EASTERN EDITORS TO VISIT THE WEST

Party to Go by Special Train on June 2—Will Stop Off at Many Places on Trip

On Thursday June 2, at 4 p.m. a special train bearing many eastern publishers and their wives will leave Carleton Place to attend the annual convention of the Canadian Weekly Newspaper Association, which is to be held in Vancouver on June 3 and 10. The party is made up of representative editors from Nova Scotia, Prince Edward Island, New Brunswick, Quebec and Ontario, and when gathered along with the 200 or more of the Western Provinces members, will constitute the largest press gathering ever held in Canada.

Through the courtesy of the C.P.R., the C.N.R. and G.T.R., a very fine special train of ten cars will be made up. The Easterners will use this train for the entire trip.

The going journey will be made over the Canadian National line, and the return over the Canadian Pacific. Numerous stops will be made ranging from three hours to a day, and these stops will include many important points in the West.

The way stops will be made at Winnipeg, Saskatoon, Edmonton, Jasper, Banff, Kamloops, while on the return trip will be made at Lake Louise, Banff, Calgary, Regina, Port Arthur. At Vancouver there will be much entertainment, and at Victoria the Lieutenant-Governor will give a party in honor of the visitors.

As the press party is to stop at a number of places there are no doubt many persons now in the west who will subscribe for the "old home paper" and who will take the opportunity to see "their editor" at one of the stopping places. If this is done it will make the trip much more enjoyable, as nothing would delight the editors more than to shake the hands of old friends and acquaintances in the West.

The Eastern editors will have a very pleasant duty, that of writing up the West. The railways will endeavor to show the party the most resourceful parts of the Great West, and no doubt the western men and women will have a hearty welcome ready.

The itinerary and time-table is as follows:

Fred H. Stevens of the Observer, and Miss Stevens, intend taking in this trip. Mr. Stevens is director for New Brunswick of the Association and has also been asked to read a paper on "Advertising" at the convention. The foregoing itinerary is especially given so that the many friends of the Observer in the West will have the opportunity of meeting the editor, if they so desire. The Observer has many readers in the West, especially at Calgary, Vancouver and Victoria. Its representatives will be at home to their western friends at Vancouver Hotel, during the forenoon of Saturday, June 10; at the Empress Hotel, Victoria, Sunday forenoon, June 11; and at the Press Special train at Calgary, after 8 p.m., June 15 and until 5 p.m. Thursday, June 16. Mr. and Miss Stevens already have appointments to meet friends whom they have not seen for many years.

POPULAR MINISTER IS BANQUETTED

Rev. F. A. Wightman, Pastor of Florenceville Methodist Church About to Remove to Devon

Rev. F. A. Wightman, who for nearly four years has been pastor of the Methodist church at East Florenceville, was, in view of his early departure, conspicuously honored on Monday evening last when a farewell banquet was tendered him. The function was under the joint auspices of the local L. O. L. and the L. O. B. A. and held in the spacious basement of the Baptist church which was filled by citizens of all denominations. An efficient company of ladies of the L. O. B. A. had charge of the tables and refreshments, in which capacity they excelled themselves. Hon. B. F. Smith was appointed master of ceremonies and had charge of the program. The first toast was to the king followed by one to the honored guest. This was spoken to by Rev. E. H. Thomas of the Baptist church and a number of others who spoke of the high esteem in which Mr. Wightman was held by all classes as a minister and a man. Many regrets were also expressed at Mr. Wightman's early removal from this part of the country coupled with good wishes for his happiness and success in his new field of labor. During the evening a purse of money was presented to Mr. Wightman by Mr. Smith in behalf of the friends present. After singing "For he's a jolly good fellow," Mr. Wightman, although taken quite by surprise, made a fitting reply, speaking of the most happy and cordial relations existing and the hosts of splendid friends he had made during his stay in Florenceville. He thanked all most heartily for their kindness and for the splendid way they took to express it.

Other toasts followed to the societies which had made the banquet a success. In this connection Rev. B. H. Thomas made a stirring address and was heartily applauded. Others who spoke were: Mrs. Col. Melville, Mrs. Jas. Banks, Mrs. St. G. Gray, Mrs. B. S. Semple, Mrs. W. E. Saunders, Messrs. F. L. Tompkins, Winslow Dye, H. O. Smith, E. W. Saunders, Chas. Boyer and others, all of whom gave fine addresses. After doing full justice to the good things provided by the ladies this most pleasant gathering adjourned by singing "Can and acquaintance be forgot."

Rev. Mr. Wightman expects to remove to South Devon in the near future.

MEMORIAL SERVICE AT JACKSONVILLE

A memorial service in honor of the boys who fell in the Great War was held in the open air around the monument which has been erected to their memory in Jacksonville, on May 24. The service was simple, but impressive. The speakers were Revs. H. F. Rigby and F. S. Porter, whose addresses were excellent. A very pleasant feature of the service was the presence of Rev. F. S. Porter, an evergreen chaplain who was present at the engagement in which the boys fell.

