SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSONS

A Post Mortem Examination into the Cause of the Death of a Nation.

S. S. Lesson by Evangeline.

June 17, 2 Kings 17:1-41.

Our lesson brings us to the last of Israel's kings, whose obituary notice like that of his predecessors was "He did that which was evil in the sight of the Lord."

The day of judgment, long deferred, had come at last when Hoshea having applied to Syria and to Egypt for help, rather than to God, was implored for neglecting to pay tribute to the king of Assyria who, after besieging Samaria three years, took possession of it and carried the ten tribes captives to Assyria.

This ended the history of Israel as a nation which covered a period of two hundred and thirty years.

The reasons for this final defeat form the greater part of our lesson.

The whole history of the down fall of Israel is summed up by the inspired writer as follows:

"They sinned against the Lord their God."

What is sin?

Well, may we ask in this age of revolutionary religious thought, when from professors' chairs of American universities is heard the following: "There are no absolute evils," "immorality is simply an duty," "transgression of society's accepted standards," "moral precepts are passing shibboleths," "conceptions of right and wrong are as unstable as styles of dress," "the decalogue tenets more stable than a syllabus," "There is no sin," says new theology.

"There is no Sin," triumphantly yells a loving humanity let loose from all restraints. What saith the Lord?

"Sin is the transgression of the law."

"All unrighteousness is sin."

"To him that knoweth to do good and doeth it not to him it is sin."

Our own Bibles have been translated "sin" in the New Testament each of which may be defined as follows: "Rebellion of law and of divine authority," "iniquity," "disobedience," "refusing to hear," "stepping over the line of the law," "missing the mark," "deviation from God's standard," "failure in duty," "transgression in conflict," "error in ignorance," "ungodliness," "an out-working of evil," "evil premeditated," "viciousness in morals," "viciousness in habit and custom," "out of harmony—not in tune."

The cause of the death of Israel is gnawing like a cancer at the vitals of our own nation.

God spoke these words and said, "Thou shalt have no other gods before Me," and behold how all Christendom and all headstrong serve the god of this world!

In the shrine of theology self is deified, "every man makes his own god out of his own experience and imagination." Thus again the symbols of His body are changed into the real presence and the bread and wine by representatives of church and state.

In the shrines of commerce the almighty dollar is the object of worship.

In the shrines of learning, literature, music, science and art take the first place in the hearts' affections rather than God.

"Thou shalt not make unto thee any graven images, thou shalt not bow down to them, nor serve them," and behold in our churches and homes as many images as idols in a Kaffir's hut!

"Thou shalt not take the name of the Lord thy God in vain" and behold in the language of the masses a language of profanity.

"Remember the Sabbath day," and behold in our shops, Sunday excursions, picnics give evidence of the fact that it is not remembered.

"Honor thy father and thy mother" superseded by "parents, obey your children that thy days may be peace."

"Thou shalt not kill," and behold how our governments license the liquor dealer to kill as many as he can!

"Thou shalt not commit adultery," and behold from our university class rooms comes the following: "The honor of the institution is doomed."

"There are Holier Alliances Without the Marriage Bond"

than within it." Children are an embarrassment. The sole object of profligacy is to fill thy graves."

"Thou shalt not steal," and behold "what an art stock jobbing has become!" says Hon. S. B. Baker, from the hour that the criminal begins to think out the place where to set his trap the language in which he is to allure victims, the lying statements to manufacture an apparent value and the selection of the moment when he can unload and leave for parts unknown.

"Thou shalt not covet," and behold how the spirit of the age applauds the man who not only covets but acquires the thing coveted whether by fair means or foul!

Blind indeed must one be to the fact that we are nearing a crisis when the inevitable nation which shall fall upon these nations, which shall be set aside His authority and His law as it did upon Israel.

Ellet in defending the new theology makes this significant statement: not the decline of respect for authority is evident today in government, in education, in the church, in business, and in the family. This will be one of the characteristics of the new religion."

When the false professing church leaders in the low grade movement national disaster is not far off.

