WON AT LAST.

CHAPTER II.

"No—I want to see him. Why?"
"Because he is in mother's black books. He forgot to send the lotion for that incomprehensible sensation which affects her—spinal cord, I think it is; but it may be very likely something else. If you do see him, tell him to send it—there's a dear boy. There will be no peace until he does."

"All right! I'll tell him to hurry up with it for your sake," I said, and with another laugh, passed out of the rectory gate.

Mrs. Deeping, with her lotions and her potions, her aches and her pains, was a standing joke in Whittlesford. Her daughter and I had laughed about them ever since Alice was in pinafores and I in round collars.

CHAPTER III.

I paused for a moment beside the gate, undecided as to which way I should go back, through the village or round by the river. Round by the river was the longer way, but then it was also the cooler. I was in no particular hurry; so round by the river I decided it should be. And it certainly would have been, but that, as I let the gate shut with a clang and turned my face in that direction, I ran full tilt against some one coming the other way. The shock made both of us stagger. Then a merry voice said:

"Halloo, Ned! Steady! You've got a sun-stroke young man—that's what's the matter with you. Never knew I wasn't big enough to see before!"

I laughed and shook hands. It was Roger Yorke—the person whom in all Whittlesford I think I liked the best—a tall, broad-shouldered, good-looking, sunburned young fellow of about thirty-two, with a pleasant frank face and blue-gray eyes—big enough to see in all conscience. But I certainly had not seen him, and said so.

"What on earth you were cutting along at such a pace for I don't know!" I added.

"If it wasn't for the weather, I should 'cut along' considerably faster," he rejoined. "This is the governor's day at Market Waxford. He was off at nine this morning."

"I know," I said. "If I were you, I'd go myself, though, Yorke. Tell Dizarte the journey's too much for him."

Roger Yorke laughed, taking off his hat to push back the hair off his forehead.

Unable to Work for 14 Months

Mr. Henry Black.

What a helpless mass of flesh and bone the human body is, once the nerves become exhausted. Extreme weakness comes over you, and you lose control of the limbs. The next step is paralysis.

You will be fortunate if, like Mr. Black, you get the building-up process in action before it is forever too late. By forming new, rich blood Dr. Chase's Nerve Food carries new vigor and energy to every organ and every member of the human body.

Mr. Henry Black, 31 St. Catherine street east, Montreal, Que., writes:—"The wonderful results I obtained from the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food constrain me to write this letter in order that others who suffer from nervous exhaustion and weakness may use this medicine with equal satisfactory results. As the result of overwork I became completely exhausted, and was unable to work for fourteen months. As I am the father of a family, these were sad days for me but after I had used six boxes of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food I had improved so greatly that I continued the treatment until I was completely restored to health and strength. I now work twelve to fifteen hours a day, and keep in excellent health."

SICK DAUGHTER NOW WELL

Mrs. C. Cole Tells How Her Daughter Was Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Compound.

Fitchville, Ohio.—"I take great pleasure in writing to thank you for what your medicine has done for my daughter."

"Before taking your medicine she was all run down, suffered from pains in her side, could not walk but a short distance at a time, and had severe pains in head and limbs. She came very near having nervous prostration. She had begun to cough a good deal and seemed melancholy by spells. She tried two doctors but got little help. 'I cannot find words to express my gratefulness for what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for my daughter. She feels and looks like another girl since taking it, and I shall always feel that I owe you a great debt. 'You can use this letter for the benefit of others if you wish, as I shall always recommend your medicines for female troubles.'—Mrs. C. COLE, Fitchville, Ohio.

Hundreds of such letters from mothers expressing their gratitude for what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has accomplished have been received by the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Company, Lynn, Mass.

Young Girls, Heed This Advice.
Girls who are troubled with painful or irregular periods, backache, headache, dragging-down sensations, fainting spells or indigestion, should immediately seek restoration to health by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"No fear of that, my boy—the doctor knows his book too well. There are about six patients there, and he'll take the whole day to see after them. Here there are sufficient people ill to turn a couple of men off their legs. It there are sufficient people ill to her so much illness in Whittlesford since I've been in it."

"The heat is enough to kill anybody," I returned, sympathetically. "Are you going into the rectory?"

"No; I've been there once to-day. Why? Have you been there?"

"Yes—had to take a message for madame. Mrs. Deeping is in great tribulation, as usual."

"Pooh!" said Yorke, lightly. "If every one were as well as Mrs. Deeping, doctors would be like a drug in the market. There is nothing wrong with her. I wish I could persuade her to think so, I'm sure, for her husband's sake—poor old boy!"

"And Alice's," I added.

"Of course, though I don't think she troubles herself much about it. She is too sensible for that." He laughed again in his ready frank way, and with an amused look. "What do you think she told me only to-day? Somehow she upset a bottle of that wonderful lot of Dizarte charged five shillings for—it's nothing but water with a little coloring, but Mrs. Deeping swears by it—and she concocted another form with the aid of a spoonful of port wine. Her mother didn't know the difference. I suggested that she should repeat the experiment and save the cash, but I suppose it would not work."

"I don't know whether she swears by the lotion or not," I said, laughing; "but I do know that just now she was grumbling about it. You forgot to send it."

"By Jove, so I did!" cried Yorke. "Well, it must wait until I'm near enough to the surgery to run in, that's all. There's enough real illness to keep me busy just now. Where are you going?"

Back to the Mount, I told him, and by way of the village, if that was his way. It was; and so we turned and walked on together. There was nothing I liked better than a talk with Roger Yorke.

Five years before he had come to Whittlesford, known to nobody but old Dr. Dizarte, and it was only by bits and scraps that we picked up his history. His father had been a surgeon in good practice in London, and Roger, trained for the same profession, was expected to succeed him. But Dr. Yorke died from an injury received in a carriage accident, and then it was found that he was deeply involved. He had been speculating, and had come to grief over it. The practice had to be sold to clear the heavy debts, and it hardly sufficed to do that. Roger might have struggled on upon bread and cheese for a dozen years, eating his heart out, as he waited for patients, but for Dr. Dizarte. He was an old school-friend of Dr. Yorke's, and was in London at the time of his death. He took a fancy to Roger, as most people did, and he made him a liberal offer. The Whittlesford practice was a good one and was becoming too much for him, if he—Roger—liked to come down to Whittlesford, he would give him a fair and increasing share of the profits. Roger, glad enough of the chance no doubt, came accordingly, and had been there ever since, living with the doctor in his roomy old house, and being treated like his son.

Dizarte was an old bachelor, with neither kith nor kin that Whittlesford knew of, and the general impression was that, when the old man died, the young man would succeed to the practice. And indeed, if Roger had been his son, old Dizarte could not have thought more of him. A fine young fellow he was, with a laugh and a good-humored word for every one, always cheerful, active, and hopeful.

Even dismal Mrs. Deeping brightened up a little when he came in to see her; and, although he could not persuade her that nothing ailed her but too-much self-indulgence and fancifulness, he did contrive to make her believe that her husband would not have the melancholy task of preaching her funeral sermon yet awhile, which was more than old Dizarte had done, try as he would.