HARTLAND LOSES TO GRAND FALLS

The Upper St. John River Baseball League opened with Hartland playing at Grand Falls on the 24th instant. The game started at 3 p.m. and was largely attended, there being a picnic and dance under the joint auspices of the Grand Falls Brass Band and baseball team. It was a game full of interest, but loosely played by both teams, especially that of the infield of the Hartland team. There were no less than nine errors to their credit. As will be noted the Grand Falls players had four errors. In the early stages of the game it looked as though there might be a large score by the finish, but after the third inning both teams settled down to steady ball, except for the many errors and overthrows.

McCluskey in the box for Grand Falls pitched a very consistent game. Although a little wild at times, having walked five men to first, he struck out eight of the Hartland squad.

Paynter, in the box for Hartland pitched a wonderful game considering his condition, he having struck out nine of the Grand Falls players and not giving a pass. With more practice things will be very much more interesting before the season sees the half way mark.

Previous to the calling of the game the umpire read the following:

"We the undersigned, protest the ball game on this date between Hartland and Grand Falls on account of the following player being either 'professional or non-resident.'"

"Hayward Paynter."
(Signed) L. F. McCluskey, Mgr.
F. W. Pirie, Capt.

There seems to be somewhat of a misunderstanding. Hayward Paynter, pitcher of the Hartland team, certainly is not a professional player and is in possession of his Amateur card under the A. A. U. of C. With regard to being a non-resident, Mr. Paynter has been residing in Hartland for the past ten months and is in business here.

The Hartland players, under Capt. Weldon Ward, motored to Grand Falls, leaving Hartland at about 8.45 and arriving at their destination at about noon. A large number of Hartland supporters were on hand at the game besides many from towns along the river and across the line. The team returned home shortly after the game.

Plaster Rock plays in Hartland on Friday, May 27. The game is scheduled to start at 6 p.m. sharp.

Mention might be made of the excellent ball field, which the Grand Falls citizens have provided in the interest of sport. It is one of the fastest ball diamonds in the Maritime Provinces and the makers are to be warmly congratulated.

The picnic proved a great success, netting about $650 clear.

It is to be hoped that a baseball benefit might be undertaken here as the team needs the assistance.

The following is the score, by innings:

WINDSOR UNITED FARMERS LOCAL BRANCH HELD MEETING

The monthly meeting of the Windsor Local Branch Club, United Farmers of New Brunswick, was held last Friday evening, May 20, at the home of Scott Albright, Lower Windsor, where a very pleasant evening was spent by the fifty ladies and gentlemen gathered together. After due attention had been paid to the business on hand, Mr. Maxwell, Director of the Carleton County Vocational School, Woodstock, who had been invited to attend, was called upon to address the meeting. Mr. Maxwell spoke with regard to the Vocational School and its work. He traced the origin of the school and its development, and dwelt at some length upon its present status, mentioning the different sources from which financial aid for the carrying on of the work was secured. Among other things said with respect to function of the school, Mr. Maxwell made it clear that the Vocational School or any other school or college for that matter, did not pretend to teach a student how to farm, because it is recognized that he only logical place to learn the elementary principles and practices of farming is the home farm. There are, however, whether we appreciate it or not, a great many sciences related to agriculture, a proper understanding of which is essential if we are to farm economically. The duty of the school in all departments is to disseminate information to its students bearing on the more up to date practices which have been found to be practical as well as economical. What was said with regard to agriculture was said to be true of the Home Making Course offered at the school. The student taking a course at the Vocational School, whether it be in Agriculture and Farm Mechanics, Home Making, or Stenography and Typewriting, does not specialise solely in the practical subjects related to the course in question. The Vocational School trains for good citizenship as well as efficiency in the three departments above noted, and, with that end in view, each course includes these subjects which are deemed the essential academic subjects, such as English composition and grammar, arithmetic, civics, economics, bookkeeping and public speaking.

In speaking of the obstacles met with in establishing the school, Mr. Maxwell mentioned that perhaps the greatest was the lack of knowledge and absence of appreciation of the work the school is doing existing among a number of county residents, and because of this condition, as always has been and always will be any project bearing the earmarks of new, there is still to be found a little prejudice. It was because he believed this to be true that Mr. Maxwell was so pleased to accept the kind invitation of the local secretary, Mr. Tedford, to be present to speak to the club with regard to his school and work, and in his closing remarks the speaker made it very emphatic that he appreciated very much the privilege of addressing the meeting.

Mr. Fred Smith, M.P.P., who was present, was called upon to say a few words. In his brief remarks, Mr. Smith mentioned some of the more important matters which had come before the legislature during the past session and in which the farmers were particularly interested. He reminded his audience of the importance of three prevailing a strong feeling of co-operation and a sense of responsibility among the United Farmers of New Brunswick, and he was confident that in due course a much larger representation in the local legislature would be obtained.