There is a limit even to the patience of the Infinite. He is even now giving a last chance. The claims of Christ are being urged upon men never before. The world for Christ in this generation is the cry of the true church. It reminds one of the prophets sent to rouse Israel in the latter stages of its existence. "O Israel, return unto the Lord thy God." And of the message of John, "Repent ye for the kingdom of heaven is at hand."

O that we could realize all that it means to be His in the coming crisis. Shall he be said of our church, our nation, ourselves, "they would not hear, they hardened their necks, they did not believe in the Lord their God, they rejected His statutes, they followed their own counsel, they despised His word, they left all the commandments of the Lord their God, they caused their sons and daughters to pass through the fire" (old false religion).

Therefore the Lord will remove them out of His sight.

Beware! Beware!

For "he that being oft reproved hardeneth his neck shall suddenly be destroyed and that without remedy."

Easy to operate. Easy to clean. Easy to protect.

SUNSHINE FURNACE

Water Pan Correctly Placed

The Feed Door of a No. 500 Sunshine Furnace is 12 x 13 inches. This means that the largest shovel can safely be emptied into our smallest size, and that good-sized chunks of wood require no chopping in order to be used as fuel.

To keep the correct humidity for sanitary purposes, we place the water pan in right over the main door, a place where the heat and the householder can reach it. So in Sunshine Furnace the water never gets stagnant, and the householder never complains about the awkwardness of pouring the water in.

Automatic Gas Damper allows furnace to be checked shortly after cooling. This saves fuel and protects plants in rooms above.

To make "Sunshine" the easiest-to-be-cleaned furnace, we construct two flue doors, and place same not only at an equal distance from each other, but at an equal distance from the large feed door. So the operator with an ordinary soot-cleaning brush can go completely around the radiator without inconvenience; and, what is more important still, can do this without having to put out the fire or take down the smoke-pipe.

A male quartette from the Lenister street United Baptist church was present and sang during the services, which were conducted by Rev. Wellington Camp.

Members of the different societies to which the deceased belonged attended the funeral, but not in a body. Relatives of deceased and Rev. Mr. Camp accompanied the remains to Sussex. Many very beautiful floral tributes were received, among which were a Mystic Shrine emblem, which consisted of a sword, crescent and star, from the Laxor Temple, and a Maltese Cross from the I.O.F. of which the deceased had been a Past Supreme Vice-Ranger.

Coroner D. E. Berryman had previously held a post-mortem examination and found that death had been caused by a fracture of the bones of the pelvis, and was purely accidental. He therefore decided that no inquest was necessary.

John Johnston.

The body of the late John Johnston was laid peacefully at rest in Fernhill yesterday afternoon, after funeral services, which were conducted at the deceased's late residence, 121 Paradise Row, by Rev. Gordon Dickie. The members of St. Stephen's church choir were present and sang at the opening of the services. "Now the Laborer's Task is O'er" and at the close, "Asleep in Jesus."

The funeral cortege which was a long and impressive one, left the

APPARENT PASSING OF HANS WAGNER MARKS RISE OF YOUNG AL BRIDWELL

HANS WAGNER.

AL BRIDWELL, SHORTSTOP OF THE NEW YORK GIANTS.

Hans Wagner has lost his "goat," according to tales being wafted around in big league circles. Whether Jack Flynn, the husky first sacker of the Pirates, got the Dutchman's "goat" when he handed him that wallop, dependent knoweth not, but it remains a fact that Wagner isn't playing the baseball up to date this year that he has since he first began his remarkable career in Louisville, Ky., in 1890.

With the falling down of Wagner, the star Al Bridwell, shortstop of the New York Giants, is making a whole lot more fuss in baseball circles than Halley's comet did among the astronomers. The wise boys say Bridwell is the best shortstop in the National league, and they also opine that since the passing of Terry Turner he is somewhat inferior than anything in the American league.

Bridwell came from Portsmouth, O., wherever that is, and if memory serves right played his first league engagement with Cincinnati. Then he went to Boston and McGraw grabbed him from the latter city. Under the tutelage of the foxy McGraw, Bridwell developed into the great shortstop he is now. He not only can field a ball on either side of him, but he is some healthy clutter, always picking up in the first flight.

