Enthusiasm and a willingness to co-operate to make the Dominion Exhibition a grand success was the keynote of the speeches which followed the excellent report. In the absence of Mr. A. O. Skinner, the president, the chair was taken by Mr. R. B. Emerson and Mr. R. O'Brien occupied the vice chair. Those seated at the table were J. L. Stewart, C. B. Allen, L. B. McMurdo, H. B. Anslow, Dr. J. H. Frink, H. J. P. Good, W. H. Golding, E. M. McCready, R. O'Brien, J. D. McKenna, H. A. Porter, G. H. Young, R. P. Patchell, W. F. Burdett, A. M. Belding and J. T. Hawke.

After Mr. Emerson had welcomed the visitors, Mr. H. J. P. Good, the manager of the exhibition, spoke generally of the value of exhibitions, referring to the educational benefits and asking for the co-operation of the press of the provinces. He spoke of the warm enthusiasm which existed in St. John with regard to the exhibition and the active sympathy extended by the press.

It was rather an anomaly that Mr. J. L. Stewart, who as editor of the Standard has been strenuously securing the Dominion grant for Chatham was the first speaker to respond to the toast, but he proved very much at home in a capital speech, assuring the executive that the North Shore could be counted upon to lend every effort to make the big affair the most successful yet.

TARIFF DIFFERENCES

U. S. Consul Says ad valorem Duty on Canadian Goods is Less Than on American Products.

Mr. M. K. Moorhead, the American consul, in an interview with The Standard yesterday stated that the impression prevailing here that the United States tariff was twice as high as that of Canada was erroneous, at any rate in so far as the trade between the two countries was affected. While it might be true that the duty on many articles entering the States was twice as high as the Canadian duty, it was a readily ascertainable fact that the average ad valorem duty on Canadian commodities entering the United States was lower than the ad valorem duty on American goods entering Canada.

Mr. Moorhead produced statistics showing that while the average duty paid on Canadian commodities entering the United States was a fraction over 11 per cent, the average on American articles entering Canada was 13 per cent.

successful ever held in New Brunswick. At one of the first exhibitions held in St. John he recalled that he had the honor of acting as superintendent of the art exhibit.

Mr. John T. Hawke, of Moncton, in an excellent speech threw out many valuable suggestions gleaned from observation of several noted fairs including the Shepherds Bush exhibition held in London a year or two ago. Messrs. W. F. Burdett, A. D. McKenna, L. B. McMurdo and H. B. Anslow also spoke briefly. Before the gathering dispersed a vote of thanks to the exhibition executive was heartily carried.

Previous to the dinner the newspaper men were taken for a drive about the city and the West Side as the guests of Schofield Bros., Ltd.
