OUR MORNING STROLL.

Thursday morning opened under a heavy cloud of mist, and gave evidence of not being a day propitious for a joyful celebration. The rain storm which had lasted for two days had left the streets wet and muddy, while the sky, dull and leaden, threatened another deluge. Soldiers in gold lace uniforms, calculated to make a duke sick with envy, fidgeted to and fro from an early hour; silver haired veterans of the wars, and hosts of others of every creed and nationality under the sun, all seemed bent on doing their share to make the ceremonies of the day as imposing as possible. We, too, with the rest, were anxious to see all the sights, and consequently at a very early hour were on the streets ready to take in all that our pair of eyes could bring within the optical vision. As early as 10 a. m. the different companies and organizations who intended taking part in the big procession were astir and hastily making for their respective headquarters. The head of the big procession was placed on 5th Avenue and the estimate given by the leading newspapers was that over 30,000 persons marched in it, and that upwards of 100,000 strangers were in the city to witness the celebration. All the ships of war, including the French squadron, were ranged off the Battery, and when we reached the foot of Madison Square the sight was grand beyond description. As far as the eye could reach every available inch of ground was occupied. A couple of stands were erected near the entrance of the square. These were occupied by the President of the U. S. and members of his Cabinet, Bartholdi, DeLeseps, and a host of other distinguished persons. The procession of the military and the various organizations was so extensive that when they had got about half past the reviewing stand, the President and the invited guests hastily entered their carriages and were driven to the wharf, where they were at once conveyed on board the steamer and left for the head of the line of ships taking part in the naval procession. Every available water craft in New York and Brooklyn was pressed into service. Admission on board was by ticket, and long before the hour for starting all the tickets were sold, and not one-tenth of the people who wanted to go out to see the unveiling could be carried. It was nearly 1 p. m. before the signal was given for the ships to get under way, and as the long line started it was a sight that will be seen only once in a life time, and those who were fortunate enough to behold it will not be likely to soon forget it. It was a great day for Liberty, France, Bartholdi and the United States, and the round million of people who witnessed the ceremony, or took part in the celebration, will hold it in life-long recollection. Probably no such sight was ever witnessed in the world before, and it will doubtless be ages before the like will occur again.

RAISING THE LAST PIECE INTO PLACE.

Over at Bedloe's Island the finishing touches to the statue had been given the night before, and all was in readiness for the final inauguration. As the hour approached for the closing scene the mist became denser, and just as the ships started towards the island the rain commenced to fall. Standing on the wharf nearest the island the statue could be but dimly seen through the fog and mist. As the line of ships approached the island a circle was formed and a space left for the passage of the steamer conveying the President and invited guests. On landing the party took up a position at the foot of the pedestal and the Count D. Leseps, on behalf of the people and nation of France, presented the statue to the people and Government of the United States. Senator Evarts delivered an oration in reply, of which the following is the closing paragraph:—"Today, in the name of the citizens of the United States who have completed the pedestal, and of the voluntary committees who have executed the will of their fellow citizens, I declare in your presence, and in the presence of these distinguished guests from France and of the august assemblage of the honorable and honored men of our land and of this countless multitude, that this pedestal and the united work of the two Republics is completed, and surrendered to the care and keeping of the Government and the people of the United States."

At the conclusion of Mr. Evarts' speech, at a given signal, the President pulled a cord which removed the tri-color of France from the face of the statue. This was the signal for a grand naval and military salute from the guns and the fleets, the forts in the harbor and the regiments stationed on the wharves of the city. Added to this was the screeching of the engines on water and shore, all creating a din, never before heard or even thought possible.

The following are the dimensions of the statue:—
Height from base to torch..... Ft. In. 151 1
Foundation of pedestal to torch..... 305 6

The statue weighs 450,000 pounds or 225 tons.
The bronze alone weighs 200,000 pounds.
Forty persons can stand comfortably in the head, and the torch will hold twelve people.

SOLEING LIBERTY'S SHOE.

The total number of steps in the temporary stair-case, which leads from the base of the foundation to the top of the torch, is 493. From the ground to the top of the pedestal, 195 steps. The number of steps in the statue, from the pedestal to the head, is 154, and the ladder leading up to the torch has 64 rungs.
The electric lights and plant which will enable the bronze goddess to illuminate the horizon literally and the world figuratively are furnished by the American Electrical Manufacturing Company.

