Interesting Letter From Former Brantford Lady

Graphic Description of War Scenes in Paris and England - Britain Keeps Cool Under Very Depressing Times.

Mrs. Herbert Flynn, daughter of Mr. F. E. Tobias, formerly of Brantford, was in Paris at the time of the outbreak of hostilities. She writes as follows with regard to her experiences:

"Paris was like a city gone mad. We were practically prisoners there for over a week. After several visits to the police for a ticket of permission to remain in Paris until we could get away, and a visit to the Canadian consulate, and later to the British ambassador, we managed to leave on Thursday, Aug. 6. We had a weary journey to Havre, and there got on a boat bound for Southampton. The soldiers of France have behaved magnificently, also the women, but the men left behind seem to have lost their heads. We stood for hours outside of the office of the Prefect of Police, waiting to be admitted. The crowds were appalling, and every nationality was represented. The French lack a sense of order such as is everywhere prevalent in London. Three cheers for dear old, sane England! I'm quite mad myself these days. I would give all to be able to trample the mad Kaiser under foot. Such tales of trickery and reads off insults as one hears and reads off. Thank God, I belong to the Anglo-Saxon race and the greatest Empire on earth! How you would rejoice to be here in London and see how quietly and quickly the Britisher accepts the situation. More than the required number of men have applied at the War Office. Boy Scouts are doing excellent work. The sinking of the Amphion was received with wonderful fortitude. These English men and women are behaving with Spartan-like bravery. And all honor to the Belgians and their King! Of course, you have read how stubbornly and bravely they repulsed the Germans, and only 25,000 men as against 100,000 Germans. I was wild with enthusiasm when I read of Liege. France has endured insult after insult and offered none. The German Ambassador was escorted to the station and a special train provided to take him to Germany—and what did Germany do? Kept the train, without a word of thanks, and threw the French Ambassador out of Berlin, and he was unable to find his way out of the country and was stranded in Denmark. He has not at this writing reached Paris. Oh, I boil to show what I think of it. At a little French town I saw a trainload of German men and women being escorted to the frontier under a guard, and the French men and soldiers were carrying water and bread to them. Wasn't that splendid of the French? Not a jeer from a soul, but we all watched silently. I wanted to clasp the hand of every French soldier. At Rouen we were delayed an hour, and strolling about the station I saw a group of French infantry. Their rifles were stacked in groups, and bore the French, English and Russian colors. It was good to see my flag again, and instantly we were surrounded by the soldiers, and a shout went up, 'Vive L'Angleterre!' ('Long Live England!'), and I responded with 'Vive La France.' I shook hands with many of them, and some spoke in broken English. They laid all, and eager to fight. They went on their way to meet a regiment of British soldiers at Havre. In the boat at Havre we heard French soldiers singing 'God Save the King,' the 'Marseillaise' and 'Rule, Britannia.' I cheered until I was hoarse. I wish I might do something to help. 'Yesterday I went to have my hair washed, and the hairdresser spoke broken English. I said to him, 'Why are you not fighting?' He said, 'I am Swiss.' 'Well,' I said, 'Germany had the affront to march into Switzerland.' I watched his face as I said it, and he said, 'Oh, no, we are nearly all Germans there. She only marches through to get to another country.' He was too smooth for a brave, fearless man, and I believed him to be a spy, so I felt it my duty to inform the police.

"I had to leave my trunk and contents in Paris, and I never expect to see them again. Brought all I could in a suit case. Hundreds of refugees are arriving in London daily. I hope last long, and I feel confident that the ultimate outcome will be for the good and the glory of Great Britain, France and Russia."

THOS. M'CORMICK HAS PASSED AWAY

Well Known Local Painter Succumbs as Result of Injury He Received.

It is with sincere regret that the Courier records to-day the death which occurred last night of Thomas P. McCormick, 70 Arthur St.

The late Mr. McCormick had been confined to his home for some weeks suffering from an internal injury received while following his occupation of painter. His friends however, had every hope of his recovery, and will therefore be deeply grieved to hear of his death.

Mr. McCormick was known to Brantfordites as a skilled painter and decorator, having executed some of the finest work in the city, and was engaged in this work for the past several years with Mr. Frank McQuillan of this city. "Tom", by which he was familiarly known, was a fine specimen of Canadian manhood, and a loyal supporter of all clean sport, lacrosse and baseball being his favorites. In religion, he was a devout Catholic, being a regular attendant of St. Mary's Parish; and in politics a staunch Liberal.

The deceased leaves to mourn his loss a widow, his mother, residing in Battle Creek, Mich., two sisters Mrs. Jno. Harrington of Battle Creek, Mich. Mrs. Jno. Powers, Darling St. this city, also two brothers, Jerry and Lawrence, of Chicago.

The funeral will take place on Monday morning from his late residence, 70 Arthur St., to St. Mary's Church, and thence to St. Joseph's cemetery.

Fresh Air and Sunshine Laundry—Phone 274

The Brantford Laundry has become known in and around Brantford as "The Fresh Air and Sunshine Laundry." The many people who have interested themselves in visiting our laundry have been doing some silent advertising. At any rate, their generous use of this pleasant expression has brought many new customers to us.

Truly, the public's favorable opinion has given wonderful impetus to our trade, but with all the additional laundry work our staff of happy, contented launders, who never lose an hour's time year round, have become so expert in their individual work that the same skilful, careful attention is given each and every garment.

Clear, healthy workrooms, pure filtered and softened water, pure washing materials, modern machinery, expert workmanship, all these go in the laundering of your clothing. Just at this time we are giving extra attention to summer whitewear. Why not bundle up all your laundry work and phone for a Brantford Laundry wagon to call for it? Our wagons go everywhere, and you cannot afford to do the heavy washing at home these hot days.

IMBARDED POPLES' HOMES KILLED MANY

Count of What Germans Did After they Captured Liege.

Special Wire to The Courier.—LONDON, Aug. 22.—The correspondent at Amsterdam of the War Telegraph Company has in the following account of present situation at Liege, which he obtained from the Rotterdam Courant, which in turn the story from its correspondent at Maestricht: The firing from a shot from a water house in Liege yesterday was a signal for a widespread bombardment and arson on the part of the German army of occupation. Maestricht correspondent says situation of the population of Liege was extremely perilous. Immediately the shot was fired, the Germans opened with their machine guns, destroyed twenty houses and killed the inmates of other houses. In addition to the war tribute $100,000 levied upon the province and city, Liege has been looted of an additional $2,000,000, the German administration having seized this amount of cash private banks. All citizens have been ordered to hand over their arms and at the same time the peasants have been invited to return to the country and begin harvesting. The lives of foreigners in Liege are in danger. There are a great many Dutchmen in Liege at the present time, and the Dutch government is taking measures for their protection. In conclusion, the correspondent says that Prince Eitel Friedrich, second son of Emperor William, has left Liege.

The United States consul-general at Rio Janeiro has reported the sinking of the British steamer 'Ayesha' by the German cruiser 'Derfflinger'.

Brantford Defaults

With a chance of gaining the district lacrosse honors, the Brantford team has defaulted to London for some unknown reason, more especially so when it is considered that they defaulted when due to play at home. The Brantford boys have done fairly well, and were standing well placed, having beaten St. Marys and also London last week. Had the team met today it is probable that London would have gone down. The refusal to meet London gives the Forest City district championship to London and they will probably meet Fergus and Orangeville for the championship series of Western Ontario. London is elated at the break of luck, as they term it, and evidently regarded the game with Brantford as anything but a cinch.