After the main part of the program the remainder of the evening was spent in a social way, the ladies, contrary to the efforts of the men folk who earlier in the evening offered food for thought, offered food for nourishment, which, to say the least, was very much enjoyed by all present.

French and English.

Writing on "Britain and France" in the "Anglo-French Review," Mr. W. H. Helm points up the root cause of the various disagreements between the two countries, and assesses their real value, in a single anecdote.

"Some years ago," he says, "I was lunching at an inn among the cornfields of Picardy. Seated, or perhaps more assuredly leaning, that I was English, one of the small company at the table d'hôte (truly such, for the landlord sat with us), informed us that he had once been in England for a fortnight, and then challenged me directly with the remark 'Il n'y a pas de bon vin dans les vil-lages anglais.' To which verily I replied, 'C'est comme les alouettes ici.' His next criticism of Merrie England was that there was too much beef, and my retort was that there was too much veal in France. This little duel, during which everybody, including the waiters, was laughing, went on for a minute or two more, the scarcity of good bread to the north of the Channel and of good tea to the south being the only further points I can now call to mind.

"Is not this absurd 'international content' typical of many of those greater troubles of which we hear so much now and again? It is because of our differences of character, and of production, intellectual and material, that we are so valuable to each other, apart from the vital necessities of our geographical position. On the day when France and England cease to be the friends, the hope of a better world will rapidly fade away. But none of us will be alive to see that dreary morn."

Science and Social Change.

"If in the last hundred years the whole material setting of civilized life has altered, we owe it neither to politicians nor to political institutions," says Mr. A. J. Balfour, M.P., in "Essays, Speculative and Political." "We owe it to the combined efforts of those who have advanced science and those who have applied it. If our outlook upon the universe has suffered modifications in detail so great and so numerous that they amount collectively to a revolution, it is to men of science we owe it, not to theologians or philosophers. On these, indeed, new and weighty responsibilities are being cast. They have to harmonize and co-ordinate, to prevent the new from being narrow, to preserve unharmed the valuable essence of what is old.

"But science is the great instrument of social change, all the greater because its object is not change, but knowledge; and its silent appropriation of this dominant function, amid the din of political and religious strife, is the most vital of all the revolutions which have marked the development of modern civilization."

Money Value of Home-Making. Swedish women have evidently succeeded in giving housework and taking care of the babies a financial value and standing before the law of the land. Says the law: "If the wife gives all her work to the home she is considered by the law as having contributed in the same degree as her husband, who procures the funds."

Your Daughter

IS your daughter at that critical age, approaching womanhood, when nothing is so important to her as mother's care and mother's advice?

It is during this time that her whole future health and happiness may be at stake.

With most girls this important development takes place at a time when school work is most exacting and the nervous system is consequently under a most severe strain.

An enormous quantity of rich, red blood is necessary to meet the demands of the system, and, this failing, there is the development of anaemia, chlorosis or some form of nervous trouble, such as St. Vitus' dance.

Most mothers now know about Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and the promptness with which it enriches the blood and builds up the nervous system of the growing girl.

It is mother's duty to see that a reasonable amount of rest and sleep is obtained, that the food is wholesome and nutritious, and that the treatment is used regularly and persistently so as to keep up an abundant supply of pure, rich, nourishing blood.

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food 50 cents a box. All dealers, or Edmanston, Bates & Co., Ltd., Toronto. The portrait and signature of A. W. Chase, M.D., are on every box of the genuine.

English Prince Turns German

Of all the members of the reigning house in England, there is no one who has always been a more general favorite than the late King Edward's now widowed sister, Princess Helena, writes La Marquis de Fontenay in the Philadelphia Ledger. It may therefore be of interest to state that her only surviving son, Albert, who was born at Cumberland Lodge, at Windsor, and was brought up at the historic Charter House School, has just become, through the death of his cousin, chief of the German princely and ducal house of Schleswig-Holstein, and possesses the great estate of Prinsenhof in Schleswig, of a number of other castles and lands, of a large entailed fortune and of a perpetual annuity of $30,000, payable by the Prussian treasury, as a quid pro quo for the renunciation by the Duke of Schleswig-Holstein of the two Duchies of Schleswig and Holstein on their incorporation into the kingdom of Prussia. Part of Schleswig has been restored to the Versailles treaty by the terms of the German treaty, but this does not affect in any way the pecuniary obligation of the Prussian Government toward the new Duke of Schleswig-Holstein.

At the time when the duke left school in England and received a commission in the British army, his eldest brother, Christian, who succeeded to the title of Duke of Prinsenhof in the Boer War of twenty-one years ago, was still alive and unwilling to give up his British nationality and his career in the army, so he waived his rights of succession to the dukedom of Schleswig-Holstein and all its entailed property and the Prussian treasury annuity in favor of his younger brother, Albert. Accordingly, it was decided that the latter should adopt German nationality, make his home thenceforth in Germany, sever his connection with the British army and become an officer of the Prussian army, joining the First Regiment of Hessian Dragoons, and thereafter the Prussian Cuirassiers of the Guard, graduating, in turn, from the various officers' training schools and finally receiving the appointment to the general staff of the German army. His father, the late Prince Christian, and the Kaiser's father were brothers. When the Kaiser's father died he left one son, Gunther by name, who has just passed away without issue. Next in the line of succession would have been his uncle, old Prince Christian. But the latter died in London three years ago, and thereupon his son Albert stepped into his shoes as next heir.