MARATHONS AND ST. JOHN PLAY TODAY

Today's game between the Marathons and the St. John's promises to be a most interesting struggle. The Marathons have been playing great ball on the road, winning from St. Stephen on Thursday, and holding the fast Calais team down to a score of 4 to 2 yesterday. Today's game will be far bloodier as the St. John's have lost to the Marathons the last time they played, although defeating them in the exhibition games. They will have Estey, the spit ball pitcher, in the box, and he will be opposed by Maloney, who pitched a winning game for the Greeks against the St. Stephen team. The game which will be played on the Marathon grounds will be called at 3 o'clock sharp. The following is the lineup and batting order of both teams:

Marathons—Fraser, short; Graveron, c. f.; Parle, 2nd base; Dr. Malcolm, 1. f.; Donnelly 1st base; Lynch, or Clawson, 3rd base; Riley, r. f.; Maloney, pitcher; Nelson, catcher. St. John's—Raney, 2nd base; McNutt, c. f.; Britt, 1st base; Harrigan, short; McCormick, 1. f.; Mahoney, 3rd base; O'Brien, r. f.; McEwan, catcher; Estey, pitcher.

CALAIS WINS HARD FOUGHT GAME FROM THE MARATHONS

N. B. AND MAINE LEAGUE. Yesterday's Game. At Calais—Calais 4, Marathons 2. The League Standing.

Games Today. At St. John—Marathons vs. St. John. At St. Stephen—Calais vs. St. Stephen. At Fredericton—Woodstock vs. Fredericton.

Calais, June 16.—In a hard fought game here today the fast Calais team defeated the Marathons of St. John by a score of 4 to 2. It was the first meeting of these teams in the New Brunswick and Maine League circles. Bunched hits in the first, third and eighth netted the runs for Calais. Donnelly's single over second base in the fourth inning started the excitement. He stole second and was advanced to third by Riley's grounder to left, and was scored by Shannon's single to left field.

In the ninth the visitors had a sweating base which started with Maloney's hot drive to third, followed by Nelson's single to left field. Maloney was advanced to second. With only one man out and two men on bases, Lynch's hit escaped the third fielder and Maloney scored. Nelson advanced to third, O'Neil put the bars up and Fraser and Graveron struck out, ending the game.

PAGEANT AT CRYSTAL PALACE GREATEST SHOW IN THE WORLD

Mr. Frank Lascelles Tells of the Organization of the Great Display of Buildings That Will Represent the British Empire

A colossal task is nearing completion at the Crystal Palace, London. Within a space of 350 acres the whole of the British Empire is being represented by hundreds of buildings, scenery, and exhibits. The Festival of Empire, as the great exhibition which will be opened from May to October, has been called, is the most ambitious effort which has ever been made to demonstrate to us the vastness and possibilities of our overseas dominions. In addition there will be a great pageant, in which 15,000 performers will take part, illustrating the Empire's history and development from the very earliest days to the present time. Our colonies have subscribed thousands of pounds towards the expenses, and thousands of men have been employed on a patriotic project in every way worthy of the Coronation year of His Majesty King George V.

"The public," said Mr. Frank Lascelles, Master of the Festival—who is famed all the world over for the magnificence of the pageants he has organized—to the bits the other day, "has little idea of the enormous work which has been involved in producing this great Festival of Empire. Our colonies have been ransacked for ideas and for many months past we have been co-operating with the various colonial Governments in order to make the Festival thoroughly representative in every way. And it is really surprising how people in this country have entered into the idea with zest and enthusiasm. The 15,000 amateur performers, for instance, who are to take part in the great pageant. Not only are they buying their costumes and paying for their railway fares during the run of the Festival, but they are willingly bearing the expenses entailed by six or seven weeks rehearsal. It is a splendid illustration, is it not, of the patriotism which has been incited by this great idea?"

Amazing Figures.