The island on which is placed this immense structure, comprises about twelve and a half acres of low rocky ground, which is nearly all covered with the foundations and abutments. On Saturday afternoon we boarded a tug in company with several newspaper representatives and took a sail over to, and around the island. No person excepting those engaged in the works were allowed to land, but we got a good view of the surroundings from the deck of the steamer. This noble colossus is the largest in the world. Its stupendous size and grand proportions have to be seen to be appreciated; pictures or cuts can convey but a faint idea of the immensity of the whole structure, but some idea may be gained of its size when we say that while in close proximity to the island one of the largest ocean steamships passed within a short distance and the topmast did not reach to the top of the pedestal, and when we consider that the torch is placed 350 feet above the water, we can even then form but a faint idea of its tremendous height. The torch will contain 8 lamps of 6,000 candle power each, and the light will be thrown directly outward and upward, the light shining out through a circular band of glass. At the foot of the statue are also placed a number of lamps of 6,000 candle power each.

We have only space for a brief account of the history of the immense statue, which was handed over to the people of the United States on the 28th inst. The statue was designed by M. Frederic Auguste Bartholdi. The birth of the project was at a banquet held at the Hotel DeLouve, Paris, on Nov. 6, 1875. From that time until the opening of the Philadelphia exposition, Bartholdi worked incessantly on his model and to give the world an idea of the magnitude of the proposed statue, he had the right arm and hand completed and placed on the grounds at the Centennial exhibition. We had the pleasure of standing on the inside of this part of the statue while at the Centennial. This part was afterwards placed for a short time on a pedestal in Madison Square, New York, and in 1878 the head of the statue was completed and exhibited at the Paris Exposition. On October 24th, 1881, all the parts of the statue were ready to be put together, and on that day the United States Minister to France, drove home the first rivet in the foot of the statue. In June, 1885, the statue, packed in 210 cases, left the shores of France for Bedloe's Island, at the entrance of New York Harbor. The work of putting the statue together was commenced in May last, and on the 28th Oct. was finally handed over to the people of the United States.

PERSONAL COLUMN.

Our friends will greatly oblige by communicating reliable items for this column.

J. G. Kavanagh, Gananoque, was in town on Wednesday.

J. C. Stafford, of Lyndhurst, was in town last Wednesday.

Miss Koyle, of Brockville, is the guest of Mrs. Dr. Cornell, of this village.

F. L. Kincaid, and Deputy Sheriff Robinson, of Brockville, were in town last week.

Harry Denent, son of Walter Denent, Esq., of Delta, has returned home after a two years' stay in the far west.

Fred Row, of the Times' staff, and J. Burniston, and W. Godkin, of Brockville, paid us a flying visit last Wednesday.

Henry S. Stafford, formerly of Lansdowne, now city editor of the Montreal Gazette, is now, with his family, on a visit to his mother, Mrs. Jas. Kilbourn, of this town.

We regret to learn that the Rev. W. E. Walshe, who for the past three years has been pastor of the Roman Catholic parish of Ballycahone, where he has made a host of friends among all denominations, has been appointed by the bishop of the diocese of Frankford, a village near Belleville. We understand he leaves this week for his new field of labor, but as yet the name of his successor has not reached us.

The change from Ballycahone to Frankford is an advancement for Father Walshe, but we question if he will find in his new field of labor any warmer friends than he possesses in his old parish.

Singers and public speakers will find perfect relief from all throat difficulties in the use of West's Cough Syrup. A balloon of colossal dimensions, and said to be capable of being guided at will, has been for some time in course of construction in Berlin. The balloon is 500 feet in length and 50 feet in diameter. The total weight is about 49,000 pounds, the envelope and netting alone weighing 10,000 pounds. The propelling machinery consists of two steam engines of 50-horse power each, and the entire cost is estimated £6,000.
Do not neglect a cold or cough, as it frequently results in consumption. You will find a never-failing remedy in West's Cough Syrup. All druggists.

THE END OF THE TRAGEDY.

A MAGISTRATE'S COURT IMPOSES A FINE UPON THE CARROLL BROTHERS.

The two Carroll brothers who were a short time ago acquitted on the charge of murdering Albertus L. Carr, and Stevens, at Delta, on the 27th ult., were up before Justices Bell, Elliott and Carrol, at Delta, on the 27th ult., charged with malicious injury to the property of Althure Day, whose house was wrecked and property thrown out on the road on the night of the shooting. Much interest in the trial was manifested, and the court room was crowded with spectators.

A large number of witnesses were examined, whose evidence was much the same as that given at the inquest. After consultation, the magistrates decided to adjourn the case for a week, in order to obtain legal advice on some points of law which were not quite clear to them.

On Wednesday last the court resumed, when the Carrolls, barrister, of Brockville. No new evidence being offered, Mr. Judd, on behalf of the Carrolls, admitted the charge, and the defendants were ordered to pay damages to the amount of $10 each and the costs of court.

Justice Bell, in giving judgment, said that the previous good character of the Carroll brothers had a great deal to do with the lightness of the penalty. He hoped that the tragic ending of their midnight frolic would be a warning to the defendants for the rest of their lives.