Incidentally, it may be said that old Prince Christian, who was the maternal uncle of the Kaiser, was a naturalized as a British citizen in 1865 on the occasion of his marriage to Queen Victoria's daughter, Helena, and from that time forth made his home entirely in England. He was very much older than his wife. As long as Queen Victoria lived he served as a connecting link between the Court of Berlin and that of St. James, especially in family matters. But both his own position and that of his son Albert became very difficult on the outbreak of the war. Prince Christian, by reason of his German name and title, came in for much of the prejudice that developed against everything Teuton in England; and in spite of his long residence in this country, found himself an object of popular ill-will and suspicion. His son, Prince Albert, found matters equally unpleasant at Berlin, for he was too closely connected with the land of his birth not to come in for some of the resentment entertained in Germany against everything British from 1914 on. Matters were rendered all the more difficult for him by reason of the close intimacy which he had until that time enjoyed on the part of the Emperor and Empress.

The latter had been virtually brought up by his mother, Princess Helena, at Cumberland Lodge, Windsor, and was more like a sister to him than a cousin, while for years he was one of the chief cronies of the Kaiser and the only relative who was always invited to accompany him on his yachting expeditions in Scandinavian waters and in the Mediterranean. Unlike the similarly English-born and now deposed Duke of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha, who had received his schooling at Eton, a prince formerly known as the Duke of Albany, and who distinguished himself by his bitter animosity against the British at the front in Flanders, and in France, Albert of Schleswig-Holstein declined to bear arms against his native land. He entered in 1914 on the Russian front, but absolutely declined to fight against the British.

As a member of the general staff in Berlin, he was virtually free to follow his own devices and devoted his time to alleviating the sorry lot of the British officers and men detained in captivity and of the British civilians interned in the various concentration camps. Indeed, many a British officer, many a British soldier, many a British civilian, is indebted not only for many creature comforts to the new English-born Duke of Schleswig-Holstein, but likewise for preservation from death, resulting from the terrible hardships which had fallen to his share. The late Duke Gunther of Schleswig-Holstein was a ne'er-do-well and a source of no end of trouble and vexation to his sister, the Kaiserin. He was forever getting into unenviable scrapes, was implicated in the sensational "anonymous" letter scandal, and was virtually turned out of Berlin upside down a quarter of a century ago and was forever doing or saying grossly indecent things.

Middle-Aged Bachelors Flocking to the Altar, So English Records Show

THE middle-aged bachelor, hitherto the despair of match-making mothers in taking kindly to marriage. This is one of the facts revealed in the annual report of the British Registrar-General of Births, Marriages, and Deaths, just published. It is probably the most humanly interesting document of its kind ever issued.

The number of bachelors of forty-five and over who married in Great Britain in 1914 was double that of 1913. What is the explanation? The Registrar-General advances two possible contributory causes—war prosperity and the surplus of marriageable women brought about by the war.

The effect of the war in creating so many widows is reflected in the statistics of women remarrying. Under the age of twenty-five the number was 10.7 times, and at twenty-five to thirty it was six times as great as in 1913.

But there are also increases under this head at ages over forty-five, which help to prove a general increase in marriage at this time of life, common to men and women, widowed or single.

Boys under twenty are also marrying in much greater numbers. The two most striking facts in this connection are that boy husbands seldom marry women as young as or younger than themselves, and they do not marry widows as a rule.

The decline of religion in the last few years is shown by the continuous increase in the number of civil marriages. The decline applies to all faiths, with the exception of the Roman Catholic.

A sad note is provided by the revelation that the war cost the nation 500,000 babies, a total almost identical with that of the men who were killed on the battlefields.

The excess of London infant mortality over the average for the country, which was noted as an exceptional feature of the returns of 1917 and 1918, has disappeared, owing nearly to a remarkable fall in the London mortality at six months. At six and nine months this amounted to 40, and at nine months to 52 per cent. London shared in the general increase applying to the first four weeks, and its normal advantage at this period has been somewhat reduced. As in each of the five preceding years, it compared worse with the remainder of the country at three and six months than any other part of the last year.

There is a general tendency for mortality to decline at most ages, says the report. The one exception to this hopeful sign is cancer, which continues to claim its heavy toll of victims. Child scourges, like measles and whooping-cough, on the other hand, were less deadly than at any other period.