We sauntered on slowly under the blazing sun, with coats unbuttoned and hats pushed back. Roger asked after madame presently, and then I recollected her message to him.

"By the way, madame wants you up at the Mount, Roger. Something's wrong with one of the maids."

"Anything serious?"

"Oh, no—I think not! Any time to-day will do. There's no need to hurry."

"I'll come up this evening then, if you think that will do. Which of them is it? The damsel with the queer name?"

"What, Virtue?" I said, laughing. No, she's right enough. What made you think of her?"

"She's an odd customer," Yorke remarked, again taking off his hat. "I push back his curly hair—a favorite trick of his, by the way. 'Sit, zuzzles me—and yet I can't tell why I am pretty quick at understanding people too, as a rule, I think; but somehow I can't make that girl out. I wish I could know what her life has been, I should say she was a person who could relate some curious experiences if she chose."

"I don't think she would choose," I said.

"Neither do I; and it is that which makes her peculiar, I suppose. I don't believe I should make anything of her if I lived next door, by the way, what do you think of your new neighbor, Ned?"

"Neighbor?" I repeated. "What—the man who has taken Holmedean?"

"Yes. What's your opinion of him?"

"Haven't set eyes on him so far. Didn't know he had taken possession of it."

"Oh, dear, yes! Seeing the sort of an he is, I should have thought he would have called at Chavasse before this. He and the doctor have been hobnobbing already; and it's he same at the rectory, I believe."

"To H. FEDER, OPTICIAN, St. John's."

Dear Sir—I am pleased to inform you that my eyes are considerably improved since I have been wearing your glasses, as they are soft and comfortable to the sight.

Any person afflicted with weak eyes would strongly recommend them to see your glasses.

Try This Home-made Cough Remedy
Costs Little, But Does the Work Quickly, or Money Refunded.

Mix two cups of granulated sugar with 1 cup of warm water, and stir for 2 minutes. Put 2½ ounces of Pinex ( fifty cents' worth) in a 16-ounce bottle; then add the Sugar Syrup. Take a teaspoonful every one, two or three hours.

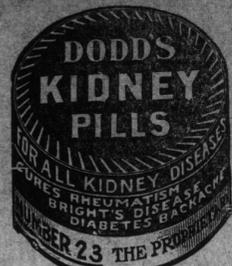

You will find that this simple remedy takes hold of a cough more quickly than anything else ever used. Usually ends a deep-seated cough inside of 24 hours. Splendid, too, for whooping cough, croup, chest pains, bronchitis, and other throat troubles. It stimulates the appetite and is slightly laxative, which helps end a cough.

This recipe makes more and better cough syrup than you could buy ready-made for $2.50. It keeps perfectly and tastes pleasantly.

Pinex is the most valuable concentrate compound of Norway white pine extract, and is rich in gualcol and all the natural pine elements, which are so healing to the membranes. Other preparations will not work in this formula.

This plan of making cough syrup with Pinex and sugar syrup (or strained honey) has proven so popular throughout the United States and Canada that it is often imitated. But the old, successful formula has never been equalled.

A guaranty of absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded, goes with this recipe. Your druggist has Pinex or will get it for you if not send to The Pine Co., Toronto, Ont.

But perhaps he doesn't like to storm the Mount until he gets leave."

"Perhaps not," I assented. "That's a pleasure to come, then."

"Don't fret about it, my boy," remarked Yorke, coolly.

I turned and looked at him, for his tone was significant.

"You don't like him, Roger?" I said.

"I'm not enraptured with him, if that's what you mean, any more than he is with me, so far as I know. It is a sort of mutual antipathy, I suppose. But he's pleasant enough, believe; you may like him."

If a Laxative is Needed—"Cascarets"

Salts, Calomel and Cathartic Pills are violent—they act on bowels as pepper acts in nostrils.

Take a Cascaret tonight and thoroughly cleanse your Liver, Stomach and Bowels, and you will surely feel great by morning. You men and women who have headache, coated tongue, cap't sleep, are bilious, nervous and upset, bothered with a sick gassy, disordered stomach, or have backache and feel all worn out.

Are you keeping clean inside with Cascarets—or merely forcing a pass age way every few days with salts, cathartic pills or castor oil? This is important.

Cascarets immediately cleanse and regulate the stomach, remove the sour, undigested and fermenting food and foul gasses; take the excess bile from the liver and carry off the decomposed waste matter and poison from the intestines and bowels.

Remember, a Cascaret to-night will straighten you out by morning. A 10-cent box from your druggist means a clear head and cheerfulness for months. Don't forget the children.

Woman Leaps From Liner.

London, Dec. 24.—The death of a woman first-class passenger, Mrs. Larice Allport, by jumping overboard when the vessel was near Cape Verde was reported on the arrival at Southampton yesterday of the liner Windy, of the German East African ports.

Mrs. Allport is said to have asked toward one night for a glass of water, and while he was obtaining it to have an up the staircase in her nightdress limbed the rail, and thrown herself into the sea. She was heard to cry out as she fell, and it is thought that she struck the side of the ship. The vessel cruised about for two hours without finding any trace of her.

It is believed that Mrs. Allport was travelling to Lancashire.

Are You Alive?

By RUTH CAMERON.

One of the most impressive sermons that I ever heard was a fifteen-minute talk on the meaning of the word "life."

The preacher spoke from the text, "I am come that they might have life and that they might have it more abundantly." He brought out the point that the word "life" as constantly used in the New Testament means vastly more than physical life, that it means life in all the finer, fuller senses of the word. And then he asked us all how much of life was alive.

Now, don't be afraid, I'm not going to try to preach the sermon, although I'm not so sure it would do you any harm.

But tell me, reader, friends, or rather tell yourselves, how much of YOU is alive?

To-day is a milestone day, a day when even the most headlong of us stop a moment to look back at the road we've been traveling and forward to the new road.

As you stand by the milestone, looking now backwards and now forward at the road, look again, friends, and this time look inward at the heart you are carrying over that road.

How much of that started blithely down the road when the sun was high down the road when the sun was fresh on the grass and you knew the road led straight and fair to a land of promise—how much of the heart that you carried then is still alive?

Is your sense of honor still alive? And your sense of humor? For believe me that is no unworthy second to a sense of honor. Indeed there are some who say that since it brings more happiness into the world it should hold first place.

In those days of the first milestones, when the road lay so straight and simple before you, you knew that there was power stirring within you, power to do something worth while in the world. Is that belief still alive?

Is your faith in mankind still alive? Of course you have had disillusionments and disappointments; so have all men, and yet the biggest of them have believed to the end that there was more good than bad in the world. Surely your faith is not so soon dead?

And what about your faith in the great Centre of all good, that some men call Evolution and some are not afraid to call just God? In those early days before the vision splendid began to fade before you took a cheap pride in posing as a cynic and an agnostic you held a simple faith in the Unseen. Underneath all your pose and pretense is that still alive?

How much of you is still clearly alive? And of that part that seems dead how much of you is merely stifled and insensible and can be reawakened?