And the gigantic scale and thoroughness with which this pageant is being carried out is strikingly illustrated by the facts and figures which Mr. Lascelles kindly provided. An amphitheatre for 10,000 spectators has been erected, and for considerably over a year hundreds of skilled workmen have been engaged in preparing costumes and properties; and in every case the utmost care has been taken to ensure historical correctness, even to the minutest details. By loan and purchase Mr. Lascelles has secured twenty historical State coaches, including one which belonged to Queen Victoria, and another which was the property of Napoleon III. A thousand horses and cattle, 400 complete suits of armour, nearly 7,000 weapons, and close upon 10,000 helmets and shields—these are a few of the properties which will be used during the great pageant of the Festival of Empire.

"But, of course," said Mr. Lascelles, "what the pageant is one of the central features of the Festival it by no means stands alone. In the grounds there will be some 300 buildings, ranging from the 100,000 reproduction of the Parliament Buildings of Ottawa, Canada, to decorative kiosks. All the colonial buildings will be exact reproductions of the Parliament Houses of the respective colonies, and in each case will be two-thirds of the size of the originals. Altogether these various Government buildings cost well over £500,000, and I might mention that Canada alone is spending no less than $350,000 on the various projects for representing that vast colony at the Crystal Palace.

The All-Red Route.

"What is the total cost? Well, it is difficult to say at the present time. The Committee of the Festival of Empire has spent over $1,500,000 already, and this is quite apart from the money expended by the various colonies themselves."

"In the first place," said Mr. Lascelles, "we are paying close upon 5,000 workpeople engaged on the preparations for the Festival. Then there is some $150,000 worth of machinery and $300,000 expended on the erection of a mile and a half of electric railway, which we have termed the All-Red Route, and which will run through the various scenes of the Empire, as depicted in the grounds of the Crystal Palace. A two-minute service will be maintained throughout the day by ten cars, and on each train guides will explain details and objects of interest en route as the train takes the visitors on a tour embracing Newfoundland, Canada, Jamaica, Malay States, India, Australia, New Zealand, and South Africa."

Diamonds Galore.

"Perhaps one of the most interesting facts regarding the realistic representation of South Africa on the All-Red Route is that, at a cost of many thousands of pounds, visitors will be able to see gold and diamond mines in full operation. The De Beers Company are spending $10,000 on the representation of a South African diamond mine, and I might mention, are actually showing $10,000,000 worth of real diamonds."

"And what of the inside of the Palace, Mr. Lascelles?"

"All that will be no less interesting for us, for we intend to hold an All-Red Exhibition. Six hundred stands are being erected, and there will be an unrivalled collection of British arts and industries. By the way, I might mention that one of the largest stands in the world will be erected in the centre of the Crystal Palace terrace—namely, a statue of the King, 60 ft. high, dominating, as it were, His Majesty's Empire in miniature."

London will be the holiday city of the world this year, and it is safe to affirm that millions of visitors will find their way to the Crystal Palace to witness the wonders of this great Festival of Empire.

Baby Peers

AT THE CORONATION THERE WILL BE SEVERAL YOUNG PEERS AND PEERESSES WHO WILL BE INVITED TO THE ABBEY. FOR INSTANCE, BARONESS CLIFTON, WHO IS 10, IS A PEERESS IN HER OWN RIGHT, AND WILL APPEAR IN THE HOBS AND CORONET OF HER RANK. BARONESS BEAUMONT, WHO IS 15, IS ANOTHER, WHILE LORD CLONMORE IS A PEER WHO IS TOO YOUNG TO ATTEND THE HOUSE OF LORDS AND THEREFORE CANNOT EXPECT A SUMMONS TO THE CORONATION, ACCORDING TO ENGLISH CUSTOM: YET HE WILL RECEIVE A SPECIAL INVITATION, SOME UNTITLED CHILDREN WILL ALSO BE LUCKY ENOUGH TO HAVE SEATS IN THE ABBEY.

The King of Spain is one of the very few foreign Royalties who has a nickname, and he is never styled by it except in this country, where it was given him. Among the younger members of the Royal Family, and by a very few intimate friends, the King of Spain has been known as "Jack" for some years past.

It is a grave offence against the custom of the House of Commons to call any member of the reigning Royal Family by any pet name, and it is not done even by Royalties themselves.

Many Thrones For The King

The "One Most Familiar to the Public is That on the Dias in the House of Lords"

Most people talk about the throne of England as if it were a special armchair on which the King sat daily, but, as a matter of fact, there is no officially recognized throne, and it has become a metaphorical symbol of monarchy, just as the "Crown" has become practically captured by the law courts.