Some Winter Portents. According to countryside lore, hard winters may be read in the berries, hedges, or the early inland flight of the gulls, who can certainly "sense" coming changes more acutely than we. The more acutely incited seek evidence in the temperature of the Gulf Stream waters now reaching our western shores, or in researches in cycles of weather; for averages over long periods, says Mr. John H. Willis, Fellow of the Meteorological Society, remain fairly constant, and an acute swing of the pendulum one way will generally be paid for. Precedents show that few hard winters have begun very early, and that several of the severest have certainly followed on the heels of abnormally fine autumns. Not till the day after Christmas, for instance, did the Arctic cold set in that made 1814 known as the year of the great frost, when the Thames was a solid sheet of ice between London and Blackfriars bridges, and a famous fair was held in the middle of it. The exceptionally severe winter of 1855 did not start till January 15, and the past century's last great frost, in 1894-5, followed, as in 1837, on an autumn phenomenally mild—facts which leave not the weather prophets thinking.

London's New Bridge. Southwark Bridge, which is to be opened this year, will not only be one of the handiest of Thames bridges, but also one of the most durable. It is all-British as well, in granite, steel and ornament. Begun in November, 1914, the work had to be stopped, as both materials and men were commandeered for another purpose. The cost was to have been $275,143; but it now works out at $500,000. A little stairway leads down to a lower level, where is to be seen the table indicating the site of the Globe Theatre, near to Southwark Cathedral.

Building Construction in Malaya. Reinforced concrete is being adopted to a large extent in the Straits Settlements in an attempt to solve the problem caused by the shortage of houses, and this is occurring not only in the case of dwellings but in other directions, such as the construction of a ferryboat to convey the railroad across the Johore Straits. A number of bridges will also be built of this material during the coming year.

Check a Butter Centre. The city of Cork, Ireland, is one of the greatest butter centers in the world. It is estimated that one year's export of butter amounts to 750,000 tons.

OTHER TABLETS NOT ASPIRIN AT ALL

Only Tablets with "Bayer Cross" are Genuine Aspirin.

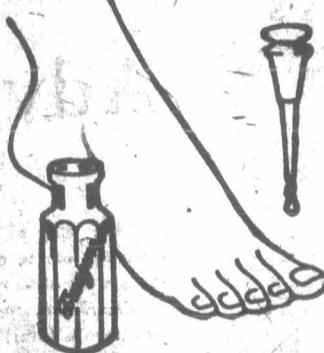

If you don't see the "Bayer Cross" on the tablets, you are not getting Aspirin—only an acid imitation. The "Bayer Cross" is your only way of knowing that you are getting genuine Aspirin, prescribed by physicians for over nineteen years and proved safe by millions for Headache, Neuralgia, Cold, Rheumatism, Lumbago, Neuritis, and Pain generally. Made in Canada. Handy tin boxes of 12 tablets—also larger sized "Bayer" packages can be had at drug stores.

Aspirin is the trade mark (registered in Canada), of Bayer Manufacture of Monoaceticacidester of Salicylicacid.

While it is well known that Aspirin means Bayer manufacture, to assist the public against imitations, the Tablets of Bayer Company, Ltd., will be stamped with their general trade mark, the "Bayer Cross."

Lift off Corns!

Doesn't hurt a bit and Frezcosse costs only a few cents.

With your finger! You can lift off any hard corn, soft corn, or corn between the toes, and the hard skin calluses from bottom of foot.

A tiny bottle of "Frezcosse" costs little and any drug store will supply it. Simply apply it to the corn or callus. Instantly it begins hurting, then shortly you lift that bothersome corn or callus right off, root and all, without one bit of pain or annoyance. Truly! No humbug!

HENRY HUDSON.

He Gave His Name to Strait, Bay and River.

The name of Henry Hudson is the best known—excepting only that of Columbus—of all the explorers by land and sea. His name is in every corner of the map of North America; on every map of North America it is thrice written large; and in New York, which owes its founding to his exploring voyage, it is uttered a thousand times a day in reference to the river, the county, the city, the street, and the highway bearing it. It is a name that will last as long as the river, the bay and the strait last. Yet in spite of this familiarity with his name, our certain knowledge of Hudson's life is limited, in fact it comprises only the short period of four years, from 1607 to 1611, during which time he did the work which has made him so famous. Many well-known investigators have labored to unearth facts to enlighten this obscurity, but with more or less success. Nothing authentic is known of his ancestry or antecedents, but it is surmised by many that he was of the family so distinguished in the annals of discovery, to which Henry Hudson, the alderman, and one of the founders of the Muscovy Company, and Christopher Hudson, one of its late governors, and Capt. Thomas Hudson, who sailed in its service, all belonged. And being related to such folk the desire for adventure was no doubt inherited, and by his own strength led him on to the accomplishments which have made him the most famous bearer of his name.

When Hudson started out on his memorable voyage in the "Half-Moon," he sought, as from the time of Columbus, downward other navigators had sought before him, a short cut to the Indies; but as a result of all the exploration which had ensued in the century or more since that great explorer, Hudson had at his command a mass of information which tended to narrow and direct his search.

