On the night of Nov. 14, the Harrow station, of the Lake Erie and Detroit River Railway, was robbed of $400. Suspicion rested upon a young man named Harry McCaffrey, who was in the habit of loitering around the place, and he was arrested Monday by Chief Griffith and Officer Metson. He confesses that he knows where the money was hidden in a corn field.

HEATON.

The anthrax has killed several more cows and pigs in the vicinity of Acton during the past week. A farmer named Flynn noticed that one of his cows was sick the other day. He thought it better not to use the milk in the family, but fed it to some pigs. It was well he did not use it, for the cow died the next morning and a short time afterwards the two pigs. The most probable cause of the outbreak of this disease is the fact that the tanneries in Acton receive consignments of hides from South America. Some of these hides may have been diseased, and the hair and scraps have been thrown into the stream which flows down through the affected district. In this way the germs of the disease have been carried to the water and the grass along the banks, and the cattle which feed on the grass have been the sufferers.

KENT.

W. B. Graham, of Aylmer, who had been manager of a drug store, Kilsyth, for the past few years, has purchased the stock in trade, and will take possession of the same on Saturday.

LINCOLN.

A good story is told of the little 4-year-old child, Flossie Wilson, St. Catharines, who was kicked in the face by a horse on Henry street the other day. It seems that a 2-year-old baby brother and gone too near the horse, and Flossie, having brought the child back to the sidewalk, tried to drive the horse away, and in so doing received the kick and injury. She picked herself up, and taking her brother by the hand marched home, when with her face all bleeding she greeted her mother with the exclamation, "I saved my baby."

Mr. Kuntzie had not noticed the accident, and the horse continued walking, but only went a few steps when the leg fell to the ground. The wounded horse was killed about an hour afterwards.

Jones was badly cut in the head as a result of the fall. The father, a little daughter of the family, was also injured. It is swollen too badly yet to determine its condition. The driver of the heavy rig is blamed for the occurrence.

Geo. Hensinger, of Cayman, has located at Mitchell.

Eighteen furniture manufacturers from different parts of the Province met on Monday in Stratford. The object of the meeting is to be for the purpose of limiting production, fixing a scale of prices, and dividing the line against retail furniture dealers throughout the country. The furniture business, the manufacturers say, has been in a depressed condition for some time the result of overproduction and close competition of prices, and an effort is being made to form a combine to overcome these evils.

Mary Anderson, of Navarro's book, which people have been talking about for some time, will probably contain the personal reminiscences of the beautiful and brilliant actress, whom the world delighted to honor as Mary Anderson. It is probable, should the book be written, that it will also contain glimpses of the celebrated men and women whom she has met during the past fifteen years.

"August Flower"

For two years I suffered terribly with stomach trouble, and was for all that time under treatment by a physician. He finally, after trying everything, said stomach was about worn out, and that I would have to cease eating solid food for a time at least. I was so weak that I could not work. Finally on the recommendation of a friend who had used your preparations with beneficial results, I procured a bottle of August Flower, and commenced using it. It seemed to do me good at once. I gained in strength and flesh rapidly; my appetite became good, and I suffered no bad effects from what I ate. I feel now like a new man, and consider that August Flower has entirely cured me of Dyspepsia in its worst form. JAMES E. DREBERICK, Saugerties, New York.

W. B. Usey, St. George's, S. C., writes: I have used your August Flower for Dyspepsia and find it an excellent remedy.

—[BROWNING.]

London, Thursday, July 30.

THE DIVISION IN THE HOUSE.

As a result of the extraordinary and contradictory positions assumed by the high tax party in the House of Commons, the debate on the budget has been prolonged to great length. It closed shortly after 4 o'clock this morning, when a division was taken, and Sir Richard Cartwright's resolution was voted down by a majority of 26, or 20 less than the chief Conservative organ assured us would be the Government majority. The majority would have been even less but for the absence, through illness, of several Liberals.