One would naturally, perhaps, look for the throne proper at Windsor. It surely should be the King's "Windsor chair," and, as a matter of fact, there is both a throne and a throne-room in the ancient fortress and palace, but it is probably the very last chair our sailor King would be likely to be found seated upon if one could pay an afternoon call. And, so far from this throne being unique, there is actually one at each of the Royal palaces, and it is probable that the one at Buckingham Palace is the more generally used, inasmuch as most coronation occasions take place there.

The King may be said to have a suite of thrones—or shall we say a set of "occasional thrones"—on each of which he probably sits at least once. Certainly he only sits on a single occasion upon one of them—that is the Coronation Chair in Westminster Abbey.

PRECAUTION AGAINST ERRORS

Nowadays the details of all State ceremonials are rehearsed and studied with such diligence that there are not likely to occur next June any of those awkward incidents which have caused chagrin or mortification on previous occasions. At the crowning of William and Mary there came a moment, as they knelt at the altar, when they should have made an offering of twenty guineas. But the envelope reserved for this formality was discovered to be empty, and the situation proved to be vexatious until Lord Danby stepped forward and poured the necessary coins out of his purse into the basin.

HIS MAJESTY AS A BUSINESS MAN

King George's Work for the Coronation--Buckingham Palace Is Controlled Like a Modern Battleship

The King is taking the most active personal interest in every detail of the Coronation, and his Majesty is at present one of the hardest-worked men in his empire.

Indeed, the King's energy is a revelation to those about the Court who had not been brought into close touch with him before he ascended the throne. And not less than his energy, his business ability.

It is no exaggeration to say that his Majesty has revolutionized life at Court, and has brought new methods to bear on the work of a Sovereign. He has made kingship into a business with a man at its head who insists on being conversant with every one of its ramifications and details, and on seeing that it is conducted on the most modern lines.

As one who has occasion to see him almost daily in connection with the arrangements for the Coronation described in The Daily Mirror—

"The King has introduced the methods of the battleship into Buckingham Palace. No one walks there now; everyone moves at the double; they are all on the run."

Busy Workroom.

"The King sits at a large writing-table in his study overlooking Constitution Hill, a row of speaking-tubes on his left, a couple of telephones on his right. In the room below is Sir Arthur Bigge's office."

"When you go in the King looks up, attends to you, and then turns at once to the next person. He seems to be able to look after a dozen things at a time."

"In the midst of a conversation his Majesty will break off to give an order to someone who has just come in, or to make an inquiry down the speaking-tubes, or on the telephone to some Crown department. Then he turns to you again."

"Then his Majesty deals with the matter that has brought you there promptly and decisively, and without any waste of words; just a quiet 'Very well,' 'Please do,' or 'No, I'm afraid that won't do!'

Arranging for Foreign Guests.

"The last few days the King has been very busy over the lists of foreign and Colonial guests; he sees every name, assigns the actual quarters each person is to occupy, decides who is to be in attendance, and how many servants are to be at the visitors' disposal—every detail is attended to and ticked off on lists and plans as he works."

"But it is the same with all his work; not merely the Coronation arrangements. All the so-called routine of State; it is no mere routine, perfunctorily performed, in his case."

"The King wants to know all about everything, and does know, too; and he is not content simply to check and approve other people's work. He has his own very decided views on most subjects, and people have found that his view is generally correct, and seeing that they are acted on."

"As for his Majesty's sense of duty, there is no delay or idleness; he is constantly making inquiries as to the progress matters are making, wanting to know why things are not completed, and so on."

"Why! The King has had swing baton doors fitted to many of the rooms to expedite matters—no opening or shutting of doors."

"Buckingham Palace is a hive to-day, and the King is the busiest bee in it. There is no fussing. Quietly, very quietly and calmly directing and controlling and keeping everyone up to the mark, the King is always cool and quiet, but always decided."

MAKING READY THE PROCESSION

A Buckingham Palace Official Tells How the Coming Coronation is Being Rehearsed.