Is not this a good day to try and see?

Ruth Cameron

A WOMAN'S GOOD LOOKS.

Depend on her general health and freedom from pain. Many a woman looks old before her time because of those irregularities which are essentially feminine. Starting from early womanhood, she suffers from frequently recurring derangements that upset her womanly health. If she be beautiful she grows into that mallow age without wrinkles and crowfeet about the eyes or the blue circles underneath. It is invariably the rule that such women suffer little, or not at all, from womanly derangements which sap the health and leave in the face the tell-tale story of pain and suffering. Dr. R. V. Pierce, the famous specialist in the diseases of women, found a prescription in his early practice that soothed the organism peculiar to womanhood—oiled the machinery, as it were, of the human system—and helped the woman to pass those painful periods that soar-lined and aged her face. This remedy became the well-known Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, that has benefited thousands of women and saved them from misery and suffering at different periods in life.

Mrs. HASKELLY E. PIERCE, of 344 Bright Street, Sarnia, Ont., writes: "I am now a well woman after suffering for three years and doctoring with several different doctors, each one saying it was something different, and the last one, after putting me through a thorough examination, said I was suffering from a growth which, in time, would result in cancer, and said I would not live more than two years if not operated upon right away. I became hopelessly discouraged but would not consent to the operation as I was too weak and too much afraid, but at last, through the advice of a friend, I tried Dr. Pierce's medicine, and after using two bottles of the 'Favorite Prescription' I immediately felt a change. I also used two boxes of 'Healing Suppositories' and eight boxes of 'Lotion Tablets,' and can safely praise the name of Dr. Pierce's medicine to all who suffer from any female disease, for these medicines are all they are claimed to be, and I hope will help others as they have helped me."

Fashions and Fads.

Shadow lace is at the top wave of favor for neckwear decoration, and its reign is expected to continue for some time.

Very novel is the double-breasted blouse coat, which below the waist is pointed at front and back, to form a knee length tunic.

Very short jackets of bright blue velvet are very modish and are worn with draped skirts of black moire, satin velvet or charmeuse.

The Roman striped silks now displayed in the shops are very effective when cut into sash length and worn on black, white or blue gowns.

Smart women are clinging persistently to the short skirt, although quite a number of clinging, trained skirts appear bordered with fur.

Girdles made of various patterns of parallel metal chains caught at intervals with cameos and finished with metal tassels are recent novelties.

Pin morocco is the fashionable leather for bags. Gold hand-stamping in various designs and plain effects on handbags is a new feature.

Very smart hats for little girls are made of embroidered white crepe de chine, trimmed with little blue satin flowers with white velet leaves.

Over a sheath skirt of black velet, the striped and brocaded fabrics which are made at this moment form a practical and charming combination.

Very attractive blouses are made of shadow lace over net, with black satin collars and cuffs, black net frills and black and white buttons.

Broad insertion tringing a shapel unic or an old flounce mounted on net is often the redeeming touch to an otherwise simple dress.

A smart handbag of velvet in a color to match the suit and elaborately embroidered with small steel cut beads adds a modish touch to a costume.

Shaded chiffon and shaded and figured ured chiffon scarfs play an enormous part in tea gowns this season, as does, of course, lace of every description.

Black velvet coats for children have collars and cuffs of white fur. With these are worn turbans of white fur with small aigrettes placed on the side.

Marked features of jabots, whatever their shape are their fluffiness, their generous size and variety of ways in which they are rounded, pointed or squared.

There is a return to favor of the short fur jacket, either in broadtail or seal. They come only a quarter of a yard below the waist, and are narrow, but not tight fitting.

Day coats are much the same as those for evening wear. All are made in conspicuous colors and stuffs, although the more elegant are in combinations of black and white.

Novelty voiles are ornamented with silk stripes of the jacquard variety, together with plain satin stripes of raffine. The most extreme novelties have stripes made of pompadour figures.

Every well-selected wardrobe should have two or more afternoon frocks. Suitable fabrics from which to make these are velvet, charmeuse, crepe meteor, crepe de chine and brocaded satin.

Without question the greatcoats of pelt are the most fashionable of overcoats, and the variety of skins is almost endless.

A Run On Hats.

As soon as Salonica was occupied by the Greek Army the non-Turks threw away the fez, the visible sign that stamped them Turkish subjects. All the hats in the town were soon bought up," says the Westminster Gazette, "and those who could get none—and there were many—preferred to go bareheaded than to reassume the fez."

Speaking of mysterious disappearances, what became of the little liver pill?

Aeroplanes Collide

Paris, Dec. 21.—An aeroplane collision in mid-air to-day imperilled the life of the son of Theophile Delcasse, French Minister of Marine, and two aviators, at Villacoublay, near Paris.

Young Delcasse was making a flight as a passenger on board a monoplane piloted by Georges Collardeau, when another machine ascended. The two aeroplanes started manoeuvring around the aerodrome and the false movement of a lever caused them to come violently into collision, going fast, the two wrecked machines, interlocked, crashing to earth. When the accident occurred they had not ascended to a great height.

One of young Delcasse's legs was broken and Collardeau was badly bruised, while the pilot of the other aeroplane was seriously injured, probably fatally.

Resolutions.

BY H. L. RANN.

Resolutions are a mild form of medicine which people take when they want to swear off in one installment. They are so popular that they are taken only once a year, and will effect an instant cure if the patient dies the first week.

There are two kinds of resolutions—good and bad. Good resolutions are most generally recognized in the form of a popular paving material which is used extensively for building roads in warm climates. A good resolution can be used over and over again without curing anybody of the tobacco habit. Some people keep a large supply on hand at all seasons of the year, and throw away their pipes and tobacco with a determined air every few weeks. If an accurate count were kept of the number of men who swear off smoking every time their heart turns a back somersault, it would look like a late census of the Chinese empire. A bad resolution is a form of good intention which was taken in our probation on New Year's day and then backslid along about January 12th. After a good intention has turned sour it is worse than it was before, and calls for thirty-two long, black cigars a day. Thousands of people have sworn off drinking between meals only to be overtaken by a bad resolution and turned into a human tub. Bad resolutions never bother people whose backbones are laid up in Portland cement and lined with whalebone.

Resolutions are sometimes accompanied by a loud noise from the resoluter, who wishes everybody to know that he has quit. This kind of a resolution usually gets out of breath on the evening of the second day, and prompts the owner to retire to the barn for a clandestine smoke. The most durable kind of resolutions are not bragged about at the club. The devil isn't afraid of any resolution that is preceded by a hand concert. The only kind he wastes any time on is the kind that shuts its teeth on the other way and says nothing. If he can't break through its guard in the first six weeks, he looks up something softer.

Lost $60.
 Saturday afternoon as a young lady, who lives on Gower Street, was proceeding along Queen's Road, she met with a peculiar and unfortunate accident. In one of the heavy gusts of wind which prevailed she was thrown violently to the ground and her face was injured. In her hand she carried a satchel, which she dropped on falling. This was hurled violently against the side of a nearby house and burst open. It contained nearly $60 in notes with some silver and all was blown away and lost to the owner. The police learned of the matter, and Sergeant Byrne who made a search only found a few 20 cent pieces near where the money was lost.