Justice Elliott said that he was the magistrate who took the information of the principal witness, before the inquest. His opinion then was, and he had not changed it since, that the shooting was purely accidental, and that the Carrolls had no intention of committing any other act than that of putting Mrs. Day's goods into the road. This in itself was unlawful, and he trusted that the Carrolls would profit by the lesson they had received.

Mr. Judd said that the defendants were perfectly satisfied with the judgment, and felt keenly the tragic ending of the affair. They had got a lesson they would never forget, and hoped, by good conduct in the future, to in a measure atone for their participation in what was to all concerned a sad and serious circumstance.

CORRESPONDENCE.

To the Reporter:
Dear Sir,—Our Union meets every week for consultation and although we cannot say that the Scott Act is as we want it, yet we are pleased to know it is doing its work of extermination. True, since the Scott Act came in force many of the low, base and degraded are induced to sell intoxicating liquors, but many of them are readily brought to justice, and after paying the penalty of the law they gladly refrain. One, Mr. W. C. Hayes, a farmer, has just been brought to justice and compelled to pay a fine of $50 and costs. This is a warning, and we think, will to a great degree, prevent others from taking such steps as he has been taking.

Also a Mr. Holmes, a young man from Brockville, came to our village with a jug, but as keen eyes were upon his track he was quickly "juggled" to the extent of $50 and costs; but he being unable to pay the fine was committed to jail. Being in the hands of the anti party, however, he was allowed to escape, our temperance constable being absent. We are very sorry to hear of other young men trying the same game. Our village landlords have in a quiet way been disposing of the poisonous draught, but one of them having met Mr. Deacon to his home a wiser, and as we supposed, a poorer man, but having enough supporters in Farmersville and vicinity, they paid his fine, leaving a balance of enough to more than pay another fine should he break the law again. Can we expect the Scott Act to prosper under these circumstances. The law is all right were it properly enforced. What we want is a prohibitory law, and we trust that is what we will have after the next election. Let Prohibition be the platform; and every woman in the land "do her duty," and it will be the platform. Now is the time. It must soon be done, or otherwise postponed for another four years. Let every Union and Scott Act supporter be at work with renewed energy. Buckle on the armour of Prohibition; send men to represent us who will stand by the right and who will boldly represent the right in every place, whether it be at his home, in society, on the platform, or in Parliament. Let it be nothing short of Prohibition, and the violation of that law a criminal offence.

Our women got excited
It reached a dreadful pitch;

SCOTT'S AG. NOTES.

What is being Done in Counties where the Act is in Force.

Violators of the Scott Act in Hulton county have been experiencing a great deal of trouble of late.

The Kingston News says that the refusal of constables to act, on account of intimidation, has practically demoralized the Scott Act in Renfrew county.

Since the 1st of May, Inspector Phillips, Brockville and S. Leeds, has had 55 cases for infraction of the Scott Act; as 80 convictions were secured, the revenue from fines is $1,550.

Mr. J. Deacon, police magistrate of Brockville, paid into the hands of the county treasurer last week the sum of $845, the amount of fines paid for the violation of the Scott Act, since May 1st.

The attempt of the friends of the Scott Act to break the dominion of whiskey in Moncton, N. B., is causing intense excitement. Twenty convictions hang over the heads of the liquor dealers. On appeal, these were confirmed by the Supreme Court, but the liquor men openly defy the law, and threaten to carry the cases to the Privy Council in England.

At Perth last week John Wilson and Isaac Grant, the leading hotel-keepers of the town, were arraigned before Police Magistrate Allan, charged with violating the Scott Act. Several of the principal business men of the town were subpoenaed as witnesses, and considerable interest centered in the cases. When they were called, however, both pleaded guilty and were each fined $50 and costs. Several other prosecutions are in progress.

The following extract from the presentation of the grand jury of the county of Lanark speaks for itself. "In your lordship's address to the grand jury, reference was made to beneficial effects that resulted from the enforcement of the Scott Act by abolishing to a large extent the treating system, thus removing temptation out of the way. The grand jury entirely agree with your lordship's remarks, but at the same time we are aware that it is a very difficult matter to enforce the Act in the present state of the law, it being particularly hard to get evidence to convict those who are guilty of violating the law, and we strongly recommend that such amendments or additions to it should be made as necessary for the more strict enforcement of the Act. Notwithstanding as to how we may differ as to the advisability of the Act, now that it is a law of the land, we wish to see it thoroughly enforced."

At this season of the year it is very necessary to keep a bottle of West's Cough Syrup in the house for sudden colds. Nothing like it. Cures like magic.

Confirmation.

On Wednesday last Christ's Church, Farmersville, was literally packed full with an interested congregation, the occasion being a Confirmation by the Rt. Rev. Bishop of Niagara, who officiated in the absence of the Bishop of this diocese, who is in England. Besides the incumbent of this parish, the Rev. Rural Dean Grout and the Revs. Codd, Osborne, Fiddler, Tighe, Coleman and Lowe were present, and took part in the solemn service. It must have been exceedingly gratifying to the Rev. R. N. Jones, and also to the members of his flock, when he presented to the Bishop for the large number of fifty candidates for the rite of laying on of hands. The addresses by the Bishop were eloquent and impressive, and all present felt the solemnity and importance of the ceremony. The church was beautifully decorated, a labor of love performed by the ladies of the congregation, assisted by a few of the sterner sex.

Marriage Dinner.

There was a quiet gathering at the Gamble House on Wednesday last, the occasion being the marriage of Mr. John Nolan to Miss Ripley, both of Newboro. Nolan, Miss Nolan, Phillipsville; Stephen Ripley, Miss Nolan, Newboro; Michael Jordan, Miss Burns, Elgin. After the Next Sunday evening, instead of holding the usual service at Plum Hollow, the pastor will conduct the meeting here, beginning at seven o'clock.

Business Education.

Brockville Business College still excels all others in the thoroughness of the work done, in the success of its graduates and in the patronage of the business community. No examinations on entering. Students receive individual instruction. Rates cheaper than at any other first-class college in Canada. It is the best. Send for their circulars.

Magistrates Court.

Most of our readers will doubtless remember the escape of one Richard Irwin, of Glen Buell, from the custody of Constable Clow, in April last. Irwin was charged with stealing a cow hide, fourteen calf skins and a goat skin robe from a number of farmers, near Temperance Lake. While in custody Irwin admitted the stealing and implicated Jerome Wright, as an accomplice. A warrant for Wright's arrest was placed in Constable Brown's hands, who on going out to make the arrest found that his bird had flown. On Monday last the constable got information that Wright was at home and on going out to the place he espied his man peeping around a corner of a building. He drove his horse up to the fence and started for the house, when he saw Wright taking leg bail for the woods. Quickly divesting himself of his fur coat, he gave chase, and after an exciting chase of over half a mile he captured him, and brought him to the Farmersville lock up. At 4 p.m. the prisoner was brought before Justices Wight and Loverin, who examined a number of witnesses, and adjourned the case until 5 p.m. to-day (Wednesday.) A full report of the case will appear in our next.

Driving Park Association.

A meeting of the shareholders of the Driving Park Association was held in the Armstrong House, on Saturday evening last. The following were present: R. B. Alguire, pres.; T. Berney, vice-pres.; J. P. Lamb, sec.; C. L. Lamb, treas., and Chas. G. Alguire, I. C. Alguire, B. Loverin, A. Stevens, H. Johnston, A. Armstrong, J. Ross, J. Thompson, E. Knapp, shareholders. The sec. presented a statement of the receipts and expenditures of the two days' races in Sept. last:—

Entrance fees to races	$251 00
Tickets at gate	235 00
Subscriptions & walking tickets	32 00
Fakirs	35 00
Grocery	15 00
Grand stand	9 00
	577 00
Paid in purses	450 00
Balance	$127 00

After a lengthy discussion as to the best means of paying off the indebtedness it was carried unanimously that a tax of $5.00 per month be levied on all shareholders. This will include the amount due from last year, as well as to pay for horse barn and other improvements made this year. All the improvements made on the grounds thus far are of the most substantial character and could be sold for cost, if the association should have no further use for them. It was decided to meet in one month for election of officers.

Next week the Supreme Court of New Brunswick will deliver judgment in the appeal taken by the Methodist Conference of that Province against the writ of prohibition by which it was ordered that Conference should not proceed further in the investigation of the charges alleged against Rev. D. D. Currie, of that Conference.

The Buffalo Courier tells the following story of Sam Small:—He is an expert stenographer, but for all that is nothing loth to lay hold of a manuscript when it comes in his way. It is recorded of him that after a famous speech by Jeff Davis, at Houston, Texas, and while the Southern orator was bowing his compliments to the large assemblage, Sam coolly helped himself to the manuscript which was seen peeping from the coat tails. Once possessed of the valuable document which was much sought after by newspaper representatives from all parts of the country, Sam rode on horseback to the railway junction, a distance of five miles, where he reached the telegraph wires and forestalled all contemporaries. It is but just to add that this happened during Sam's unregenerate days.

A boy named George Edminson, of Ashfield, arose before the rest of the family one morning recently, and while washing was seized with a fit and fell into a water trough and was drowned. A few years ago his grand father, while in a fit, fell into a diel and was drowned. Both were subject to fits.