I was recently privileged to have a chat with one of the officials at Buckingham Palace who have charge of the preparations and arrangements for the coming coronation processions, says an Answers man.

I found them all busy, watching the training of horses, directing the movements of drivers and grooms, superintending the clearing and overhauling of carriages and harness. And in the great riding-school attached to the Royal stables there were the noted eleven creams being put through their paces, and taught how to treat all sorts of noises and sights with the disdain and contempt becoming such superior creatures.

"Yes," said the gallant captain at the head of the department, "we start early, in order to have all ready for the auspicious day. As you see, we have to get the shy and nervous horses accustomed to the shouting of crowds and the roar of guns."

"And when do you begin to go over the route and to rehearse the actual procession?"

"Not before June itself comes,"

COSTLY WINDOWS

Some are Being Let, It is Said, for 600 Guineas

If the United States millionaires are taking away our best pictures, they are this year doing a good turn to the owners and tenants of Westminster. End London houses, says the Glasgow Herald. There will be an enormous influx of visitors from America for the Coronation, and the consequence is that hotel prices, and, still more, the prices of houses and windows on the Coronation route, are rising to a very high figure. According to a West London friend, some windows affording a good view of the procession are being let for 600 guineas, and for one flat in the vicinity of Pall Mall has been asked for the day. For single seats, the price ranges from 5 to 25 guineas, but there is great doubt whether it will be possible, even with the aid of wealthy Americans, to maintain these figures up to the day of the Coronation. In all likelihood within a day or two of that event there will be a considerable slump. It is well known that on the occasion of the last Coronation seats could be had for a few guineas before it took place at a comparatively low figure.

upon which it is actually used as a seat. Often a phrase like this occurs: "Mr. John Burns, who is greatly interested in this bill, intended to be absent from the steps of the thames." A beautiful rail separates this "Royal seat of Kings" from the faithful peers.

At the Court of St. James's.

But it is not everybody who realizes that the Palace of Westminster—the correct name for the Parliamentary Houses—contains a second throne. This is placed in the King's Robing-Room and is usually the King whom he is putting on his royal garb before entering the House of Peers to read the "Speech from the Throne."

As a matter of fact, the official throne of these realms is the one at James's Palace, that very ordinary-looking building at the foot of St. James's-street. All Ambassadors are accredited to this Court, and, in the eyes of foreign Governments, it stands for the majesty of Britain. Its throne is a very handsome one, and stands under a magnificent and most ornate canopy.

Though the throne at Windsor is but little used, it is unique in one respect. It is really an Eastern throne, after the style of the one we read of in the records of King Solomon, for it is composed entirely of ivory, and is the gift of one of the Princes of India.

ROYAL NICKNAMES IN MANY VARIETIES

Pet Appellations of Those Who Move in Regal Circles in England and Elsewhere.

Royal personages, like folk in less exalted ranks of life, often possess a pet name or nickname, though a Royal title is seldom called by such a name, except by members of the Royal Family, and rarely even by his or her most intimate friends who are not of the same rank.

King George has not had a pet name for very many years. When quite a little boy he was styled "Arthur," from his great liking for playing with bows and arrows. The name "George" was dropped when his Majesty was about twelve. He was called "George" until he was about sixteen; but he has always been called "George" by members of the Royal Family.

The Prince of Wales, when quite a little boy, was known as "Eddy" among the Royal Family, and Eddy he might still have been called but for Queen Alexandra, who greatly disliked this particular contraction of Edward, and it was chiefly owing to her Majesty's influence that the pet name was dropped.

Prince "Marcus."

The Prince is now sometimes called "David" by his brothers and sister, but is usually styled "Edward" by his older relatives. Arthur of Connaught has been called "Marcus" for many years by his relatives. In this connection a rather amusing incident may be related, which occurred some years ago when Prince Arthur went to Japan to convey the insignia of the Order of the Garter to the Mikado on behalf of the late King.

One of the officials of the Japanese Court, whose duty it was to enter the names of the visitors from the English Court in the roll of the Royal visitors, heard the Prince called "Marcus" by a member of his suite, and much to the Prince's amusement, his name was entered in the roll-book as "His Royal Highness Prince Arthur Marcus of Connaught."