Stole $70 Worth
 A few days ago Contractor LeDrew missed a new brass pump worth $70 and concluding it had been stolen communicated with the police. Sgt. Byrne, who was put on the case, arrested Tuesday, two men Prowse and Brazil charged with the theft. They admitted it and said they had broken up the article selling it to city dealers as old brass. One of them has done repeated terms for larceny.

The Harbor Ferry Sunk.
 Yesterday morning the s.s. Beatrice left Mullaly & Co's wharf to proceed to Sydney, and in backing off from the pier crossed the harbor. The ship was going at a quick rate when, seeing that she would likely damage some of the south side wharves, the anchor was let go to check her. This however it failed to do, as too much chain was payed out, so that the ship went on the Municipal wharf and did a deal of damage to it. The new motor ferry which was laying alongside was cut in two by the steamer and sank at her moorings with only the canvas awning above water. It is thought likely that the ferry will be a total loss.

Chicago Police Offer Bribes.
 Chicago, Dec. 24.—Evidence of the payment of thousands of dollars by the United Police of the Chicago policemen's union for the expenses of com- mittees appointed to influence legisla- tion, was brought out yesterday in the investigation by the Civil Service Com- mission into the operations of the or- ganization. Edward J. Brennan former secretary of the United Police, testified that $2,145 was paid to one com- mittee for its "expenses" in visiting Springfield in the interest of the pol- ice during a session of the Legisla- ture.
 When a worthless man does a de- spicable thing he excuses himself by saying he was drunk when it hap- pened.
 Tramp.—Yes, lady, I had $50,000 left to me once. Woman.—And I suppose it all went for liquor? Tramp.—I, a poor so, mum. Dem judges an' lawyers is awful drinkers.—New York Globe.

Cable News.

Special to The Evening Telegram.
LONDON, Jan. 1.
The Prince of Wales has been compelled to resign from Bullingdon, the most swagger Club of Oxford. His Royal Highness in a recent night took part in what the students call "rag," a mild sort of amusement, but discouraged by the university authorities. At the height of the safety, a playing proctor came along and took down the names of the participants, which he reported. It is not considered a disgrace for students to be thus "ragged," as such reporting is tolerated, but when the news reached Buckingham Palace the King commanded the future King to resign from the Club.

LONDON, Jan. 1.
The peace conference between the delegates of the Balkan Allies and the Turkish Empire settled down to real business this afternoon, in spite of a temporary hitch caused by Michael Madagoroff, one of the Bulgarian delegates, departing in indignation from the meeting with the declared intention that the war would be resumed by the Allies. The Turkish envoys when the conference gathered again, presented in writing new proposals which are a great advance on their first offer. They now express themselves ready to cede absolutely Macedonia and Epirus with Saloniki, and as being ready to discuss the question of the fortress of Adrianople and the future boundary between Turkey and Bulgaria in the province of Thrace. They still refuse to give up the islands in the Aegean Sea, and desire to submit the question of Albania and Crete to the European Powers. The Conference to-day lasted three hours and a half, when the delegates adjourned until Friday. The official account of the conference says the Turkish delegates proposals which were discussed by the Conference were agreed to on certain points, while on certain other points discussion was adjourned until Friday.

NEW YORK, Jan. 1.
Several lively riots, yesterday marked the strike of garment workers. The most serious trouble was at the Smith factory, in driving away five or six hundred men and women who tried to storm the building. The strikers advanced from four directions, and started to climb the fire escapes to reach the employees on the top floor. The few who succeeded in entering were met by a squad of clerks and for nearly an hour the fight waged both inside and outside the building. The employees of the upper floor helped the police by raining missiles upon the heads of the attacking party. Four policemen who bore the brunt of the attack, were badly used. Reserves stopped the fight, but made no arrests. Strikers and their sympathizers attacked several other factories, and at one place ten were arrested before quiet was restored.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 1.
As the clocks ticked off the first second of 1912, Postmaster-General Hitchcock inaugurated a new era in the American postal service by depositing in the Washington post office the first package that has been entrusted to the domestic parcels post service. The strokes of the last hour of 1912 were dying away when the Postmaster-General stepped to the window under the newly painted inscription, "Parcels post packages," and handed in the official first package. At the same moment the parcels post service opened for business in every post office in the States. Postmaster-General Hitchcock's package contained a silver loving cup, enclosed in a stout box, and was addressed to E. M. Morgan, postmaster of the city of New York the cup will be sent back to Washington to be engraved and preserved in the National Museum to commemorate the inauguration of the parcels post system.

LONDON, Jan. 1.
The Birthday Honours List issued on New Year's Eve, includes two peerages, seven baronetcies and eighteen knight-hoods. Sir George Sidenham Clarke, Governor of Bombay and Sir George Kapp formerly M.P., are the new Peers. Vice-Admiral Sir Percy Scott, naval gunnery expert and inventor, is among the baronets. Premiers Sir Edward Morris and Sir James Whitney of Ontario, are made K.C.M.G.s. Amongst the new Knights are John Stephen Willison, Editor of the Toronto News, former Lieutenant Governor of Ontario, and Francis Darwin, son of the late Charles Darwin. Sir George Simons, Solicitor General, and Earl Desart, have been made Privy Counsellors.

NEW YORK, Jan. 1.
The hotel employees' strike proved a fizzle, less than five hundred quitting work. At three famous hotels, at which 100,000 persons kept midnight vigil, there was not the slightest indication of the strike.

Came too late for Xmas, but should nicely fill the bill for New Year's and other gifts, a handsome assortment of Silver Deposit Ware. R. H. TRAPNELL—dec28,11

NEW YORK, Dec. 31.
Under the title, "The World's unsolved enigma," in which he declared the ruler of every country knows that the greatest blessing for the world at large is international peace, Andrew Carnegie sent his friends his New Year Greetings, "International peace," he said, "was not a party question in the Republic. Democratic presidents and statesmen, equally with Republicans, are its champions. I venture the prediction that negotiations between Britain, France, America and Germany will soon be resumed, and in such holy cause there can be no such word as fail. Sooner or later the killing of men in battle is to be banished from civilized lands."

LONDON, Dec. 31.
The Telegraph publishes a terrible recital of atrocities gathered from Austro-Hungarian sources. According to these reports, the Servian General Janovitch has adopted a deliberate policy of extermination of the Moslem population in Albania. Between Kumanova and Uskub 3,000 were done to death, while 5,000 others, exclusively Armatus, were massacred under circumstances of most horrible cruelty. Villages were burned, fleeing inhabitants were shot, and helpless women forced to watch their children carved to pieces by bayonets. The route of the soldiers was lined with gallows, on which bodies of Albanians were left hanging. Other stories equally horrible are told of other commanders. At Verizovitch the Servian commander invited fugitives to give up their arms. Four hundred did so, and were immediately cut down. General Stephanovich is said to have placed a hundred prisoners in two rows and shot them down with machine guns. General Selkovich ordered 950 Albanian Turks killed because they opposed his progress.