EACH COMPANY PROUD OF MEN THEY'RE SENDING

Busy Scene Around Armories Last Night Around Comrades.

The members of H. Company had an informal supper last night, Capt. Cutcliffe presiding. The company stands to lose 19 men—this from the tail-end company, means that a strenuous recruiting campaign will be needed to bring the members up. The men, though feeling the after-effects of the inoculation for typhoid were in cheerful trim and jollied each other with considerable spirit. Lieut. T. D. Frazer, and Lieut. C. Shephard, were present.

After a short period of 'canteen capers' with God speeds all round, Captain Cutcliffe presented each man with a briar pipe or pen knife. The gifts were heartily appreciated and wishes expressed that the 'pipe of peace' would be smoked at an early date in the old headquarters. Recruits should apply at 'H' Company's room any evening from 8 to 10 p.m.

B. Company, caught somewhat unaware by the hurried mobilization orders, could do nothing. However, a company meeting is being held every next week to take measures to make up some sort of presentation and forward it to Valcartier. F. Company, F. Co's voted its departing heroes $5 out of company funds—a generous dispensation, which was greatly appreciated by the men.

G. Company was present in good strength to wish Godspeed to its departing comrades. Captain Wm. Millar made a proposal which was unanimously agreed to by the company committee that each man receive a $5 bill on his departure from the depot on Saturday.

D. Company voted a gift of $5 apiece to the four men who left for the front. Recruits are wanted, especially men particularly. The company room is open from 8 till 10 p.m. for attestation purposes.

The Sergts. mess of the 38th, held a farewell supper for the N. Co's who left for Quebec this morning; 18 members in all volunteered and were accepted. S. M. Oxtably and Major Tom MacPhail made complimentary speeches wishing the men every success in battle and a quick return. The gathering terminated early in the evening, the men wishing to spend their last night at home.

WAR OUTCOMES To Our Great Constituency in Brantford and the County of Brant A Few Words by E. B. CROMPTON & CO.

It is difficult to realise that in this peaceful Canada of ours—war conditions have suddenly swooped down on us. The tramp of armed men is heard in our streets—the tocsin of battle has sounded, and the Lion's whelps are astir to help the old mother land, and at the same time conserve their own liberties and independence. Those who have not been in Germany and seen its iron rule under the hand of the War Lord's Administration—and the writer speaks from actual knowledge—know nothing of what life would be in this Dominion, should it come under German sway, which Heaven forbid.

Some of our bravest and best sons are on their way to the seat of war—and the writer knows the hardships that in the field they will have to face, having been all over this ground at Herbesthal where the Germans quitted the Railway to enter Belgium, having been through the rugged mining and coal country surrounding Liege and Namur, having frequently seen the strongly fortified city at Antwerp, and as well travelled through Nancy and other towns in Northern France—he knows that awaiting them is hardships, heat, cold, hunger and thirst, weariness, wounds and perhaps death.

But the boys at the front will "endure hardness as good soldiers"—and shall not we at home, to the best of our endeavor try to do our duty—one duty specially to the dependants they have left behind.

THERE'S A DUTY FOR EVERYBODY AT HOME The old Cromwellian Motto of "Trust in God and Keep Your Powder Dry" was never more appropriate than it is to-day for Canada. Let us keep a cheerful and bold front—Troubles we shall have—Difficulties we shall have to face—but a stout heart will help to work wonders.

About the Goods During the past week our receiving room has been passing through great shipments of fall and winter merchandise from the manufacturers in France, Germany and Great Britain, which, fortunately, were shipped before the present unfortunate war broke out. This is important to our customers, as not while a yard of present stocks remain will there be any advance in prices, though a prolonged war may mean a scarcity of foreign goods, which may change the source of supply. The last French Handkerchief in the box, or the last yard of German Dress Goods will be sold at old prices while they last, should it come to that. You may depend the people will be given every advantage at this store, as this is the way we try to conduct our business the year around, believing that a proper store is a public servant, and we are just as careful to-day as though we were living under the old Danish law, when in time of famine, a miller who raised the price of grain lost his right hand for it. Yours Faithfully E. B. CROMPTON & CO.

FOR THE CARE OF THOSE WHO ARE LEFT BEHIND

Steps are Taken by Committee—City Council Will Provide Necessary Funds Until Other Provisions are Made.

"It is recommended: That definite decision as to the method of raising money to care for the families of the men, resident in the City, who have gone to the war at the call of their country, be postponed for the present. That until otherwise decided, the expense be borne by the City, and the money necessary be distributed for the purpose of the Committee appointed at this meeting of citizens called for the purpose. The Committee undertake to secure information as to the circumstances and needs of each family and make report thereupon to the City Treasurer, who should be authorized to pay weekly to each family, the amount recommended by the Committee. The Committee also undertake to distribute to the families concerned any part of their army pay which the soldiers may be willing to assign to the City Treasurer for that purpose. If in the future it is thought wise to raise the money by public subscription, that the details of the plan for the purpose of the Brantford families be made to fit with any plan of National scope which subsequently may be formulated." Such was the recommendation made yesterday afternoon to the meeting of the representatives of the different societies of the city held in the Council Chambers, by the committee appointed to draft a scheme of action for the support of the wives and families of the soldiers who have left Brantford for the front. The meeting was fairly well attended. Mayor Spence presiding. Mr. Frank Cockshutt, who had made a special trip to Toronto to investigate the scheme carried out there was the first speaker. He said that the wisest plan was for municipal schemes to fit into any general Do-tario Government asking that work on the Ontario highways should be rushed. This step was endorsed on a vote. Mr. Preston to prepare the two resolutions, which will be forwarded to Sir Thomas Shaughnessy and Sir James Whitney.

Just before the meeting adjourned Mrs. W. C. Livingston announced that the Women's Hospital Aid was anxious to do something for the patriotic fund, and would hold a garden party at her residence net Thursday afternoon, the proceeds of which would go entirely towards the fund.

This announcement was greeted with great applause. The meeting then adjourned to meet again on Monday afternoon at 4 o'clock. In the meantime Mr. J. L. Axtord is looking after all cases, and has made a careful enquiry into every one.

The news of the German occupation of Brussels has been posted in Berlin. The story was told in a laconic despatch of seven words.

Among the German papers received in London is The Strassburger Post which gives the Emperor's rescript issued after the German victory at Muelhausen and addressed to army headquarters. The Emperor said: "I am grateful to our God who is with us. I thank you and our brave troops for the first victory and express to all who took part in it my imperial thanks which your chief war lord addresses to them in the name of the fatherland."

Southeast of Brussels they are investigating the fortified city of Namour, situated on the Meuse.

ISLAM AS LAST RESORT OF GERMANY

Threat to Rouse Up Nations of Vast East Against Britain.

LONDON, Aug. 22.—A despatch to the Exchange Telegraph Company from Rome says that according to messages from Berlin the German press is indignant at Great Britain's acceptance of Japan's support. The leading papers declare that Germany will retaliate by stirring up an Islamic revolution in India, Egypt, Tunis, Algeria and the Sudan, which will quickly bring England and France to terms.

BY NELSON'S GRAVE
THE SINGLE FLOWER

The western doors of the Cathedral
were open, and the dusty sunshine and restlessness of London quivered outside. Boys were hawking their papers, calling the news, such as they must have called them a hundred years ago. "Naval action!" Their shrill voices faintly dominated the orderly,
busy choral outside; and the dignity of the quiet that is St. Paul's own muted them. They swooned into the multitudinous murmur that is never still beneath the dome.