Queen Alexandra has always been known as "Alix" by members of the Royal Family, and among her Majesty's most treasured possessions is a photograph of the late King, given her shortly after her engagement, on which is written "To Alix from Edward."

Miss Charlotte Knollys, in private life, has for many years called Queen Alexandra "Alix," and is the only person outside of royal rank who has been privileged to do so.

The nurses who have the care of the little Princes and Princesses of English Royal Family are never allowed to call their charges by any pet name other than that of "Baby."

From the age of three years a Royal Prince is styled "Sir," and a Princess "Madam" by their nurses, and this rule was in the case of the Queen of Norway, who was known in the days of her infancy as "Harry," and by a very few intimate friends, the King of Spain has been known as "Jack" for some years past.

It is a grave offence against the custom of the House of Commons to call any member of the reigning Royal Family by any pet name, and it is not done even by Royalties themselves.

BANGOR, ME., IS RAPIDLY RECOVERING FROM FIRE

Result of Disastrous Blaze will be that Bangor will be Much Better Looking City than Before.

The city of Bangor, which was visited by a disastrous fire some time ago, is rapidly recovering from the devastation caused by the flames. A St. John man who visited the city this week says that the chief result of the fire will be a much better looking city. To a stranger the burned area does not look large, but in the district was contained many of Bangor's most expensive buildings. Practically every structure which was burned is to be replaced by a better one, and the business district is the scene of active building operations at present. Bangor is one of the busiest and most prosperous cities in the state of Maine, and it takes more than a fire to make it pause for long.

EARLY CLOSING CASES POLICE COURT YESTERDAY

Evidence was Taken in Several of the Complaints and Adjudgment Made Until Saturday Morning Next—It is Expected City Council will Consider Law in the Meantime.

In the police court yesterday afternoon the cases against a number of merchants for keeping their places of business open after seven o'clock in the evening in violation of the by-law which went into force a few months ago were resumed. Recorder J. B. M. Baxter was present conducting the cases for the prosecution, while Daniel Mullin, K. C. and A. A. Wilson, K. C., were present in the interest of the defendants. Those who have been reported, and whose names were read out in court, were William H. McDonald, Daniel Monahan, William A. Watson, Thomas Ritchie, Morris Jacobson, Bernard Jacobson, Robert Caples and James P. Quinn.

The McDonald Case. The case against McDonald was taken up first and Policeman Whittier who made the report against him was the first witness. He gave testimony that on the evening of May 19 he called on the McDonald grocery store at retail by Mrs. McDonald, and saw groceries sold at retail by Mrs. McDonald. The store was open after seven o'clock that night. People entered the store and Mrs. McDonald said that she would serve them. The officer said he told her that he would have to report the case and that she would have to put up with the consequences. None of the people who entered the store while witness was there stated that the goods were for sickness, an accident or a case of death.

Mr. Wilson's Argument. Mr. Wilson stated that he took the ground that the act was in violation of personal liberty. The grocers sell fruit and tobacco and it was unfair to close them up and allow others to sell. The law, he stated, was indeed an unfair one. The beer licensees allow the keepers to keep open, and these dealers do keep open. Regarding William McDonald, he was not the proprietor of the grocery reported open and no offence had been proven against him. The same night he said about Daniel Monahan who conducts a repair shop.

Mr. Mullin's Argument. Mr. Mullin in presenting a few points said that he thought while the provincial government made the act he did not think they had the right to hand it over to the municipality to law as illegal and oppressive. He would look into the cases more thoroughly and would be more able to present the points more fully after an adjournment. Recorder Baxter said that the common council had made the by-law according to the statute. The legislature empowered any municipality to make the by-law. The weakness was where they said "all shops," and he said that he would advise the safe course would be to have the same hours as all shops defined in the act. The magistrate said that the legislature said that the fine was not to exceed $40.

The Cases Reviewed. Mr. Baxter said that the supreme court of Canada decided the general act is constitutional until the privy council reverses it, thus it seems there is nothing to discuss. The reasons put forth by Mr. Wilson appeal in force to the general public. It is not about the sale, it is the store shall not be opened for the service of customers. In one of the cases there has been undoubtedly the keeping open of a store for the services of a customer. Even after looking at the goods and rejecting the services begins the moment that the dealers comply with the customer's request for the exhibition of the goods. As to Mr. McDonald it must be looked upon whether he kept that store open and the person who caused the store to be kept open could be prosecuted. As for Daniel Monahan there is evidence of the passing of goods in the retail part of the store. As for Mr. Ritchie there was no evidence of any personal sale, but that did not help him. As for Mr. Watson he could not qualify under the description of a news agent and opening for only the sale of newspapers does not help him. His honor stated that he thought it would be well to adjourn the cases which would give an opportunity for the common council to take the matter up and for those interested to look into the points. While it was a by-law, the people must observe it. The cases were adjourned until next Saturday morning at 10 o'clock.

William J. Watson. The next case taken up was that against William J. Watson who was reported for keeping his store on the corner of Union and Charlotte street open on the evening of May 25th. Policeman McCollom who made the report gave evidence that on the evening of May 25th he saw a man trying on a pair of shoes in Mr. Monahan's retail store and when spoken to about the matter, Mr. Monahan said that he had expected to be reported. Witness said that people were served in the store after nine o'clock in the night. To Mr. Mullin witness said that he saw people coming out of the store with parcels, but he could not say but they were coming from the store with shoes that they had been getting repaired as there was a repair shop in the rear of the retail.

Mr. Mullin stated to the court that Mr. Watson was exempt as it was not shown that a news agency was not the principal business dealt in. Mr. Watson was a stamp vendor and he asked that the case be dismissed. Mr. Watson was called to the stand and stated that he was a dealer in newspapers, magazines, postage stamps and marriage licenses. He stated that in closing his store in the evening at 7 o'clock was a serious loss to him. To Mr. Baxter the defendant said he was an agent for The Standard and the Telegraph that he purchased the papers and those he did not sell he returned to the companies and got credit for them. The Boston papers he got from the publishers. He also dealt in wall paper, crockery, marriage licenses and articles of a variety nature. The general variety goods exceeded in value the stock of newspapers. To Mr. Mullin Mr. Watson said that he would not say of hand which was his principal business, the newspapers and the other goods, as he included the magazines in the newspaper business. The variety business profits were greater at times than the news end of the business. Taking the year around he considered that there were more profit in the newspapers and the magazines. At Christmas times there was a greater profit in the variety line.

Thomas Ritchie. Thomas Ritchie, a grocer, on the corner of St. James and Sydney streets was reported by Policeman Whittier, who gave evidence that on the evening of June 1st at 8:30 o'clock, he saw a lady hand some money over the counter and receive a parcel which was taken from one of the shelves. He also saw a boy leaving with a parcel also saw a boy leaving the store with a bottle of beer. Mr. Ritchie was not in the store at the time. Mr. Ritchie was called to the stand and testified that on the evening in question he did not sell any goods himself and that he held a beer license. He stated that his stock of groceries was much larger than the beer supply, that he only sold the beer in bottles and did not allow drinking on the premises.

Mr. Wilson here stated that he thought that owing to the fact that Mr. Ritchie held a beer license he had a perfect right to keep his store open until eleven o'clock at night. Morris Jacobson. Morris Jacobson was reported by Policeman Jones for keeping his dry goods store on Main street open last Monday night. The officer gave evidence that he saw people going in and out of the store and they were shown goods, but he did not notice any person getting served. Jacobson took the stand and gave evidence that his business was principally of a wholesale nature and that he served peddlars and country store keepers. He hadn't sold retail on the night he was reported but his books showed that a girl clerk had sold $15 worth to a person. He did not receive any cash and could not tell of the sale unless he could see his books. This case was adjourned until Jacobson could produce his books. Bernard Jacobson. Bernard Jacobson, who is in the dry goods business, was the next one called on. This report was made by Policeman Jones and the report was made for keeping his store open on Thursday night. This case was not gone into as Mr. Mullin stated that he would like to have time to look into some of the points. The magistrate suggested that the counsel in the case give some of their points and they could be looked into while the cases were adjourned.