Sir Richard Cartwright's amendment was in the following terms: "That the situation of the country requires that the Government should forthwith reduce all duties on all articles of prime necessity and more particularly on those most generally consumed by artisans, miners, fishermen and farmers; and further, that the negotiations which the House has been informed are to open at Washington in October next should be conducted upon the basis of the most extended reciprocal freedom of trade between Canada and the United States in manufactured as well as in natural products."

A reasonable man, unblinded by partisan zeal, could see no objection to this resolution. It was conceived in terms that could not be construed as offensive to either party, and its stipulations were laid down in the interests of the large majority of the people of Canada. If enforced by Parliament, as it should have been, it would have been an intimation to the rulers that the time had gone by when taxation could be manipulated in the interests of the few, at the expense of the many, and that the representatives of the people were determined that the reciprocity negotiations of next October should be conducted on real, and not bogus premises. It would mean, as Mr. Hyman, M.P., so ably pointed out in his speech on the budget, that unfair discriminations in collecting the revenue should cease—that the taxes should no longer be collected in this unwarranted ratio: Cotton shirts, 50 per cent.; velvetens, 20 per cent.; socks and stockings, over 40 per cent.; linen damask, 25 per cent.; wine, 40 per cent.; feathers, 25 per cent.; hoes and scythes, 50 per cent.; mineral waters, 20 per cent.; spades, 45 per cent.; precious stones, free, 3 and 10 per cent.; coal oil, over 70 per cent.; cheap wall paper, 60 per cent.; blankets, 50 per cent.; cheap tweeds, 50 per cent.; while, stockings are 30 per cent., and finer tweeds 30 per cent.

The leaders of the Conservative party in the present House of Commons, unfortunately for the country, could neither discuss the resolution on its merits nor permit its followers to vote on it as the interests of the country should have prompted them.
It has been well proved that the dominance of the high tax party at Ottawa was secured by two most questionable agencies:
(1) The support of the rings and monopolists, who believe that with the advent of the Liberal party to power their legalized right to profit at the expense of their fellow-taxpayers would cease; (2), the boodling contractors, who have paid out many thousands of ill-gotten gains, at the solidification of the Conservative leaders, in order to maintain the men in authority who over a long period of years have so assiduously allowed these wholesale speculations to prevail.

The most significant admission was dragged out of the son of Sir Hector Langevin yesterday that he went to Larkin, Connolly & Co., the Universal Providers of Conservative campaign funds, and solicited $5,000 to spend in securing Sir Hector's election in Three Rivers. With a coolness characteristic of the whole gang, this son of his father explained that he took it for granted that big Government contractors were proper victims to bleed, and that $5,000 was a very small sum to aid in sustaining a single constituency. The young man was unwilling to reveal the truth as men with kindred associates generally are, but in large measure he corroborated the evidence of the leading witnesses that Mr. Tarte has produced.

We refer to the developments in this connection to show how the influence of plunder binds the present Administration and its followers together, and the necessity for all honest men, no matter to what party they have hitherto been allied, associating to aid in their speedy downfall.

That so fair a resolution as that proposed by Sir Richard Cartwright should be rejected by a majority in a House elected on an issue of falsehood and deceit, and supported by self-seeking monopolists and contractors who have for years been fattening at public expense, might, under all the circumstances, have been expected; but the outcome is none the less lamentable. The time must soon come when the people will arise in their might and say that they have had more than enough of the friends, patrons and beneficiaries of the corrupt contractors and of the monopolies established by class law.

EXPERT CORROBORATION.

Some people, anxious only to provide excuses for wrong-doing in high places, have seriously doubted the reliability of the witnesses adduced in the exposures of Government mismanagement and official wrongdoing at Ottawa. To all such, the first report of Messrs. Cross and Laing, the expert accountants, should be a sufficient reply. It is shown from the books of the contractors, mutilated though they have been to conceal many questionable payments, that the firm drew $3,138,234 from the public funds, of which, it is believed, $2,184,250 was expended in a legitimate way, leaving about $1,000,000 as profit and swag. How a portion of this money was willingly accepted by the officials, in exchange for liberty to pilfer from the public purse, has already been made plain. But more evidence has yet to be adduced by the experts. The rascalities practised in connection with the Kingston graving dock, which has cost double the original estimated cost, and the Langevin block wholesale thievery, have yet to be fully exposed, and there are many minor peculations to be taken up.

This is the record which has been piled up under Sir Hector Langevin's supervision.
This system has been going on with the connivance of men who, like the Minister, have placed themselves in the power of contractors by accepting valuable presents from those depending on the Government for favors. It has been carried on by the insolent Engineer Arnold, who has not only contravened the law of the land and thrown his oath to the winds, but has insulted the representatives of the people when they charged him to tell the whole truth.

And so the revelations become blacker and blacker, and as their extent is made known the stronger becomes the assurance of Sir Hector's apologists that he knew nothing about the condition of his department—that the members of the Government have all these years been in ignorance of the relationship of the boodling contractors to Sir Hector and Mr. Thomas McGreevy, M.P., the treasurer of their election fund.
Is not such an explanation incredible, in view of the fact that years ago, during a spat between Sir Hector and Mr. Chapman, a full outline of the whole matter was given in a Quebec Conservative paper, while last year Mr. Tarte, as a friend of the Government, secretly approached Sir John Macdonald and his associates and asked them to take action? He was rebuffed, and practically told to mind his own business. The result is the present exposure. Still they tell us that Sir Hector is guiltless! That the Minister was helpless to protect the interests of the people! Does any sane man credit the explanation?

A SPECIMEN JOB.

How the money goes in the grossly mismanaged Public Works Department at Ottawa is well exemplified in the Equi-mental dock transaction. Here are a few figures brought out in the report of the expert accountants:
Original estimate of work.....$ 374,589 Tender of Larkin, Connolly & Co. 374,589 Actual money paid by Government.....586,445
"Donations".....35,000
Business expenses.....6,665 Profits of contractors.....281,665 Actual cost of building dock.....304,000 Profits of contractors.....80 per cent.
Under Sir Hector's guardianship, it has thus been made possible for a firm to make a fortune out of a single job!

TOPICS OF TO-DAY.

Some people go on a vacation to look for rest, but they do not remain long enough in one place to get it.

THE WHEEL is vindicated. A man on a bicycle ran down a Jersey criminal, who would have escaped if he had been followed on "shank's mare."

REPORTS received from a wide section of the North American continent coincide in the statement that the expiring month has been the coolest on record. We may suffer for it in August.

THE Wyoming Legislature taxes bachelors $2 each per annum. Women have votes out there, and their influence is apparently directed to mildly intimate that men who remain single do not do their full duty to the community.

JOHN ROGER ARNOLD, the Ottawa engineer who made such an exhibition of himself before the investigating committee at Ottawa, was under suspension when the Liberals left power in 1878.
The revelations now show that, in the interests of the taxpayers, his suspension should have been perpetual.

It was indeed a splendid thing for Robert McGregory to have his brother Thomas in Parliament and a boarder at the residence of Sir Hector Langevin for many years. Robert put no capital but his brother's services into the firm of Larkin, Connolly & Co., and in the space of a year or two, vide the report of the experts, drew $187,800 from the firm's makings.

BRADFORD officials have been comparing the available grounds of the G. T. R. in London and in that city. They discover that the company has over a third more room for car works here than it possesses in Bradford. Let them continue their inquiry, and they will find that the London site is by far the best in all other respects.

THE IRRESPONSIBLE HEAD.

[Frederick, N. B. Gleaner.]
It cannot but be admitted that if Lord Stanley felt as much interest in the affairs of Canada as Canadians do, he would not in such a grave crisis have betaken himself to his sports till some conclusion was reached.

NO EXTRA PAY NEEDED.

[Kingston News (Conservative).] It is notorious that the average civil service employee in this country has shorter hours than his fellow in any other occupation. There is, therefore, no reason why any extra money should be paid for special work to men who habitually get off at 4 o'clock in the afternoon and do not begin work till 10 o'clock.

MANY MILLIONS SQUANDERED.

[St. Johns, N. B. Transcript.]
It costs $15,000,000 a year more to govern Canada than it did when we had an honest Government in power in these years ago, and we have to keep two scandal committees running for months to keep track of the public boodling and thievery that have been going on. Under the circumstances it would seem about time to return to honest government again.

QUEER ROYAL CEREMONIES.

[Philadelphia Ledger.] Nearly all of the royal, imperial and princely families of Europe are interlock-ed by marriage or by blood relationships, and very many of them are in a condition of perpetual estrangement and quasi-hostility, embracing each other when they have to masquerade before the public, but "making faces" at each other behind the scenes.

A SIGNIFICANT DIFFERENCE.

[Guelph Mercury.]
Some of the apologists for the present state of affairs at Ottawa are making themselves ridiculous by alleging that the irregular system which has prevailed in the Interior Department under Mr. White and Mr. Dewdney obtained when Hon. David Mills was head of the department, but he had no hand in it, and that the present clerks shall not receive more than their statutory salaries except the amount was voted by Parliament was not then the law of the department, and it was legitimate for a permanent clerk to do extra work, and the account was openly presented and properly certified, and there was no doubt that the work was performed. There was no fraud and no evasion, and the present administration. There was no resurrection of departed friends, nor a convenient use of one's wife's relations to beat the law in one's days.

What is Scrofula

It is that impurity in the blood, which, accumulating in the glands of the neck, produces unusually large swellings, which cause painful swelling sores on the arms, legs, or feet, which develops ulcers in the eyes, ears, or nose, often causing blindness or deafness; which is the origin of simple, cancerous growths, or many other manifestations usually ascribed to "humors." It is a more formidable enemy than consumption or cancer alone, for scrofula combines the worst possible features of both. Being the most ancient, it is the most general of all diseases or affections, for very few persons are entirely free from it.
How can it be cured? By taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, which, by the cure it has accomplished, often when other medicines have failed, has proven itself to be a potent and peculiar medicine for this disease. For all affections of the blood Hood's Sarsaparilla is unequalled, and some of the cures it has effected are really wonderful. If you suffer from scrofula in any of its various forms, be sure to give Hood's Sarsaparilla a trial.

TROTTING AT TORONTO.

A Good Day's Sport at the Woodbine Meeting.

Harry Wright's Proposed Baseball Innovation—Various Sporting Events.

THE TURF

TORONTO, July 29.—The Woodbine Driving Club had fine weather, a good track, a good attendance and the best of sport for the opening day of the summer trotting meeting yesterday. Two events were won on the card—the 2:30 and 3 minute trots. The 2:30 was won by George S. James. Clara K. was dangerous in the early part of the second heat, but at all other times during the race it was 10 to 1 on James. She gray horse, Lee's Pilot, finished first in the first heat of the 3-minute class, but was set back for running and Emigrant was given the heat. Emigrant was very steady all through, but did not the speed of Fly-away or the gray horse, and two heats settled his chances. Flyaway won the third.
Pilot the next three. Summary:

DOMINION PARLIAMENT.

Tardy Justice Done to North-west Rebellion Claimants.

Mr. Arnoldi "Ceases from the Active Performance of His Duties."

OTTAWA, July 29.—When the House resumed this afternoon the Election Finance Act amendment introduced by Sir John Thompson was again taken up. The time for voters to apply to have their names put on the lists is extended from July 29 to Aug. 15 in the bill, which passed its third reading. Revising barristers are to be provided at once by telegraph. The supplementary lists are to be made up from the assessment rolls of the current year. When the revising officer gives public notice of his list, he shall keep the list open for public inspection not less than six days. A clause affecting city polling booths was also adopted.

Mr. Speaker read a letter from the Governor-General's secretary notifying him that Mr. Justice Strong, acting for the deputy governor, would attend in the Senate Chamber on Friday afternoon to give the royal assent to such bills as are ripe for the royal assent.

The House went into committee to consider the following resolution: That it is expedient to provide that the salaries of local judges in Admiralty, as such judges, shall be as follows: The local judge of the district of Quebec, $2,000 per annum; district of Nova Scotia, $1,000 per annum; district of New Brunswick, $1,000 per annum; district of Prince Edward Island, $500 per annum; district of British Columbia, $500 per annum; Toronto district, $500 per annum; and that each such judge shall be paid such travelling allowance as the Governor in Council from time to time determine.

Sir John Thompson said there was no change in the salaries, but the old salaries were re-enacted with the fees formerly paid added on. British Columbia, where formerly there was no salary, was an exception. Mr. Davies wanted to know how these sums were arrived at. The Quebec salary he thought out of all bounds, and as to Toronto he understood the gentleman holding the position held half a dozen other positions, and received altogether about $6,000 or as much as the Chief Justice of Ontario.

Sir John Thompson gave statistics of the cost of the institution for trial in these courts. In Toronto there had been 37 in five years. A bill founded on these resolutions was introduced and stands for the second reading.

SOUTH-WEST REBELLION CLAIMS.
After recess Sir Adolphe Caron moved the House into Committee on Resolutions, authorizing the Government to pay scrip or free homesteads to members of the enrolled militia bearing arms in the suppression of the Northwest rebellion in 1885 who had not applied for the bounty under the act before the time for presenting claims had expired on 1st February, 1887. At that time, the Minister explained, a number of volunteers had not applied, and these resolutions were to empower the payment of the scrip or money to those whose claims had been investigated or may be.

Col. Oulmet asked if the claims of the half-breeds in the Edmonton District would be recognized under the resolution. A. Caron replied that the resolution named two corps of the Regina Volunteer Company and the Battalio Home Guards to which the resolutions would apply, and he asked why the Edmonton half-breeds were not included. The Minister's reply was unsatisfactory, and Col. Oulmet, in a speech, pressed upon the attention of the Government the claims of the half-breeds and urged them upon grounds of justice and policy.

Mr. Davies said the resolution was a piece of "tardy justice." He said it had been necessary for him to insist and persist in his insistence upon the claims of men who clearly came under the act of 1885 before he had procured their recognition by the Government. He suggested that the teamsters who were employed during the rebellion for the purpose of carrying supplies to the front should be included in the act. He brought a protest from Colonel Denison, who said that to include the teamsters would be ridiculous. They were paid $10 a week, and he asked why so much money was paid to them that there were charges of jobbery and corruption in connection with their payment.

Mr. Laurier, reading from the act of 1885, showed that its provisions were very wide and included every irregular force, the scouts, hospital nurses and others. In the present resolutions certain corps were mentioned and certain men are named to whom the resolutions were to apply. He asked if these corps and men were not covered by the act of 1885.

The Minister of Militia replied that they were.

He Fell Among Thieves

"Very well," said Harry, rising anew. "As you please. You have forgotten one thing. It would not suit my present game, Gilead, to have these bonds put upon the market."

"That," said Gilead emphatically, "is the first piece of straight talk you've done. If you'd seen fit to meet me in that spirit all along we might have saved both time and temper. What will suit your present game?"

"The old plan would suit my game, Gilead. The new one might. Let's know all about it."

"Let's make a bargain," said Gilead. "If the bonds ain't to go onto the market we can take care of 'em just as well as you can, and we're game to do it. You can hand the whole lot of 'em over into our safe keeping, and then we'll talk to you. I'm not going to say a word about that sort of business here. You come to my shanty. I'll have the other boys to meet you. You can hand the things over formal, and every body will know who's got 'em. It will be all square and above board, and then, if there's any further business to be done, we'll talk it over. I've never so much as hinted, William, that we'd be glad to have you back again. We can make it worth your while this time, if we couldn't before, and I've always given you full credit for your abilities. You come to me to-morrow, twelve o'clock at noon, 112 Fitzroy street, G. C. G. over the top bell."

"Good," said Harry, "I'll be there."

"You'll bring the bonds along with you," said Gilead. "Now mind, this is the last time of asking. If you're going to do a thing with us we shall make you real sure, William. I shall conduct this party personally, you take my word for it."

"I understand," said Harry quietly. "You shall have the bonds to-morrow."

Gilead took his leave, wished himself to the lift, was lowered to the ground floor, and was assisted to the pavement.

M. Vergueil, with a face of consummate innocence, had descended two minutes before, and now stood looking at the man who had just come to him. Two men of decent and respectable aspect stood smoking and chatting on the opposite pavement. Mr. Vergueil laid a forefinger on his lower lip, and a few seconds later one of the men opposite did the same. The foreigner moved courteously on one side to allow Mr. Gilead's little carriage to be carried past him. He laid his finger on his lower lip again. Mr. Gilead was lifted into a four-wheeler, and the go-cart being placed on the top of the vehicle, he was driven away. The two men on the opposite side of the way got into a hansom, which crawled up with a casual air at that moment, and without giving instructions to the driver, set off leisurely in the same direction.

CHAPTER XVII.

Mr. Gilead C. Gilfoil when he home permitted himself to suffer from no lack of occupation. He was a gentleman of varied parents and employments, and amongst other things he took a considerable interest in chemistry. Living upon the second floor, he had caused a small laboratory to be erected on the leads outside his sitting-room window at the back of the house, but set against the dead wall of the house, but admitted light and air on three sides.

On the day after his interview with Ronald Morton, Gilead set to work in this retreat engaged in an occupation of considerable nicety. A curious atmosphere pervaded the little chamber, and the two side windows open to that in the door were thrown wide open to allow free passage to the air. Mr. Gilfoil drew free passage to the air. Mr. Gilfoil drew before him a glass bottle with a screw stopper, and four little objects in vials, which resembled pocket pencils. At the knob of nickel, running in a slot with a curve at the base, and at the top a dash-like point of the same metal, in each case unscrewed the tips, creating in each case the top of a new, pointed glass syringe. He tested the working of these small instruments with great delicacy, and finding them not to his satisfaction, rang an electric bell which stood within easy reach of his hand. The summons was answered by Miss Priscilla Gilfoil, who wrinkled the bridge of her nose in disgust at the odor of the place.

"I never knew in all my life such a man for sitting among swells as you are. The place smells as if it was full of rotten apples. Well, I do declare, you've got them murderous little things in hand again. All I hope is you won't be able to make 'em work."

"They'll work this time," said Gilead placidly. He took one of them in his hand, and surveying it with the complacency of a successful inventor. "You bring me a tumbler of clear water."

The girl obeyed and stood by while Gilead tested the syringes, filling them by suction, and expelling the water with great force and directness in a thin jet.

"That's the latest scent-quirt," said Gilead smiling. "The Lady's Surprise I mean to call it. You'll see it in all the shop windows by'n by. Gentlemen ask you for the loan of a pencil, you unscrew the tip for him, he bends over thinking it's a new invention, and then you get your little joke quite easy. Look here, it'll throw a jet ten feet, and it carries as straight as a rifle, and it don't waste the thousandth part of a spot."

Priscilla watched the illustration of the virtues of the instrument with a face of stern disapproval. "I don't think," she said, "there's another man alive fit enough to think of such a thing."

"Don't you waste your time in compliments. You fetch me that glass tumbler and my breathing tube. You'll find 'em both in the box under the bed."

"What are you going to fill those things with, Gilead?" the girl asked sternly. "Eau de Cologne, my darling," returned Gilead, with a smile of amusement at his own retort. "You get them things. Bring 'em to me, and then clear out."