It is only in summer when the doors are wide that one knows the size and majesty of Wren's great building of lumber and silver. It is only when the sight of London opens the eyes that the vision of England's cor cordium is quite fulfilled. It is only on the roar of London traffic—entering triumph through the western pillars and hushed into mere ascending silence
tinged with hushed before the Sanctuary—that the roughest heart's desire of kneeling woman and men is best charioted to God. And then, if one must needs make a greater or a less,
the sister church of Westminster bows
as beauty must sometimes make obedience to strength, before St.
Paul's claim to stand for England and all that is England's in the shock of war.

With the harmonies of London in my ears still faintly sharpened by the distant cry of the newsboys, went down to the tomb of Nelson in the crypt. "Naval action!" How could one do otherwise? There was no other in these twilight silent spaces.

There is not an ornament in this holy of holies, except the tomb itself
—the tomb which Torregiano carved under Wolsey's eye for the great carved pillar of plain stone the Admiral's body lies. How eloquent the silence of symbolism is. There once was a man who organized the Field of Gold; and then struck it and the Middle Ages together off the records of history, substituting for it, unaided

the balance of power in Europe—
which in all modern history in a phrase of five words. His Eminence never lived to occupy the mighty bed
of porphyry; but it was not wasted.
The man who more than all other men carried out to the full Wolsey's pregnant doctrine lies there instead.

What is it that teaches the English
the divine art of simplicity in moments of utter stress? We are no natives of artists, yet Napoleon and the Medici might envy Nelson the austere glory of this last resting place.
dimly its circle contains only Nelson.
But the dome, the crowning cross of gold, and the free clean air around it are as certainly and clearly the canopy of this grave as if the pavement of the church were torn up and men could look down upon him as they look down upon Napoleon in the Invalides.

There the one-armed body lies. But if anything of this keen human life
—love, duty, memory, discipline, pride—
if anything survives the paralysis of death, there must be prayer for England going up to heaven now from Nelson's soul. After all, he taught us, he gave his life for us and he sets us upon our azure throne. Like Jellicoe he watched and waited, while the enemy still hid themselves under the shelter of their fortifications; like Jellicoe he knew that at all costs, and however long his vigil might be, his work must be done, done completely and done at once. How he must envy
—the thought is scarcely strange as one stands beside him—how he must envy Jellicoe to-day.

I think I said that there was no ornament in this place. I was wrong. I found lying upon a ledge of the great purple sarcophagus a single staly of crimson carnation, just such an offering as a poor woman with a son in the Fleet might have laid there by stealth, wondering all the time if she were not breaking the Cathedral rules by doing so. It was quite fresh, and it smelt of the North Sea.

GERMANS HAVE FAILED
PARIS, Aug. 22—4.45 a.m.—Col.
Leonce Rousset, writing for The Parisien, says:
"The situation is good. The slight setback in Lorraine is unimportant.
On the whole the German staff's plan
of invasion may be said to have failed. They sought to crush us with a lightning blow, but it is we who will carry the war into the enemy's territory."

The Man in Whose Charge
Is the Destiny of the Empire

The Achievements of Sir J. R. Jellicoe the Supreme Admiral of the Home Fleets of Old England.

LONDON, Aug. 22.—In the hands of Sir John R. Jellicoe, K.C.B., more than in the hands of any one other man, rests the fate of Great Britain and the British Empire, for he is now in supreme command of the Home Fleets, and it is the Home Fleet that forms Britain's first line of defence.
So long as it stands safe and sound we are all secure, for the battle that will protect our shores as well as the shores of the Motherland will be fought in the North Sea.

The appointment of Sir John Jellico is in itself of the nature of a romance. He had no small share in shaping the instrument he will now command, and he has chosen as his Chief of Staff another most distinguished officer, who happens to be his brother-in-law. Sir John Jellicoe and Rear-Admiral Charles Madden served together at the Admiralty on more than one occasion, both having married, been Sea Lords, and they married daughters of Sir Charles Cayzer, Bt. The Admiralsissimo and his chief staff officer are known to be in the most complete accord on matters of strategy and tactics, and were both associated in the creation and equipment of the ships of the Home Fleets
on which the fortunes of the British Empire will depend. They were members of the famous Dreadnought Design Committee, and were associated with Admiral of the Fleet Lord Fisher of Kilverstone in his many reforms in naval administration.

No officer whom the Admiralty could have selected to go afloat at this juncture enjoys so completely the confidence of the naval service
as Sir John Jellicoe. In December, 1912, he became a member of the Board of Admiralty, and then vacated the command of the Second Division of the Home Fleet, to which he eleven vice-admirals—a fact which in itself points to the high estimation
in which he is held by the naval authorities.

Early Successes.
Born on December 5, 1859, he is the son of Captain J. H. Jellicoe, Educated at Rottingdean, Sir John Jellicoe entered the Royal Navy as a cadet on July 15, 1872, passing out of the Britannia first of his "batch"
by over a hundred marks. In the examination for sub-lieutenant, which rank he attained six years later (December 5, 1878), he took three "firsts,"
in itself a remarkable achievement.

On August 23, 1880 he was promoted lieutenant, and two years afterwards, as a lieutenant, on board
the Agincourt, he served in the Egyptian War. He was awarded the Egyptian medal and the Khedive's bronze star. On his return to England, in the following year, he studied at the Royal Naval College, Greenwich, where he won the special £80 prize for gunnery lieutenants. In May 1886, while serving on board the Monarch, he was awarded the Board of Trade silver medal for gallantry in saving life at sea, by commanding a stranded ship near Gibraltar, the sea being so heavy that the boat was capsized, but he and the crew were washed ashore. He served also as gunnery lieutenant of the Colossus,
and on the staff of the Excellent gunnery establishment.

Survivor of H.M.S. Victoria Gazetted a commander in 1891, he was for a time employed as assistant to the Director of Naval Ordnance, being subsequently appointed first lieutenant to the Sans Pareil, and later to the ill-fated Victoria. Admiral Sir George Tryon's flagship, on the Mediterranean station, which was sunk off Tripoli, on the Syrian coast,

in collision with the Camperdown,
when the admiral, twenty-one officers and 350 men were drowned. At the time of the collision Commander Jellico was on the sick list in his cabin.
When the ship capsized he, with the aid of Mr. West, a midshipman, contrived to keep himself afloat till picked up. Commander Jellicoe's silver medal was lost with other effects in the Victoria, and the Board of Trade
so it was reported at the time, instigated that another medal could be obtained on payment.

After serving as commander of the

THE COP
I'd hate to be a peeler, and tread the pave of brick, the goat for every scoundrel who thinks he has a kick. He tries to do his duty, nine cases out of ten; the burglar fierce and shifty, all sorts of strong arm men, the hobnob
and the killer, the bad man with a past he'll chase from post to pillar, and run them in at last. His life he doesn't reckon when tracking deadly foe;
wherever perils beckon the peeler
has to go. The cop must be a wizard, a Sherlock in disguise, and know
from A to Izzard, the wicked's lures
and lies, and he must be a scrapper, to master hoodlums rude; and yet he must be dapper and well groomed as a dude. The manners Chesterfieldan he must possess, of course, or we shall take his shield in, and fire him from the force. A Crichton he'll resemble, in nothing he'll be lax, or surely he may tremble, for he will get the ax.
As brave as any lion, yet dove-like,
mild and meek, as eloquent as Bryan—at fifteen bones a week! I'd hate to be a copper, on feet that throb and ache,
the goat of every yapper who has a kick to make.

BELGIUM A LAND IN WHICH FIVE TONGUES EXIST

Might be Called Country Without Native Language—Flemish Has Real Claim.

A land without a language! That is Belgium. Whatever the outcome of the war, and regardless of the number of pieces into which the small kingdom of Belgium may eventually be cut, it will be a practical impossibility further to complicate the Belgian lingual situation.

Strictly speaking, Belgium is not a land without a language; it is a land with so many languages that no one of them may rightly be said to be the native Belgian tongue. Nominally, the Flemish is entitled to that distinction, but the truth is that only among the farmers of Northern Belgium is Flemish any great vogue. As for the rest, French, English, German and Dutch are spoken with equal fidelity.

The city of Antwerp, there can be no doubt, presents Belgium's most bewildering lingual array. Four languages are current there—five, really, because Flemish and Dutch, despite their similarity are entitled to be classed as different languages. This does not mean that in different sections of Antwerp four or five languages are spoken, for that would be nothing extraordinary. It means that the average resident of Antwerp speaks all five of these languages with equal ease or effort, that it is a matter of indifference to him which he uses, and that about half the time he could not tell you which language he were using without stopping to consider. And he can think in any of all of them, which is the final test.

To begin with, all Antwerpians speak Flemish. It is their native tongue. Speaking Flemish, they speak Dutch. On paper Dutch and Flemish are identical, but as spoken by the two races they have marked points of difference. The Antwerpian, can speak Dutch and Flemish, but he does not do so. If you address him a question in one of these tongues he will answer you, of course, but he does not care for the language. It is supposed to be bourgeois, and your Antwerpian fears that should he lose the language it will be thought that he can speak no other.

French is essential. Without it the Antwerp man would be lost in Brussels, where French is spoken almost exclusively. Without it he could make no trips to Paris nor read the French newspaper nor converse with 10 per cent of the strangers who visit Antwerp. And, finally, it is fashionable to speak French, and becoming more so daily.

The Belgian coinage system is patterned after the French, and it would be no great surprise to see the Belgian adopt the entire French language very soon. In Antwerp today it is vastly more important to know French than to know Flemish or Dutch.

As for English, one has but to ask a query of any person on the street to find how generally English is spoken. Antwerp is a business town, and much of its business is with England and America. Between Antwerp and England boats ply daily, and there are direct lines from Antwerp to New York. The lowest clerk cannot obtain employment in any business house in Antwerp unless he speaks English. Furthermore, there is the American tourist to be considered. The tourist's franc plays an important part in the life of Antwerp, and Antwerp knows that it stands a better chance to get it if it speaks the tourist's language. So it speaks it.

For the prevalence of German in Antwerp there seems to be less excuse. At present, of course, it is extremely unpopular, but in normal times there is almost as much German spoken in Antwerp as there is English and French, and vastly more than there is Flemish. Possibly the Antwerpian learned it merely because it is akin to Dutch, and therefore easy for them to master, possibly because they are born linguists and

An Enemy Of Mankind

With blasphemous audacity, the Kaiser and his sycophantic lieutenants, dare to place the responsibility for their most foul murders and fiendish cruelties upon God the All-Merciful. In all ages the Kings of the earth have claimed divine approval and bespoken divine aid for their actions in all the great crises of their nations and their dynasties. This is by no means the first time that, in the King's offence, the people died.

How it could enter the mind of mortal man that he had a divine mission to plunge every country in Europe into war, surpasses imagination. One of the Kaiser's dastardly lieutenants arrogantly declares that Germany can afford to sacrifice a million Germans to win this war. If there were all like this blow-hard, fiercer he could afford to lose the lot and be the better off for the loss, but the sacrifice would be wholesale murder none the less. It would involve also the slaughter of many thousands more, men from nearly every country, and from all the nations, the ambition and lust for power and universal domination of one blood thirsty, tyrant, and his no less sanguinary minded satraps.

The allies are fighting for principle, fighting for the liberty of the whole human race including those Christian Germans who believe in peace on earth and good-will towards men. The German militarism is fighting the battle of Anti-Christ. Had Wilhelm's ambition been national instead of personal, he would have been content to subjugate one nation at a time and force the people he enslaved to fight for the subjugation of other nations. But that process was too slow for the royal craven, brained egoist and in a moment of super-madness he defies the world.

There can be but one end to the struggle. Apart altogether from the question of the relative strength of armies; it is impossible to conceive of the clock of human progress being put back to such an extent as German victory would involve. The sacred principle of Liberty is affronted occasionally when in the most democratic country on earth, apologists are found—few in number, thank heaven—to apologize for and support the most atrocious and brutal despotism. But the tendency must be under present conditions for all the liberty-loving peoples of the world to get together and realize as Gilbert would have said "The enemy of one, the enemy of all."

The blood that has been poured out like water on Belgian soil, the blood shed and to be shed in Alsace-Lorraine in Germany and France, will not have been shed in vain if it makes the nations realize the vanity, the iniquity of war. For one sin, for bringing scandal and shame upon the religion we profess, by failing to apply the principles of that religion to one international relationship, we most righteously have deserved chastisement. And, as the Lord liveth, we are going to get that punishment, be it ever so victorious on land and sea. We can get victory and glory beyond compare, but Rachel will be weeping for her children and refusing to be comforted, because they are not. We shall do something about war, but do not let us forget the moral lessons of the war, which one may have for the taking.

As for the man whose insatiable ambition will be chiefly responsible for the blood and tears shed and for the ruin of German commerce which is already complete, we may safely leave him to the tender mercies of his chief victims, his own subjects. That they will drive him and his dynasty ignominiously into exile is tolerably certain. But whither can he go? Not into Belgium, a country, for him peopled with ghosts and phantoms may terrify him more, with living Belgians who will have cause to hate him with undying hatred. Not with Alsace-Lorraine (France or Russia). Like the first murderer we can imagine him saying: "My punishment is greater than I can bear. Behold thou has driven me out this day from the face of the earth and from thy face shall I be hid. I shall be a fugitive and a vagabond in the earth; and it shall come to pass that every one that findeth me shall slay me."

NEW LINES TRIED OUT. TORONTO Aug 21.—The Ontario Hydro commission last night successfully tried out the new power transmission lines to Windsor and Welland. The Windsor line is one of the longest in the world 225 miles. This line was built by the commission's own engineers and laborers. Energy to the extent of 500 horsepower was used in the tests. The full power will be on by Monday. The Welland line carries 18,000 horsepower.

DIRIGIBLES AT WORK. AMSTERDAM, Aug. 21.—Via London, Aug. 21.—Notable activity is evident among the German aircraft, which fly frequently over Holland. A Zeppelin, following the course of the Rhine, and equipped with strong searchlights, passed over Sevenaas today. Dutch soldiers shot at it and the dirigible disappeared over the German frontier. Another Zeppelin flew over Maastricht last night and followed the road to Leeren, afterwards disappearing. German aeroplanes also have been seen in several directions scouting over Holland.

TWO PRISONERS OF WAR ARRIVE IN NEW YORK

And the U. S. Government is Much Worried What to do With Them.

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—What shall be done with the two escaped prisoners of war Germans, who reached this port as stowaways in the United Fruit Steamer Almirante (British) raised a problem to-day for the solution of the Washington Government. They are now in the custody of immigration officials at Ellis Island, awaiting word from Washington as to their fate.

Formerly members of the Almirante's crew, the pair were put ashore at Kingston, Jamaica, with other British military authorities there and imprisoned. In some manner they escaped, boarded the Almirante again and stowed away. The Almirante's captain on the ship's arrival to-day turned them over to the immigration inspectors as "escaped prisoners." They are described as Frederick Ufenschuller and Frank Ibe.