Costs Money To Be Governor.

Dix of New York State Has Spent $50,000 a Year.

Albany, N. Y., Dec. 20.—Governor Dix has spent more than $50,000 a year during his term as Governor, according to estimates which have been made. His salary was $10,000. The entertainments given by Mr. and Mrs. Dix in this administration have been more lavish than at any time since the Governorship of Levi P. Morton. When Justice Hughes was in the Executive chair a bill was introduced to increase the salary to $25,000, he having declared the $10,000 salary was $15,000 short of his expenses.

Rough Trip.

The S. S. Portia, Capt. J. Kean, arrived back from western ports Tuesday afternoon, after one of the longest and stormiest trips in the history of the Coastal service. Going west the steamer was stormbound at Bonne Bay for three days and had a deck cargo swept overboard. Coming south a fearful gale was experienced. The ship ran to Placentia for shelter but after being there a few hours had to run to Argenta Harbor as there was danger of driving ashore at Placentia owing to the terrific sea running. The Portia brought a full freight and about fifty passengers.

At the Nickel.

The nickel never seems to fail with its everlasting variety and the holiday programme put forward by the old reliable picture houses on New Years Day amply sustains its reputation. Jack & the Beanstalk, a grand ensemble of all the delightful fairy recollections of our childhood days, has been put into moving picture form by the Edison Co., who have made truly elaborate spectacular production. This was the feature offered and with the other pictures orchestral numbers and songs by Reginald Thomas it made a most successful holiday programme and as usual at The Nickels tanding room was at a premium, at afternoon and night performances.

S.S. Nevada Picked Up.

When the Morvenna left here a couple of days ago she had instructions to look for the missing s.s. Nevada, but evidently failed to locate her. Yesterday forenoon messages were received to the effect that the ship had been discovered off Cape Race disabled. The R. N. Co. had the first message through the Postal Telegraphs, and the Anglo had the following: "Sighted s.s. Nevada about three miles west of here at 7 this morning with s.s. Althema standing by her. The Nevada's steering gear was crippled. At 9 a.m. the Nevada headed for St. John's under her own steam, and the Althema left here and proceeded eastward. At 10 o'clock the Nevada got broken down again and signalled for assistance." The message then furnished that the Solway came alongside the Nevada and tendered assistance. Last night the Reid Co. had a message from Renewes saying that the Solway had put in there with the Nevada, and she should arrive here with her to-day. The Nevada, which has a crew of 22 men, became disabled in the recent stormy weather.

Attacked by Dog

Tuesday evening as two young ladies were passing along at the head of Murray Street, coming from Mr. O'Leagan's butcher shop, they were attacked by a fierce dog owned by a resident of the place. The brute snatched a parcel of meat which one of them carried and ran away with it. The ladies were much frightened and the owner of the animal will be compelled to chain it up. Residents of that thoroughfare are loud in their complaint of the animal as on several other occasions the same dog has attacked people passing that way.

The Loss of the Florence

STORY OF THE SURVIVORS.

Five seamen—John Hedley, second mate; Thomas Smeding, A.B.; William Wight, A.B.; O. F. Malmgoish, A.B., and Edwin Taylor, A.B.—survivors of the wreck of the ill-fated steamer Florence, arrived by the s.s. Portia from Trepassy, on Tuesday afternoon, accompanied by Mr. T. Kennedy, representing the Furness Withy Company and who was at the scene of the wreck, acting in the interests of all concerned, as to the recovery of dead bodies and salvage of cargo. Immediately on arrival the shipwreckers were met by Shipping Master Carter and Manager Montgomerie, of the Furness Withy Line, and escorted to the new Seaman's Home on Water St. where elaborate and well ventilated rooms were ready for them to occupy. Here the seamen were waited on by a Telegram reporter to whom they gave a story to the best of their knowledge of the wreck. Apparently they did not resemble stranded seamen despite the fact that they had undergone such a terrible ordeal. They looked like a party of tourists, laughing and joking all the while, as they stated that they had been treated as such coming along on the Portia. Before beginning to relate their story the seamen asked if they were transient boarders. They were astonished at the surroundings of the palatial Home, and it took them some time to realize that they were the most heartily welcomed people to enjoy the comforts and conveniences of the building, which was erected chiefly for the protection of distressed seamen. The wrecked seamen then began to give a graphic story of hardship and suffering. Their experience on that barren and rugged portion of the South Coast, depicts pathos and adventure and can be better imagined by those whose avocation it is to brave the elements of the sea.

The Florence, as already told in the Evening Telegram, belonged to the Furness Withy Line, being in command of Captain Barr, brother of G. M. Barr, Esq., merchant of this city, and met with disaster off Marine's Cove, near St. Shott's on December 20th, carrying with her twenty-two souls, including the captain.

STORY OF THE TRAGEDY, AND HOW THE SHIP WAS LOST.

The s.s. Florence left Halifax at 12.30 on Wednesday morning, Dec. 18th. At the outset the weather was fine and calm, but overcast. The following day a rough sea prevailed but notwithstanding the steamer made fairly good headway. On Thursday night, the Florence was off Cape St. Mary's "laying to." The wind veered from the south west with sleet and rain showers. Later it moderated for a few hours, but again changed and became very thick and hazy. The Red Cross Liner Florizel, which was bound to St. John's from the same port as the Florence left, passed the latter about two miles west. It was the second mate's watch on deck and he made signals with lamps to the Florizel, but got no reply. This was about two o'clock on the morning of Friday, Dec. 20th. No communication as alleged, took place between the masters of both liners. A few minutes elapsed and the Florizel was out of sight. Capt. Barr, believing he was inside of Cape Pine, altered the course of the Florence and headed her for the eastward. Weather conditions suddenly changed. The wind veered from various points of the compass, and there were heavy showers of rain.

The sky was pitch black and gloomy, it being difficult to make out the land from on board the steamer. The color of the sky and that of the land resembled each other. The crew soon realized the seriousness of their position. The ship was going under full speed and they knew that if Captain Barr lost his bearings that the chances of avoiding the land were remote, yet little did they think their doom was awaiting them. The Captain, who brought ships to St. John's invariably along the same route, was not misguided in his reckoning and navigation of the vessel as best he knew how under the circumstances. At three o'clock on Friday morning, December 20th, the Florence was close by Marine's Cove near St. Shott's. The tide there is very deceptive, the water no shallow and it is designated by fishermen as a dreadful and treacherous spot. It is also termed the "Graveyard" of the Atlantic Ocean. The ship was steaming along at the rate of 9 knots an hour and was gradually but surely being brought in on the land by the "breakers." Every conceivable method was used to check the ship, but without avail, and at 3.10 a.m. she went under the rocks, known as "Sawdieback" Shoals. She struck with great force, and, in consequence, her cutter, which was like that of the s.s. Tabasco, was carried away.

WHEN THE SHIP STRUCK.