Although Henry Hudson is regarded as the discoverer of the river, bay and strait, called after him, they really were discovered many years before.

fore. In the year 1494 Verrazano entered what is now New York Bay; Sebastian Cabot journeyed as far north as the mouth of the Hudson Strait, and probably Portuguese navigators have passed through it and entered what is now Hudson Bay. Yet the credit of these discoveries will always be Hudson's, as it was he who made them clearly known to the world.

Hudson's first two voyages had nothing whatever to do with America, so we will pass on to his third. It was during this voyage that he entered what is now Hudson river, and by that act set the foundation stones of the now world-famous city—New York.

During this voyage he was in the service of the Dutch company. An envoy of King Henry IV. of France wrote to his master and urged him to undertake the "glorious enterprise" of searching for a northerly passage to the Indies, and informed him he could secure the services of Henry Hudson, but in a postscript to his letter he added that the East India Company had had an inkling of his desires, and had engaged Hudson to make a voyage for them. So it was by a hairbreadth chance that the Dutch and not the French founded New York. For this voyage Henry Hudson was given a trifle over $300. And in the case of him not returning in the space of one year, the sum of $84 was to be given to his wife; on the other hand if he returned, and had been successful, the company promised to reward him for his trouble. He was given strict orders to sail northeast, but he deliberately disobeyed and sailed west instead. On April 16, 1609, he set forth, and for more than a month all was well, until they reached the northern coast of Nova Zembla. Here the sea was full of ice. It was hopeless to think of being able to do anything that season, and this circumstance and the severe cold caused the crew to mutiny. To somehow please the men Hudson made the proposition to them that they turn about and sail southward and explore the coasts of America. This met with general approval and was immediately undertaken. On August 12 they reached the American shore and sailing down entered into "as fine a river as can be found" on September 12, 1609. In such a manner nearly 312 years ago, the Hudson river, which is familiarly spoken of throughout the length and breadth of our continent, was uncovered to the world.

These Eternal Meals

"WHAT to get for dinner?" "What to get for supper?" To-day, to-morrow, next day, every day in the week.

This is woman's problem and the source of almost endless worry.

True, there are times when most women take a pleasure and pride in cooking and baking, but when you are not feeling up to the mark it does get on your nerves and become a real worry—a nerve-exhausting worry.

Since meals are essential to life, the old problem of "what to eat" must endure, but need not be a worry when your nerves are set right.

It is when you are tired—nerve tired—that such things become a source of worry. There is nothing like Dr. Chase's Nerve Food to combat this condition.

It is because Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is such a help under these very conditions that it has come to be relied upon by the great majority of Canadian women. Headaches, sleeplessness, tired, depressed feelings, lack of energy are some of the accompanying symptoms.

You can obtain Dr. Chase's Nerve Food from your dealer at 50 cents a box.

Kenya Colony Is Valuable

PERHAPS the school children know, but how many of Canadian grown-ups can give the name of the newest British colony? By colony is not meant Mesopotamia, or any other "mandate territory," but a real British colony. It is "Kenya," and it is on the East coast of Africa, and formerly was known as British East Africa. The change in name seems to have been made a year or two ago, but the map-makers seem hardly aware of it. But Kenya Colony is one of the oldest inhabited parts of the earth, one of the richest, and most attractive to whites who have capital, and a colonial climate. The key to Kenya's diversity of products and temperature is not latitude or longitude, but elevation. Beginning at the coast with sea-level, the ground rises rapidly to keener, drier air, and grass-covered or bush-covered stretches of territory very suitable for agriculture or stock raising. The average temperature at Mombasa on the coast is 75 degrees, which is just comfortably warm like a bright June day. Inward a hundred miles, the climate varies between 55 and 58 degrees, and resembles almost entirely that of Australia or South Africa. Big rivers, that have their origin in distant mountains, traverse all the great slope, and assure immense outputs to the cultivator. The railway constructed many years ago by the British Government officials goes to an altitude of 5,500 feet as Nairobi is reached. In this area are great herds of giraffes, zebras, buffaloes and buck, white lion, leopard and rhino, and on the fringes of the open territory. Rhinos plough their lonely furrows, and caribou abound.

Mombasa is a port centre resembling the usual South African or Australian town, but has more stone houses. As it is the seat of the Government, a medley of races is found there. Twenty miles from Nairobi lie the Mau hills, at an elevation of 7,000 feet, and a European settler has established a great orchard of fruit there. The hills are of granite, but the top soil produces the finest of temperature climate fruits, even if it is directly in the equator. North of Nairobi lies Kiambu, the great coffee district, and north of the boundary, across the mountains, lies the rough and barbaric kingdom of Abyssinia. Kenya Mountain, after which the colony is now named, is in the northern region, and affords a magnificent view, as well as agricultural and pastoral areas not surpassed in the world. The altitude of 6,000 feet seems to be ideal for coffee, flax, maize, citrus, and a score of well-known tropical and temperate fruits. Above Nairobi, at 7,000 feet is the station of Limuru, where it is believed that tea will grow well. On one farm are fine tea bushes that have stood ten years test. The frost line now is reached and almost any crops that can be grown in Canada will flourish there. Pig breeding has become popular among the few white settlers. Beyond Limuru are the game reserves of the Mau country, and Kijabe, which means "the place of the winds" is the centre for hunters and sportsmen.