The girl retired, with a look of the head, with which she seemed to resign herself to unmeasured folly. In her absence Gilead screwed to the edge of the table a revolving fan, and tested its action with as much care and precision as he had shown in all his former movements. Priscilla, by and by brought back the articles for which he had dispatched her, and still wringing her nose at the odor of the place, assisted him in putting on the mask, and placed the end of the breathing tube across the window ledge. When this operation was completed, Gilead drew on a pair of gloves of goldbeater skin, examined them minutely, and discovering them to be quite flawless, unscrewed the stopper of the bottle before him, and filled each of the syringes in turn from its contents, all his motions being marked by the finest delicacy and care. He restoppered the bottle, and restored its original coverings of oiled silk and wash-leather. He wiped the point of each syringe with a clean fragment of an old cambric handkerchief, which he burned in a crucible stove in one corner of the apartment. Then having screwed on the caps of the syringes he set the fan in motion, producing a strong current of air.

After two minutes of this he rang again, and the girl returned. Gilead, without any further word, handed her the mask, lifted his blanched hands towards his head. The girl understood the gesture, and assisted him to remove the mask and the breathing tube attached to it.

"I think," said Gilead, "we've fixed it this time."

"I don't see what you want the murderous mask and all that for," said Priscilla. "You said you'd adhere to ideas and phrases."

"Don't you?" Gilead answered in a tone of badinage. "Well, I do, and there along they'll make that enough for you."

His success had inspired him with an unusual good temper, and Priscilla, after the fashion of her sex, took advantage of this fact, and pursued the theme further than she ordinarily would have dared to do.

"If one of them ghastly things was found about you, Gilead, you'd get into trouble. You can't have any but wicked uses for 'em."

"All right, my dear," returned Gilead. "Chatter away if it pleases you. I'll make that good for you, anyway?"

"What good are they anyway?" Gilead echoed, baring his teeth and turning upon her with a sudden smile. "What good are they? I'll tell you what good they are. I'm a worthless cripple, dead, or as good as dead, from the hips down, and with one of these in my fingers I'm a dandy, and more than a match for the biggest hell-raiser Texas ever bred." He took one of the syringes in his thumb and finger, and toyed with it. As he did so his complacency relaxed, but it was hard to say whether his expression were uglier in his rage or in his good humor. "There ain't no harm in taking a pencil-case out of your pocket, is there, my darling? Suppose I find myself there, in a tight corner some day. Suppose I find some brawny villain towering over me with a bowie or six shooter, tell me he's going to have my blood. There ain't no harm in my having a little cap off, is there? Not if you sit very calm and quiet, and look scared. But it's sudden death, my darling. It's only to be used in extremity, because sudden death to anybody is dangerous, almost anywhere. But it's a sweet invention."

Archbishop Denison's Famous Toast

Here's health to all that love us, Here's health to all those that love them, That love us, and those that love them.

Do you notice what a large circle this wish for health includes? and will you notice the reference is not to the wine cup, but to a standard medicine, the "Golden Medical Discovery," that can bring health to the large number of friends we each love. True, it is not a "beverage," and does not inebriate, but is a health-giving medicine, a blood-purifier, liver-invigorator and general tonic, a remedy for Biliousness, Indigestion and Stomach troubles. It cures Consumption, in its early stages, Scrofula, Bronchitis, and throat diseases.

VICE AND ADVICE.

Characteristic Letter from Rev. Charles Kingsley on Betting and Gambling.

The following letter by Rev. Charles Kingsley to a public school boy on betting and gambling needs no comment.

"My Dearest Boy,—There is a matter which gave me much uneasiness when you mentioned it. You said you had put into some lottery for the Derby, and had hedged to make safe."

"Now, all that is bad, bad, nothing but bad. Of all habits, gambling is the one I hate most and have avoided most. Success and loss alike make it grow. Of all habits, however much civilized men may force away to it, it is one of the most inhuman and savage. Historically, it has been the peace excitement of the lowest brutes in human form for ages past. Morally, it is unchristian and unbecoming."

"1. It gains money by the lowest and most unjust means, for it takes money out of your neighbor's pocket without giving him anything in return."

"2. It tempts you to use what you fancy your superior knowledge of a horse's merits—or anything else—your neighbor's harm."

"If you know better than your neighbor, you are bound to give him your advice. Instead, you conceal your knowledge to win from his ignorance; hence come all sorts of concealments, dodges, deceptions—I say the devil is the only father of it."

"I hope you have not won. I should not be sorry for you to lose. If you have won I shall not congratulate you. If you wish to please me you will give back to its lawful owners the money you have won. Now you can give back your money, saying you understand that the hedges and I disapprove of such things, and so gain a very great moral influence."

"Recollect always that the stock argument is worthless. It is this: 'My dear boy, would you win from me if he could, therefore I have an equal right to win from him. Nonsense. The same argument would prove that I have a right to kill or maim or ruin if only I give him leave to maim or kill me, if he can and will.'

"I have spoken my mind, once and for all, on a matter on which I have held the same views for more than twenty years, and trust in God you will not forget my words in after life. I have seen many a good fellow ruined by finding himself one day short of money, and trying to get a little by play or betting—and then the Lord have mercy on his simple soul, for simple it will not long remain."

"Mind, I am not the least angry with you. Betting is the way of the world. So are all the seven deadly sins, under certain rules and pretty names; but to the devil they lead, if indulged in, in spite of the world and its ways. Your loving friend, C. KINGSLEY."

Why will you allow a cough to lacerate your throat or lungs and run the risk of filling a consumptive's grave, when by the timely use of Bickel's Anti-Consumptive Syrup, you can be cured and the danger avoided? CERTIFICATES OF STRENGTH AND PURITY:

OFFICE OF THE PUBLIC ANALYST.

Montreal, Sept. 9, 1887.

To the Canada Sugar Refining Co., Montreal: Gentlemen,—I have personally taken samples from a large stock of your Granulated Sugar, "REDPATH" brand, and carefully tested them by the polariscope, and I find these samples to be as near to absolute purity as can be obtained by any process of sugar refining.

The test by the polariscope showed in yesterday's yield 96.50 per cent. of pure cane sugar, which may be considered commercially as absolutely pure sugar.

$200 Gone Up in Smoke.
A domestic was ironing Monday's wash at the residence of Mr. Charles Leonard, 243 Queen's avenue, about 11 o'clock yesterday morning, when some red-hot charcoal dropped on the floor. The firemen were instantly called out and found the rear of the house in a blaze, which prompt work succeeded in extinguishing before great damage was done. The loss, however, will amount to about $200. Mr. J. W. Jones, auctioneer, owns the place.

Edward Dyer, a young man, was arrested Tuesday night by Detective Rider, charged with neglecting to support a wife and child, who are in Detroit. Dyer was formerly a cigarmaker in this city, but left his young wife, and with a woman named Catharine Kramer, came to London and started housekeeping in the southern part of the city. On receipt of a letter from Detroit Detective Rider arrested the couple and will inform the crying young woman's parents of her whereabouts. Dyer appeared at the Police Court yesterday and was remanded for a week.

What Does It Mean?
"100 Doses One Dollar" means simply that Hood's Sarsaparilla is the most economical medicine to buy, because it gives more for the money than any other preparation. Each bottle contains 100 doses, and will average to last a month, while other preparations, taken according to directions, are gone in a week. Therefore, be sure to get Hood's Sarsaparilla, the best blood purifier.

It is a melancholy fact, and much to be regretted, that good people who want only what is right, often get what is left.

"La Cadena" and "La Flora" Perfected. The smoker who has been in the habit of using a Perfecto size in well-known Havana brands will readily appreciate the "La Cadena" or "La Flora," which will be found equal to the finest imported and at a much lower figure.

To nearly all men a good cigar is as valuable a companion, but a bad one is intolerable. The latter may be easily avoided by procuring a brand that is recognized by the smoking public as above reproach.

The leading favorite in the race is the Highland Lassie, a 5-cent cigar, and one of the choicest notions on the market. H. McKay & Co., this city, are the manufacturers, and their shipments extend from the Atlantic to the Pacific.