There was not the slightest commotion raised on board when the Florence struck the land. Every member of the crew, with the spirit of discipline and courage of a British sailor, stood to duty's post. Where the Florence lay there were tremendous seas running and there was every possibility of her being dashed to pieces at once. Immediately boats were swung from the davits ready to be launched in case of emergency. Unfortunately, however, they were not needed and every person on board climbed over the bowsprit and abandoned the ship. That was at four o'clock. After reaching the shore and holding on grim death to the rocks for fear of being blown into the sea a frightful experience between life and death was then encountered by that hardy crew of seamen, twenty-two of which have since gone to eternity.

APPALLING INCIDENT.

To realize the predicament they were in, the poor fellows were placed in on the ice-clad rocks at the bottom of a huge perpendicular cliff, rising two hundred and fifty feet from the level of the sea, exposed to torrential rain showers and heavy falls of sleet for four hours, cold, hungry and fatigued, with death staring them in the face and to think of their dear ones in a far-off land, is indeed difficult, extreme.

TRIED TO CLIMB CLIFF.

The seamen tried every means to scale the cliff and get to the land for assistance but their efforts proved fruitless. One of the number in endeavoring to climb the rocks would have fallen over and be dashed to pieces but for the promptitude of a shipmate in saving him.

RETURN TO SHIP.

At eight o'clock, or four hours after going ashore, the captain and crew returned to the ship, which was then breaking up rapidly against the rocks. There was a terrific sea running with strong wind increasing to hurricane force. This was an anxious time for all hands there being little possibility of the crew escaping with their lives, except to launch the life-boats, but this latter course was deemed impracticable by the captain, who believed that no boat could live in the rough sea. Capt. Barr was expecting the wind to shift to the eastward so that his vessel would float off in deep water. In the meantime he was keeping a keen look out for a fishing craft of any kind to get news of wreck ashore for assistance.

LIFE-BOAT LAUNCHED.

At nine o'clock the same day, John Hedley, the second mate, who is responsible for saving the lives of four other survivors as well as his own intimated to the captain that he would make an effort to get to the shore in a life-boat for assistance provided he got volunteers to accompany him. The boat was launched and four seamen, those who survived the disaster, went with him. They rowed along the coast for about a mile and a half when they found a place to land on the beach.

BOAT CAPSIZED.

While landing a huge sea struck the boat, capsizing it and threw it in on the rocks. Seaman Thomas Smeding and Edwin Taylor were thrown in the water and for a minute were buried beneath the foam. On rising to the surface they were rescued by Mate Hedley and seamen Wight and Malmgoish, after much difficulty. The five men, although having performed a hard task were still in a bad predicament. They were hungry and fatigued while their clothing was saturated with icy-cold water and they were chilled to the marrow.

REACHED THE SHORE.

After reaching the shore they walked along the beach for about two hundred yards when they came to a fisherman's hut. They went in to try and get something to eat and found provisions there, including flour, molasses, tea, pork and matches. A fire was started and the five seamen had a small meal, which barely saved their lives.

HUMANE ACT.

The hut in which the provisions were found, is owned by a kindhearted fisherman named James Bonia, who fishes at Broad Cove but who always made it a custom of leaving something to eat in the hut at the coast line of St. Shott's, for seamen when distressed. The act, no doubt, is a most humane one.

SHIP BREAKS UP.

At noon on Friday, mate Hedley and seamen Wight and Malmgoish, being anxious about their shipmates, left the hut and proceeded to the top of the steep cliff which they were unable to ascend a few hours previously, leaving seamen Smeding and Taylor, who were too weak to walk, behind. They brought a piece of rope with them and tied a stone around one end of it, then throwing it on board the vessel to attract the attention of those on board to the top of the cliff, but without success, as the high wind would not permit the string to carry far. The mate then spoke to those on board the Florence by semaphoric signals telling them to take to the boats as he (the mate) was unable to get any assistance. He received an answer that they understood the signals. At three o'clock the mate shouted out but got no reply. There was a strong wind blowing then with a terrific sea. The ship was breaking in two amidships and the after end of her was submerged.

THE LAST THEY SAW OF HER.

At 3.30 p.m. Friday, Dec. 20th, mate Hedley and seamen saw those on board the ill-fated ship removing the cable that was on deck and which held the two anchors. That was the last they saw of the Florence.

ON RETURNING TO THE HUT

At 5 o'clock that evening, after returning to the hut, the survivors had some pancakes to eat and then lay down to try and get some sleep. But they could not get any as all had uneasy minds. During the night each man kept a two-hour watch. The next morning the five seamen went to hear further news of their shipmates but could see no sign of the ship or anyone that had been on board. They observed some cargo, such as timber and barrels that were on the ship's deck, floating about. After meditating for some time over the death of their shipmates, three of the survivors left to go to St. Shott's. Seamen Smeding and Taylor remained in the hut being unable to walk. They left on Saturday forenoon, travelled towards the eastward and after covering fourteen miles of a bleak, desolate forest, with every step of it three feet deep of bog and snowwater. Seamen Wight and Malmgoish became exhausted before reaching St. Shott's. The soles of their feet were practically raw from the heavy travel and they gave out, they were so hungry, but were reassured by the mate. At 4 p.m. Saturday, a fisherman hove in sight. On being approached by the wanderers the fisherman took them to his house, gave them plenty to eat and drink with accommodation for resting. He then sent the news of the tragedy he heard to Trepassey to be despatched to St. John's, in the meantime sending three fishermen back to the hut for the two sailors who were unable to walk and who were on the verge of death. After being given plenty of food to eat the half-dying sailors were driven to Trepassey. The next morning second mate Hedley and the two shipmates with him left to walk to Trepassey. On arrival there they met a fisherman, told him their story and they were escorted to the telegraph station. The operator here advised them to go and see the magistrate, sending two fishermen to accompany them. They reached the magistrate's house all right. After conversing with the stranded men a short time the magistrate instructed them to go to the boarding house of Mrs. Devereaux with whom he had made arrangements for their lodgings. On Sunday evening, Dec. 22nd, Mate Hedley walked to Trepassey station and wired full particulars of the wreck to St. John's. Two days later, which brought it Christmas Eve, the two invalided seamen, Smeding and Taylor, were conveyed to the house where their shipmates were staying, and where they were attended to by a doctor. On Christmas Day all five sat down together to a hearty meal. The same day Dec. 25th, Mr. T. Mr. Kennedy and given clothing, had just been to the scene of the wreck, arrived at Devereaux's house and gave each seaman a dry shift of clothing. Every day until the men left Trepassey they were visited by Mr. Kennedy and given clothing. The five survivors say they will never forget the hospitality and good-heartedness of the people at St. Shott's and Trepassey. On Monday night last the seamen joined the Portia which had such a rough time at Placentia.

The Loss of the Florence.

NOTES ON THE WRECK.