Farther inland, the territory lowens, until a twenty-mile sweet-water lake forms the centre of the most famous cattle-ranching country of the Protectorate. North of Nakuru, the centre of this district, lie mountains that rise to 12,000 feet elevation. In this district is Lord Delaith's fine cattle property called Elmenteta. Farther west, are craters that emit heavy jets of steam, and in one place a settler has fixed a condenser that gathers it for its cattle, and even uses the hot water in the household for washing days and boiling eggs. This crater, Mombasa, is merely quiescent, and may some day become another Vesuvius. Pushing still further west along the line of railway, the traveler comes to open country, at a height of 5,500 feet, and this is the crest which he must pass on the way to Lake Victoria Nyanza. Frosts occur almost nightly in this area, and only hardy cattle survive, even in the "equatorial atmosphere." The downward grade of the railway gives the traveler the impression that he is returning to the coast, and the climatic changes almost parallel those on the other slope. At 4,500 feet, beyond Fort Ternan, the settlers boast of their ability to sow and reap maize on every day of the year, which cannot be equalled in any other place on earth. Only in the equatorial belt is the climate so constant. Yields are uncommonly large. Magnificent coffee areas, and sugar-cane areas abound. This vast territory, which only now is being settled by the white man, has immense numbers of "blacks." The history of South African settlement is being repeated. Naturally, the whites are in a caste by themselves, and difficulties with the natives sometimes arise. There are about three million blacks. The British have developed a soldier settlement scheme here, cutting up a million acres for the purpose, but the authorities have made large reservations for the blacks, and settlement otherwise is being curtailed.

A pine tree in New Zealand is estimated by scientists to be 1,200 years old.

How They Are Located Near the Diamond Mines In British South Africa

DIAMONDS are usually tempting things, to the dishonest, for they are the most compact and most easily concealed form of portable property. In his book "The Diamond Mines of South Africa" Mr. Gardiner F. Williams describes some of the curious methods that are used to prevent miners from stealing diamonds.

A fine wire netting is stretched over the top of the compound, he says, to prevent the sly tossing of precious crystals over the walls, to be picked up by confederates outside the mining area. Precautions are also taken to prevent the smuggling away of diamonds from the compounds, and all communication by the natives with persons outside the walls is carefully restricted. Until the expiration of his contract, no native can go through the compound gate, except by special permission, or when he is taken under guard before a magistrate for some offence. If convicted, when his term of imprisonment expires, or after he has paid his fine, he must return to the compound and complete his contract. Before he leaves the compound his clothes and person are thoroughly searched.

Gems were sometimes found secreted in clothing, in shoe heels, in fact in anything that the natives were allowed to take out with them. Even this class inspection did not bar the practice of stealing, and there was an inexplicable trickle of fine diamonds from unlooked-for quarters, until it became known that natives on the point of leaving the compound were swallowing diamonds and conveying them away.

In 1895 one native had the nerve and capacity to swallow a lot of diamonds worth seven hundred and fifty pounds and did not appear to suffer by this strain upon his digestion. There has been only one instance where a native has been embedded diamonds in his flesh; this was done by a native in the Boer War, who made a hole in his thigh under the skin and concealed several small diamonds wrapped in a rag. This native had symptoms of tetanus, the military physician searched the man's body, and finding an ugly-looking wound on his leg, cut it open and to his great surprise found a rag full of diamonds. The native soon recovered, a wiser, poorer man.

In one instance a diamond as big as a chestnut and weighing one hundred and fifty-two carats was hidden for over seven days by this means. The swallowing of a rough diamond is no easy, but so difficult to detect, that it was necessary to put an end to the practice by providing a longer period of detention and search. At the close of the Boer War, the natives whose terms of service have nearly expired are placed together in a commodious room capable of holding two hundred men or more. They enter this room entirely naked. Their clothes and baggage are deposited in sacks marked in accordance with the number on the arm-band. Blankets are supplied for clothing, and as wraps when the men are sleeping.

At the end of five days of detention, generally on Saturday morning, they are released. When white, the clothes placed in the sacks have been thoroughly searched; and departing natives are not allowed to take away with them anything except soft goods. In fact they are even required to leave their boots behind, for cunning smugglers used to insert diamonds in their boot heels so neatly that the trick could not be detected without cutting away the greater part of the sole of the boot. Boots and shoes and other articles that are not allowed to be taken from the compound are sold or given away to customers or friends before their owners leave.

Best Culture In India.