Napanee Gave Forty Bulgarian Reservists a Send-off Last Night.

NAPANEE, Ont., Aug. 21.—A remarkable instance of patriotic fervor on the part of the people of this place occurred last night when they spontaneously entertained forty Bulgarian reservists to luncheon at the Paisley House. The foreign guests showed their high appreciation of British hospitality. National songs were sung and great enthusiasm displayed by all. The entertainment was prompted by the fact that these men, who are employed in railway construction left their work and came to the station to see the military trains passing and expressed their desire to go with them to fight for Great Britain. The incident has awakened the dormant patriotism of many.

MANUFACTURERS WILL ASSIST IN THE CRISIS

OTTAWA, Ont., Aug. 20.—E. G. Henderson, of Windsor, Ontario president of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, who is in Ottawa to see the government in connection with business of interest to all the members of the Association, said to-day that every Canadian manufacturer is going to do everything possible to keep as many as possible in employment during the time the war is in progress.

"You know that every manufacturer throughout the Dominion will do everything possible to keep as many of his employees working during the present crisis," said Mr. Henderson. "Our members are going to do this even if it means a sacrifice on their part. It is the duty of manufacturers to their country. In many cases it may not be possible to keep men employed on full time all along, but married men will be given the most consideration. The best way the general public can assist the manufacturer is to buy Canadian-made goods as much as possible."

Mr. Robert Hobson, president of the Hamilton Steel and Iron Company, who is also in the city, says that his firm is prepared to sell goods at a little below cost if necessary so that the purchase of their products will be made attractive. He looks for an improvement in the steel and iron business in Canada, owing to the production in Germany and other European countries being stopped to a large extent.

BIG WHEAT SHIPMENTS.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21.—More than one million bushels of American wheat are on their way to Switzerland in British bottoms, the shipment of three cargoes having been arranged by Dr. Charles Paul Hubscher, charge of the legation here. Arrangements have been made to allow the passage through France and Italy of foodstuffs intended for Switzerland. The legation has little fear that the cargoes will be taken by Great Britain, although she could do so provided payment were made. At the British embassy it was said England did not need more food stuffs than she was procuring.

Germans Polite, But They Are Ready To Avenge Any Refusal

LONDON, Aug. 21.—A remarkable chronological story of the stirring events on the frontier is presented by the diary of Miss Lydia Evans, an English school girl of 17, attending the convent school at Wourchen, near Vise, in Belgium. Following are excerpts from the diary:

Aug. 2.—All the people are furnishing cows, calves and horses and hay which they are obliged to send to the Belgian army at Liege. The first Prussian troops came into the village to-day.

Aug. 3.—More troops arriving. The Prussians slept in our convent, some in the park, and others on the beds in the recreation rooms. The Reverend Mother put everything at their disposal. They acted nicely, but gave the impression that if they were refused they would take more. We all went to bed at 10 o'clock but everybody got the alarm to dress a half an hour afterwards. We came down and found the place full of Germans who were exceedingly polite. They are magnificent. The meanest soldier is perfectly equipped, everything is perfectly new and they have splendid horses. They are like theatre soldiers, they are so perfect. They were awfully nice when I talked to them.

Aug. 4.—Between Monday and Tuesday there was a terrible fight between the Germans and the Belgians at Vise because the Belgians would not let the Germans pass to Liege. The Belgians blew up several bridges here all day but they were very polite. They always bow and salute. We hear a terrific noise at Vise, as if of a bombardment. A wounded man was brought to the convent.

Aug. 6.—A curate near here has been shot. The Germans are very nice if you give them what they want, but if they are refused the pistol comes out. Mother Therese was at the door when some soldiers asked her for a kettle. She refused and one nearly shot her.

Aug. 7.—A most fearful noise was heard at 2 o'clock. They say a fort was blown up. A German aeroplane passed over here yesterday. The soldiers are camping in the woods. There are seven wounded here and others have been taken to Aix-la-Chapelle.

Aug. 8.—Two women and two men have arrived from Liege. Those poor people witnessed awful sights when they crossed the field covered with dead. We have heard that Bernage is burned and that women and children have been hung. The Germans are furious at having lost such a number of men before even seeing the French.

Blow to Postal Company

ALTOONA, Pa., Aug. 22.—A decision handed down by the Supreme court in the case of the Postal Telegraph Company versus the City of Altoona, is of far reaching importance to Pennsylvania municipalities as it upholds the right to impose taxes upon the poles, mains, pipes, etc., of public utility corporations. The Postal Telegraph Company declared that ordinance imposing a tax upon poles and wires was unconstitutional and that the taxing power, so far as corporations are concerned, is retained for the exclusive benefit of commonwealth. Upon appeal to Blair county court the contention the company was not sustained. The Supreme court ruling sustains lower court and invests Pennsylvania municipalities with the right to collect taxes from their public utilities.

Favor $8.50 Minimum

DULUTH, Aug. 22.—The local committee of the Minimum Wage Commission has agreed on an $8.50 rate for experienced girl workers, mercantile establishments and factories. Learners will receive $5 and apprentices $6 a week. Organized workers and social workers, headed by E. McEwen, the well known unionist, fought for $9 a week minimum for regular workers and maintained that as the lowest possible rate for experienced girl workers. The commission was $8.50 a week, no lower wage was respectable. McEwen stood uncompromisingly for the minimum, arguing that this was not sufficient, but that he would accept the lowest figure. He said that there were more than the bare necessities of life to be considered—that a girl's health was impaired by constant work during the tender period of her life and that not only her health but of the future generations might be impaired. The matter of sickness, ability and many other elements should be taken into consideration deciding upon what a girl's experience were.

DULUTH, Aug. 22.—The local sub-committee of the Minimum Wage Commission has agreed on an $8.50 rate for experienced girl workers in mercantile establishments and factories. Learners will receive $5 and apprentices $6 a week. Organized workers and social workers, headed by W. E. McEwen, the well known trade unionist, fought for a week minimum for regular workers and maintained that as the lowest possible cost of living for a girl as reported by the commission was $8.60 a week, no lower wage was respectable. McEwen stood uncompromisingly for the minimum, arguing that this was not sufficient, but that he would accept it as the lowest figure. He said that there were more than the bare necessities of life to be considered—that a girl's health was impaired by constant work during the tender period of her life, and that not only her health but that of the future generations might be impaired. The matter of sickness, disability and many other elements should be taken into consideration in deciding upon what a girl's expenses were.

The Women's Share of War

Where the Chief Horrors of War Will Fall.
For the real and lasting horrors of war one must not search upon the battlefield with its piled up heaps of dead and maimed, of slaughtered men and animals, that indeed itself is hell enough, but not for a moment to be composed to the infinitely greater evils that follow in its trail. No, it is not upon the battlefield, but in the homes of the thousands slain that one must look to realize what war really is and means, for, after all, it is upon the women of the nation first and then upon the children that the main toll and burden of war must fall.
To the soldier whose blood is fired with so-called patriotic ardor, and who in battle loses all sense of fear in the frenzy of the moment, death comes sure and swift or at largest to the great majority after hours of intense agony while exposed to the sun and heat on the field of slaughter.
To the mothers and the wives there is no music or delusive glory, nothing to quicken the blood to predeful effort, but the long and wretched hours of weary, hopeless waiting for the fathers and husbands at the front who will never return, and whose place will forever be vacant in the little family circle they were wont to fill in the happy days now gone forever, who can tell the hours of longing, the mortal dread from day to day for the breadwinners who no more on earth will clasp their loved ones in their arms or gaze in the faces of their dear ones, and then the long and painful following dreary years, the thousands of heart sick mothers battling in a cold, cold world, to sustain and rear up their little ones, the babies and innocents who will languish and pine for the bare necessities of life.

If posterity could but once be fully awakened to a realization of the infamy and iniquity of war, both men and women, every lover of the race who believes that God hath made of one blood all the nations of men who dwell upon the earth, they would rise in the majesty of their might and righteous indignation and forever banish the accursed thing from a world created that men might dwell in brotherhood and amity together, each working for the common weal and welfare.

Now there is no real glory to war, its glamor and tensity is a horrible thing to lure men on to destruction and fill with blood and misery a world fair enough to be a veritable heaven. Let those who glory war weigh up the tears and groans and sighs and mortal agony attendant upon its hollow pump, its myriad dead, its widows and its fatherless, its unmarked and unknown graves, and its millions gone and missing, never to return, and then reconcile it with the teachings of that prince of peace in whose name war is proclaimed, while men engage in the slaughter of their fellows.
It were well to remember that these things are fearful realities and not mere empty fancies, and the favored few, the death and misery dealt out to the myriad thousands falls with fourfold burdens on those who are least able to bear it, the women and the little ones.

Samuel Gompers On the War

"War, with its supposed pomp and heroism, is inaugurated by the Austrian royalty to divert the people's attention from their own ills and their honest, intelligent course to remedy these ills," declared President Samuel Gompers, of the American Federation of Labor, in an interview on European affairs, published last week in a Washington newspaper, which says:
"Mr. Gompers five years ago spent five months in European countries investigating labor conditions, and personal observation of Austria-Hungary conditions form the foundation for his indictment to-day of Austria.
"Congress is criticized by the labor leader for its failure to second the proposal of the British Government in declaring for a 'naval holiday' and he expresses doubt as to the course the masses of people in Europe will pursue in regard to 'this unnatural, unjustified and unholy war.'
"Discussing labor conditions in Austria, Mr. Gompers said that women were employed there as hod-carriers, and in numerous other menial tasks at a wage ranging from 30 to 40 cents a day. He said their home life was a kennel-like existence, numerous families being huddled together in small houses.
"War under any circumstances is to be deplored," said Mr. Gompers. "A war begun by Austria for the supposed causes ought to be condemned—condemned by every liberty-loving and humanitarian people the world over.
"For the glory and the aggrandizement of an effete royalty, men are to be arrayed against each other, to kill men, to create countless widows and orphans, to destroy property and entail increased taxation upon the masses of the people, even after the war shall have ended.

"In Austria, as in all Europe, the masses of the people are bent upon dealing with constructive movements for the material, economic, political and social improvement. Under royal prerogative, war, with its supposed pomp and heroism, is inaugurated to divert the people's attention from their own ills and their own honest, intelligent course.

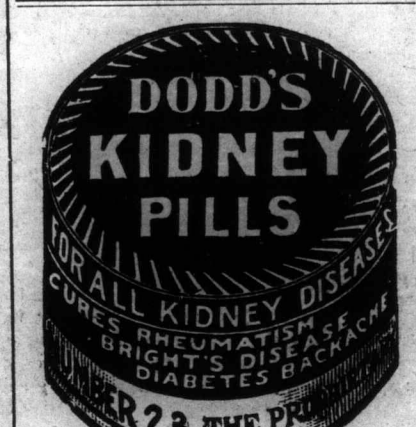

Economy of Good Wages

Does the $2-a-day man, when lifted to a $5 wage, become a better worker or does the lift go to his head and spoil him?
You remember how, when Henry Ford announced his big division of profits, hundreds said it would simply make his men reckless and extravagant.
Those who said that were mostly employers, fearful that their own workers would become discontented. Yet some may have said it in good faith, not knowing much about psychology.

Well, here's the answer:
John R. Lee, production manager of the Ford plant, says that already the efficiency of the Ford working force has increased 44 per cent. since the new deal went into effect.
Getting more, the men try to do more; their heart as well as their brain is in their work.
This may not come true in every instance, for human nature can fall pretty low. But the Ford experiment has gone on long enough to draw an average. Lee's testimony would seem to be conclusive.
Highly-paid labor, when well directed, is the cheapest labor because it does the best and most work.

A Very Great Housing Project

Among Canadians generally a great deal of misconception exists as to the progressive tendencies of more than one of the South American commonwealths, and it may be a matter of surprise to some who are wont to look upon them as semi-barbarous communities whose main activities have to do mainly with earthquakes and revolutions to learn that in some particulars, at least, they are far in advance of Canada and the United States.
In the Argentine Republic, for instance, with a climate in many respects approximating that of Canada, and, moreover, a country that is rapidly developing and pushing its trade successfully into all parts of the civilized world the city of Buenos Ayres has recently appropriated twenty-seven million dollars to build homes for working people.
These homes are to be erected in healthy and desirable neighborhoods, will be constructed of the best material, be attractive in appearance, and both comfortable and sanitary inside. They will be fitted up with all the latest modern conveniences to be found in any other city in the world.
These buildings will be sold to the workers on the instalment plan, at actual cost, plus the interest incurred by the city in raising the necessary funds to build and equip them, and will thus enable the industrial masses to eventually own their own homes at a less cost than they now pay out in rent.
The civic authorities claim that these houses can be sold far more rapidly than it will be possible to build them. It will add to the beauty of the big municipality, increase the value of land, provide employment for the workless and give an inducement to rise in the social scale. Then thousands of these model houses will be started immediately, and as soon as completed will be followed by others.
Hon. Dr. Beland, M.P., for Beauce, Quebec, and former Postmaster-General in the Laurier Cabinet, is serving with the Belgian forces at the front in the Medical Corps.

Facing the Issue

And after all is said and done, it is the working class that will be called upon to bear the brunt of the battle and the stress of war; the effect of which will be felt over the whole civilized world. Theirs will be the tribute of blood and suffering in the countries whose soil is to be deluged in blood, and even in the nations immune from participation in the struggle the price of commodities and the necessities of life will go up in price. At a time of severe industrial depression when thousands of willing hands are unemployed in every section of the globe, one result of the war will be to enormously increase the price of bread and meat and foodstuffs and other things upon which men and women must depend for sustenance. Men and nations are now so interdependent upon one another in this age of the world's development that an injury to one must inevitably react upon the whole. Even in this Western Hemisphere, Canada, where no fear of actual hostilities taking place upon its soil is entertained, and in the United States, altogether outside involvement in the struggle, the effects of the giant conflict now on will be severely felt by the working class. War ever presses most inhumanly upon the poor, the workers of the wide world over, who have no cause of quarrel with each other, and no enemy in their hearts towards their brethren of another race. Then why war at all?

What Does it Menace?

There are those in this enlightened world who speak of the menace of unionism. What does it menace? Why do men join unions? Is it because unionism is a trust, or is it because it is a necessity?
The union man is called upon to make sacrifices. He is not making for himself a monopoly. Every benefit he secures he shares with others.
Wherein is unionism a menace?
Does it menace the interests of labor? Dissolve all the unions of the country, and what would be the effect on labor? Would the standard of labor be improved or injured? Every increase of wages, and every reduction of hours, and every safeguard of the worker, is due to organized effort.
Does it menace the home? It aims to keep the mother in the home and when woman must work to place her on a level with the man; to restore the child to the school out of the sweat shop and the street; to restore to the head of the home the best possible wages, hours and conditions of labor; to provide for the family in case of sickness, accident, unemployment or death.
Does it menace society? What is more needed to-day than the social spirit? The union is the greatest existing generator of the social spirit. It teaches its members to stand together—to look not alone to their own affairs, but each to the affairs of others.
Unionism is a menace to nothing except the things that are a menace to human happiness and advancement.—Los Angeles Citizen.

Secret History

By George Matthew Adams
Would that the Secret History of the world might be written—that History that has to do with men and women who work and decently strive that not only both ends may meet, but that all ends may meet.
The great things in every town are done by those who hold within their breast no hope for reward excepting the glory that is sure to follow the consciousness of service worked out to the best of one's ability.
Visible History is inspiring, but Secret History, it revealed as it is, would positively and divinely enable.
There must always be Leaders, but no Leaders would be needed if there were no Followers.
The fact that the record of your deeds are not pasted upon billboards, and recorded in newspapers and books should hold no envious thorn anywhere in your conscious flesh. The fact that you daily make life more livable and less arduous is something to be happy over. For it is a part of the Secret History of the world that is being recorded, though maybe not published.
The mass of Humanity is what counts.
You will do better work and be a better, safer, sounder man and woman if you will but daily strive to make your works tell in the Secret History that is a heritage to all folks of all climes and for all ages.

RUSSIAN ARMY IS HUGE AND WEIRD ENIGMA, HE SAYS

Numbers and Experience are There, But of Expertise He is Doubtful.

LONDON, August 21.—The question of the military strength of Russia is being debated in many circles in Europe just now. The following article which appears in The Manchester Guardian, is by a military correspondent, who is also a well known war correspondent, and has personal knowledge of the Russian army.
"All eyes in Europe are turned toward the army of the 'Czar.' It is the most gigantic military machine in the world, and no one really knows its fighting value. On its peace strength it disposes of a million of men between the German and Austrian borders in Europe and the seaboard of Vladivostok in Manchuria. If mobilized in its entirety it would quadruple the astounding numbers of its peace strength.
"We are not, however, concerned with this vast military machine in its entirety. The European army corps of Russia from the point of numbers are considerable enough to give pause to both Germany and Austria if their efficiency is equal to their ponderous numbers.
"Russian military efficiency has always presented an enigma to the students of contemporary military history. By all the laws of production the Russian army in Europe should be as formidable as any trained force in the world. It has the crowning advantage of experience in modern war. It is accepted by military students that after a protracted campaign which has not been decided by exhaustion the beaten army emerges from the struggle with a knowledge and experience that is almost superior to that of its successful enemy.
"The question is: Was the Slavonic temperament of such a quality that it would profit by the lessons learned is one of the questions to which the students have never yet been able to give a confident answer. Again is the army recruited as it is from nearly a dozen races; many of which are secretly hostile to the central government, a trustworthy instrument? Again the students are at fault.
"The historical record of the Russian army does not give one great hope that the Muscovite, with all his numbers, will ever be able successfully to initiate a campaign against an enemy with whom overwhelming numbers are not the chief essential to success. Russia may mobilize her armies in their millions, but has she the staff accommodation to manipulate them. Judging by the story of her failure against the Japanese in Manchuria one would say that the Russian officer of to-day is little better than he was a generation ago.

"The Slav mind, quick though it may be to make plans and estimates, is slow in interpreting them into action and movement. This seems to be a congenial fault and it discounts much of the experience which the rude shocks of Liau-Yang, the Shaho and Mukden brought to an army which at that time military students believed to be capable of all requirements.
"The main asset of the Russian army is Ivan Ivanoff, the Russian soldier in the circumstances of his lot, he is the best material for the manufacture of the soldier that has to die in the world. Unimaginative, he is tenacious and fearless; uneducated he is devoid of class ambitions and sensitiveness; docile, he may be headed to death or led to victory with equal lack of interest in the event in which he is but an animate pawn. We speak of course of the Russian moujik and not of the Poles and Jews that are serving against their will. It is not likely that the Russians will experiment with Polish troops in Galicia or East Prussia.

Paris Sends Many to Front

PARIS, Aug. 21.—Up to the present the following men from Paris have offered their services in the war, and have been accepted, being attached to the following units: with the Thirty-Eighth Dufferin Rifles, A. E. Cullum, for seven years a member of the Scots Guards, and served two and one half years in the Boer war; William Mears, ex-member of the First Royal Sussex Regiment; A. D. Fraser, South African veteran; Sinclair Knill, ex-color sergeant of the Twenty-fifth Regiment; Napoleon Lahn, and J. H. Murray. With the Twelfth York Rangers, Lieut. Harry Watson, of the Twenty-fifth Brant Dragons; Richard Thomson, Leslie Cook, Claude Lawton, Harry Greentree. With the Army Medical Corps, Hamilton, G. E. Coult and George Inksater. With the Thirty-Seventh Haldimand Rifles, William Turbull and William Uren. With the Third Field Troops of Engineers, Hamilton Harper, Q.U.A. With the Seventy-Seventh Regiment, Dundas, John Knill. With Fifth Field Troops of Engineers, Kingston, Harold Finmore, Major Duncan Stewart, who has gone to the front, is also a former Paris boy and is a brother of Mrs. Henry S. Naus.

Are Well Equipped

"These distinctions, however, do not add to the simplicity of the labors of the General Staff, nor do they make for the efficiency of the railway services upon which will depend any success that Russia could hope for in operations against her German enemies.
"In material the Russians are well equipped. Though material of war goes a long way, yet it is not the least weight in the balance of success or failure in war. In Manchuria the Russians had the better material in the way of artillery, cavalry and engineering equipment. It was not the material nor the men behind the material that failed. It was the direct mind.
"Nothing will make the writer believe that the Russian officers, taken en masse are good. Those who have graduated through the war schools are often brilliant theorists, but little more. Those that have not graduated—and this is the huge majority—have, it is true, a little more education than the men they command, but about the same limit of imagination. It is a case of the blind leading the blind.
"The writer's opinion is that the General Staff in St. Petersburg

"The Ghost of the Past," New York's King of Pickpockets, Tells of His Long Criminal Career

OLD JOHN HANLEY, a pickpocket since he was twenty years old, and now entering his seventy-second year, was arrested in New York a few days ago as he was snatching a purse from a young woman's muff. Detective Casazza caught him red-handed. He was tried, convicted and sentenced to ten months in the penitentiary. After his conviction Hanley consented to write his life story for this paper.

He has been dubbed "The Ghost of the Past" by the New York detectives, who upon seeing him at Headquarters on the day of his arrest, exclaimed, "Here's a ghost of the past. We thought old John had been dead for twenty years."

By John Hanley.

WHEN I turned crooked fifty-two years ago pickpockets were gentlemen. Today they are moll buzzers.

A moll buzzer is the lowest type of thief. He steals from women, opens handbags and takes their purses or anything else that looks like a square meal. I fell for this game a few weeks ago and Frank Cassasa, the slickest detective in New York city, picked me up. Result is I am settled for ten months. Thank Heaven, I don't have to go back to Dannemora. I owe them fifteen months yet and it's always humiliating to a crook to return to a prison within a few weeks of his liberation. But I intend to turn straight when I come out and Frank Cassasa has promised to get me a job. It's me for the straight and narrow from now on.

I have been crooked now for fifty-two years. That's a long time, and when I realize that most of that time has been spent behind the bars it seems longer than it really is.

How did I turn crooked? Just like many another young fellow in New York city—by coming in contact with crooks, of course. My parents came from Ireland. I was born and raised in New York in the old Eighth ward. When I started out to earn a living I got a job in Reilly's saloon. That was over in Nineteenth street, near Third avenue. I was making $18 a week, and that with my rake off—for in those days all bar-keepers felt entitled to their pickings—I was doing pretty well for a young fellow.

Thrown with Thieves.

This saloon, you see, was the hang-out for a lot of fly fellows. At first I didn't bother my head about where they were getting their money. All I knew was that they were spending lots of it, and of course, it meant more for me and more for the boss. There wasn't a day's receipts the more room there was for me to grab off my change without arousing suspicion that I was getting it at all.

These fellows would blow in of a morning and after treating everybody in sight they would remark they were nearly all in and then swing me for a round or two. Maybe they would borrow a little change. Then they would leave, but in an hour or two they would return and always with wads that would make a workman turn green with envy as he gazed at them.

After they had come to know me well enough to confide in me they told me what their game was. They were pickpockets, and, as they expressed it, it was like picking money from trees. All they had to do, it seemed to me, was to leave the saloon, take their stand on the corner and all that passed would take out their pocketbooks, wallets, watches, sparklers or wads and chuck them at their heads. Sometimes when this mob returned to the saloon after an absence of an hour or two they would split up a thousand dollars.

It didn't take me long to figure that it was easier to shake a guy down for his wad than it was to shake drinks. I could tap the cash drawer for ten a day and get away with it, but these fellows could pick up a thousand in an hour, and sometimes a single round of drinks would come to twenty dollars.

Learned to Pick Pockets.

When business was slack these pickpockets showed me how the trick was turned. I was a likely young chap and it didn't take me long to learn. My eye was quick and my hand quicker. In two weeks I could lift a watch or a wallet or a wad for that matter as handily as any one of them.

I was coming out of a theatre one night when a man in evening clothes and a young woman hanging to his arm brushed past me. I don't know what prompted me, but in a flash it came over me that here was the chance to try out my skill. I hovered close to this big, fine looking chap and when I moved away I had his watch as well as his wallet. I think he had to borrow supper money from the girl that night, for when I counted what was in the wallet I found my night's test of skill had netted me a watch and fob worth $300 and a wallet with $210 in crisp, new bank notes.

As easy as this came you might suppose that the boss had to open up the saloon himself the next morning. I never showed. But I did make it my hang-out for a long time after that because I wanted to train with the mob that had showed me how to make the easy coin.

I was twenty years old when that first bank roll dropped into my hands. From then on for six months, at least, it was something like that every night. I worked the theatre crowds and they never failed to pay me for my trouble. Sometimes it was a hundred, sometimes more. I lived on the fat of the land, played the horses, played faro and any other game of chance that happened to be running. I was a desperate gambler from the start, and, strange to say, never drank a drop of intoxicating liquor in my life, never smoked and never chewed tobacco.

Sooner or later every pickpocket comes to grief. Less than a year after I quit my job in Reilly's saloon I was picked up for stealing a watch. They had the goods on me, too, because they caught me before I had time to pass the time-piece to a friend.

Luck was with me. The "bull" that got me was open to a proposition, and when I had passed him a pretty good bunch of coin he didn't make out a very strong case against me when I came up for trial, and I was discharged. I was muzzed and that photograph is at Police Headquarters now.

The First Prison Sentence.
I got what was coming to me a little later, though, and luck wasn't with me. Again I was caught red handed and I went away for a six months' stretch. That set me thinking. Maybe it was better to tend bar with an eighteen-a-week salary and a ten-day rake off than to walk around with several hundred in my kick and every detective in the city liable to pick me up and frame me at a second's notice.

I knew they were watching me, so I decided to beat them at their own game. I made it a point to mingle in crowds where the "bulls" were watching, but to refrain from working. There wasn't money enough in the world at that time to tempt me. I wanted them to see that I had turned straight. Meanwhile I was training with several second story and "con" men and I knew it would be only a question of time before we could put one over that would mean real money. And we did. The job we pulled hasn't been run to cover yet. There was a big squeal about it and the newspapers were full of it. My share of the stuff was upward of $5,000, so you know it was a man's size job. The fellows who worked with me are dead now and it would not do any good for me to peach on them. They were live ones, though, and were worth lots of money to me at different times.

Pickpockets in the old days worked differently from now. Then a man worked alone. What he got was his own. Now the police are so shrewd and the "bulls" so numerous that the pickpocket has little chance unless he works with a mob, and in a hurry at that. They usually operate in squads of four. It takes four men to get a wallet when a man wears his overcoat buttoned up tight. I have gone into a man's hip pocket without any one to help me when he wore an ulster that trailed his heels and was buttoned to his chin.

I am an Irishman. Come from good old Roscommon stock. Nearly all the "dips" and pickpockets to-day hail from the east side. They are aliens and have no patriotism. They don't care who they rob, and they are rough in their work. There is no finish to their operations. In our young days we were looked upon as artists. They are as clumsy as street pavers now. I don't mean to say that I managed to escape arrest and conviction, too. Lord knows I have had my fill of prisons. In all, I guess I have been fifteen years behind the bars. But considering the money I got and the chances I ran I was extremely lucky. Here I am, seventy-two years old and just sentenced to ten months in the penitentiary today. I should have gotten a life term. Any crook clumsy enough to be caught opening a woman's handbag deserves to be hanged.

I was carrying for a Brooklyn friend. I got eleven months and a fine of $200. I paid the fine, served a month, and was turned out.

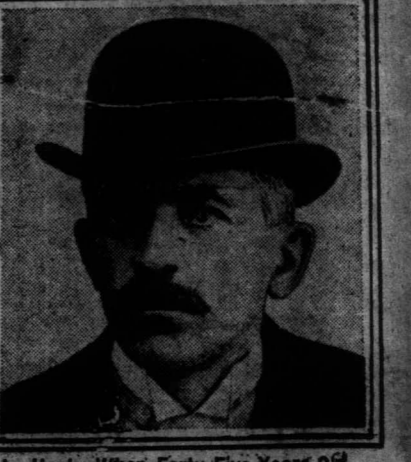

I pulled a little trick in New Haven once and was sent away for a short time. When I got back to New York it was the year of the big blizzard. I noticed a fine looking man who looked like ready money. I was broke and I figured he had more than he knew what to do with even though he wore the garb of a clerkman. I followed him for an hour before I could get him right, but when I left him I had his wallet and its $70. I Caught in the Act.

Somehow the pickpockets that are working New York now don't realize that their faces will become so familiar to every detective in the city that sooner or later they will be arrested as suspicious persons every time they show their faces on the street. In my young days I would drop into New York, make my killing and then go lose myself. I would go to some other town and work it and then move on to the next. In that way the "bulls" never got next to me. Sometimes I wouldn't go any further away than Newark or Jersey City, but in some event I wasn't seen hanging around Broadway.

I remember once that a young man entering a bank attracted my attention. He was a fine looking young chap and I thought I would stick around and look him over when he came out. He reminded me of a pal I had when I was a boy. When he sauntered out to the street I noticed his inside coat pocket had a suspicious bulge to it, so I decided I would give him the "once over." Unfortunately for me two of my old comrades came along and, seeing my game, they declared themselves in on the game. To make a long story short, I sneaked the wallet and when we counted the roll there was $1,500 in banknotes in it. I took a thousand and let them fight over the division of the balance. One of them had a bad record anyhow. He flashed his roll in a saloon that night and a "bull" collared him. He had an awful streak of yellow, that fellow, for he squealed, and an hour later I was pinched in a poolroom. Fortunately, I had a thousand and let them fight over the division of the balance.