On Sunday last, the survivors visited the scene of the wreck for the last time, and near the seashore picked up the heart of a man floating in the water. Later the shoulder and elbow of a body and back of a skull were taken out of the water. The gruesome finds were all wrapped up carefully and buried. There was one passenger on board the Florence. He was a distressed seaman who took passage at Halifax. In almost every marine tragedy we hear of heroism displayed by British seamen. On this occasion Mate John Hedley, who is responsible for the saving of all the survivors, honors go. He is but 18 years old and possesses everything necessary to make a perfect seaman.

A curious coincidence is that among the clothing and cargo that washed ashore at St. Shott's, Mate Hedley picked up a shirt which had belonged to himself.

NAMES OF THOSE LOST.

The names of those lost are: Captain Barr, Chief Officer Forth, Boston Carroll, sailor Kennedy, sailor Jones, apprentice Stephen Armstrong, mess-room steward Mercer, cook Rooney; Engineers, Chief McBain, Greff, Hewitt, Donkeyman Hewitt. There were a fireman and a chief steward whose names are unknown.

DIARY KEPT BY A SURVIVOR.

Ship ran ashore at ten past three a.m., Friday, Dec. 19th in fog and sleet. Abandoned ship at four a.m. After getting lifeboats ready, proceeded on the rocks till daylight. Left the rock and came aboard ship again at about eight o'clock a.m. I spoke to captain and mate about taking to the boats, but got no decided answer to leave the ship till about nine o'clock. I leave the ship till about nine o'clock. The second mate, arrived on shore after having boat overturned on me and shipmate. Released from the boat and found a fisherman's hut, where we found to our benefit flour, molasses and tea and also a stove where we dried our clothes. The two sailors and second mate proceeded to the wreck to see if they could render any assistance but found they could not get a rope over the cliff on account of the wind, which was very strong and increasing at the time. Three thirty p.m. returned back to the hut at about four twenty. After having a night's rest, the whole five of us went to the wreck on the morning Dec. the twenty-first but could see nothing of the ship or any particle of her or the crew. Me and shipmate came back to the hut as we were too weak to walk any longer. After being buried under the boat the two other men with the second mate went in search of some people whom they met and told the history of the wreck and also gave information of me and shipmate. Three fishermen came to the hut and asked us if we could accompany them to St. Shott's, but we could not move till next morning when we left Golliver Cove on Sunday morning for the above named place. We stayed there till Tuesday, the twenty-third, when the doctor came up and rowed us down to Trepassey where we arrived on the same night. After meeting Mr. Kennedy who was on the way to the scene of the wreck in the hopes of discovering some of the bodies. I think he was greatly delighted to see us so well after our mishap.

Fishermen's Union.

Trinity District Council Holds Meeting at Clarenville.

Special to The Evening Telegram. CLARENVILLE, Tuesday. A number of Union candidates bound for Scilly Cove arrived her last Friday. The s.s. Ethie being delayed, it was decided to hold the District meeting at Clarenville, as to proceed to Scilly Cove would mean the loss of another week. The President arrived on Sunday night and was met by the District Council. At 11 a.m. yesterday the Convention was opened by the Chairman, John Loder. Three sessions were held and the Convention closed at midnight last night. The President left for St. John's at 4 a.m. today. John S. Stone of Catalina was elected District Chairman. Archibald Targett, of Hant's Harbor, Deputy Chairman; John Guppy, Port Rexton, Secretary; George Fowlow, Trinity East, Treasurer. Business of much importance was considered and the President was empowered to arrange political matters for Trinity District next fall in the event of such being necessary. The Ethie will not leave until to-morrow. She takes a full load of freight. The President hopes to visit Scilly Cove in a few days to hold a big Union meeting.

with the boat. He came to see after our welfare every day. The doctor took us to the stores and bought me a change of clothes as mine was burnt to pieces in trying to dry them when I came ashore. I daresay, in my opinion, if it should count, after twenty-six years of travel in salt and steam that if there had been any possible way in getting up the cliff, we would have been able to save our shipmates from such a death. There was ample time to save them. If there had been a Jacob's Ladder or ropes hanging down these rugged cliffs, or any kind of sign board to direct any unfortunate sailor who may ever be cast ashore in such a barren place as the South coast, or if there was a watch tower with a telephone to the nearest village for the fishermen to bring ropes with them. To my knowledge the men were aboard the ship twelve good hours before the ship was washed from under them before they went to their doom. I hope some gentleman of influence will take note of these few lines and have some means of saving life if ever such misfortune befalls any other ship and for the sake of humanity.

Another Storm.

After the heavy rain of Tuesday morning the rain veered to the N.W. and blew a hurricane all that afternoon and night, not modifying until yesterday morning. The same weather prevailed all over the country and again the lines of the different telegraph companies were interrupted. It snowed for a while on the Topsalls yesterday and in the city last night.

PELL IN WATER.—The danger of skating on the suburban ponds was well illustrated yesterday afternoon when a boy named Belmont of Cabot Street fell through the ice on Mundy Pond. He was rescued by comrades and was chilled before reaching home.

STABLE UNROOFED.—In the storm of Saturday afternoon Mr. John Fitzgerald's stable on Brennan Street was unroofed. Mr. Fitzgerald, who later went up to survey the damage, was blown off the roof but escaped without injury.

Entertainment at Bay Bulls.

Yesterday at 4 p.m. Bay Bulls schoolhouse was the scene of a very enjoyable entertainment, consisting of songs, choruses, dialogues, etc., and a charming Christmas play. Very Rev. Dean Roche and Fr. McCarthy were present, also a large crowd of people from Bay Bulls and neighboring districts. The entertainment was interesting, instructive and amusing. It lasted about two hours. At the conclusion the Dean thanked the children and teachers, complimented the teachers on the success of the entertainment, and thanked the people who were present in such large numbers. —Con. December 20th, 1912.

Berne, Switzerland, Dec. 23.—Hundreds of workmen engaged in construction work on the Mondor tunnel through the Jura mountains between Italy and France had a narrow escape from death to-day when the pickaxe of one of the workmen opened a powerful subterranean stream.

The laborers fled before the great mass of water which spouted up into the tunnel at the rate of 150 cubic feet a second, flooding it and the neighbouring villages. The damage done by the water is heavy. There was no casualties.

Solway Arrives.

The s.s. Solway, Capt. Parsons, arrived at noon to-day from Port aux Basques with a full freight, large foreign mail and 2 passengers. The ship left here for Port aux Basques Tuesday week and got the full benefit of the storm which then raged. The wind blew a hurricane from the N.W. and after rounding Cape Pine it veered to S.W. with a terrific sea running. The ship had to steam slowly against this and time and again heavy seas boarded her. She arrived up Christmas Bay at 3 p.m. Tuesday morning and was wrecked about in the afternoon a heavy sea ran and that afternoon a hurricane sprang up from the east and off St. Pierre the ship had to lay to for hours when it moderated somewhat. Yesterday afternoon a steamer showing signals of distress was sighted 10 miles to the S.E. of Cape Race, and the Solway bore down on her. She proved to be the missing Nevada, and was wrecked about in the sea with her rudder-head broken and other damages. The Solway ranged up to her as close as possible and made several attempts to get a hawser on board the sinking ship but without avail. Once one of the big hawsers when it was taken on board and made fast, parted and not until 3 p.m. was a steel hawser from the Nevada taken on board the Solway. She began to tow the steamer. The Solway after towing the shore till 5 p.m. when Capt. Parsons seeing that storm was brewing, decided to run to Fermeuse where both ships spent the night. A blinding snow storm with heavy sea and wind prevailed all night and had the ships proceeded the tow must assuredly have gone adrift again. The Nevada, which was bound to Louisbourg had a terrible time of it after leaving this port. She was unmanageable in the storm of Thursday and Thursday night last she was very near running in on the Keys in St. Mary's Bay. Had she done so all on board must have been drowned. Rockets were sent up for assistance from a schooner which was seen passing but she evidently was too far off to notice them. The Solway after discharging will bring the Nevada to this port.

Society Parades.

Y. B. S.
The Adult and Albert Edward Branch of the British Society held their annual parade yesterday. Headed by the C. L. B. band the body proceeded via Prescott Street and Military Road to Government House. Here Vice-President Lawrence tendered the Society's greetings to the Governor. His Excellency replied in a fitting and loyal address. Leaving Government House the Procession wended its way to the C. of E. Cathedral and attended Divine Service, during which the Rev. Canon White delivered a powerful and impressive sermon, taking his text from the 42nd chapter of Genesis, 19th verse. After service ranks were reformed and the Society returned to their hall. Before dispersing gifts of thanks were tendered His Excellency the Governor, Rev. Canon White and the C. L. B. band.

L.O.A.
Royal Oak and Leeming Lodges, L.O.A., turned out in strong numbers yesterday forenoon and paraded through the city accompanied by the bands of M.G.B. and Salvation Army playing stirring airs. On arrival at Government House the Society was received by His Excellency Sir Ralph Williams and suite when P.M. C. Hutchings, Esq., tendered the greetings of the body and in a brief though fluent speech expressed the Society's loyalty to Throne and Empire. His Excellency heartily thanked the members for their loyal expressions and their kindly regards for himself and Lady Williams and regretted his departure from the Colony. He dwelt on the splendid exhibition of fealty to the Old Land, shown by the people of the colonies, referred to the prosperity of the country and wished the Society every success. Cheers were then given for their Majesties, the Royal Family and His Excellency and suite, then the procession wended its way to Divine Service at George St. Church. The pulpit was occupied by Rev. J. W. Bartlett who delivered an eloquent sermon. At the Hall, on the return, the following message received from New York, was read:

Jama Wheeler, Esq.,
"Master Orange Lodge,
"Victoria Hall.
"Covey assembled brethren heartiest New Year's Greetings.
"R. A. SQUIRES."
Congratulatory messages were also received from the British Society and Dudley Lodge, S.Q.E.

Burbank and Danford.

And Charles Dickens' Tale of Two Cities.
Yet another distinct triumph has been attained by the Vitagraph Co. and his time is a beautiful dramatization of the Tale of Two Cities from the celebrated novel of Charles Dickens. The management of the Casino Theatre purchased this exceptional film complete in three reels for the "All Star" show on New Year's Day, which was shown in addition to a very clever and refined musical due who have made pronounced success. The musical numbers are well chosen and the handsome wardrobe and lighting changes are prominent features. It is an entertainment with a delightful combination of variety and was attended by capacity audiences.

Train News.

No cross country express was dispatched last evening, but there will be one out this evening as the repairs on the road near Cape Ray, where the washout occurred, will be finished. The local trains outward and inward were on time yesterday and a train arrived last night from Humbermouth.

Great Opportunities for FIRST 1913 Friday and Saturday Sales.

Well, now that 1912 has passed and sunk into oblivion, with some there will be returned a memory of something which that year impressed them. With us it was a truly remarkable year, thanks to your hearty co-operation in participating in our sales, the success of which, we pride ourselves, lies in the fact that in conducting these sales we make it a point to place goods of quality pared to the smallest margin of profit to induce fast selling, and with our increased staff and the exceptional facilities our fine store affords, and the extra efforts which we intend to put forth this year, ought indeed to bring 1913 up to, and we might hope for a record one as 1912 has been, and is by us thus retained a memory of 1912.

It's a Wise Infant

THIS LITTLE NINETEEN-THREE PRECIOUS CHILD.

For some reason we have always had a picture in our minds of the Old Year as a shriveled old man and the New Year as a little Child. Why we continue to do this, no one seems to know. It must be a matter of habit, for in this wise Twentieth Century our New Year Cherubs usually have the eyes of a Machiavelli and the Horns of Old Nick.

People grow shrewder with each passing year. And in this City of Commercialism they are truly wise. Merchants for example used to talk years ago about judicious advertising to get the people.

Now the tables are turned, and almost anywhere you go you hear the people talk about judicious buying to get the merchants.

The woman who doesn't study her advertising as carefully as her husband reads his Stock Reports is almost an unknown quantity. And the merchant in these days who doesn't give her the advertising to study spends most of his Winter in dusting the cob webs and his summer in keeping out the Flies.

Buyer and Seller have both become shrewd at the game. And better than that, they have come to understand that they are both working with and for each other all the time.

The Shrewd merchant speaks of "my customers," and he fights for them everywhere. The Shrewd buyer speaks of "my store" and she stands by it through thick and thin.

So it has come about that the thousands of families who take this paper have come to look for their merchants advertising in this paper every week, and the man who isn't here is soon forgotten.

And this is as it should be. For just as the merchant backs up his customers and the customers back up their stores, so does this paper back up its readers and its stores. There are thousands of you people reading this paper to-day. We have given you the best news to be had; we have presented this as attractively as possible; all the best merchants in this city have given you the best merchandise to be had, and have presented it as attractively as possible in their advertisements. So our three interests are actually one. Therefore let us keep them one throughout the year.

These merchants will supply you the best values they have. You supply them with the best attention you have; and we shall supply the best medium in this city, for uniting the interests of you both.

Judicious advertising and judicious buying should always go hand in hand.

Swing Low, Sweet Chariot.

The water wagon's at the gate; it's waiting for its yearly freight, so let's take a ride; there's room thereon for one and all, the rich, the poor, the great, the small, the seats are good and wide.

Over stony roads the wagon reels and nearly busts its poor old wheels, when on its way it starts; its weary passengers it shakes and fills them all with grievous aches, and nearly breaks their hearts. Faint journey pilgrims leave their seats and hurried back to old retreats, but passengers of sterner stuff endure the water wagon's bluff, its jabs and jollings rude. And when the first few versts are made, a smoother road's before them laid, a gentle upward slope; and smoother yet the highway grows as on the water wagon goes, the chariot of hope. The chargers prance, the driver's kind, the ruts are soon all left behind, the skies are blue and fair; the birdie's sing, and all is well; the passengers rear up and yell, so glad that they are there. The water wagon's at the gate; so let's get our nerve on straight, and go and take a ride; the wagon goes to Better Fame; Redemption is the driver's name, the steeds are Hope and Pride.

WRECKED CREW GOES HOME.