In Bengal there are about seventy millions of people, and they boast of perhaps the best culture in India at the present time. The language as a written language is only fifty years old. Though for over a thousand years it has been a dialect, there is in Indian history unfortunately no trace of Bengali having been an important literary tongue. The language originates from Sanskrit, the mother tongue from which every other Indian language has borrowed its alphabet, grammar, and vocabulary; but, unlike the others, Bengali never shrinks from gathering new materials. There are numerous Persian, French, Arabic, and English words incorporated in it, and the wonder of it is that, instead of having been degraded into some vulgar form like pidgin-English, Bengali has become the most literary, scientific, and perhaps the most philosophic of modern Indian languages.

Sea Lion Leather.

Large numbers of sea lions on the British Columbia coast which destroy annually vast quantities of fish food, may be slaughtered and their hides placed on the world's leather market. It is a proposal now being considered by the local authorities, and which has been approved by many experienced fishermen, is carried out. The sea lion weighs from 1,000 to 2,500 pounds, the hide being nearly an inch thick. These hides make a tough and durable leather such as is used in workmen's gloves and in saddles. It is stated that these animals will eat fifty pounds of fish in a day. Four hunters recently killed several hundred sea lions in one day in the Charlotte Islands, where the sport has excited great interest.

The seventy-hour work week is common in Japan.

"WILL PRAISE IT FOR AS LONG AS I LIVE"

Farmer's Wife Gains Fifteen Pounds and Looks So Well Friends Hardly Know Her

"Tanlac has been such a wonderful blessing to my wife that I shall praise it as long as I live," declared Atherton Titus, a well-known and prosperous farmer living at Perry's Point, N. B.

"She certainly was in a terrible condition before taking Tanlac. Why, for ten years her stomach was so bad she didn't dare eat anything like pork or pancakes, and even oatmeal would sour and cause gas to form till she was a mere shadow of her former self, and she became so weak she could hardly do a thing about the house. Rheumatism set in and the pain in her arms and legs were so awful it kept her awake for hours at night. She tried nearly everything in the way of medicine and treatment, but never got anything more than temporary relief until she tried Tanlac.

"In my life I've never seen anything to equal the way this medicine got rid of her troubles, and it has built her up to where she is entirely a different woman. She can now eat anything and is never troubled in the last with sourness or gas. She has gained all of fifteen pounds in weight and has improved in appearance so that her friends hardly know her. The rheumatism has practically disappeared and she sleeps like a child the whole night through. She works all day without getting tired and feels as well and strong as ever in her life."

Who Wants This Beautiful Home in Hartland

Allen A. Waters offers for immediate sale his fine house situated just off the Main street, south end. The location is a beautiful high and slightly one and the house is surrounded by lovely shade trees. The house itself has 10 rooms and bathroom, nicely fitted up and with a constant supply of running water. The house is thoroughly well finished throughout and is warm and comfortable in winter and accessible to pure, fresh air in the summer. There is a large woodshed attached and a clapboarded and painted barn that will accommodate several horses; also a garage. Never-failing supply of water in the yard and at the kitchen sink. Enough ground for a good-sized garden. This is an ideal home for a couple that wishes to retire, or for any family. The house has four sleeping rooms and more could be finished in the attic, which is reached by stairs.

Mr. Waters also offers for sale a farm in Ashland district, three miles from the river, with a down-hill haul to market. Of this 100 acres, 30 acres are cleared and a part freshly seeded, 10 acres ploughed and the remainder in grass. There are 70 acres of woodland that will yield enough fire-wood to pay for the place and leave many years supply. There is also a good quantity of pulp and lumber. The prices of both these properties will interest any buyer, and full particulars of the whole may be had from Mr. Waters, at the house. DON'T DELAY. These properties will move quickly. Part of the purchase price may remain on mortgage if desired.

Quarrelsome Jays.
At migrating time, and before nest building begins, most birds are less timid than customarily. The bluebirds' boldness increases until one sees pairs of them hovering with a saucy inquiring air about barns and outbuildings, peeping into dove-cotes and stable windows, inspecting knot-holes and pump-trees, intent only on a place to rest. They wage war against robins and wrens, pick quarrels with swallows, and seem to deliberate over taking possession of the mud-houses of the latter. But as the season advances they settle down very quietly.

A Big Shortage in Potato Crop

Is caused by the Farmers not spraying. The BROWN SPRAYOR is the favorite with the potato growers for the reason that it has a 100 gallon tank made of cypress wood that resists the liquid better than any other wood known. It sprays six rows at a time and is fitted with a whirl spray non-clog nozzle, that gets the liquid over every part of the plant. The pressure is got by double cylinder displacement pump fitted with brass plungers and packed with graphite packing, also large air pump fitted with brass check valves that can be ground. Rests on the axle, doing away with all strain on the frame giving an overcast balance when tank is full of liquid. Revolving twin paddles in tank to give a perfect mixture of Bordeaux. Has hickory earwin wheels, 8 in. tire wheels and 1 3/4 in. cold rolled steel axle that does not break. Also fitted with steel frame that does not sag sideways. As we can only procure a limited number of these for 1921 Farmers will do well to place their order with us early, or with one of the following Agents:
